SIU officials to present salary case to IRS

By Sue Roll
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU administrators will present the University's case concerning administrative salary increases before the Wage Stabilization Board of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) in Springfield Tuesday.

Representing SIU at the hearing will be Harold Fischer, chairman of the Board of Trustees; Ivan A. Elliott Jr., trustee from Carmi; C. Richard Grunty, board legal counsel; T. Richard Mager, SIU-Carbondale legal counsel; and John Paul Davis, SIU-Edwardsville legal counsel.

Earlier this month, the IRS notified the board that salaries paid to four University administrators were in violation of the nation's wage control regulations.

The salaries in question are those of David R. Derge, president of SIU-Carbondale; John S. Rendleman, president of SIU-Edwardsville; James

M. Brown, chief of board staff; and Robert G. Layer, former president of SIU-Carbondale for the salary he received while president.

Derge will meet with Springfield IRS officials Thursday, according to William Lyons, board information officer.

The pay raises amount to increases of about 18 per cent for Brown, Rendleman and Layer. Derge's salary of $50,000 was an increase of about 32 per cent. The standard increase allowed by the pay board is 5.5 per cent.

Previously the board justified these increases by saying that if these increases are lumped together with pay raises for faculty and staff, they fall within the 5.5 guideline.

Various campus groups, including the Carbondale Moderation of Teachers, have taken issue with this logic and have heavily criticized the board's action.

Health aide predicts 50 per cent VD rise

By Sue Millen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A 50 per cent increase in venereal disease is expected in Jackson County during 1972. Willard Roux, epidemiological aide for the Jackson County Health Department, said Monday.

Roux said 200 cases of VD have been reported for the first four months of 1972. "These are serious epidemic conditions," he said. "Last year we had 405 cases, now in a third of that time we have half that number of cases and many more being reported."

He said one of the reasons that cases have increased is his full-time investigations. "I came here in May, 1971, and until my arrival Jackson County had not had a full-time VD investigator," Roux said.

New health department estimates show about 800,000 women in the United States are unaware they are infected. Other statistics show that Illinois ranks third nationally in reported VD cases.

"It is interesting to note that when I call on people who have contracted VD on their source of contact, I find a multiple number of other cases along with the original two," Roux said.

Roux said Jackson County has many chronic VD repeaters who get cured only to get infected again—as many as four times per year. "Often these people infect as many as five or six people a week," he added.

Roux said SIU has had its effect on the total number of cases reported, but the percentage of VD cases from non-students is equally high.

"Students are more willing to seek out treatment, get cured and be done with it, while non-students seem more ashamed of the disease and try to conceal it," he said.

Roux said he would rather have a high number of reported cases than the same number cases unreported. "You have to remember that the figures will get higher before we can really control VD, since we have to treat the present cases first, to prevent it from spreading," he added.

Roux, who assists the SIU Health Service with VD cases, said, "Most students are pretty cooperative when they realize that everything they tell us is strictly confidential."

He said he wanted to emphasize that the Public Health Department isn't trying to pry into people's lives, but only want to get treatment for those who have been infected.

Roux commented on the fears that some students have concerning the report that is sent to the state. Many felt that a similar report is sent to their homes if they are under 21.

New proposal plan submitted

Student health fees could go up

By Sue Millen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A preliminary proposal which would increase student health fees from $4.15 to $25 a quarter has been sent to the Student Health Consumer Council and the Student Senate for approval before it goes to President David R. Derge and the Board of Trustees for the final okay.

Prepared by Donald DuBois, a consultant for the comprehensive health service, the proposal was submitted to the Health Advisory Board (HAB) for discussion. The project which was originally scheduled to be implemented by fall quarter was delayed until January 1973 because of a difficulty in the fee structure, according to Mary Walker, project co-ordinator for the HAB.

Mrs. Walker said that if the project were to be implemented fall quarter the new fees would already have had to be approved.

"I think the general planning for the proposal also took longer than had been anticipated," she added.

Under the tentative proposal, the "No report of any nature is sent to anyone besides Springfield health officials," Roux said. "In fact, we bend over backwards to protect our clients privacy. All reports are strictly confidential," he added.

"The cure," Roux said, "is a relatively simple procedure. It's just finding all those who are infected or possibly might be, that presents a problem." The treatment for VD, in most cases, is a penicillin shot or treatment with a drug call Vibranvacin.

Two of the most common types of VD are gonorrhea and syphilis. However, there are several other types of VD which can be spread through intercourse. The most common of these is known as non-specific urethritis. This disease produces a discharge in men. Women, who are usually the carriers of the germ, have no symptoms. If this condition is not cured it can lead to disease of the joints, eyes and inflammation of the sex organs, Roux said.

Other less common VD conditions include: trichomoniasis, TV, candidiasis (trush), skin rashes, ulcers of the sex organs, and discharges.

TV is carried by the male and he is usually unaware that he has it. Trush usually produces symptoms of soreness

Health Service would provide diagnostic, therapeutic and specialized care from any Carbondale doctor, if needed. The original proposal, which also included coverage for medical expenses outside of Carbondale, had to be omitted.

Mrs. Walker said that this was omitted because the fees would have had to be raised to $120 instead of $75 per year. An essential section of the proposal assumes that the Health Service will be able to increase its staff from five full-time and four part-time physicians, to the equivalent of 15 full-time doctors. Mrs. Walker said she was pretty sure the physician-demand would be met.

The new proposal also provides for 30 days hospitalization per disability. Students could stay for 15 days at no cost in the Health Service. Presently only 10 free-of-charge days are permitted. Extended stays will cost the student $17 for a private room and $15 for a ward bed, per day.

Pharmacy supplies will be charged a flat rate, with prescriptions costing $1.50 and injections and immunizations $1, under the proposal. The current fee for X-rays will also be abolished and laboratory procedures will remain free of charge.

Gus Bode

Gus says he wonders if there is any connection between the proposed increase in health service fees and the predicted rise in VD cases.

Judicial review board Faculty Council topic

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
A proposal to form a five-member judicial review board to assist faculty and administrative-professional staff with grievances and ethics will be discussed at the Faculty Council meeting at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Illinois Room of the Student Center.

The proposal calls for four of the members to be faculty—one from each faculty rank—and one from the administrative-professional staff. A chairman would be chosen from and by the five members. Meetings would be closed. A report would be made by the chairman after review of a grievance.

Another proposal concerning a professional code of ethics will be discussed. The code would be similar to the model written by the American Association of University Professors.

Both proposals are a portion of a three-part plan presented by the faculty status and welfare joint standing committee. The first portion, a new grievance procedure, was approved at the April 11 meeting. According to the campus governance document, if the council does not act on the board and ethics proposals they will become effective Wednesday.

Discussion on the possibility of forming a panel to examine the question of mailing facilities for the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT) is scheduled. In March, the CFUT was informed by the administration that the organization will no longer be allowed to use campus mail for distribution of its newsletter. Garth Gillan, CFUT president, filed a grievance with the president's office. The CFUT also asked the council to form a panel to hear testimony concerning the grievance. The panel would then make a determination on the grievance.

On another CFUT matter, the council is expected to discuss the election of faculty representatives in collective bargaining matters.

Elizabeth Eames, representative for the committee on the status of women of the AAUP on the Affirmative Action Task Force (AATF), is expected to present a proposal in which a high ranking faculty woman would be appointed with authority over the affirmative action program for women. She would report directly to the president's officer and would have exclusive jurisdiction over the complaints and compliance for women.

Flood plain construction halt on city council agenda

A moratorium on all "permanent alteration" of the flood plains of the Little Crab Orchard and Pyles Fork creeks will be discussed and acted upon at the Tuesday night meeting of the Carbondale City Council.

The moratorium would go into effect immediately and be in force until the adoption of a new city zoning ordinance by the council. That ordinance is now being compiled and is expected to come before the council by June.

Little Crab Orchard Creek flows through the extreme western portion of the city, while Pyles Fork Creek drains from the eastern portion of Carbondale.

Concern has been expressed by councilmen and private citizens over damage to the environment which might occur as a result of construction on the flood plains.

The council will also review the proposed utility fund budget at the 7 p.m. meeting in City Hall.

or itching. All of these conditions can be cured if treated early.

A pamphlet handed out by the Jackson County Health Department—VD the Facts—says that because the germs live in the sex organs and die very quickly away from the heat of the body, a person can't contract VD from lavatory seats, towels, bed clothes, door handles or dirty cups.

The discovery of penicillin as a cure for VD has made treatment easier and the cure faster. However, because the disease is somewhat hidden it is still considered by health officials to be a dangerous disease.

Undetected VD can cause serious illness and even death. Roux asked that any students who have VD symptoms or think they might possibly have contracted VD should make an appointment at the Health Service to be tested.

The symptoms for gonorrhea in the male and female vary. In the female the germs travel up the sex passage and breed in the opening of the womb. At this stage it is difficult to know the germs are present because inflammation of this part is hardly ever painful. The discharge caused by the germs mingle with the normal healthy secretions and can pass unnoticed.

Sometimes these germs cause inflammation of the bladder and pain when urinating—this may be the first noticeable sign of a gonorrhea infection. If not treated the disease may spread into other parts of the body. One of the first parts affected will be the tubes through which the egg cells travel to the womb. At this point severe pain and sometimes fever will be present—if not treated the women may become sterile.

The male symptoms for gonorrhea set in about two to 10 days after the germs have entered the body. This causes a burning sensation with a yellowish discharge when urinating. If not treated, sterility, swollen joints and general ill health may result.

• Syphilis, the more serious of the two major types of VD, has somewhat different symptoms than gonorrhea. It affects the male and female in much the same way. The first sign is a painless sore or chancre, that usually appears three to six weeks after contact. The chancre is infested with syphilis germs which can infect the smallest crack in the skin of anyone coming in contact with them.

In a man the sore is easily detected, but as is the case with gonorrhea, the chancre may be hidden in the sex passage of the woman, thereby making her unaware of the disease's presence.

After days or weeks the sore disappears on its own. Without treatment the disease will spread throughout the blood stream to all parts of the body.

After a few weeks the germs may cause skin rashes, fever, a sore throat or loss of hair. This is the secondary stage of the disease and these symptoms usually go away without treatment.

However, by that time the germs have affected the brain, the nervous system, eyes, liver, heart and nearly every other part of the body.

