Iraq to Kurds: Forget past, start new era

United Press International

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein called Sunday on Iraqi Kurds to forget the past and start a new chapter in their history, and reiterated his promise of limited amnesty for Kurdish rebels who fought against him after his defeat in the Gulf War.

"What has happened, has happened. Let us begin a new chapter," Baghdad Radio quoted the Iraqi leader as saying during a visit to the northern Iraqi Kurdish city of Erbil, the last Kurdish stronghold to fall to loyalist Iraqi troops.

Iraqi forces have been instructed not to block the way for those "refugees who are returning to their country," an apparent reference to hundreds of thousands of Iraqi Kurds who fled their homes for the Turkish and Iranian border regions to escape possible Iraqi retaliation.

Iraq earlier this month declared a limited amnesty for returning Kurds and Saddam did not loosen the amnesty conditions in his Sunday appeal.

The amnesty does not include murderers, rapists and spies.

Saddam's visit to Erbil came as thousands of Iraqis staged a demonstration in southern Iraq, urging U.S. troops not to withdraw from there, Iraqi Shiite opposition sources in Damascus said.

The demonstrations took place as the newly formed and lightly armed 1,440-member United Nations peacekeeping force began final preparations to take control of the buffer zone between Iraq and Kuwait.

The blue-helmeted U.N. force was to deploy units 6 miles deep inside Iraq and 3 miles into Kuwait.

The Austrian commander of the U.N. force, Maj. Gen. Gunther Greindl, postponed a trip to Baghdad Sunday to meet with Iraqi officials in order to meet with Kuwaiti Emir Jaber Al-Sabah.

Pettit says no to Colorado

By Natalie Boehme
and Amy Cooper
Staff Writers

SIU Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit withdrew his candidacy Saturday from the University of Colorado's search for a president.

Pettit said the decision to withdraw was difficult to make and he is staying because of his love for the SIU community and his desire "to complete the agenda which I originally set forth."

The University of Colorado is an outstanding institution, Pettit said.

"I think fundamentally CU and I are a good match," he said. "But in light of circumstances that the search process has made evident, this is not the time."

Pettit said he regrets that each of the five finalists' names were announced in the press. "This action, whether by design or by chance, has affected all of the candidates in ways detrimental to their responsibilities at their home institutions," he said.

Kathleen Arnold, chairwoman of the search committee and vice chairwoman of the CU Board of Regents, said in a previous interview the Rocky Mountain News released candidates' names at the beginning of the search. The article caused many candidates to drop out of the search process because they didn't want to harm their present positions, she said.

Pettit visited all four CU campuses two weeks ago and made a positive impression on constituency groups, board members and students, Arnold said.

CU nominated Pettit in March along with the CU Law School dean, the president of the University of Hawaii, the provost of the University of Oklahoma and a National Science Foundation director.

A decision is not expected until the end of April, Arnold said.

Theater prop prompts false fire alarm

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

Where there's smoke there isn't always fire.

A fire alarm Sunday afternoon sent students, faculty and staff members scrambling from their projects and work areas in the Communications Building, only to learn the Theater Department does a good job with special effects.

A fire alarm in the Radio-Television department went off at about noon Sunday, the same time props and equipment were checked for a rehearsal of the upcoming opera "Abduction from the Seraglio."

Ron Crume, a theater major from Centralia, said he knew immediately it was the theater smoke that had set off the alarm.

The standard white theatrical smoke is used by the department, but Ron Naversen, assistant professor of theater, said it should not set off smoke alarms.

However he said they are switching to a vapor or mist for Friday's opening presentation.

Crume said they had used the smoke since Friday but weren't surprised the alarms went off.

While the alarms were going off, Crume said crew members unplugged the smoke machine and waited outside for the fire trucks.

The ventilation fans were not on at the time and may have caused the alarms to go off, he said.

Taxing deadline

Dreaded D-day arrives for filing 1990 income tax returns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Monday is D-Day, which for the Internal Revenue Service means Deadline Day for filing your 1990 tax return. And if you waited this year until the very last minute to file, join the crowd.

The IRS says you're one of 27 million taxpayers — roughly one-fourth of 113 million returns the IRS expects to receive this year — whose filing will reach IRS processing centers sometime this week.

What do you do if you owe the government money but you're short of cash and cannot pay by today's deadline?

"File for an extension (of time) to file," said IRS spokesman John Schnellmann. "If you owe money, send as much as you can," but be sure to file your return, whether or not you send money with it.

He urged taxpayers who can't pay all they owe to "attach a brief note of explanation" and then offer to pay it on the installment plan — perhaps $100 a month on a $1,000 tax liability.

How the IRS will respond to such a proposal "depends on the individual circumstances," Schnellmann said.

The IRS said that "taxpayers who end up owing more than they can pay either did not have enough taxes withheld from their paycheck or failed to make sufficient quarterly estimated tax payments."

Filing a timely tax return — even without sending any or all of the money due the government — can help taxpayers avoid a severe late payment penalty of 5 percent of the tax due for each month it's due.

Schnellmann said roughly 73 percent of all taxpayers get refunds

Goals for drive to meet greater needs for blood

By Todd Eschman

Now that spring is here, more people are turning to the outdoors for recreation. They also are getting in more accidents.

The American Red Cross anticipated the increase in the number of accidents and has scheduled a blood drive at SIUC, said Vivian Ugent, Red Cross blood drive coordinator.

The drive will begin today at the Recreation Center from 12:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.,

Creighton drops Dawgs four times

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

Just when SIUC baseball coach Sam Riggelman thought things couldn't get worse for his ballclub, he had to travel to Creighton.

The Salukis ran into the nation's top hitting team in the Creighton Bluejays and were handed four losses in the four-game series.

The Dawgs were downed 7-3 and 5-2 Sunday and 12-1 and 3-0 Saturday. The sweep was the second four-game sweep SIUC has suffered this season to a Missouri Valley Conference opponent.

SIUC fell to 14-20 overall and 1-11 in Valley play. The 1-11 start in the MVC is the worst in SIUC baseball history and puts the Salukis at the bottom of the race.

