Homecoming festivities set to begin Friday

By Cindy Humphreys
Staff Writer

Students and alumni will have the chance to take a trip back in time to "The Roaring Twenties" at Homecoming festivities this weekend.

Depicting that era of flappers, gangsters and bootleggers will be the Homecoming parade at 10 a.m. Saturday. "The Roaring Twenties" is the theme of this year's Homecoming that begins Friday.

Eight floats by various student organizations and community groups are registered for the parade along with bands, clowns and cars.

The Alpha Tau Omega float will show SIU-C's football opponents, the Shockers, as the fuel for a bathtub gin approach to the distillation of Saluki spirits.

The Inter-Greek Council float will be a parody of the Valentines Day Massacre machine guns and all. The other six will also carry the theme.

Twirlers, horses and 100 roller skaters are some of the stunts planned for the parade. Five local fire departments, 20 high school bands and about 10 decorated cars will also participate.

The parade will start at the corner of Walnut Street and University Avenue and end at the McAndrew Stadium stoplight.

The football game against Wichita State will begin at 2 p.m. Saturday, but the Saluki spirit war-up will start at 6:30 p.m. on Friday with the Thompson Point "Yell Like Hell" contest.

The contest will be followed at 7:30 p.m. by one of the two

Tom Bastin, member of Tau Kappa Epsilon, adds a layer of newspaper to a paper mache Saluki for the fraternity's float, "Run Down the Shocker" which is entered in Saturday's Homecoming Parade. The float is one of two being constructed at the TKE house, the other is the Inter-Greek Council's float, "Saluki Day Massacre."

"snake" dances scheduled for the evening. The other snake dance will start on the east side of campus and the two will meet near the Arena parking lot.

The Homecoming King and Queen will be crowned at the bonfire which starts at 8 p.m. at the north end of the Arena parking lot.

Friday night's festivities can be completed at the Student Center Extravaganza, an open house featuring a gambling casino, an extrasensory perception specialist and silent films.

The Student Programming Council film "Norma Rae" will be shown. There will also be group contests like pie eating and car stuffing.

Other Homecoming activities include the rededication ceremonies of Parkinson Laboratory, the class reunions and the Alumni Recognition Luncheon.

The Alumni Great Teacher Award, as well as the four Alumni Achievement Awards will be presented during the Recognition Luncheon Saturday, and acting President Lesar will give the State of the University address.

A 40th anniversary reunion, branch on Sunday will be held by the Sphinx Club, "the oldest honorary organization on campus."

The Van Morrison concert at 8 p.m. Saturday will be one of the highlights of Homecoming.

Shaw proposes guidelines for executive sessions

By Ray Robinson
Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees' practice of routinely scheduling executive sessions before its regular meetings will be abolished, if the board adopts the executive session guidelines proposed Thursday by Chancellor Kenneth Shaw.

Board Chairman Harris Rowe, reacting to public criticism of the board's executive session practices and a lawsuit filed by the Madison County state's attorney, asked Shaw to develop the guidelines last month. In accordance with a board rule, the guidelines were held over to be voted on in November.

Shaw told the board that the guidelines did not constitute an admission that past executive sessions had been illegal, but were designed to alleviate public suspicion and criticism.

"This is a forward-looking step that this board is taking," Shaw said.

Other provisions of Shaw's guidelines are:

—When executive sessions are held they will not be held immediately before a regularly scheduled meeting unless it is unavoidable. Shaw said this was a response to allegations that the executive sessions were nothing more than a rehearsal for the regular meetings.

—Requests to discuss a matter in executive session will be made to Rowe or Shaw, who will then consult with board Legal Counsel Richard Grunz to determine if the matter can legally be discussed in executive session.

—Any board member who feels that an executive session discussion "has strayed" from permissible topics may raise a point of order to Rowe.

—At the next regular meeting after an executive session, Rowe will publicly announce the exceptions to the law which made the session legal.

Trustee Ivan Elliott, Jr. said he thought anyone present in an executive session, not just board members, should be able to raise a point of order on the legality of the session. Shaw said he would try to incorporate Elliott's suggestion into the guidelines the board votes on in November.

Shaw said that beyond the abolition of routinely scheduled executive sessions, the guidelines were "not great departures in the way business has been conducted but a formalization of the way we behave in executive session."

Rowe, after hearing Shaw's guidelines, said "We're for-

County Board upholds merit commission

By Ella Reilly
Staff Writer

Amid applause from an audience of about 150, the Jackson County Board voted 10 to four to retain the controversial deputy sheriff's merit commission.

At a Wednesday night meeting in the county courthouse, the board defeated a resolution to abolish the merit commission that was first introduced by Board Chairman

Bill Kelley at last month's meeting.

Kelley had said that the merit commission's uncompromising "dictation" to the board concerning deputy's salaries and benefits had made for a very "unworkable situation" and abolishing the system would benefit the county.

Though voting to keep the merit commission, several board members said they were dissatisfied with the commission's failure to communicate with the board concerning deputy's salaries and benefits.

The board then appointed a three-person ad hoc committee to research the rules and regulations of the merit commission and to consider the possibility of increasing the present three-member commission to five.

Former board member Doug Eriksen said that even though the board had voted to maintain the commission, the petition drive he and others started last week had to put the merit question to a referendum vote would continue. Eriksen estimated the number of signatures his group has collected at 1,400. Sixteen hundred are needed to place the question on a ballot.

If the merit system were to be approved by referendum, the only way to eliminate it would be by another referendum, Eriksen added.

Housewives protest Monty Python film

By Leanne Waxman
Staff Writer

Five Roylton housewives protested Thursday in front of the Varsity Theater against Monty Python's Flying Circus film, "The Life of Brian," although none of them have seen the movie.

"It is making fun of the crucifixion and the death of Christ," said one of the protesting women, Dorothy Lefter, whose troops hoisted cardboard placards supporting the cause.

Lefter said she received a review of the film from a Christian publishing house in Arizona. The women also said they heard about the movie from other Roylton residents. Roylton is about 20 miles northeast of Carbondale.

The film, which is a parody partially aimed at organized religious institutions, has been playing at the Varsity for two weeks.

The women's placards read, "We protest this show. The Life of Brian, because it makes a mockery of the life of Christ." Renee Lefter, another of the Roylton protestors, cited the final scene of the film as one of the most offensive. In the final scene, Brian, who is portrayed in the movie as an unwilling messiah, is crucified on a large wooden cross along with many other people. Brian continues to deny he is the messiah to a group of revolutionaries, called the People's Front for Judea, while he is on the cross. Brian's companions on crosses around him serenaded him with a refrain of "look on the brighter side of life."

"Being about the life of Christ, and portraying it as funny—ha ha—is making a mockery of Christ. We felt we should take a stand on it. We realize it won't make a difference," Lefter said.

Lefter also said the movie depicts Brian's mother as a prostitute.

Lefter said they were not protesting as representatives of any religious denomination.

Rash of thefts spurs seminar

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

A recent rash of burglaries in the Lewis Park Apartments has prompted the manager of Lewis Park to schedule a "Community Crime Prevention Seminar" for Monday.

