U.S. protests after Italy lets PLO leader flee

ROME (UPI) — The United States protested to Italy, Sunday for allowing a Palestinian leader accused of masterminding a cruise ship hijack to flee to Yugoslavia, and U.S. officials said Belgrade apparently rebuffed an extradition request.

A stern-faced U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Rabb voiced the U.S. displeasure in a 2-hour, 20-minute meeting with Italian Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti amid mounting tension between Washington and the country it considered one of its closest NATO allies.

Soon after the United States issued a warrant Saturday for the arrest of Mohammed Abbas, a senior official of Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, Italy allowed Abbas to take a flight from Rome to Belgrade.

Prime Minister Bettino

Craxi issued a statement saying Italy's reasoning will seem "just and wise" when all the "facts are known and examined."

FBI Director William Webster told CBS' "Face the Nation" program in Washington that communist but non-aligned Yugoslavia rejected the U.S. request to hold Abbas.

Belgrade, which gives diplomatic status to the PLO, was officially silent on the request but praised Abbas in the state-run Tanjug news agency for helping avoid a "greater tragedy" by negotiating the surrender of the hijackers.

Yugoslavian officials were not available for comment, but sources close to the government said Yugoslavia was highly unlikely to meet the U.S. request.

White House spokesman Dale Petroskey said Yugoslavia "has not detained Abbas and has not rejected our request" (to detain him).

While Webster emphasized the situation is fluid — "it's a moving horse" — he said, "My information is that ... the Yugoslav authorities have declined to detain Abbas under the request we made through Interpol."

Marchers press for SIU divestment action

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

Clutching protest placards and small white crosses, more than 100 University students and faculty marched Friday from Morris Library to Anthony Hall demanding that SIU-C divest its South African business holdings.

The march, and preceding anti-apartheid rally in Morris Library Auditorium, was in celebration of National Anti-apartheid Day, designated by the American Committee on Africa and a coalition of student leaders across the nation. The divestment drive on campus was sponsored by the Southern Illinois Anti-Apartheid Alliance and the SIU-C Student Coalition to Free South Africa.

"If the citizens of South Africa can show their solidarity by picking up weapons, then we can pick up a button or a cross and show their solidarity with freedom," said Luke Tripp, coordinator of the SIAAA.

Readings of poetry that depicted life under apartheid dominated the pre-march rally. Many of the images in the poems were painted with words that emphasized blood, repression and fire. Encouraged by the rally's organizers, shouts of "amandla ngawethu" — Zulu for "power to the people" — went up from the library auditorium's audience.

"We will not quit until the last dime is divested from South Africa," Tripp shouted to the assembled protestors.

Both the SIU Board of Trustees and the SIU Foundation have passed advisory resolutions that limit further business investments in South Africa to just those U.S. companies that follow the Sullivan Principles of equal employment. The principles are the 1977 brainchild of Rev. Leon Sullivan of Philadelphia. But Sullivan has since denounced his own principles as not being stringent enough for an effective declaration against apartheid.

A statement distributed by the SIAAA at the rally condemns the principles as having "made minimal impact on the lives of black workers" in South Africa.

"American companies are highly capital-intensive, employing a disproportionate number of skilled white workers who constitute the largest category of workers," the statement continued. "The fundamental weakness of the Sullivan code is that it demonstration near Anthony Hall Friday. It coincided with a national day of protest.

does not address the question of the strategic involvement of American companies in the apartheid economy."

As the protestors marched from Morris Library to Anthony Hall, they shouted "Divest now" and brandished white crosses that represented all of the children killed in South Africa in apartheid-related violence and poverty.

Azevedo son's murder confession accepted

By Justus Weathersby Jr.
Staff Writer

Fifteen-year-old Andrew Azevedo voluntarily admitted during a juvenile hearing Friday that he had shot and killed his father, Allan B. Azevedo, Murphysboro dentist.

Presiding Judge Richard Richman said that young Azevedo's rights were explained and "I found his admission was voluntary." The youth has been charged with voluntary manslaughter. He had confessed to Murphysboro police detective Curtis Graff on Oct. 3 that he shot his father once in the heart and again in the rib cage area with a .22 caliber revolver in the living room of the Azevedo home on Sept. 27. Allan B. Azevedo's body was found in an abandoned car near the intersection of Illinois 127 and Old Route 13 shortly after he had been shot, police said.

On July 9, Allan B. Azevedo had been found innocent of charges that he had contracted with members of a Chicago gang to have his former wife, Marie, killed. Marie Azevedo's body was found riddled with bullets near Carbondale city limits in 1981.

The elder Azevedo was ruled innocent in a directed verdict by Judge Richman, who said the prosecution had failed to submit "independent corroborating evidence" of Azevedo's involvement in a murder conspiracy.

There has been speculation that the 5-foot-tall 115 pound youth had assistance in dragging his father's body out of the Azevedo home to the vehicle in which police later found the body.

State's Attorney John Clemons indicated that the case isn't closed.

"There are some loose ends that they (investigators) want to check out before they close this case," Clemons said.

A disposition hearing for the youth has been set for 9:30 a.m. Nov. 18.

Richman said that a disposition hearing is similar to a sentencing in adult court. Azevedo could be sentenced to a state Department of Corrections juvenile detention center until he is 21, or be placed on conditional probation which could include psychological counseling.

Azevedo was returned to the St. Clair County juvenile detention center, where he was sent after an Oct. 4 hearing in which Richman ordered that he undergo psychological counseling.

Candidate for AD post withdraws

By Tom Mangan
Sports Editor

Wayne Williams, one of the five final candidates for the position of intercollegiate athletics director, has withdrawn his name from consideration for the post.

Williams, director of St. Louis operations for the University of Illinois athletics department, gave no specific reasons for his decision to withdraw, but was apparently concerned with the controversy surrounding the procedures used by the selection committee and committee chair Dean Stuck.

According to Stuck, the president's special assistant for intercollegiate athletics, Williams called on Friday night and asked that his name be withdrawn because Williams "didn't want to get involved" in the controversy surrounding the selection process. The search committee named the five candidates on Oct. 4.

The athletics director search committee is scheduled to meet Monday to begin final discussions before recommending a candidate to President Albert Somit.

Williams' withdrawal will not affect the selection process, Stuck said.

PLO leader says hijackers were going to raid Israel

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — A Palestinian leader charged by the United States with masterminding the hijacking of an Italian cruise ship said Sunday the original plan of the four hijackers was to reach Israel and conduct a suicide mission. Mohammed Abbas, a member of the Palestine Liberation Organization's executive committee, who was aboard the Egyptian 737 jetliner along with the four hijackers of the Achille Lauro cruise ship, said that the hijackers were forced to seize the ship when they were discovered with their weapons.

