3-percent tuition hike passes Board

By Katie Morrison
Administration Reporter

The SIU Board of Trustees Thursday approved a more affordable 3-percent tuition increase for students, instead of the 13 percent proposed originally.

Brown last month proposed a 13-percent increase for undergraduates and graduates to be carried out for two years.

SIU's professional institutions, such as law and medical schools, will stay with the original tuition-increase plans, but the increase will be for one year instead of two. The law school will receive a 15-percent increase and the medical school a 20-percent increase beginning fiscal year 1995.

SIU Chancellor James Brown said the 13-percent tuition increase was not workable in terms of cost to students, despite the University's need for money.

"We have more than demonstrated the need for the revenue that would be generated by our proposed tuition increases," Brown said. "But circumstances within the state lead me to believe that an increase above 3 percent is not feasible.

"Thus, we will continue to defer our needs, and I am revising my recommendation to a general tuition increase of 3 percent."

Law students prepare for 15-percent increase

By Shawna Donovan
Special Assignment Reporter

The SIU Board of Trustees Thursday approved a 15-percent tuition hike for the law school over the next year, but some students doubt if the drastic hike is necessary.

Under the new increase, law school tuition will increase from $2,796 to $3,216 for 12 credit hours.

Students are concerned about how the money will be spent as well as the long term effects on current students and the regional economy. These concerns prompted four law students to speak on the students' behalf at Thursday's trustee meeting.

The 15-percent increase will be over the next year beginning of the fiscal year 1995 in July.

Steve Friedel, president of the Student Bar

Association, said the increase is not justified because students do not know where the money is going.

"We do not know exactly what we are paying for, and law students do not accept it," Friedel said.

"BOT did not listen to us and they had their minds made up before we came in," he said. "We don't have a lot of choice because it is too hard to transfer."

Trustee William Norwood said the law school's administration needs consideration when it comes to handling collected funds.

"The law school's management needs a little flexibility on where the tuition is going and how they are going to use it," Norwood said. "Maybe more funds would help the school's ranking."

USG candidates face-off at campus forum

By Marc Chase
General Assignment Reporter

Partisans, non partisans, concerned students and senators griffed the four presidential candidates for Undergraduate Student Government Thursday night in a debate and forum with questions concerning party platforms and campaign issues.

The four candidates participated in the forum, sponsored by the USG election commission, a group of mediators for the campaign process, were: John Shull, Progressive Party; Troy Arnoldi, Affordability, Accountability, Accessibility Party; Edwin Sawyer, Unity Party; and Ben Smith, Student Independent Party.

Shull said a proposed book rental system that he introduced as a resolution March 30 before the USG senate, has been the main platform of the Progressive Party during this campaign.

Arnoldi said the rental system is a good idea, but it is not very feasible because it will cost too much money to implement.

"It would really be nice to implement a book rental system but such a system at SIU at Edwardsville costs 6.8 million dollars each year," Arnoldi said. "The system would be real nice, but it would also be nice if I could give everyone a Ferrari; it just is not feasible." Shull said the rental system is very possible if it is implemented slowly over a period of several years.

Sawyer said he agrees that the book rental would be a nice facility to save students money on tuition, students from SIU at Edwardsville spend a flat $46 rental for their textbooks as opposed to the $200 SIU student must pay, but he said more research is needed to determine the feasibility of the plan.

Smith said the rental system would create more student fees and his party is opposed to any additional fee increases.

City officials back program enforcement

By Aleksandra Macyszyn
Health Reporter

City officials hope that an alcohol awareness program required for local bartenders will help Carbondale, although training will cost employees and owners.

The Carbondale City Council last fall passed an ordinance under advice of the Liquor Advisory Board after former SIU student Jose Waight died of asphyxiation Feb. 6, 1993 outside the former Checkers nightclub at 605 E. Grand.

The ordinance requires most bartenders participate in the TIPS program, (trauma intervention procedures by servers of alcohol) at Jackson County Health Department, at a cost of $15 a person.

City Clerk Janet Vaught said licenses have until June 30 to send employees to be trained, or the city will not renew their licenses.

City Manager Jeff Doherty said when individuals pay for the program themselves, it makes them more marketable in future job searches.

Ron Yearian, a bouncer at PK's, 308 South Illinois Ave., said if the program will improve his employment opportunities, it is a good idea for him and others employed at local bars.

"A liquor license is a privilege, not a right, and with that privilege come obligations," Doherty said.

Mayor Neil Dillard said the program will be effective once it is fully implemented.

"Licensees are expected to pay the cost, and they should," Dillard said.

Doherty said the program is a good idea and all bartenders should go through the program to learn expected responsibilities and

15 Americans killed in copter mishap

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—Two U.S. jet fighters mistakenly shot down a pair of U.S. Army helicopters over Northern Iraq early Thursday morning, killing 15 American crewmen and 11 foreign officials in an episode that left U.S. military officers baffled over how the tragedy could have occurred.

U.S. officials said the helicopters, both Army UH-60 Black Hawks, were ferrying a team of foreign officers and Kurds on a routine visit to remote Kurdish villages. They said the pilots of the U.S. jets—both Air Force F-15C Eagles—apparently mistook the helicopters for Iraqi aircraft.

The occurrence was all the more startling because the area in which it happened—the so-called "no-fly zone" from which Iraqi aircraft are excluded—under terms set by the allies at the end of the Persian Gulf war—has been quiet for more than a year.

U.S. officials said American search-and-rescue planes recovered all 26 bodies, and the U.S. European Command, which oversees allied air operations in the region, is dispatching a team of high-level investigators to the crash-site Friday.