Rex Renfrew, manager of Lewis Park Apartments, said there has been an increase in thefts and burglaries in Lewis Park over the past three months. Only 40 percent of these burglaries are the result of forced entry, he added.

The other 60 percent were "walk-in" burglaries in which the apartment doors were left open, Renfrew said.

"The statistics show that most people do not take the steps needed to keep from becoming a victim," he added.

The seminar will be held at 5 p.m. Monday at the Lewis School gymnasium. Lewis School is located at the intersection of Grand Avenue and Lewis Lane. The public is invited.

Renfrew said the seminar will center on the prevention of home burglary and theft. Speakers will include Kerry Knodle, professor of ad-

Presidents given power to control fines

By Paula D. Walter
Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees adopted a policy Thursday which would give each campus president the authority to institute library fines and charges to all persons, including faculty.

SIU-C President Hiram Lesar said the policy that will be used on this campus will "more than likely" be a compromise which has been drawn up by a library affairs committee.

That compromise, which will allow faculty members not to be fined for overdue books unless the materials that are checked out are called for, was a result of "hot and heavy debates," said Larry Taylor, associate professor of English and a member of the Library Affairs Advisory Committee.

Taylor, a Faculty Senate representative on the committee, said that traditionally, the faculty have had library privileges different from students and that the possibility of losing those privileges was one of the major reasons faculty opposed the fines.

"On the other hand, there was an agreement that the library is there for students and faculty and that getting books back is as much of an obligation for faculty as it is for students," Taylor said.

Taylor said the compromise will prevent the faculty from keeping books out indefinitely, but at the same time "will continue the tradition of this special privilege or right for faculty who are told by the University that they must continue to engage in research."

Chancellor Kenneth Shaw said he believes this matter should belong to the campuses and that the policy adopted by the board formalizes the

Senate opposes proposed fee hike

By Diana Penner
Staff Writer

A resolution opposing the proposed $10 athletics fee increase and one supporting the proposed 60-cent hike in the student activity fee have been passed by the Student Senate.

The Student Affairs and Community Services committee recommended to the senate Wednesday night that it oppose the athletic fee increase based on a survey of the student body. Phil Eberlin, Thompson Point senator and chairman of the SACS committee, said the results of the survey conducted in the Student Center indicated that the majority of students oppose the fee increase.

During debate on the issue, West Side Senator Paul Evans said he was not assured by his talks with University administrators that most of the money generated by the increase would be used to equalize funding for women's and men's athletics.

Stuart Burchard was the lone senator voting in favor of the increase. Burchard, representing the East Side, disagreed with the senate's contention that money from the increase would be used to "beef up" the football program. Burchard said the long-term goal of the increase would be to ease deficits throughout athletic programming.

The senate's approval of a 60-cent increase in the student activity fee would bring the total amount of the fee to $7.80 per semester if approved by the Board of Trustees. The senate also proposed the creation of a

Project attorney's contract ended

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

City officials decided Wednesday to terminate the contract of William South, attorney for the Railroad Demonstration Project, after two months of discussion concerning the legality of his employment.

State's Attorney Howard Hood and Paul G. Schoen, an attorney hired to represent the city in the negotiations with South, reached the agreement after Hood raised the question of a conflict of interest, according to Randy Jackson, public information officer for Carbondale.

Beg your Pardon

Chandra Banerjee's name was omitted from the Faculty Senate's list of Presidential Search Committee nominees in the Thursday edition of the Daily Egyptian. Banerjee, professor in the School of Medicine, is one of six nominees recommended by the senate.

In a letter to City Manager Carroll Fry, Hood said that in his opinion, conflict of interest statutes prohibited South's employment.

According to terms of the agreement, South will receive full pay for work completed up to Oct. 31. Jackson said the city will contract another attorney for the project.

"I felt that where (John) Womick was the city attorney and where South was his partner, the state conflict of interest statutes were being violated," Hood said Thursday.

South explained that Schoen, Womick, and an attorney hired by Womick met with Hood and advised him that they "didn't see any conflict of interest problems."

South said he did not think his employment was terminated because the city thought conflict of interest problems exist.

Election process needs less 'circus'

By U.S. Rep. Paul Simon
D-11, 24th District

The political pot is boiling. And much too early.

The British have election contests which last approximately three or four weeks. In Canada the election contest carries on for about two months.

But even before the 1978 election was held, we had candidates for the 1980 presidential nomination. Candidates get tired and the public grows weary. And by the time bleary-eyed candidates weather more than a year of campaigning, and the public suffers through the same, there is a dulling of the nerves that takes place, and those who vote in our elections for the candidates who have survived are few compared to most democracies.

The most fundamental question remains: Does this process produce our finest possible leadership? I mean no disrespect for the nominees which both parties have produced in recent years when I suggest that the process is flawed.

There should be a willingness—even an eagerness—to serve as President on the part of those who seek the office. But there should not be so much eagerness that a reflective person will not put himself or herself through that kind of lengthy abuse for "the prize." The person who wins should possess something substantially more than an emotional craving to hold office.

I recall when a then-senator, Walter Mondale, ruled himself out of the 1976 presidential race because he did not want to spend a year living in motels, racing frantically from state to state, looking pleasant but ducking issues rather than pondering them. I admired his decision even as I regretted it.

The media must share part of the blame for our problems. Every presidential candidate knows that putting on a feathered head-dress in South Dakota will get much more national publicity than a substantial discussion of the nation's education needs. Every presidential candidate knows that rarely do reporters press on issues in more than a superficial way, and if they do persist, the stories of substance are buried or not used and are not likely to replace in prominence a crowd count, or the fact that the campaign train hit a cow, or the crowning of the Jones Count, Blackberry Queen.

The TV shot on the 6 o'clock news will last 20 seconds to a minute, and the cameras will pick up a good line written into the speech by a New York advertising agency, rather than the substance of the address which is complicated.

The party structure is partly to blame. We have "reformed" ourselves too much. What appeared to be reform was too far and resulted in irresponsibility. That is true in Congress, and it is true about party conventions.

We should have more serious weighing of the issues and less circus. We need to respond to national need, not national polls. Unlike most democracies, our legislative branch has almost nothing to do with whom the parties nominate. In part that is the system; in part it is because members of Congress are expert practitioners in the art of ducking. And while many members will complain about the party nominee of either party, few are willing to stand up and be counted.

As I write this I am somewhat in a "down" mood, and so is the nation. Not hopelessly so. But the public is yearning for firm, tough, dedicated leadership.

Maybe it is Jimmy Carter or Ted Kennedy; maybe it is John Connally or John Anderson or Ronald Reagan.

But I have the sinking feeling that if the right leadership emerges, it will almost be despite our excessively lengthy and chaotic election system.