In this stage the germs will live for years, active but unnoticed. Eventually they will weaken, damage and cripple almost every organ of the body and may even cause paralysis, blindness, insanity and death.

Women who contact or have gonorrhea during pregnancy can cause the unborn child to have serious eye diseases or even total blindness. If the mother has syphilis the child may be born diseased or dead. All these conditions can be cured if treated early.

Syphilis requires a longer cure period than gonorrhea. However, if the disease is found in the first two stages it can be cured. If left untreated until the final stage germ damage cannot be repaired. Following the treatment tests are taken to make absolutely sure the disease is treated, he said.

Treatment for VD can be obtained through the family physician, the local hospital and clinics and the Jackson County Health Department. The Health Service runs a VD clinic from 11 to 3 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Roux said two common misconceptions about the disease concern immunity. "VD can be caught repeatedly and a girl can be infected if she is on the pill," he added. "Anyone who feels that they are too ashamed to get treatment for VD should remember that it is an even greater shame not to get treated," Roux said.

Case amendment passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted Monday afternoon to cut off all money for all U.S. forces fighting in Indochina on Dec. 31, if Hanoi returns all American prisoners.

The vote on the amendment of Sens. Clifford Case, R-N.J., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, was 9 to 1, said Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairman. He added that Senate action on the proposal is expected next week.

The committee acted after hearing Secretary of State William P. Rogers describe the bombing of North Vietnam as essential to the protection of American troops.

'Orphaned' bikes seek their proper owners

By Barry Cleveland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Bicycle thefts are a well-publicized way of life to students and staff alike on the SIU campus. But bicycle recoveries take place, too, with 38 "orphaned" bikes now in possession of the SIU security police.

The bicycles, haphazardly arranged in the musty basement of the ancient Security Office, have been accumulating for quite some time awaiting identification by their owners, Ed McCue, assistant security officer, said Monday.

They come in all styles, brands, colors and conditions: some are well-made, multi-speed models ready to roll, others are ancient rusty relics stripped of gears or tires. All lack owners and SIU registration.

Although the incidence of bike theft on campus is fairly high, it is rare that people come to the Security Office to claim a bicycle, McCue said.

Not many people have registered their bicycles' serial numbers with security police, an act which would make identification after recovery much easier, he said. Nor has the public responded in numbers to the availability of electric engravers for inscribing identification numbers on bikes and other articles.

"We're pretty sure these bikes belong to someone still on campus, and we're anxious to get them back to their owners," McCue said.

In order to claim a bicycle, the owner should go to the Security Office, furnish a serial number for the bike or identify it through a description. Even if the serial number is unknown, providing the owner is able to recall distinguishing marks or characteristics of his bicycle he may recover it, McCue said.

Persons who have reported their bicycles stolen and have neglected to report the serial number should do so as soon as possible to facilitate recovery, he said.

Candidates to speak this week

Candidates for the positions of president and vice-president of the student body and for student senator seats will be speaking at various places on campus throughout the week according to John Conlisk, chairman of the Student Senate Elections Committee.

Conlisk said Monday that he encourages students to attend the meetings if they intend to vote in the April 26 general Student Government Elections. He released the following schedule of appearances:

Tuesday—Independent executive candidates Thomas Johnson and Jan Takehara will hold a press conference said to be of "monumental importance" to their campaign at 4 p.m. in the Activities Rooms of the Student Center.

Wednesday—The Fraternity Executive Council will sponsor a meeting featuring the executive candidates at 6 p.m. in the Alpha Gamma Rho House, 116 Small Group Housing. All of the candidates will be invited to speak with a question-and-answer period scheduled if time permits. Also on Wednesday, Larry Roth, candidate for Brush Towers student senator, will sponsor a walk through the district to begin at 1 p.m. at East Park Street and Campus Drive.

Thursday—Majority Party

executive candidates Wade Huggens and Mike Lewis will sponsor an all-night "flashlight vigil" to begin at 6 p.m. in front of Morris Library. The purpose of the vigil is to protest poor lighting on campus.

April 23—All candidates have been invited to speak at Thompson Point at 8 p.m. in Lentz Hall, dining room 3.

April 25—All candidates have been invited to speak at University Park at 8 p.m. in Trueblood Hall.

Why fight it?

A much misconstrued subject lately is the topic of Women's Liberation. The cry of "Male Chauvinist Pig!" can be heard from Sacramento, Calif., to Syracuse, N.Y., from housewife to working woman. Chauvinism is defined as "fanatical patriotism." Taken in that sense, a male chauvinist pig is a man who carries his loyalty to the male sex to an extreme.

Why is it that so many men are afraid to admit that Women's Liberation is a good thing? Are men afraid that a competent and liberated woman will hurt their virility? Does a woman who refuses to remain barefoot, pregnant and silent threaten a man's ego?

Women make up around 35 per cent of the work force in America. Of the 17 million married women in this country who work outside of the home, 10 million have children under the age of 17. The average male employe in America earns $6,610 a year, while his female counterpart earns less than half, $3,157.

The adage "Equal pay for equal work" apparently does not make much difference in modern day America's concept of the working woman. The professions where women are in great demand, such as nursing, do not offer enough pay incentive to be attractive to women hoping to support themselves or their families. The professions which do pay well for women, modeling for example, require such little intelligence and self-satisfaction as to be demeaning to an educated woman.

Men seem prepared to jump on the Women's Lib bandwagon where minor issues are at stake. Lighting cigarets and holding doors are matters of common courtesy and should not even enter into an intelligent discussion of Women's Lib. Granting concession in such things is comparable to winning the battle but losing the war. The big victories are yet to come and are the ones that really count.

Women's Liberation is not really a war. No sides need to be taken; no troops readied for combat. Rather, it should be a coalition. Men cannot exist without women and vice versa. And women can only be as liberated as they wish to be. After all, someone has to be the Chief and someone has to be the Indian.

Once men realize that allowing women to hold down equal jobs with equal pay, not have children if they desire, and live independent lives outside of the home will not affect the male ego or virility, the coalition can be formed.

No one in this world can live without someone else, and men and women need each other—for more than just sexual pleasure. The Women's Liberation issue can only flourish on understanding and respect between men and women. Perhaps after this is obtained, the shout of "Male Chauvinist Pig!" will be stifled and the salute "Madame President" will be given.

Letters to the editor

Gay Lib ripoff

To the Daily Egyptian:
Several days ago, I spent two hours posting announcements of the then forthcoming Gay Liberation meeting. The next morning as I walked to my first class, I noticed that all the leaflets I had posted on the Lawson Hall bulletin boards as well as most of those I had posted outside on light poles had been ripped down.

This phenomenon of ripped-down Gay Lib posters has occurred on the SIU campus as long as Gay Liberation has attempted to post them.

One afternoon several quarters ago, a friend and myself began posting Gay Lib announcements in the Student Center and covered the entire campus. When we returned to the Center later, almost every poster we had put up was gone. We sat near one of the few remaining posters and waited. In a matter of minutes a rather scrawny young man walked by and with a crusader's zeal ripped the leaflet off the wall.

My friend, a full-bearded, long-haired, muscular gay brother, ran after the self-appointed public morals censor and pinned him against the wall.

"What are you doing?" my friend demanded. "Don't you know people spend time and money to get these signs put up? Do these posters disturb you that much? How unsure of your own sexuality are you?" The antigay zealot never found any words to reply.

Ask yourself. The next time you reach out to rip down a Gay Liberation meeting announcement—an announcement which may have been valuable in reaching a gay brother or sister struggling with the honest acknowledgement of their own sexuality—stop and ask yourself: Why does that small sign bother me that much?

U.S. Bureau of Acceptable Casualties

By Arthur Hoppe

Some experts feel the current escalated fighting in Vietnam may doom Mr. Nixon's plan to Vietnamize the war. Perish the thought. It's only a temporary setback.

Mr. Nixon's plan, as you know, is to withdraw our ground forces and let the Vietnamese go on killing each other—with only our bullets and bombs and napalm and planes to help them.

The plan was going extremely well. Thanks to stepping up our bombing attacks to the highest level of the war, we were killing upward of a thousand Vietnamese a week, while losing only a half dozen GIs plus a pilot now and then.

This was well within acceptable limits. For, after all, few Americans care how many bullets, bombs, napalm and planes we expend. What they care about is how many friends and relatives get sent over there to be killed.

So no one was talking much about the war any more. And Mr. Nixon was predicting confidently that it wouldn't even be an issue come November.

Then the North Vietnamese attacked. We had to rush carriers and B-52s and troops into the battle. Our casualties have soared. Suddenly, the war's an issue again. It looks bad for Vietnamization.

Fortunately, however, the solution is at hand: Project Dehumanization.

The project is the brainchild of General Homer T. Pettibone (retired), the Director of the U.S. Bureau of Acceptable Casualties.

The heart of the project is the Fully Automated Bombing System, known as FAB.

Actually, work on FAB has been underway in Vietnam for the past three years. It began with the scattering by aircraft of small, delicate sensors capable of picking up and transmitting the noise and vibration of trucks and transport along the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

These have now been refined to detect the heat or movement of two or more human bodies, one water buffalo or half an elephant.

By homing in on these devices, our pilots have been able to blow up trucks, transports, human bodies, water buffalo and elephants even on the foggiest of moonless nights.

The second advance, now being perfected is the automated take off, aerial maneuvering and landing of our bombers without a human hand at the controls—a feat long within the range of our technology.

All that remains, says General Pettibone, is to tie in the giant computers now being installed. They will digest the information from the sensors, select the targets, launch the pilotless planes and release the rockets, napalm or bombs at precisely the correct instant—all by remote control.

"Project Dehumanization," says General Pettibone proudly, "will completely eliminate the human factor."

Its prime advantage, of course, is that it will allow Mr. Nixon to withdraw all U.S. troops and pilots as well. Our casualties will be cut to zero. Target date for the Project is, hopefully, the California June Primary or, at the latest, the opening of the Presidential campaign in September.

Asked about the Vietnamese, General Pettibone said that by eliminating our human error through Project Dehumanization their casualties should be tripled.

"But actually," he said, "our Bureau feels anything over 2000 casualties a week would be acceptable."

