Faculty pay up average of 5.2 percent

By Phillip Fiorini
Staff Writer

SIU-C faculty will receive a pay increase averaging 5.2 percent because of eliminated jobs and the downgrading of positions.

John Baker, executive director of planning and budgeting, said Wednesday that the administration knew "some time ago" the increase for faculty salaries would be more than 4.5 percent, which had been reported during the legislative session when the University's budget was decided.

"We didn't know what the actual average would be for the first time until last week," Baker said. He said the adjusted figure was given to the Board of Trustees. The extra salary increase beyond the original 4.5 percent will be reflected in September faculty paychecks.

President Albert Somit said that the extra money used for salary increases came from the elimination of a number of positions, or "collapsed positions." He said that the "downgrading of positions" throughout the University also made other funds available.

John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs, said that once a position has been eliminated, it is lost in "perpetuity." He said approximately six positions collapsed before the beginning of the fall semester.

Guyon said that when a position is downgraded, that means, for example, that a full professor is replaced by an assistant professor. Guyon said in some cases, that could mean the difference of about $15,000 a year.

Guyon said that many times a full professor retires and is replaced by another full professor in an effort to maintain the quality of a department.

Somit explained that faculty increases granted in July ranged from 1.75 percent to over 20 percent, and said that he was "pleased to be able to give about 125 faculty an increase of 10 percent."

"We agreed that 7 percent would go all across the board and everything above that would be for merit," Somit said. Concern over the salary distribution policy arose Tuesday when members of the Faculty Senate stated that faculty morale was being affected by the inequity in the increases for administrators compared to faculty.

Administrators received a 4.5 percent increase across the board.

"I don't know that faculty morale is any lower here than at any other institution," Somit said Wednesday. "But I think the loss of the salary position is a very real problem — for faculty, civil service workers and administrative and professional staff."

Somit said the fact that salaries lagged behind other universities goes back to the early 1970s when the University was hit by a severe recession

He said the problem has been "compounded" since then. A member of the senate, John Gregory, presented to the senate a letter Tuesday stating that 10 years ago, SIU-C ranked 102 out of the 162 in the nation among Category I schools, or those that grant doctoral degrees.

Gregory said that for the 1982-83 year, SIU-C ranked 159 out of 161 schools, according to an annual report on the economic status of the academic profession published in "Academe" magazine.

Before a 3 percent increase last spring and the current increase, the average salary for University faculty was $24,600 in 1982, Gregory said.

War against drugs may be hampered by lack of funding

By Jennifer Phillips
Staff Writer

Country life. Stretches of heat-scorched cornfields, plentiful parks and forests, the blending of a small-town atmosphere with university life.

Amid this seeming tranquility of Southern Illinois, however, flourishes an active illicit drug market which one undercover drug enforcement agency, the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group, has been battling for almost 10 years.

But in October, SIEG and six other Metropolitan Enforcement Groups statewide will watch their fate decided by the Illinois General Assembly.

The issue is money. On July 25, Gov. James Thompson vetoed $1.5 million in MEG funding for fiscal year 1984. SIEG was to receive $120,000. The General Assembly, in a veto session starting Oct. 5, may override the veto and continue financial support for MEG.

According to SIEG Director Dennis Bowman, MEG directors are optimistic. All have been lobbying heavily in their areas for support.

But if the veto stands, the outlook for covert drug enforcement operations in Illinois is grim.

SIEG operates with the participation of eight law enforcement agencies in four counties: SIU-C Security, Carbondale and Murphysboro Police Departments, the Jackson, Perry, Union and Williamson County Sheriff's Departments and, as one unit, the cities of Carterville, Johnston City, Herrin and Williamson County.

Each agency supplies personnel and shares resources with SIEG. Bowman declined to release the number of undercover agents working throughout the four counties.

If SIEG goes under, "it would have an adverse impact on drug enforcement efforts in the area," Bowman said. "Local law enforcement agencies don't have the resources in terms of finances or manpower for full-time drug enforcement. There is no one else to do it."

Bowman sees SIEG's role in Southern Illinois as vital because "there is a very substantial market for all types of drugs."

"When you consider the demographics of the area compared to the rest of the state," he explained, "the area is very attractive — it's isolated. Marijuana production is very profitable.

"We make a significant number of arrests and seizures."

In 1982, SIEG seized $980,000 in marijuana and $21,391 in controlled substances, which included cocaine and LSD.

There were 122 arrests made for 203 criminal offenses. The majority of offenses — 90 percent were felonies — were for delivery of cannabis and delivery of a controlled substance. The conviction ratio was 80 percent.

In the first six months of 1983, seizures included over $1 million worth of sensimilla cannabis plants, almost half an ounce of cocaine, 157 amphetamine tablets and over nine pounds of cannabis.

Thompson's rationale for deflecting the state money stems from the Drug Traffic Prevention Fund under the Narcotic Forfeiture Act, which he signed into law last year. The fund was set up to make MEG self-supporting and entitles the agencies to money gathered from illegal drug activity and invested in or maintaining property or other assets.

Bowman said he and other drug enforcement officials were surprised at the veto because no agency has received money yet through the act.

"It will take a minimum of two years before MEG can be almost totally supported by funds from the act," he said. The process of obtaining a conviction, then tracking down and obtaining illegal assets is time-consuming.

"First, you have to obtain a conviction and sometimes that can take a couple of years," he explained. "Then there are civil court proceedings to obtain assets."

It took the Kennedy Construction Co. of just south of DuQuoin fairgrounds to John A. Metropolitan four hours to transport the Purdy Logan College in Carterville, where the building Schoolhouse 28 miles on the Dillinger Road, from will go on display.