Hours test patience

Well today is Saturday. Only two more days until my Math and Econ tests. Gosh, it sure would have been great if I would have known the library closed at 10:00 pm on Fridays. Oh well, the hour and a half I was there before I was told to leave, I did get one chapter halfway covered for my Econ test. But I didn't even get to Math. Hey! I know! I can spend all afternoon at the library today, grab a bite to eat for dinner, and study the rest of the evening there too. Then I'll have Econ out of the way and have Sunday to study for Math. Oh that's right! The library closes at 6 p.m. on Saturdays so everyone can go up town and get drunk. Guess I'll have to use Sunday to finish studying for my Econ test. Wait a minute! If I use Sunday to finish up Econ and my tests are Monday, then when will I have time to study for my Math test? I just can't fail my Math test! But what choice do I have? Sigh..... Oh, if only the library had been opened.

Eastgate owner says liquor sale not illegal

The Daily Egyptian's article concerning the Carbondale Liquor Commission's denial of permission for the Eastgate Liquor Mart's "Truckload Special," gives the impression that Eastgate's request was illegal. Not so. Initially, the City Attorney held the opinion that selling in the parking lot was illegal. However, upon considering Eastgate's argument, the Commission decided the sale was not illegal. We were turned down because 3 of 5 of the Commissioners felt the sale would set a bad precedent.

We at Eastgate feel the consumer would agree with us that selling warm beer very inexpensively from the back of a truck parked in Eastgate's lot is a good idea.

FCC not the culprit

I'm writing in response to a letter in Friday's DE written by David Furer, which praised your review of the new wave rock group "The Clash." In the letter he stated that "the reason that The Clash is a least likely candidate for Top 40 is because of the FCC putting the word out to the major radio stations not to play punk rock."

Contrary to what Mr. Furer believes, the Federal Communications Commission only puts the very general restriction on programming that it be in the "public interest." The FCC does not "put the word out" on rock groups. Programming decisions are left strictly to the individual radio station.

The music for Top 40 formats is selected with many considerations in mind, including listener popularity, record sales, and compatibility with the format. It's the programmers who don't feel that "The Clash" is ready for Top 40 airplay, not the FCC.

Bill Andrie

the music they listen to write letters to the Editor. However, to say what one person likes is better than what someone else likes is a fascist motive. Arguing about tastes in luxuries is a waste of time. We don't need anymore comedians like Chicago DJ Steve Dahl around anyway. But I'm not saying I don't like rock and roll either, because I do. In fact the point of this letter is aimed toward those of us who enjoy New Wave music. New Wave is increasing in popularity and I think that the SIU concert committee should act accordingly. David Johansen was the first step in that direction. If we write letters voting for what we do like and not letters condemning what we don't like, maybe we will get who we like here at SIU. Let them know that we want the Talking Heads or Elvis Costello. Until then, the Ramones are playing at Northwestern University next month, who's got a ride?

Cheerleaders missed big part of the game

We Saluki football fans are fortunate indeed to have those energetic, enthusiastic girls in short, bouncy skirts (and guys in shorts) leading the cheers at every home game. Their excitement and sheer delight with football is truly inspiring.

Our cheerleaders are so enthusiastic, in fact, that at times we may think they are oblivious to the game, like when they do flip-flops as the other team intercepts the ball. They love football so much that they smile joyously when anyone scores.

But we forgive them these discrepancies. After all, they only get paid in attention. And now they are working harder than ever to please. Their chorus-girl and strip-tease routines are really very "cute."

This Saturday, however, at the ISU game, this limitless "vacuity" went a little too far. Injuries are certainly a part of football, but in the second half, it was obvious that Mark Hemphill was very seriously hurt. As he laid, apparently unconscious, paramedics were not able to move him for many long minutes, and the crowd was hushed and fearful.

Perhaps to alleviate boredom during the wait, or to not let excitement wane, the tireless Saluki cheerleaders began a routine of impressive "applause mounts" and cheerful cartwheels and stunts. Very nice, very entertaining. But sorry, cheerleaders, not very appropriate.

Read instructions to avoid hassles

Financial Aid - Isn't it great? Dear 'ole Uncle Sam sure is sweet to give so many students so much money to go to college. After all - it is a person's prerogative whether or not he wishes to further his education beyond age 16.

But it seems as though at SIU - it is the "time" to gripe and complain about the availability of the funds. The regulation for the funds - BEOG (Basic Educational Opportunity Grant), ISSC (Illinois State Scholarship), NDSL (National Direct Student Loan), IGLP (Illinois Guaranteed Loan Program) STS (Student-to-Student grants) and others are all set by the administrators beyond that of our efficient Student Work and Financial Aid Office on campus. If students are irresponsible enough not to fill out the forms in time (before March of each academic year) or get them turned into SWFA in Woody Hall on time then they should expect to be delayed in getting their money.

I feel very privileged to be one of those students lucky enough to get financial aid or else I couldn't afford to be in school now. Maybe it is because I took time to read the instructions, fill out the form correctly, and check with my financial aid counselor that I had no trouble in receiving my grant. The counselors there are always willing to help students in distress.

It is truly sad to see so many students complain about the amount of their grants or how quick they get them. These students I can see in the next few years complaining that their food stamps or ADC checks are always late!

The next time you hear a student moaning about his financial status, stop and ask; where did the problem begin, the Administration or him?

Lack of funds may lead to closing of art gallery

By Jenell Olson
Staff Writer

The Vergette Gallery, a room in the Allyn Building where students in art, photography, ceramics painting and other related fields, can exhibit their work, may fold this year due to lack of funds.

The gallery, which has hosted displays for the past five years, has operated through faculty donations until now. However, almost all the funds have been used and the gallery may not be able to afford its director and security attendants soon, said Patricia Taylor, president of the Arts Students League and a gallery attendant.

Taylor said the gallery is important because, "When you're a senior in art, you have to be able to show your work to let people know what you've been doing for the past four years. The gallery is a place to do so."

"It's like a thesis paper for other majors," she added. "It's a way to tie together and display all you have learned and accomplished."

Taylor, a senior in art, said the other galleries on campus, such as Mitchell Galleries, display primarily graduate and professional work, while the Vergette Gallery exhibits mostly undergraduate pieces.

The gallery, which was dedicated in May 1978 to Nicholas Vergette, a professor in art from 1960 to 1974, costs about $2,500 a year to run, Taylor said.

She added that the gallery is managed by ASL students and that they have tried to obtain funds from the Student Programming Council in order to pay security attendants. SPC Chairman Marc Parker said the funding request was denied because SPC's Fine Arts Committee has a budget of $1,098 - the lowest of all the Computer music bibliography made

By Debbie Balances
Student Writer
John M. Eddins, assistant professor of curriculum instruction in media at SIUC, assisted by David Peters, chairman of the music education department of the University of Illinois, has prepared a bibliography containing about 275 sources on computer music.

The list, completed last summer, is especially important to those who are using computers for the sake of composing music. In a matter of moments, interested musicians may receive information pertaining to computer music application from computer terminals which are programmed for Eddin's project. Eddins said that hundreds of participating terminals are located both nationally and internationally. Information may be obtained from any of the 275 entries by entering the subject or the author's last name.

According to Eddins, computer music is made by coding the parameters of sound and time into a number system with a computer program. The pitch, time and melody of a particular composition are then "locked in."

Because every musical element of the composition is keyed into the computer, it is impossible to make mistakes in the process of recording a musical piece. According to Eddins, this is one of the main advantages in using computers to compose with. Other main advantages of recording with computers are memory and speed.