The political imagemaking industry has now formed its own trade group, the American Association of Political Consultants, and brought forth its own quarterly, Politeia. The formula upon which these specialized public relations practitioners base their business is set forth in the title of an article by Roger Ailes, a New York operator who served as producer and director of Richard Nixon's live TV campaign in 1968: "Candidate plus Money plus Media equal VOTES."

This bedrock premise is now accepted uncritically by the presumably independent political commentators who cover the campaigns. For them the big news lately has been George Wallace's successful projection of a strident, Populist image as the champion of the little man. Their appraisal of the effect on the Democratic primaries has been made largely in terms of the extent to which Wallace has reduced the prospects of the other contenders for obtaining the money they require to command the media.

There are actually three images involved in this exercise—the one the candidates and their handlers package as suitable for TV, the one accepted by the reporters as the prevailing stereotype that enables them to readily place the candidate in the left-to-right spectrum and the image actually perceived by the voters as they look through the lenses of their own instincts and prejudices. It seems clear that these images did not coincide in Wisconsin.

There the Lincoln-esque TV portrait of Ed Muskie as a man who can be trusted, and therefore should not be questioned, left the erstwhile front-runner a bad fourth, a position so far back it may signal the effective end of his expensive campaign.

Wisconsin was acknowledged as the end of the road for John Lindsay, the prototype WASP, whose backers relied on his striking media image to overcome the fact that he is a recently-converted Republican known to the country at large only for his failures as mayor of New York.

And the big winner turned out to be George McGovern, whose image, it had been generally agreed by the wiseacres, came through the TV tube with all the appeal of a dead flounder. The earnest, indefatigable candidate the correspondents wrote off as decent, honorable, manly and intelligent, but hopelessly deficient in charisma, racked up his opposition right across the board—rallying impressive support among farmers, workers, suburbanites, ethnics, the young and even crossover Republicans.

George McGovern's hardest job has been to fight off the unearned stigma of defeat conferred upon him by the media long before anyone had a chance to see how he actually would look on the campaign trail. This was the basis of the blitz by Muskie's backers when they promoted a bandwagon rush of Democratic leaders on the basis of pre-primary opinion polls. In the straw votes Muskie, with a name made familiar by a recent national campaign, was bound to fare much better than the relatively unknown senator from South Dakota—but the advantage did not hold when real votes were cast by those who actually had occasion to compare both men, and look over the rest of the field.

To some degree in New Hampshire, and overwhelmingly in Wisconsin, McGovern usurped the healer's role claimed for Muskie. On the basis of votes cast to date, he stands out as the one candidate capable of inheriting most of the Democratic support now divided among the surviving contenders. There is no evidence that this applies to Hubert Humphrey, the man McGovern now has to beat, who is kept in contention by old personal loyalties but must run under the handicap of polarizing memories of his Vietnam campaign on the coattails of Lyndon Johnson.

In Wisconsin the pattern of McGovern's support challenged the assumptions of the image-builders on two central counts. It appeared to show that the widespread disaffection that now reaches all classes and groups has shifted the so-called vital center of the political spectrum well to left of the point where they had plotted it. And it also seemed to indicate that the voters cannot be diverted by pretty pictures on the TV screen when they encounter a man who insists on exposing his record instead of concealing it—and does so by stubbornly talking about issues rather than personalities.

If McGovern can maintain his Wisconsin pattern in other primary states he is on his way—and Richard Nixon is in trouble.

Anderson, Nader praised

To the Daily Egyptian:

Contemporary society is characterized by an influx of complainers and reformers. They all have one thing in common: emotion without motion.

We have our environmentalists who speak of upgrading our natural habitat from their air-conditioned and smoke-filled offices; our Women's Lib advocates who cry mercifully and brahms for equal rights; our liberalists who shout vehemently against regulation of anything and then we have the Jack Andersons and the Ralph Naders.

These two men are chronic complainers and reformers who back up their emotional appeal with kinetic motion; that secret element mandatory to any effective change.

Washington columnist Jack Anderson is a political muckraker. He actively prys, exposes and divulges. And when the keyboard on his typewriter starts clicking, certain people start running. And with good reason. Anderson's electrifying column explodes with the frightening facts.

Ralph Nader, America's foremost consumer defender, practically vibrates with action. He is credited with the passage of at least six major laws that imposed new federal safety standards. Can anyone say the same thing about their senator?

Anderson and Nader elicit interest and evoke response. They have got what it takes; what we lack: emotion and motion.

Honesty lives

To the Daily Egyptian:

Honesty is still alive—and appreciated!

I wish to take this opportunity to extend my sincere thanks to the person who returned my lost wallet to the science library Tuesday morning— whoever you are!

I could hardly believe it when the library telephoned me to say that a young man had turned my wallet into the desk, left no name or number, and walked away without even inquiring as to a reward. I was even more amazed that all my receipts, credit cards, I.D.'s, library card, driver's license, etc. were still in my wallet! You even left my $22.

Again I can only say thank you and that your honesty brought me a lot of relief and saved me an enormous amount of inconvenience. I don't know who you are, but you are a rare and fine individual.

'The ol' soft shoe' ranks high as 'Waiting for Godot' pummels

By Glenn Amato
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Everyone cheered the actors Friday evening when "Waiting For Godot" declared itself finished. I suppose those cheers were well earned, like being forever grateful to an elephant for not having stepped on you, but even this hard-working quartet couldn't save the evening, which was, to put it kindly and quickly, a monumental bore.

The Southern Players' production of Samuel Beckett's Nobel Prize winning play, which ran over the weekend in the Laboratory Theatre, certainly didn't begin that way. Didi (Timothy Moyer) and Gogo (Jan Vest) strutted through a series of unabashedly corny soft-shoe numbers — including "Me and My Shadow" and "Since You Went Away" — wonderfully choreographed by Jo Mack, that set the proper vaudeville spirit for things to come. Unfortunately, this promise was never fulfilled, much less sustained, and that five minutes' worth of soft-shoe proved to be the evening's highlight. It was all downhill from there.

The play is set in some characterless limbo nicely enough designed by Jerome Rosenberger, its principal features being a ramp leading to another limbo, a barren tree and a few tree stumps. Didi and Gogo are two hapless bums who are waiting for Godot. They have been waiting for a long time and will obviously wait forever, since neither will follow through on his threat to leave. A boy comes every day to tell them that Godot will come tomorrow.

They have come to be adept

gamesmen, since there has to be a way to pass the time. They kid around and ponder their situation — they are, in short, Beckett's mouthpieces, and they are trying to rationalize their existence. Godot, they feel, will provide the necessary answers, and so they must wait. He never comes, because there are no pat answers to their questions. The "why" of their — and our — existence is open to speculation.

Pozzo and Lucky stumble into their limbo and, once again, we see how badly men need each other as they wait for their Godots. Pozzo is first seen as a sort of corporate monster and Lucky his slave, tied to a rope. Pozzo eventually goes blind and turns to Lucky for guidance and support. Their mutual, man-made misery has almost literally tied them together.

The play is a cry for non-conformity; Beckett seems to be saying that the more self-identity a man retains and the less he allows himself to be swallowed up by the corporate machine, the happier he will be. He won't have to wait for Godot, because he will have answered his own questions about living.

The writing itself is superb, mixing screwball comedy with bitterness and misery, the styles never clashing and always complementing one another. But even great plays need great productions, and the problem with this "Godot" was that just about everything came out painfully dull and ordinary. The pace — the hour-and-a-half first act could only be described as relentless — was murderous, and it wasn't before long that one began to wish Godot would come so the damn thing would be over.

The actors — Moyer and Vest, who never once left the stage, and Rob Kastil as Lucky and Malcolm Rothman as Pozzo — worked industriously under Jay E. Raphael's direction. At one point Didi called the goings-on "unforgettable." Some people would be willing to call that irony.

Prank call problem still growing

By Jim Pokin
Student Writer

Abusive phone calls are a problem in Carbondale. John Youngblood, service manager for the General Telephone Co., said in an interview this week.

"The problem is growing—not by leaps and bounds, but enough so that we've had to reevaluate our procedures for handling increasing numbers of these calls," he said.

Youngblood estimated the telephone company receives between 15 and 30 complaints about unwanted phone calls per week.

"We put these calls in three categories—abusive, unwanted commercial calls and misdirected calls. For the last two types, we usually request that the person change numbers," he said.

Youngblood subdivided abusive calls three ways—harassing 'what-are-you-doing-tonight' calls, obscene calls using foul or suggestive language and calls which threaten bodily harm.

Youngblood suggested a variety of means by which callers select their victims, including random choice from the directory, newspaper stories, pictures on the society page or school when the callers are juveniles.

"For a threatening call we put a trace on the line if the person making the complaining requests it.

Container causes citizen $5 fine

OVERLIN, Ohio (AP)—James Bell of Oberlin became the first person to be fined under Oberlin's ordinance prohibiting possession of nonreturnable containers.

Bell pleaded guilty Monday to that charge and charges of failure to maintain control of his car and driving while his license was under suspension.

Municipal Court Judge David Goldthorpe fined Bell $10 and costs for violating the container ordinance, but suspended $5 and the costs.

Schilpp featured speaker at Wichita convention

Paul Schilpp, visiting professor of philosophy at SIU, discussed his series of books, the Library of Living Philosophers, Thursday in Wichita, Kansas, at the annual convention of the Kansas Library Association. He emphasized his personal remembrance of Albert Einstein.

We wait for the caller to call again. When he does, we forward the information to a proper investigating authority, usually the State's Attorney's Office or the city police," he said.

Tom McNamara, administrative assistant to the police chief, estimated his department receives only five complaints a month concerning abusive telephone calls.

"Frequently, people don't realize that a law has been broken and they should call the police," he said.

State's Attorney Ron Briggs reported that abusive phone calls come under the heading of disorderly conduct according to Illinois law. Conviction carries a fine of up to $500 or six months in jail. Stiffer penalties result from bomb threats and false fire alarms. Up to a $5000 fine and a year in jail or one to five years result for threats of physical harm and other types of intimidation, he said.

Briggs said that although no prosecutions have been made for abusive phone calls in recent months, several persons have pleaded guilty in such cases.

"We had no fear that we couldn't have proven the charges. The evidence was sufficient," he said.

Briggs said that a telephone trace by itself is not sufficient evidence to get a conviction. Voice identification and eye witnesses to the call are frequent sources of evidence, he said.