NATO allegedly knew of ship hijacking plan

PARIS (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres and NATO members knew last February of a plan by the Palestine Liberation Front to hijack a ship, the Journal du Dimanche newspaper said Sunday. Israeli director of military intelligence Gen. Ehud Barak informed Peres in a Feb. 13 letter that "a PLF commando unit in Algiers has just started undergoing training to hijack a ship at sea."

Precautions taken against terrorism at home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — FBI Director William Webster said Sunday he does not believe terrorists will attack inside the United States in retaliation for the capture of four Palestinian pirates, but "prudent precautions" are being taken. A leading expert on terrorism, however, said he expects an attack on Americans — either at home or abroad — as "revenge" for the nabbing of the four gunmen who commandeered an Italian cruise ship and killed an American vacationer.

Two die as racial violence flares in townships

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Racial unrest flared in segregated townships Sunday, leaving two blacks dead and 11 injured as a white opposition leader returned from talks with an outlawed black nationalist group optimistic that a race war can be avoided. One black man forced from his home by a mob in the Zwelintemba township near the Cape Province city of Worcester was captured by the rioters who burned him alive by pouring gasoline over him and setting him on fire, police said.

Solidarity union boycotts elections in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Poland held its first parliamentary elections in five years Sunday but rallies in at least two cities marred government efforts to promote the elections as a return to stability. Solidarity, which had called on Poles to boycott the elections because independent candidates were not allowed to run, said its poll-watchers reported the turnout was much lower, especially in the Baltic cities around Gdansk.

Recalled heart valve linked to 100 deaths

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — Shiley Inc. is recalling defective heart valves that one report Sunday said have caused nearly 100 deaths worldwide, and a consumer group has criticized the government for not expanding the recall. Shiley officials are asking doctors not to implant their large-sized Bjork-Shiley 60-degree Convexo-Concave heart valves manufactured between March and June 1982.

Bell allegedly destroying evidence, Army says

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — The Army rescinded a $223 million contract to Bell Helicopter Textron Inc. pending an investigation of charges the company is destroying incriminating evidence, it was reported Sunday. The accusations are the latest between Bell and the government, which slashed contract payments to the company earlier this year because its investigators identified more than $100 million in Bell overcharges on military contracts in the past five years.

Governor says auto jobs will be of benefit for years

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Gov. James R. Thompson, standing in the cornfield that will be the site of a new, 2,500-job auto plant, made a prediction last week that Illinois "will be reaping the benefits of it for years to come." The plant, to be located west of Bloomington-Normal, is unquestionably a catch for Illinois, which beat out three other states for the facility. In addition to the 2,500 workers who will be employed at the plant, it could lead to the creation of another 8,000 to 9,000 service jobs in the area.

Computer service opens in Student Center

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

Your senior year is winding down and so is the time you have to find a job. Resumes must be distributed, but the time and cash to make the project appear professional are not yours to utilize.

Comptech is here at the University to help.

Comptech, located next to the Student Center's second floor Study Lounge, is the brainchild of two SIU-C graduates who thought that developing a computer service for student use would be a good business opportunity.

"THE MAJOR thrust is to provide an easy, simplified means to process theses and reports," said Grayson Gile, co-founder. "We can provide a service and help the University provide an additional service."

Comptech, an enterprise that is independent of the University, has been in the Student Center for nearly two years, but was sequestered in cramped quarters at the top of the escalator on the third floor. A grand opening party last week highlighted Comptech's relocation to more spacious facilities.

"We originally wanted a larger area, but we think starting slow and starting small helped us not to overextend ourselves," Gile explained.

THE APPLE Macintosh is the foundation computer of the enterprise. Ten units are in operation: eight with 128 kilobyte capacity and two with 512 kilobyte capacity. The 512-K units are hooked up to Comptech's latest acquisition, an Apple Laser Printer.

"The printer adds a broad spectrum to our performance abilities," Gile said. "You can tailor resumes to different jobs or create finely detailed designs with a very professional look."

Gile, along with co-founder Brad Lee, started Comptech as a test project to see how many people would use it. Word-of-mouth from regular computer users increased the influx of students.

"PEOPLE ARE at times intimidated by the flood of technology when they first come in here," Gile said. "But Macintoshes can take only 15 to 20 minutes of familiarization, then students can take their ideas and maximize their potential through the computer."

Gile said that empathy is one prerequisite to being employed at Comptech.

"You must be able to communicate to even the most intimidated of students the technical information, however little there is with Macintosh," he said.

"THE PROGRAM is very good for liberal arts students and design students because of the professional printing quality, the detail that is possible and the easy utilization by people who have little or no knowledge of computers," Gile said.

Gile said that he considers Macintoshes to be the most user-friendly and to have the most advanced graphics in a personal computer.

"There is no better system than this right now that we are aware of," Gile said.

GILE RECOMMENDS that Comptech users buy a computer disk in advance. Comptech administrators can help advise new users what kind of disk to buy and where to make the purchase.

"We listen. We also follow up on a number of software recommendations made by the students," he said.

Comptech charges $3.50 per hour for computer usage, one half-hour minimum. After a half-hour, users are billed in 15 minute increments. Seminars by Comptech students at specific times throughout the year are held on a regular basis to help facilitate computer usage and reduce user costs.

Gile stresses that Comptech is not in competition with the computer science department.

"We strongly encourage students to take computer courses from the University and hope that we may have contributed to your incentive to do so," he said.

Fall weather, scores of trails call out for hikers

By Alice Schallert
Staff Writer

With cool nights and warm days painting Southern Illinois forests with the brilliant colors of fall, now may be a good time to see nature up close and hike through it.

The state parks and forest preserves in the area lend themselves to hiking, with several marked hiking trails and interesting rock formations formed by glaciers.

Keith McMullen, third-year member and treasurer of SIU-C's Wildlife Society, says fall is a good time for hiking.

"IF YOU'RE an outdoor person, like I am, fall nature is both interesting and beautiful," he said.

Some good places to hike are state parks like Giant City, about 15 miles southwest of Carbondale, or Garden of the Gods in Harrisburg, McMullen said.

"Garden of the Gods is fantastic," he says. "You can stand on a cliff there and literally see all of Southern Illinois."

MCMULLEN SAID he has hiked at forest preserves with no designated trails and said there was usually more animal life in those parks.

Some other parks in Southern Illinois include Ferne Clyffe, a state park south of Carbondale near Goreville; Little Grand Canyon, which has trails, but no picnic or shelter facilities; Little Grassy Lake; and Panther's Den, near Little Grassy.

The Murphysboro district of the Shawnee National Forest covers 55,000 acres, most of which can be walked over, said Bruce Frizzell, assistant ranger for the Murphysboro district.

MARK 'D TRAILS within that district include the Natural Bridge Trail, north of Pomona, Ill., and the Little Grand Canyon Trail, both of which are equipped with picnic facilities.

