Senate panel kills student 'right to choice' union bill

By Karen Gullo
Staff Writer

A bill that would prohibit employers from requiring student employees to join labor unions was killed in the Illinois Senate Rules Committee Tuesday.

Sponsored by Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, the bill was opposed by the AFL-CIO and the Illinois Students Association. Both groups contend that if student employees are not required to join labor organizations and pay union dues for summer jobs they would not receive union benefits provided by collective bargaining agreements.

Senate Bill 1586 would prohibit employers from requiring their student employees to join or to refrain from joining a union or pay any dues to a labor organization. Under the bill, employers would be required to post a notice of "Students Freedom of Choice" which states that an employer cannot require student employees to join a union and cannot discriminate against students who refuse to join a union.

Regner said union dues place a financial burden on students who use summer jobs to finance their education and union memberships hamper the availability of summer jobs for students. But an AFL-CIO official said union memberships are beneficial to students.

Rich Walsh, legislative director at the AFL-CIO office in Springfield, called the bill "a game." He said the measure would "use students" for implementing right-to-work acts, which would prohibit employers from mandating union membership for their employees.

"Any student paying dues to a union whose wages and policies are set out in a negotiated collective bargaining agreement deserves the benefits of the agreement," Walsh said.

ISA President Beth Curtiss said the organization views the bill as an attempt to use students as a vehicle to pass "anti-labor" legislation.

"The bill is not aimed at students as much as it's aimed at labor unions," Curtiss said. "If students join unions for a summer job and pay union dues, they should get the full benefits a union provides."

Curtiss said that even though student employees must pay union dues for jobs they will have for the summer only, the dues are offset by above-average wages.

Soviet armed forces expanded in Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russian army has increased the strength and readiness of some of its motorized rifle divisions north of Iran, U.S. intelligence sources said Tuesday.

At the same time, Pentagon officials announced that a combat force of Russian Marines with equipment to support a landing force has arrived in the Indian Ocean.

The intelligence sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said the strengthened Soviet army units in the Transcaucasus region of Russia north of the Iranian border also have stepped up maneuvers and exercise.

But these sources exhibited no serious concern that the Russians might be preparing a strike into Iran similar to their invasion of neighboring Afghanistan late last year.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's top security adviser, said Monday night there have been "credible reports" that the Soviet Union had moved military forces into the Transcaucasus area, which lies between the Black Sea and Caspian Sea.

Brzezinski recalled that a Soviet military buildup had preceded the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Meanwhile, the unit of at least 400 Soviet marines entered the Indian Ocean from the South China Sea aboard Russia's biggest amphibious assault ship, the 13,000-ton Ivan Rogov.

This is the first time the Soviet command has committed a combat force of marines, which the Russians call Naval Infantry, into the Indian Ocean region.

The arrival of the Soviet marine force, following the recent deployment of an 1,800-man U.S. Marine battalion into the Arabian Sea aboard a Navy task group, represented another escalation in the show of force by both the United States and Russia since the Red Army invaded Afghanistan.

The entrance of the Rogov and two other Soviet warships through the Strait of Malacca on Monday raised to 28 the number of Russian naval vessels operating in the key waters leading to the oil-producing Persian Gulf, the center of U.S. concern.

On the other hand, the U.S. Navy has 26 ships patrolling those waters, including two huge carriers bearing a total of about 150 warplanes.

U.S. intelligence has kept a close eye on the Transcaucasus region, which stretches about 150 miles north of the Iranian border, because that is considered by U.S. strategists as the natural corridor for any Soviet attack into Iran.

Meanwhile, the hostages in the American embassy in Tehran spent day 164 in captivity. In Paris, Barbara Timm, the mother of one of the hostages, made little headway Tuesday in an effort to obtain a visa for Iran to visit her son, her lawyer said.

Carl McAfee, a Virginia attorney representing Mrs. Timm, said an attempt to meet with the Iranian ambassador was unsuccessful and that the Timm family was told to wait until Wednesday morning when word might be received from Tehran.

Mrs. Timm's son, 20-year-old Marine Sgt. Kevin Hermening, was one of the security guards at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran when it was taken over by Iranian militants on Nov. 4. Hermening is one of the 50 hostages who has been held since then. He is believed to be the youngest.

Richmond sees 'no problem' with passage of sales tax cut

By Jeffrey Smyth
Staff Writer

Keeping in line with a proposed phase-out of the state's sale tax on food and prescription drugs, Rep. Bruce Richmond (D-Murphysboro) said Tuesday that he sees no problem with the passage of a bill that will cut another penny in state sales tax on those items.

Last year the general assembly passed an identical bill that cut the state's share of sale tax on food and prescription drugs to 3 cents.

"This is a regressive tax and it needs to be changed," Richmond said. "It adversely affects those who can least afford it. Those people on limited incomes are paying the same amount in sales tax as those who are not."

"The state has a projected surplus at around $500 million," Richmond said. "It is collecting more in state revenues than is necessary. We want this tax money to go back to the people who pay it. The 1 cent reduction is estimated to cost the state $100 million to $110 million a year."

Last October the Democrats introduced a version of the bill that called for a four year phase-out of the tax. But the opposition from Gov. Jim Thompson and Chicago Mayor Byrne caused its defeat. The 1 cent reduction was a compromise, Richmond said.

"Last year, Byrne was concerned with the impact such a cut would have on Chicago's federal revenue funds," he said. "The governor agreed to oppose the cut in exchange for Byrne's support on another bill. It was a trade-off."

"This year's cut is the same amount the governor put on his proposal," Richmond added. "There is no opposition to the bill, and its passage should be routine. The cut should go into effect on Jan. 1."

