Prof: Hearings give attention to harassment

By Doug Toole
Politics Writer

Allegations by a University of Oklahoma law school professor that she was sexually harassed by Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas are giving women a chance to discuss harassment in the workplace, an SIUC assistant professor said Monday.

Assistant Professor Eugenie Garens, comparable to some of the hottest issues in no time on the Senate.

Denifort, Thomas' Senate patron and sponsor, said the calls favored approval by a 75 percent margin, but other senators said the margin was much tighter, or almost even for and against.

Thomas, former head of the civil rights section of the Education Department and chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, was considered a十分 strong candidate for confirmation before Hill's sensational charge was leaked to the media.

Criminal fines to fund counseling for victims

By Rob Neff
Police Writer

Two local agencies that provide counseling for victims of violent crimes will receive $17,000 each this year from a fund supported by fines paid to the state by convicted criminals.

The fund was started in 1984, when a surcharge was added to all criminal fines paid in Illinois. This year $2.5 million was collected from criminals ranging from traffic offenders to felons.

Attorney General Roland Burris awarded the money to the Women's Center in Carbondale and the Jackson County State's Attorney's office because of their excellent programs, said Ross Harano, chief of the crime victims division of the attorney general's office.

"The Women's Center has been around for a while," he said. "They have a very good program for treating both victims of domestic violence and victims of sexual abuse."

Julie Clausen, director of the Women's Center, said the center helps women by providing shelter for victims of domestic violence, sending counselors to rape victims in the emergency room and maintaining a hot line for women going through a crisis.

"We do a lot of crisis interventions," she said. "For instance, sometimes we have women who jostle have left their homes with their children banging on our door with someone pursuing her. We take those people in and try to protect them."

Native Americans say plight ignored on Columbus Day

By William Ragan

Native Americans at SIUC Monday marked the 499th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America as an injustice.

About 100 people attended a memorial event for Columbus Day in the Free Forum Area that included speakers, a drum ritual, and Native American dances.

Native Americans need to rethink the myth that Columbus discovered America and to reflect on the pain he inflicted upon the Native Americans, speakers said.

Darlene Walks Out, an Oglala Lakota Sioux Indian from Herrin and president of Friends for Native Americans, opened the event by lighting herbs and chanting a native prayer.

The celebration of Columbus Day ignores the plight of the Indians, Walks Out said.

"Columbus Day shouldn't be celebrated because it gives him glorification of all the atrocities he brought upon the natives," Walks Out said.

"It hurts me to think that there are people out there who say that Columbus did a good deed by discovering America," she said.

"I don't think he did at all."

After losing one of its most outstanding players ever to the SIC women's basketball team will change its style of play in the 1991-92 season by making a complete team effort will be needed to fill the void, Scott said. "If the players have gone through different eras," Scott said. "This is a new era for our team. We are leaving the Amy Rakers era, and this year it will be no one's game. Scott said the team will try to run the ball more quickly down the floor, but it won't abandon an overall pattern of play.

"We have become stagnant and predictable with our half-court style," Scott said. "They can play on playing more up-tempo than anyone has even seen. The team also has a new assistant coach, Debbie Patterson, and a new head coach for Northern Illinois University, is expected to help the Salukis with their half-court game as well as their transition game. Scott said, "We have to be able to change our transition game because we are going to do far more running this year than in past seasons.

The Salukis, after finishing the 1990-91 season second in the Gateway Conference regular season and tournament, hope to capture the last Gateway title in Scott's first season as head coach. In 1992-93, all Gateway Conference sports except football will be terminated. The remaining students will join the Missouri Valley Conference.

HAITI FAILS TO MUSTER GENERAL STRIKE — Fear and a lack of publicity were blamed for the failure of a general strike to materialize Monday to protest the new military-controlled government, but Haitian’s chief business and student groups demanded the return of ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. Although many people did not show up for work Monday and have not worked since the coup, there was little evidence that Haitians were heeding the call for a general strike.

YUGOSLAV TRUCE PACT BOGGED DOWN — Obstructions by both Croatian forces and the Serb-dominated Yugoslav army today forced a European community summit to an abrupt end in an attempt to deliver emergency supplies to the besieged eastern town of Vukovar, jeopardizing a week-old truce, the officials said. The failure of the convoy to reach the center of the embattled Danube River town was compounded by reports of continued fighting.

BAKER PUSHES DEADLINE ON PEACE TALKS — Racing against a self-imposed deadline, secretary of State James Baker said he would invite to a Friday talk to the presidents of six peace contenders—Croatia, Slovenia, Macedonia, Serbia, Montenegro—shortly after the end of the weekend. This development could mean that the week-old truce among six parties could be over by the end of the week. Baker said he will try to negotiate a cease-fire and a “road map” for future talks.

BUREMSE DISSIDENT WINS NOBEL PRIZE — Burmese dissident leader Rang San Son Kyi was awarded the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize Monday for her “civilian courage” and non-violent opposition to her nation’s military rulers. It was unclear whether the 46-year-old daughter of Burma’s post-independence founding father would be able to travel to Oslo to receive the prize. A Nobel committee spokesman said: “All we know is that she is under very close house arrest.”

GOP UNEMPLOYMENT BILL CRITICIZED — President Bush’s plan to aid jobless workers whose unemployment benefits have run out will help just a fraction of the currently unemployed, the center on Budget and Policy Priorities said Monday. According to the center analysis, the Democratic bill vetoed by the president Friday would help 9.5 million workers whose benefits have run out while the GOP-sponsored bill the president prefers will help just 135,000.

TWO FLORIDA CHILDREN DIE IN BUS CRASH — A wheel flew off a truck on a busy expressway Monday and crushed the head of a school bus, killing two of nearly 50 fourth-graders on their way to a Columbus Day outing, the Florida Highway Patrol said. Two adults were taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital, one of them in “gravely critical” condition. The other was treated and released. Columbus said the bus was going the speed limit when it was struck by the tire.

LOOTING JIVIN’ FLORIDA — Looters fleecing the nation’s poorest state now have run wild after the devastating hurricane. The news of the storm’s aftermath appeared to prompt a rash of violent looting in Florida’s Everglades. At least three people were killed in the state’s worst riot in recent history, and authorities said they expect the death toll to rise.

T’Keyah “Crystal” Keymah, performer and actress from the Fox network show “In Living Color,” will visit SIUC Nov. 9 as a keynote speaker for the second annual Black Affairs Council Leadership Conference.

About 800 to 1000 students are expected to attend the conference this year, said Antonio Washington, BAC coordinate.

The conference provides an opportunity for students to develop their leadership skills.

Sonja Sanchez, author-photoplaywright, and Conrad Muhammad, youth and student spokesman for the Nation of Islam, are the other keynote speakers for the event.