Cedar Lake and Lake Kinkaid both have marked trails, with camping facilities at Lake Kinkaid.

For those who enjoy hiking but have no way to get to some of the area parks and preserves, there's always Campus Lake, McMullen said.

There is some wildlife there, such as muskrats, beavers and raccoons, and the variety of trees on the SIU-C campus provides a beautiful fall show.

SOME BASIC equipment is needed for hiking, McMullen said.

Comfortable, supportive shoes such as tennis shoes or boots with rubber soles work well, McMullen said. If rock climbing is on the agenda, shoes or boots with soles of Vibram, a synthetic rubber product, are best, he added.

"Really, anything that you feel comfortable in and keeps you from falling is ideal," he said.

This time of year, jeans and long sleeves are preferred for protection from scrapes and cold and a backpack with a jacket in it is also a good idea, McMullen said.

AFFIRMATIVE ACTION AT SIU-C

SIU-C is committed to a policy of affirmative action, and to compliance with all state and federal anti-discrimination laws.

When an institution commits itself to a policy such as affirmative action (or tenure, or academic freedom for that matter), the faculty has a right to expect that the institution will live up to that policy in practice.

We are not in a position to judge the qualifications of any candidates for the position of athletics director. Whether or not a particular candidate should be offered the position, however, is not the issue. The issue that should concern all faculty members is whether or not an entire class of candidates -- namely women and minorities -- were discriminated against in the selection process. The question that needs to be answered is whether the administration is committed to its own affirmative action policies and whether those policies were adhered to or ignored in the search for an athletics director.

On the face of it, the administration's actions would seem to have created a case of discrimination. How could an exhaustive search produce a list of finalists that does not include a single woman or minority candidate? Is it really credible to believe that a qualified woman or minority candidate could not be found anywhere in Illinois, much less the United States?

Given the crisis that has erupted on campus, it seems that the most reasonable course of action at this point would be to re-open the search and make a genuine effort to seek qualified women and minority candidates. Such an approach by no means requires that a particular candidate be hired; only that the administration live up to the University's affirmative action policies and deal fairly and honestly with all applicants, regardless of race or sex.

In the absence of a collective bargaining agreement, the only protection the faculty has is existing University policies and state and federal laws. The SIU-C IEA-NEA Faculty Organizing Committee supports adherence to the University's affirmative action policy and applicable state and federal legislation.

IEA-NEA is committed to affirmative action for women and minorities.

At last some action instead of just talk

SEN. PAUL SIMON CALLED THE capture last week of the four Palestinians who seized the Italian cruise ship the Achille Lauro and murdered an American "the first glimmer of victory over terrorism in a long time." He is absolutely correct. President Reagan's order to have Navy fighter planes intercept the Egyptian plane with the pirates aboard was a positive, forceful step that finally proved America can, and will, stand up to the international problem of terrorism. President Reagan, his staff and the U.S. military deserve praise for this one.

Especially encouraging was how flawlessly the maneuver — probably the most daring of the Reagan presidency — was executed. It was swift, taking only six hours from the time the president first heard the rough outlines of the plan to when the pirates were taken into custody in Italy. And it was accomplished without a single shot being fired, proving America can be effective yet temperate when aggressive behavior is necessary.

BUT THERE HAS BEEN SOME disappointments for the United States, most notably the decision by the Italian government to release Mohammed Abbas, a close ally of Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat and head of the Palestine Liberation Front, the faction of the PLO believed to be responsible for the hijacking. The United States had asked Italy to hold Abbas, who was with the pirates aboard the Egyptian plane, pending a U.S. extradition request. The decision over how and where the pirates will be prosecuted also remains somewhat uncertain.

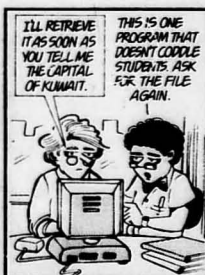

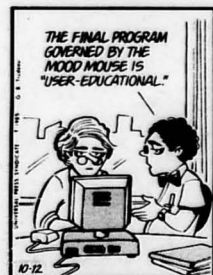

There is also some question about future relations with Egypt, the United States' closest Arab ally, with U.S. officials angered because Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak lied about the whereabouts of the pirates and Mubarak angered because he considers the interception of the Egyptian plane a major embarrassment to his administration.

And, of course, there are those in this country and abroad who believe the move will spark new waves of terrorism rather than serve as a deterrent. Some also argue that the United States was in violation of international law.

BUT IN LIGHT OF REPEATED terrorist attacks against Americans, the arguments against retribution — often common assertions by terrorist groups themselves, such as one PLO spokesman's claim that the interception is an example of President Reagan's "cowboy mentality" — are quite weak. Besides, had Reagan failed once again to respond to a terrorist act, he would surely have been criticized for being all talk and no action. Finally, he has acted.

America must not lose sight of its principles; in its fight against terrorism it must not reduce itself to terrorist tactics. But it must not stand idly by and remain the sitting duck for any group of fanatics who decide they wish to make a point. We must fight terrorism, cautiously to be sure, but also with results. The surgical strike performed last week, which was based on solid intelligence and aimed only at those responsible, was a strong message that the United States can deal effectively with terrorism.

Pro-choice position shallow

After viewing WSU's "The Abortion Debate," Sept. 18, I picked up on a few insinuating remarks made by the so-called "Pro-Choice" side. The reasons why are apparent to me. I wonder if they are to you?

Dr. Bernard Nathanson, narrator of "The Silent Scream," was accused of twisting the truth by his use of vocabulary. Nathanson's description of the mother's womb as a "sanctuary" was criticized as being a "religious term." According to Webster's Dictionary, one meaning for a sanctuary is "a place of refuge or protection." The fact is, human life begins at the time of conception, as Nathanson was pointing out.

Those (medical doctors?) that made this shallow point remarked that the plastic preborn baby model was of a different trimester than the actual aborted baby. Of course it was! No one would argue that. It was only used to demonstrate the position the baby girl was in before "the inhuman destruction" of her life was carried through while resting peacefully in her "sanctuary."

I noticed that the counselors at the abortion mills didn't show any mothers pictures of the first stages of their child's life. I have talked to girls going in and coming out of abortion clinics. Believe me, they didn't get the facts going in.

Once you drive out of the parking lot it's definitely not their problem. Don't be deceived people, the act of abortion leaves terrible emotional scars that sometimes never heal. There's a lot of regret on mommy's part later.

Yes, man has contributed much for the benefit of mankind, but I can't help but wonder if this is what God meant in what He said while overseeing the construction of the tower of Babylon: "There is nothing of which they will not do." Genesis 11:6. — Cheryl Bonta, Jonesboro.