Creighton, the 15th-ranked team in the nation, crushed the ball all weekend and kept the Salukis from capitalizing on any kind of threat. The Bluejays upped their record to 28-10 overall and 9-3 in the Valley.

The Salukis only held a lead twice in the series. But Creighton didn't let either lead stand for long.

The Salukis went up 1-0 in the second inning of the first game Sunday. But the Bluejays came back with a run in the fourth inning and 2 runs in the fifth, before they exploded for 4 runs in the seventh.

The Dawgs threatened in the top half of the ninth inning with bases loaded, but were held to a single run and were dropped 7-3.

"What can you say," Riggelman said. "There were seven or eight things that we broke down on that made a difference in the ballgame. The bottom line is you have to go out and get the job done during the course of the game."

Senior starting pitcher Bob Finder (1-5) went the distance for SIUC, allowing 3 earned runs in eight innings of work.

"Bob Finder gave us all we needed on the mound," Riggelman said. "I thought he did an outstanding job. It was the same situation with (senior Al) Levine in the second ballgame yesterday (Saturday). We can't be disappointed with the kind of pitching we got from them."

Much of the same mediocre play continued for SIUC in the second game of the doubleheader Sunday. The Salukis threatened in the second inning with bases loaded and

Gally headed to England for Games

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

Saluki swimmer Chris Gally will fly to Sheffield, England, this summer in more than one way.

Gally, a senior All-American, qualified in the 100-meter butterfly to compete in the World University Games July 15 in Sheffield.

The trials were held April 7 in Seattle and Gally's time of :54.69 put him in the group eligible to compete in the games.

Gally, who suffered a broken elbow early in the season, is the first Saluki to qualify for the World University Games since 1983.

The games are a multi-sport competition which include the most events and competition outside the Olympic Games, SIUC swimming coach Doug Ingram said.

"The World University Games has basically everything the Olympics has including opening and closing ceremonies," Ingram said. "He will be swimming with an elite group. It sure will be an exciting experience for him."

The trials decided the swimmers for the Pan Pacific Games, the Pan American Games and the World University Games. The top two times were eligible for the Pan Pacific, the third and fourth times for the Pan American and the fifth and sixth times for the World University.

"This was a great capstone to an outstanding Saluki career," Ingram said. "It also gave our program a boost. This will help in recruiting because it gave us national and international recognition."

Gally said he plans to go home to Marlton, N.J., to visit his family after he graduates in May. After a few days there, he plans to go to Mission Viejo, Calif., to train.

"This is going to be great," Gally said. "I've been to France and Spain so I've done a lot of traveling, but I've never done it with the United States National Team."

Gally also is considering whether or not he will continue his training to compete in the Olympic Trials. He said he will take each meet one at a time and decide about the Trials after the World University Games.

Softball games called for rain

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

The SIUC softball team was itching to get some action this weekend and try to improve its 13-game winning streak, but the weather had something else in mind.

The Salukis travelled to Columbia, Mo., to play in the Mizzou Invitational against Eastern Illinois, Oklahoma City and Missouri in a round-robin tournament, but the entire tourney was cancelled because of wet conditions.

Oklahoma City left after games Saturday were cancelled, but the other three teams rescheduled play for Sunday. Holding the games on Mizzou's football field in case of rain was even talked about for the Sunday games.

Jan Winslow, a graduate assistant for Sports Information, said the teams decided not to play on the football field because it was too risky and players could sustain injuries because there were no mounds or dirt for the infield.

Football team finishes spring with scrimmage

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

The rain didn't dampen the football team's spirits Saturday morning at its spring scrimmage.

About 50 people, most of them friends or family of the players, sat through a driving rainstorm to watch the offense and defense struggle on the soaked turf of McAndrew Stadium. Although it was a practice, the crack of helmets and the excitement of the players was as real as opening day in August. Junior defensive back Scott Walker said he saw positives in the scrimmage.

"I saw a lot of good talent today," Walker said. "The offense scored a touchdown early and the defense took it personally, so it turned out to be like a game."

Senior tailback Mike Dopud was also pleased with what he saw.

"I thought it was a good scrimmage," Dopud said. "Some good things happened. The younger guys were playing when I was at tailback, but they still played really well."

said the scrimmage showed him the team had improved greatly during the spring.

"The offense moved the ball and was consistent," Smith said. "But we also scored on some big plays and as a coach I like to see that. Some of the defensive players had terrific individual performances. (Senior defensive tackle) Jim Rung was in the backfield all day. It wasn't a sloppy, 'everybody plays' spring football game. It lets me finish in a good frame of mind."

The scrimmage capped off three weeks of practice for the Salukis.

The Dawgs have spent the time teaching fundamental skills to the new players and working on agility and strength in the veterans.

Smith said the team achieved his goal of not wasting any spring practices.

"I believe we had a very productive spring," Smith said. "We didn't waste any time. We also didn't have any serious injuries. It's wonderful when you can get through a spring with anybody getting hurt."

Giacone scoring in classes and on courses

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

Putting in 12 hours on a golf course is something a lot of serious golfers do, but being able to maintain a 3.95 grade point average at the same time is rare.

Somehow SIUC junior golfer Gina Giacone manages just nicely. The 21-year-old National Golf Coaches Association Academic All-American has been nominated again this year for the prestigious award.

"It's a real honor," SIUC women's golf coach Diane Daugherty said. "The criteria is very tough to meet for anyone."

To be nominated to be an academic All-American a student must carry at least a 3.4 GPA, play in 60 percent of the tournaments and be at least a sophomore. Daugherty said sophomore Kim Haywood, with her 3.79 GPA, also could be nominated this year. The awards are announced in June.

"It (award) really means a lot to me because it's nice to know there is something there that awards you for working hard," Giacone said. "It feels like my hard work has paid off."

Giacone, an accounting major from Benton, has suffered only one B in her high school and college career. She is also a valuable part of the women's golf team, playing in the No. 3 or 4 spot for most of the season.

In high school, while maintaining a 5.0 GPA and being named class valedictorian, Giacone excelled on the course. She won the Illinois High School Association Regional and Sectional titles as a senior, placing 15th in the IHSA State Tournament.

Giacone also was a two-time member of Southern Illinois' Coaches Association All-South Team.

