Counter-accusations filed by Trojans

By Tony Mancuso
and Richard Hund
Staff Writers

The Undergraduate Student Government elections are over, but controversy surrounding the election continues.

The Trojan Party, tentatively victorious in the elections Wednesday, has filed counter-accusations of campaign violations against the Progress and Student parties. A meeting of the USG election commission Tuesday will determine the status of all parties involved.

"(Initially) we didn't press charges against anybody. We felt we had the support of the student body," Mike Contile, presidential candidate for the Trojan Party, said, adding that the Progress Party first brought accusations.

"We wanted to stay away from violations and stick to the issues," he said. "But now that a losers' coalition has been formed to try to remove us, we are forced to come forward with our own allegations."

"It is quite obvious who the students want to represent them," Contile said.

The election commission, which met after the election Wednesday, found members of the Trojan Party guilty of campaigning within 100 feet of the polling site in Grinnell Hall.

Tim Hildebrand, Undergraduate Student Government president, also said Wednesday Contile and Trojan campaign manager Kris Fabian placed what he called a threatening note on his car and followed him home by car Tuesday night.

Contile accused Hildebrand and his Progress Party of four violations:

■ Hildebrand has no proof Contile planted the note and chased him. Furthermore, Hildebrand openly admitted to the commission he chased a car around campus at high speeds—a violation of the Student Conduct Code.

■ Hildebrand threatened election commission member Steve Gust that if the commission doesn't find the Trojan Party in violation and annul the election, he would make sure the election is never ratified by the USG senate.

■ Craig Jackson, student trustee candidate, was seen wearing Progress Party buttons in the Student Center on Election Day—a campaign violation.

■ A framed note libeling Contile was found in the USG office early Friday morning. It is the Trojan Party's belief Hildebrand planted the note, Contile said.

Contile denied that he planted a note on Hildebrand's car and fur-

Goodall to lecture at University

Thirty years since she stepped onto the sandy shore of Lake Tanganyika to begin a long-term field study of chimpanzees in the wild, zoologist Jane Goodall will talk about "The Chimpanzees of Gombe" tonight at 8 p.m. in the Arena.

Goodall, now director of the Gombe Stream Research Centre in Tanzania, has been credited with the first recorded observations of chimpanzees using and making tools, a behavior previously believed to distinguish man from all other animals, said George Waring, zoology professor.

"(Goodall) has contributed to our understanding of chimps," Waring said. "This has meaning in the understanding of other primates, like humans."

Goodall also has helped to create awareness of the need to protect chimps in their environment, Waring said.

"We need to conserve and protect (the chimps) by not putting them all in captivity," he said.

Goodall said she dreamed of studying and writing about animals in Africa ever since she was a child growing up in Bournemouth, England, according to the Jane Goodall Institute for

Soviets celebrate religious freedom

Christians crowd churches on Easter Sunday

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet television showed Easter masses Sunday and Russian Christians filled churches across the Soviet Union under the new religious freedom of the perestroika era.

Christian faithful across the wide land heard the Easter message of Pimen, the patriarch of Moscow and all Russia, read out in all the diocese of the Russian Orthodox Church.

In Roman Catholic Lithuania, Lithuanians also flocked to churches where they were enjoined to be calm in the face of a threatened economic boycott by Moscow over the Baltic republic's struggle for independence.

The Russian Orthodox Christian observances began

Saturday night with believers carrying candles and marching in processions around the gold-domed churches in the vast land.

"Christ has risen from the dead," people sang during the processions.

At midnight bells chimed and early Sunday Russians went to cemeteries to remember their dead.

In the second largest Soviet city, Leningrad, "it was the first time in decades that so many Leningraders watched the Easter Divine service," the official Tass news agency said.

Also, for the first time in decades, the head of the Leningrad Eparchy was allowed to address believers through the press by releasing "Church Life in the Northwest," Tass said.

Hundreds of churches have been reopened under the reforms of Soviet leader Mikhail

Conduct code changes for cheating possible

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

Faculty members could acquire the power to dismiss students from class when they are accused of cheating, without going through the dean, if a proposed amendment is adopted to the student conduct code.

A committee is in the process of being formed that will consider the amendment this fall, Jean Paratore, associate vice president for student affairs, said.

"The committee will look at the proposed amendment, discuss it and vote on whether or not to recommend it to Harvey Welch, vice president for student affairs.

The Faculty Senate passed a resolution proposed by Don Garner, chairman of the faculty status and welfare committee, requesting the amendment in November.

Garner said the proposal protects the academic freedom of teachers and also protects honest students.

"The federal courts made it absolutely clear that it is constitutional, as well as within due process, for teachers to fail a student cheating in their class without any kind of formal or informal process," Garner said.

Both the Graduate and Professional Student Council and the Undergraduate Student Government unanimously opposed the amendment.

Student Trustee Bill Hall said the faculty does not understand the implications of the amendment.

"A student could be ordered out of the class until the outcome of the hearing," Hall said. "If they are found innocent, they still missed the class."

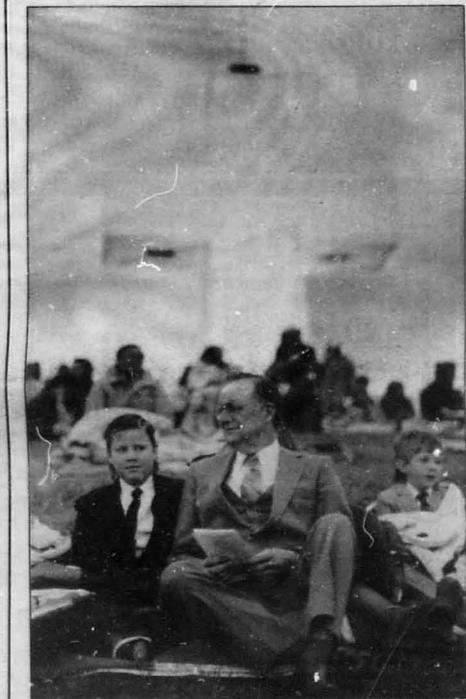

Hall said the faculty has nothing to lose by allowing a student to attend class during the hearing process.

Scheduling problems delay shuttle service

By Richard Hund
Staff Writer

The proposed shuttle service has been delayed for yet another week, Ed Walters, an Undergraduate Student Government senator, said.

Walters, the writer of the bill, said the unavailability of buses caused the two-week trial run to be postponed until April 23 to May 4.

Walters said scheduling of the buses had to be completed two weeks in advance, and he asked for the buses just a week before the trial run.

Fewer people may try the service because of the delays, Walters said.

"I'm a little worried that ... ridership will be down because it's two weeks before finals week," he said. "If we get enough student participation, we could use this all next year."

The shuttle will take a circular path around campus with three dropoff points: the Arena, the Student Center and the Communications Building. Running tentatively from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., each trip will last about 25 minutes.

Walters also stressed that the shuttle has no connections to the citywide Mass Transit proposal.

"This is an Undergraduate Student Government proposal and USG will be in charge of it," he said.

Dawgs take three from No. 15 Jays

The 15th-ranked Creighton Bluejays finally figured out a way to win a game over the red-hot Saluki baseball team.

After losing the first three games of the four-game weekend series, Creighton defeated the Salukis 8-6 in the nightcap of Sunday's doubleheader.

The Salukis fell to 27-6 and 6-2 in the Missouri Valley Conference. Creighton is 28-13 overall and 4-4 in the conference.

After the Salukis tied the score 6-6 in the bottom of the seventh on an RBI single by Brad Hollenkamp that drove in Tim Davis, Creighton came back with

Salukis making bid to gain Top 25 ranking

After winning three of four games from the 15th-ranked Creighton Bluejays this weekend, Saluki players feel they are deserving of a national ranking. The Salukis are first in the Missouri Valley Conference with a 6-2 record. Defending champion Wichita State is 5-3 and Creighton is 4-4.

The Salukis are 27-6 overall. Salukis shortstop Dave Wrona, who went 5-for-8 in Saturday's doubleheader and drove in the winning run in the first game Sunday, said the Salukis should receive some national recognition.

"After we beat (third-ranked) Miami earlier in the season, everyone said it was a fluke," Wrona said. "But I think people

The Salukis put the tying runs on in the bottom of the eighth, but Bluejay pitcher Bob Kennedy (5-

Saluki coach Richard "Itchy" Jones was pleased with his team's weekend performance.

"We had a shot to win all four

The Saluki softball team brought out the brooms again this weekend as they swept doubleheaders from Gateway Conference foes Southwest Missouri State and Wichita State at IAW Field.

The Salukis ran their school-record winning streak to 14 games, while improving their unbeaten conference record to 10-0, 27-6 overall.

The Salukis beat Southwest Missouri State 6-2 and 3-2 in nine innings Friday, then came back Saturday to surprise the Shockers 7-3 and 6-2.

"We're in a good position right now," SIU-C coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said, "but we've got a tough part of our schedule ahead of us. We can't take anything for granted."

The Salukis got fine pitching outings from Jennifer Brown (8-2) and Angie Mick (3-0) against Southwest Missouri.

Brown held the Bears to two runs on four hits in seven innings of work in the first game. Brown is 5-0 in her last five starts.

Mick scattered six hits in her nine innings, allowing just two runs.

In the first game, the Salukis offense was ignited by a two-run double in the third inning by right fielder Colleen Holloway. Holloway was two for four in the contest with three RBIs, a walk and a stolen base.

The Salukis got 10 hits in the second game to carry them to the nine-inning victory.