Old-time school goes to college

By Dave Saelens
Staff Writer

To residents along Dillinger Road on the outskirts of Carbondale, a schoolhouse is probably the last thing they would expect to see moving down the road. But anyone who looked out their window around noon Wednesday saw exactly that.

Traveling at the brisk pace of 6 mph, the one-room Purdy Schoolhouse topped the hills and rounded the hairpin curves of the winding road on its 26 mile trip from just south of the Du Quoin fairgrounds to John A. Logan College at Carterville.

Complete with police escort, the schoolhouse convoy was composed of a six-man crew from the Kennedy Construction Co. of Metropolitan hired by the John A. Logan College Foundation to transport the more than 100-year-old structure to a sight north of the main college building.

The caravan took over four hours to reach the college since frequent stops had to be made to allow the crew member perched atop the schoolhouse to lift telephone wires and saw off low branches which blocked the building's path.

The three day project began Tuesday when the schoolhouse was loaded onto the truck, continued Wednesday with the trip itself and will end Thursday when it is lowered onto the newly poured foundation.

Blanche Sloan, director of development for John A. Logan, said the crew had to obtain a special permit to transport the schoolhouse since buildings transported on state highways are normally allowed a maximum of 5 miles.

According to Sloan, the schoolhouse was donated to the college by Harold Rice, a member of the board of directors of a foundation that was aware of the college's interest in obtaining a schoolhouse.

Sloan said that after Rice purchased some property which had a schoolhouse on it, he donated the schoolhouse to the college.

Although the project began ten years ago, she said, it has taken this long to find the right school and collect enough money to pay for the trip.

Sloan said the college wanted to obtain the structure as a way of preserving the "one-room schoolhouse" type of early education in Southern Illinois.

She said that by transferring the school to the college, they can preserve the building itself, as well as put it to use.

"It's an attraction for school classes to come and see re-enactments of what a day in a one-room schoolhouse was like," she said.

Sloan said they plan to begin performing the re-enactments in one or two years using members of the college.

Attucks chairwoman requests more support from city council

By Patrick Williams
Staff Writer

Like a character out of a silent movie melodrama, Martha Farris, chairwoman of the Attucks Community Service Board, went before the Carbondale City Council Monday night to plea for more time to find the rent for its programs' offices.

Fearing setting a precedent of allocating money after budgets have been set, the council gave a compassionate, but lukewarm, reception.

At issue is an Attucks request for $20,151 to continue its social service program, pay the rent for the coordinated youth and social services program and fund a new creative arts program.

The unfunded rent amounts to $6,927 for the youth and social service programs.

The Attucks Board originally requested $47,906 from the city for 1983-84. When it received only $31,950, the board decided to maintain its services at the previous year's level and try to find other sources for the rent.

Attempts at finding other money have been unsuccessful, and the board is now faced with cutting services to pay the rent.

Councilman Patrick Kelley, although acknowledging the value of the services to the community, said, "I don't see the adoption of a budget that doesn't include rent and the failure to raise other money constitutes an extreme emergency."

Farris responded by saying that not funding the rent was a "strategy move" to keep the services themselves going.

Allowing Attucks to come back and get more money in the middle of the year threatens the integrity of the budgetary process, Kelley said.

Councilman Neil Dillard said he didn't see any problem giving the board 60, 90, or 120 days "to get things together" and find the other money.

Kelley, Mayor Helen Westberg and Councilman Archie Jones all questioned the wisdom of trying to start a new creative arts program while rent is unfunded.

The council finally voted to have the Attucks Board present them with the separate amounts needed for rent for the current and new program and to have the city staff audit the board's accounts.

News Roundup

Soviets refuse arms concessions

MOSCOW (AP) — The outrage generated by the Soviet downing of a South Korean airliner will not force Moscow to make concessions in the Geneva talks on limiting nuclear weapons in Europe, First Deputy Foreign Minister George M. Kornienko said Wednesday.

Kornienko in statements to a news conference, agreed with President Reagan's assessment that the negotiations will continue. But both stood pat on their governments' last proposals, and a Soviet spokesman added a new demand.

Regan and economist disagree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Underscoring his dispute with Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, President Reagan's chief White House economist said Wednesday the government's huge budget deficits are driving up interest rates and "doing very substantial damage" to American industry.

The views expressed by Martin Feldstein, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, in a speech before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, were dismissed by Regan in caustically worded remarks prepared for a separate meeting with automobile dealers.

School board to withhold merit pay

CHICAGO (AP) — A suburban school board whose district has been called an "academic graveyard" is planning to withhold merit pay from administrators unless their students start showing progress.

"We'll rate the superintendent, principals and other top administrators — give them report cards, if you will — on progress of pupils' scores and decide if they are worth merit pay," board President Thelma Demonbreun said Wednesday. "We think administrators are responsible for the academic climate of their buildings."

Lebanese hold strategic town

BEIRUT (AP) — Druse artillery set a Christian militia stronghold in the Chouf Mountains afire Wednesday, but the Islamic militia failed in another attempt to drive the Lebanese army out of a mountaintop town overlooking the U.S. Marine base in Beirut.

As Saudi and U.S. diplomats tried in Damascus to arrange a cease-fire in the 11-day-old resumption of Lebanon's civil war, Syria and radical Palestinian factions vowed retaliation if U.S. planes intervene in support of the Lebanese army.

The Druse artillery pounded Mechref, a hilltop stronghold of the Christian Phalange Party's militia 10 1/2 miles south of Beirut, with an intense barrage at midday.

Mechref overlooks the coastal highway from the capital to south Lebanon, and the Phalangists have a major barracks in a high school there.

Earlier Wednesday, the Lebanese army's U.S.-trained 8th Brigade held fast to the mountaintop town of Souk el-Gharb, which commands the U.S. Marine zone at Beirut's international airport.