Pro-life letter misses a vital point

Greg Lamanna cleverly accuses me of "overlooking" a vital point in my objecting to comparisons between abortion and the Holocaust.

But about all he manages to do is cloud the issue with vague challenges and suppositions. What bugs me is that he has chosen the Holocaust as his tool, and that's not right.

Lamanna selectively ignores the question of when life begins. Saying I have no right to demand proof of when life begins until I can prove myself a living being is immaterial. The 12 million Holocaust victims were living beings, just as I am. He does nothing more than beg the question, and instead of "reaffirming the status of Holocaust victims," he pollutes their memory by conveniently dragging them into an unrelated argument for his own use.

According to this logic, all those who opt for abortion, for whatever reason, are Hitler. Then those who support free choice must be Hitler sympathizers. I wonder how others feel about that, in light of the Supreme Court's decision in Roe vs. Wade.

Lamanna's rhetoric only confuses the issue, while he professes his "remorse" for Holocaust victims. His brand of "remorse" is both insulting and artificial. If only there was a so-called "pro-life" movement that was as concerned with the lives of the Holocaust victims and survivors as he is with "the life of the unborn." — Dan Sherman, senior, Radio-Television.

Minorities muddled

Professor JoAnne Thorpe's comments in her Oct. 7 letter about affirmative action at SIU-C are well taken, except for a minor point she made in reference to minorities. She wrote that the system at SIU "has for many years prevented the equal rise to important positions of blacks, women, Arabs, Indians, Iranians, handicapped people, Jews, gays, Malaysians and other identifiable minorities."

This list muddles the definition of employable minorities simply because the majority of Arabs, Indians, Iranians and Malaysians at SIU are here on student visas, and a student visa essentially precludes a person from seeking professional employment in this country.

Foreign nonimmigrant students, then, are not minorities in the context of Professor Thorpe's concern about "rising to important positions," because foreign students on student visas are not residents of this country.

Of course, those foreigners who have permanent residency status or who possess other types of employment authorization, such as the H-1 visa, could be considered minorities in the context of concern about employment possibilities. But a distinction between immigrant and nonimmigrant must be made when one is making an emotional appeal to end oppression. — Scott South, graduate student, Linguistics.

Possibility of MIAs still being held in Vietnam has been proven false

It does no dishonor to the dead and missing of the Vietnam War to remind participants in Friday's vigil (reported Oct. 7) of certain facts we have no power to change. Of all wars in which the United States has participated, the Vietnam War ranked second in the number of Americans who served and fourth in the number of battle deaths. Yet the number of missing in action at war's end (2,477) was a small fraction of the number that resulted from the Korean War (8,177) and World War II (78,751). Many of the Vietnam MIAs already have been accounted for, as 436 were Air Force pilots who went down over the sea and in 647 other cases there were good reasons to presume death at the time of disappearance.

That leaves a miniscule number not accounted for by comparison with the numbers unaccounted for in our other major wars. While we sympathize with MIA families, we must realize that a "full accounting" in the sense of concrete information on every single case is not possible. The remains of some will never be found, and the time will come to close the book.

As for the possibility that some of the missing survive as POWs, it simply is not true that "it's been verified that some are being held," as alleged by the Rev. Wiggins. In December 1976, the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia concluded that "no Americans are still being held alive as prisoners in Indochina, or elsewhere, as a result of the war in Indochina." The Reagan Administration subsequently reopened the issue, but for political purposes and not because it had any credible evidence that MIAs remained alive. Even the League of Families of Missing-in-Action lobbies the government only to act as if MIAs are alive in order to pursue evidence that they are not. People who believe that Americans continue to be held in bamboo cages deep in the jungle 10 years after war's end should be asked to explain what possible motive any government in Indochina could have in holding them. And the next time a vigil is held to commemorate American war dead and missing in Vietnam, I hope it also will give a nod to the far greater numbers of Vietnamese, Laotians and Cambodians who died or remain missing, many of them fighting on our side. — William S. Turley, associate professor, Political Science.

MIA awareness efforts are praised

I applaud the efforts by the SIU-C Veterans Association and the University military units to heighten public awareness of the Vietnam-era veterans still missing in action. Such public awareness has long been needed.

As a Vietnam-era veteran, and one who has researched this area extensively over the last few years, I feel I must correct a common misconception about Vietnam. According to my research on Department of Defense records, supported by James Webb's "Fields of Fire" research, two-thirds of the men and women who served in Vietnam volunteered for that duty.

I do not wish to imply that none were forced into volunteering by the draft, but to state that most of the soldiers of this war were drafted (Sept. 27) is also incorrect. — Steven W. Shuecraft, graduate student, Sociology.

Ending the postal monopoly would be a positive move

COMPETITION is fierce in overnight package delivery. If you have something that absolutely, positively has to be there tomorrow, you can choose from a host of couriers, all slaving to get your business. But the free-for-all hasn't touched the type of delivery that matters the most to the average American: first-class mail. There you have only one choice. The Postal Service, by federal law, enjoys an impregnable monopoly.

In an economic system characterized by the freest markets in the world, this quarantine on competition represents a foolish and expensive anomaly. Americans take it for granted that private monopolies are exploitative and wasteful. That's one reason we have anti-trust laws. There is no reason public monopolies should be any better, and the Postal Service proves that they aren't.

Rate increases, like the recent boost from 20 to 22 cents, are the most obvious illustration. Since 1958, the price of mailing a first-class letter has risen more than sevenfold, which is nearly twice as much as the increase in the consumer price index.

Nothing endemic to mail delivery accounts for the difference. Between 1971 and 1981, the first-class rate rose nearly two and a half times as much as the rate of parcel post. In parcel delivery, of course, the Postal Service has to compete with United Parcel Service, which now delivers 70 percent of all parcels.

NOR DO ALL Americans

Stephen Chapman

pay equally. The structure of postal rates serves to penalize first-class patrons for the benefit of those using other classes of mail, and to subsidize rural dwellers at the expense of urbanites.

What do the higher first-class rates buy? Service actually had deteriorated, with delivery times rising by 10 percent since 1969. It's hard for baby-boomers like myself to believe that until 1950, homes got two mail deliveries a day, but it's true.

How things have changed. Today, there is talk of phasing out home deliveries entirely. And any patron who has ever compared the treatment customers get at a post office with that in a Federal Express office needs no reminder of the dangers of monopoly.

To an alternative to a bleak postal future is to get rid of the laws banning competition in mail delivery. Given a choice, mail patrons would give their letters to whoever can provide faster delivery, better service or lower rates — or all three. The Postal Service, deprived of its domain over captive consumers, would have to adapt or die.

Neither alternative is anything to fear. The Postal Service insists that competition would be wasteful, since mail delivery is a natural monopoly.