Left fielder Shannon Taylor led the Salukis with a three-for-four performance. She scored twice and added two stolen bases to her SIU-C season-record 16.

Second baseman Shelly Gibbs came through in the ninth with her third game-winning hit of the spring season. With two out, Gibbs went to right center with the pitch from Southwest Missouri's Patty Birren, chasing home Taylor and giving the Dawgs the 3-2 victory. Gibbs was three for four in the game and scored in the third.

Wichita State came to Carbondale hoping to upset the conference-leading Salukis, but a 19-hit day sent the Shockers home to Kansas with a dismal 1-6 Gateway record.

Dede Darnell (10-1) and Brown combined for the victory in the first game. Darnell picked up the win, working four innings, allowing three runs on four hits.

Brown came on in the fifth inning to close the game. She scattered three hits, while denying the Shockers any runs.

Designated player Jan Agnich sparked the Saluki offensive attack with two hits, including a double in the sixth, and two runs.

Lisa Robinson (6-3) went the distance in the nightcap. She allowed two runs on three hits. Robinson held the Bears hitless in all but the third inning.

Errors plagued the Saluki defense all weekend, as they had 10 miscues in the four ballgames.

"Overall I'm happy," Brechtelsbauer said. "You're always happy with four wins, but I'm not happy we're making some of the mistakes that we're making. Right now we're able to cover those mistakes with some offense, but it almost caught up to us in the extra-inning game with Wichita."

The Salukis have a 10-day lay-off before SIU-Edwardsville comes to Carbondale for a doubleheader April 24.

USA soccer wins ISC Cup Trophy

The skies threatened rain and the temperatures dipped somewhere near the 40s but neither soccer team would give an inch in Sunday's championship match.

Iran, a team of older, more experienced players, fought the younger, long-winded USA team admirably for first place and the International Student Council Cup Trophy.

At the end of a second half that featured physical play, the tenacious defense of both teams had not allowed a single goal. Half of the overtime had expired before a tired Iranian team without reserve players, allowed a goal. Then, about three minutes later, another goal was scored against Iran.

The final score was USA 3, Iran 0.

The match for third place, scheduled for Easter Sunday, between United Arab Emirates and Greece, was not played. Greece informed the ISC president they were not going to play on Easter Sunday. U.A.E. won by default. Ali Firouzi, ISC president said.

Team China was selected for the best sportsmanship award. The award ceremony will be Friday at the International Student Council Office Complex on the lower level of the Student Center. All players on the top three teams receive medals and the names of the top three teams will be engraved onto the Cup.

On Saturday, Iran defeated U.A.E. to win a spot in the Championship game. USA defeated Greece to capture the other spot.

Saluki basketball stars to battle Big Ten players

By Kevin Simpson

Three members of the 1989-90, 26-8 Missouri Valley Conference champion Salukis will be on the roster for the South all-star team April 23.

Game time next Monday starts at 8 p.m. at Rich Herrin Gym in Benton. A slam dunk competition and autograph session will follow the 40-minute game.

Seniors Jerry Jones, Freddie

McSwain — first and second team all-MVC selections respectively — and Jay Schafer will team up one last time along with former all-conference Salukis Steve Middleton and Randy House.

Kyle Herrin, Mike Meschede and Jerry Wilson also will be on the South squad.

Potential NBA draft picks Kendall Gill and Carbondale native Steve Bardo will lead the Big Ten all-stars along with Illini teammates Ervin Small and P.J. Bowman.

Indiana, Purdue and Northwestern also will place players on the Big Ten team.

Tickets are $6 each and available at 710 bookstore in Carbondale. Coaches and additional players still are to be announced.

The Salukis have until May 15 to fill their remaining two scholarships.

The Salukis have four national letter of intent signatures for the upcoming season. SIU-C signed 6-8 Ian Stewart and 6-11 Dennis Winfield (both high school seniors) on the first and second day of the spring signing period respectively.

Chris Lowery, a 5-10 high school guard, and Marvin Kelly, a 6-6 junior college all-America forward, signed with the Salukis during the early signing period in November.

Former Saluki center Tony Harvey signed a national letter of intent to play with the Georgia Bulldogs after spending a year at a junior college.

Harvey was the MVC Freshman of the Year after leading the league in blocks, averaging 6.9 points and 5.2 rebounds during the 1988-89 season when the Salukis finished 20-14. Harvey transferred after one year at SIU-C.

Lone mourner is seized by police at Tiananmen Square

Daily Egyptian wire services
 BEIJING — A single protester, realizing that he faced almost certain arrest, sought to honor the victims of last June's Beijing massacre by displaying white paper flowers in Tiananmen Square Sunday. The man staged his brief demonstration, which lasted about one minute, on the anniversary of the death last year of former Communist Party General Secretary Hu Yaobang. Mourning for Hu, a reformist leader popular among intellectuals, provided the initial impetus for last spring's student-led, pro-democracy demonstrations, which were crushed by the Chinese army with heavy bloodshed June 4.

Nepal talks at stalemate; demonstrations flair

KATHMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — Opposition leaders failed during 12 hours of talks with the government Sunday to reach agreement on their demands for parliament's dissolution and formation of a provisional government. Dama Dhungana, a representative of the party Nepali Congress, said the negotiators got nowhere during the long day of talks. "Even until midnight we were only starting from zero point," he said. A rally by more than 3,000 pro-democracy demonstrators outside the negotiations briefly turned violent, with protesters smashing government vehicles and stoning the car of Prime Minister Lokendra Bahadur Chand.

22 die in South African weekend incidents

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Unidentified gunmen ambushed a military patrol in strife-torn Natal province Sunday, killing a soldier and pushing the death toll in a weekend of bloodletting to at least 22, state-run radio said. It was the first death of a soldier in Natal since President Frederik de Klerk ordered additional troops deployed in the area two weeks ago. After a day of fighting Saturday left 20 blacks dead, a military patrol came under attack Sunday morning in the black township of Mpumalanga, midway between the provincial capital of Pietermaritzburg and the Indian Ocean coastal city of Durban.

Yeltsin nominated to run for Soviet presidency

MOSCOW (UPI) — A democratic faction late Saturday nominated communist maverick Boris Yeltsin to run for president of the Russian Federation, the largest of the Soviet Union's 15 republics and a potential power base against Mikhail Gorbachev. The president of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic will be chosen by the republic's 1,026-member Congress of People's Deputies when it convenes in Moscow on May 16 packed with radical legislators who won seats in last month's elections.

Children under six are poorest Americans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Children under age 6 are the poorest Americans, with nearly a quarter of them — about 5 million in all — living in families with incomes below the poverty line, a study showed Sunday. The report by the National Center for Children in Poverty at Columbia University in New York was described by its authors as a first-of-its-kind look at young children who are poor. Only 28 percent of the children live in families that rely on public assistance for all their income, with 37 percent of them in families whose income all comes from employment, the study said.

Explosion rocks Tampa petroleum refinery

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — An explosion ripped through a Port of Tampa petroleum refinery Sunday, killing an oil company employee and starting a fire that forced Citgo Petroleum Corp. to shut down its loading operations. Firefighters in 10 trucks and boats doused the flames with foam, extinguishing the blaze about an hour after it began, said Tampa Fire Department spokesman Matt Ballaban. The blast occurred in a vapor recovery unit designed to prevent petroleum fumes from leaking while barges and tankers unload petroleum at the port. A Citgo spokesman said all its other employees were accounted for and unharmed.

'I Love You To Death' offers comic look at ugly subject

Film Review

By Jeanne Bickler
Entertainment Editor

Joey Boca has extramarital sex on his mind—his wife has revenge on hers.

"I Love You To Death," a new film by Lawrence Kasdan, has developed a unique method for dealing with infidelities. If your husband cheats, you kill him.

This hilarious dark comedy features Kevin Kline as Joey and Tracey Ullman as Boca's wife, Rosalie.

Rosalie is warned about Joey's wandering eye (and body) by her friend Devo, played by River Phoenix. But Devo could have an ulterior motive for telling her this. He is in love with Rosalie.

She, however, only has eyes for Joey, who only has eyes for every passing female - quite an unusual love triangle.

Add Rosalie's mother, who disapproves of Joey, to this mess and the plot gets rolling.

Rosalie knows Joey has been cheating, her mother knows and Devo knows.

Should Rosalie and Joey begin marital counseling? Should she confront Joey with the information and get the flow of communication going?

Not this bunch. The only question they have is whether to off Joey themselves or hire bungling hitmen cousins Harlan and

Cousins Harlan (William Hurt) left, and Marlon (Keanu Reeves) are drug-befuddled incompetents hired to kill a philandering husband in "I Love You To Death."

Marlon James, played by William Hurt and Keanu Reeves, to do it for them.

The unusual casting makes "I Love You To Death" a fun film to watch. All the leading actors shine in this story about a man who loves life a little too much.

Ullman is charmingly believable as the adoring wife who is driven to murderous extremes in her American feature film debut.

Kline, as usual, is an incredible character actor, mastering the Italian accent required for the role. Kline's real-life wife, Phoebe Cates, makes a cameo appearance as one of his extramarital flings.

Unfortunately, this crazy and unlikely story really is true. It is based on the true life experiences of Tony and Frances Toto. As the story goes, Frances made five unsuccessful attempts on Tony's life for cheating.

"I Love You To Death," written by screenwriter John Kostmayer, is the first script Kasdan has directed that he did not write. He is the director and writer of such famous films as "The Big Chill" and "The Accidental Tourist."