Finding time to study sometimes can be a problem for Giacone. Her classes begin at 9 a.m. and run through 2 p.m. From there, she races off to practice at 2:30 p.m. and works on her game until dark at Jackson Country Club or on the driving range near Abe Martin Field. Giacone said after practice she usually eats dinner and then hits the books.

Egypt charges Kuwaiti royal with drug trafficking, murder

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egyptian authorities arrested a member of the Kuwaiti royal family on charges of heroin trafficking and attempted murder, Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported Sunday. Quoting security sources, MENA said Sheikh Talal Nassir Al-Sabah, whose father is a cousin of Kuwait's emir, was arrested in his Cairo apartment together with a Syrian male companion. The agency said police had received a tip that the Kuwaiti royal, who allegedly smuggled the heroin into Egypt to meet his large expenses in Cairo, was selling the heroin and sent an undercover policeman to buy some.

Kuwait to ask 400,000 citizens to return home

KUWAIT CITY (UPI) — With basic services virtually restored, Kuwait is ready to invite home its estimated 400,000 citizens who fled the nation after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion, a government official said Sunday. The official, acting planning minister Suleiman Mutawa, said a formal announcement would likely be made by the Ministry of Interior within a few days. Mutawa also said in an interview that Crown Prince Saad Al-Sabah was expected to name a new government this week to replace the one that resigned in disgrace on March 19. He said the new government,

Killer bees expected in Texas soon—experts

HOUSTON (UPI) — Swarms of killer bees migrating north are expected in deep South Texas "any minute now," say experts who have been tracking the Africanized honey bees since they left Mexico. Elba Quintero, director of the U.S. Agriculture Department's Africanized Honey Bee program in Texas, told the Houston Chronicle that rainy spring weather in northern Mexico has been speeding the migration of the bees, which have been spotted only 50 miles south of the Texas-Mexico border. "We're expected them to hit here any minute now," Quintero said.

Abortion debate enters into testimony of case

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — A municipal judge allowed lawyers for 15 anti-abortion protesters to present testimony on when life begins, a move that could turn a trespassing case into a major battle in the fight over abortion. Judge Michael Noonan overruled objections by Town Prosecutor Paul Bangiola that the evidence was irrelevant. The judge presided over a five-hour hearing Saturday but has not rendered his verdict. Alex Loce, 28, of New York, and 14 others were arrested at a doctor's office in September as they tried to keep Loce's fiancée from having an abortion by chaining themselves together.

Power company to decide on customer rate increase

DECATUR (UPI) — More than 560,000 Illinoisans served by Illinois Power Co. should know later this year whether ratepayers, taxpayers or coal miners will have to bear the burden of helping the utility comply with tough new clean air laws. The Decatur-based company will probably decide this summer whether to install multi-million-dollar scrubbers at its most massive plant or burn low-sulfur coal instead, a move that could eliminate the jobs of hundreds or even thousands of miners. Clean air legislation Congress passed last year requires all utilities to reduce their sulfur dioxide emissions by one-half by 1995 to cut down on acid rain.

Science students recognized for excellence in academics

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

Forty-two students from the College of Science have been honored for their academic achievements.

Students were recognized for their achievements on Honors Day April 7.

The students were chosen by a committee from each department on the basis of financial need, academic standing or a combination of both, said William Dyer, associate dean of the college.

Marsha Hilmes and Michael Reese received the $1,000 Oryx Energy Scholarship through the Department of Geology.

The scholarship was based on academic achievement and participation in activities dealing with the department, said Hilmes, a senior in geology from Highland.

She said she did not apply for the scholarship. The department went through every student's file looking for academic standards and chose the two they felt were qualified best for the award, Hilmes said.

"I was quite surprised since I was a senior and ready to graduate in May," she said. "I am thankful to the Department of Geology for all their support."

Hilmes has received eight other awards from the department in previous years.

Reese, a senior in geology from Plymouth, Pa., could not be reached for comment.

Burt Allan Miller, a senior in zoology from Murphysboro, said he felt lucky to be chosen for the $450 Mark A. Montaba Memorial Award. He said this is his first year as a zoology major and he wasn't sure where he stood in academics compared to other students.

He said he applied for five scholarships he was eligible for and just waited for the results.

Miller said he plans to receive his associate degree in flight aviation and his bachelor's in zoology.

Wai Bing Mak, a senior in microbiology from Malaysia, was the recipient of the $275 Robert W. Davis Memorial Scholarship.

Mak said to be eligible for the award she had to maintain a grade point average of 3.5 or better throughout her junior year.

She said she was also glad to receive her award.

"It helps me financially and encourages me to do better in my studies," Mak said.

Local mines under investigation for tampering with air-quality tests

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

Coal mines in Southern Illinois may be tampering with the wrong elements, but internal investigations have not yet been conclusive.

Several mines in Illinois have been cited by the U.S. Department of Labor for allegedly tampering with air-quality tests used to determine a miner's risk of contracting black lung disease.

The violations occurred in 16 states. Citations have been given to the operators of 847 mines and amount to nearly $5 million in fines.

Kentucky was first on the list with 301 fines. Illinois was listed as sixth with 20. Mines cited in the Southern Illinois area include Lorenzo Louis Mining Co. in Crab Orchard, Ashland Oil Inc. in Percy, Du Pont Coal Co. in Sesser, General Dynamics Corp. in Waltonville and Kein George Corp. in Harrisburg.

Official spokespersons from these companies could not be contacted.

Also included in the list is Ziegler Coal Holding Co. in Fairview, which received the most fines. Six of its mines were cited.

According to the U.S. Department of Labor, Ziegler had 176 samples that appeared to be tampered.

The mines that were cited are in Benton, West Frankfort, Sparta and two in Sesser.

Mike Reilly, president of Ziegler Coal, said the company is investigating the matter.

"Our policy has always been to comply with federal and state laws," he said. "I have no indication that there was any tampering."

Reilly said his company will most likely contest the fines and will respond to the charges whenever it becomes necessary to respond.

Kerr-McGee Corp., located in Harrisburg, also was cited with allegedly tampering with two of its air filters used in the machines that test mines' air quality.