Soldiers there said they defeated a three-prong Druse onslaught during the night, inflicting heavy losses in lives and equipment on the militia. It was the fourth day of attacks on the town, which also is within range" of President Amin Gemayel's suburban palace and the nearby residence of U.S. Ambassador Robert S. Dillon.

Since capture of Souk el-Gharb would give the Druse another position from which to attack the U.S. Marines, there was speculation that it could become the first test of President Reagan's new policy, announced Tuesday, allowing American naval and air support of the Lebanese army if an attack on it posed a threat to the Marines.

Navy seeks black box

By The Associated Press

The U.S. Navy began hunting Wednesday for the "black box" from the South Korean jumbo jet shot down by a Soviet interceptor over Sakhalin Island. Japanese searchers, meanwhile, found a still-ticking Mickey Mouse watch and part of the body of a fourth victim.

Currents in the Sea of Okhotsk have moved bits and pieces of the airliner south since the jet and the 269 people aboard went down Sept. 1. About 1,000 Japanese police and volunteers are searching the 240-mile long northern shore of Japan's northernmost island of Hokkaido.

The U.S. Navy tug

Narragansett began probing 600 to 900-foot depths off Hokkaido for the black box, which contains in-flight recordings that might provide more clues to the plane's fate. The box emits a pinging signal that can be detected by a special electronic device aboard the Narragansett.

Japanese officials said portions of a body were found Wednesday. Like three other battered bodies and three small body fragments found thus far, it was taken to a hospital morgue.

A local resident at Shari, on the eastern part of the Hokkaido coastline, found several pieces of debris floating together, including a still ticking Mickey Mouse watch believed to have been worn by one of the victims, police reported.

U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield went to the residence of Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone in Tokyo to thank Japan for its search efforts, and said President Reagan is expected to bring up the KAL tragedy again when he speaks to the U.N. General Assembly later this month. Japanese officials said.

Japan's Foreign Ministry summoned Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Pavlov and demanded compensation for the 28 Japanese nationals aboard the downed jumbo jet, but Pavlov refused to accept it.

Soviets update battle weapons

BRUSSELS (AP) — The Soviet Union is rapidly modernizing its battlefield nuclear forces in East bloc countries, adding new artillery and deploying sophisticated SS-21 rockets at a rate of four a month, NATO sources said Wednesday.

The SS-21, with a range of 75 miles, is a mobile surface-to-surface missile being phased in to replace Frog-7 missiles with about half the range, the sources said.

The Soviet Union is distributing new nuclear-capable artillery to its forces in Eastern Europe, including about 150 artillery pieces in East Germany, said the sources, quoting a new NATO report and speaking on condition they not be identified.

The report was part of an intelligence update given this week at a meeting in London of senior nuclear affairs specialists from most of the 16 North Atlantic Treaty Organization national delegations.

The sources said it was based on satellite observations and other intelligence-gathering means, which were not described.

The Soviet Union this year threatened to deploy nuclear weapons in Eastern Europe if NATO goes ahead with plans to put 572 new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Western Europe starting in December.

The Soviets also are building three new bases for mobile SS-20 nuclear missiles to be targeted on Western Europe while negotiating with the United States for reductions on both sides, Pentagon sources in Washington say.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger charged last spring that the Soviets actually have had nuclear warheads in East bloc countries for many years.

Rec Fest set for Friday; variety of events planned

By Debra Colburn
Staff Writer

The Recreation Center isn't just a place to sweat.

This may be shown Friday from 4 to 11 p.m. as the 5th Rec Fest takes place at the Recreation Center.

Kathy Rankin, recreation sports co-ordinator said activities will include a sampling of the usual events plus some special activities.

Horses from the Saluki Saddle Club will be available for students to ride. Students will also be able to compete in events such as three-on-three volleyball, an egg toss, table tennis, inner tube water polo and three-legged races.

Demonstrations of martial arts, diving, boxing, scuba diving and boxing will be given.

Rankin said the purpose of Rec Fest is to try to get people to look at the entire Recreation Center and to take a fresh look at what is offered there. She said Rec Fest is meant to reach people who probably wouldn't come to the recreation center otherwise.

Rankin said informal programs, that are not necessarily sports related, but are self-improvement activities, are available to users. Programs on physical fitness, smoking, weight control and yoga are offered regularly.

Base Camp owns about $30,000 worth of camping equipment that can be rented at an inexpensive rate, according to Rankin.

She said she expects about 7,000 Rec Fest participants this year. She added that at any one time during the evening, 10 or more events will be taking place.

The movie "Jaws" will be shown during the dive-in-movie event. Students will watch the movie from the pool and are asked to bring their own inner tubes.

Video art programs emerge as a multiple-use phenomenon

By Terry Levecke
Entertainment Editor

Video has emerged in the past decade as a medium of many uses — as a claim to fame for obscure bands through Music Television, as a cheap form of reproducing box office hits, and in its most unique form, as a prominent medium for artists.

The SPC Video and Fine Arts committees and the Graduate and Professional Student Council have combined efforts to present a "Video Art" screening this weekend, which concentrates on avant-garde and documentary video.

"They are unique films that you wouldn't see on TV or in the cinema," said Bjorn Reddington of SPC.

The screening consists of five videos that are varying in content, from utilizing video as an abstract art form to exploring it as a means of non-verbal communication to journalism documentary.

The presentation is unique in that these videos are usually shown in galleries. Reddington said.

"The Cadillac Ranch Show-Media Burn" is a 30-minute video in tribute to the rise and fall of the talfin. "Media Burn" provides a potent mixture of America's love affair with the automobile and its addiction to TV. The videos were produced by The Ant Farm Group, a San Francisco-based group that has worked in architecture, sculpture, performance and media from 1968 to 1978.