Taking chances with the casting makes for an interesting and funny film about love, life and death.

"I Love You To Death" is playing at the Varsity Theater and is rated R.

S.A. Lukis win contest, $25,000 in equipment

By Jackie Spinner
Features Editor

S.A. Lukis brought home the apple last weekend in the Apple Computer, Inc. student marketing competition in Chicago.

The student advertising agency, comprised of 10 University journalism advertising students, won $25,000 in Apple Macintosh computer equipment for its winning "Take it to the Macs" advertising campaign. The equipment is being awarded to the School of Journalism.

Will Parks, account supervisor for the team, said S.A. Lukis went up against four tough schools in the competition.

"Our strongest point was that each of our members put in a lot of time to the campaign," he said.

Valparaiso University, Ohio University, Eastern Michigan University, Iowa State University and the University of Akron competed for top prize.

Janet Hines, S.A. Lukis creative director, said the team didn't expect to win first place.

"When we were announcing the winners, my heart was pounding so much," she said. "When it comes down to the line, you know you either got No. 1 or No. 2."

The team's faculty adviser, David Attmore, a University journalism lecturer, said a competition book, put together by Hines, played a key role in the team's win.

"They had the best book and apparently the best public relations," he said.

Apple had the student in charge of creating a marketing campaign for its company that increased the awareness of Apple Macintosh computer benefits on campus, increased knowledge of the Apple purchase program and announced Apple's Student Financing Program.

"Obviously (the win) reflects the hard work of the kids involved," Attmore said. "They were applying skills learned in the classroom, but many of the skills they learned went beyond what they learned in the classroom."

Parks said in applying for a job, his participation in the competition will show employers that his advertising skills were applied to an actual job.

"It's not just textbook," he said. "We had a job to do, and we did the best job, found the best solution to the problem."

Parks and Attmore agreed that a win for students from SIU-C reflects well on the University and School of Journalism.

"I think it may encourage other students to participate," Attmore said. "It gives advertising majors an increased sense of the value of their major."

Other student members of S.A. Lukis were Debi Edwards, Regina Dawid, Rachel Coston, Dave Balkcom, Heidi Diederich, Kathy Henkel, Diane Springer and Jim Hedge.

Anticipating quake could stifle damage

SHAKEN TO AWARENESS by last October's natural disaster in Oakland, Calif., Illinois officials have taken steps to curtail damage an earthquake along the New Madrid fault might cause. Looking back at the death and destruction inflicted upon those caught in California's quake, one might say that a little hindsight can't hurt.

IF ANY GOOD came out of October's much publicized brush with Mother Nature, it might be the call to preparedness it issued throughout the nation. Those in Southern Illinois especially sat up and listened.

The New Madrid fault zone that extends into Southern Illinois was the site of the largest earthquake in U.S. history. Registering 8.6 to 8.8 on the Richter scale, the earthquake occurred in 1811—a time when massive structures were an oddity in the Midwest.

TODAY, HOWEVER, tall buildings and other massive structures are common in Southern Illinois. Tall buildings and massive structures that were designed with little thought of earthquakes in mind, that is.

Although local experts aren't altogether certain when an earthquake of great magnitude will strike along the New Madrid fault zone, they can agree that one will be touched off eventually. Some experts say the chances of Carbondale resembling quake-torn Oakland are 10 percent in the next 50 years. Others say smaller ones of magnitude 6 on the Richter scale should rumble around about every 10 years or so.

THE POINT IS, we in Southern Illinois will get our due sooner or later. If it happens too soon, we won't be prepared.

Thanks to Gov. James R. Thompson's foresight via Oakland, people in Illinois will be better able to contend with an earthquake if it happens later.

Apparently, folks overlooked the 1811 quake while constructing the first buildings in Southern Illinois. Many of the structures standing today might not exist tomorrow if the New Madrid fault belched.

CALL US COPYCATS, but Thompson has adopted earthquake-resistance standards much like those required in California. Recommended by the Earthquake Preparedness Task Force and University President John C. Guyon, Thompson mandated all state buildings constructed as of April 6 to provide seismic building codes. New state highways also must follow seismic standards to ward off disruption of vital transportation links.

WE ALSO CAN be thankful that this new legislation was introduced before a major earthquake had a chance to rock the area. Consider the destruction after October's quake in California without existing seismic standards.

Americans want a better environment and are accepting changes in their lives to gain improvements. But business has to follow if we are going to bring about any lasting gains — and not just because corporations use most of the resources and generate most of the pollution.

The biggest reason is that business, not the individual voter, dominates the present White House administration and thus, to a large degree, dictates national environmental policy. In other words, the government's attitude won't improve until business

King's Wok gets undeserved criticism

In recent weeks, there have been several prominent articles and letters in the D.E. regarding the issuance of a liquor license for King's Wok restaurant. Predominantly featured in these articles have been the views of Tommy Glisson who has organized a petition against the liquor license.

Having been a regular patron of King's Wok for several years, I am dismayed to see how it has been portrayed in the media. One would get the impression that the restaurant is frequented by large, unruly, drunken crowds. In fact, it is a small, family-owned and family-run restaurant. Some patrons enjoy having a glass of wine with their dinner, and others do not. Never have I seen customers become dangerously intoxicated! Now, however, because their BYOB policy has been revoked, and since there is fierce opposition to a liquor license, King's Wok customers no longer have this option. One can only assume that this will have a very detrimental effect on their business.

Glisson was quoted as saying that he is opposed to liquor licenses in the area "because there are no sidewalks and the highway is used frequently by bicyclers and joggers." He also expressed concern for the Unity Point School children waiting at bus stops. If this logic holds true, then perhaps all restaurants and bars in the Carbondale area should have their liquor licenses revoked. The residents of his trailer park who drive home from these establishments pose just as much danger!

Glisson also is concerned about "trash and tall grass around the restaurant" and states that he believes "that the manner of business conducted inside a business is connected to the outside appearance"... "they have no responsibility in keeping themselves up so how can you assume they can take care of other humans?" Mr. Glisson should be careful about throwing stones. One could easily make similar judgements about his business based on the appearance of his trailer park! Can we assume that he also is unable to "take care of other humans?" Shall we deny his right to rent mobile homes based on "trash and tall grass on his premises?"

In closing, I cannot help but speculate on the underlying motivation of those who are so energetically opposed to this license. Would Glisson and others be moved to argue so vehemently against a restaurant that was owned by Americans? I think not. Perhaps one's energy would be better spent in making peace with one's neighbors instead of pursuing a course that may very well put a hard-working family out of work.—Colleen Moss, doctoral candidate, educational psychology, representing a group of concerned citizens.

Stop slurs! Football program has many merits

Dr. Handler, we have heard enough. So far this past year you have written numerous letters to the D.E. about your obsession with doing away with the Saluki football team. Basically, you have repeated yourself in almost every letter.

Are you running out of insults for athletics at this University? Why don't you go on a rampage against women's basketball or softball? Or what about the baseball, volleyball, swimming or track programs? They don't exactly attract large crowds to their home events.

My intentions are not to insult these programs. In fact, I support them. They should not be abolished by any means. I don't think football should be, either. My point is this: Get off the football program's case. Did you have a football player as a student in one of your classes that didn't have the same views as you relating to Anthropology? Or were you cut from your high school's football squad? Is this what has triggered your vengeance? You act as though this football program is costing you personally instead of it costing the athletic department money.

You dwell on the fact that attendance is down for home football games. Sure, attendance is down, but not out. The way I see it, as long as there are fans still coming to the games, there is still a chance for attendance to increase.

You mention the fact that we hired a new football coach for the 1989 season (D.E. 4/11/90). How can you or anyone else expect a coach to come into a sports program of any sort having none of his own recruits or having basically no idea of how the original players on his team are to work with. It would take a miracle worker to come into that type of situation and pull off a winning season. It also, on the other hand, is difficult for players to adjust to a new coach.

Frankly, I think the players should be commended on their performance during the 1989 season. Sure their record was 2-9, but what you fail to recognize is that five of those losses were decided on the last play of the game. If those five losses had been in the win column, our record would have been 7-4. There's your winning season, Dr. Handler. If you possibly had attended some of those games, you would have known that. (I'm assuming you don't attend home football games.)

These young men on the football team work hard all year. For what? Individuals such as yourself who have no respect for the dedication it takes to play the sport and for students at SIU. I feel they deserve some credit. All you can seem to do is try your hardest to take it away.

As for the issue of finances lost by the football program, I think you should let the athletic department deal with that. After all, it isn't your personal money at stake.—Kim Longenbach, sophomore, athletic training.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, the associate editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a School of Journalism faculty member.

Letters to the editor must be submitted directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

ther denied he pursued Hildebrand, saying he had five witnesses that would testify he was at home during the time in question.

According to Gust, Hildebrand did in fact approach him, but Gust put it off as a bitter statement made in the heat of the moment.

"He told me the commission better do what's right or he would take action in the senate," Gust said.

The Trojan Party has accused Hildebrand of planting the note slandering Contile because, according to Contile, only Hildebrand and the secretary have keys to enter the office, Contile said.

Gust, who found the note, said there is no way of proving who put the note in the office.

Hildebrand said the note left on his car stated someone knew Hildebrand was in the USG office Tuesday night and hoped nothing had happened to the ballots for the next day's election.

Hildebrand said he saw Contile and Fabian drive off in Contile's car as Hildebrand walked to his car. He claims he saw the two following him and passenger Craig Jackson for about five minutes and then followed Contile's car for five to 10 minutes after picking up fraternity brother Sean Newlin.