Richmond said the tax is being reduced incrementally so the governor and the legislature can study its effects as the state moves toward the goal of eliminating the tax.

"Recession talk, the murkiness of our economy and lack of knowledge on where we stand in other areas of the federal budget pining make a 1 cent reduction this year seem most practical."

Richmond said that, like last year's bill, the tax cut will not affect local government taxes of the same items.

City may issue industrial bonds to finance private businesses

By Mary Harmon
Staff Writer

Although growth and expansion have been tagged as being among the city's priorities, the problem of where to move dislocated businesses and how to attract new establishments appears to be a stopping block in that push for progress.

However, the city may find a solution to that problem in an ordinance discussed, though not passed, by the City Council Monday night.

Proposed by City Manager Carroll Fry last month, the ordinance would authorize the city to issue industrial revenue bonds for the financing of new and relocated businesses at a lower interest rate than is available through conventional financing.

If the ordinance is passed, the city, though risking no liability for itself, would issue tax-exempt bonds as an investment to others. The proceeds from the sale of the bonds is, in effect, lent to the private developer.

Depending on the guidelines set for enacting the ordinance, the city could receive a percentage of the money "lent" to the developer and might require the developer to place some of the loan up front before bonds are issued.

The guidelines, as well as the proposed ordinance, will be further discussed at the council's May 12 meeting.

The financing scheme is considered legal in Illinois, Fry said. When he first proposed the ordinance, but a local ordinance passed through the city's home rule powers would authorize Carbondale to issue the bonds to spur commercial development. John Stoddard and John Stone of Goss Realty, and Gary Parrish, manager of A.G. Edwards, a stock brokerage firm, presented to the council reasons why the city should pass the ordinance.

Carbondale has the potential to attract 235,000 people in regional trade but because of high interest rates on mortgage loans and high construction costs, the city has had difficulty providing an incentive to interested businesses. Stoddard said, adding that the city must now compete with area towns to attract those potential businesses and their trade.

Because SIU anticipates a stabilization in enrollment and because surrounding towns are located closer to the shipping lanes of Interstate 57 than is Carbondale, the city must provide a reason for a businesses' settling here. Stoddard said.

That reason, Stoddard said, would be the city's help in financing those businesses.

"The past causes of growth in Carbondale have blossomed and are at a point of maturity. If the city doesn't grow, the surrounding towns will grow at Carbondale's expense," he emphasized.

Stone pointed out that added jobs and a wider tax base for the city are among the reasons the council should pass the ordinance.

He explained that the tax base is not increased by relocation. But, construction or expansion, which would widen the tax base, has been prohibited by the high costs.

"The council can't do anything about high construction costs, but it can make financing available," he said.

"I turn down more people than I can help. When someone comes to me and says he needs 6,000 square feet, I have to say I can't help him."

He said that businesses have indicated to him an interest in locating in the city, but that high interest rates have prevented them from doing so.

"If the city doesn't do something soon, I doubt that they will come here. They will probably relocate elsewhere."

American media coverage of Iran stretches the truth, says journalist

By Andrew Zinner
Staff Writer

The images of Iran that are being transmitted back to the United States by the American media are far from the truth, according to an American journalist and a cameraman who recently returned from Tehran.

Elaine Baly covered the hostage situation in Iran from Dec. 13 to Feb. 14 as part of an independent TV news and documentary team. She and Michael Frenchman, who took tape footage of events in Tehran, spoke to a near-capacity crowd in the Student Center Video Lounge Tuesday.

Baly said American propaganda has created "an unreal picture of the country." She maintained that many American media owners are friends of U.S. government policy-makers, and pressure is brought to bear on the media owners not to reveal sensitive issues.

Baly and Frenchman gave a videotape presentation titled "The U.S.-Iran Conflict, A Close Up Look." It consisted of three videotapes never before shown on television.

Frenchman, an SIU graduate, emphasized that the most-influential American media "performers," like Walter Cronkite and Barbara Walters, "fell under the spell" of the former shah, while the press of other nations including France and Britain have more accurately reported Iranian affairs for some time.

"There is a willful attempt to portray confusion in the revolutionary government, but I've seen a democracy being built," Frenchman pointed out.

He suggested that "someone has something to hide" from the American people, and added that President Carter is using the hostage crisis "150 percent" in his re-election bid.

The videotapes included interviews with several Iranian citizens who said they were imprisoned and tortured by the ex-shah's CIA-trained SAVAK secret police.

Frenchman also charged the U.S. government with "clandestine activities designed to destabilize the revolutionary government," and said such activities took place right up until the embassy takeover.

He also charged the major American television networks with censoring news film clips, pointing out that when NBC televised a 10-minute portion of the Christmas tape of the hostages, they only showed what the editors wanted the American public to see.

Baly and Frenchman's presentation was sponsored by the Coalition of Progressive Social Scientists.

Boycott gaining international support

By The Associated Press

President Carter's proposed international boycott of the Moscow Olympics began to take shape Tuesday as Britain and Australia joined the list of nations putting renewed pressure on their athletes to stay away.

Countries favorable to the boycott plan were known to have been waiting to see what the U.S. Olympic Committee did before making their decisions.

And Carter began to pick up the international support he sought in the wake of the USOC's 2-1 vote Saturday in favor of the boycott.

Carter first called for the boycott in January because of the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Ford plans to eliminate 15,000 jobs

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — In a drastic manpower and production cutback, Ford Motor Co. announced Tuesday it will close three plants and cut production in half at four others, eliminating 15,000 jobs.

