Police Officers look toward the backpack of SIU senior Anne Coleman shortly after she was struck by a car while crossing Douglas Drive on her Friday afternoon.

Student killed in crosswalk collision

BRETT NAUMAN  DAILY EAGLE

An SIUC student was killed Friday after she was hit by a car while riding her bicycle through a crosswalk between the Arma and the College of Applied Science and Arts building.

Anne F. Coleman, 26, was on her way to her job in the Dental Hygiene department where she taught. Her bicycle was struck shortly before 2:30 p.m. by a vehicle driven by SIUC student Anna D. Dierg, Coleman, a Darien native, was pronounced dead when the arrived at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale minutes after the accident.

Her friends said she had just left her Neely Hall room before the accident occurred. SIUC student Theo Morris, Coleman's boyfriend, said Thursday was their anniversary and he had bought her eight red roses, representing each month they had been dating. Although the pain is overwhelming, Morris said his final conversation with Coleman left a happy memory fresh in his mind. “That was the first time we said that we loved each other,” he said. “I think we all knew that she was the one that makes it easier for me.”

The only other detail about the accident that comforted Morris is that his girlfriend died instantly and didn’t suffer.

SIUC Police have cited the driver, Dierg, for failure to reduce speed and failure to yield to a pedestrian in a crosswalk.

Television legends bring sunshine to Shryock

Simon classic to take center stage tonight

SARAH ROBERTS

Two television legends will bring the work of one of America’s greatest playwrights to Shryock Auditorium at 7:30 tonight.

Dick Van Patten and Frank Gorshin, who starred in “The Sunshine Boys,” Neil Simon’s classic about the great American tradition of vaudeville comedy and a poignant story of friendship and reconciliation.

Van Patten and Gorshin star as Lewis and Willie Clark, a retired vaudeville duo who shared the stage for 43 years. Lewis now, on his married daughter’s front porch listening to the silence of the suburbs, while Clark watches endless soap operas and reads the obituaries of old showbiz cronies in his shabby New York hotel room. The two haven’t spoken in 11 years, but find themselves suddenly paired once again when Clark, a talent agent, nephew convinces them to star in one final television appearance.

This marks the first time that Van Patten and Gorshin have worked together, but their comic abilities make them a natural team, according to Monica Heuser, an unhappy in the play and the stage manager assistant.

“They play off each other wonderfully,” Heuser said. “They’re very precious to one another on stage, allowing each other’s punch lines to really come through.”

Van Patten is best known for his role as Tom Bradford on “Eight Is Enough” and has appeared in the Mel Brooks movies “Spaceballs” and “Robin Hood: Men in Tights,” Gorshin, a noted impressionist, starred as The Riddler on the “Batman” television series and regularly performs in Las Vegas and Atlantic City. And their familiar faces get an immediate response from all audiences.

“As soon as the audience sees each guy on stage, they applaud,” Heuser said. “People just love them for them, and they bring some of that to every role.”

Despite their impressive resumes and years of entertainment experience, Van Patten and Gorshin still face certain challenges in bringing the show to life, such as silent the fast-paced and certain vaudeville mustaches.

“There’s a lot of fast back and forth juggling and canned laughter that makes this show a real challenge,” said Gorshin.

LET THE SUNSHINE IN!

Tickets are $54 and can be purchased by calling 651-7070. Starting at 6:15 p.m., one hour before the show, tickets will be sold for students and senior citizens.

Walker's vision puts SIU on steady course for the future

SIU President James Walker unveiled his vision for the University Friday, and formerly cemented his place in the lore of our storied history. Walker outlined his broad vision during a speech on the SIUC campus Thursday. Though it will take time for the University to address its long-term needs, Walker's vision is a thorough assessment of SIU, which hits every key nerve of the University. His No. 1 priority is SIU's image.

Grappling with the University's image problem will surely define our president as a leader. The plan for hiring a marketing firm to construct a campaign to lift SIU out of its "party image" persona will help him in that difficult task.

In this age of "public relations," why not take advantage of an outside source? The University has done so in the past with respect to improving the campus' aesthetics and the design of a new logo for our mascot.

Walker's vision also includes the creation of 30 presidential scholarships for high school students in excellent academic standing. These scholarships, to be offered at more than $5,000 per student during the 2002-03 semester, will help increase enrollment and do a great deal to improve the school's image.