Eddins pointed out that some musicians feel that having everything programmed makes the "chance" element out of composing and therefore makes composing less artistic. For those who feel this way there is a special chance selection which may be entered on the computer along with a specific keyed-in formula.

Jethro Tull will perform at 8 p.m. Nov. 7 in the Arena. The concert is the only college appearance scheduled on the band's American tour.

Tull ticket sales begin 'soon'

Jethro Tull will be appearing in concert at 8 p.m. Nov. 7 in the SIU Arena. Ticket information has not been released yet but Julie Moller, Arena Promotions director, said that tickets will go on sale soon.

Tull is led by Ian Anderson, the singer, writer and flute player for the band. Though many people confuse Anderson with Jethro Tull, the name of the band was taken from an 18th century English agriculturist of the same name. Anderson has provided material for all of Tull's albums, which date back to "This Was," released in 1968.

Other Tull albums include "Stand Up," "Aqualung," "Thick as a Brick," "Benefit," "War Child," "Minstrel in the Gallery" and their latest, "Stormwatch."

Tull's appearance at SIU-C is the only college appearance of the band's current American tour.

Reynolds' movie is funny but remains intelligent

By Jordan Gold
Staff Writer

Human emotion. It can sometimes be so irrational especially when pertaining to relationships between men and women. "Starting Over" is a movie about two relationships, one rational and one irrational.

Phil Potter, portrayed by Burt Reynolds, is involved in both. The irrational relationship is with his ex-wife Jessica, played by Candice Bergen, and the rational one is with his new girlfriend Marilyn, portrayed by Jill Clayburgh.

Phil and Jessica end their marriage at the start of the film. As Phil leaves, Jessica plays the song that she has written about the breakup. It soon becomes a hit single, haunting Phil wherever he goes, including his first date's house. She is played by Mary Kay Place.

Phil is introduced to Marilyn at his brother's house. After a slow beginning, they soon fall in love and Marilyn moves in with Phil. The relationship between the two is funny, charming and light. They get along very well together.

Then comes the monkey wrench. Jessica comes back. Phil realizes that he has always loved her and moves back in with her.

Still, "Starting Over" is a light comedy most of the time and the movie can't end that way. It's inconceivable to an impartial observer that Phil Potter could actually prefer his ex-wife over his new lover.

A Review

But Phil Potter is not an impartial observer. Even if Jessica is a crazy lady that writes a song about every situation, she's still the lady that he's spent the last eight years of his life with and he just can't throw that away. Especially when she doesn't want to, either.

The acting in the film is superb. Clayburgh is excellent as a lovable, sensitive, paranoid lady, while Bergen plays the ex-wife to perfection. Reynolds has always been an underrated actor because of the quality of the films he has been in. This one could change that.

"Starting Over" is a film about the pain of divorce. It is a well-done attempt because it is so entertaining. It tells us a message while we're laughing and screams it as we're crying. It sure would be nice if all light comedies could be this good.

Dr. Bombay, a Carbondale-based jazz, funk and blues band, will present a free concert at 4:30 p.m. Saturday in the Free Forum Area east of the Student Center parking garage.

Dr. Bombay concert planned

Doctor Bombay, a Carbondale-based band, will be performing a free concert from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the Free Forum Area as part of the Student Center's program of "Saluki Saturdays."

Bombay is led by the blues singing of "Loose Billy Loose" Desmond, who is backed by a three-piece horn section, lead guitarist "Fast Jack" O'Boyle, bass, drums and the doctor himself, Carlos Penny on congas.

The band's music can be characterized as a blend of blues, jazz, funk and rock. Material played by the band includes songs by such varied artists as Little Feat, Southside Johnny and the Asbury Jukes, Junior Wells, The Crusaders and Elvis Costello, in addition to original material.

In addition to the concert, the Student Center is offering a food special consisting of barbecued chicken, cole slaw, cobbler and a drink for $1.

Classical pianist to perform

The International Coffee House will present Berenice Lipson-Gruzen, a contemporary classical pianist, at 9 p.m. Friday in the Old Main Room of the Student Center. Admission is $1.

Lipson-Gruzen has performed in such places as Vienna, Amsterdam and Belgium and with orchestras such as the Queens Symphony and the Philharmonica Virtuosi of New York.

Her music has been well received by critics, who have called it "fluid, graceful, dreamy, poetic but yet presented in a dynamic manner."

Preparation for Parenthood seeks funds from City Council

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

When funding for the Preparation for Parenthood program did not come in as planned earlier this month, Director Gloria Thomas found herself unemployed and the group once again found itself before Carbondale's City Council to seek funds.

Thomas stopped receiving pay Oct. 1, after a five-month interim funding agreement from the city expired and anticipated Illinois Family Planning Council funding didn't come through.

The program, which Thomas started in 1976, is being considered for other grants from both the IFPC and Department of Health Education and Welfare, according to Thomas. But these grants won't be issued until January.

Tyler Young Jr., chairman of the Preparation for Parenthood, Inc. board, asked council members Monday to pay the not-for-profit organization's director until January, when PP expects to receive $26,571 from the IFPC. Thomas receives $834 per month, or $2,502 for the three-month period.

The PP program was instituted to provide family planning services to citizens living on the northeast side of Carbondale, according to Thomas.

City Manager Carroll J. Fry suggested the funds be taken from the Human Resources budget. However, Bob Stalls, director of Human Resources, told council members that his budget was already suffering a money crunch.

"I cannot support this," Stalls said. "The health program will push out people come Dec. 15, if no new money is found."

Council members disagreed on whether to fund the program. They are scheduled to decide the issue at Monday's formal council meeting.

Councilman Charles Watkins said, "I've supported it (the program) for a long time, I just don't think we can continue to support it in this way."

Councilwoman Helen Westberg agreed with Watkins, saying, "Sometime you have to draw a line and I'm afraid the time has come."

However, Councilwoman Susan Mitchell said, "I support the refunding, I think it's worth the gamble."

Thomas said she will continue to work for the program, located at the Eurma C. Hayes Center, on a volunteer basis. When the program was first started, Thomas said she worked for 14 months without being paid.

Thomas said she could not go on part-time salary—as was suggested at the council meeting—since she is a self-supporting, single parent.

Stalls said it was important to have a director for the program, since the IFPC has scheduled an on-site inspection of Preparation for Parenthood. The results of the inspection, scheduled in late November-early, December, will decide whether the program receives the grant.

Stalls said, "If you are going to be reviewed, it's good to put your best foot forward."

Other employees at the center include a grants researcher, an outreach counselor, a secretary-bookkeeper and two volunteers from STU-C, according to Thomas.

College Bowl scheduled to test students

Application forms are available for teams wishing to participate in SIU-C's Second Annual Intramural College Bowl.

Patterned after the popular television game show of the 1950s and 1960s, College Bowl, "the varsity sport of the mind," emphasizes quick recall and rapid analysis. Questions will range from algebra to zoology with emphasis on the liberal arts. Teams will be competing for scholarships, trophies, prizes and the opportunity to represent SIU-C in regional and national tournaments.