The cuts, designed to save $1.5 billion a year, will reduce Ford's assembly capacity by 14 percent, or 48,000 vehicles a year.

They mean layoffs for 8,900 blue-collar workers, including 965 in Canada, by the end of summer. An additional 6,100 salaried positions will be terminated by a combination of layoffs, resignations and retirements by the end of 1981.

said Harold A. Poling, executive vice president in charge of North American Automotive Operations.

Before Tuesday's announcement, the No. 2 automaker had 43,290 production workers on indefinite layoff and had reduced its U.S. salaried employment by about 8,000 in the past six months.

Existentialist Sartre dead at 74

PARIS (AP) — Jean-Paul Sartre, whose existentialist view of man as the maker of his destiny placed him among the giants of modern philosophy, died Tuesday after a month-long illness.

The 74-year-old French writer-philosopher died at 1 p.m. at Broussais Hospital in Paris, surrounded by a few close friends, said one of those present, Liliane Siegel, author of a book on his life.

Sartre's writings expounded the theory of man as a responsible but lonely being, burdened with the terrifying freedom of choice — the only freedom worth fighting for, he often said.

The iconoclastic Sartre was awarded the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1964, but refused to accept the prestigious prize to mark his contempt for what he called bourgeois honors.

Code enforcement results take time

This is in response to the letter by Ed Eytalis in the March 31 DE.

We have dealt with a poor landlord by asking for help from Code Enforcement. I'm sorry to report that all we got was "we'll see what we can do." "We can't help you there," and "if she refuses to fix it, there's nothing we can do but give her a ticket. It won't come to court till long after you are gone."

In December, before break, we called Code Enforcement to check out our house. We also made an appointment with the student attorney and asked our landlord (for the x-numbered time) to fix small things in our house. When I say small things, I mean: a hole behind the stove where mice were entering, inadequate heating (Code Enforcement only requires your house to be 65 degrees, and cars not how it is accomplished), freezing water pipes, no storm windows or plastic, rotting porch floors, broken and unanchored electrical outlets, openings in the foundation wall and no outer wall to keep warm air in the house on the upper front porch, among other things. We were promised last May that many of these things would be fixed. We also waited all summer for bug spray that never appeared.

The first week of January, we saw the student attorney. The second week in January, Code Enforcement came to inspect. By Jan. 30 our landlord was supposed to have all code violations repaired. She didn't.

In mid-February, after numerous phone calls, Code Enforcement came to reinspect. They gave the landlord one more week. We reported to them at that time that she had done nothing and they issued her a ticket.

Meanwhile, out utility bills are $100 to $120 and rising. The water bill has doubled because of a leak she won't fix, the cats and birds from the neighborhood are coming through the ceiling, the bugs and mice are moving in and not paying their share of the rent, our house is 60 degrees Fahrenheit and holding, we heat half of Carbondale and stand the chance of electrocution every time we plug in a hair dryer in my room. And for all these conveniences we pay $400 a month.

You may ask "why are you living there?" Well, a lot of things weren't evident until winter hit. We were told by past renters that our landlord was fair and quick in fixing things. They lied. And, visually, our house is nice. It's just not structurally sound.

So, if you have problems, call Code Enforcement by all means. But just don't expect anything to happen too soon. You'll be disappointed and may become disheartened with the city and its system of fairness to all citizens. Denise Vahlkamp, Graduate, AGEM

Four-day week 'disastrous'

Andrew Zinner's proposal for a four-day work week as stated in April 9 DE would be disastrous to any college curriculum.

We students pay large sums of money for our college education and most of us make an attempt to reap the full benefits by regularly attending classes, including Fridays. In many courses the instructors have difficulty covering all the necessary information when the class meets three times each week. How much more would have to be deleted in a two-day per week class schedule.

Zinner stated that a shorter week would relieve some pressure on students. However, Zinner's proposal lessens, even more, the number of class periods for working and instruction. The students and faculty would be under even more pressure to make the shortened deadlines.

Zinner's answer to this problem is that students could use the day off to study, but then he proposes that "Golf and tennis (among other things) could replace lectures and labs." How much studying can be done in conjunction with these activities unless you are enrolled in GSE 104H (golf)?

Many students presently find it hard to study over the two-day weekends, as they probably would not study any more if they had a three-day weekend. This equal study time plus less classroom instruction would only lower the academic status of SIU-C.

True, Friday tests would be eliminated. But, if Thursday was made the last school day each week, would students feel any better about taking "Thursday" tests? What Zinner really wants to do is eliminate the last work day each week. — Paul J. Pannier, Freshman, Architectural Technology

Please don't forget public broadcasters

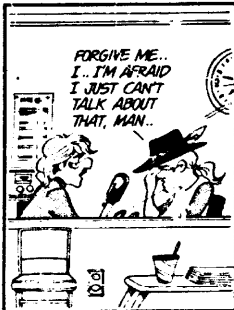

Well another semester of Radio and Television seminars are over and again we feel left out. The department does a very good job organizing these seminars, and they are a needed part of the department. But again public broadcasting was left out, that poorer cousin of commercial broadcasting.

We interested in public broadcasting are a minority in the department, but we would like to meet professionals in the field. We don't ask for a seminar devoted to us, but for example, if a sales seminar is being held, how about someone coming in to talk about underwriting?

Public broadcasting is as much or more interested in money as is commercial broadcasting. Please don't leave us out. We're here to learn how to become competent professionals if not the best.

And in case the department forgets, all of the broadcasting facilities in the department are public. That's where quite a few of us get our experience. We're not asking for any major changes only for some growth and expansion, and maybe some recognition. — Diane Shorter, Junior, Radio-Television

Attitudes play role in energy conservation

associate editorial page editor

Until U.S. policymakers delve into the psychological aspects of energy use, America... will continue to flounder in a sea of energy uncertainty.