MG MIDGET

It's a lot of sports car for a little price.

These days you don't have to look very far to find a small, economical car.

But to find one that's economical and a pure-bred, SCCA-winning sports car—well, that leaves you a choice of about one.

MG Midget.

Just the right size for you, your friend and enough gear to see you through a weekend.

You'll discover that the real meaning of "sports motoring" has nothing to do with 1/4-mile strips at abandoned airports.

It has to do with roads that take to the hills where the scenery and fresh air are. Roads that turn and twist and meander down the other side, faithful to the contours of nature.

That's where terms like rack-and-pinion steering, front disc brakes, race-seasoned suspension and a close ratio 4-speed gearbox, start making sense to the uninitiated.

And you'll wonder how you ever drove without full sports car instrumentation: an electric tachometer, separate gauges for oil pressure, water temperature and fuel level. There's even a trip odometer.

MG Midget sports other standards like a 1275 c.c. overhead valve engine, mag-style wheels, radial-ply tires, leather steering wheel cover, reclining bucket seats, full carpeting and three-blade windshield wipers.

What do you pay for this small economical sports car? Of all the proven winners now in national SCCA sports car racing, it's the one with the lowest price tag.

A little for a lot of sports car.

For the name of your nearest Austin MG dealer and for information about overseas delivery, dial (800) 631-1972. In New Jersey dial (800) 962-2803. Calls are toll-free.

SIU to inaugurate commemoration of Ulysses Grant

By University News Service

SIU will kick off the nation's ceremonies in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the birth of Ulysses S. Grant, Civil War general and 18th President of the United States.

Grant's birthdate was April 27, 1822, but SIU will hold a dinner Wednesday, the first of a number of observances during April in Illinois, Ohio and New York, according to John Y. Simon, University historian and executive director of the Ulysses S. Grant Association, which is headquartered at SIU.

Simon will be the speaker at the dinner here, sponsored by Friends of SIU's Morris Library. His subject will be "The Rediscovery of Ulysses S. Grant." The University Library will offer an exhibit of Grant documents, including items from the papers of Gen. Ulysses Grant 3rd, the President's grandson, recently presented to SIU by the Grant family.

When the Grant Association moved its headquarters and research collection from the Ohio Historical Society to SIU in 1964, the University became the primary center for scholarly study of all phases of the soldier-president's career.

A 15-volume collection of "The Papers of Ulysses S. Grant" is being edited by Simon and published by the SIU Press. Volume four is now in press and was originally scheduled for release in time for the sesquicentennial but now re-scheduled for August publication.

On April 21 the Grant Association headed by Ralph G. Newmar Chicago bibliophile, in cooperation with the Chicago Civil War Round Table, the Illinois Special Event Commission, and Friends of the Chicago Public Library, will hold banquet at the Chicago library, with T. Harry Williams, Louisiana State University Grant scholar, a speaker.

In Ohio, a three-day celebration will be held April 27-30 at Poin Pleasant, Grant's birthplace, and a symposium is scheduled at Wright State University at Dayton, Simon said.

Sons of Union Veterans will hold services at Mt. McGregor, N.Y., where Grant died, another observance will be held at the General Grant National Memorial (Grant's tomb) in New York City; and the Illinois State Historical Society will display an exhibit of some of its Grant holdings.

The dinner at SIU will be held in the University Center Ballroom, at 7 p.m. A social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. Reservations should be made with Mrs. John E. King, secretary, Friends of Morris Library.

Professor to give African lecture

The Department of Anthropology is sponsoring a lecture by Prof. Victor Turner of the University of Chicago. At 7:30 p.m., April 28, in the Home Economics Auditorium.

Prof. Turner is presently teaching at the University of Chicago under the specialty of African cosmology and belief systems.

Turner received his Ph.D. from the University of Manchester, England, in 1955, and has authored several books dealing with analysis of religious beliefs, according to Jon Muller of the Anthropology Department.

Home economics teachers finish vocational opportunities course

By University News Service

and vocational or occupational training."

Twenty-four future home economics teachers have completed the first Illinois undergraduate course to show them how to help teenagers find a place in the job market—without going to college.

They are students in the School of Home Economics. During the winter quarter they studied and worked to learn how to become coordinators of school-and-community HERO programs.

HERO, standing for Home Economics Related Occupations, is one of the occupational programs developed under the 1963 Vocational Education Act and its 1968 amendments, which provide federal and state funding for high schools that offer special programs of occupational training in services or crafts.

SIU's Department of Home Economics has held workshops and short courses for in-service teachers to enable them to conduct HERO programs, and now has started offering an intensive course for its own undergraduate students, according to Anna Carol Fuitts, department chairman.

"The emphasis in education today has shifted from preparing high school students for college to a broader concept of giving all students the opportunity to develop their personal potential," Miss Fuitts said. "This means providing a balanced program of general education, personal development,

In the class just concluded, taught by Mrs. Mary Clark Hull, the SIU students have delved into such matters as wage-and-hour laws, childlabor laws, income tax, insurance, social security, how to enlist support and cooperation of community employers, the appointment and use of an advisory council, the development of course outlines for related class work and other pertinent topics.

But that's not all. To enable them to see the program from the high school learner's point of view, each student in the class spent four hours a week as a job trainee—actually working in a job typical of entry-level work a high school junior or senior might find for work experience while taking a HERO course.

"Employers" cooperating in the class project during the past winter were the Food Service at SIU's Student Center, the housekeeping department at Doctor's Memorial Hospital, a local delicatessen, and a florist shop.

Mrs. Hull, an energetic, vivacious teacher, "tells it like it is" to her students. She describes the complexities they will encounter in stimulating teenage students, in dealing with school boards and administrators, with community advisory committees, with cooperating employers.

Bad paint on lunar lander causes peeling problems

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)

Engineers said Monday that the substance peeling off the Apollo 16 lunar lander appeared to be bad paint. But they said it was unnecessary for this mission and the astronauts sped on toward their landing Thursday in the highlands of the moon.

Astronauts John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. were directed to make general inspection of their moon machine, Orion, Monday night to make certain it remained fit and Thomas K. Mattingly II was ordered by the flight plan to stay aboard the command ship, Casper. Capsule communicator Tony England told the astronauts to keep a watch on Orion's flaking surface, but assured them it was no problem.

A spokesman for Grumman Corp., which built Orion, said the .0001-inch thick coating of white silicone paint was designed to protect the moon machine from the heat of the sun during its three days on the moon.

The paint was needed, he said, only if the launch of Apollo 16 had been delayed a day, causing the sun to be higher and hotter at the mountain plateau landing site when Orion touched down. But the launch was right on schedule.

The paint, said a Grumman spokesman, was applied and baked for a half-hour at 400 degrees. He said the same process was used on the Apollo 15 lunar module and no problems were encountered.

Art show to open Friday

A reception from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday in the Mitchell Gallery will mark the opening of an exhibit by SIU student artists Bruce Bezaire and Jerry Peart.

Bezaire's portion of the exhibit is 30 pages of India ink drawings in comic strip form. He said, "The drawings are an enjoyable and realistic form of entertainment but are not really humorous."

Peart said his sculpture exhibit is a contemporary treatment of monuments and altars and their traditional meanings. It consists of three works created from polychromed fiberglass and two created from car-tem steel. All are from four to eight feet tall.

University Gallery Curator Evert A. Johnson said that Peart and Bezaire will also set up and design the exhibit. It will be shown at the Mitchell Gallery April 20 through April 26.

Both artists are graduate students. Their exhibits are attempts to fulfill thesis requirements for a Master of Fine Arts degree.

Peart, 24, is from Winslow, Ariz. He was named the outstanding art student at Arizona State University. While at SIU he has taught undergraduate art courses.

Bezaire, 24, is from Windsor, Ontario, where he graduated from the University of Windsor.

Parachute Club picks officers

Bill Wenger, an SIU senior and advanced jumper, was elected president of the SIU Sport Parachute Club at a recent meeting.

Others elected at the meeting were Mike Bradey, vice-president, senior and national novice champion; Carol Dolph, secretary, junior and advanced jumper; Dean Douglas, treasurer, senior and advanced jumper; and Dennis Wayjas, club safety officer, junior and advanced jumper.

A board of governors, also elected at the meeting, includes Keith McGuarrrie, senior and advanced jumper; Tom Gossage, sophomore and jump master; Rusty Lewis, junior and intermediate jumper and, Randy Vaughn, teaching assistant in geography and jump instructor.

Primary functions of the board of governors, which includes executive officers, are to make policies and propose amendments to the club constitution.

Employees Council prepares for membership elections

By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The election committee of the Nonacademic Employees Council sent out mail ballots Friday to about 1,900 permanent civil service employees of SIU's Carbondale campus.

The ballots are to be returned by noon Friday after the civil service employees vote for new members for on the council.

The council is comprised of 14 members. Two are chosen from each of seven categories, both serving staggered two-year terms.

The categories are general, trades and occupations, professional, administration, custodial, clerical and services. Joe A. Moore, financial analysis, has been nominated in the professional category and runs against incumbent, Gloria King, Health service.

In the custodial category, William

H. Hertzler, of the Physical Plant, was nominated and he runs against incumbent, William Clyde Perkins, of the Physical Plant.

In the services category, Lois Scott, of Thompson Point, and John T. Halstead, security officer, were nominated and will compete on the ballot against incumbent, Rosia Kerrens, of Thompson Point.

In clerical, Hilda V. Born (incumbent), VTI, will run against Shirley Dalcher, dean of student services office, Carolyn Fleming, Forestry, and Claudette Simon, College of Communication and Fine Arts. Two will be elected to fill vacancies in this category.

In administration, Donald C. Gladden (incumbent), administrative accountant, runs against nominee Robert C.

Waldron, Jr., health service. In the other two categories, general and trades and occupations, incumbents Lee Hester, chairman of the council and Robert James, of the Physical Plant, are running unopposed.

However, there is space for winners in all categories.

Permanent civil service employees who have not received a ballot may obtain one by contacting Larry Johnson, of the Personnel Office, phone 453-5334. Ballots must be returned by noon Friday.

IPIRG index compares area drug store costs

Another research index by the Illinois Public Interest Research Group (IPIRG) will be published in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian—this time on drug prices in nine area drug stores.