The election commission warned parties that campaign violations could lead to disqualification, Hildebrand said.

Responding to the accusation that he wrote the slanderous note about Contile, Hildebrand said, "I wouldn't stoop to his level. He better grow up and learn the game of politics. That's child play."

"I'm just telling them (the election commission), 'Don't lose your backbone,'" he said.

Hildebrand also said if the election commission fails to disqualify the Trojan Party and the senate ratifies the election count, he could veto the measure.

"If I don't win with the election commission, then I'll win with the senate," he said. "I foresee a new election in the fall from what it looks like now."

The Trojan Party filed three charges against the Student Party: ■ Lissa Kautne, presidential candidate, was seen wearing a campaign button in the Student Center on election day.

■ Marci Desart, senatorial candidate, was seen tearing down Trojan Party posters and putting up her own in the Communications Building on election day.

■ The Student Party "publicly slandered" the Trojans, saying the Trojans cheated by stuffing Wednesday's Daily Egyptian with negative campaign flyers. It turned out the papers were stuffed by people who were not involved in the election.

Contile said the slander was not only a campaign violation, but that he was considering legal action.

Bill Hall, student trustee who has been through three undergraduate student elections, said none of the supposed violations would have affected the outcome of the election.

"The complaints I'm aware of are minor, unintentional...honest mistakes that tend to occur every year," Hall said. "My hope is the election commission will understand that and submit the election count for ratification."

He said when he ran for election in the past, his opponents tore down his posters, and although he never did it himself or sanctioned it, he has reason to believe my party members tore down the opponents' posters."

He said people can easily forget to remove a campaign button when walking to the Student Center or other polling place.

"That is a legitimate concern," Garner said, "one that can be handled short of destroying academic freedom."

Tim Hildebrand, USG president, said the committee will not adopt the amendment and was only formed to appease Garner.

"I guarantee nothing will happen," Hildebrand said. "The committee won't do anything."

Garner said it is his strong view that teachers should be responsible for grading courses.

"There is a serious effort by a small but vocal group of the faculty to change the code," Hall said. "Students need to take this seriously and fight back, or we will lose our rights. We are under attack."

The committee considering the amendment will be made up of eight voting members, including two undergraduate students, two faculty, one graduate student, one representative from University housing, one representative from student judicial affairs and one academic dean.

Paratore said she will serve as chairman of the group in an ex officio capacity. A representative from University legal counsel will also serve as an ex officio member of the group to help with legal wording on documents.

"(The committee) may not be put together until the first of the fall," Paratore said. "We could possibly do it this summer, but I've found it difficult to get groups going over the summer. Too many people are coming and going."

Wildlife Research, Education and Conservation.

In 1957, at the age of 23, she traveled to Kenya on vacation with a friend. She met anthropologist Louis S. B. Leakey there and stayed on to work as his secretary.

Leakey sent the young Goodall, who at the time had no academic training to prepare her for scientific research, to Lake Tanganyika in 1960 to begin what would be her life's work in the remote interior of Africa. She was accompanied only by her mother and an African cook.

Goodall worked alone in what is now the Gombe National Park. She spent months finding and living among a particular group of chimps that accepted her as one of their own.

Besides the chimps' ability to modify and use simple tools,

Goodall noted their tendency to behave as social creatures that live in groups and communicate with gestures, sounds and facial expressions.

Leakey anticipated that a long-term chimpanzee study in the wild would last 10 years and Goodall said she believed her work at Gombe would take three years, according to the Jane Goodall Institute.

Those who criticized Leakey's choice of an untrained young woman for the job said she would not last more than two weeks. But, embarking on her third decade, Goodall's research has been recognized as the longest unbroken field study ever conducted of any group of animals in its natural habitat.

In 1962, Goodall was accepted as a doctoral student in ethology, the study of animal behavior, at Cambridge University in England. She earned her doctorate in 1965.

Goodall has written two books on her research, "In the Shadow of Man" and "My Friends, the Wild Chimpanzees," as well as a book for children, "My Life with the Chimpanzees." Her most recent book, "The Chimpanzees of Gombe," is an illustrated summary of her years in Tanzania and is readable by scientific and lay readers alike.

Gorbachev, who has told the press that he himself was baptized and thinks it quite normal.

Soviet dictator Josef Stalin had closed all but a handful of churches, using the shuttered places of worship as storehouses and offices.

For the second year in a row, Easter services were shown on Soviet television with the most extended coverage from the Troitsky Monastery in Moscow.

Soviet television also aired parts of Pope John Paul II's Easter mass at St. Peter's Basilica, but did not carry the pontiff's remarks on Lithuania.

In brief Easter greetings in 54 languages, John Paul called on Lithuanians to follow the path of "respectful and comprehensive dialogue" in pursuing their "aspirations."

On Saturday, the pope sent a message to the president of the Lithuanian bishops' conference, saying, "In these hours of trepidation and of hope, I am particularly close to the Lithuanian church."

The pope also met Saturday with top Soviet international affairs adviser Vadim Zagladin and received a message from Gorbachev.

Worshippers across the Soviet Union listened to the Russian Orthodox patriarch's Easter message, which also urged the population to work for Gorbachev's reforms.

"Christ rose from the dead and resurrected us for kind deeds," Pimen said. "Let us always remember how much Christ loved his native land."

"Let everyone work hard for the benefit of our dear motherland which is following a difficult but blessed path of the comprehensive renewal of our life."

Despite the 72 years of communist rule and its atheistic ideology, there have always been more Christians than Communist Party members in the Soviet Union.

Christian believers outnumber the 20 million Communist Party members threefold, and Gorbachev has allowed them to worship as they please.

Shuttle repair work ahead of schedule

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Engineers readying the shuttle Discovery for a second launch attempt were given Easter Sunday afternoon off after the installation of a new hydraulic power unit.

Work to recharge the batteries in the shuttle's cargo — the Hubble Space Telescope — was running ahead of schedule, NASA said.

"Everything's ship-shape. We're rolling up the rug here," NASA spokesman George Diller said. "I don't think it could have gone any better. There was so much room for surprises, but we didn't have any."

Work to fix a hydraulic leak in the shuttle Columbia's nose landing gear system, meanwhile, also was on track for the veteran spaceplane's delayed roll out to launch pad 39A next Sunday — the same day Discovery's second countdown is scheduled to begin on nearby pad 39B — for blastoff next month on a Spacelab astronomy mission.

As it now stands, Discovery is scheduled for launch at 8:30 a.m. EDT April 25 with Columbia following suit in the second week of May, slightly behind schedule because of the hydraulic leak and Discovery's problems.

Blood drive challenge brings defeat for SIU-C

By Michelle R. Walker
Staff Writer

Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. In this case, the imitator beat SIU-C at its own game.

For both the April and November 1989 blood drives, Mizzou sent representatives to observe how SIU-C does it.

Although SIU-C managed to collect 200 more pints more than it did in the blood drive effort last spring, it fell short 242 pints in the attempt to beat Mizzou.

It has taken three times for Mizzou to beat SIU-C in the traditional challenge for the most pints of blood donated during a weeklong blood drive.

Friday, SIU-C collected 431 pints bringing the week's total to 2,203 pints, with a total of 324 first time donors.

Mizzou collected 2,445 pints from April 5 to 13.

"We took notes. We learned from SIU-C," said

Bill Winingear, the blood drive coordinator for Mizzou. "We're not proud. We stole your ideas."

"SIU-C did it," Winingear said. "The challenge had all of our students fired up."

Winingear said SIU-C has strengthened both the incentive and commitment to the Mizzou blood drive effort.

Although SIU-C lost the challenge, it still holds the national record of pints collected during peace time, which is 3,706 pints.

Vivian Ugent, the coordinator for blood drives in Southern Illinois, says that Mizzou might challenge this record in the future. Mizzou will definitely challenge SIU-C again for the fall blood drive, she said.

Mizzou is the only university that has challenged SIU-C so far. Ugent said she hopes others also will get involved and that more challenges among universities will come about. Ugent believes these challenges promote healthy competition.

Canada looks to thaw U.S., Cuban relations

TORONTO (SHNS) — The Canadian government has set itself the task of helping to thaw one of the frostiest corners remaining in East-West relations — the hostility between the United States and Cuba.

It is not the most immediately rewarding of projects, External Affairs Minister Joe Clark acknowledged last week.

Canada's efforts, Clark said, mean that "you apply your influence in five or six different places at different times and expect failure in most of them. That's just what happens when you trade in influence, which is all we have."

It might seem an uphill task at a time when the United States has begun a new television blitz of Cuba that the Caribbean country considers an attack on its sovereignty. But Clark said he detects a glimmer of hope.

The minister said he believes that Washington is beginning to view Central American issues more as Canada does, as economic and social problems rather than political or ideological ones.

But the U.S. view of Cuba, compared with its view of other states in the region, remains "by far the toughest nut," Clark said.

That view was underscored last month when a U.S.-financed news and entertainment TV station based in southern Florida began beaming signals to Cuba. Washington insists the station is promoting the free flow of information.

The Cuban government, a U.S. adversary since the Cuban revolution three decades ago, sees the sports programs, sitcom comedies and travelogues as electronic aggression and calls it a deliberate effort to destabilize the island's government.

"I don't think those broadcasts are very helpful," Clark said.

But he added that he does not believe it is useful to criticize the United States publicly over sensitive Central American issues because Canada has a "very substantial ability" to influence the United States privately.