A growing awareness of the energy crisis has led lawmakers in many positive directions. Some cities have initiated building codes requiring more insulation and passive solar systems for new structures. Still others have advanced more boldly, requiring all existing buildings to be newly "weatherized" within a specific time frame.

Even Carbondale has jumped on the energy-conservation bandwagon with its energy officer to monitor fuel use and the weatherization of older municipal buildings. The new solar-powered Federal Building is another Carbondale advancement toward decreased energy use.

However, these positive movements toward lessening energy consumption will do little to solve energy shortages until more attention is given to redirecting individual attitudes, and less toward condemning energy waste.

Studies have shown that different people living in the same structure have different levels of energy use. While some turn up thermostats in the winter, others' peak energy use is in the summer.

Much of this variance can be attributed to beliefs—often amounting to little more than old wives' tales that a well-heated house is crucial to good health or driving a big car is essential to safety.

But since such beliefs are often deeply instilled in many Americans, lawmakers must turn their campaigns away from haranguing the energy hog to educating the public on the particulars of energy use.

Psychological studies from as early as the 1960s have shown that an individual's performance usually improves when told how well a task is being performed. To capitalize on this knowledge, utility companies need to take special notice of individual household use, noting increases and praising decreases in consumption. A counterpart to the service charge could be initiated, giving conservers a discount.

Strengthening this awareness campaign, the government needs to direct funds toward establishing a corps of trained specialists to help individuals diagnose the energy-conservation potential of their homes and businesses. Such an example of encouragement would go a lot further than condemnation and "no-energy" scare tactics.

Although energy conservation is only a short-term answer to the energy crisis, it could buy enough time for development of alternative energy sources. And with the thermostat representing what is probably the most effective household energy conservation tool, individuals control our energy future. So come on, legislators. Turn your energies in a positive, educating direction, and leave the crisis-scare rhetoric to the less informed.

Send my Yamaha home

memories of my beloved Yamaha.

Oh, and Carbondale police, I'm really not ripping off my insurance company; basically, because I don't have money to pay for it. Oh, and by the way—have you started looking for my bike yet?—Jorge Jaramillo, Senior, Accounting

Amityville investigators report findings

By Carrie Sweeney
Staff Writer

George and Kathy Lutz and their three children fled their house at 112 Ocean Ave., Amityville, Long Island, only 28 days after they moved in. Terrified by an unknown and unexplained phenomena, the Lutzes left behind all of their personal belongings in search of safety.

As they fled, they had one question in mind. Why us? Why our house?

The investigation of the Lutz house, and its history by Ed and Lorraine Warren, has given the Lutzes answers to these questions. The Warrens shared these answers, and other case histories that support their psychic findings, in a slide and lecture presentation Monday in the Student Center.

The history of the Lutz's property seemed to be what attracted the psychic phenomena to this house.

The Indians had an enclosure on the edge of the Amityville River where they kept the sick, mad and mentally ill.

Later, a man named John Letchum, who was ousted from Salem, Mass., for practicing witchcraft, came to Amityville. When he died, Mrs. Warren said, his body was buried on the property near where the boathouse stands today.

The DeFeo family, the previous occupants who were murdered, were easy for the Warrens to check on, for they were well known in the community.

The DeFeo's neighbors observed some unusual behavior from the family during the last few months that they were alive. For instance, Mrs. Warren said, although they were not religious people, Mr. DeFeo had brought in a priest from Montreal to bless the house. The priest stayed one week.

After the visit, DeFeo purchased religious statues and placed them around his property. He told his neighbors that he did this because "he had a devil on his back." This they interpreted to be his son, Ron.

"Ron abused drugs, and this set him up to be used. Ron, 23, was involved in the black arts and he stated, at the time of his court trial regarding the murder of his entire family, that voices had instructed him in carrying out the crime," Mrs. Warren said.

Warren asked, "Was it natural or unnatural that seven shots from a high powered rifle were fired in that house, and yet the other members of the family who had not been murdered were not awakened? Or that the neighbors, less than 50 feet away, did not hear a thing? I think it's quite unnatural."

The Lutzes, newly married, had the opportunity to buy the DeFeo house, worth $200,000, for only $80,000. Lutz, with no belief in God or the supernatural, laughed off the superstitions.

"George told his wife, 'Kathy, when the dead are dead, that's it, and in no way can they affect the living,'" Mrs. Warren said.

The Lutzes purchased furniture from the DeFeo estate, and slept in the same beds that the former family had been murdered in while they slept.

The phenomena, however, started to manifest itself when a priest was asked to bless the house. Although not religious, Lutz only took this suggestion from a friend because his house had been the site of New York's worst mass murder.

It was at this time that the bizarre happenings began for the Lutz family. Missy, the only daughter, was frequently visited by a pink pig named Jody and a little boy who said he was her friend. A photograph taken while the Warrens were visiting the house, shows a picture of a little boy hiding in the doorway. There was, according to Warren, no one living at the house.

What followed for the Lutzes were instances such as powerful bursts of wind throughout the house, red beady eyes staring through the windows, green slime, voices, flies, and the sound of a marching band in the downstairs foyer.

Lutz, an ex-marine, didn't believe that something invisible and intangible was bringing all of this about. According to Warren, Lutz thought someone was entering his house and trying to get him and his family to move out.

Lutz changed his mind when he saw his wife levitate to within one foot of the ceiling. At this time, he knew that he had no control over whatever was in his house and so, 28 days after moving in, the Lutzes fled.