BUT THE EVIDENCE from parcel post and overnight delivery argues against that thesis. The only way to be sure is to try competition. If mail delivery truly is a natural monopoly, the Postal Service needs no statutory shield against upstarts: It would be able to outcompete them.

If, on the other hand, the Postal Service proves unable to compete, the mail patron would have the same option available to other consumers — do business with a private firm. Private firms deliver everything else, from eggs to computers. They certainly can deliver mail.

The only plausible worry is that some people in isolated rural areas may pay higher rates. But given the higher costs of serving them, there is no good reason they should be protected from that risk. If Congress wants to protect them, it should use narrowly targeted subsidies, not the blunderbuss of high first-class rates, which bleed the poor as well as the rich.

That famous advocate of capitalism, Lenny Bruce, could find no better way to indict socialism than to describe it as one giant post office. If President Reagan wants to expand the horizons of the free market, this is a good place to start.

Azevedos to stay with foster family

By Jim McBride
Staff Writer

About four hours after their brother, Andrew, was arraigned on charges of voluntary manslaughter in the shooting death of their father, Allison Marie and Anne Marie Azevedo were granted permission to stay with their temporary foster family until permanent custody is decided.

Judge Richard Richman set Nov. 25 as the date a hearing for deciding permanent custody of the children. Richman ordered that a social history of the children be completed within one month by the Department of Children and Family Services.

The two Azevedo children, accompanied by Carbondale attorney William G. Schwartz and members of the foster family appeared before Richman, who also appointed the Department of Children and Family Services as temporary legal guardian for the two minors. Anne Marie is 7. Andrew is 12.

Richman said that the court had no objection to the children's staying with their present foster family until a permanent custody decision has been reached.

The two girls and their brother Andrew, 15, resided with their father at the time of his death. Allan Azevedo had obtained custody of the children after the shooting death of his former wife, Marie Azevedo had been granted custody of the children after her divorce from Azevedo in January 1980.

Allan Azevedo was acquitted of those charges on July 29 when Judge Richman issued a directed verdict of not guilty.

Illinois Ag for Africa encouraging famine aid

By Norm Helkens
Staff Writer

Following on the heels of USA for Africa, the Illinois Department of Agriculture has teamed with a relief organization and farmers to bring food to hungry Africans.

The Department of Agriculture is working with World Vision Relief Organization in an effort called Illinois Agriculture for Africa to encourage farmers to donate grain that will be sent to Ethiopia.

Robert Latta, Director of Support Ministries for World Vision, announced the pact Thursday afternoon in the campus Agriculture building.

Latta said that Illinois farmers have an opportunity to help Ethiopia, the most likely country grain will be sent to.

"I believe that at this point in time we can feed a lot of people that we are not feeding in 1985," Latta said. "This will give people in Africa a chance to bounce back."

It all began when the Department of Agriculture decided to help needy Africans and began a search for an organization to help carry out the mission.

World Vision was chosen because of the organization's experience in food distribution and because of its extensive network of vehicles and trucks in Africa, said Sally Bender, who represented the Department of Agriculture.

World Vision operates with a staff of 450, and a fleet of 86 trucks and two airplanes.

The goal is to send 14,000 metric tons of foods to Ethiopia, but if food can't be shipped into the country, alternative countries will receive it, Latta said. Several protein-rich corn and soybean mixtures supplemented with vitamins and minerals are to be sent.

Deaths in drought-stricken countries have fallen from 4,000 per day to 2,000 per day, but food is still urgently needed, even though rain has begun falling, Latta said. One million are expected to die in

When asked whether financially strapped farmers are likely to donate grain, Latta said that although farmers are in a pinch, poverty is a relative term.

"I know life has been tough for farmers," he said. "I know also that we have an ability to help people that have a lot less than we do."

Farmers who participate will take grain to local elevators, where it will be sold for current market price. Elevators will send money to the Department of Agriculture. Grain will then be mixed into food rations, which will then be shipped to Africa.

Latta said that about 8 percent of the goal has been reached, but that as harvest progresses, grain will begin pouring into the effort.

Non-farmers can send cash contributions to the Department of Agriculture.

Donation deadline is Nov. 1, 1985. Money, which is tax deductible, can be sent to Illinois Department of Agriculture, State Fairgrounds, P.O. Box 3597, Springfield, 62708-3597.

Contracts out, Woody renovation to begin

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

Renovation of the Woody Hall cafeteria to a student recruitment center will begin soon, thanks to the awarding of contracts from the SIU Board of Trustees.

Dave Grobe, director of facilities planning for the University, said the renovation should begin in "about two or three weeks, although it's hard to say."

The board approved the resolution during its meeting Thursday, although SIU-C student trustee Andy Leighton voted against it.

"Our resources should be going into Morris Library, not into the recruiting center," he said. "The University has recruited more than 23,000 students a year without it."

During its April 11 meeting, the board approved a proposal of $250,000 to remodel the Woody Hall dining area and to convert it into a student recruitment center.

General construction contracts totaling $212,000 were awarded to Steffes Construction Co., Carverville; Quality Sheet Metals, Inc., Carbondale; H&H Plumbing, Heating and Electric, Co., Mt. Vernon; and Clinton Electric, Inc., Ina.

The remaining $85,000 will be used to purchase a carpet, furniture and movable partitions.

"ESTABLISHED SERVICE YOU CAN DEPEND ON"

Justice O'Connor says women face barrier to law

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor said Sunday more women are entering law schools, but "tenacious social barriers" still keep women from top areas in the legal profession.

O'Connor spoke to about 200 women jurists at the National Association of Women Judges, a group she helped found in 1979.

"The number of female judges remains disproportionately small," said O'Connor, who was named to the Supreme Court by President Reagan. "Only 4 percent are women."

"Some of this is due to a late start in the profession, but it is mainly due to tenacious social barriers," she said. Society still expects that women will do other things than embark on a professional law career, she said.

But O'Connor said that society is changing and more women are now entering law schools, with a third to more than half of the graduating law school classes now consisting of women.

She traced the history of women in law and said that until this century and especially during the last few years very few women could aspire to make law their profession.

"Single-minded determination can make changes for women," she told the audience, which gave her a standing ovation.

"The last all-male bastion to open the doors — the court on which I sit — has an increasing number of talented women who clerk at the court before embarking on their careers," she said.

"I believe the court is a microcosm of the world at large," she said. "If that is true, it is getting better."

She said 32 women lawyers — about 10 percent of those who appeared last year — argued their cases before the court.

But she said, "Most women attorneys represented government and public interest groups. Despite relative gains, women attorneys still rank well behind their peers."

"The society as a whole benefits greatly when all people" are able to contribute their talents, she said. "I'm proud to be part of that process."

AD: Candidate withdraws from consideration for post

Stuck declined to predict when the final choice would be announced, but he has said he hopes to have a director named by the end of this week.