According to the U.S. Department of Labor, the department will seek civil penalties of about $1,000 for each violation.

Students still save with class packets

EVEN WITH STRICTER LAWS and possible price increases on copied materials, students and professors still have a relatively convenient and cheap means of teaching at their hands.

The U.S. District Court, Southern District of New York, recently ruled that copy centers selling class packets with copyrighted material must have written permission before selling the material.

Unfortunately, this procedure under the Fair Use Doctrine of the 1976 Copyright Act apparently has not always been followed.

IT MIGHT SEEM THAT STUDENTS and professors will be adversely affected under the ruling.

Students may have to wait longer to get the packets as copy centers get permission to use the materials.

Students also may face a 20- to 30-percent price increase as costs increase for this extra time as well as publishing royalties.

Despite the inconveniences, the effects of the ruling are minimal.

WRITTEN PERMISSION CAN BE obtained easily via fax machines, perhaps in just a few hours to a few days. Therefore, the extra time spent obtaining written permission would be minimal.

The price increases may be a greater inconvenience for students. However, the cost of a packet of articles from various periodicals and books would remain considerably lower than buying entire books.

THE AUTHORS OF THESE copyrighted materials should be paid for their work. The court's ruling ensures that they will.

The limitations of the law, then, are not as restrictive as they immediately seem.

The inconveniences to students are minimal, authors are justifiably paid and the business of copy companies should not be affected much.

Quotable Quotes

"We cannot afford not to do this—even if there's some pain involved with internal reallocation."—SIUC President John C. Guyon said in reference to the $5 million upgrade of the University's mainframe computer system.

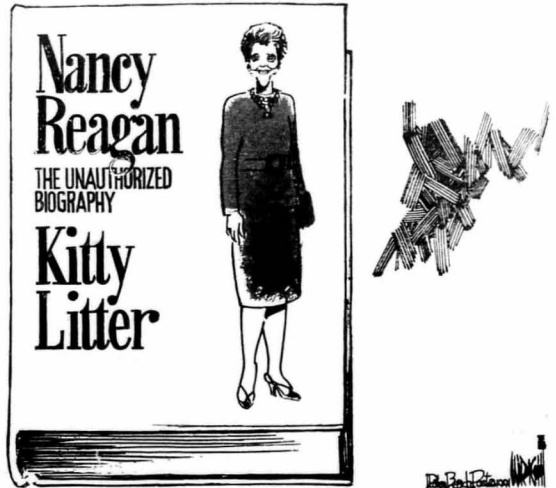

"We need larger Pell grants for more students, not larger grants for fewer students."—said Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., about the Bush administration's plan to give larger grants to low-income college students by taking funding away from middle-class students.

"If I could find a way to get him out of there, even putting a contract out on him...if the CIA still did that sort of thing, assuming it ever did, I would be for it."—Former president Richard M. Nixon said about Saddam Hussein.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potentially libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Offensive language, terms inevitable in world society

Christopher, come on. It is so disconcerting to see this upheaval of individualism.

This epidemic of gender or racially correct language is increasing the gaps between humans.

You fail to see what danger this subject brings with it.

For those of us who have a hard enough time tolerating our fellow human beings, just think how much harder it will be the more we lean towards complete individualism in our vocabulary.

If there ever comes a time when we must be so careful to choose our words it is then that we have have lost our freedom of speech.

And if there are people who get so bent out of shape over trivial terms such as "Survival of Man", then it is time for psychological counseling.

How do these people react to unfavorable criticism? Must we never say anything that may hurt someone's feelings again? And if we do are these people going to be suicidal?

How many times have you gotten angry at someone and wanted to say something derogatory to them? People just need to relax a bit.

This wording is not created with any degrading meaning or is no way meant to persecute.

Get with it. What about all of the literature in the world? Should we have it rewritten as to not offend? Please!—Mike Hoffman, freshman, cinema; Eric Scott, freshman, political science.

Peace alliance lacks dedication to ideals, beliefs

I look forward to SPA protests. It is entertaining to go out on a sunny day in front of the Student Center to watch them do their best to save us all from our all so evil country.

They carry the torch of freedom for us all unless the rain is there to put it out. In the 60s, the hippies carried this same torch. But because almost all the hippies sold out their beliefs to become the businessmen of today, the SPA now is doing a great job filling their shoes.

I went to see the New World Carnival April 4, but it was cancelled due to unsatisfactory weather. The sign said to come back April 11. I went to the New World Carnival April 11, but it was cancelled due to unsatisfactory weather again.

Why was the carnival cancelled? Could it be said that bad weather would discourage people from stopping and giving you the attention you crave? Or where you just not in the mood to get wet?

Mahatma Gandhi went to jail and was killed standing by his ideals. The SPA isn't even willing to get its pretty tie-dye t-shirts wet to stand by their ideals.

It takes more than wearing a peace button on your jean jacket to be a political activist. Because you don't even take your beliefs seriously enough to get a little rain on you, nobody should take you seriously or pay attention to your wishy washy, half-hearted complaining.—Patrick Schaefer, junior, history.

Preacher attack, crowd reaction embarrassment to University

I AM WRITING in reference to the April 10th "Brother Jim" sermon and the incident which brought it to a sudden end.

I had always assumed that once I became part of the collegiate society, I would be among some of the most knowledgeable and open-minded people in America—and for the most part that has proven to be true.

But I was appalled to witness a man who had reached the end of his cognitive debating abilities and felt he had no other recourse but to physically attack Brother Jim by barbarically choking him until he, the attacker, was physically removed.

WHAT WAS WORSE were those in the audience who were cheering on the attacker.

I know you people know about the First Amendment and a person's right of freedom of speech.

I mean, to debate with him, yell at him, and even curse him is all good and well, but to use and encourage violence is deplorable and is embarrassing to SIU and to the students who find this act as shocking as I do.

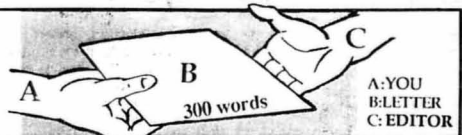

YOU NEVER ONCE saw Brother Jim lose his temper over your comments!