Lutz and his wife left all of their belongings—antique furniture, china, silver, coin collections, family albums, a speedboat, customized motorcycles, clothes and food. All that they had valued was later sold at public auction for $1,400.

The question asked by most is: will this phenomena kill again? According to Warren, it already has.

After the Lutzes left, a woman and two men entered the home to remove the food for the Salvation Army. They were told not to linger, and they did. Three weeks later, the girl shot and killed one of the men. The other man suffered from nightmares so badly that he is now in a mental institution, Warren said.

A team of reporters and photographers from People magazine saw their car burst into flames while parked in the driveway. And yet, Warren said, they didn't report this in their story.

The author of the book, "The Amityville Horror," suffered a severe heart attack while writing. He gave the manuscript to a friend, who later that night drove his car through a 12-foot-deep puddle on a highway and was killed. The next day, everything in the car but the manuscript was wet.

When the book was delivered to a lady to type, she and her three children suffocated in a fire later that same evening, Warren said.

'Kramer' takes 5 top Oscars

All of Hollywood was predicting a "Kramer Year" at the 52nd annual Academy Awards ceremonies held Monday night in Los Angeles. As a result, it came as no surprise when "Kramer" took home five of the top awards presented, including the Oscar for best picture and another to Dustin Hoffman for best actor. Robert Benton, "Kramer's" director and screenwriter, was honored twice; as the year's best director and also for writing the best screenplay based on material from another medium.

Meryl Streep, also in "Kramer," was honored as the best supporting actress of the year in her second try for that award. She was nominated last year for her performance in "The Deer Hunter." Hoffman had been nominated three times previously—for "The Graduate," "Midnight Cowboy" and "Lenny"—but had never won.

In other top awards, Sally Field was given the best actress award for her performance in "Norma Rae." Melvyn Douglas' performance in "Being There" scored a minor upset by outpointing Robert "Apocalypse Now" Duvall in the race for the best supporting actor honors.

Bob Fosse's "All That Jazz"—nominated for nine awards just as "Kramer" was—won four Oscars, including the honors for best art direction.

The award for best original screenplay was given to Steve Tesich for "Breaking Away."

USO planning second rally for Davies Gym renovation

By Charity Gould
Staff Writer

A second rally supporting the renovation of Davies Gymnasium is being planned by the Undergraduate Student Organization after the first was rained out, Pete Alexander, USO president, said.

Last Friday, the USO sponsored a rally in front of the building from 8 a.m. to noon to make people aware of what they called the "hazards" in the 55-year-old structure.

But rainy weather cut the rally short after only two hours.

Alexander said that only a few students attended the rally. But he said about 250 flyers describing the condition of Davies Gym were distributed to students at Shryock Auditorium, the women's intercollegiate athletics office and the U.S. 51 pedestrian overpass during the day.

"If we reached that many students on a rainy day, on a clear day we should do that much better," Alexander said. "I have to believe it (the rally) will work. The governor can only be impressed with the number of students interested in renovating the gym."

Sue Crusoe, USO public relations commissioner, said the building is plagued by dangers.

"I think there are many students who don't know what kind of shape the building is in," she said. "The rally is an opportunity for students to take a look at the gym and see for themselves how bad it is."

State Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, introduced legislation April 4 that would appropriate $3.351 million for the gym's renovation.

Richmond said the renovation is No. 15 on Thompson's priority list.

Athletics study at U of I proposed

URBANA (AP) - Chancellor John Cribbet of the University of Illinois said Monday he may call for a study to determine whether the school's system of athletic administration should be changed.

He said he did not know of any particular problems at Illinois, but "we know that eternal vigilance is the price not only of liberty but of educational excellence. I do not propose to follow a hands-off attitude that says, 'Go ahead and win. Don't bother me with the details.'"

Cribbet, in a speech for the campus Senate, said Illinois was the only university in the Big Ten, and one of the few in the nation, with a separate corporation to operate its intercollegiate athletic program.

He said he was not certain that having an athletic association for that purpose was the best system for the athletes, the fans, the faculty and the staff, but he might call for a study to find out.

Cribbet, who became chancellor in December, expressed concern about some of the recent scandals involving major university sports programs.

"At the root of the problem lies intense economic pressure that is breeding an emphasis on winning by any means, including dishonesty," said Cribbet, who was dean of the law school for 12 years. "It is a matter of institutional integrity and must be the concern of presidents and chancellors."

He said he would like to see Illinois sports teams win.

"But I would rather lose, after a vigorous struggle, and play by the rules than win by cutting corners and by smearing the reputation of a distinguished university."

Student is arrested, escapes, returns

By Leanne Waxman
Staff Writer

An SIUC student who was arrested on a shoplifting charge earlier this week escaped from the Carbondale Police station through a first floor bathroom window but turned herself in about five hours later, police said.

Ruelene I. Grant, 18, of 506 Schneider Hall was arrested at about 4:15 p.m. last Sunday after police had allegedly found her in possession of about $200 worth of stolen merchandise from four stores in the University Mall and the K-Mart Plaza.

Grant was taken to the police station for processing and requested to use the washroom where she climbed through the window. She returned to the station at about 9 p.m.

Grant was released on a recognizance bond and is charged with four counts of shoplifting and one count of escape. All charges brought against her are misdemeanors, police said.

Campus Briefs

A delegation of film makers from the People's Republic of China will be on campus Wednesday and Thursday. Te Wei, head of the Shanghai Animation Film Studio, and Chen Xuyi, first deputy director of the Shanghai Film Dubbing Studio and a veteran writer and director in theater and film, will attend the screening of an animated feature-length film titled "Uproar in Heaven," to be shown from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesday in Davis Auditorium. Admission is free.