"Five Short Works" exhibits the works of Dara Birnbaum, a New York-based artist with degrees in architecture and painting. She began working in video in 1978. Using the formal devices of repetition, dislocation and altered syntax, Spencer Tracy gives the performance of his life as the aging political boss who tries for one more term. This loving elegy, that perceptively forecasts the rise of the mass media as a political force, captures the warmth of a more graceful, stylish time as it is being replaced by a more efficient but less human age.

Nam June Paik, an innovator of Video Art, sets up an exhibit.

Pirbaum's videos dissect, invert and reconvert broadcast television. She implements rapid-fire imagery and high energy pacing to comment on our media-induced view of the world.

Nam June Paik, born in Korea and educated in Japan and Germany, has been credited as the pioneer of Video Art. His work includes multi-television sculptures on which several sets of images are projected on the various sets in specific patterns.

In "Global Groove" Paik demonstrates how video may be used as a non-verbal means of communication to promote international understanding. "Portrait in Heat and Light" by Bill Viola won the Grand Prize at the Portopia International Video Art Festival in 1981. Viola describes his works as "visual poems."

The first American television journalists to visit Vietnam since the Americans withdrew in April 1975 captured the country and its people on film in "Vietnam: Picking Up the Pieces" by John Alpert and Keiko Tsuno.

These five films will be shown at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the Student Center 4th floor video lounge. It's free. The screening is the first of a two-part series. Reddington said he would like to see Video Art become an ongoing feature if it is successful.

Fast food restaurant may gain council OK

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

Despite objections coming from almost every side, the City Council indicated Monday night that it will approve a special zoning request for a drive-up fast food restaurant on South Illinois Avenue.

The request for a special use permit for a 24-hour Naugles Inc. restaurant with a drive-up facility will come back to the council at next Monday's formal session, and council members indicated they will vote to approve it.

The Planning Commission voted to deny the request with a 5-5 split vote, and city staff and Councilman Keith Tuxhorn voiced concern about the effect the restaurant would have on traffic on South Illinois Avenue.

But other council members said the restaurant would be a benefit for the area.

"I think the positives outweigh the negatives," Councilman Neil Dillard said. Councilmen Patrick Kelley and Archie Jones agreed.

Most of the opposition stemmed from a drive-up lane that Naugles, a California-based national chain of Mexican and American fast food restaurants, builds on all of its facilities. Planning commissioners said they feared a problem with cars stacking up at the drive-up lane and causing traffic congestion.

Naugles real estate representative Jan Buedel said that though most Naugles restaurants thrive on drive-up business, they are anticipating that at the Carbondale site they will do most of their business in walk-up sales. At the St. Louis Naugles there is a smaller drive-up space and less parking than at the proposed Carbondale restaurant and have no traffic complaints, she said.

Larry Havens, of Havens Realty, said the restaurant will generate about $1 million a year and would pay about $4,000 in sales tax to the city. In addition, the business would create about 20 jobs, he said.

"We do feel we have an excellent business for this location," he said.

Donald Monty, director of community development, said the principal staff concern is the use of drive-up at the location.

"Our concerns are with the impact of traffic flow," he said.

But Kelley said that he didn't think the traffic problems would be great.

"The problems with traffic are overblown," he said. "I think they are minimum downside risks."

Kelley and Jones said the restaurant would be an asset because it does not sell liquor.

"I think we need more businesses that are not dealing in liquor. I think in the long run this will be an asset to South Illinois Avenue," Jones said.

Kelley agreed saying, "It's not a bar. It's going to have some beneficial effects on South Illinois Avenue."

Yearbook copies may be picked up

By John Racine
Student Writer

Students who have purchased the 1983 Obelisk II yearbook may pick up their copies next week on the third floor of the Student Center near the south escalators.

Nearly 2,000 copies of the 288-page edition arrived last Friday and will be distributed from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. through next week, said David Jolly, director of business operations for the yearbook.

Students will need identification to pick up their yearbooks, Jolly said.

About 40 extra copies of the yearbook will be available for $21.95 each. All sales of extra copies will be made at the yearbook office, located in the green barracks, Building 0846.

According to Doug Janvrin, editor-in-chief, the yearbook contains stories on lifestyles in Carbondale as well as many tightly written and professionally produced pieces on the years' events.

"We have an overall coverage of the campus and its happenings," he said. "We have photos and articles on events such as Halloween, homecoming and Spring Fest." Coverage of late-year events such as Spring Fest is a first in the seven-year history of the yearbook.

In the past, the yearbook has been produced, published and returned to students by the end of the spring semester, said Christ Cordogan, yearbook general manager.

Looking ahead, Cordogan said that the 1984 yearbooks will be sold for $20 per copy to students. "With the purchase of the yearbook a student will receive a coupon book worth $103 in trade with local merchants."

Morris Library wins grant

A $25,000 basic improvement grant was given to Morris Library from the SIU Foundation.

The funds will be used to purchase books and equipment, said Morris Library Dean Kenneth Peterson.

Foundation President Stan McAnally said the grant was possible because of an increase in unrestricted gifts from alumni, corporations, foundations and other groups. During the fiscal year that ended June 30, the Foundation received cash contributions of more than $1,864,000, which is an 8 percent increase over the previous year.

Fund forms are due

Applications from dependents of civil service employees are being accepted now through Nov. 30 for financial assistance during spring semester. Aid will be provided through the Education Assistance Fund.

Civil service employees whose dependents will apply are required to give a minimum contribution of $90.

Law student elected to ABA post

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

Gale Thetford, a third-year law student, was elected to the American Bar Association's House of Delegates at the ABA's annual meeting this summer in Atlanta. Thetford is one of two delegates representing the 50,000-member Law Student Division.