As for Cuba, Clark said, "there's not a lot of evidence that Fidel Castro is prepared to abandon his approach."

It would be a useful sign if Castro would end his condemnations of political reforms sweeping Eastern Europe, he said.

Volunteers help Southern Illinois disabled vets

By Douglas C. Steinhoff
Student Writer

Congress designates National Volunteer Week for late April

The Academy-Award winning movie "Born of the Fourth of July" awakened in many Americans a concern for the care of disabled veterans.

However, in Southern Illinois volunteers make the difference. "On any given day we could have as many as 30 volunteers working," Jackie Horn, volunteer services assistant for the Veterans Affairs Hospital in Marion, said. "All these people ask for in return is the self-satisfaction that comes from a smile from our patients."

Congress has recognized the importance of these people who give of themselves by making April 22-28 National Volunteer Week.

Thirty-six organizations actively participate in volunteer work for the veterans, according to Rick Murphy, a recreational therapist for the hospital. They provide entertainment, comfort and recreational services to the hospital's 60 plus patients.

"Some organizations sponsor events that take the veterans out of the hospital setting," Murphy said. "The patients really enjoy any opportunity to get out of the hospital environment."

Williamson County Airport recently volunteered to host the veterans at the Southern Illinois Airshow. The veterans are also scheduled to attend a Saluki baseball game, sponsored by the third floor residents of Abbott Hall at SIU-C.

The veterans also participate in weekly visits to The Haven in Carterville, the only facility in the nation built and funded by the American Legion to directly support the disabled veterans.

"We have 13 acres of rolling hills and lakes built to take the disabled veterans out of the hospital and put them back in a home environment," Dennis Griffith, director of The Haven, said. "We are unique in that we get all our funding from individuals and nothing from the federal government."

Council to decide on liquor license issue tonight

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

Carbondale's Local Liquor Commission will decide tonight whether or not King's Wok will be granted a liquor license.

Because of a showing of public concern and the differing opinions of the commission members at the March 20 meeting the decision was postponed until tonight's meeting.

The application for a Class A liquor license by Lin Chang, owner of King's Wok and 611 Bar-BQ, brought protests by some Carbondale residents who started a petition against issuance of any liquor licenses in the Route 51 South area.

Action will also be taken on a Class D liquor license for N&S Kai Restaurant Company, 206 S. Wall St.

Following the Liquor Commission meeting the City Council will hold a meeting and among other things will adopt the Fiscal year 1991 annual city budget if no further discussion is needed. If adoption is delayed then a special meeting will be scheduled before the adoption deadline of May 1.

The council hasn't recommended any changes to the proposed budget of $21,552,370 for May 1, 1990 through April 30, 1991. The overall budget shows a 1.3 percent increase over fiscal year 1990.

Approval of the University Mall Area Development Plan is also on the agenda. PGAV-Urban Consulting of St. Louis has analyzed the demographics of the area and documented conditions that need the city's participation in the mall renovation.

Funding options and levels of financial participation based on benefits to the city after the project is completed have been identified. PGAV-Urban Consulting representatives will answer questions at the meeting.

Action will be taken to amend the city code prohibiting the operation of a sound amplifying device that produces sounds from any boundary line a distance greater than 50 feet during the night and 100 feet during the day. This code will be amended to include the operation of sound amplifying devices in motor vehicles that travel upon the public streets within the city.

Other agenda items include:

- Election of the mayor pro-tem,
- Acceptance of a petition regarding the limit of liquor licenses on North Washington Street,

■ The mayor's appointments to boards and commissions,

■ Providing for the issuance of tax allocation revenue bonds,

■ Proposed establishment of a University Mall special service area number one,

■ Approving the fiscal year 1991 pay plan,

■ Amending the zoning ordinance to permit used clothing consignment shops in the professional administrative office district.

■ Review of a report on the proposed financing of a new water treatment plant.

Legendary actress Greta Garbo dies at age 84

NEW YORK (UPI) — Greta Garbo, the legendary film actress whose name was synonymous with reclusiveness, died Sunday in New York-Cornell Medical Center of an undisclosed illness. She was 84.

Hospital spokesman Andrew Banoff said, "New York Hospital announced with great sadness the death of Greta Garbo." He said no further information would be released at the request of Garbo's family.

The Swedish-born Garbo enjoyed a meteoric rise from a barbershop soap latherer to history's most glamorous film actress. The hauntingly beautiful screen star's fame was rivaled only by her mysterious desire for privacy.

She retired from movie making in 1941 as one of the most impressive box office draws in the entertainment industry. From then she made her home in New York but traveled widely through Europe, always under the cloak of anonymity.

At the pinnacle of her career, she reportedly earned $8,000 a week or $250,000 per picture — vast sums in those days. Her pay was higher if there were production delays.

She lived comfortably, but not lavishly, and throughout her retirement avoided glamorous or conspicuous clothes. She preferred suits of coarse, rough tweed, flat-heeled shoes and the slouch hat that she made famous.

Garbo was born Greta Gustafsson in Stockholm on Sept. 18, 1905, the youngest daughter of Karl Gustafsson, an uneducated day laborer. She soaped men's chins in a barbershop when she was 13. Later she worked as a department store sales clerk and posed for hat ads.

She developed an interest in acting and eventually enrolled in Stockholm's Royal Theater Dramatic School. The Swedish director Mauritz Stiller "discovered" her, changed her name to Greta Garbo and made her the star of his successful movie, "The Saga of Gosta Berling."

Stiller served for a time as the guiding spirit of Garbo's life. He told her what to say, what to wear, and what films she would make. He supervised her finances and coached her in all her scenes.

A turning point in Garbo's career came when Hollywood mogul Louis B. Mayer chanced to see "The Saga of Gosta Berling" in 1925. He urged Stiller to migrate to Hollywood, and the director agreed on condition he could bring his young protegee with him under contract.

Stiller did not do well in the United States, but as soon as American film audiences caught a glimpse of his star, they were hooked. Her first Hollywood picture, "The Torrent," scored an instant success. After seeing her second movie, "The Temptress," author-diplomat Robert Sherwood said: "Greta Garbo knocked me for a loop."

All America echoed his sentiments, and Garbo went on to heighten her reputation as Diana in "A Woman of Affairs" and as Felicitas in "Flesh and the Devil." Her forte was the portrayal of misunderstood women who were willing to sacrifice everything for a memorable passion, and thereafter careened toward an inevitable, tragic fate.

When the talkies arrived, filmmakers were intrigued by the question: "Can Garbo speak English?" She could, with a marked Swedish accent.

The first phrase she uttered in her first sound movie, "Gif me a viskey," became famous. The ads for "Anna Christie" proclaimed: "Garbo Talks!" From then on came one screen hit after another — "Queen Christina," "Grand Hotel," "Mata Hari," "Anna Karenina," "Camille," "Ninotchka." For the last, her only comedy, the ads shrieked: "Garbo Laughs!"

Educational Implications of America's Changing Demographics" beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the Student Center Auditorium.

From 1:15 to 2:30 p.m. the following workshops will be presented in the Student Center River Rooms. Several of the lectures will be repeated at 2:45 p.m.

■ Lynn Weber Cannon and Elizabeth Higginbotham, for the Center for Research on Women at Memphis State University, will discuss "Race, Class and Gender in the Core Curriculum" in the Mississippi Room.

Cannon and Higginbotham will present a second lecture, "Making It: Including Race and Gender in Perspectives on Upward Mobility" at 2:45 p.m. also in the Mississippi Room.

■ Brenda Brush, director of the Office of Equal Opportunity at the National Science Foundation in Washington, D.C., will speak about "Academia and EEO: A Fresh Look" in the Illinois Room. The lecture will be repeated at 2:45 p.m.

■ Mary Fish and Regina Colston from the University of Alabama will offer a workshop on "How Racism Threatens Prosperity" in the Ohio Room. This lecture will be repeated at 2:45 p.m.

■ In the Kaskaskia Room, several films about valuing and managing diversity and racism will be shown. The films will be repeated at 2:45 p.m.

If current population and immigration trends continue, men and women of color will replace white males in the workforce, said a University professor involved in women's advocacy.

Uma Sekaran is the key planner for SIU-C's Diversity Day slated for Friday in the Student Center.

"By the year 2000 there will be 21 percent more Hispanics, 22 percent more Asians, 12 percent more blacks and only 2 percent more whites," Sekaran said. She added that by 2056, white males will be the minority workforce.

She said now is time for American businessmen and educators—accustomed to a workplace and a curriculum that is geared toward white males—to begin "thinking in terms of color, gender, ethnicity, culture, preferred lifestyle, physical disabilities and age" because "we are now living in a new world."

Sekaran, who is also the coordinator for the University Women's Professional Advancement organization, said that through Diversity Day she hopes to "raise the consciousness of the campus" and to "create a more diversity positive environment."

Keynote speaker will be William E. Cross Jr., associate professor of African-American studies and psychology at the African Studies and Research Center at Cornell University. Cross will discuss "The Father's death possibly made killer go berserk

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A gunman who burst into a hospital emergency center and shot four people, killing two, was apparently distraught over the death of his father during surgery earlier in the day, police said Sunday.

The gunman, Bradford W. Powers Jr., 46, of La Jolla, walked up to a nursing station inside the emergency room entrance at Mission Bay Memorial Hospital around 5 p.m. Saturday and began firing indiscriminately with a handgun, then fled the building, police said.

Powers telephoned police in Oceanside, about 40 miles north of San Diego, and surrendered less than an hour later.