Since taking office nearly a year ago, Walker has looked to strengthen relations between SIUC, SIU-Edwardsville, and the School of Medicine in Springfield. A proposed task force is charged with achieving this goal. Unlike previous presidents who have shown favoritism to one campus over another, Walker has shown a continued commitment to the entire institution.

The choice of former SIU Trustee Bill Norwood to head the task force is a smart one. The SIU alum is known and respected across campus circles. Another newly formed committee — the 2020 Vision Committee — will keep SIU on top of changing trends in higher education in the United States and abroad.

SIU cannot make these plans happen by itself. Students, faculty, staff, local businesses and the three campuses must all unite to make this vision a reality. President Walker has called upon the entire SIU community to join him in this first giant step in his young presidency.

The vision he outlines is not just his alone, but one for the University as a whole. Our campus should be impressed with Walker's swift and succinct diagnosis of the University's ailments in such a relatively short time.

The University community is standing with you President Walker as we all have a stake in how we're viewed across the state and the nation. Your leadership will be the key in solving any image problem that the University has, and your vision may very well be the formula to correct it.
America will rise up together

Dear Editor:
The violence that we have warded off for many years in Kosovo, Israel, Lebanon, and Iraq has now come home to us. It's time to rise up together.

The president and Congress are both committed to bringing those security to our nation and in the process, to bring together a nation that is a sanctuary to all. We are going to bring our nation together.

Misleading headline distorts truth

Dear Editor:
I am writing in response to the September 18 headline which read "Someone arrested in murder case." The headline should have read "Student arrested in murder case." The headline was misleading and could cause confusion. More information is needed to understand the context of the incident.

America, missed opportunity

More than three weeks after the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, our nation's leaders continue to seek ways to address the challenges we face. It is crucial that we do not lose sight of the opportunities that have been created.

We must continue to work together to ensure that the American people have the right to be free from fear and that our country's values are protected.

I believe that in the aftermath of these attacks, we have the opportunity to come together as a nation to rise up together.

Alzheimer's
walk a success

Eighth Annual Memory Walk reaches goal

BETH COLDWELL
Daily Egyptian

When Louise Golliher's husband died with Alzheimer's disease nearly 22 years ago, she wanted to focus her energy on helping others try to cope with it.

She was able to find a way to help through working with the Greater Illinois Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association.

Golliher is one of hundreds of supporters of the Alzheimer's Association who contributed to the Eighth Annual Memory Walk around Campus Lake Saturday morning.

Louise Golliher thinks this type of walking works with Alzheimer's in Southern Illinois should be educated about the resources available to them because the disease can be difficult for both patients and caregivers.

So many people need help," Golliher said. "Some don't even know our organization exists, but we can help them and they can help the organization."

Judy Ellet, director of the Carbondale office of the Alzheimer's Association, said the national walk is an important time to recognize the impact of Alzheimer's.

"It is in honor of the people who have Alzheimer's, but it is also to help people put a positive spin on it," Ellet said. "We want people to cope and help people adapt.

According to Ellet, the Greater Illinois Chapter receives 75 percent of its revenue from the Memory Walk. Part of the revenue remains in Southern Illinois to fund 19 support groups and a hotline to help families and patients cope in emergencies.

Donations received at the walk are also used to aid continuing research for a cure. The group reached their goal of raising $60,000.

Those who participated in the walk were able to honor loved ones by bringing pictures of them and posting them on the Memory Walk. Several pictures of people who are currently suffering or have suffered with Alzheimer's were displayed on the wall at one of the informational tables at the walk.

"This was a hard year to walk because of all the events that happened right before," Ellet said. "I think people were there because they really cared.

occurred. The bicycle was struck under­neath the vehicle and the windshield was smashed. Coleman's backpack was on the ground in front of the vehicle where a pool of blood had collected.

Chancellor Walter Woodford said the accident was terrible and that it brings up the issue of campus safety, which he said he would look into.

Feelings of mortality were brought back to the 16th floor of Neely Hall, where Coleman and 'many of her closest friends live. In the time since the accident, the reality of it all continues to hit Morris more and more.

"Part of me feels like I've been stopped," Morris said. "Someone dear to me was taken."

In her first days at the University, Coleman met Morris as they were both on traveling to church the Sunday before classes began. They went to worship together and quickly became close friends.

"Almost overnight there was something there, that was something between us," Morris said.

Both were older students trying to focus on their schoolwork and had many common interests.

Meanwhile, Coleman met Liza Alvarado. Both came to SIUC at the same time Coleman had one of those contagious personalities Alvarado could not resist becoming friendly with.