Although campus constituency organizations have called for a new search based on the grounds of alleged affirmative action violations, President Somit has maintained that he has no intentions of reopening the search process.

Last week, the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee, the Graduate and Professional Student Council and the Civil Service Employees Council passed resolutions voicing concerns about the search process.

ACTION: Marchers call for University divestment

Inside Anthony Hall, most University employees continued to work despite the protest chants that resonated through the building's open windows.

"I'm sure that everybody on this campus is totally opposed to the practice of apartheid," said Bruce Swinburne, SIU-C vice president for student affairs, above the shouts of the crowd beneath his window. "We stand for freedom of expression in this country, and what is happening out there now is totally appropriate. I applaud them for doing something, and taking the initiative."

Shirlene Holmes, a graduate student in speech communications, said that the protest "is a spirit war."

"It is not a black thing or a white thing or any racial thing," she said. "It is a spirit thing. It is one spirit against injustice."

Tripp said the Sullivan Principles were just one of many different proposals that

The Administrative and Professional Staff Council recommended that the search be halted and the procedure audited by the University auditor.

The remaining candidates, who were interviewed on campus last week, are Jim Livengood, assistant athletics director at Washington State University; Richard McDuffie, athletics director at Central Connecticut State; Randall G. Hoffman, associate athletics director at University of Maryland; and Jerry Hughes, athletics director at Central Missouri State.

Williams is a 1956 SIU-C graduate. He was football coach and athletics director at Alton High School and has been an assistant football coach at Illinois.

were drafted after the United Nations called for a blanket international economic boycott of South Africa in 1976. The Sullivan Principles came to the forefront after General Motors adopted them as a guideline for future investment dealings with South Africa.

Tripp stressed that the divestment movement's immediate goal is to help educate the public on the issue of apartheid.

"Our role is complementary with the South African struggle," Tripp explained. "They determined that the Sullivan Principles don't work. If they did support them, so would we."

Tripp said he wants the University to make a full divestment within a year. The American companies in South Africa with which SIU-C presently holds investments are IBM, GTE, United Technologies, Eastman Kodak and Exxon. The University's total investment with these five companies is roughly $430,000.

Art prof pleads innocent to drug charge

By Justus Weathersby Jr.
Staff Writer

A Dec. 9 trial date has been set for an assistant professor in the School of Art who was released on a $25,000 bond after pleading innocent to a drug charge in U.S. District Court in Benton.

Frederick Lee Littlefield, 49, of Murphysboro was arrested Oct. 2 by FBI agents and charged with conspiracy to distribute home-grown marijuana. Littlefield pleaded innocent at his arraignment

Earthquake threat topic of seminar

Earthquake Awareness is the topic of a seminar to be held from 6 to 9 p.m. Tuesday in Browne Auditorium.

Speakers will describe the potential for earthquakes in the New Madrid Fault zone and requirements for preparation and response.

The Jackson County Emergency Services and Disaster Agency and the SIU School of Medicine are sponsoring the event along with Carbondale Emergency Services and Disaster Agency.

The seminar is open to the public at no charge.

before U.S. Magistrate Kenneth Meyers.

A guilty verdict for Littlefield could carry a maximum penalty of five years imprisonment or a $15,000 fine.

FBI special agent Dean Paisley said that Littlefield was one of six persons suspected of involvement in a drug ring.

A spokeswoman of the clerk of the court in Benton said that besides Littlefield, three others have been arraigned and have pleaded innocent. The three were identified as Jerome J. Solomon, 38, Andrew G. Robinson, 35, and Michael R. Stroehlein, all of Cobden.

Solomon has been charged with one count of conspiracy to manufacture and distribute more than 1,000 pounds of marijuana and four counts of filing false income tax returns.

Robinson has been charged with one count of conspiracy to manufacture and distribute more than 1,000 pounds of marijuana and Stroehlein has been charged with conspiracy to distribute home-grown marijuana.

Littlefield has been teaching at SIU-C since 1968.

Flying Salukis blast U of I; qualify for national contest

By Norm Heikens
Staff Writer

The Flying Salukis, wearing grey jumpsuits dotted with patches, were sitting in a semi-circle in the Southern Illinois Airport pilot's lounge Friday morning, looking as if the sky was about to fall.

Some looked wistfully out the tall, narrow window at the overcast skies and drizzle, and wondered if the weather would clear so that they could start competition again.

Action at the Region 8 Intercollegiate Flying Association Air Meet had been stopped because of poor weather. Had conditions persisted, the meet may have been cut short, jeopardizing SIU-C's chances of winning the flying competition, their strongest suit.

THE CLOUD ceiling lifted to 1,000 feet and visibility increased to three miles, the minimum requirements for competition, enabling the Flying Salukis to blast their nearest competitor, the University of Illinois, out the air by nearly double the points.

Weather was uppermost on the Salukis' minds because the club traditionally places higher in flight events than ground events, such as maintenance and flight simulation, said team captain Dean Haviland.

"THE WEATHER was just barely good enough to fly," Haviland said. "We were pretty worried because we didn't know if we'd get to fly all our people."

The win qualifies the team to advance to national competition in Waco, Texas, next spring. SIU-C has taken the national meet seven times during the last nine years. Haviland said that he was satisfied with the team's performance.

"We did better than we expected to," Haviland said. "It was pretty much a slaughter." Unofficially, SIU-C scored 235 points. The U of I scored 143. Parks College placed third and Purdue and Belleville Area College did not place.

SIU-C PLACED first in both flight and ground events.

Steve Staples, team co-captain, placed first in short-field accuracy landing and second in pre-flight safety. Julie Pulfer won top female pilot and Dave Clavey took top certified flight instructor.

Joe Kolis placed first in computer accuracy and Mike Beasley won the flight simulator event. Haviland took first place in pre-flight safety.

However, the captain added that the team needs practice before going to Texas.

LAST YEAR the team placed second to the University of North Dakota in Colorado, and they won the previous year.

The Salukis have been so successful, Haviland said, that some schools originally in Region 8 have moved to other regions in order to increase their likelihood of qualifying for nationals.

When asked how he expects SIU-C will place at Waco, Haviland replied, "We have a tradition of being one of the top flying schools. They're always looking out for us."

Flu, Illini stop men harriers

By Rich Heaton
Staff Writer

The men's cross country team lost to Illinois Saturday 17-43 in a race that saw two of the Salukis' top three runners drop out of the race because of the flu.

Richard McDonnell and Jobie Kelly, the Salukis' No. 2 and 3 runners, along with Ron Amster were pulled out of the race before the finish because of a case of the flu, Saluki coach Bill Cornell said.

Cornell says he pulled Kelly out of the race at the 1,000-meter mark, and McDonnell at the 5,000-meter mark of the 8,000-meter race.