"My election was quite an honor," she said. Her position will help her personally and will increase the reputation of SIU's Law School, she said. "I hope to bring the views of law students before the House of Delegates, while addressing the substantive issues before the bar," she said.

Thetford, a member of the Law School's national moot court team, said her election as a delegate was a lengthy process. She had to file a notice of intention, a statement of candidacy, and a resume. At the ABA summer meeting she and the other eight candidates made speeches to the Board of Governors and went through four days of round-robin oral examinations.

A 1974 SIU-C English graduate, Thetford has been involved with the ABA on the local and circuit level since she started law school here in 1981.

Gale Thetford

She served as the SIU delegate to the Law Student Division for two years as the coordinator of the Seventh Circuit fall roundtable of the ABA in 1982. She also was the Region 5 coordinator for the National Appellate Advocacy competition held at SIU-C last spring. For these activities she received the Silver Key award for service and leadership to the Law Student Division of the ABA.

Thetford is currently a research assistant for law professor David Johnson. She hopes to go into legislative lobbying or corporate litigation law after she graduates and passes the bar.

Thetford said she was surprised at her election to the ABA House of Delegates. There were only two women among the candidates, and when the first new delegate announced was a woman, she thought she had no chance. "I was surprised that two women were elected, but we were as well or better qualified than the rest of the candidates," she said.

She said that it appears today that ABA offers as much opportunity to a woman as it does to a man. "It's all based on qualifications and competence." She also said that the law school admissions process should be modified to allow for differences in cultural and educational backgrounds. Academic records are a better indicator of success in law school than the LSAT, she said.

Thetford, 31, is also the mother of a 7-year old boy, but has no trouble juggling school work, her assistantship, and her responsibilities at home. "It's all a matter of time management," she said.

Recreational data on file at L.E.S.

Liz Meyers
Staff Writer

Is there a place in Carbondale to find information about antique collecting or bird watching?

According to graduate student in recreation Chris Dillard, the answer is yes, and that place is the Leisure Exploration Service, located across from the weight room in the lower level of the Recreation Center.

There are other things for people to do with their leisure time "besides sweat," explained Dillard, one of two graduate students in charge of L.E.S.

Leisure Exploration is a three-part service designed to inform students on local recreational events.

"First of all it's an information service," Dillard said. This service lets students find information about the endless alternatives available for their free time.

"We have files on everything for people who want to go climb a mountain or want to play Frisbee golf," Dillard said.

LES offers data about all current events happening on campus, and in the community. "We also have expanded our maps for all over the United States," Dillard said. "If someone wants to take a trip to St. Louis or the Rocky Mountains, we have files on all these areas."

The files include historical sites, landmarks, geographical information and places where campers and backpackers can stay.

Another aspect of LES is the Outreach program. "We go out to residence halls and show slides of areas in Southern Illinois and what LES has to offer," Dillard said.

Dillard said that the goal of the Outreach program is "to hopefully inspire people to come over and use the service."

Ron Strieker, the other grad student who jointly heads the recreational service, conducts the third phase of LES, which consists of recreational workshops.

Topics covered in these workshops include time management, values clarification and leisure time alternatives. Strieker's informal sessions are intended to help students take control over their lives and are conducted in a counseling format.

"A unique aspect of LES," Dillard said, "is we're one of the only facilities on campus in which all of the student workers are volunteers."

LES accomplishes this by offering a field group study for students, Dillard said. "Here students in any major can receive two hours college credit for working in the office."

"Students can learn about LES by participating in the group study," Dillard said. "They can also learn about Outreach and the workshops, and after that, even conduct both programs if they want to."

The service is promoting itself with the character, "LES" which appears in comic strip advertisements dressed for various forms of recreation. A live version of "LES" will be debuting in costume at Rec Fest '83 on Friday, Dillard said.

"LES is going to tell people there are more things in the program than hiking, canoeing and backpacking," she said. "By always dressing differently, such as a ballerina at a ballet performance, the character will inform people that the Leisure Exploration Service has lots of things to offer."

The LES satellite, a portable station with recreational files and some maps, will be set up at the climbing wall area from 6 to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

"This will allow people to use our information at night too," Dillard said, in addition to the office hours of 2 to 6 p.m.

LES was previously housed in the Student Life Office and was founded in 1977 when "people from the recreation department, the Wellness Center and the Recreation Center decided to get together and form a recreational resource for students," Dillard said.

SIEG's operating budget for 1982 was $250,000 and was the same for 1983, which Bowman said included agents' salaries, even though they're paid by the agents' departments. Bowman's salary is paid by the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement, where he worked as a special agent.

Part of the money is spent on undercover drug purchases. In 1982, a total of $23,572 was spent $15,313 on controlled substances like cocaine, LSD and amphetamine and $8,259 on marijuana and hashish. There was $4,207 in drug purchases during the first six months of 1983.

Restitution is paid back by defendants for drugs sold to undercover agents but the money is not due until the end of their sentences. Therefore, Bowman said, there are several thousand dollars in outstanding restitution.

Bowman said the amount received from a forfeiture case could exceed $50,000. Eventually, a minimum amount in assets might be required before MEC can claim it and MEC is pushing for about a $20,000 minimum, he said.

While he has cut back a little on the administrative end and is "prioritizing operations of investigations," Bowman said he hasn't cut the number of undercover agents.

He does believe MEG can eventually become self-supportive.

"It's an excellent law," he said of the forfeiture act. "I don't think Thompson's anti-MEG."

Bowman was appointed SIEG director in January, replacing Richard Pariser, who headed the agency since its start in 1974.

As he nears his first year in the position, he said there are two goals he has been trying to realize.