Of course, I am not defending Brother Jim's views, but you are definitely not going to be able to change his mind on his beliefs, especially not with violence.

If he makes you mad, simply leave—no one's making you stay.

At first, I was really proud of my fellow Salukians at their even tempers and intelligent rebuttals, but now I am very disappointed and ashamed of those hew who could only resolve simple, mindless debate through violence.—Derek S. Vogel, senior, computer science.

Even spies have to cut back

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bases are closing, the military is shrinking, the defense budget is falling, the world is changing and even the spies are having to count their paper clips, cut their numbers and overhaul their operations.

Duane Andrews, the Pentagon's senior civilian manager of military intelligence operations, said in an interview with United Press International that, following a lengthy study, the military intelligence apparatus is being scaled back to eliminate duplication and layers of management.

The cuts are designed to save money and reduce the number of jobs, as well as make the intelligence operation more reflective of the end of the Cold War.

A pilot project is now in the works in the Pacific, an effort Andrews said he expects to apply to other areas as Pentagon leaders further refine the military command system for the future.

At a minimum, similar "Joint Intelligence Center" units will be established for the Atlantic region that would also encompass Europe. One would be needed for the Strategic Air Command and for the command that will be responsible for contingency operations such as the Central Command that ran the Persian Gulf War.

Some of the concepts of the Joint Intelligence Center, or JIC in Pentagon lingo, were put to use in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, during the war, said Andrews.

Andrews, a former House intelligence committee staffer when Defense Secretary Dick Cheney served on the panel during his days in Congress, said the reorganization should result in faster delivery of better intelligence information to the user.

"We would like to improve the efficiency, effectiveness and timeliness of the product."

Much of the duplication in intelligence functions was built up over the years since Vietnam, he said.

"How many times do we have to collect the same information from the same sources or how many representatives do we have to have talking to a liaison service in a particular country?" Andrews asked. "You may need two but you probably only need one and you certainly don't need three or four."

Some of the impetus to rearrange the system stems from the collapse of the Warsaw Pact, a longtime opponent, and a need to focus attention on a wider area of the globe.

Some also stems from the need to pare back expenses.

"The general received a warm and gracious welcome and the emir promised his full cooperation. That means a lot to us," Joachim Hutter, a U.N. spokesman, said.

Hutter said the flight to Baghdad was not rescheduled, but indicated it would likely take place in a few days.

Secretary of State Dick Cheney, speaking on NBC's "Meet the Press," said U.S. troops would begin withdrawing Sunday from southern Iraq to the buffer zone along the border to await arrival of U.N. forces.

"So we are getting out of that part of Iraq that we previously have occupied," he said, adding the pullout to the buffer should be completed "within the next few days." He said about 300,000 U.S. troops remain in the region.

Asked about Saddam Hussein, Cheney said, "My guess is that he will not survive, that what he's done to his country is probably deeply resented by many of the commanders in the army and many of the party officials in the Baathist party. And my own personal view is that he will be replaced, but I have no way of knowing when that might be."

In another development, Iraqi Foreign Minister Ahmed Hussein Al Khodier met in Baghdad Sunday with an envoy of U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to discuss U.N. aid for Iraqi civilian refugees, Iraq's official INA news agency reported.

The news agency said the envoy discussed coordinating U.N. aid in northern Iraq with Iraqi authorities, but gave no further details.

Troops loyal to Saddam Hussein have gradually recovered territory lost to Kurdish rebels in the north and Shiites in the south, but hundreds of thousands of refugees have fled their homes and face hunger, thirst and cold in the mountains along the Turkish and Iranian borders, where they sought refuge from Iraqi guns and tanks.

Speaking on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," Hoshiyar Zebari, a spokesman for the Kurdish Democratic Party, said from London that the situation of the Kurdish refugees "is desperate in many ways" and that relief supplies — "too little and too late" — are not reaching those in need.

"The argument has been put in a confused way that either (the United States assist through) military intervention or nothing," he said. "I think there is a good deal in between which the United States could do."

Though Zebari asserted Iraqi forces had violated U.S. warnings not to operate north of the 36th parallel, national security adviser Brent Scowcroft said on the same broadcast that "in fact, there are not great hostilities going on now" and the Iraqis do not appear to be interfering in relief efforts.

Had the United States anticipated the flood of refugees, he said it could have "marginally improved" the situation by pre-positioning more supplies in Turkey.

Tehran radio reported Sunday that thousands of Iraqi Kurdish refugees continued to stream across the border into Iran during the weekend, and that at least 30 people, mainly women and children, died of cold and hunger after reaching Iran.

Another 200 babies and children were reported to have died in Sulaimaniya province on the Iraqi side of the border from cold and hunger, the radio said.

In broadcasts monitored in Athens, Greece, the Iranian radio said clashes erupted over the past two days between troops loyal to Saddam Hussein and Shiite insurgents in southern Iraq near Basra, Tanuma and Amara.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency said some 900,000 Iraqi Kurds and 150,000 Shiites from southern Iraq have crossed into Iran since the exodus began about 10 days ago.

IRNA said a Chinook helicopter of Iran's Army Airborne Division crashed in the mountains near the border town of Sardasht while on a relief mission, but the nine people on board, including four French nationals, survived with injuries, some serious.

Ugent said. It will continue Tuesday and Wednesday at the Student Center from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Ugent said the Red Cross hopes to collect at least 1,050 pints of blood during the three-day drive.

Ugent said donors from the February blood drive at SIU are eligible to donate. Donors should wait 56 days between donations, she said.

Donors must be 17 or older and weigh at least 110 pounds. Sixteen-year-olds can donate with parental consent, Ugent said.

She said the increase in accidents during the spring causes a predictable increase in the demand for blood. She added that the 1,050-pint goal needs to be exceeded to bring blood supplies to an acceptable level.

"With the nicer weather, there are a lot of farming accidents, there are more people on the highways and there are more young drivers getting into accidents," she said. "That means that there is a predictable increase in the amount of blood that is needed."

"Collections have not kept up with what we predicted we would need. We need to exceed 1,050 pints to get our hospitals' blood supplies up to a safe, comfortable level," she said.