The BACLC committee chose speakers that would best relate to the 1991 theme, “Emerging Leaders, Cultivating the Seeds of Knowledge,” Washington said.

BAC Adviser and Associate Director of Student Development Harriet Wilson Barlow, said the speakers this year are young and diverse and fit into the theme.

“Genie” George Folkes, a comedian who has appeared on the Arsenio Hall show, will provide entertainment Saturday night of the conference.

Washington, a senior in construction technology from Chicago, said the conference, which runs Nov. 7 to 10, will consist of various workshops and panel discussions on different topics.

The society says their adoption policies are not too strict but necessary to guarantee good homes for animals.

The society’s policies are determined by its board of directors in conformity with its corporate purposes, said Eugenia Hunter, the organization’s president.

“We are really interested in the welfare of the animals,” she said. “A lot of our policies are based on our experience over the last thirty-five years.”

Future pet owners who rent apartments or houses are required to obtain written permission from their landlords.

The shelter will not release a kitten or puppy younger than three months of age to a home where the family members are at work or school all day.

It also will not allow adoption of an animal to a family who has children under five years old to insure safety of both the animal and the children.

The shelter does not allow individuals to adopt animals as gifts for people other than family members.

“We have to judge whether or not the person will be a good owner before they take the animal,” Hunter said.

Prospective owners must first fill out a pre-adoption application, read a list of agency policies, have a veterinarian on staff, and it still requires that people have the animal spayed or neutered before it is legally owned. Adoption fees are $25 for cats and $35 for dogs.

“The adoption fee is refunded upon written verification from a veterinarian that the operation was performed.”

“...we serve as a down payment. We give you a voucher to present to the vet of your choice so you can get your pet spayed or neutered,” said Janet Englund, manager of the shelter.

Animals must be taken to a local veterinarian for a health examination within one week of adoption. In order to qualify for a replacement animal or a refund of the adoption fee, this appointment must be made and kept.

Adoptions have been reasonably consistent throughout the past five years, Hunter said.

The society always welcomes prospective pet owners to come and take a look at its animals.

Currently every kitten is full of dogs and cats awaiting attention and companionship.

The hours of operation at the Humane Society are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday to Saturday, and 2 to 4 p.m. on Sunday.

Patients should use approved drugs only

FOR THOSE LIVING with an incurable illness, experiment with drugs not approved for treatment is the wrong solution for a situation that can be remedied.

A recent poll found that nearly 80 percent of Americans believe people should be able to use experimental drugs for treating incurable illnesses even if the drugs have not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

The poll indicated the people felt they should have the choice to use promising therapies for treating such diseases as AIDS, cancer or Alzheimer’s disease even if the therapy has not been approved.

SPECIFICALLY, 97 percent of the 1,009 Americans polled say AIDS patients, in consultation with their doctor, should be allowed to use drugs that have not yet won approval by the FDA.

For cancer treatment, 96 percent were in favor of the use of experimental drugs, and for Alzheimer’s disease 91 percent felt people should be able to make the decision without government restrictions.

However, drugs that are not approved by the FDA are so for a reason. For example, the drugs may have not been extensively tested to determine serious or irreversible side effects.

PATIENTS SHOULD not forego their approved treatment to experiment with drugs that may not be effective.

Even promising therapies require further testing to prove their degree of effectiveness compared with FDA approved drugs.

Some victims of incurable diseases may feel they have nothing to lose and are willing to try anything when it comes to possible treatment.

But standards of research and testing and levels of safety and effectiveness of legal drugs were established to protect such people from being taken advantage of by quacks peddling patent medicines.

NO ONE CAN be held accountable for the imperilment of a patient’s life when there are no rules.

However because diseases, such as AIDS and Alzheimer’s, suddenly are striking and devastating more and more lives in epidemic proportions, possible treatments for these illnesses should be given priority testing.

Instead of promoting the use of experimental drugs, a quicker FDA approval process should be installed for legitimate, promising therapies for these diseases.

Bikes should yield to pedestrians just like motor vehicles

This past August, I started my first year in college at SUCC. I knew this would be a new experience, but I didn’t think the way my way to classes would be on the agenda.

I soon realized that if I wanted to make my way to class safely, I would have to watch and yield to bicycles.

Last week I was on my way to class when I approached a crosswalk on Lincoln Drive. I had crossed that crosswalk 11 times before but that day was different.

I had just stepped off the sidewalk when a bicyclist came speeding into the crosswalk, causing me to jump out of the way to avoid being hit.

If we would have collided, I might have suffered a few scrapes and bruises while the bicyclist rider might have been hurt even worse.

Since this one incident, I have noticed that it happens frequently.

In the state of Illinois, bicycle riders are to yield to pedestrians just as motor vehicles do.

Because bicycles are treated like vehicles, I urge all bicycle riders to take more precautions.

I am sure this would make all pedestrians feel safer—Shelia Adams, freshman, undecided.

Letters to the Editor

Philippine bases should close

The bases in the Philippines controversy hardly ends with the issue of the seven U.S. military installations, but the academic knowledge of the area and its residents, but it is another to understand what is actually missed behind the scenes.

First, I support the immediate removal of bases from the Philippines. The U.S. bases have been nothing but a thorn in the side of the Republic. As former head of an Air Force member I can tell you that the bases will be sorely missed by the Philippines.

The bases are more than just military realities as well as most political specialists. Clark Air Base was so much more than a typical base. Combined with drones at Subic, Clark was the only base in the Pacific for pilots to shoot or bomb targets with active ammunitions. Locating a new area for this base will be done, but the facilities were already present in the PI.

The PI provided foreign aid was very important to the service man that people would not understand unless they experienced the same way of life, and that is not the local scene. This consisted of inexpensive shopping, drinking, and sexual gratification. Prostitution along with the bars were the major industry in Angeles City and Bagio. It was the major reason that servicemen flock to go there. These cities’ economies, most likely, will collapse. Angeles City is already a ghost town because of the volcano.

But soon the service man’s money will be gone altogether.

I believe then you will see a country fall even worse into poverty. The average yearly salary is around $400. Around Subic and Clark the military provided health care, transportation and money in aid we will end up giving the PI after we leave.

It probably will be more than the price of the bases. But this would be the true travesty. We must leave and leave quickly. There are many reasons why the PI has been such a problem and a cost ineffective place to have bases.

The military lost millions of dollars a year in theft of government property and servicemen’s property—not to mention the loss of life of many servicemen. The move should be one of punishment and aid should be extremely limited when it becomes needed.—Mike Hoffman, sophomore in cinema.