First, he is trying "to insure utilizing sufficient resources in drug enforcement and expose major distributors and penetrate the top echelon.

"That doesn't mean we exclude street dealers. All investigations start at street level," he said. "But we're trying to work up through the ranks to get at the top people."

Second, he wants to make sure all agencies contributing resources "are getting their fair share for what they're putting in," he said.

"We're an extension of local law enforcement agencies and we need effective cooperation. Our main purpose is to provide drug enforcement response to participating agencies."

Inaugural ball to honor volunteers

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization is hosting an inaugural ball to recognize and honor the leaders of Registered Student Organizations.

The ball will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 23 in the Student Center.

Mary Chybicki, USO public relations director, said the dinner and dance is intended "to give a pat on the back to student volunteers who give out so much time and effort."

The USO sent out over 4,000 personal invitations to the ball. University administrators and housing officials, as well as officers and advisers of the RSOs were invited said Chybicki.

However, Chybicki said the affair is not limited to those who received invitations. All interested persons are invited to attend, she said.

The attire for the affair will be semi-formal, according to Chybicki. The program will not include a keynote speaker, she said.

This is the first time a recognition dinner for USO volunteers has been held. Chybicki said she would like to see the event become an annual affair, but added that next year's USO administration will eventually have to make that decision.

The cost to attend the ball is $7.50 per person. Chybicki said those planning to attend who have not yet bought tickets should contact the USO office at 536-3381 by 3 p.m. Friday to make reservations.

Trains crash; two killed

SULLIVAN, Ind. (AP) — A northbound freight train today smashed into the rear of another freight stalled on the tracks, flattening its caboose and two other cars and killing two crewmen inside, authorities said.

Three crewmen in the locomotive of the oncoming train received minor injuries in the 6:30 a.m. accident on the Seaboard System tracks between Sullivan and Shelburn in southwestern Indiana.

"We understand there were two fatalities and I've heard of several injuries," said Charles Castner, a Seaboard spokesman at Louisville, Ky. Castner said both trains were heading north for Chicago, one from Florida and the other from Nashville, Tenn.

One train had been stopped for nearly an hour because of an air leak when it was hit in the rear by the second train, officials said.

Three locomotives of the oncoming train ran over the caboose, crushing it and the men inside. Two other cars were also crushed as the heavy locomotives went up and over them.

offense isn't coming around like we thought it would be," Lohr said. "The offense had an 80-yard drive in the first game and a 96-yard drive in the second. I'm not sure what the problem is, maybe we're pressing a little bit too much."

Returning quarterback Jim Prestwood hasn't lived up to expectations so far. Last year, the left-hander threw for over 1,400 yards while completing almost 52 percent of his passes and was named to the All-MIAA second team.

This year, Prestwood has completed only 15 of 42 for 235 yards, one touchdown and six interceptions.

Marvin Johnson, last year's leading running back, has 112 yards on 28 carries. Junior Simpkins has gained only 40 yards this year, but he has averaged 5.0 yards per carry on eight carries.

Split end David Stewart was an All-MIAA second-team pick last year, and leads the team this year with five catches for 77 yards.

Returning starters Chip Forte, tight end, and John Boly, punter, have caught four passes between them for 55 yards.

The offensive line is led by returning center Alan Schmidt, who was another All-MIAA second-team pick last year.

Sam McCord returns to start at left guard, while Chuck Cox moved from his backup center role of last year to the starting right guard position this year.

Redshirt-freshman Dennis Sievers will start at right tackle and John Carr, a part-time starter last year, will start at left tackle.

Defensively, the squad is a veteran group. All five linemen started at least part time last year, the two linebackers have experience and the secondary has only one new starter.

Ken Ptacek and Rich Steinmetz will start at the ends, while Jerry Thompson and last year's nose guard, Jerry McNulty, will be at the tackle position. Ronald Thompson will be at nose guard this season.

Linebacker Ken Harmon is back after missing most of last season with a knee injury. As a sophomore in 1981, Harmon received honorable mention All-MIAA honors. Sophomore Jay Wittenborn, who gained a starting berth toward the end of last year, is the other linebacker.

Timbo Jones, who had two interceptions in the Indians' season opener, will be at safety. Jones has 23 tackles already this season.

"Timbo has played well for us this year," Lohr said. "He's played exceptional."

Ken Bolden, who claimed a starting spot last year, and Lawrence Prothro will be cornerbacks.

Frank Parrish, a part-time starter last year, is at rover. Parrish has 10 tackles.

The punting spot is held down by sophomore Todd Fields, who had the second-best average (40.3) in the MIAA and 11th-best in the NCAA Division II last year. This year, Fields has averaged 41.7 yards per punt, with a 59-yard punt being his longest.

Senior Steve Williams will be SEMO's place-kicker after doing some punting and place kicking last year. Williams has connected on a 53-yard field goal this year, but has missed on his two other attempts from 39 and 48 yards out.

Facing the fifth-ranked I-AA team in the nation is tough for any team, and Lohr knows it.

"This will be a great challenge for us," Lohr said. "The Salukis have great balance on their ballclub."

Lohr said balance is important and he is trying to obtain that for his squad.

president of Campus Services, the memo made exemptions for parking lots beside the stadium to allow the consumption of alcoholic beverages on the day of the game.

"Over the years the campus policy against drinking on campus has varied with individual situations," Dougherty stated. "People, though, should be much more aware of their responsibility to clean up after themselves."

Dougherty said he does agree that tailgating helps promote and encourage more fans to attend the football games, but he hopes more would make their way into the stands once the game has begun.

Many tailgaters, though, have an interest in the football game and the tradition of tailgate parties. Keven Treece, promotions director of WCIL radio, was one of them.