"The rest of the team was demoralized when they saw McDonnell and Kelly drop out," said Cornell. "The only person to run up to par was Billy Darling."

Cornell says he is very disappointed with the meet, but there is not a lot you can do when you are fighting sickness."

Cornell says that Illinois might have beaten them even if Kelly and McDonnell had finished. "I don't want to take anything away from them, they ran a super good race," said Cornell.

David Lamont was the first Saluki to finish. He came in fourth with a time of 25:37. Scott Gill was second for the Salukis in seventh place.

The rest of the Salukis who scored were Billing Darling, placing ninth; Mike Elliott, 14th; and Mike Carver, 16th.

SIU-C's other two finishers were Mike Rice in 17th place, and Jim Childers in 18th place.

Cornell says he will not run McDonnell, Kelly and Amster again until they are healthy. "They had a go and gave it everything they had," said Cornell, "but they were just too ill."

Cornell says he didn't want to run the sick runners this weekend, but they were confident they could compete without many problems.

A bright note on the weekend — Andy Pettigrew, expected to be the Saluki's No. 1 runner, became eligible Sunday. Pettigrew was declared ineligible because of an admissions mix-up.

The harriers go to Eastern Illinois for a dual meet with the panthers next weekend.

Women harriers 5th at state meet

By Rich Heaton
Staff Writer

Finishing with four runners in the top 25, the Saluki women harriers captured fifth in a 10-team field at the Illinois Intercollegiate Championships held in Chicago over the weekend.

Coach Don DeNoon says he is really pleased with his team's performance. He says the athletes went out and ran aggressively, and no one person was really any more outstanding than the rest.

Even though the Salukis got fifth, it wasn't a blowout, says DeNoon. DeNoon says the team was short one really good performance to have made a difference in the final standings.

DeNoon says that the young

Salukis are finding out they can compete at the collegiate level. Illinois was the only team to get four runners across the finish line before SIU-C.

The Salukis are getting to a point of credibility, says DeNoon. He says this comes with their increasing belief in themselves. This leads to better performances, which will cause the opposition to have the belief the belief that the Salukis can compete, he says.

Illinois won the team competition with 27 points. Western Illinois was second with 65, Illinois State scored 83 points for third, Loyola was fourth with 89 and SIU-C was fifth with 95.

Other teams and their places were 6, Bradley; 7, Lewis University; and 8, St. Francis University. Eastern Illinois and U of I Chicago Circle competed but didn't have enough runners to field a complete team.

Patty Murray of Western Illinois took top honors in the meet. She ran the 5,000-meter course in 17:15 for the win.

Amy Marker, who placed 12th, was the top finisher for the Salukis. She ran the 5,000 meter course in 18:53. Vivian Sinou was second for the Salukis in 17th place, with a time of 19:09.

The third Saluki runner was Pam Quarengi, finishing 19th; running fourth was Lisa Judisak in 21st, and Chris Hangren was fifth for the Salukis in 34th.

SPIKERS: Illini dominate tourney

In game three, SIU-C fell behind 9-5 but stormed back to score seven unanswered points with freshman Dorothy Buchanan serving. After leading 12-10, the Salukis found themselves in a tie at 13 before finally winning 15-13 to take a 2-1 lead in the match.

The Salukis forced the Fighting Illini into a must-win situation to keep alive the nation's longest winning streak.

Game four started much as game three did, with the Salukis jumping to a 6-1 lead on the serving of senior Darlene Hogue. The Salukis retained the lead until the Illini forced at 10 and later at 13. The Illini took their first lead at 14-13 and won by a final of 15-13, knotting the match at two games each.

In the fifth game, the Fighting Illini jumped to an 8-1 lead and never looked back, taking game and match with a 15-6 win. The Salukis failed to score consecutive points in the final game and never seemed to get on track.

In Friday's other first round game, Texas-Arlington beat Missouri by three identical scores of 15-7 to advance to the championship round Saturday night.

On Saturday, the Salukis came from behind and won three straight games after dropping the opener to Missouri to take third place in the tournament. In the championship game, Illinois beat Texas-Arlington in four games to take the tourney title and remain unbeaten at 26-0.

The Salukis now stand at 14-8 on the season. Missouri fell to 10-6 with the two losses and Texas-Arlington now stands at 13-2.

Illinois' Disa Johnson, Mary Eggers and Denise Fracarro received all-tournament honors, as did the Salukis' Pat Nicholson and Texas-Arlington's Ana De Oliveira. Katy Wesimiller, also of Texas-Arlington, was named the tournaments most valuable player.

Women golfers in season finale

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Indiana University will be tested, but probably not by the Salukis, when top Midwest women's golf teams battle in the Kat Invitational in Lexington Ky., Monday through Wednesday.

SIU-C Coach Sonya Stalberger expects a "horse race" among top contenders Alabama, Michigan State, North Carolina, and host school Kentucky to unseat Indiana as the dominant Midwest team.

But according to the last three tournament finishes, the future of the Saluki women's team seems bleak for this, the final tournament of the fall schedule.

"Realistically, we should be in the bottom half of the field, which is not very encouraging to say. We can compete with most of these schools, which we want to do more than anything. But the team has to have a positive attitude and each girl must set a goal to play her best," Stalberger said.

The Spring Lake Country Club course on which the 54-hole event will be played should be less demanding on SIU-C than the last three tournament courses.

"I played the course in college. It's usually in the best shape of any course we play. It's not easy, but it's more scorable and not quite as tight as the courses at Purdue and Indiana University."

The key to Saluki efforts will be concentration, because Stalberger faults recent poor performances to a lack of mental sharpness.

"We need to turn on our mental powers of concentration to succeed. Total lack of concentration has been a trouble spot all season," Stalberger said.

Upon this evaluation of lost Saluki strokes, Stalberger held sessions and drills to build positive attitudes in practice this week.

Perhaps as a direct result, the usual Nos. 3 to 5 Salukis, Tina Kozlowski, Vicki Higginson and Pat Putman, slipped into top spots with excellent qualifying rounds.

"The team goal is for everyone to play well on the same day," Stalberger said. "Every single one of the girls has had some really exceptional tournament rounds this season, and what we've been striving for is to put that together in our last tournament."