The Office of International Education is undertaking a study of the overseas experiences of U.S. students for data to develop a program of advisement about overseas opportunities. Any students who have worked, studied or traveled overseas may obtain a brief questionnaire from Hyon Chong, Lee, Woody Hall, Room C-222, 453-5774-6.

Human Sexuality Services will present a workshop about intimacy which will examine factors involved in developing intimacy, what it is and what it isn't, how to get it and how to keep it at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Illinois Room.

Susan Watkins, apparel design teacher at Cornell University, will speak about the design and production of clothing for specific purposes and provide examples at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Lawson Hall, Room 171. Watkins has designed clothing for fire fighters, hockey players, miners, skiers and drug enforcement agents.

2 GSC candidates discuss fiscal conservatism

By Mimi Jarzemsky
Staff Writer

Fiscal conservatism is the major issue Graduate Student Council presidential and vice-presidential candidates will be addressing at Wednesday's GSC elections.

Presidential candidates Pat Melia, the GSC's higher education department representative, and Debbie Brown, the GSC's English department representative, said inflation and budgetary restrictions will require the council to be tighter with their money next year.

Melia, the GSC's vice-president, is running with Wendy Broadbooks, the GSC's guidance and educational psychology department representative.

Broadbooks said she and

Melia "want to make sure there is equitable distribution of fees and establish what the thrust of GSC funding is."

With the changes in administration taking place, Broadbooks said they want to get on good standing with the administration and "gain and maintain respect on a professional level."

Melia said he thinks SIU-C Chancellor Shaw may be uncomfortable with the seven constituency groups on campus.

"I think Shaw is uncomfortable with seven constituency groups because he came here from SIU-E where they only have three constituency groups," Melia said. "We will continue to maintain that there are distinct differences between a doctor, student and an 18-year-old freshman and that we need to maintain two separate constituency representatives because there is a different thrust academically and socially between the two groups."

Brown, who is running as an independent candidate, said the council came close to spending all of its money this year and there is "no way to avoid fiscal conservatism."

A change in the GSC's traditional policy is needed, she said.

"The GSC policy is to react to issues and generate and promote the welfare of the graduate students. I wouldn't change that, but I would stress that we need to initiate new programs and that we need to be more creative and dynamic," she said.

Rob Seely, the GSC's representative from the political science department said he is running on past experience and was the GSC vice-president last year.

"My platform is that I am financially conservative. There are a couple of cases where the GSC has been abused rather blatantly," he said.

"I take the name Student Activity Fee literally," he said.

"and feel that the council should be funding more social and entertainment activities. I think most of the money should be spent on funding trips and things of that nature, but I feel we could be expanding our money for more social and entertainment activities."

He said that the GSC is not as active in academic areas than it could be and that individual members should be more active.

Unusual USO write-in candidate vows not to put 'foot in his mouth'

By Dean Athans
and Carrie Sweeney
Staff Writers

A new write-in candidate for the upcoming Undergraduate Student Organization election has announced his candidacy, promising "not to put his foot in his mouth."

The main reason he promises not to put his foot in his mouth is because he has no foot — he's a snake.

But to Pete Stadalsky, campaign manager for the unusual candidate, Snidely the Snake's campaign is no joke. Stadalsky says he's put considerable time and money into the election. Snidely received six votes in last year's election, even though he didn't run. Stadalsky says that if Snidely the Snake were to win the USO presidential election, he would give the office to the candidate who comes in second.

"The second-place person would have won whether Snidely had run or not. Though Snidely isn't actually running, more like slithering. He's a snake, remember?"

"Student government is the only way we can make changes around here," Stadalsky said, "but we are not using it. In student government, after everything is said and done, there is always more said than done. This campaign is just to show that many students are dissatisfied. When Snidely wins

Snidely the Snake

I will have proven my point that many students are as fed up as I am.

Snidely's stand on tuition increases, the parking problem and SIU's grading system is a realistic one — he makes no commitments. According to Stadalsky, the reason Snidely does not commit himself to a stand on the issues is Snidely does not stand at all.

"Snidely will not commit himself to one side of any issue until the students tell him what side of the issue they want him to support. He would not make a decision on something that would affect the students based on a personal idea of what is good or bad," he said.

Athletics 'run' in this family

By Rod Smith
Staff Writer

It runs in the family. Athletics and physical fitness run in the Johnson family of Murphysboro. Jani Johnson, a 24-year-old graduate student in exercise physiology at SIU, appears in "Faces in the Crowd" in the April 14 issue of Sports Illustrated magazine. The wife of SIU men's assistant track coach Jan Johnson, a bronze medalist in the pole vault in the 1972 Olympics, Jani won the women's division of the St. Louis Olympiad Marathon with a clocking of 3:07:47, running in 8 degree weather. It was her first marathon.

Mrs. Johnson competed in track and cross country for four years at California-Poly. She ran in five nationals, finishing in the Top 10 three times in the 800 and 1,500. Since then, she has been running primarily 10,000-meter road races.

"I really didn't get started distance running until after college," Johnson said. "I think more people should participate. It's a positive thing. A lot of people who are bored should get physically active and involved. It has helped me a lot and even helped get me jobs."

Johnson feels that running is beneficial for women.

"When I first started, I heard the evidence about running being too much of a strain on women," Johnson said. "I have heard more positive things about women running than negative. I don't think there is really a difference from men."

Mrs. Johnson, like her husband, is also an assistant track coach—for the Lady Salukis. She also likes to swim, dance and play racquetball. Saturday, she won the 10,000 Lifestyling Run sponsored by the Student Wellness Center.