"We set up our table with food and Pepsi about ten this morning," he said Saturday. "We had been giving away tickets during the week over the air and inviting people to our tailgate party. It's a good idea and part of the spirit and excitement the home opener brings out. Tailgating never seemed this popular in the past. People seem to accept it as a more popular idea now."

Saluki men's Athletic Director, Lew Hartzog agrees that tailgating helps promote the social aspect of football. But he admitted his displeasure in the large amount of students who stayed close to their tailgates and away from the football game.

"Tailgating is traditional all over the country," Hartzog said. "But I'm opposed to it if it keeps the fans from going to the game. Why students, staged such a large gathering out there (in the parking lots and on the hill) during the game I don't know. They missed a heck of a football game."

Hartzog, too, was disturbed by the heavy amounts of debris scattered outside the stadium when the tailgaters went home.

"It's disgraceful," he said. "It's not drinking I'm opposed to. If they're of drinking age, then I'm not against that, but if they want to just stand around and drink beer and miss the game, I can't understand that. Heck, they can stand around and drink beer anywhere and any time they want. I hope they'd be interested enough that they would come in and watch the game."

On the east side of the stadium, the older, more traditional tailgate parties take place. Hartzog said these fans put aside their food and drink in time to see the opening kickoff, and many continue after the game is over.

One aspect the athletic department is considering to prevent so many fans from standing outside the stadium looking in is putting a tarp along the fences on the north and south sides of McAndrew.

Hartzog said he hopes this would bring more fans into the stands.

Not all of the tailgaters were going to miss the game, though.

Steve Franks was celebrating his 22nd birthday several friends hanging from the tailgate of a pick-up truck. With a large, full glass of beer in hand, Franks, a senior in architecture, said they'd been out since seven in the morning.

"This is our second year coming out for a tailgate party," Franks said. "It seems more organized than last year. More people are out here drinking and having a good time. No, we're not worried about the stands falling in, but we're going to watch the game, probably from the lower sections."

With another home football game Saturday, it's the early bird that catches the best spots to tailgate, and the true football fan who catches the game.

Missouri, as does the entire team.

"We (Boyd and Cummins) want to show them what they missed out on," she said. "I'm showing them what they didn't get. That's one reason the rivalry built up, over the recruiting."

"We're really up for the game. There will be a lot of good volleyball this weekend, and winning will take a lot of hard work. But we can definitely do it. We'll have to play good ball, though."

But what's the bottom line, will the Salukis beat Mizzou? "You know it," Boyd said. Missouri comes into the tournament 6-0 after sweeping the Kansas Invitational last weekend. SIU-C is 2-3, but somehow records don't seem important weighted against the emotional factor of the match.

If the Salukis can be said to have one leader, it would have to be Boyd. She leads the team in kills, solo blocks and assisted blocks and totes a .333 attack percentage.

A pleasant surprise for Hunter this season has been the maturation of sophomore Darlene Hogue, who has exploded for a .342 attack percentage and has added some punch to the team's aggressive serving game.

Life goes on after the Mizzou match, though. Texas A&M is a foreboding factor in the tournament, a team already edging into the Top 20 polling. The Salukis take on Mississippi Friday night, and battle it out with A&M Saturday.

Thursday and Friday are Ladies' Night, with all women admitted half-price and the first 50 women each night receiving a Tom Selleck volleyball poster. Saturday is the Saluki Football-Volleyball Special. Anyone retaining a ticket stub from the SIU-C football game will be admitted free to the Saluki volleyball match with Texas A&M.

Faculty and staff bowling under way

By John Sierra
Student Writer

Faculty and staff began another bowling league season Monday with eight teams, five members to a team.

"The league is for people to have a good time," said Henry Villani, manager of the Student Center bowling alley.

The league is co-ed, has existed for 21 years and is open to graduate students, Villani said.

Villani is the secretary-treasurer of the league. Bill Horrell, retired professor in the Cinema and Photography Department, is the league president and Michael Payne, an assistant professor in the School of Technical Careers, is vice president.

The league will continue for 24 weeks. It is sanctioned by the American Bowling Congress and the Women's International Bowling Congress.

Weekly fee for the league is $3.50, which covers a secretary's fee and a fund that is used for individual and team prizes at the end of the season.

About 6,000 notices were sent out about the team at the beginning of the school year, Villani said.

Gridders face old foes

By Jim Lexa
Staff Writer

Some things remain the same — or at least one face remains the same.

The last time Southeast Missouri State and SIU-C played each other in football was 1955. That year, the Indians defeated the Salukis 7-0 in their season opener en route to their last undefeated season, which they finished at 9-0.

SEMO Coach Jim Lohr was co-captain of the 1955 SEMO squad and was voted the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association's most valuable lineman that year.

"It's a whole different ballgame now than it was back then," Lohr said. "Ballplayers then used to play both ways, offense and defense. Now, they'd revolt if they had to play both ways."

Before the SEMO-Saluki

football series was discontinued, the Indians had won 24 of the previous 31 games, with three games ending in scoreless ties. The Salukis managed just four wins during that 24-year time span. The two teams played each other twice in nine of the years.

SEMO leads the overall series 31-18-8.

"They (the rulemakers) were just starting to platoon in football," Lohr said. "There were all types of substitution rules. The rules would last for one year and then get changed."

At one point, Lohr said, the players would have to check with the officials whenever they came into the game. That is in contrast to the defensive and offensive units on the field that the fans have become used to seeing.

"It was a friendly rivalry," Lohr said. "We always played harder against them because we didn't want to get beat by people we knew. It was a very good rivalry."

Lohr said he is glad that the series is being resumed, but he would have liked to see it start again under different circumstances. SIU-C is 2-0 and ranked fifth in the Lexington Herald-Leader NCAA I-AA poll.