Police speculated that the murderous outburst was linked to the death of the suspect's father in surgery at Memorial Bay earlier in the day.

"It is our understanding that his father had been brought in at 5 a.m. suffering from an aneurysm," police spokesman Dave Cohen said. "He was taken into surgery and they were repairing the aneurysm when he went into cardiac arrest."

Edward T. Rooney, 30, of Cardiff, a student emergency medical technician training at the hospital, was killed in the gunfire. Deborah Kay Burke, 36, a nurse, was taken to the Scripps Memorial Hospital trauma center, where she died in surgery around 7 p.m., Cohen said.

Dr. Michael Hughes, an emergency room physician, was shot in the abdomen and taken to Scripps, where he was listed in good condition, hospital spokesman Michael Bardin said. Hughes was not the doctor who operated on the gunman's father.

U.S., Soviet trade agreement in danger of being forfeited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress and the administration hinted at possible economic retaliation Sunday against any dramatic move by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to tighten the screws on Lithuania.

The officials indicated that Gorbachev might be forced to forfeit a U.S.-Soviet trade agreement as the price for cutting off vital goods to Lithuania which voted on March 11 to secede from the Soviet Union.

But while warning that escalation of the confrontation would jeopardize trade relations and "a lot of other things" on the U.S.-Soviet agenda, Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell signaled congressional backing for the wait-and-see approach taken by President Bush.

"We ought not be announcing in advance what we're going to do when we don't know for sure what they're going to do," Mitchell, who returned Saturday from Moscow, told the CBS News program "Face the Nation."

Gorbachev, struggling to reassert control over Lithuania, threatened an economic blockade

Friday as its bid for independence inspired breakaway movements in the other Soviet-annexed Baltic republics of Latvia and Estonia.

In the face of a Sunday deadline, Lithuania's leaders remained defiant. Bush, who earlier termed the development "deeply disturbing," monitored the situation from Camp David, Md.

At the White House, there was no air of imminent crisis.

"We've seen threats before that weren't carried out," one official explained. Gorbachev, the official emphasized, would be measured "by actions, not deadlines."

As Bush weighed his options, congressional leaders and administration officials said the conflict, if unabated, could well lead to a slowdown in bilateral cooperation on a range of fronts, including a key Gorbachev priority—expanded trade relations.

"I look at the arms control issues as being mutually beneficial to the United States and the Soviet Union," Senate Republican leader Robert Dole told NBC's "Meet the Press." "And if we can get a good agreement that's in our interest, we ought to do that."

But in areas "that may only be in the Soviet interest," he continued, "why should we try to be helpful to them when they're doing this to Lithuania and will probably follow up with other countries if they declare their independence?"

An administration official said suspension of some of the initiatives Bush announced at the Malta summit in December to improve economic ties and bolster the Soviet economy—including a trade agreement and observer status for the Soviets at multilateral trade talks—were among the options considered Friday, when officials from the State Department, Defense Department, CIA and other agencies met on Bush's directive to analyze the situation and weigh possible responses.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators are working on a landmark accord that would clear the way for increased trade by awarding the Soviet Union lowest-possible tariff treatment as a Most Favored Nation.

Lithuanian worries loom on holiday

MOSCOW (UPI) — Lithuanians flocked to Easter masses Sunday and the republic's cardinal urged calm "in the face of an impending economic boycott by Moscow intended to punish a recanting of last year's independence declaration."

Moscow, ministry officials awaited orders to set in force a cut-off of raw materials to the Baltic republic which depends heavily on Soviet natural gas and petroleum and manufacturing components.

The threat to cut off energy and other supplies and make Lithuania pay in hard currency for materials raised the stakes in Moscow's struggle to dictate the pace and manner in which Lithuania could leave the Soviet Union.

Tens of thousands of Lithuanians crowded churches in the republic, whose population is 82 percent Roman Catholic.

Catholic Poles who make up 9 percent of the population also attended mass, as did Orthodox Christian Russians.

Lithuania's Roman Catholic cardinal, Vincentas Sladkevicius, urged the republic to "stay cool in the face of an impending economic boycott" threatened by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev on Friday.

Gorbachev gave the Lithuanians until the end of Sunday to rescind the March 11 declaration of independence and other laws he said contradicted the Soviet constitution.

But a Lithuanian government information official in the republic's capital of Vilnius said that no action would be taken on Easter despite the ultimatum.

Christians in Jerusalem observe Easter Sunday

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Thousands of Christians celebrated Easter Sunday with processions and joyful services throughout Jerusalem, but the militant Israeli Jews who moved into a Christian Quarter house remained a source of tension.

The Israeli Peace Now organization held a small demonstration inside the Old City, protesting the actions of the 150 Jews who made a 72-room building their home Wednesday in defiance of Christian Arabs who live in the area.

The Greek Orthodox Church, which owns the sprawling structure located a few hundred yards from the Church of the Holy Sepulchre — built on the tomb where many Christians believe Christ was buried before the Easter resurrection — is seeking to evict the newcomers.

The settlers claim they have a right to live anywhere in Jerusalem and paid a former tenant for the right to live in the house.

Paramilitary border and riot police continued to keep watch outside the building. On Thursday, police used tear gas to break up a demonstration outside the house led by Greek Orthodox Patriarch Diodoros I.

On Easter morning, an Arab woman, speaking Hebrew, told the young religious Jews in the doorway of the house, "I know why you came here: to become Christians."

Yaël Cohen, 26, who emigrated to Israel three years ago from Toronto, said she did not think moving into the building was a controversial action.

Homeless of St. Louis dine on 'Easter bunny'

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — An advocate for the homeless whose invitation to "have the Easter bunny for dinner" drew more than 350 people to a free rabbit dinner Sunday said the true meaning of the religious holiday has been subverted by rabbit worship.

"We too should rise up, for the poor have suffered enough," said the Rev. Larry Rice in a prayer of grace at the New Life Evangelistic Center, a non-denominational homeless shelter in St. Louis.

"We're wasting a food in America," Rice said. "Rabbits all over America are being wasted today because of silly symbolism."

Flyers publicizing the meals said the poor and hungry were invited to "have the Easter bunny for dinner" at the four New Life Centers around the state, which Rice dubbed "Misery."

Besides the hot meals in Kansas City and St. Louis, the shelters distributed chickens and rabbits dressed for cooking Thursday and Friday in Jefferson City and Columbia.

Rice has served hot meals on Easter Sunday for most of the past decade, he said. The idea of serving rabbit this year was appropriate because of the religious message it would send, as well as the animals' overlooked nutritional value, he said.

"Easter to me is the celebration of the literal resurrection of Christ," Rice said. He dismissed Easter traditions such as egg hunts and the Easter bunny on the religious holiday as "rabbitology."

"It's basically paganism, is what it is," he said. Rice also said rabbits were low in fat and high in protein.

Six tables more than 50 feet long were filled with diners at the St. Louis shelter. The catered meal featured broiled rabbit parts donated by a meat supplier, green beans, shell pasta, chocolate cake with icing and buttered rolls.

Volunteers guiding diners to seats wore buttons bearing the slogan, "The poor have suffered enough."

Sack of food, money taken in Zipps cheeseburger heist

By Chris Walka
Staff Writer

Warren Sekula, a 20-year-old junior in administration of justice, and Dan Porter, a friend of Sekula's, did not know Zipps burgers were so highly praised that people would steal for them.

Sekula and a friend had stopped at Zipps Drive-Thru, 710 S. Illinois Ave., to get something to eat at about 12:15 a.m. Saturday. At the restaurant, Sekula and Porter were accosted by five black men in their early 20s and had their food taken, Sekula said.

Sekula said he was pushed by one of the men, having his cheeseburger and $20 taken.

A spokesperson with the restaurant said the employees of the restaurant were not aware of the crime.

Carbondale Police said one of the suspects is about 6 foot and is of a heavy build. The other subject is 5-foot-10, about 165 pounds and was wearing a dark blue windbreaker, police said.

Descriptions of the other three subjects were not available, police said. No arrests had been made in the case.

General to speak on military issues

By Rob Coné
Staff Writer

A two-star general from Scott Air Force Base will be on campus today to meet with graduate students from several University departments and to give a public address on military issues.

After discussing leadership in a closed session with College of Business and Administration and Political Science Department master's and doctoral candidates, Maj. Gen. Frank Willis, Military Airlift Command deputy chief of staff for requirements, will speak at 1:30 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium.

Topics may include the current development of the C-17 cargo aircraft, the re-creation of national security strategies in the face of the changing world and Operation Just Cause.

Operation Just Cause was the recent military action that removed Manuel Noriega from power in Panama.

The general's speech will be followed by a question and answer session.

Willis has served in the Air Force since 1961.

According to Air Force Maj. Wayne Stone, a doctoral candidate in the Department of Management, Willis' visit is part of a continuing effort to develop a professional relationship between the Military Airlift Command and COBA.

"One of our major problems as a school of business is the lack of access to the major organizations that our more cosmopolitan educational counterparts enjoy," Stone said.

Lawn waste now separated from other trash in Rockford

ROCKFORD, (UPI) — Residents of Illinois' second largest city can be fined up to $500 for including lawn waste with their household garbage, starting Monday, officials said.

Any yard waste—such as leaves, twigs, grass clippings—mixed with general household refuse will be left at the curb, said Tom Tullock of the city's public works department.

Tullock said the city is starting to restrict lawn waste now, in advance of a July 1 state law barring lawn waste from landfills.

"We wanted to start early in case there are any kinks in the program," Tullock said.