IPIRG researchers surveyed some 50 items in the nine stores and drew up a least to most expensive index, using nationally advertised items.

The items were extracted by the base price list from Phase II and IPIRG will also be publishing the percentage differences.

The stores surveyed were the Sav-Mart drug department, J.C. Penney's drug department, Mor Value drug department, University Drugs on South Illinois, University Drugs on South University, Westown Rexall, Murdale Walgreen, Hewitts Rexall and Atwood's Drug Store.

Bob Peele of IPIRG said their interest is providing information concerning purchases in various fields to enable students to make more knowledgeable purchases.

Endowment director set to speak here

Herbert McArthur, education director of the National Endowment for the Humanities in Washington, will speak at an SIU English department-sponsored meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Ramada Inn University Club west of Carbondale.

Henry Dan Piper, professor of English at SIU, said McArthur will describe how the NEH is supporting research and teaching by individual and institutional grants-in-aid.

The Endowment was set up by Congress to support University work in the humanities and social sciences such as the National Science Foundation has provided grant money for scientific and engineering research.

McArthur is on leave from the University of Vermont, where he teaches Elizabethan literature and is a dean in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Classical horns to play Wednesday

The senior recital of hornists Abron Campbell, University City, Mo., and Vincent Chancey, Chicago, will be Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.

Jim Gay, public relations officer for the School of Music, said that Campbell will be accompanied by Deanna DuComb, Carlyle, and will play Richard Strauss' "Concerto in E flat, opus 11."

Chancey will be accompanied by Phillip Fennell, Homewood, and will play "Concerto in D major, K. 412" by W.A. Mozart.

Money for cancer to buy mice

"Send a mouse to college" for 27 cents is the theme of the student Cancer Crusade at SIU to be held at high-traffic centers on the campus Tuesday and Wednesday.

"One mouse for laboratory research costs 27 cents," Bruce Petersen, assistant professor of zoology, said. Petersen and Maurice Ogur, chairman of the microbiology department, are co-chairmen of the campus drive for the American Cancer Society.

Faculty contributions have been solicited by the two chairmen by letter.

Collection depots for student contributions will be set up near the Morris Library, the Student Center, Lawson Hall and the Communications Building, Petersen said.

In a similar appeal last year, students gave almost a thousand dollars, he said.

Pacific Studies Committee to host New Guinea lecture

By Gary Koehler
Student Writer

A lecture arranged by the Pacific Studies Committee will be given by Philip J.C. Dark Tuesday night in an effort to create interest in the Pacific area and its culture.

Dark, anthropology professor and chairman of the Pacific Studies Committee at SIU, will conduct the illustrated lecture at 8 p.m. in the Home Economics Auditorium.

Dark said that he will concentrate mainly on the art and culture of the Kilenge people and their neighbors in the West New Britain region of New Guinea.

Several members of the anthropology staff at SIU have been pursuing research in the Pacific for a number of years. Dark explained that New Britain offered a particularly good area to study because "art is still carried on in its traditional manner."

Despite social and economic expansion in the area, "art has not been swept away by the pervading western culture," Dark said. He said as many as 700 different languages are still spoken throughout the area.

Dark plans to show slides to illustrate how, "art is an active part of culture in the New Britain area." Specifically, he plans to explain the function of masks made by the Kilenge people and their relation to others in the area.

Hijacker surrenders at O'Hare Airport

CHICAGO (AP)—A lone hijacker demanding $500,000 and a trip to the Bahamas seized control of a Delta Air Lines jet after leaving Palm Beach, Fla., Monday but was captured without incident less than an hour after the plane touched down in Chicago.

The man, identified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as William Herbert Greene III, 30, of Berea, Ohio, was described as a "drifter" who most recently worked as a film editor in Universal City, Calif.

The plane, a Convair 880 carrying 91 persons including a crew of seven, was bound from Miami to Chicago with the only scheduled stop at Palm Beach.

The pilot of the craft, Carl Leming, 49, of Atlanta, said he was first notified of the hijack and extortion attempt about one third of the way to Chicago.

Leming said a stewardess presented him with a note written by the hijacker demanding that the plane fly to Chicago, that a half million dollars be made available to him there and that the plane then take off for Nassau in the Bahamas.

Leming said the hijacker made it clear that none of the passengers would leave the plane until his demand for the money was met.

However, the plane touched down at a remote corner of O'Hare International Airport, the passengers were allowed to leave, and the hijacker surrendered himself two minutes later.

First Officer Earl Boyd went back to talk with the hijacker and said he told the man he had two alternatives:

"I told him he could either go to the Bahamas or he could give himself up. He said only a few words to me and then he said 'Let's get off the airplane.'"

No gun was found, the FBI said, although the hijacker indicated in the note to the pilot that he carried a weapon.

The man taken into custody wore a short sleeved, blue print Hawaiian shirt. He was 5-foot-9, 155 lbs., and had dark, curly hair.

Most of the passengers aboard the plane apparently didn't even know the craft had been hijacked.

Southern Dancers will perform three productions in spring line-up

By Ada Viececi
Student Writer

Three dance performances, including the fifth annual dance-theatre production, are scheduled by the Southern Dancers during spring quarter. The Women's Recreation Association will sponsor "Poor Polluted Me," "Ridottoes 72" and The Eleventh Quarterly Southern Dancer's Workshop Show. "Poor Polluted Me," a thesis production by Kent Baker, will be performed Saturday and Sunday at 8 p.m. in Furr Auditorium. It is a repeat performance. Dr. W. Grant Gray, director of the Southern Repertory Dance Company, said the show which played to full houses was being performed because of previous successes.

"Ridottoes 72," the annual dance theatre presentation, was described by Gray as "the most extravagant and spectacular theatrical event of the year." Ridottoes were 18th century Italian dance festivals. "Ridottoes 72" will be presented May 19, 20, 26 and 27 at 8 p.m. in the University Theatre.

Singing auditions for "Ridottoes" will be held in Furr Auditorium from 3 to 5 p.m. Thursday, Gray said. Students interested in auditioning should prepare an "up-beat" song from a musical comedy and bring sheet music with them. An accompanist will be available.

"Ridottoes 72," Gray said, "is the big thing we are doing now." The production, Gray said, would consist of four suites. The first suite, choreographed by Nancy Lewis, will be the Renaissance Suite in Pre-Classical Dance forms. The second suite is a comical interpretation of the Lizzie Borden Legend, choreographed by Gray. The Pascagoula Indians and the legend of the Singing River will be the theme of the third suite also choreographed by Gray.

The American Musical Comedy Suite, which is the final part of "Ridottoes," is a history of this theatrical form from 1890 to 1970. It will feature performances of selected numbers from great musicals between the 1890's musical, "A Trip to Chinatown" and 1970's "Jesus Christ Superstar." The fourth suite is choreographed by Nancy Lewis.

W. Grant Gray and various cast members.

The Eleventh Quarterly Southern Dancer's workshop show will be performed on June 7, 8, and 9 in Furr Auditorium. Time has not been arranged.

Trailer troubles

Four-year-old Jeff, (upper left) along with the other residents of University Trailer Court on South Wall Street, must move by September 1, when SIU plans to close the facility. The University says the area is needed for more overnight parking. A group of residents is disputing the planned action and is trying to keep the facility open. One resident, however, (above) has decided that selling the trailer might be the answer. (Photos by John Lopino)

Trailer court closing spurs alternate plan by residents

By Pat Nussman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Residents of the University Trailer Court are challenging a University edict handed down April 6 by Samuel Rinella, director of Housing Business Services, closing the South Wall Street court on September 1.

"The administration is playing with little plots of ground and not even considering the human element," Chris Robertson, head of the dissident residents group, said. Rinella's letter informing the residents of the proposal acted increasing parking needs in the area and the poor condition of the court's plumbing as reasons for the closing.

The position of his group, Robertson said, is that the University should build the alternate parking lot, put in new water lines and keep the trailer court as a model trailer court "until such a time as the trailer courts in the surrounding area come up to par."

Robertson said that the group is consulting Doug Engle of Legal Aid to see what can be done concerning the residents contracts, which states that residents contracts will be renewed, if they meet conditions stipulated in the contract.

Robertson said that Rinella had told him in a telephone conversation that he needed a new parking area to merchandise the 3,400 units on the east campus—the $37 million facility to the west of your area," as Rinella described it.

Robertson said he pointed out that there is an alternate area to build the lot—southeast of Wright Hall in what is now a playing field.

This would still be adjacent to the east campus, he said, and would hold 500 cars instead of the 400 cars which would fit on the site of the University Trailer Court.

"We think that better merchandising would be possible in the larger lot," Robertson said.

When this was pointed out to Rinella, he started to say that there was no alternate area and then said the alternate area was impossible—that it would not be good enough merchandising, Robertson said.

James Dugger, business manager of Family Housing, said the underground pipes for the park have worn out and the price of replacing these pipes—$25,000 to $40,000—precludes repair.

Robertson and a committee of residents went to the University architect's office and found out how much plastic pipe was involved, he said, then found out how much it would cost for the pipe.

According to Robertson, the pipe would cost $1341.40 at the Mur-phorsboro Supply Company.

Robertson said that standard construction practices are to figure the cost of the material, then double that for the total cost of installation. Of course, this estimate is very rough, he added.

The total cost would thus run about $2682.80, according to Robertson.

Rinella told Robertson that the figure of $25,000 only includes the plastic pipes, which are water feeder pipes. The Housing Business Services figure would cover the cost of replacing the iron main and sewer pipes also, Robertson said.

"But Rinella said it would be 'economically unfeasible' to replace the water pipes," Robertson said.

Rinella and George Mace, assistant to the president, have refused to release the financial information concerning the trailer court, Robertson said.

"We pay the University, if you figure a 50 unit occupancy (and it's really 62)—we pay $20,400 in rent per year.

"Because they would not release the information—we dug out the internal operation budget for SIU in the last five years.

"It showed that the highest amount spent on operating the court was $11,000—last year it was $6570," Robertson said.

"So we feel that the University should use the money to put in new water pipes."

The University Trailer Court, Robertson said, was established in 1958 as a model court—to set an example for private enterprise, that trailer courts could be developed properly and that they could be a viable investment.