Some abortions now version of cannibalism

While unborn babies bodiers are being ripped and torn apart in the name of science, editorialists like me think the one from the Daily Bills rant and rail against Operation Rescue’s efforts to stop the slaughter.

While unborn women are selectively killed by death selective, people complain that universities like SUCC should subsidize the killing by spreading the cost around to all students having medical insurance. The insanity does not stop there. Killing is not enough, we should scavenge the carcass for all the meat.

An example: A man was dying from kidney failure. He convinced his sixteen year old daughter to be artificially inseminated by his sperm. She conceived a healthy fetus.

When the fetus was seven months old, a scheduled abortion was administered, a caesarean section was performed and the baby delivered. The baby was cut open, the kidneys were removed and transplanted into the baby’s father/godfather. The father got a new lease on life. The baby got a shocking entry into the world, not a hug from its mother, but a grateful phone call from doctor ripping its insides apart. This incident is not surprising, however.

To use the old adage that “if at first you don’t succeed, try, try, try,” we have become one generation that literally consumes its offspring—next generation’s forebears are themselves.

Because less than 5 percent of all abortions are for the reasons of danger to the mother’s health, rape, incest or genetic defect, the 1.3 million babies aborted every year for the “consumption” of the rest of society; convenience, financial independence, educational advancement, sexual freedom, etc. In our American “throw away” mentality the unborn child has become one of our largest consumables. The result is that legalized abortion is the American form of cannibalism.—Wayne Helmer, professor of mechanical engineering and energy processes.

because they are not sure what the limits of acceptable behavior are when talking with women. Gaetan-Robinson said.

Women are often socialized to believe it is a reflection on themselves and their character if men make crude comments to them. Women say they have done something wrong and deserve the comments they receive, she said.

Many women, especially those in the lower-class economic group, need their jobs and cannot afford to make trouble by complaining about co-workers or bosses, she said. Sometimes men will take advantage of this vulnerability and make sexual or suggestive comments to female co-workers.

These comments are not interpreted by women as being seductive, Gaetan-Robinson said. They are threatening and embarrassing verbal intrusions.

"Harassment isn't sexual," she said. "It's a form of violence." Gaetan-Robinson also said if the allegations are true, Thomas's behavior is particularly offensive because of his position as head of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, which deals with sexual harassment laws. She compared this to having the government's drug enforcement officer dealing narcotics.

Because Hill was an assistant to Thomas at the Department of Education and was dependent on him for good references to other employers, she may have decided to ride out any problems she had with him rather than starting over somewhere else, she said.

"(Thomas) was in a position to help (Hill) in her profession," Gaetan-Robinson said.

CAROL McDermott, coordinator of social work services at SIUC, said sexual harassment is a form of abuse and Hill fit the pattern of many abused women by staying with Thomas, not confronting him with the problem and trying to make things work between them.

She said although the hearings are making the whole nation sensitive to the problem of sexual harassment, the allegations should not be handled in the public forum. Highly emotional situations like this are best handled privately, and televising the proceedings is only hurting those involved.

"Both Thomas and Hill are victims of the process," McDermott said.

The committee's hearings are educating people about sexual harassment, that is not the main purpose of the proceedings, she said.

world he also started an enormous slave trade. When Columbus landed on land inhabited by a Native American tribe, many of the Native Americans there to send back to Spain, said Jeffery. Forty years later, every single native on the island was dead.

"It is a sad day that we are celebrating today," Strmberg said. "This is the man who has started slavery in the Atlantic Ocean and began genocide against an entire race of people.

Todd Braun, pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd, said celebrating Columbus Day perpetuates racism and theft.

"No matter what opinions in the Columbus story: It's okay to steal land, it's okay for white people to be the people in color, it's okay for a powerful country to dominate a less powerful one," Braun said.

"Some people think this is a day of celebration, but for us here, it is a day of solemn remembrance, a day of sorrow and a day when we make changes," Braun said.

Brad Hendonstiet, president of the Mid-America Peace Project, said the group has been planning the event since the beginning of the school year.

"In Washington, D.C. there's a commission to have a huge celebration of Columbus Day (next year)," Hendonstiet said. "We just figured something has got to be done there to counter it."

One of the goals of the event was to get people to think more about the accuracy of history, Henckel said.

"We're trying to get people to educate themselves on Columbus and the true implications of 1492," Hendonstiet said.

The university is taking part this week in the eighth annual National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week, which runs Oct. 13 through Friday.

Major reason why alcohol is so appealing to undergraduates is the thrill from the risk involved, said Janet Brown, vice director of the state's alcoholism education program.

"Because alcohol is available to so many students and is so glorified by the advertisers, it is no wonder there are so many underage drinker," Page said.

About half of the students at SIUC have either driven under the influence or ridden with an intoxicated driver, Page said.

In accordance with the Awareness Week, SIUC is sponsoring events such as educational displays and social activities to get students to inform students about the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse.

Pianist’s winter show gets warm reception

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

Solo pianist George Winston straddled the cars of a near sell-out crowd Sunday night at Shryock Auditorium, proving that piano music can transcend "Christmas" to become a viable medium of its own.

The low-keyed musician was perhaps the most underdressed person in the auditorium, wearing jeans and a long-sleeve shirt and performing in his socks.

Winston opened his "Winter" show with "Living in the Country," a piece from his new album, "Summer." He followed with "Color Dance," a selection from the album "Autumn." He extended the same sort longer than it appears on the album, embellishing and improving on the basic theme.

Winston used a grab-bag of interesting techniques as he played, muting the piano strings with his hand to create a percussive sound or plucking the strings like a violin. The seasonal pieces captured the crowd easily, from the bleak strains of "January Storm" to the traditional Christmas favorite, "Carol of the Bells," which Winston transformed into a statement of evocative beauty.

Winston taught on childhood memories with his medley of two "Peanuts" pieces by composer Vince Guaraldi: "Linus and Lucy" and "The Great Pumpkin Waltz." He took the basic, hummable theme of "Linus and Lucy" and added harmonically complex, discordant passages for contrast.

Winston captured the essence of the seasons in his performance, playing beautiful music that had an undertone of loneliness. His plaintive, expressive style won over the crowd without becoming self-indulgent.

Career fair also will run in conjunction with the conference where students will be able to meet with representatives of various companies and organizations. Some of the companies will look to interview students on-the-spot, Washington said.

Barlow said the conference is timely and important for students who will soon be out in the workplace. The leadership conference is not restricted to African Americans. It is open to high school and college students who are interested in developing leadership skills, Washington said.

Racism is ignorance and the only way to combat racism is through education, Washington said. Any interested students may contact the Black Alliance Council in the Student Center or call 453-6524.