Spikers beaten by Illini, take third in tourney

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

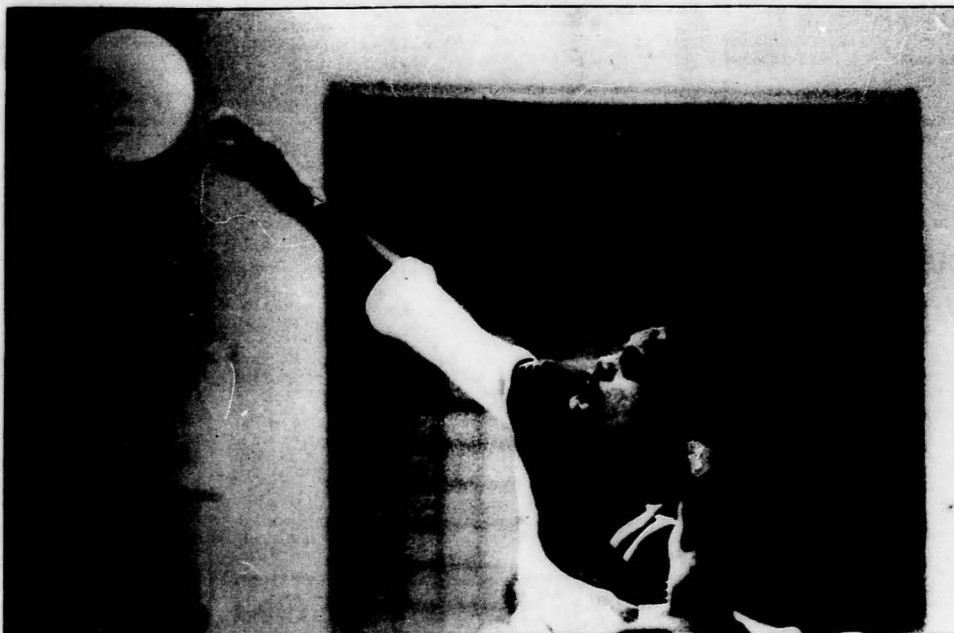

The Saluki volleyball team lost its opening-round game against the University of Illinois Friday, but came back with a win over Missouri on Saturday to take third place in the Southern Classic.

The Fighting Illini extended the nation's longest winning streak to 26 matches enroute to capturing the tourney title, which they took by defeating Texas-Arlington in Saturday's championship match.

The Salukis took a seven-game winning streak against Illini volleyball teams into Friday night's match but failed to defeat the 12th-ranked powerhouse in a heart-breaking five-game match.

The Salukis got off to a slow start, losing the first game 15-5 after falling behind 11-1. The Salukis finished with just five kills in 29 attempts for a dismal 0.69 attack percentage.

In the second game, SIU-C jumped to a 7-0 lead and was coasting along 12-3 before Illini timeouts broke the Salukis' momentum. The Illini pulled to within eight points at 14-6 and would not give up until Saluki freshman Beth Winsett hammered down the final kill for a 15-12 win.

Jaworski back on job in time to trounce Cards

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Ron Jaworski, starting his first game in five weeks, threw three touchdown passes Sunday to give the Philadelphia Eagles a 30-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Jaworski threw TD strikes of 10 yards to John Spagnola, 17 yards to Mike Quick and 32 yards to Herman Hunter as he completed 18-of-28 passes for 243 yards.

Jaworski lost his starter's role to rookie Randall Cunningham after the Eagles lost to the New York Giants 21-0 in the first week of the season. But Cunningham faltered and Jaworski came off the bench to throw for three TDs in Philadelphia's 23-21 loss to

New Orleans last week.

Philadelphia, 2-4, also got field goals of 39, 21 and 52 yards from Paul McFadden. Earnest Jackson ran for 103 yards for the Eagles, his first 100-yard game since he was obtained from the San Diego Chargers before the start of the season.

The Cardinals, 3-3, could generate little on offense and starting quarterback Neil Lomax, who completed only 6-of-15 passes for 65 yards, was replaced for the second straight week by backup Scott Brunner early in the third quarter. Brunner for the hit Pat Tilley with a 40-yard TD pass with 4:57 left in the game.

Jaworski's 17-yard TD pass to Quick on Philadelphia's first possession of the second half gave the Eagles a 20-0 lead and capped a 58-yard, four-play drive that featured a 43-yard pass to Hunter, a rookie running back, who fumbled the ball out of bounds at the St. Louis 15.

The Eagles increased their lead to 23-0 on their next possession on McFadden's 52-yard field goal, which tied his record for longest kick in his two-year career.

Philadelphia kept scoring points, moving 89 yards in 7 plays on its next possession, capped by Jaworski's 32-yard pass to Hunter. The Eagles' drive was aided by a 25-yard pass interference penalty called against St. Louis cornerback Jeff Griffin.

The Eagles held a 13-0 halftime lead on McFadden's first two field goals and Jaworski's 10-yard TD pass to Spagnola.

McFadden put the Eagles ahead, 3-0, with 4:56 left in the first quarter on his 39-yard field goal. The score was set up when Philadelphia's Herman Edwards intercepted a Lomax pass and returned it three yards to the Cardinals' 43. Lomax overthrew wide receiver J.T. Smith on the play.

The Eagles moved 65 yards on their next possession, capped by McFadden's 21-yard field goal, and went ahead 6-0. Jaworski completed two passes to Spagnola in the drive, including one of 29 yards that moved the Eagles to the St. Louis 5.

But Philadelphia could gain only two yards on three plays and had to settle for the field goal.

St. Louis took the ensuing kickoff and marched to the Eagles' 19 but Neil O'Donoghue missed a 36-yard field goal try wide to the right. O'Donoghue had earlier had a 56-yard field goal try fall short.

Jaworski then took Philadelphia 80 yards in 11 plays, capped by his 11-yard TD pass to Spagnola. The pass was perfectly thrown between two Cardinals' defenders and into Spagnola's hands in the end zone.

Royals stay in running

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Danny Jackson, a gritty left-hander with a heart as big as his native Texas, kept the Kansas City Royals' pennant hopes flickering Sunday by blanking the Toronto Blue Jays 2-0 in the fifth game of the American League playoffs.

Despite the loss, the Blue Jays still lead the best-of-seven series 3-2 and can wrap up the first pennant in the franchise's history — and the first in Canadian major league history — when the series resumes in Toronto Tuesday night.

George Brett, although hitless in three at-bats, also contributed to the Royals' effort, knocking in the game-winning run with an infield grounder in the first inning.

But the day clearly belonged to Jackson, a 24-year-old from San Antonio, Texas, who never gave in despite repeatedly being in serious trouble. He scattered eight hits, walked one and struck out six. But the Blue Jays three times put together two straight hits in the middle innings without scoring.

In the sixth, the Blue Jays loaded the bases with two out but were denied when Jackson got Ernie Whitt on a grounder to second. The Blue Jays also wasted a two-out double by George Bell in the first inning and a pair of singles in the fourth.

Kansas City missed its share of opportunities, too. But it scored a run in each of the first two innings off loser Jimmy Key and that proved enough.

The Royals wasted no time in taking the lead as Lonnie Smith led off the first with a double, stole third and scored when Brett bounced out to shortstop. It was Brett's 18th career RBI in the American League Championship Series, tying Reggie Jackson's league record.