The court was also meant to establish standards and set a model for what trailer courts should be like in way of physical features, such as trees, grass and aesthetic environment.

"It is a really very beautiful place to live, with all sorts of natural beauty to it," he said.

The court has fenced play areas for pre-schoolers, recreational facilities for adults and a total community life—"It's just like a small community," Robertson said.

"It set a standard size for lot space. It has a dome for community meeting space. It has a park—a small park—but a park nonetheless.

"In short, it was established to be a model—to show that trailer court living could be pleasant and attractive.

"The University now points to the empty trailer spaces in the surrounding area and they use this to say that it has fulfilled its goal in stimulating growth to the trailer courts," Robertson said.

"But it has not—if you look at the surrounding trailer courts, not one of them has lived up to the standards of the University Trailer court—not one of them."

Robertson also said that the East Campus Executive Council passed a resolution Monday night in support for the trailer court residents. The resolution says there should be no evictions from the court and recommended that the playing fields behind Wright Hall in University Park be used for the overnight parking lots, Robertson said.

Lecture studies islanders' masks

Philip J.C. Dark, professor in the SIU Department of Anthropology, will present an illustrated lecture, "Masks of a New Guinea People and their Neighbors," at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Home Economics Building, room 140-B.

The lecture is the fourth in a series of six presented this quarter by the Pacific Studies Committee.

Uruguay gun battle kills nine

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Nine persons, including an army captain, were reported killed Monday in a pre-dawn gun battle that raged for an hour around a district office of the Communist party.

Their deaths raised to 21 the number of persons slain since Friday in the government's declared "internal war" against the leftist Tupamaro guerrillas. No official report was issued on the 4 a.m. fight that erupted in the Paso Molino residential district five miles from the center of the city.

The victims, other than the army officer, apparently were suspected Tupamaros who sought refuge in the Communist party building and party militants standing vigil in the headquarters to defend from right-wing extremists.

Six soldiers were reported wounded in the battle.

Finance, personnel new city manager's weightiest problems

By Robert McIntosh
Student Writer

existing federal aid programs, he said.

The second major problem to confront the new city manager will be the organizational structure of city government, Schwegman said. Many existing departments could be combined as in the case of the Departments of Planning and Code Enforcement, and others could be better managed, he said.

"If any reorganization is going to be done it would be wise to do it early, before the vacant posts are filled," he said.

Posts now vacant include the directorships of the Departments of Community Development, Code Enforcement and Finance and Planning. In addition, Fire Chief Ulmont Crawshaw is expected to retire within the next six months.

"It's hard to sell reorganization if costs cannot be shown to be decreased. In the short run costs might actually increase," he said, "but not in the long run. Reorganization may not save a lot of money, but you might get a lot more done."

Some other problems the new city manager will face were cited by Jerry Maxwell, assistant to the city manager. They include:

—Attempting to solve the problem of area-wide unemployment.

—Bridging the cultural gap created by the presence of 23,000 SIU students.

—Dealing with the problem of the deterioration of the downtown area, particularly South Illinois Ave.

The biggest problems Carbondale's new city manager will face when he takes office will be the city's chronic financial troubles and a needed organizational restructuring of city government, according to acting City Manager Bill Schwegman.

"The city's financial situation is not really improving any," Schwegman said. "Probably the biggest problem facing the city at this time is money."

Schwegman said he sees two ways in which the city might relieve its financial problem: increasing taxes or attracting industry to Carbondale. He was not especially optimistic about the prospects for either solution.

"The council is reluctant to talk about tax increases and we haven't had much luck in attracting industry either," he said. "We've hired one fellow to do public relations work for the city and develop a brochure designed to attract industry, but this project is still in its early stages."

Enactment by the Illinois legislature of impactment legislation which would give state funds to cities containing non-taxable state universities would help Carbondale's financial situation, according to Schwegman. Federal revenue sharing would also help if these funds were added on to

SIU students plagued by bike thievery

Bicycles continue to be popular times for thieves, with three reported stolen from SIU students late last week.

Donna J. Cox, 20, Mae Smith, told security police her 10-speed blue Schwinn Varsity was stolen from the Mae Smith bike rack late Thursday night or early Friday morning.

Miss Cox said the lock and chain were cut to remove the $85 bicycle.

A Schwinn Varsity owned by John Wimmer, 18, Schneider Hall, was reported stolen from the Schneider rack between Tuesday and Friday. Wimmer placed the bike's value at $100.

James Renfro, VTI New Dorm, told police his 10-speed Sears bike was stolen between Monday and Friday from the VTI bus stop. Renfro said the bike was worth $45.

Leslie G. Goering, 19, Neely Hall, reported the theft of 10 eight-track tapes valued at $50 from her car Tuesday night.

"How to Heal The World," a film produced by the American Broadcasting Company, will be shown by the Christian Scientists of Carbondale during the last week of April.

The 40-minute film will be shown in the Wesley Foundation with the exact date to be announced later.

Pam Osgood, president of the organization said "The film is a spiritual approach that Christian Scientists take toward solving problems." The main setting of the film is on college campuses all over the world and is mostly conversations of Christian Science students on how they feel spiritually.

The free film will be open to the public with hopes of attracting new members to the organization. Osgood explained that interested parties can attend meetings that are held at 8 a.m. Thursdays in the Wesley Foundation. Each week a different member of the group presents a sermon using The Bible and a textbook. "You can't take a Bible literally" Osgood said, when questioned on why the textbook was used. Osgood explained that the textbook is used to supplement the Bible for easier understanding.

In the beginning, after the first seven days, the DE Classifieds were created. After many setbacks the stone tablets came into being and all was well. Times have changed and the world progressed but the DE Classifieds still prevail. But we don't set them on stone tablets anymore (most of the time).

We've invented the small sensible solid American car all over again.

1930 Model A Deluxe Coupe

1972 Pinto 2 Door sedan with optional white sidewall tires and accent group

When people shop for a small car, they look for some very simple basic values: Dependability, Economy of money and style, Good mileage and long life.

Those basics are our birthplace. The Model T, the Model A, the first mass-produced station wagon — name a basic idea, and chances are Ford built it.

Now to Ford Pinto

Pinto is as simple and solid a small car as there is in the world. And it's priced lower than the three leading imports, lower than its major U.S. competitor. Yet it has every basic modern necessity.

A gutsy little engine that gets the same economical kind of gas mileage as the little imports.

A solid-as-a-rock four speed transmission. Sports car steering. A welded steel body with six coats of paint.

Ball-joint front suspension, and a wide stable stance on the road. Pinto is one small car that doesn't have to fear a superhighway.

And finally, Pinto gives you comfortable interior leg and shoulder room — yet it's only 1 1/2 inches longer than the leading little import.

See the Pinto at your Ford dealer's. It's 40 years newer than the Model A — but it's still the same basic idea.

When you get back to basics, you get back to Ford.

Student art show begins Wednesday

By Daryl Stephenson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An art show, featuring approximately 40 charcoal drawings by students in the Department of Art's 1000 drawing class, will open at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Wesley Foundation.

Following the opening, the art show, sponsored by the Art Students' League, will remain on display from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily until May 3.

Bob Paulson, professor of art and instructor of the class, said Monday that the drawings will be available for sale at $10 each, with the proceeds going to the establishment of an art students' scholarship fund.

"The show represents students' work from the past two quarters," said Paulson. "One or two drawings were selected from each student's final class presentation," he said.

Not all of the show, Paulson said, will be displayed at the Wesley Foundation, because there is not enough room.

Microbiologists to present papers

Two papers, written by SIU graduate students, which will be presented to the National Meeting of the American Society of Microbiology, will be featured at the Microbiology Graduate Seminar at 11 a.m. Thursday in Life Science II, room 130.

The papers, written by David Mattis and Casimir Woscinski, will be presented to the American Society of Microbiology in Philadelphia, during the week of April 23.

Campus briefs

D.S. Presner, professor in the Department of Thermal and Environmental Engineering, presented a paper entitled "Thermal Convection in Laterally Bounded Air Space" at the Eighth Southeastern Seminar on Thermal Sciences held at Vanderbilt University during March.

According to Presner, the paper was included in the published proceedings of the seminar.

An article by Douglas Allen, assistant professor of philosophy "Mircea Eliade's Phenomenological Analysis of Religious Experience" is published in the April issue of The Journal of Religion.

Allen attended the national conferences of the Association for Asian Studies and the Committee of Concerned Asian Scholars in New York. He also presented a paper.

Allen was one of 50 scholars invited by the Institute for Policy Studies in Washington to participate in a conference devoted to an analysis of the Pentagon Papers. He has been invited to speak this month at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign; Monmouth College, Monmouth; Knox College, Galesburg; and Western Illinois University, Macomb. At some of these, Allen will be the convocation speaker.

H. Richard Delaney, associate professor in Community Development Services, will present a paper to the annual meeting of the Midwest Sociological Society.

The paper, entitled "A Social Psychological Theory of the Communicative Process, will be given at the society's meeting April 20-22 in Kansas City, Mo. The work, based on a forthcoming book by Delaney, "The Social Communicative Act," outlines a topology of meaning context within the communicative act.

Roy Weshinsky, associate professor of English, will visit Mt. Vernon Township High School this week as a member of an evaluating committee sponsored by the Illinois State Committee of the North Central Association. His visit is part of an intensive self-study by the faculty of Mt. Vernon Township High School.

"It is the hope of the league," Paulson said, "that the show will be exchanged with other art schools and that persons purchasing the drawings from the show will allow the drawings to remain in the show until other exhibits have been completed."

In describing the quality of the work, Paulson said, "Any person viewing the show will share in my enthusiasm regarding the excellent quality of work done at the beginning-level."

Eldon Benz, a senior majoring in art and one of the artists whose works is exhibited in the show, said the quality of the work is remarkable considering that few of the artists are art majors. The course, he said, is open to anyone majoring in art, cinema and photography or home economics.

"Most of the drawings deal with the human figure," Benz said. There is considerable variety, he said, most of which express the human figure "naively."

By naive, Benz said, he does not mean childlike. Rather, he said, the artists approached their work without any preconceived notions regarding classical artistic form or content.

"They're basically examples of up-from-the-gut expression," Benz said, relying purely, in many instances, on the extension of pure emotions.

Also Benz said, this is the first time that many of the students have ever drawn anything, as well as also being the first time any of their works have ever been publically shown.