Yard waste will be accepted by the city's garbage hauler under two circumstances:

■ Residents can mark a garbage can with an "X" the lid and put only yard waste into the container. The "X" may be any color and can be made with paint or tape; or

■ Special two-ply paper bags can be purchased at the supermarkets, hardware stores and discount stores in packages of five for about $2.50.

City officials said the paper bags will probably be the most popular choice. The bags are biodegradable and will be ground up with the lawn waste at the city's composting facility south of town.

The composting site was to have been used as a new city landfill, but permits were denied by the Winnebago County Board and a court fight failed, said Doug Scott, a city attorney.

Illinois officials, educators stress 'Earth Day' message

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Overflowing landfills, hazardous waste disposal, rampant air pollution, depleted rain forests and unsafe drinking water. Environmentalists say America's children will have little left when they grow to be adults.

Organizations, schools and cities throughout Illinois are attempting to make children more aware and more concerned about their environment through activities set to commemorate the 20th anniversary of Earth Day April 22. About 12,000 schools, colleges and universities participated in the first Earth Day, organized in 1970 by Denis Hayes.

All the activities are geared toward improving the environment by the 40th anniversary of Earth Day in 2020.

"It's extremely appropriate that young people are involved in Earth Day events — they're the ones who will inherit the earth," said Virginia Scott, executive director of the Illinois Environmental Council. "They will live through the consequences of the way we treat the earth."

Children are more receptive, sensitive and concerned about recycling and proper disposal of chemicals in the race to protect the nation's natural resources, said Linda Devocelle, spokeswoman for the Department of Energy and Natural Resources.

"Kids are really the place to start if you want to change things," she said. The drive to make kids advocates of the environment includes tree plantings, school activities, poster and essay contests and benefits.

On the state level, the Department of Conservation distributed 164,000 tree seedlings to all the state's third-graders. Gov. James R. Thompson has invited these children to plant their trees at 10 a.m. Friday, the same day and time he plants a tree at the Executive Mansion in Springfield, Devocelle said.

The Conservation Department's Kids for Conservation program plans to have a membership drive, with help from 63 cities and organizations. Information, stickers and 80,000 to 100,000 free, white-pine seedlings will be distributed to current and new members of the program.

The Kids program is open to youths 3 to 15 years of age and boasts a membership of about 80,000.

"When these kids get older hopefully they'll take a stand and make decisions to preserve the environment," said Glenda Burke, education chief for Kids for Conservation.

In addition, many teachers requested and received special lesson plan and activity packets prepared by the departments of Agriculture, Energy and Conservation and the State Board of Education, Devocelle said. About 20,000 of the packets were mailed in January, she said.

"One school or more in each community is aware of Earth Day and is doing something for kids," Devocelle said.

Other children-oriented events include a benefit for the rain forests at Highland Park in Freeport, organized by the Northwest Audubon Society. The proceeds will go to the Children's Rainforest Program.

Congress considering additional air legislation

WASHINGTON (SHNS) — Congress this year is working on a panoply of environmental legislation, ranging from underwater sludge to stratospheric ozone.

But the big daddy of the 101st Congress — perhaps even of the decade — is the gargantuan Clean Air Act, a major A-to-Z revision of the nation's air quality laws. It's the most far-reaching piece of legislation — environmental or otherwise — in Congress today.

The Senate passed its version of the bill, H.R. 11, on April 2 after weeks of debate. Three days later, the House Energy and Commerce Committee passed its version and sent it to the floor.

There are dozens of other environmental bills and amendments moving through Congress. Some are national or international in scope. Others pertain to specific states, regions or communities.

Rindy O'Brien, director of government affairs for the Wilderness Society, said she believes part of the reason Congress appears more active on environmental issues in this session is "because the general public is looking for more environmental protection, and they (members) are hearing that back home a lot."

Another reason is the increased attention to the environment created by the 20th anniversary of Earth Day on April 22.

"Members are trying to point to some good things that they've done on the 20th anniversary," O'Brien said.

Also, the Bush administration presents "a friendlier climate" for environmental legislation than the Reagan administration did, so some members are trying to pass legislation that they were unable to pass when Reagan was in office, she said.

The myriad environmental bills pending are moving with varying degrees of momentum and varying chances for passage. Some will pass this year and be signed into law, some will come close but fail, some have no chance and will die in committee.

Here are some of the more significant environmental measures pending today:

— The House earlier this month passed a bill by Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., to make the Environmental Protection Agency a cabinet-level department.

— The House is expected soon to take up reauthorization of the Resource, Conservation and Recovery Act, the main federal law regulating the handling and disposal of hazardous substances. However, chances for passage are slim, and the bill probably will have to be reintroduced in the 102nd Congress, which convenes next year.

— In the aftermath of the Alaska oil spill, both houses are working on comprehensive oil spill legislation in hopes of reducing the chances of similar catastrophes in the future. House and Senate staff have been meeting to try to reconcile difference between the two bills, which include whether oil tankers and barges should be required to have double hulls and whether to make oil cargo owners partially responsible for spill costs.

— A House Judiciary subcommittee last week passed and sent to the full committee a bill by Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., to increase federal penalties for violations of a wide range of environmental laws. The bill, which sets out fines and prison sentences, was inspired by the Alaska oil spill.

— Reps. Nick Rahall, D-W.Va., and Larry Craig, R-Idaho, have introduced a bill to dedicate a portion of all rents, bonuses and royalties paid to the government by users of federal lands — $99 million in fiscal 1989 — to a new State Fish and Wildlife Assistance Fund to be administered by the Interior Department. The department would turn the money over to the states for fish and wildlife conservation programs.

— A House bill passed by the Science, Space and Technology Committee would establish a national groundwater research program, which would examine, among other things, the extent and severity of groundwater contamination.

— A bill in the House Agriculture Committee would expand the EPA's ability to monitor and regulate levels of pesticide residues in groundwater.

Officials plan protest of Bush plan

WASHINGTON (SHNS) — Some European officials arriving here this week to attend a White House global warming conference plan to use it as a forum to protest the Bush administration's climate policy.

The conference, which President Bush will formally open Tuesday, is designed to examine scientific and economic research related to the threat of rapid worldwide warming.

Administration officials maintain that none of the scientists, environmentalists or foreign government ministers expressing alarm at the warming threat has seriously considered the costs.

The two-day conference will focus primarily on potential economic costs of reducing the "greenhouse gas" emissions that trap heat in the atmosphere and of adapting to possible climate changes.

Scientific, economic and environmental ministers from 17 nations, including the Soviet Union, Brazil, India, Japan and Zaire, will attend the conference, which is largely closed to the press.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

Please Be Sure To Check
 Your Classified Ad Advertisement For Errors
 On The First Day Of Publication

The Daily Egyptian cannot be responsible for more than one day's incorrect insertion. Advertisers are responsible for checking their advertisements for errors on the first day they appear. Errors not the fault of the advertiser which lessen the value of the advertisement will be adjusted.

All classified advertising must be processed before 12:00 Noon to appear in the next day's publication. Anything processed after 12:00 Noon will go in the following day's publication. Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for those accounts with established credit. A 25¢ charge will be added to billed classified advertising. A service charge of $7.50 will be added to the advertiser's account for every check returned to the Daily Egyptian unpaid by the advertiser's bank. Early cancellation of a classified advertisement will be charged a $2.00 service fee. Any refund under $2.00 will be forfeited due to the cost of processing.

All advertising submitted to the Daily Egyptian is subject to approval and may be revised, rejected, or cancelled at any time. The Daily Egyptian assumes no liability for any reason it becomes necessary to omit an advertisement.

A sample of all mail-order items must be submitted and approved prior to deadline for publication.
 No ads will be misclassified.

Skinheads honor Hitler

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — Young white-supremacist skinheads plan to return to Idaho to honor Adolf Hitler on Friday, a week after the state gave final approval to a law making Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday a state holiday.

The neo-Nazi Aryan Nations Church is sponsoring its second annual "Aryan Youth Action Conference" next weekend for U.S. and Canadian skinheads, and like last year the event is timed to coincide with Hitler's birthday.

Idaho officials routinely denounce the tiny church in rural Kootenai County, 10 miles outside Coeur d'Alene and 400 miles north of Boise, for falsely portraying the state as a haven for racists.

Human rights leaders hope the signing of the King holiday bill by Gov. Cecil Andrus last week will make it clear to the nation that white supremacists are unwelcome in Idaho.

"It's just another indication that people who see Idahoans as supporters of the Aryans are dead wrong," said Marilyn Shuler, director of the Idaho Human Rights Commission.

SPC FILMS will have its new member / 1990-91 planning meeting at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center Kaskaskia Room.

Sutton's hiring says plenty about college hoops

Providence Journal

All you have to know about what college basketball has become was in last week's newspaper.

It said that Eddie Sutton had been hired as the new coach of Oklahoma State. The same Eddie Sutton who was the coach of Kentucky when that program went on probation, leaving a disgraceful trail of recruiting violations and illegal payments behind it. The same Eddie Sutton who let his program get totally out of control, heavily influenced by boosters who think NCAA rules are just some minor inconvenience, something to step around on the way to the barn.

Now he's back in college basketball.

And that's all you have to know.

Don't misunderstand. I have always loved college basketball, and I will no doubt continue to love it. The difference is I have no more illusions about it ever reforming. No more illusions about it ever becoming anything more than what it is, a vast money-making machine that long ago sold its soul.