All full-time SIU-C students are eligible. Teams consist of four members and one alternate with a maximum of two graduate students per team. Students do not have to belong to an SIU-C club or organization to form a team.

Application forms are available from student organization and club presidents, residence halls and the Student Center administrative office. A $5 entry fee is required. The campus tournament will be limited to the first 16 teams which apply. No applications will be accepted after Monday, Oct. 22. Competition is scheduled to begin Nov. 6.

The first-place team will be awarded a membership on the SIU-C All-Star Team, four $125 academic cash scholarships donated by the SIU Foundation, a trophy and certificates. The second-place team will be awarded four $100 academic cash scholarships donated by the Graduate School, a trophy and certificates. The two semifinalist teams will be awarded trophies and certificates. All winners will receive certificates donated by the Student Center and local merchants.

The All-Star Team will represent SIU-C in regional competition.

Giant City Park official urges cliff climbers to use caution

By Bill Murray
Student Writer

Death and injury of Giant City State Park visitors from falls off the park's scenic rocks has become a major concern of park officials.

Tim Merriman, park interpreter, said that 20 falls from park bluffs occurred between 1975 and September of this year. Two of the falls were fatal.

The most recent such accident resulted in the death of SIU-C student, Phillip Drost, on Sept. 8, and prompted park officials to issue an appeal to the public to use caution and to avoid drinking alcohol when climbing the bluffs.

Merriman said 11 of the 17 total injuries in the park involving severe nervous system damage were inflicted on SIU-C students and more than three-fourths of the accidents involved the use of alcohol.

"One guy had a can of beer in his hand and another in his back pocket when he fell from a bluff," Merriman said.

Park regulations stipulate that only beer and wine may be consumed in the park by those of legal age. Consumption is restricted to picnic areas and people found drinking elsewhere will be asked to move, Merriman said.

"The familiar response among friends of fall victims is that they were just out having a good time and no one ever thought anything serious could happen to them," Merriman said.

"If you're going climbing you should take the proper precautions such as using safety ropes and helmets. And don't drink, it's dangerous enough as it is," Merriman advised.

Merriman stressed the need for adequate training for anyone planning on climbing. He recommended a course at John A. Logan Community College called "Vertical Rigging and Rescue" and a program at SIU-C's Touch of Nature Environmental Center that teaches the proper techniques of climbing and rappelling.

"Both of these build safety into their programs," Merriman said.

"Our evidence indicates that very few climbers use the proper safety devices or any equipment at all. Many times it's a spontaneous urge, someone looks at the bluff and just starts climbing," Merriman said.

Merriman said there has been only one reported injury in the past five years involving a climber who was using equipment.

"Sometimes we've gone two years without a serious bluff accident. Other times there seems to be a rash of them. The accidents always coincide with the super nice weather in September and October or in late April and they almost always occur on weekends," Merriman said.

Merriman added that 90 percent of the accidents are inflicted on people between the ages of 14 and 25.

"If you witness an accident, report it to the park office or the Interpretive Center (open seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.) and don't attempt to move the victim," Merriman said.

Merriman said that if an accident occurs when both the park office and the Interpretive Center are closed, go to the Giant City Lodge where there are phones that can be used to call an ambulance. Merriman added that the park staff has a policy of double checking with the ambulance service to make sure an ambulance is on the way and the message for help has gotten through.

"All our professional staff has training in first aid. Half the members of the entire park staff have training in cardiopulmonary resuscitation and by November, all of the staff will have this type of training," Merriman said.

Merriman said this training is necessary because of the increasing number of injuries in the park.

"Our staff has saved the lives of several accident victims by being on the scene and administering assistance such as holding a victim's tongue to keep it from blocking his air passage," Merriman said.

"It's a sad, sad experience that sometimes haunts you for weeks after you learn of a victim, who you've spent hours with talking and attending to, dying as a result of the accident," Merriman said.

The park staff, however, will not move a victim and is not licensed to administer any type of drug or pain-killer to a victim. This responsibility rests with the Emergency Medical Technicians from the Jackson County Ambulance Service, Merriman said.

"The EMT's are very professional and very sharp, they do as fast and effective a job as can be done without endangering a victim's life," Merriman said.

Merriman advised friends of fall victims not to interfere with the park staff attending to the victim. Friends can be of help by waiting by the road to meet the ambulance and showing the workers exactly where the accident occurred.

Merriman said climbing and rappelling are allowed in only two places in the park. One is at the Makanda Bluffs near the entrance to the park and the other is in the Devil's Stand Table area. Merriman warned climbers to stay away from the Shelter Cave in the Devil's Stand Table as this has been the site of four of the most serious falls in the past five years.

Merriman urged park visitors to obey the park speed limits and regulations and to use caution while driving through the park.

In an accident on Sept. 16, Wayne T. Harry of Herrin, suffered major injuries when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car one-half mile south of the ranger station in the park, according to state police.

Park officials were reluctant to give any information concerning this accident.

Apartment thefts cause for seminar ministration of justice, and Lt. Tom Busch and Patrolman Bob Ledbetter of Carbondale police.

Carbondale Police Chief Ed Hogan said 17 burglaries were reported in Lewis Park from September 1978 to Oct. 1, 1979. However, nine of those thefts occurred during the past month and a half.

Hogan said the police have "some very concrete leads, which are being followed up" concerning the Lewis Park burglaries. Arrests will be made and the problem will be solved in the near future, he said.

He said maintenance men have come to apartments to make repairs and the doors are unlocked whether the residents are home or not.

The unemployment problem, which the nation faces may be another reason for the increase, he said.

"Unemployment usually enhances the possibility of illegal activity," Renfrew said.

Renfrew said he feels the burglary rate may be up on the east side of Carbondale in general. However, the managers of Garden Park Acres Apartments (607 E. Park), Park Place Apartments (611 E. Park) and the Wall Street Quadrangle (1207 S. Wall St.) all reported no increase in burglaries.

The seminar is designed to "help people to try to prevent becoming a victim of crime."

Reception celebrating 25th year to be held at Wesley Foundation

By Shelley Davis
Staff Writer

To celebrate its 25th anniversary at SIU-C, the Wesley Community House will hold an open house and reception following the football game Saturday at 816 S. Illinois Ave.

According to the Rev. Murrial Nance, director of the foundation, students, faculty, staff and alumni are invited to attend.

"It will be fairly low-key," Nance said. He said it will provide a chance for people to mingle, meet new people and renew old acquaintances.

The Wesley Community House was established at the University in 1954 to provide a ministry to members of the United Methodist denomination. The building was built in 1957 in cooperation with the First United Methodist Church and Grace United Methodist Church of Carbondale.

Nance said the biggest change in the foundation in the last 25 years has been a broadening of its perspective.

"Originally the foundation was just a ministry to United Methodist students, faculty and staff," Nance explained.

"We now see a broad ministry, a greater feeling of responsibility to the total campus community," he said.

The Wesley Community House also tries to stay abreast of social changes, Nance added.

"We help the student to struggle with how his faith fits in the process of getting an education," he said. "One thing we try to do is stay in touch with social issues affecting human beings."