"Basically," Benz said, "I'd describe the results as being fantastic."

Getting ready

Elks advisory committee to urge abolishment of whites-only rule

CHICAGO (AP) — The ruling body of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks has set aside 104 years of tradition and recommended that a controversial whites-only membership policy be abolished.

The fraternal organization's advisory committee, made up of former top national Elks executives, approved Sunday a resolution urging members to vote to delete the clause from the group's constitution at a national convention July 9-13 in Atlantic City.

Three previous attempts by individual Elks lodges to open the organization to blacks and other nonwhite groups had failed.

William B. Randall, a co-founder of the Committee to Integrate the Elks, says that with the backing of the group's advisory committee, "I'm pretty sure the convention will vote to drop the word white from its membership requirements."

Randall and Richard J. Zelenka, who were ousted from the Elks after working to try to integrate the group, expressed little surprise at the advisory committee's recommendation.

"It does not really surprise me that they made this recommendation," Randall said, of Ridgewood, N.J. "There's been a lot of pressure put on them from throughout the country to change that membership clause, especially after the government took away their tax-exempt status."

A three-judge federal panel in Washington ruled in January that fraternal organizations which exclude nonwhites from membership are not exempt from federal income taxes.

The judges also held that contributions to such clubs may not be deducted by individuals from federal income taxes as charitable contributions.

A similar ruling dealing with property taxes was handed down in December by the Cook County Chicago state's attorney on a suit filed by the Elks contesting restoration of their $1 million national headquarters building to the county's real estate tax rolls.

The state's attorney held that the organization lost its exempt status because its whites-only membership policy conflicted with the new Illinois Constitution.

The Elks constitutional provision says: "No person shall be accepted as a member of this organization unless he be a white, male citizen of the United States of America."

New cheerleader tryout methods hoped to meet needs of blacks

By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU's cheerleaders are trying to initiate new tryout procedures that meet the needs of blacks, according to Leanna Rice, co-captain of the cheerleading team.

She said that most of the cheerleading squad was graduating and that "it probably is a good idea to turn over new recruits and new ideas."

On that note, 11 black women attended a meeting recently on the restructuring of the cheerleading selection process at SIU.

During the meeting, it was decided that the varsity panel for selection of cheerleaders be composed of an equal number of blacks and whites.

Also, the present tryout procedure is to be expanded to include "a structurally 'white' cheer to be done individually, a structurally 'black' cheer to be done individually, a cheer done in groups of three to be taught by members of last year's squad, tumbling (splits, cartwheels) and an optional creative cheer of one's choosing."

A work session was held from 6 to 7 p.m. Wednesday in the women's gym to help in the development of the structurally black cheer, which all prospective cheerleaders will be expected to execute.

Tryouts are usually held within the first two or three weeks of spring quarter each year. However, they have been postponed and will be announced at a later date.

More information may be obtained by calling Leanna Rice at 453-4331.

History department proficiency exams set

The Department of History has announced that it will offer proficiency exams in GSB 300A, B, and C the first week in May.

Specific times and places are: GSB 300—Tues., May 2, 7-9 p.m., Lawson 141; GSB 300B—Wed., May 3, 7:30-9:30 p.m., Lawson 161; and GSB 300C—Thurs., May 4, 7-9 p.m., Lawson 161.

Tests are open to any student who feels he has sufficient background.

Grade points and hours of credit will be recorded for students who receive an "A" or a "B" on the test. Hours of credit, but no grade, will be recorded if the student receives a "C."

Grades of "D" and "E" will receive no grade or hours credit. A letter saying the student has taken the test will be placed in his file.

Students may not take a test for the same course twice or proficiency a course in which they have already received a grade.

Interested students should contact Mrs. G. Calonne, History Department Secretary, Woody B 237.

School of Music presents Horn

Choir concert

The School of Music will present a Horn Choir concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Home Economics auditorium.

The Horn Choir, directed by George Nadaf, consists of French horn students who meet once a week for studio lessons under the direction of Nadaf. Nadaf said the idea of French horn artists performing in small groups began in the '50's when musicians in the Hollywood studios found a need to "keep in shape" between performances.

Compositions to be performed by the Horn Choir include Russell Garcia's "Variations on a Five-Note Theme" written for 10 horns, and two pieces adapted for horns, preludes and fugues for organ, arranged for eight horns, by Johann Sebastian Bach, and Scherzo for piano by Felix Mendelssohn arranged for six horns.

The concert is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Irish reporter

to speak on IRA

Irish journalist, Vincent Sullivan, will be the featured speaker on a panel discussion at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Davis Auditorium.

Sullivan, who has connections with the Irish Republican Army (IRA), is working on a book about the Irish movement. He, reportedly, has tapes of statements made by major leaders of the Irish movement, including tapes of Bernadette Devlin, a leader of Northern Ireland's civil rights movement and the youngest member of the British House of Commons.

Panelists during Wednesday's discussion will be Barbara Hess a junior majoring in education and Pascheal Houlihan, graduate student in sociology from Ireland. C.K. Kumararatnam will moderate.

Sullivan will also be the guest on a television panel discussion at 9 a.m. Thursday on WSIL channel 3, Harrisburg. The program, "The Hour," will be moderated by Jim Cox.

More bombing over

North Vietnam expected

SAIGON (AP) — An official U.S. source said Monday he expects renewed bombing of North Vietnam's heartland, including Hanoi and Haiphong, unless the Communist-led forces call off their 19-day-old general offensive in South Vietnam.

Moscow said Sunday's raids on the Haiphong dock area damaged four Soviet ships. It lodged a protest with Washington.

Unionization topic at GSC meeting Friday

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Unionization will be the main topic when the Graduate Student Council (GSC) meets at 3:30 p.m. Friday at the Student Center Auditorium.

Representatives from American Federation of Teachers (AFT), the Illinois Federation of Teachers (IFT) and the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT) are expected. The representatives will describe their organization and will answer questions concerning unionization. The IFT has requested support from the GSC in unionizing graduate students.

According to the agenda mailed to GSC representatives, graduate assistants would be allowed to choose between forming a new chapter or joining the CFUT. The cost for unionization would be $10 for the first month and $4.50 from then on. The possibility of seeking out other unions is also mentioned.

Besides unionization, the GSC will discuss the possibility of suing Alan Drazek, state director of personnel, for the purpose of establishing that graduate assistants working half-time or more be classified as employees under the state health insurance program.

Drazek has told the council graduate students cannot be classified as employees.

'Carousel' is still enduring but lacks some of its glitter

By Glenn Amato
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

It has become commonplace to say that no one writes music like Richard Rodgers anymore—Richard Rodgers included. "Carousel," which was presented by Celebrity Series Sunday evening in Shryock Auditorium, is one of his and lyricist Oscar Hammerstein's more enduring musicals, but some of the glitter, I'm afraid, has worn off.

A Review

It was by no means a disaster and at times some genuinely pleasant and touching things happened. The acting—or perhaps more accurately the singing, since the music is far more demanding than any of the dialogue—was superb. But there is so much about Hammerstein's book that is as commonplace as that remark about Rodgers—so many homes, obvious little speeches—that it soon begins to grate on the nerves of anyone who knows that musical comedies have, in recent years, grown up quite a bit.

The story is next to nonexistent. Billy Bigelow is a charming, jobless ladykiller who falls in love with Julie Jordan a solid five minutes after they meet. They marry, and then she becomes pregnant. Since he wants their baby to have only the best, he becomes an accomplice in a robbery. He gets caught, and rather than serve time in jail, commits suicide. Once in heaven he sees how unhappy his daughter is, and returns to earth to set her straight. Homes!

Half the songs have absolutely nothing to do with the advancement of the story, but since Rodgers' music is the best part of "Carousel," mine is a minor gripe. But what a book!

Could anyone have once considered these lines—and let "I'd never marry a girl 'cause I know what she'd do to me" stand as a fair example—as an ingredient for a good musical comedy? The book sequences are fairly brief, but in this instance they seem as interminable as five minutes' in a dentist's chair.

John Raitt was Billy, and he sang with that commanding baritone that exemplifies Broadway at its brash. He isn't much of an actor, but this part calls for a singer, and so Raitt filled it very well.

Of the others, Penny Carroll made an amusing Carrie, and Linda Michele was strong and lovely as Julie. And only the most cynical of slob could have failed to feel a lump in his throat when finale time—a reprise of "You'll Never Walk Alone"—rolled around.

So there it was. Certainly not one of Rodgers and Hammerstein's greatest achievements, but pleasant enough when everyone sang. It was, I suspect, a little too recent to regard as nostalgia and a little too old to take seriously. Musical comedies have never been celebrated for their believability, but this has been the slowly changing trend over the past few years, and, as a result, shows like "Carousel" have diminished in importance.

Netters chalk up 2 more victories

At home or on the road, indoors or outdoors, SIU's tennis team continues its winning ways.

Last weekend the Salukis rolled to their seventh and eighth victories of the year, crushing Indiana State, 8-1, and Notre Dame, 9-0, at Terre Haute, Ind.

The pair of triumphs pushed Southern's regular season slate to 8-0 following a 2-5 spring road trip.

On Friday the tennis team easily handled Midwestern Conference member Indiana State in a match played indoors and outdoors.

Rains forced the singles competition inside but it didn't seem to bother the Salukis as they responded with six singles victories.

J-V host Logan today

The junior-varsity baseball team hopes to end a battle with the weather when it returns to action at 3 p.m. Tuesday in a home contest with John A. Logan College.

The squad will be seeking its fifth victory in six starts.

"I think last weekend's rains hurt us more than helped us," Coach Bob Parchman said. "The boys need the daily competition."

The downpour forced cancellation of Friday's doubleheader against Forest Park.

Parchman will use a core of four pitchers in Tuesday's battle — Kevin O'Boyle, Wayne Venckus, Bob Blanks and Bob Reiman.

The coach also has not established a set lineup for the other eight spots on the field.

"I want all of the kids to have equal opportunities to play this spring. Sure, we like to win but the idea of a junior-varsity baseball team at Southern emphasizes developing good ballplayers for the varsity level."

Danville Junior College provides the opposition for the Salukis in an away doubleheader Saturday.

Graham Shook, Chris Greendale, Mike Clayton and Ray Briscoe extended their perfect slates by whipping their Sycamore opponents.