Ugent said although there is a need for all types of blood, an especially high demand exists for

O-positive and O-negative.

"It's a very common blood type. Thirty-eight percent of us have O-positive blood. We need to keep a large supply since so much of the population has O-positive," she said.

Ugent said reaching the goal depends on those who have given blood before.

"We need everybody who gave in February to come and give again," she said. "We also need first-time donors."

Food and beverages are being provided to the donors and door prizes are being given away.

The drive is sponsored by WSIU-Radio and Domino's Pizza.

A recent study has shown that of all the factors important during school years—including intelligence, grades, and popularity—only a person's self-esteem accurately predicts success in later life. People who feel good about themselves are people who can achieve at their full potential. Despite this importance of self-esteem, it is ordinarily difficult to improve after early childhood. Many different studies, however, have shown that the Transcendental Meditation (TM) technique significantly improves self-concept and self-confidence. For more information call Dale Brooks 457-7384.

New GPSC leader named; increase in tuition opposed

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

Susan Hall is the new Graduate and Professional Student Council president.

Hall, vice president for administrative affairs, won the Wednesday night in-house GPSC presidential election against Ray Flavin, law school representative.

When her term begins in the summer, Hall said she will actively recruit members for GPSC and push the Illinois General Assembly to set a statewide tuition policy for universities.

Flavin was elected vice president of administrative affairs and Ron Smith retained his position as vice president of graduate school affairs.

Charles Ramsey is the current GPSC president.

At the meeting, the council also passed a resolution opposing the tuition increase.

Smith amended the resolution to say the council would oppose any increase that made tuition cost more than one-third of total instructional cost, the recommended level from SIU Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit's Tuition Task Force.

Jim Childers, School of Music representative, said he supported a tuition increase but decided to vote in favor of the resolution.

Childers said there is a need for more funds, especially in smaller schools like music, but there is no guarantee where the money from a tuition increase would go.

Flavin said he voted against the tuition increase.

Students don't want to pay more for tuition, but enjoy the computer labs and low faculty-student ratio at SIUC and don't want the positive aspects to change, he said.

Jennifer Burrow, zoology representative, said she voted against the resolution because it doesn't address the problem of funding—how to get the state to allocate more money for higher education.

"We can vote against (tuition increases) all we want, but that doesn't solve the problem," Burrow said.

Violence by black factions leaves several dead near Mandela house

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Zulus and Xhosas fought fierce battles Saturday and Sunday near the home of African National Congress Deputy President Nelson Mandela in Johannesburg's black township of Soweto.

The latest fighting left at least four people dead in addition to six who were killed in violence elsewhere, police said.

A number of residents of the area, Soweto's Orlando West suburb, alerted police after hearing gunfire Sunday night.

"We've got descriptions of new fighting between the Zulus and Xhosas ... people here are scared," an officer at a Soweto police station said.

"These people are shooting at each other again," resident Marcus Sokutu said in a telephone interview. "I can see the fire from the guns."

Black factional violence in various other parts of South Africa overnight Saturday left another six people dead, police reported in their daily statement of so-called political unrest.

The Orlando West violence pitted Zulus from the Nancefield worker hostel against Xhosa residents late Saturday and into Sunday, police spokesman Col. Johan Mostert said.

The hostel dwellers are supporters of the Zulu Inkatha movement, while residents follow the predominantly Xhosa ANC.

Debate redesigned to allow more candidate interaction

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The debate for Undergraduate Student Government candidates tonight will be more pertinent to the issues and will place more responsibility on the candidates, an election commission member said.

Cynthia Snair, co-moderator of the event, said she and a member of the SIUC debate team redesigned the candidates' debate to allow more interaction between candidates and more opportunities to discuss party platforms.

The debate will be at 7 p.m. today in the Student Center Video Lounge on the 4th floor, and is preliminary to the USG and student trustee election Thursday.

Instead of having a presidential candidate debate followed by a vice presidential candidate debate, the 1991 schedule features a four-member debate team from each party made up of the two officers and two senators.

Snair said previous debates had candidates answer questions drawn from a hat.

During this debate, candidates will give a five-minute platform

DEBATE FORMAT

4 member teams draw lots for speaking order

First Candidate	5 minute platform speech
Candidate #2	2 minute question / rebuttal #1
Candidate #1	2 minute response / reaction
Candidate #2	2 minute question / rebuttal #2
Candidate #1	2 minute question / rebuttal

(REPEAT FOR CANDIDATE # 2 and #3)

speech followed by a question or rebuttal from another candidate. Candidates will receive and respond to two questions from other candidates.

This method is better than having candidates answer questions from the election commission because it prevents candidates from getting irrelevant and random questions, Snair said.

After the candidates deliver their platforms, there will be a 15-minute intermission for the candidates to gather themselves and for the audience to formulate questions based on what has been said.

A 45-minute question-and-answer session from the audience will follow.

Snair said she worked with Brian Donner, debate team member, on the new debate guidelines.

Recycling center to expand service to include plastic

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

KARCO Recycling Center on North New Era Road announced Friday it is expanding its recycling services to allow people to recycle plastic soda and milk bottles.

Bud Karsten, KARCO vice president, said the center tried to recycle plastic about three years ago, but there was not enough response for it to be worthwhile.

"With a national trend toward recycling, we think we'll have an easier time," he said. "It's going to be a busy year for us."

Peggy Wilken, vice president of Carbondale Clean & Green, which sponsors clean up and recycling efforts in Carbondale, said KARCO serves as a valuable outlet for Southern Illinois.

KARCO recycles aluminum, brass, cardboard, copper, glass, newspaper, plastic and steel. All material should be separated.

Aluminum products for recycling include some beverage cans, pie pans, lawn furniture and foil. Pipe and wiring made of brass and copper are melted down by KARCO. Cardboard should be dry, stacked in bundles and tied.

KARCO also accepts green, brown and clear glass bottles for recycling. People should separate the bottles according to color.

Karsten said he soon hopes to begin recycling high-grade paper such as computer paper.

Book brings back memories of innocent, naive childhood

By Tracy Sargeant
Entertainment Editor

always steals them out of my Halloween bag when she thinks I'm not looking."