International Programs and Services is sponsoring its annual Study Abroad Fair Oct. 23 in Student Center Ballrooms A, where representatives from different countries present 16 tables with information on work and study opportunities abroad.

"The Study Abroad Fair is our biggest event for the year," said Shabana Chauke, graduate assistant at IPS. "Many students don't know about the options open to them for work, travel or study in other countries. The fair gives them a chance to talk to people who have lived or been abroad. SIUC students who have studied in a different environment and who have had experience overseas will be available. Travel-study information about East Asia, Africa, Soviet Union and Eastern Europe and third world countries also will be available.

The Peace Corps will also display a booth.
Anyone with overseas work or study experience who would like to assist with the fair should call Chauke at 535-7670. Admission to the event is free.

Romantic songs display flowery Chinese tradition
By Fatima Janvekar
General Assignment Writer

Chinese folkloric scholar Jian-Guo Li filled the Old Baptist Foundation with the scent of jasmine Sunday night through his music.

"Traditional Chinese folk songs are called Flowers," Li said. The "Jasmine" Flower folksong was carried by immigrants from Eastern China and is very popular in Xiang-Hai province, where Li did his research.

The compositions of musical notes differ from region to region in China, Li said, through interpreter Albert Liu, a graduate assistant at International Programs and Services, majoring in accounting.

Li said two types of "Jasmine" songs carry the same message.

"Flowers are romantic folksongs, symbolic of the love a young man has for a woman," Li said. "They are a direct expression of love. They can be sung by children, but most of the time the children who sing them do not understand their meaning.

Most of the music was primitive but had traditional significance. Many of the traditional songs used imagery, symbolism and nature to express feelings, Li said.

The different Chinese nationalities—there are Chinese, and Chinese Muslims, and others—perform folksongs in their own languages or dialects, as is only the Chinese and Muslims who speak Chinese proper," Li said.

"The Flower Festival allows the different nationalities to retain their own unique folksongs, and at the same time they try to find a cross-point to understand each other. This cross point is through "Flowers," and each "Flower" has its own characteristics," Li said.

Lute-like instruments, called "kitha," are used throughout China for musical purposes. The Chinese also use flutes, mouth organs and reeds to make music. These instruments came mainly from western civilization. Arabic influence also exist because of the dominant Muslim population and from instruments that originated in Persia, Li said.

With support crumbling, Republicans were forced to agree to a one-week delay in the vote and the Senate Judiciary Committee embarked on four days of hearings that did not end until after 2 a.m. Monday.

Before Hill's allegations became public, 13 Democrats had announced that they would vote for Thomas, a black conservative from Pin Point, Ga., but most of them backed the delay in hearings.

Thomas needs at least nine Democrats to go with 41 rock-solid Republicans to win and the most likely prospects are those who originally backed him to succeed Thurgood Marshall on the Supreme Court. In addition there are other Democrats who had not made an announcement, but were believed before the hearing to lean towards confirmation.

Two of those who committed to Thomas early, Sens. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Ben Nighthorse Campbell, D-La., announced Monday they would vote for Thomas.

Smith got stronger as the game went along. Pitching on three days rest for most of the former four years as his 5-foot-9, 160-pound left-hander worked out of jams in four of the first five innings, he struck out nine batters in a row until Terry Pendleton tripled with two out in the eighth.

Smith was relieved at that point by Roger Mason, who relieved Ron Gant on a pitch to end the inning. The Braves weren't finished, however. Mason struck out Justice to start the ninth, but pinch-hitter Tommy Greggs and Craig Olson hit successive singles, to put runners on first and second. Mason then got Mark Lemke to hit into a forceout and got Jeff Blauser on a fly to right to end the game.

The Braves should have built a commanding lead over the first four innings, but they botched enough rudimentary plays to make any manager look in the heavens.

After striking a runner in second in the first inning, the Braves loaded the bases with none out in the second on hits by Brian Hunter and Lemke and a walk to Olson. After Rafael Belliard struck out, the Braves put on a suicide squeeze with a 2-2 count on Glavine, but it resulted in a double play when Glavine missed the pick for strike three and Hunter was tagged out in a rundown.

That was nothing, though, compared with the embarrassment the Braves suffered in the fourth. Justice led off the inning by reaching second on an error by first baseman Gary reddus. Hunter then hit a chopper in front of the plate and when catcher Don Slaught tripped trying to field the ball, Hunter was safe at first.

This is the first year the Athletic Department will not sponsor the event.

Saluki Booster Club member Sally Moulard said the club and WCFL have tried to make the event bigger by giving it more publicity.

For the first time, former Saluki players will return to play for a scrimmage.

Before 1990, the scrimmage was held at midnight, but because the first day the team can practice fell on a week night this year and last, the event was moved to early evening, Moulard said.

After the 20-minute scrimmage, the Booster Club and WCFL will present a video with clips on past and present players.

A 3-point shoot contest and slam dunk contest for the 1991-92 Saluki basketball team will follow, and the team will play a scrimmage game at 8:30.

The doors open at 6 p.m. and admission is free.

averaged 3.2 and 2.3 in 1990-91.

Scott said Heimaead will see more time at the off guard and small forward, and junior point guard Anita Scott will replace Heimaead as point guard.

Anita Scott, who was chosen for the U.S. Junior National Team last summer, said she was excited about the game's 35.5 pace.

She averaged 3.1 points and 2.3 rebounds a contest.

"I like running the ball," she said. "It's hard to explain, some players walk the ball, but I like to play at a faster pace."

Anita Scott said the team feels comfortable in running a full-court game because everyone is capable of playing it effectively.

"We mostly played that style in high school, so we are used to it," she said.

"It will check a lot of our opponents this season, and we will really gain from that. It will be to our advantage to play a full-court game."

The team starts its season Nov. 23 at home against University of Illinois.

Hitchcock Instruments, Inc.
Washington (UPI) - Clarence Thomas's chance of reaching the Supreme Court melted Monday with a small band of mostly conservative Democrats who endorsed him, then pulled back when he was accused of sexual harassment by a former assistant.

The Senate is scheduled to vote on the nomination of the 43-year-old appeals court judge at 5 p.m. Tuesday, bringing to an end one of the most dramatic and ramboll ugly confrontations in Washington's history.

In contrast to the four days of hearings on the allegations of harassment by University of Oklahoma law professor Anita Hill, which turned into a howly political circus, the nation's capital turned tomb-like Monday as the Senate took off for Columbus Day.

Only the ic phones remained buzz as thousands called their senators to support or oppose the nomination at a rate according to Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., comparable to some of the hottest issues in my time in the Senate. Danforth, Thomas's Senate patron and sponsor, said the calls favored approval by a 75 percent margin, but other senators said the margin was much tighter, or almost even for and against.