"There are a lot of good races in this area," Johnson said. "I'll be running in the Diet Pepsi race in St. Louis and if I win that, I'll have expenses paid to New York. A runner can be invited to a lot of places with expenses paid."

Johnson said her husband encourages running and gives support.

"I'm self-motivated, but Jan is very supportive. He's a positive influence since he is an athlete," Johnson said. He goes to my races and cheers me on. I can't imagine how hard it would be if he wasn't in favor of my running."

Classic entrants 'select'

In last year's inaugural Classic, the Red team bested the Blue team, 106.35-103.70. White was third, 102.95. The 1979 meet was not held after the completion of the AIAW season, however. Instead it took place on Jan. 20.

Individually, Cal-State Fullerton's Barbie Myslak, a member of the Red team, took first in the all-around with a score of 36.35. Myslak made a clean sweep of all four events, winning the vault (9.50), uneven bars (9.15), balance beam (8.65) and floor exercise (9.05).

Myslak's teammate, another Cal-State gymnast, Karilyn Burdick edged Clarion's (Blue team) Nancy Jones, 34.55-34.45, for second place.

Men's games easier for refs game and let the people ref the game with one of the other graduate assistants helping them out."

During the year, each official is rated at each of the games by a graduate assistant. The rating system is based on a one to five scale with five being the highest.

The areas the officials are rated in are reaction time, confidence, calmness, judgment, consistency, cooperation, knowledge of rules, mechanics of officiating, appearance and attitude, general control and an overall rating.

"Each official has their own file that I keep during the year in order to keep up with their ratings," Harriet said. "After the regular season is played, we look back at each official's rating to determine if he or she is qualified to do the playoffs."

Also, each captain is urged to evaluate the officials that work their games. These evaluations are taken into consideration, also. If a captain does not want a particular official to do any of his games, Harriet will try to honor that request.

When a season is over, an outstanding official is chosen by the Officials Club. Joyce Craven is the club's faculty adviser. Tony Tracy was chosen for 12-inch softball, Sandy Lemon for volleyball, Doug Stephy for floor hockey, Joe Zimmerman for flag football, Roy Inelis for mini-soccer and Pat Ade for inner tube water polo.

Gymnastics' 'select few' to meet in Collegiate Classic

By Rick Klatt
Staff Writer

For those of you who missed the broadcast of the AIAW women's gymnastics championships on the NBC television network last weekend, Herb Vogel has arranged to have an instant replay of sorts—the 1980 Collegiate Classic.

The Classic will be held at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, April 19 at the Arena.

The 17-year SIU gymnastics coach has secured confirmation from 10 of the top-20 finishers at this year's AIAW championships. Included in the 20-person list of "All-Americans-All," the nickname for the Classic, are members of the champion Penn State team, runner-up Utah, Cal-State Fullerton, Louisiana State, Centenary College, San Diego State, Arizona State, Oregon State, Florida and for the hometown fans, SIU.

"There isn't a gymnast in the field who is not deserving and among the highest caliber competitors," Vogel said of the entrants.

"The selection process began last fall when some 5,000 women gymnasts started training for intercollegiate competition," Vogel, the director of the Classic, explained. "The top all-arounders emerged during the winter dual meets, and then state and regional meets narrowed things down to 300. From those we selected our prize 20."

The select few are just that—select. The 20 hold enough honors to fill the SIU Museum. The champion Nittany Lionettes and sixth-place LSU have the largest representation. PSU will have as entrants Marcie Levine, Margie Foster and Lisa Ingebretsen; the fourth, fifth and 15th place all-arounders at nationals.

LSU juniors Jolene Mighton and Jamie Middleton, the Tigers' top-two all-arounders, and freshman Sandra Smith will compete. Mighton was named 1978 AAU high school gymnast of the year and has a lifetime best of 9.8 in vaulting. Middleton took third in the vault at last year's Classic with a score of 8.75. Smith is the pre-meet vaulting favorite as she claimed second at the AIAW meet.

Two schools will be represented by two gymnasts. The AIAW second-place team, Utah, will have junior Diane Ellingson and sophomore Emily May in the field. The twosome placed eighth and ninth respectively at the nationals to lead the Ute's to its 144.15 score.

Division II champion Centenary College will have as their representatives the talented duo of junior Beth Johnson and freshman Margot Todd. Johnson and Todd were the No. 1 and 2 all-arounders in this year's Division II championships. Johnson also won the title in 1979.

Among those entrants performing without an accompanying teammate are Arizona State's Jeri Cameron, San Diego State's Linda Ludwig, Florida's Ann Woods, Oregon State's Mary Aytte, and Cal-State Fullerton's Julie Goewey.

There will be four Saluki participants but only freshman Pam Harrington will compete as an all-arounder. Senior Maureen Hennessy, junior Denise Didier and sophomore Val Panton will compete as a team, compiling one all-around score amongst them.

"It should be a really competitive meet," Oregon State Coach Ron Ludwig said. "There are a lot of excellent athletes. Scores will probably be equal or better than nationals since scores were definitely low at Baton Rouge (the site of the AIAW meet)."

Ludwig will be one of three collegiate coaches responsible for coaching the three six-member squads entered in the Classic. The five-year Oregon State coach will be at the helm of the Blue team. Penn State's Judy Avenor will coach the Red team and LSU's D.D. Breau will lead the White team.

The meet will be conducted in the same manner as a regular season triangular meet, with each team competing against the other. As in regular season meets, individual scores will be kept and added to compile team scores.