The presidents of various

Players are "walking signboards of vulgar commercialism" schools can talk all they want about reform. Forget it. It's all verbiage, just something to keep the customer satisfied. It's a little like someone who long ago lost their virginity, and now wonders how innocence can be regained.

College basketball is all about winning and making money. Nothing else. It's full of players who never would be let near their respective colleges if not for their basketball ability. It's full of coaches who get rich from sneaker companies, for nothing more than having their players become walking signboards of vulgar commercialism. It's full of administrators who continually look the other way, justifying it all by the money the schools make from the indiscretions. All in the name of education, mind you.

Just how sleazy is this charade? One of the game's new power brokers is Sonny Vaccaro, the Nike sneaker guru. The same Sonny Vaccaro whose brother runs a sports book in Las Vegas. Not only does Nike have many of the country's leading coaches on its payroll, it also runs the Nike camp at Princeton University every summer, where the top high school players walk away with many Nike freebies.

The new book "Raw Recruits" says that recruiting often starts with kids as young as 12, a sorry scenario that can last as long as six years. It also says sneaker companies — especially Nike and Reebok — have massive giveaways to inner-city Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) programs. Not only is this strategy designed to hook kids on a certain brand of sneaker, it also reinforces to kids that their talent is always going to be their passport to fringe benefits.

This dubious practice is so widespread now that certain high school players have publicly said they will only consider a "Nike School." Not a Big East school. Not an Atlantic 10 school. Not a school that has a course curriculum they might be interested in. A Nike school.

The best high school players are paraded like prize cattle, this all-star game here, that one there. They spend the summers at showcase camps, places designed for little else than to put high school kids where coaches can see them. The implication is they are commodities, here in some basketball marketplace to trade their wares for a scholarship. If it all sounds mercantile, that's precisely the point.

Just when the game began sciling its soul is difficult to pinpoint. There's always been recruiting violations in college basketball, probably right after Naismith first put up the peach baskets and chose the first two teams. Traditionally, though, the NCAA went after the so-called outlaw schools, the ones who seemingly sprang up from nowhere. The established schools essentially were allowed to operate any way they wanted.

Only the Tarks of the world.

This, of course, is the same NCAA that said there were no sanctions against Eddie Sutton personally. The same Eddie Sutton who oversaw a program that paid players, arranged for people to take SAT's for recruits, and generally made a mockery of various NCAA rules.

No, the game never was what you might call pure. But somewhere along the way college basketball crossed some demarcation line and became corrupt. Fun, yes. Exciting, certainly. This is the hook that drags us all, myself included.

But corrupt nonetheless. From AAU and high school coaches who peddle players, to sneaker companies who certainly dance around the intent of the rules. From coaches whose shelf life is directly related to how many jump shots 19-year-olds can make, to schools who have sacrificed their integrity on the grail of big money. None of them are villains in themselves. All are products of a system that long ago lost its innocence.

The irony is that the mood at the recent NCAA convention in Dallas was one of reform, the feeling among many presidents that too many athletic departments have become their own separate kingdoms. The implication was that things would be different in the future.

Don't believe it. The hiring of Eddie Sutton at Oklahoma State tells you everything you have to know.

Killer B's put sting in Stars' attack plan

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Call it a case of the Killer B's.

The Minnesota North Stars offense, has been paced all season by Brian Bellows and Neal Broten.

With the North Stars facing elimination Saturday night, Perry Berezan and Aaron Broten (Neil's brother) joined the club, sparking Minnesota to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Blackhawks, forcing this Norris Division semifinal to a seventh game Monday night in Chicago Stadium.

Berezan's goal broke a 1-1 tie late in the first period, and Aaron Broten picked up three assists as Minnesota opened a 5-1 second-period lead and held off Chicago in a furious finish.

"This was one of my better games this year," said Aaron Broten, who scored nine goals in 35 games during the season for Minnesota. "It seemed our line (with Neal Broten and Stu Gavin) was able to pressure the Blackhawks all night."

Coach Pierre Page had been looking for some of his other veterans to join 55-goal scorer Bellows and 40-goal Dave Gagner to help the offense. Aaron Broten, acquired from New Jersey Jan. 5 for Bob Broke, did just that.

First, he set up defenseman Shawn Chambers for the game's first goal. Later, Aaron Broten and Gavin worked the puck to Neal Broten to make it 3-1 late in the first period. Aaron Broten then set up Gagner's goal at 14:20 of the second period for a 5-1 lead.

1990 Spring Semester Final Exam Schedule

The examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Other information about final examinations is listed below:

1. The class final exam period is scheduled based on the meeting time and days configuration listed on the first line of the class entry in the up-to-date Schedule of Classes book (which should be the same as the first printed line for the section on the registered student's schedule print-out). For example, a class section is listed in the Schedule book on two lines in the manner:

08:00 T TH
09:00 - 10:50 W

The listed starting time for the first line of the entry is "8:00". The meeting days of that first line are "T TH", and therefore are in the category "Only T or TH or T TH". The Exam Date and Period is by the attached Spring '90 Final Examination Schedule to be Friday, May 11 at 12:50 p.m. - 2:50 p.m.

2. Classes should plan to hold their final examination in their regularly scheduled class rooms. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location of examinations for those classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination days to provide adequate notice for all.

3. Students who find they have more than three examinations on one day may petition, and students who have two examinations scheduled at one time should petition their academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that students may decide to miss the scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for students whose petitions have been approved by their dean.

games. The Valley is that good. Most of the games go down to the last pitch."

Creighton coach Jim Hendry was happy to salvage one game in the series.

"SIU did a great job but with a few breaks we could have won three of four," Hendry said. "But we had enough character to come back and win the last one."

The Salukis led 4-0 after scoring a run in the second and three more in the third off Creighton starter Mike Heathcott.

With two outs in the second, Hollenkamp singled and scored on an RBI double to left center by Matt Giegling. SIU-C led 1-0.

The Salukis scored three runs in the third after two outs. Kurt Endebrock doubled and scored on an RBI single by Shields.

Shields scored on an RBI single to left by Davis. Two Creighton errors allowed Davis to score and SIU-C led 4-0.

The Bluejays rallied with five runs in the fourth off Saluki starter Chris Bend.

Pat Mooney led off with a home run over the center field fence cutting the lead to 4-1. Creighton sent 10 men to the plate in the inning scoring five runs on six hits and led 5-4.

With Creighton leading 6-4, the Salukis scored a run in the sixth to cut the lead to 6-5.

The Salukis won the first game 3-2 behind a strong performance by sophomore right-hander Sean

Bergman (5-1) pitched 7 1/3 innings, yielding two runs on eight hits. He struck out six and walked three.

Junior right-hander Al Levine pitched the final inning and two-thirds for his ninth save. Levine relieved Bergman in the eighth with the Salukis leading 3-2 and Creighton runners on first and second.

Levine induced Rick Freehling to fly out and struck out Scott Stahoviak to end the inning. The Saluki reliever retired the Blue Jays in order in the ninth to preserve the victory. Levine saved all three Saluki victories this weekend.

"Levine was outstanding,"

Jones said. "He saves us. When he comes in, the team doesn't feel we're in trouble. They believe he'll get us out of the jam."

The Salukis led 1-0 after a sacrifice fly by Dave Wrona in the first scoring Endebrock.

But Creighton scored two runs in the sixth. Steve Hinton doubled and scored on an RBI double by Chad McConnell to tie the score 1-1.

McConnell scored when Saluki left fielder Ed Janke misjudged a fly ball by Ryan Martindale. Creighton led 2-1.

The Salukis scored the winning runs in the seventh.

Shields, who reached on a fielder's choice, stole second base.

Davis singled and Shields beat the throw home by Freehling. Davis, who went to second on the throw, was driven in on an RBI single by Wrona that gave the Salukis a 3-2 lead.

The Salukis won Saturday's doubleheader by scores of 8-7 and 3-1.

Dale Meyer (3-0) picked up the victory in game one in relief of starter George Joseph. Meyer pitched 4 2/3 innings, yielding one run on two hits.

The Salukis won the game 8-7 on a dramatic two-out solo home run by Shields in the bottom of the eighth.

Bob Finder (5-2) and Levine combined to defeat Creighton 3-1 in the second game.

are going to start taking notice now."

One person who took notice this weekend was Creighton head coach Jim Hendry. But Hendry said he never underestimated the Salukis.

"I have a lot of respect for them (Salukis)," Hendry said. "I think this series showed how evenly matched we are. I think we have four teams in this conference capable of breaking the top 30. I believe SIU will take our place in the polls."

The Bluejays have played very worthy competition — including Oklahoma State and Georgia Tech. Hendry said the Salukis can match up with anybody right now.

"They may not be as talented in some areas as the other teams, but SIU is really on an emotional roll," Hendry said. "They can play with anybody we play. Their pitching is very competitive. It's not just talent that wins games."

Saluki center fielder Doug Shields, who set the tone with a dramatic game-winning home run in the first game of the series, said SIU-C has to get consideration in this week's poll.

"I don't see how we can't," Shields said. "We took control of every game this weekend before letting the last one slip through our fingers. But we have a never-say-die attitude. I think we deserve it."

The Salukis are looking forward to next weekend's showdown at Wichita State.

"The conference is really up in the air," Shields said. "But we're in first and Wichita is second. We'll have to gear up for them.

"We hope to win three games there too," Wrona said. "We would like to host the tournament. We're tired of going to Wichita for the tournament."

The winner of the regular season title hosts the conference tournament May 16-18.

"We just have confidence this year," Saluki reliever Dale Meyer said. "It's amazing what a year can do."