This is done through the use of films, speakers and discussions, he said. The house also has the Puka Pre School, the Network Crisis Center and the Eaz-N Coffeehouse.

Memorial service to be held honoring former professor

A memorial service will be held at 4 p.m. Monday in Morris Library Auditorium for Carl G. Townsend, an associate professor of mathematics who was killed in an accident Sept. 17.

Dr. Townsend was killed in Montana when the truck he was driving struck a bridge. He was preparing to go on a sabbatical to Poland.

The service is open to all those who knew Dr. Townsend.

A memorial scholarship fund has been established in Dr. Townsend's name.

He came to SIU-C in 1965 after earning his doctorate at Washington State University in the same year. He was an advisor for SIU-C's math club, Pi Mu Epsilon.

Professor mixes media tools in teaching psychology course

By Laurie Murphy
Student Writer

Thomas O. Mitchell, associate professor of psychology, has combined self-instruction materials with classroom activities to more effectively teach large lecture classes.

Mitchell, who teaches a large lecture course in social psychology, believes his system allows students to learn a lot of material in a convenient format. Although the system, which began in the fall of 1978, covers more material the students are working hard and getting good grades, Mitchell said.

Mitchell presented a paper

City terminates attorney's contract

but because the question was raised.

"It puts a cloud over this," South said.

Jackson said, "Both Hood and the city feel that this agreement is in the best interests of the public because it insures the prompt completion of the legal work already begun by attorney South on this very important railroad relocation project. It also expresses the city's desire to avoid even the appearance of a conflict of interest in its contracts with those in the private sector."

South and Womick were the sole stockholders in a legal corporation in Carbondale when the contract was signed, which they have since dissolved. Womick was the city attorney at that time, a position he resigned on Aug. 31.

South's contract for legal services on the railroad relocation project was to expire May 1, 1980. South's bills to the city, from June 1 to July 27, amount to $2,455, according to Dick Stanley, fiscal officer for the railroad relocation project. The total legal service budget for the project amounts to $20,000, Stanley said.

Eldon Gosnell, director of the railroad relocation demonstration project, said a new attorney for the project will be hired as soon as possible.

Monty Python film cited as mockery

"We're just Christian housewives protesting against this movie," she said.

The Varsity Theater is the only movie house within a 40-mile radius of Royalton that is currently showing the film.

"We just found out about it (the film showing in Carbondale) yesterday. We didn't have time to get a bigger group together," Lester said.

A crowd of about seven people and various representatives from the local media gathered to ask the women questions. One spectator denounced the women for protesting a film they have not personally viewed.

titled, "SIMIT: A System for Teaching Large Classes Effectively, Humanely and Inexpensively" to the Fifth International Conference on Improving University Teaching in London, England in July.

A variety of media tools are used by Mitchell's students in the Self Instruction Center of Morris Library including lecture tapes and practice tests on slides. F. Dale Brown, instruction designer in the Learning Resource Service, helped Mitchell to prepare the slides for the students' use.

Mitchell integrates these media tools with the use of case studies, a textbook and study guides. A two-hour lecture tape is also available which summarizes the entire semester's lectures.

The class lecture sessions include discussions, surveys and simulations which give students first-hand applications of theories of social psychology.

Mitchell believes acquaintanceship with students is very important. With the help of taking the students' pictures, Mitchell is able to address most of his students by name.

Mitchell's students make up about 20 percent of the self-instruction materials users, according to Donald L. Winsor, director of learning resources. Winsor said that if many more instructors used the SIC as Mitchell does, they would need to build an additional room.

The Learning Resource Service provides other self-help tools, such as: terminals to Plato, the University of Illinois' teaching computer; machines to produce overheads and to enlarge pictures; reel-to-reel tapes; films; and even bones for anatomy classes. Some of the media tools are especially helpful to blind students Winsor said. Typewriters are also rented to students in cooperation with student government, Winsor said.

There have been 9,818 total uses of SIC material so far this semester. Winsor said when people sometimes ask what students spend their time doing, he can show how many are using the library self-instruction material. Winsor and Mitchell both see great opportunity for the use of such study material.

Rowe had previously said he hoped the guidelines would persuade Madison County State's Attorney Nicholas from dropping his Open Meetings Act lawsuit against the board.

guidelines at Thursday's meeting, Rowe said, "I don't anticipate that this will affect Mr. Byron's course of action. He has his job to do and I don't quarrel with that."
Rowe also said that he did not think the SIU board, when compared to other public boards in Illinois, deserved the criticism it had received over its executive sessions. He directed some criticism of his own at former State Rep. Anthony Scariano, who authored the Open Meetings Act and has frequently criticized the board for violating it.

"I'd like to know what the (executive session) guidelines were when Mr. Scariano was chairman of the Illinois Racing Board," Rowe said.
Rowe later added, "He (Scariano) loves to twist out tails here at Southern even though he doesn't know what's going on."

Harriers 'looking past' Racers

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

The bodies of men's cross country team members will be at Murray State Friday, but, according to Saluki Coach Lew Hartzog, their minds may be elsewhere.

"I'm quite sure the kids are looking past this meet, just as I am," Hartzog said. "We're kind of centering our workouts toward next weekend's Illinois Intercollegiate, so I don't know how well we'll do."

Hartzog said Murray State, which sent three runners to last weekend's Indiana Invitational, has a strong team.

"Their coach harbors hopes of beating Western Kentucky, which is ranked in the top 19 nationally, so they have got to be awfully good," he said. "He has all his people back from last year, with the exception of one runner. He also brought in two Englishmen this year. The other runners he has, he left them home to rest last weekend."

Hartzog said the three runners the Racers entered at Indiana, Jerry Odlin, Richard Charleston and Gary Ribbins, all ran well last weekend. He added he considered last year's 26-29 SIU win over the Racers an upset.

"We didn't expect to beat them last year, but we did," Hartzog said. "It was a really close race, 26-29. We were really surprised that we beat them, because they were really strong."

Hartzog said one of the Salukis, sophomore Chris

Riegger, has had problems working out this week because of an ankle injury.

"Riegger turned his ankle last Sunday," Hartzog said. "He didn't really work extremely hard all week, although he progresses to be 100 percent."

Friday's meet, the last one for SIU, will determine if the Salukis finish above the 500 mark. SIU is currently 2-2. After the Illinois Intercollegiate, the Salukis will participate in the Missouri Valley Conference championship meet Nov. 3 at Des Moines, Iowa, and the NCAA District V meet Nov. 10 at Tulsa. Those two meets will determine if SIU can defend its MVC title and make a return trip to the NCAA championships.

Tankers tuning up for season

By Rod Smith
Staff Writer

Although fall sports are still in full swing, other Saluki athletes are tuning up for the opening of their winter sports schedules. The men's swimming and diving team has been practicing in the water and in the weight room for over a month, and they are ready to see just how much the hard work has paid off.

The men's swimming and diving team, along with the Saluki women divers, will compete against themselves and the stopwatch in a homecoming intersquad meet Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Student Recreation Center pool. The women's swim team has not practiced as long as the men and will not participate.