Thomas, former head of the civil rights section of the Education Department and chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, was considered a certainty for confirmation before Hill's sensational charges were leaked to the media.

Prof: Hearings give attention to harassment
By Doug Toole
Politics Writer

Allegations by a University of Oklahoma law school professor that she was sexually harassed by Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas are giving women a chance to discuss harassment in the workplace, an SIUC assistant professor said Monday.

Assistant Professor Eugenie Gaisens-Robinson of the philosophy department said the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings into Anita Hill's allegations are giving the problem of harassment national attention.

More than just radical feminists are complaining about having experienced harassment from men they have worked with, Robinson said. "People's mothers are talking about when they were sexually harassed," she said.

The Senate voted unanimously to delay voting on Thomas's Supreme Court confirmation until after the allegations have been investigated. The committee hearings have been widely televised during the three-day weekend.

Men frequently do not treat sexual harassment in the workplace seriously, see HARASSMENT, page 5.

Criminal fines to fund counseling for victims
By Rob Neff
General Assignment Writer

Two local agencies that provide counseling for victims of violent crimes will receive $17,000 each this year from a fund supported by fines paid to the state by convicted criminals.

The fund was started in 1984, when a surcharge was added to all criminal fines paid in Illinois. This year $2.5 million was collected from criminals ranging from traffic offenders to felons.

Attorney General Roland Burris awarded the money to the Women's Center in Carbondale and the Jackson County State's Attorney's office because of their excellent programs, said Ross Hanna, chief of the crime victims division of the attorney general's office.

The Women's Center has been around for a while,' he said. They have a very good program for treating both victims of domestic violence and victims of sexual abuse."

Jalie Clausen, director of the Women's Center, said the center helps women by providing shelter for victims of domestic violence, sending counselors to rape victims in the emergency room and maintaining a hotline for women going through a crisis.

We do a lot of crisis interventions,' she said. "For instance, sometimes we have women who just have left their home with their children bugging on our door with someone pursuing her. We take those people in and try to protect them."

The State's Attorney's office also tries to make victims of violent see VICTIMS, page 5.

Percent of drinkers at SIUC above average, official says
By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

U.S. college students consume more than 430 million gallons of alcohol every year, enough to fill an Olympic-size pool for every college and university in the United States, according to the National Clearinghouse on Alcohol and Drug Information.

At SIUC, about 91 percent of all students reportedly drink alcohol, compared to 88 percent of all college students nationwide, said Babcock Hildebrand, coordinator of Alcohol and Drug Education at SIUC.

Part of the reason is the wide appeal of drinking for underage students, she said. "Universities such as SIUC should take into consideration that most of their students are underage," she said. "Of all the students surveyed who drink at SIUC, half are underage."

Women's basketball to play with new offensive strategy

By Cyndi Oberte
Sports Writer

After losing one of its most outstanding players ever, the SIU women's basketball team is looking to change its style of play in the 1991-92 season to complement team chemistry, said head coach Cindy Scott.

The Salukis made their most significant change last season when they switched from a half-court offense to a half-court defense. As a result, they made it to the second round of the NCAA Tournament. This season, the Salukis have decided to go back to the half-court offense to complement their chemistry.

Scott said the team will run the floor with three guards and a post player, which will help them get more scoring opportunities.

Salukis sophomore Sam Scheibel tied for second in individual standings with a 221. His round in the tournament was a 72-stroke score in the second round.

Saluki legends will return to help start the first practice of the 1991-92 SIUC basketball team tomorrow.

HAITI FAILS TO MUSTER GENERAL STRIKE — Fear and a lack of publicity were blamed for the failure of a general strike to materialize Monday to protest the new military-controlled government, but Haiti's chief business and student groups demanded the return of ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. Although many people did not show up for work Monday and have not worked since the coup, there was little evidence that "striats" were hoeding the call for a general strike.

YUGOSLAV TRUCE PACT BOGGED DOWN — Obstructions by both Croatian forces and the Serb-dominated Yugoslav army Monday forced a European community truck convoy to abandon an attempt to deliver emergency supplies to the besieged eastern town of Vukovar, jeopardizing a week-old truce accord, EC officials said. The failure of the convoy to reach the center of the combat-engamaged Danube River town was compounded by reports of continued fighting.

BURMESE DISSENT WINS NOBEL PRIZE — Burmese dissident leader Rang San Suu Kyi was awarded the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize Monday for her "civilian courage" and non-violent opposition to her nation's military rulers. It was unclear whether the 46-year-old daughter of Burma's post-independence founding father would be able to travel to Oslo to receive her prize. A Nobel committee spokesman said, "All we know is that she is under very close house arrest."

GOP UNEMPLOYMENT BILL CRITICIZED — President Bush's plan to aid jobless workers whose unemployment benefits have run out will help just a fraction of the currently unemployed, the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities said Monday. According to the Center analysis, the Democratic bill vetoed by the president Friday would help 7 million workers who are unemployed while the GOP-sponsored bill the president will help just 135,000.

About 50 parents and children carried flowers and signs, expressing outrage over reports Jeffrey Rinsley, 28, Benton Harbor, Mich., served only three months of a 10 year sentence for the 1983 sexual assault on two children.

LOTTO JACKPOT AT $60 MILLION — Lotto Fever gripped players of the Illinois game Monday as "lucky Lottery officials to boost the jackpot to $60 million, the third-largest in state history: the $5 million added to the grand prize was the result of an all-day noon of Sunday sales, said spokesman Mike Lang. "We're containing it now and it could go even higher (before Wednesdays' drawing)." Lotto Fever is here and it won't subside until somebody wins," Lang said.

HAITI FAILS TO MUSTER GENERAL STRIKE — Fear and a lack of publicity were blamed for the failure of a general strike to materialize Monday to protest the new military-controlled government, but Haiti's chief business and student groups demanded the return of ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. Although many people did not show up for work Monday and have not worked since the coup, there was little evidence that "striats" were hoeding the call for a general strike.

YUGOSLAV TRUCE PACT BOGGED DOWN — Obstructions by both Croatian forces and the Serb-dominated Yugoslav army Monday forced a European community truck convoy to abandon an attempt to deliver emergency supplies to the besieged eastern town of Vukovar, jeopardizing a week-old truce accord, EC officials said. The failure of the convoy to reach the center of the combat-enganged Danube River town was compounded by reports of continued fighting.

BURMESE DISSENT WINS NOBEL PRIZE — Burmese dissident leader Rang San Suu Kyi was awarded the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize Monday for her "civilian courage" and non-violent opposition to her nation's military rulers. It was unclear whether the 46-year-old daughter of Burma's post-independence founding father would be able to travel to Oslo to receive her prize. A Nobel committee spokesman said, "All we know is that she is under very close house arrest."