"If you were angry or you were sad, she felt so much of your pain, she took your pain away," she said. "She was one of those people in your life who you know you only get one person like that."

When news of Coleman's death reached her, Alvarado felt like she was in a dream-like state. The two friends used to go shopping together all the time, because they both loved sales.

They would also follow each other from the Chicago area where driving down Interstate 57 to SIUC. "She'd call me on my cel phone and tell me to stop speeding," Alvarado said. "Stop making her go 85 mph."

Alvarado, now the Student Resident Assistant on the 16th floor of Neely, said the reality still hasn't hit her yet. She said she'll miss Coleman's "cute voice" and the reverting smile always plastered on her face.

"It still hasn't settled in yet," Alvarado said. "It won't settle in until we don't see her on the elevator or hearing her laugh.".

Two friends often stay up late at night making fun of people on television, drinking vodka and Kool-Aid concoctions and singing songs off the radio together. But the good times are only memories now.

Following the accident, Morris waited at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale for her girlfriend's mother, JoAnne Coleman, who lost her husband four years ago and must now deal with the loss of her child.

All Morris could tell the grief-stricken mother was that he loved her daughter, helped move some of her belongings out of her dorm room the next morning so the family could take those items. The family is currently making funeral arrangements in Earien.

Morris said he will continue to finish going to school at SIUC because his girlfriend would have wanted him to. Morris said all of her friends know Coleman wasn't the type to want them to grieve too long over her.

"She wouldn't want us to be down," he said. "It's hard, but time will heal."

The most perplexing thing for

"It still hasn't settled in yet," Morris said. "Even though I would want her here, I could never give up the hope that God is taking the woman she loved."

"She's in a better place now," Morris said. "I'm still not angry at anyone and doesn't question his faith in God for taking the woman he loved."

Salukis split in conference action

Volleyball team goes 1-1 this past weekend

CLINT HARTING  DAILY EDITION

Inspiration lifted the Saluki volleyball team to its first Missouri Valley Conference win Friday against Western Illinois University, but Southwest Missouri State swept all the Saluki attack on Saturday.

The Salukis were at 1-1 in the conference, dedicated their match Friday evening to the memory of their coach, Gary Kemner's great-grandmother. SIU rallied with victory to close out Saturday at 3-0, 25-20, 25-22. Kemner, who finished the match with 14 kills and a .518 hitting percentage, was proud of her team's performance.

"On a personal level, the match was very important," Kemner said. "We played it out, and I really appreciate it.

Davies Gymnasium also provided the well-needed inspiration, as SIU football players rode on the Salukis on the side of the court and the Fighting Illini danced 810 College Superfan took care of the other side.

Saluki head coach Sonya Locke noted the loyal support of the Superfans, a group of five students who have become a staple at all SIU home matches, sporting various costumes and props.

"They have a theme every time they come," Locke said. "They are just really supportive, and we really appreciate them."

Salukis lose in final seconds

Murray touchdown in final minute negates comeback, denies Salukis first win

Jay Schmar

Saluki moments are often the difference between winning and losing football games. The SIU football team is still attempting to master those critical turning points, and it failed to do so on Saturday.

The Salukis, led by quarterback Scott Childress, started off strong and led Murray State 17-10 at halftime. But the Racers came back in the second half, scoring touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters to win 24-20.

The game had begun eerily reminiscent to the Salukis' first game against Murray State in September, when the Racers and Salukis both scored touchdowns in the first few minutes of the game. However, the Racers went on to dominate the game, leaving the Salukis with a 2-1 overall record.

SIU's defense, which had been strong in previous games, struggled against Murray State's powerful offense. The Racers scored on their first possession of the game, and SIU responded with a field goal. However, in the second quarter, Murray State scored two more touchdowns to take a 17-3 lead.

The Salukis tried to come back in the third quarter, with Scott Childress completing a pass to wide receiver Marcus Christon for a 7-yard gain. However, Murray State's defense held firm, and the Salukis were unable to score.

In the fourth quarter, Murray State continued to dominate, scoring two more touchdowns to secure the win. The Salukis struggled to keep pace with the Racers, and the game ended with a final score of 24-20.

The Salukis are now 2-1 on the season and will face their next challenge against Eastern Illinois University on Saturday, September 26. The game will be held at Saluki Stadium and will be a crucial test for the Salukis' defense and offense.