"We want to see where we are in training and conditioning," Coach Bob Steele said. "We also want to see what our freshmen are capable of."

The team will be divided into two squads, the Maroon and the White. The two teams were made as even as possible, using times turned in during earlier practice; to split the squad. Each swimmer will be entered in two events. Sprinters will be swimming 100 and 200 yards and distance swimmers will go 200 and 500 yards.

The meet will consist of six events: the 200-yard freestyle, 200-yard butterfly, 200-yard backstroke, 200-yard breaststroke, 500-yard freestyle and a medley relay with each man swimming 100 yards.

Steele has added extra incentive to the intersquad meet. He said if 75 percent of the swimmers have good times in the coach's opinion, the team won't have a practice Saturday afternoon.

The divers will be holding their own competition, with both men and women paired into teams. Each two-person team will perform six dives from the three-meter board.

"We've done a lot of diving this month," diving Coach Denny Golden said. "Now we want to concentrate on the presentation of the dives, and what it is like to have competition."

Golden said two Salukis to watch in the men's diving competition are Rick Theobald, a junior who holds or shares four school diving records, and Gary Mastey, a senior who is the first diver in SIU history to be named a team co-captain. Julia Warner, Lynn Whitehead and Penny Hoffman are the top women divers, according to Golden.

Steele will have nine seniors returning from last year's team, which finished 16th in the NCAA finals. He said some of his freshmen swimmers could make a big difference in this year's team. Kees VerVoorn is the fastest butterfly swimmer ever recruited at SIU. He was eighth in the 1978 World Championships in West Berlin while still in high school and he participated in the 1976 Olympics. Another new recruit, Pablo Restrepo, was third in this year's Pan Am Games in the 200-meter breaststroke and fourth in the 100-yard breaststroke.

"We've had really fine workouts so far, we're way ahead of where we've been before," Steele said.

Salukis beat SEMO in 'homecoming'

SIU's Brenda Bruckner (dark shirt) battled for the ball with Southeast Missouri State's Dorothy Okrassa in Thursday's 1-0 Saluki victory.

By Jeffrey Smyth
Staff Writer

Homecoming started early at SIU. But it wasn't one of parades, football games or late nights at the bars. It was a reunion of two coaches. One, SIU women's field hockey coach Julie Illner. The second, Pat Wenger, last year's assistant to Illner and now head field hockey coach at Southeast Missouri State University. But after the reunion, there was a game to be played. For Wenger, the reunion was sweet, but the game wasn't.

SIU won the Thursday afternoon game, 3-1, to improve its record to 11-2-1 on the season.

"It felt different playing against SIU," Wenger said. "They are a fine team."

Early in the game, Brenda Bruckner put a rebound shot into the left corner of the goal to give the Salukis a 1-0 lead. The second goal of the half came off the stick of Ellen Massey with an assist by Bruckner. SIU dominated the first half, putting constant pressure on the SEMO defense.

In the second half, SIU struck early when Bruckner again set Massey up with a pass that pulled the SEMO goalie to the right side, leaving an open net for Massey to shoot at. SEMO's goal came late in the game on shot that went past SIU goalie Kenda Cunningham and into the left side of the goal.

While Wenger thought SIU

was a good team, Illner was saying something different.

"We keep running into each other," she said. "The only reason we are winning is because we are stronger than they are. We are not hitting the open player with the pass and we are not switching to different sides of the field. We are going to have to play a lot better if we want to beat Southwest Missouri State." And so the reunion was over. Both coaches went away a little displeased.

but Wenger had a few kind things to say about the Salukis and their coach.

"I learned from her (Illner) and she is good coach," Wenger said. "I think this year's team has a chance to go just as well as last year's team, and I wish them a lot of luck."

SEMO will return, along with Southwest Missouri State and the University of Missouri's field hockey club, to play SIU Oct. 20 at Wham Field.

Golfers look for consistency in 22-team Indiana tourney

By Jeffrey Smyth
Staff Writer

The emotions are still running high on the women's golf team after their fourth place tie with Indiana University at the Purdue Invitational last week. Coach Mary Beth McGirr hopes the high emotions will help her team prove something to other Midwestern schools when they travel to Bloomington, Ind. to compete in the Indiana Invitational on Friday and Saturday.

The invitational will consist of 22 Midwestern teams, including all of the Big Ten schools. The tournament is considered the preview of the Midwest Regional Championship that will be held Oct. 19-20. Favorites for winning the meet are Ohio State University and the host school Indiana, according to McGirr.

McGirr feels a strong showing at Bloomington will prove to the other Midwestern schools that SIU can shoot consistently. She also feels the golfers have to make up for last year's 13th place finish in the same tournament.

"We almost didn't get invited this year," McGirr said. "The new coach at Indiana wanted to tighten up the Invitational. I think we have to prove to some people that we are capable of playing good, consistent golf."

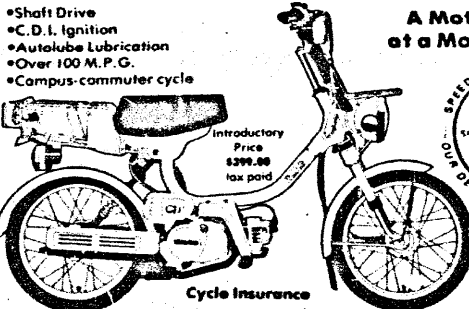

McGirr said a seventh place finish in the tournament would be satisfactory, but added because of last week's superb finish, there is a little pressure on the SIU team to do well.

"Golf is a funny game, but I feel we have been getting stronger and stronger."

Salukis begin 'second season'

By Mark Pabich
Staff Writer

Saluki Head Coach Rey Dempsey is looking toward Saturday's game against Wichita State as the beginning of the team's "second season." Second season refers to the Salukis' battle for the Missouri Valley Conference championship. With four of the five remaining games being Valley contests, Dempsey and his team, which was the coaches' and media's pre-season pick to win the conference, are planning on living up to the polls.

"The fact that we were picked to win means a lot to our kids," Dempsey said. "There's been a lot of talk at practice about this being a conference game."

Dempsey said SIU's 3-3 record might seem like 0-6 to other teams, but his squad is optimistic about finishing the season strong.

"We feel that it is all up to our team. We can win the Valley. We're no. 1 looking at the top picture, however, we're taking the Valley race one game at a time."

The Salukis' first step on the way to the top of the MVC hill will be Wichita State. The Shockers are 0-5, but their record is deceiving. Coach Jeff Jefferies and his squad have fell victims to such national powerhouses as Oklahoma State and Alabama en route to their winless season.

Against Oklahoma State the Shockers lost 16-6, but missed three field goals and tumbled a ball deep in Cowboy territory.

"They have a new coach and he's not sweating out the season. He's trying to build a solid program first."

"People get so used to hearing that a team is 'better than it looks,'" Dempsey said. "But we really believe that about Wichita. They run the football well and have some big people."

The Shockers' fullback, Mickey Collins, who recently switched from tailback, carries the load of Wichita's running game. The 5-10, 185-pounder has a chance to break the all-time Shocker rushing total in this, his junior year.