Regional test awaits golfers at WSU

No. 1 Oklahoma State. Wow! No. 5 Oral Roberts University. Hey!

And there might be a few "ooohs" and "aaahs" at the University of Wichita Golf Course before the Shocker Golf Classic, running Thursday and Friday, comes to a close.

As Saluki golf coach Walt Siemsglusz sees it, there will be a lot discovered about who's who in midwestern college golf at the 20-team, 54-hole tournament.

"This will be the first meet where we'll get a chance to compare ourselves to a majority of the teams in the region," Siemsglusz said. "To get a bid to the NCAA Tournament at the end of the season, it all depends on how you compare with the rest of the region."

Not only will the region's top teams be discovered, but the Salukis will have a few questions of their own answered before it's over. The quintet of Butch Poshard, Todd O'Reilly, Doug Clemens, Rich Jarrett and Jim Reyburn will once again be teeing off Thursday without much of a warmup.

"As usual, we haven't gotten any practice in this week," the second-year coach said. "That's nothing new. The course has just been in lousy shape because of all the rain. So it's hard to say how well we'll do."

"And I haven't seen any of the teams that will be there this year."

But Oklahoma State's No. 1 national ranking, ORU's No. 5 ranking and Wichita State playing on its home course should reveal a few things.

"Oklahoma State brought its second team to the meet last year, and Wichita beat them pretty badly," Siemsglusz recalled. "Wichita State is the kind of team that when it plays on its home course, it's almost unbeatable."

"Oklahoma State could still win it, though. All I know is I don't think we'll be able to stay with those teams."

Outside of OSU, WSU and Oral Roberts, the field will include all the Big Eight Conference schools except Colorado, Drake, West Texas State and Tulsa will also be there to give the Salukis an idea of the competition to be expected at the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament.

The meet will be comprised of a 36-hole round on Thursday and an 18-hole round on Friday. The WSU course will be tough, but hardly impossible.

"It's not a very difficult course," Siemsglusz said. "A few holes are pretty easy while a couple of holes are pretty tough. We should be able to break 300 each round."

"Breaking 300" refers to the team shooting below 300 for each 18 holes. That figure has taken on a "magic number" image for the Saluki golfers.

"Shooting under 300 as a team is a target goal whenever we tee off," Siemsglusz said. "Once you break into the 280s or 290s, you generally can compete with anybody."

Siemsglusz added that despite the magnitude of the Shocker Classic, the Valley tournament will carry much more significance.

"To get a bid to the NCAA's, you have to win your conference or else just play super," he said.

IM refs prefer men's games

Women referees enjoy officiating men's sports more than officiating female sports in the SIU intramural program. There are 12 women in the program who feel they are less likely to receive hassles from male athletes than female participants.

"I would rather do men's games than women's," Annie Briski, an intramural official said. "In the men's games, I don't get yelled at as much as I would in the women's games. I enjoy being an official. I get along real good with the men officials we have. They treat us real good and they usually help us as much as they can," Briski added.

The IM official is a vital part of the intramural program at SIU, said Lorna Harriet, who is responsible for scheduling over 200 officials for nine sports which begin in the fall and end in the spring. Harriet is a graduate student.

"We have a good amount of officials, but I just wish we had more women who are interested in becoming an official," said Harriet. "The women we have now are very good in officiating both men's and women's sports."

Any SIU student with a current ACT on file is eligible to become an IM official. A test is given to see if the applicant knows the rules of the particular sport applied for.

"The test is not that hard. To pass, the applicant can miss no more than 10 questions, and if you do fail, you can take the test over as many times as it takes to pass it. But you can't take the test more than once on the same day," Harriet said of the hiring procedures.

After the officials are selected, they are required to attend clinics before each specific sport begins. During the clinics, the officials are put into real game situations.

"We try to re-enact just about everything that an official may encounter in a game," Harriet said. "For instance, in basketball we'll play an actual

Lady cagers sign point guard; Erickson to transfer to NU

Connie Erickson, the women's basketball team's leader in scoring and assists last season, is transferring to Northwestern, Coach Cindy Scott announced Tuesday.

The coach also announced that the Lady Salukis signed D.D. Plab, a 5-7 guard from Mascoutah.

Scott said Erickson, a freshman, decided to transfer because Northwestern is located closer to her hometown of Morton Grove.

"The biggest reason she transferred is that her parents only saw her in one game this year," Scott said. "I don't think she was unhappy. She likes the school and she likes the basketball program here."

"I hate to see her go," Scott said, "but she thinks she'll be happier close to home. I wish her the best of luck."

Scott said Erickson informed her of the decision a month ago, allowing the Salukis to recruit Plab, a point guard. Scott said Plab's skills are comparable to Erickson's.

"D.D. plays a whole lot like Erickson," Scott said. "She's a really nice player."

Plab was a second-team all-stater at Mascoutah and first-team all-St. Louis area. She averaged 27 points and seven assists per game. Also a standout softball player, she will compete for Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer's softball team.

Plab is the fifth high school senior Scott has signed.

Earlier, the Lady Salukis signed Rosalyn Bartley, a 5-10 forward from St. Louis; Connie Price, a 6-3 center also from St. Louis; Char Warring, a 6-2 center from Hoffman Estates; and Susan Wright, a 5-10 guard from Bridgeport.

The most highly recruited of those players was Bartley, who averaged 30 points per game at University City High School, Missouri, Kansas State and Kansas, among others, sought her services. According to Scott, Bartley is the best player she ever has recruited.

Other than Erickson, SIU's entire starting lineup— forwards Leola Greer and Mary Boyes, center Alondray Rogers and guard Diane Ruby—is returning next year from this year's 12-16 team.