Snook notched season victory No. 7 when he beat Roger Converse, Greendale got his fifth by defeating Max Pokorny, Clayton got his seventh in handling Chris Palmer, while Briscoe beat Gary Smith.

The weather later cleared so the doubles were moved outside. That didn't change Indiana State's luck. SIU continued to roll by taking two of three doubles matches.

Snook and Ramirez topped Converse and Mike Kunfeld at No. 1 doubles, Greendale and Briscoe beat Dan Big and Pokorny but Chris Gunning and Clayton lost to Smith and Palmer.

Saturday the Salukis notched their second weekend win by destroying a tough squad from Notre Dame. The defeat was the Fighting Irish's second. They also lost to Big Ten champion Michigan.

The win was especially satisfying for Southern because Notre Dame finished just below the Salukis in last year's NCAA meet. Southern finished 16th while the Irish grabbed 18th.

The Salukis hope to stretch their unbeaten streak further when they take on Cincinnati, Miami of Ohio and Michigan on the road this weekend on successive days.

Bears lose No. 3 choice

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears of the National Football League conceded their No. 3 draft choice, running back Johnny Musso of Alabama, signed Monday with Vancouver of the Canadian Football League apparently because the Bears refused Musso a no-cut contract.

New Bear coach Abe Giron said Musso had informed the Bears in a telephone call from Vancouver, B.C., of his signing a three-year, no-cut contract with the Lions of the Canadian League.

"We are sorry to lose Musso," said Giron. "But it has been my principle than a man has to earn the right to play and I don't believe in giving anybody a no-cut contract."

IM volleyball, softball listed

Both softball and volleyball games are on tap for Tuesday as men's intramurals begins its second week.

Softball contests which are slated for 4:15 p.m. are as follows:

The SIU Aquaettes will present, "Circus Afloat," a synchronized swimming show at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday in the Pulliam Pool. Admission is 50 cents for students and $1 for non-students.

Cards beat Phillies 5-4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ted Simmons doubled home the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning and scored the eventual winner on Dal Maxvill's sacrifice fly as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-4 Monday night for their first victory of the season.

Doesn't General Electric realize the days of enormous corporate profits are over?

There was a time, fifty or sixty years ago, when a major corporation in America might expect profits of twenty or even twenty-five cents on the sales dollar.

Those days are over. But not everybody realizes it.

What would you call enormous?

In 1970, Fortune's Top 500 industrial corporations realized an average profit of about 4 cents on the dollar.

General Electric fared slightly better than average. Last year, our profits amounted to about 5 cents on the dollar.

We are occasionally attacked, along with business in general, as being "too profit-oriented."

People argue that if social progress is to be made, business must make it. And that profits stand in the way of social progress.

We would argue quite the opposite.

The business of business is not just business.

The purpose of a business, as we see it, is to produce and distribute necessary goods and services to the profit of society...and the business itself.

A business must reflect society's needs. Economic, political, legal and moral, as well as social. It must change as society changes and, to some extent, influence those changes.

But if society profits and the business does not, the business will fold in the short run. It will have no operating funds.

How much profit is enough to keep a business operating? How much is too much? It's hard to say.

However, the companies making only marginal profit are not the companies providing new employment, creating new products or adding to man's scientific and technical knowledge.

Marginal companies are not the ones making the important social contributions today. For a simple reason. They can't afford to.

No responsible company wants a return to the days of the robber barons. No responsible company wants "enormous" profits. But no company can survive without the profit system.

Why are we running this ad?

General Electric is a big, technological company, with the capabilities to do a great deal of problem solving in this country.

We think profits have a direct effect on our ability to solve problems. But we realize the issue of profits is one with two sides. By telling you our side, we hope we've moved you to think about your side. Perhaps even write us about it.

We'd like to hear what you have to say. Please write to General Electric, Dept. 901 570 Lexington Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10021.

The kid walks up close, dragging a puddle of sweat behind him. His long, thin right hand extends forward. And David Hill says, "Hi."

He's a skinny kid from some forlorn place named Trois Rivieres, Quebec, Canada. A bushy-haired soft spoken youngster who formerly dined on Animal Crackers before running a meet.

Hill's too frail for contact sports and completely unimposing in maroon workout trunks. But boy oh boy, can this kid run.

Last Saturday afternoon in chilly Champaign, Hill blew past two of the nation's finest runners—Lee LaBadie and Rick Gross.

In the process, he ignited a stunning 80-65 Southern Illinois upset over the University of Illinois.

Hill ran away from LaBadie, the great miler, the young man who ran 3:58.8 in Carbondale one spring ago. And he digested Gross for dessert in a record-setting three-mile run.

The mildly sun-burned runner revenged last year's home loss to LaBadie with a 4:01.9, equaling his career best. LaBadie churned in 10 yards behind at 4:06.5.

Hill ran to victory over Gross in 13:35.9, 15 seconds faster than Al Robinson of SIU ran three years ago in setting the previous series record. Gross trailed Hill in 13:40.5.

Both were stunning wins. Neither had been anticipated. And even Hill was skeptical.

"I figured I'd try to stay with him (LaBadie) as long as I could," Hill said after a five-mile workout Monday. "If he tired with 30 yards to go, I'd surprise him."

LaBadie and teammate Mike Durkin broke quickly. "Down at Kentucky a week ago, I ran poorly, about a 4:20," Hill related. "So I figure they planned on tiring me out."

But Hill wouldn't be denied. He ran the first quarter in 59 flat, turned in a pair of 62.5's and then outkicked the Illini with a 58.1 last lap.

Hill knew LaBadie was beaten "10 yards from the finish. On film, I had a 25-yard lead when we hit the straightaway. But the fans started screaming and I thought he was coming."

LaBadie wasn't. He'd been soundly beaten by a kid who couldn't run at all just three months ago.

During cross-country, Hill pinched a nerve in his back. Therapy and reduced training didn't help. Eventually, he was sidelined for eight weeks.

Hill resumed running 100 miles monthly during mid-January. His teammates logged three times as many miles.

"When David got injured last fall, it was logical to assume he'd be slowed down," a happy coach Lew Hartzog said. "But he's come back real quick. He's ready."

Hill's victory over LaBadie, and later over Gross, sparked the Salukis to a come-from-behind win. SIU trailed, 32-18, before Hill faced LaBadie and Durkin in the mile.

His victory meant five points; the Illini got four with LaBadie second and Durkin third. That narrowed the score to 32-23. And the upset was underway, providing SIU's third win in the five-year old series.

"Actually, it had already started before Hill's race," said Hartzog. "We didn't think we'd get a point out of shot put and weren't sure about discus."

Southern's Kent Kasik finished third in each event, adding two unplanned points.

But momentum truly came Southern Illinois' way after Hill's mile victory.

Bill Hancock (6-11) and Mike Bernard (6-10) followed with a one-two in high jump. Lonnie Brown's 54.2 secured an unexpected second in the 440 intermediate hurdles.

After an Illinois sweep of the 880, Southern Illinois trailed, 55-49.

Enter old Mr. Reliable, Ivory Crockett, and sprinting buddy Stan Patterson. An earlier winner in the 100, Crockett sprinted past the 220 filed in 21.3 seconds. Big, strong Patterson finished in 21.6. That gave the Salukis a 57-56 lead.

The margin swelled to 65-57 when Randy Ullom set a school pole vault record at 15-7 and Guy Zajonc surprised with a 14-6 second place mark.

Then Hill outdid Gross in the fast three-mile field as Southern's Gerry Craig finished third in 14:03.3. The new 71-60 spread jumped to 80-6 when Jim Harris, Phil Robins and Mike Bernard swept the triple jump.

Illinois won the mile relay in 3:12.0 for its final points.

Hill's times were both stadium records as was Ullom's 15-7 vault. Jack St. John's 9:17.9 steeplechase run bested the previous SIU record.

"Nobody surprises me anymore," Hartzog stated. "We feel like the kids can do all these things. I wasn't surprised when David beat LaBadie because I've felt he could do it since last fall."

But just last Wednesday, Hartzog forecast LaBadie over Hill. And now, you've got to wonder how Hill would run if he still ate Animal Crackers.

Sweep twinbill 4-0, 16-0

Salukis unleash homer happiness

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Little Howie Mitchell smashed the first two homers of his collegiate career while Ken Kral, Larry "Moose" Calufetti, and Joe Wallis poked one apiece Sunday as Southern Illinois claimed both ends of a doubleheader with MacMurray College.

Scott Waltemate (3-1) yielded four singles and pitched all seven innings in Sunday's 4-0 first game victory. Rick Ware, with two innings relief from Dan Horn, earned his fourth victory against no defeats in a 16-0 second-game laugher.

Ware allowed a first inning single but wasn't scratched throughout his final four frames. Horn yielded two seventh inning singles.

The victories upped Southern Illinois to a 17-3-1 season mark. A Saturday doubleheader with St. Louis University was washed out but might be rescheduled.

Calufetti's fourth inning grand slam ended a second game homer barrage that began two innings earlier when Ken Kral lofted a Phil Bennett pitch over the left-field fence. It was the No. 2 season homer for both.

Mitchell followed Kral to bat and slugged his first collegiate homer, another left-field shot. The freshman second sacker went 4-5 the second game with six runs-batted-in. He was hitless the first game.

Wallis and Kral were on base one inning later when Mitchell batted again. With Bennett departed, Mitchell picked on reliever Rick Moeller with favorable results. His high fly easily cleared the green fence in left center field.

Calufetti's fourth inning slam also came off Moeller.

Southern Illinois bunched three four-run innings beginning in the second frame against MacMurray. The Salukis added two more apiece in the fifth and sixth. Starter and loser Bennett put SIU down in order during the first.

MacMurray threatened just once, that in the seventh against reliever Dan Horn when the visitors collected two of their three second-game hits.

All told, SIU earned 16 runs on 18 hits and eight walks. The Salukis managed just eight first game hits off Gary Metzger and reliever Steve Burk.

Wallis' second inning homer iced the first game. The score was already 2-0 when he laced a long fly over the center field fence.

Danny Thomas was on base at the time, his double having knocked home Stan Mann who also doubled.

Southern Illinois hosts Washington University of St. Louis at 3 p.m. Wednesday.