GOP UNEMPLOYMENT BILL CRITICIZED — President Bush's plan to aid jobless workers whose unemployment benefits have run out will help just a fraction of the currently unemployed, the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities said Monday. According to the Center analysis, the Democratic bill vetoed by the president Friday would help 7 million workers who are unemployed while the GOP-sponsored bill the president will help just 135,000.

TWO FLORIDA CHILDREN DIE IN BUS CRASH — A wheel flew off a truck on a busy expressway Monday and crashed head-on into a school bus, killing two of nearly 50 fourth graders on their way to the Space Shuttle Discovery field trip, Florida Highway Patrol said. Two adults were taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital, one of them in "gravely critical" condition. The other was treated and released. Outlookers said the bus was going the speed limit when it was struck by the tire.

Conference sows seeds of leadership

By Kristi Rominger
General Assignment Writer

T'Keyah "Crystal" Keymah, performer and actress from the Fox network show "In Living Color," will visit SIUC Nov. 9 as a keynote speaker for the second annual Black Affairs Council Leadership Conference. About 800 to 1000 students are expected to attend the conference this year, said Antonio Washington, BAC coordinator.

The conference provides an opportunity for students to develop their leadership skills. Sonia Sanchez, author-poet-playwright, and Conrad Muhammad, youth and student spokesman for the Nation of Islam, are the other keynote speakers for the event.

The EACL C committee chose speakers that would best relate to the 1991 theme, "Emerging Leaders, Cultivating the Seeds of Knowledge," Washington said. BAC Adviser and Associate Director of Student Development Harriet Wilson Barlow, said the speakers this year are young and diverse and fit into the theme. "Gentle" George Felkes, a comedian who has appeared on the Arsenio Hall show, will provide entertainment Saturday night of the conference.

Washington, a senior in construction technology from Chicago, said the conference, which runs Nov. 7 to 10, will consist of various workshops and panel discussions on different see CONFERENCE page 6

Humane Society finds owners for dogs, cats

By Teni Lynn Carlock
General Assignment Writer

Members of the Humane Society of Southern Illinois say their adoption policies are not too strict but necessary to guarantee good homes for animals.

The society's policies are determined by its board of directors in conformity with its corporate purposes, said Eugenia Hunter, the organization's president.

"We are really interested in the welfare of the animals," she said. "A lot of our policies are based on our experience over the last thirty years."

Future pet owners who rent apartments or houses are required to obtain written permission from their landlords. The society also will double-check the authenticity of the permission.

The shelter will not release a kitten or puppy younger than three months of age to a home where the family members are at work or school all day.

It also will not allow adoption of an animal to a family who has children under five years old to insure safety of both the animal and the children.

The shelter does not allow individuals to adopt animals as gifts for people other than family members.

"We have to judge whether or not the person will be a good owner before they take the animal," Hunter said.

Prospective owners must first fill out a pre-adoption application and read a list of agency policies.

The shelter does not have a veterinarian on staff, but it still requires that people have the animal spayed or neutered before it is legally adopted. Adoption fees are $25 for cats and $35 for dogs.

The adoption fee is refunded upon written verification from a veterinarian that the operation was performed.

"When you pay the adoption fee, it serves as a down payment. We give you a voucher to present to the vet of your choice so you can get your pet spayed or neutered," said Janet England, manager of the shelter.

Animals must be taken to a local veterinarian for a health examination within one week of adoption. In order to qualify for a replacement animal or a refund of the adoption fee, this appointment must be made and kept.

Adoptions have been reasonably consistent throughout the past five years, Hunter said.

The society always welcomes prospective pet owners to come and take a look at its animals.

Currently every kennel is full of dogs and cats waiting attention and companionship.

The hours of operation at the Humane Society are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday to Saturday, and 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Patients should use approved drugs only

FOR THOSE LIVING with an incurable illness, experimenting with drugs not approved for treatment is the wrong solution for a situation that can be remedied. A recent poll found that nearly 80 percent of Americans believe people should be able to use experimental drugs for treating incurable illnesses even if the drugs have not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

The poll indicated the people felt they should have the choice to use promising therapies for treating such diseases as AIDS, cancer or Alzheimer’s disease even if the therapy has not been approved.

SPECIFICALLY, 97 percent of the 1,009 Americans polled say AIDS patients, in consultation with their doctor, should be allowed to use drugs that have not yet won approval by the FDA.

For cancer treatment, 96 percent were in favor of the use of experimental drugs, and for Alzheimer’s disease 91 percent felt people should be able to make the decision with their doctors - without government restrictions.

However, drugs that are not approved by the FDA are so for a reason. For example, the drugs may not have been extensively tested to determine serious or irreversible side effects.

PATIENTS SHOULD not forego their approved treatment to experiment with drugs that may not be effective.

Even promising therapies require further testing to prove their degree of effectiveness compared with FDA endorsed drugs.

Some victims of incurable diseases may feel they have nothing to lose and are willing to try anything when it comes to possible treatment.

But standards of research and testing and levels of safety and effectiveness of legal drugs were established to protect such people from being taken advantage of by quacks peddling patent medicines.

NO ONE CAN be held accountable for the imperilment of a patient’s life when there are no rules.

However because diseases, such as AIDS and Alzheimer’s, suddenly are striking and devastating and more and more lives are being lost in epidemic proportions, possible treatments for these illnesses should be given priority testing.

Instead of promoting the use of experimental drugs, a quicker FDA approval process should be installed for legitimate, promising therapies for these diseases.

Philippine bases should close

The bases in the Philippines controversy hardly ends with the latest posturing to show the academic knowledge of the area and its residents, but it is another to understand what is actually happening.

First, I support the immediate removal of bases from the Philippines. These bases have been nothing but them in the side of the military. Knowing first hand as an Air Force member I can tell you that the bases will be sorely missed by the Philippines.

The bases are more important than most civilians realize as well as most political specialists. Clark Air Force Base, located in the heart of the Central Valley, provides nearly all the services that are available in a large city. The military in the Philippines is the only real alternative that the civilian society has to a place like Clark.

The military has a number of bases on the island, but Clark is the only major base in the Pacific for pilots to shoot or bomb targets with active armaments. Locating a new area for this work will be done, but the facilities were already present in the Philippines.

The PI provided something that was very important to the serviceman that people would not understand unless they experienced the same way of life, and that is the local scene. This consisted of inexpensive shopping, drinking and sexual gratification. Prostitution along with the bars were the major industry in Angeles City and Bugos. It was the major reason for service men wanting to go to the cities’ economies, most likely, will collapse. Angeles City is already a ghost town because of the volcano.

But soon the servicemen’s money will be gone altogether.