The best thing about this book is picking it up and enjoying it section-by-section or leisurely skipping through it. It doesn't take weeks to finish reading and once it's opened it won't gather dust because it will be in constant use.

The forward explains Heller's previous books, how he got the idea for "Growing Up" and how he went about collecting information from children.

Heller also has written, "Dear God," which contained letters written by children to God, and "Mr. President, Why Don't You Paint Your White House Another Color!" "Dear God" is along the same principles as his new book.

Each chapter begins with a black and white sketch of children in different comical situations and a quote from one of the children Heller interviewed.

This is a handy reference to the different sections, and it adds personality to the pages of the book.

Whether to brighten a gloomy day or just for a chuckle, "Growing Up Isn't Hard To Do If You Start Out As A Kid," is a winner.

Kids will say the damdest things. Author David Heller has captured the essence of "those damdest things" in his new book, "Growing Up Isn't Hard To Do If You Start Out As a Kid."

The 263-page book contains children's answers to interview questions like: How was kissing invented, how much do you think the president makes a year and what do you think it feels like to be a grown-up?

The book is packed with humorous and witty responses, and it brings back memories of childhood innocence. Kids' uncensored remarks, out of earshot of any parents, remind the reader of just how wonderfully naive and heartwarmingly honest children can be.

Heller had candid conversations with hundreds of children, ages 4 to 10, while they were in school.

From the section "children's uncensored opinion of vegetables," a whimsical response came from 9-year-old Paul, "Those machines that chop up the vegetables shouldn't stop with just making them into small bits...They should

Kelley's turn to get it between eyes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Turnabout is fair play. Now there will be a book about Nancy Reagan's biographer, Kitty Kelley, by an author who calls her a "bimbo."

The book, "Poison Pen, the Kitty Kelley Story," by veteran journalist and celebrity biographer George Carpozi Jr., will be published by Barricade Books in July. Carpozi is a writer for the supermarket tabloid Star.

The publication date was originally next fall but it was pushed up due to the storm of publicity surrounding Kelley's prurient best seller, "Nancy Reagan: The Unauthorized Biography," published last Monday.

The book sold more than 800,000 copies in its first week.

"I'm giving it to Kelley just as she gave it to Mrs. Reagan," Carpozi said in a television interview Saturday. "She lost every job she ever had because she's treacherous. She's a terrible person."

"I wanted to title the book 'Kitty Kelley: Bimbo' but the publisher didn't think it was a good idea. But she is a bimbo. Read my book. It will all be there."

Lyle Stuart, head of Barricade Books, said the book will have a cover just like the Nancy Reagan book, which pictured the former first lady in a red Adolfo knit dress. Kelley also will be pictured in an Adolfo from her own large collection of the designer's suits.

"She's really a chubby little jerk but we have her looking very slim like Nancy," said Stuart.

Kelley recently canceled a national tour and two interviews to publicize her book.

Netters split conference matches

By Julie Autor
Sports Editor

The SIUC women's tennis team split two Gateway Conference matches this weekend to put it at the .500 mark in the conference with a 2-2 record.

The Salukis beat Illinois State 6-2 Thursday and lost to Drake 6-3 Friday.

Senior Missy Jeffrey beat ISU's Michelle Greenan 6-4, 7-5.

Jeffrey is one win short of becoming the third Saluki to reach the 100 win plateau. Saluki alumni Maureen Harney (119) and Beth Boardman (100) reached the 100 win mark in 1985 and 1990 respectively.

"I know she'll get it during conference play," SIUC women's tennis coach Judy Auld said. "She would have made it if we played Indiana State."

The Salukis were scheduled to play Indiana State and the University of Cincinnati Saturday, but the matches were cancelled because of rain.

No. 2 player sophomore Wendy Varnum won her singles match 6-4, 6-2. No. 3 player junior Lori Edwards took her opponent to three sets before falling to ISU 5-7, 6-4, 6-1.

No. 4 player sophomore Lori Gallagher defeated ISU's Nicole Yardley 6-4, 6-2.

The Salukis won the No. 2 and No. 3 doubles and the No. 1 doubles was not played.

The Salukis had a disappointing loss to Drake Friday. SIUC won only three singles matches and lost all three doubles matches.

Jeffrey lost to Drake's Tisa Vail 6-3, 7-5 to leave her at 99-54 overall.

Gallagher won her singles match 6-1, 6-3 to remain undefeated in spring conference play.

Varnum lost her singles match 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

"She's (Varnum) been struggling these past few weeks," Auld said, "but I have a lot of confidence in her and I know she'll turn it around."

Freshman Leesa Joseph also won her singles match against Drake.

"Drake was really afraid of us," SIUC women's tennis coach Judy Auld said. "We earned some respect from them this weekend."

Indoor champions nip SIUC in track tourney

By Wayne Frazer

Against the toughest team in the country, the SIUC men's track team held more than its own.

The Salukis traveled to the Hot Springs Invitational to compete against some of the finest competition in the country, including the University of Arkansas, 1991 NCAA Indoor Champions.

Saluki head coach Bill Cornell had been hoping to finish in the top half of the eight team field, but he got even more.

After the preliminaries Saturday morning, heavy thunderstorms hit the Hot Springs area, cancelling the rest of the events for the day. Travel arrangements forced four of the teams to depart, leaving SIUC, Arkansas, Wisconsin and Oklahoma State behind to finish the meet Sunday.

The Salukis won six events and placed in many more to finish second to Arkansas, 60 to 58. Wisconsin was third with 35 points and Oklahoma State brought up the rear with 15.

Cornell said he was very pleased with the effort, considering the competition and the weather.

"I feel very excited to finish two points behind the University of Arkansas," Cornell said. "That was quite an accomplishment for our kids. We are fortunate no one was injured while competing under somewhat adverse conditions."

The heavy rains affected the jumping events. Sophomore All-American Darrin Plab won the high jump with an effort of seven feet, which is far below his personal best.

Saluki winners were freshman Brian Miller in the shot put, sophomores Bernard Henry in the 800-meters, junior Ed Williams in the 110-meter high hurdles. The 4x100-meter relay team also won.