SEMO is 0-2 after losses to Murray State, 25-11, and Central Arkansas, 23-7.

Last year, SEMO finished strong with four wins in its last five games, ending the season 5-5-1. This year's squad has 18 returning seniors, and SEMO fans had reason to dream of a winning season.

Lohr said that one of the problems his team has had so far this season is the inability to maintain a drive.

"I'm disappointed that the

Spikers ready to settle score

By Sherry Chisenhall
Sports Editor

Editor's note — This is the second of two articles previewing the Eighth Saluki Volleyball Invitational, which opens at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Davies Gymnasium and continues through Saturday.

Laws of physics state that when two forceful objects collide, one must give way. If so, it follows that something will have to give in Thursday night's genuine dog-and-cat fight between the SIU-C spikers and Missouri Tigers.

The Salukis and Tigers have more scores to settle than the Hatfields and McCoys. No one can say exactly when it started, but the rivalry has brewed to full steam and will peak Thursday when the two teams meet in the opening match of the tournament.

"Emotions will be running high, so crowd support will be important," Coach Debbie Hunter said. "The match will be really exciting, and I expect a lot of long rallies."

"It will be an evenly contested match, which will make it difficult. That's what's going to make it exciting."

Mizzou is the defending champion of the Saluki Invitational, a crown that has managed to elude SIU-C since the tournament's genesis in 1975. While the Tigers boast the title of the Saluki tourney, SIU-C holds the championship of the 1982 Mizzou Invitational over the Tigers' heads.

Since Hunter has led the team, the schools' series record stands at 4-4. SIU-C owns the most recent win, though, after they disposed of the Tigers 15-9, 15-11, 15-9 in the Missouri tournament last season.

SIU-C has been the runner-up in its own tourney four times in seven years, and Hunter said her team has the equipment to finally claim the title.

"We can vie for the chamionship," she said. "We're playing the proper foundation now to be strong and competitive, especially at conference time. We won't do anything we have to just to win the tournament, because we'd still rather see everyone play."

"We can keep up with the faster action of the Missouri game, though. They can't play any faster than Western Michigan did last weekend, and I was pleased with the way we handled them defensively."

Tourney schedule

Thursday
SIU-C vs. Missouri 7:30 p.m.

Friday
Missouri vs. Texas A&M 5 p.m.
SIU-C vs. Mississippi 7:30 p.m.

Saturday
Texas vs. Mississippi 12 p.m.

Mississippi vs. Missouri 2 p.m.
SIU-C vs. Texas A&M 4:30 p.m.

"It will take the consistency factor to beat Missouri, whether its serving, passing or attacking. We're making an effort to minimize errors and control the ball as much as possible. We need to control our actions and our side of the court."

Several factors have contributed to the growth of the rivalry, including recruiting competition between Hunter and Mizzou Coach Mike English.

The Salukis' junior middle blocker Chris Boyd, who was recently selected as the first Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference Player of the Week, was heavily recruited by the Tigers. SIU-C setter Lisa Cummins, who was invited to compete in the National Sports Festival over the summer, was also courted by Mizzou.

Boyd said she and Cummins have scores to settle with

Traditional pre-game partying still going strong on Saturdays

By Joe Paschen
Staff Writer

"A night game at LSU is a great party spectacle. Most tailgate parties start a few hours before the game. At LSU, they start Thursday afternoon."

Beano Cook — ABC-TV college football commentator.

It's 6:30 on a Saturday morning in Southern Illinois. The only sounds to be heard around McAndrew Stadium are the birds chirping in the trees. Suddenly an old pick-up truck comes rumbling toward the double-deck parking lot adjacent to the stadium. The truck makes its way to the southeast corner of the upper deck lot. Several fellas jump out and stake their claim.

If it's the SIU-C Veterans Club, this must be Carbondale and it's got to be game day.

Like so many traditions that go along with college football, one that is an unshakable tradition at SIU-C is the Veterans Club tying their banner over the wall where they spend their Saturdays when the Saluki football team plays at McAndrew.

Several more arrive to join the other vets, the first keg of beer is tapped and the tailgating has begun for another fall.

Tailgating is as much a part of college football as players waking up with butterflies in their gut. As much a part as cheerleaders cheering, marching bands playing, and crowds stomping their feet to the excitement of the game.

But before the game begins there are preparations to be made. The coaches go over the plays, trainers scurry around taping players as they get dressed, radio and TV stations set up their equipment. And fans roll out the tailgates.

By 11 a.m. the Student Programming Council and WDB radio have set up two turntables and a couple of large speakers under the trees north of the stadium. The music blares out to the many pre-game partiers who have begun to set up their food and drink, and the band plays on.

Several more trucks, vans and cars have moved into the parking lot, setting up shop. Hundreds more walk over from on-campus housing. Three hours before the game there are an estimated 500 or more students and alumni north of the stadium alone. "This is part of campus life," said Jim Ozols, a Vet's Club member. "I went to the University of Tennessee and they didn't have these many people tailgating. People drank up in the stands there. Here, the parties stay outside the stadium. And the university people have been very cooperative."

Richard Ervin is another member of the Vet's Club. "We get together to enjoy each other. We bring out a keg of beer or two, watch the game and just have fun. We tell stories and cheer the team on. In between we like to drink beer. We police our own people and always clean up afterwards."

Ervin brought up a major problem tailgating presents: garbage left after all the food has been eaten and all the beer has been drunk. The area north of the stadium, where the largest groups of tailgaters congregated Saturday prior to the home opener against EIU, is where the largest mess was left.

The official campus policy on tailgating was issued in a memo Sept. 10, 1980. According to Dr. Clarence Dougherty, vice-