The military lost millions of dollars a year in theft of government property and serivicer’s property—not to mention the loss of life of many servicemen. The move should be one of punishment and aid should be extremely limited when it becomes needed.—Mike Hoffman, sophomore in cinema.

Some abortions now version of cannibalism

While unborn babies bodies are being ripped and torn apart in abortion clinics, editorials in the world from the Daily Bll Bulletin can show the abuse that was caused by a group of doctors.

Bikes should yield to pedestrians just like motor vehicles

This past August, I started my first year at college at SIUC. I knew this would be a new experience, but I didn’t think battling my way to classes would be part of it.

I soon realized that if I wanted to make my way to class safely, I would have to wait and yield to bicycles.

Last week I was on my way to class when I approached a crosswalk on Lincoln Drive. I had crossed that crosswalk many times before but that day was different.

I had just stepped off the sidewalk when a bicyclist came speeding into the crosswalk, causing me to jump out of the way of a moving bike.

If we would have collided, I might have suffered a few scrapes and bruises, while the bicyclist might have been hurt even worse. Since this one incident, I have noticed that it happens frequently.

In the state of Illinois, bicycle riders are to yield to pedestrians just as motor vehicles do.

Because bicycles are treated like vehicles, I see all bicycle riders to take more precautions.

I am sure this would make all pedestrians feel safer.—Sergio Adams, freshman, undecided.

world he also started an enormous slave trade.

When Columbus landed on Haiti in 1492, he found the Taino Native Americans there to send back to Spain as slaves, Stumberg said. Forty years later, every single native on the island was dead.

"In a time like that we are celebrating today," Stumberg said. "This is the man who has started slaves across the Atlantic Ocean and began genocide against an entire race of people within 50 years."

Ted Braun, pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd, said celebrating Columbus Day perpetuates racism and theft.

"There are certain assumptions in Columbus Day celebrating that we should be left on the left side, it's okay for white people to disrespect people of color, it's okay for a powerful country to dominate a less powerful one," Braun said.

"Some people think this is a day of celebration, but for me, it is a day of solemn remembrance, a day of sorrow and a day when we make changes," Braun said.

Brad Hendershot, president of the Mid-America Peace Project, said the group has been planning the event since the beginning of the school year.

"In Washington, D.C. there's a commission that have a huge celebration of Columbus Day (next year)," Hendershot said. "We just felt something has got to be out there to counter it."

One of the goals of the event was to get people to think more about the accuracy of history, Hendershot said.

"We're trying to get people to educate themselves on Columbus and the true implications of 1492," Hendershot said.

He said as the 500th anniversary of Columbus' invasion/discovery of America draws near, MAPP will do work on this campus to provide speakers, films and cultural events with the goal of helping students understand the celebration of Native America.

"A lot of problems have come with that realization," Welchi said. "We might have just well pointed the finger at Adam and Eve."

The rally was sponsored by the Southern Illinois Latin America Graduate Committee, Friends for Native Americans, the Mid-America Peace Project and the Student Environmental Center.

The University is taking part this week in the eighth annual National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week, which runs Oct. 13 through Friday.

A major reason why alcohol is so appealing to underage students is the thrill from the risk involved, said Dr. Patricia M. Topping, coordinator for Mothers Against Drunk Driving in Illinois.

"Soft alcohol is available to many students and is so glorified by advertisers. It is no wonder there are so many underage drinkers," Topping said.

About half of the students at SIUC have either driven under the influence or ridden with an intoxicated friend, according to Topping.

In accordance with the Awareness Week, SIUC is sponsoring events such as educational displays and social activities that allow students to inform about the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse.

At SIUC, bars will be set up in the dining halls of the three main residence hall areas around campus with "mocktails," which are non-alcoholic drinks free to the students.

Today in the student center, stress and time management advice for students and a workshop dealing with the problem of D.U.I.'s will be held.

because they are not sure what the limits of acceptable behavior are when talking with women, Gaten-Robinson said.

Women are often socialized to believe it is a reflection on themselves if they make rude comments to men. Women may feel they have done something wrong when they make the comments they receive, she said.

Many women, especially those in the lower-class economic group, need their jobs and cannot afford to make trouble by complaining about co-workers or bosses, she said.

Sometimes men will take advantage of this vulnerability and make lewd or suggestive comments to female co-workers.

These comments are not interpreted by women as being seductive, Gaten-Robinson said.

They are threatening and embarrassing verbal invasions.

"Harassment isn't sexual," she said. "It's a form of violence.

Gaten-Robinson said if the allegations are true, Thomas' behavior is particularly offensive because of his position as head of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, which deals with sexual harassment laws.

She compared this to having the government's chief drug enforcement officer dealing narcotics.

Because Hill was an assistant to Thomas at the Department of Education and was dependent on him for good references to other employers, she may have decided to ride out any problems she had with him rather than start over somewhere else, she said.

"Thomas was in a position to help (Hill) in her profession or to throw her," Gaten-Robinson said.

Carol McDonnell, coordinator of social work services at SIUC, said sexual harassment is a form of abuse and Hill fit the pattern of many abused women by staying with Thomas, not confronting him with the problem and trying to make things work between them.

She said although the hearings are making the whole nation sensitive to the problem of sexual harassment, the situation should not be handled in the public forum. Highly emotional situations like this are best handled privately, and televised the proceedings is only hurting those involved.

"Both Thomas and Hill are victims of the process," McDonnell said.

The committee's hearings are educating people about sexual harassment, that is not the main purpose of the proceedings, she said.

crimes feel safe, but the program thinks the women who are going to testify in court.

"A lot of people who press charges are from other unique kinds of problems " said Janet Brown, vice president of the United Women's Center's state's attorney's office. The victim witness advocate is their support. They can call her anytime."

She said the $17,000 grant from the attorney general's office pays the advocate's salary. Brown and Mary Hughs, the victim witness advocate, make up the state's attorney's entire program. It is difficult to serve all of Jackson County with two people, but the money is not there to support expansion of the program, she said.

"We don't have enough manpower," Brown said. "We still need one more person."

PURFANT SUPER SALON The Ultimate Tanning Experience "The Tanning Salon of the 90s"
Pianist's winter show gets warm reception

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

Solo pianist George Winston brought the ears of a near sell-out crowd Sunday night at Shryock Auditorium, proving that piano music can transcend "O, my god, I'm sitting on a piano" to become a viable medium of its own.

The low-keyed musician was perhaps the most understressed person in the auditorium, wearing jeans and a long-sleeve shirt and performing in his socks.

Winston opened his "Winter" show with "Living in the Country," a piece from his new album "Summer." He followed with "Colors Dance," a selection from the album "Autumn." He extended the song far longer than it appears on the album. Embellishing and improving on the basic theme.