In the 100-meter dash, the Salukis swept with juniors Garrett Hines and Pat Bridges and senior Guy Sikora finishing one-two-three at the tape. The trio was separated by only .04 of a second.

Other Salukis who placed were freshmen Kenton Rolle, second in the triple jump, Johnathan Hirsch third in the javelin and Torre King, third in the discus and Hines, second in the long jump and the 200-meters. The 4x400-meter relay team also took second.

Women's track takes three events

Maybe the SIUC women's track team should travel north more often.

The Salukis came home with three firsts, a sweep of the high jump and a bevy of personal bests at the Miami University Invitational in Oxford, Ohio.

Leading the way was sophomore Nacolia Moore, who won the long jump and placed second in the triple jump. Moore long jumped 18-1 and went 35-8 in the triple jump.

Other winners for the Salukis were sophomore Cheryl Evers in the discus and senior Beverly Klett in the high jump. Evers threw 134-9 in the discus and also placed third in the shot put. Klett won the high jump with a 5-foot-5 effort. Junior Bethany Johnson finished second at 5-foot-3 and Klett's younger sister Annette took third with a 5-foot-1 jump.

Jamie Dashner continued to shine. The junior placed second in the javelin with a throw of 132-61/2.

Other top finishers for the Salukis included freshman Jennifer Bozue, fourth in the shot put and sophomores Amy Bollinger, second in the 400-meter hurdles, Crystallo Constantinou, second in the 100-meter dash and fourth in the 200-meter dash, Leeann Conway, third in the 3,000-meters, Shaurae Winfield, third in the 800-meters and Becke Coyne, third in the 100-meter hurdles.

Juniors Amie Padgett, second in the 5,000-meters, Michele Williams, second in the long jump and Julie Tottleben, fourth in the 100-meter hurdles, also placed.

The 4x100-meter relay team finished second, only .40 seconds off the winning time of 48.02.

Several freshman also had personal bests, including Danielle Melton in the 200-meters, Ingrid Kuschel in the 400-meter hurdles, Stephanie Shelley in the 1,500-meters and Karen and Karri Gardner in the 3,000-meters and 5,000-meters, respectively.

Ian Woosnam wins Masters for first major title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Ian Woosnam kept his poise after a dreadful tee shot at the 13th hole Sunday and went on to win the Masters by one stroke for his first major championship.

The 5-foot-4 long-hitting Welshman secured his victory with a six-foot par putt on the 18th green. This marked the fourth straight year the Masters went to a British player.

Woosnam, who has needed only a major title to join the ranks of the world's great players, survived a dramatic duel with Jose-Maria Olazabal and Tom Watson with a round of par-72. It was a round filled with the kinds of peaks and valleys that usually make the final day of the Masters one of the most thrilling days in sport.

Woosnam, Olazabal and Watson all went to the 18th hole standing at 11-under and only Woosnam, the one-time boxer who has twice led the European Tour in earnings, could manage par.

Olazabal, who like Woosnam was trying for his first major crown, suffered a bogey on the final hole, first putting his tee shot in a fairway bunker and from there hitting his approach into a wide expanse of grass usually populated only by members of the gallery.

Then Watson and Woosnam came to the final hole with Watson hitting a poor drive into the trees right of the fairway and Woosnam producing an immense drive over the fairway bunkers and into a wide expanse of grass usually populated only by members of the gallery.

one out, but managed to score only 1 run to take a 1-0 advantage.

Creighton came back to tie the score in its half of the second inning.

SIUC brought its second run across the plate in the fifth inning, but the Bluejays retaliated with 4 runs of their own in the bottom of the fifth.

Once again, the Salukis got a fine pitching performance from their starter, but couldn't come up with a clutch hit to record a victory. Junior Ryan McWilliams (3-2) threw 41/3 innings before being lifted for junior reliever Mike Van Gilder, who worked the final 12/3 innings.

"Too bad we couldn't generate enough offense to support a solid pitching performance by McWilliams," Riggelman said.

In the opening game of the series, junior starting pitcher Sean Bergman (2-4) was rattled early, allowing 6 runs in the first inning.

Creighton's John Pivovar supplied all the offense the Bluejays would need with home runs in the first and second innings. He was two for four on the day with five RBI and 2 runs scored.

Saluki senior Al Levine (2-3) took a starting role in the second game Saturday, going six innings for SIUC. He allowed 3 runs on 10 hits in a losing effort.

The Salukis' bats were silent as they mustered only five hits off Creighton's Alan Benes (6-1).

SIUC will try to get back on track at 3 p.m. Tuesday with a game against SIUE.

Even though Smith was happy, he said there are areas for improvement for the team.

"I can't say there are specific things we need to work on because I haven't seen the film of the scrimmage yet," Smith said. "But between now and the beginning of the season we need to improve our strength by about 10 or 15 percent."

Players had varying emotions about the end of the practice sessions.

"I'm glad it's over," Dopud said. "Now I can concentrate on my studies. The season is a long way away."

Walker, however, wasn't ready to quit when the final whistle blew Saturday.

"I'd like to play for another week," Walker said. "I just found my groove."

Smith said he has fallen easily into the routine of coaching everyday.

"We took a day off last week and I was like a caged lion," Smith said. "I didn't know what to do at three o'clock. I could coach year round."

Giacone said she often struggles trying to keep up on her homework.

"I hardly get anything done on trips," Giacone said. "We usually miss classes on Fridays, but I'm lucky because I have understanding professors and I can usually get notes from friends in class."

One thing that helps the entire golf team keep its GPA above the 3.0 mark is the policies Daugherty has to studying. If a player feels they need to miss practice to do some homework or study it is OK with Daugherty, as long as they don't abuse the policy.

"She (Daugherty) emphasizes academics," Giacone said. "We always set a team goal for a GPA we want to achieve. But she really doesn't hound us to study because all of us on the team are disciplined enough to study on our own."

Giacone missed most of the fall season because of a back injury, but hopes to be back to top form come time for the Gateway Conference Tournament in April.

She missed a round of action in the Peggy Kirk Bell Invitational in Florida early in the spring because of the nagging injury, but has since scored in the Snowbird Classic in Florida with a low round of 79 and the Indiana Invitational in Bloomington Indiana.