"Collins is a good, strong back, but he has been bothered with injuries this past season," Dempsey said. "The guy to watch, however, is Prince McJunkins, their quarterback. McJunkins is only a freshman, but he plays like a junior. He has poise on the field and is a good option quarterback."

The Shockers' aerial attack will be hampered by a tough Saluki secondary, anchored by last week's MVC offensive player of the week, Oyd Craddock.

The remainder of the SIU defense, hampered by injuries in past weeks, is back on the road to recovery. Junior nose guard Tom Piha, injured early in the season with a dislocated elbow, may return to the lineup. Piha's return depends upon how he looks in practice, according to Dempsey.

In last week's win over Illinois State, the Salukis managed to score only seven points, although two missed field goals and a fumble deep in Redbird territory gave SIU other chances to score.

"Last week we had to play conservative football to win," Dempsey said. "The kids needed some confidence and we were getting four and five yards a run, so we ran the ball. Against Wichita, we'll have to vary our offense somewhat."

"Their defense is tough. They'll give you lots of yards and they'll bend and let you come at them. Then all of a sudden, the defense sticks you," Dempsey said. "They'll play back off the line and the backs won't rush hard, but it's not easy to score past them."

The Saluki offensive attack, which amassed 339 total yards last week, has some sore spots for Saturday's game. Sophomore tailback Walter Poole and junior fullback Vic Harrison, who combined for 197 rushing yards last week, are practicing, but both are recovering from bumps and bruises.

"We've had people like Melhus Carney and Clarence Robinson working out," Dempsey said. "I'd imagine that both Harrison and Poole will be running by Saturday."

The Saluki passing game, which accounted for just 49 yards last week, should get a stronger test against the Shockers, according to Dempsey. "Last week we felt that we didn't have to go to the air. This week, we'll have to throw more, using quick passes and shorter patterns."

"We don't necessarily have to throw the long bomb. We feel that we can excite people both ways."

The game, which is SIU's homecoming, will begin at 2 p.m. at McAndrew Stadium. "We can use the fan support," Dempsey said. "The year is far from over for us."

Fullback Melhus Carney breaks a tackle in last week's victory over Illinois State. The Salukis hope for similar rushes this Saturday against MVC opponent Wichita State.

Rookies to take on veterans in cagers' 12:01 a.m. contest

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

The Saluki basketball team has so many newcomers this year that one would think it would be hard to tell the players apart without the program. But, since the seven returning veterans and the matching number of new recruits will comprise separate teams at Monday morning's 12:01 a.m. Maroon-White scrimmage, no program will be needed.

"Last year, we didn't separate the teams in any particular way," SIU Coach Joe Gottfried said. "But Charles Nance (a Saluki freshman) suggested we make one team up of new recruits and one team up of veterans this year. It's an unusual year because we have seven returning players and seven rookies. It will be easy to detect who is a rookie and who is a veteran."

The players returning from last year's 15-13 team will make up the White team, which will be coached by WCIL-FM sportscaster Mike Reis. Those returners are guards Wayne Abrams (6-6) and Lawrence Stubblefield (6-2), forwards Barry Smith (6-4), Jac Clait (6-5) and Charles Moore (6-7), center Compton Hinds (6-10) and swingman Scott Ruus (6-5). Abrams and Smith are the only starters returning from 1978-79.

Playing for the Maroon squad, which David Gaffrick of the Daily Egyptian will coach, will be two junior-college transfers, center Rod Camp (6-9) and center-forward Edward Thomas (6-9). Five freshmen, forwards Nance (6-6), David Youngblood (6-8), Karl Morris (6-8), guard Kent Payne (6-0) and swingman Darnell Jones (6-4) will also see action.

Gottfried, entering his second year as SIU coach, said the game would consist of two 10-minute halves with a five-minute halftime.

"This won't be a real test because we haven't done any real coaching," he said. "But there is a lot of interest building on the team as to who is dominant, the rookies or the veterans."

The game, which is being played at the earliest time preseason practice is allowed by the NCAA, is a season "tipoff," Gottfried said.

"We're anxious to start basketball practice at the first possible moment," he said. This will be a kind of a take-off point for the year. It's the conclusion of our fall conditioning workouts and the beginning of practice."

The Salukis have worked for three weeks "without a basketball," according to Gottfried. Fall conditioning drills, a weight program designed to build upper body strength, a running program and agility drills have all been worked on.

"We're not in great shape yet," Gottfried said. "But we've had three weeks of conditioning, so they are in better shape than they were when they came in." Gottfried said most of the new Salukis are not familiar with SIU's style of play.

"They are not familiar with what we're trying to do," Gottfried said. "But we're going to try to move things along."

A breakfast will be held after the game in the Student Center. Tickets, which cost $3, can be ordered until noon Friday by calling the Athletics Department at 453-5311. Admission to the game is free.

Lady harriers entertain 'army'

Anyone driving past Midland Hills Country Club Saturday morning might get the impression that Arnold Palmer, complete with his army of followers, decided to stop in for a round of golf.

If they did, they'd be wrong. The army that will converge on the hilly terrain at 10:30 a.m. will consist primarily of approximately 150 women cross country runners, who will compete in the fifth annual Saluki Invitational.

Saluki cross country Coach Claudia Blackman last assembled one of the most competitive 5,000-meter invitationals the SIU-C runners will compete in this season. Teams from the entire Midwest, including powerhouses Iowa State, Michigan State, Ohio State, and Western Illinois, plus last year's champion, Minnesota, will be part of the 18-team field.

Netters head west for invitational

The men's tennis team will go west and ride into Stillwater, Okla., for a high noon showdown Friday with the University of Arkansas at Little Rock. It will be the first match of the eight-team Cowboy Invitational at Oklahoma State University. The Salukis will play three dual matches.

The Salukis faced Arkansas last week at the Fairfield Bay Collegiate Championships in Little Rock and lost a close match 5-4. In that match, David Filer lost a double-match point and Steve Smith, leading 5-1 in the final set, suffered leg cramps and lost 7-5. Filer and Smith were the top SIU performers, each winning three singles matches in the tournament.

Missouri, a team the Salukis defeated, 6-3, at Little Rock, is the only other school entered in the Cowboy Invitational that the Salukis have competed with this season.

The young team, consisting of four freshmen and two sophomores, won two and lost two in last week's tournament, finishing in a three-way tie for second behind champion Memphis State. The Salukis were awarded the second place trophy because they scored the most total points of the three teams.

Sophomore returning letterman Lito Ampon (4-2) will pushing much harder because of the top-notch teams entered. Blackman also felt the invitational record of 17-48 could be in jeopardy if "old man winter" doesn't slow the race down.

"The weather could play a definite role in which team and individual does well," Blackman said. "If it gets cold and rainy, the advantage would probably go to the schools north of here, because it has been much colder up there."

Blackman said she didn't think the size of the field would have much of an effect on the final team scores. She said only five runners from each team, declared prior to the race by their coach, will be used in the tally of scores.

Although she declined to predict the winner, Blackman said she would be surprised if Iowa State didn't recapture the team title it won the first three years the race was held.