Winston used a grab-bag of interesting techniques as he played, muting the piano strings with his hand to create a percussive sound or plucking the strings like a violin.

The seasonal pieces captured the crowd easily, from the block strains of "January Stair" to . . . traditional Christmas favorite, "Carol of the Bells," which Winston transformed into a statement of evocative beauty.

Winston touched on childhood memories with his medley of two "Peanuts" pieces by composer Vince Guaraldi: "Linus and Lucy" and "The Great Pumpkin Waltz." He took the basic, hummable theme of "Linus and Lucy" and added harmonically complex, dissonant passages for contrast.

Winston captured the essence of the seasons in his performance, playing beautiful music that had an undercurrent of loneliness. His pianissimo, expressive style won over the crowd without becoming self-indulgent.

career fields led by educators, community leaders, professionals and SIUC students.

A career fair also will run in connection with the conference where students will be able to meet with representatives of various companies and organizations. Some of the companies will look to interview students on-the-spot.

Washington said that the leadership conference is timely and important for students who will soon be out in the workplace.

The leadership conference is not restricted to African Americans. It is open to high school or college students who are interested in developing leadership skills, Washington said.

Racism is ignorance and the only way to combat racism is through education, Washington said.

Getting experience overseas
Abroad fair to provide international work, study information

By Fatima Janekar
General Assignment Writer

International Programs and Services is coordinating its annual Study Abroad Fair Oct. 23 in student Center Ballroom A. where representatives from different countries will present tables with information on work and study opportunities abroad.

"The Study Abroad Fair is our biggest event for the year," said Shawn Clankie, graduate assistant at IPS. "Many students don't know about the options open to them for work, travel or study in other countries. The fair gives them a chance to talk to people who have lived or been abroad. SHUC students who have studied in a different environment and who have had experience overseas." These opportunities are available through programs arranged by IPS, Clankie said.

The booths will feature information about the SLU campus in Nagako, Japan and exchange programs with universities in Australia, France, Latin America, Spain, Austria, Germany, Scandinavia, Great Britain and the Netherlands.

Travel-study information about East Asia, Africa, Soviet Union and Eastern Europe and third world countries also will be available.

The Peace Corps also will display a booth. Anyone with overseas work or study experience who would like to assist with the fair should call Clankie at 453-7670. Admission to the event is free.

Romantic songs display flowery Chinese tradition

By Fatima Janekar

Chinese folk music scholar Jian-Guo Li filled the Old Baptist Foundation with the sounds of jasmine Sunday night through his music.

"Traditional Chinese folk songs are called Flowers," Li said. The "Jasmine" Flower folk song was carried by immigrants from Eastern China and is very popular in XiG-Hai province, where Li did his research.

The compositions of musical notes differ from region to region in China, Li said, through interpreter Alcina Liu, a graduate assistant at International Programs and Services, majoring in accounting.

Li said two types of "Jasmine" songs carry the same message. "Flowers are romantic folk-songs, symbolic of the love a young man has for a woman," Li said. "They are a direct expression of love. They can be sung by children, but most of the time the children who sing them do not understand their meaning."

Most of the music was primitive but had traditional significance. Many of the traditional songs used imagery, symbolism and nature to express their feelings, Li said.

"The different Chinese nationalities—there are Chinese, and Chinese Muslims, and others—perform folk-songs in their own languages or dialects, as it is only the Chinese and Muslims who speak Chinese properly," Li said.

"The Flower Festival allows the different nationalities to retain their own unique folk-songs, and at the same time they try to find a cross-point to understand each other. This cross-point is through "Flowers," and each "Flower" has its own characteristics," Li said.

Flute-like instruments, called "Kha," are used throughout China for musical purposes. The Chinese also use flutes, mouth organs, and reeds to make music. These instruments came mainly from western civilization. Arabic influence also exist due to a dominant Muslim population and from instruments that originated in Persia, Li said.

Smith got stronger as the game went along, Pachon on three days rest. Two times in his career, the 30-year-old left-hander worked out of jams in four of the first five innings, and was scheduled to retire nine batters in a row until Terry Pendleton tripled with two outs in the eighth.

Smith was relieved at that point by Roger Mason, who entered Ron Gant on a pop to end the inning.

The Braves weren't finished, however, and Mason struck out Justice to start the ninth, but pinch-hitter Tommy Gregg and Greg Olson hit successive singles to put runners on first and second. Mason then got Mark Lemke to hit into a forceout and got Jeff Blauser on a fly to right to end the game.

The Braves should have built a commanding lead over the first four innings, but they botched enough rudimentary plays to make any manager look to the heavens. After stunning a runner at second in the first inning, the Braves loaded the bases with none out in the second on hits by Brian Hunter and Lemke and a walk to Olson. After Rafael Belliard struck out, the Braves put on a suicide squeeze with a 2-2 count on Glavine, but it resulted in a double play when Glavine missed the pitch for strike three and Hunter was tagged out in a rundown.

That was nothing, though, compared with the embarrassment the Braves suffered in the fourth. Justice led off the inning by reaching second on an error by first baseman Gary Redus. Hunter then hit a chopper in front of the plate and when catcher Don Slaught tripped trying to field the ball, Hunter was safe at first.

This is the first year the Athletic Department will not sponsor the event.
Saluki Booster Club member Sadie Moutardier said the club and WCIL have tried to make the event bigger by giving it more publicity.
For the first time, former Saluki players will return to play for a scrimmage.
Before 1990, the scrimmage was held at midnight, but because the first day the team can practice fell on a weeknight this year and has, the event was moved to early evening, Moutardier said.
After the 20-minute scrimmage, the Booster Club and WCIL will present a video with clips on past and present players.
A 3-point shot contest and slam dunk contest for the 1990-91 Saluki basketball team will follow, and the team will play a scrimmage game at 8 p.m.
"The doors open at 6 p.m. and admission is free.

averaged 3.2 and 3.5 in 1990-91.
Scott said Heimstead will see more time at the off guard and small forward positions, and junior point guard Anita Scott will replace Heimstead as point guard.
Anita Scott, who was chosen for the U.S. Junior National Team last summer, said she was excited about the game's change of pace.
She averaged 3.1 points and 2.3 rebounds a contest.
"I like running the ball," she said.
"It is hard to explain, some players will handle the ball, I like to play at a faster pace."
Anita Scott said the team feels comfortable in running a full-court game because everybody is capable of playing it effectively.
"We mostly played this style in high school, so we are used to it," she added.
"It will shock a lot of our opponents this season, and we will really gain from this. It will be to our advantage to play a full-court game."
The team starts its season Nov. 23 at home against University of Illinois.