Those killed include 15 American officers and crewmen and 11 foreigners—two Britons, one Frenchman, three Turks and five Kurdish leaders. Most of the passengers apparently were military officers who were assigned to support U.N. military and relief efforts on behalf of the Kurds.

ELECTION STILL ON DESPITE FAILED TALKS—JOHANNESBURG, South Africa—A long-hot effort at international mediation to defuse the fierce pre-election conflict in Natal Province collapsed in embarrassment and disarray here Thursday before the high-profile mediators had held their first formal meeting. Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the leader of the seven foreign jurists, academics and diplomats, said the group was reluctantly abandoning its mission because of the apparently non-negotiable demand by Zulu Chief Mangosuthu Gatsha Buthelezi that South Africa's first all-race elections be postponed. The mediators arrived only two days ago amid a fanfare of publicity as a last-minute attempt to forge a compromise between Buthelezi's Inkatha Freedom Party, which is boycotting the April 26-28 elections, and the African National Congress, which is expected to sweep the vote and head the first post-apartheid government.

2,400 HAITIANS RECEIVE ASYLUM, SAFETY—NEW YORK—Holding back tears with a steely resolve, Alene Belance described the beating—intended to be fatal—she says she took because of her family's love for exiled Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. Of about 50,000 Haitians who have gone to in-country processing centers seeking asylum in the United States, only 2,400 have received it. The United States has maintained that the vast majority of asylum-seekers are looking for jobs. But Belance, who according to human rights workers was granted asylum and came to the New York area in January, insists the persecution is widespread and that tens of thousands of her countrymen would like to escape.

PLANES FLY OVER BOSNIA, GUNS RECOVERED
SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina—Bosnian Serb rebels intensified their menacing of U.N. forces throughout Bosnia Thursday, stirring fears that nationalist hard-liners are trying to provoke a showdown with what they see as an impotent, drifting mission. North Atlantic Treaty Organization jets screeched low over this tense capital in what appeared an attempt to intimidate the defiant rebels who have kidnapped, physically threatened or restricted the movement of almost 5,000 U.N. personnel in anger over recent U.N.-ordered air strikes. Rebel gunmen crept into a weapons containment site before dawn, captured 17 peacekeepers at gunpoint and presumably recovered the heavy artillery that the U.N. soldiers had been safeguarding.

TOBACCO INDUSTRY QUESTIONS FIGURES—WASHINGTON—Top tobacco company executives emphatically denied they raise nicotine levels in cigarettes, insisted that nicotine was not addictive and said they remain unconvinced that cigarette smoking causes lung cancer, emphysema, heart disease and other life-threatening ailments. But Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health, berated the executives for their failure to acknowledge what medical experts have scientifically documented for many years: that cigarettes are addictive, and that they kill more than 400,000 Americans annually.

COBAIN'S WIFE ARRESTED ON DRUG CHARGES—LOS ANGELES—In an ironic twist to the suicide of Nirvana star Kurt Cobain, police Wednesday confirmed that at about the same time he is believed to have shot himself to death in Seattle, his wife was being arrested on drug charges in Beverly Hills. Rock musician Courtney Love—the 28-year-old mother of a 19-month-old baby girl—was arrested last Thursday at the posh Peninsula Hotel after hotel officials called police to report that they believed one of their guests had overdosed on heroin, said Beverly Hills police Sgt. Robert Smith.

OLD LAW UPHELD IN CURRENT MURDER CASE—HOUSTON—In 188, a distillery owner John Laws shot dead a man he caught stealing two bottles of whiskey. Laws was convicted of murder. But a Texas appeals court overturned the verdict under a state law that allows residents to kill to protect their property at night. A Houston grand jury, relying on the century-old law, refused last month to indict a homeowner who fatally shot a man who appeared to be stealing his truck in the middle of the night.

Administration needs to better relationship

WALKING IS WELL KNOWN AS ONE OF THE best exercises for the human body. If done regularly and with a certain level of vigor, it can burn as many calories and exercise the cardiovascular system as well as a run of the same duration. It also is much easier on the knees and ankles.

Walking also has other benefits.

Doctors often recommend it to relieve stress. It also allows people to get out of a stuffy home or office and enjoy nature, and meet others.

The latter of those benefits could serve SIUC President John C. Guyon well, should he try walking around campus more often.

NANCY BELCK BECAME PRESIDENT OF SIUC in January. At other universities where she was an administrator she was known as "the walker," because she would take 30 to 45 minute strolls around campus every day and talk with those at the university. She is continuing the practice at SIUC.

Belck says walking allows her to hear concerns of students, faculty and staff in an informal setting, it is a good way of keeping in touch with the campus and a way of letting students know she is concerned.

THE SIUC PRESIDENT BEST KNOWN FOR getting out and meeting the University's students was Delyte Wesley Morris, after whom Morris Library is named. He served as president from 1948 to 1970 and was notorious for his ability to communicate with students.

Morris often held watermelon feasts, Coke-a-Cola parties and doughnut hours in an effort to enlist the support of students and area residents. He also entertained parents of athletes, civic groups, alumni, board members and so fourth, to further the cause of the University.

Another SIUC administrator who was well known for getting out and meeting students was Bruce Swinburn, vice president of Student Affairs during the 1960s. Swinburn was so well known for shaking hands with and talking to students that some would dress like him for Halloween, and a campus organization sold T-shirts with a caricature of him holding his hand out as he would do when greeting students.

STUDENTS, THOUGH, ALSO PLAY A PART IN the communication equation. President Guyon is not wholly inaccessible. If you wish to speak to him you may make an appointment with his secretary. And if you want to find out what the administration is up to, watch his television show "SIUC Connection" which airs at 9 p.m. each Friday.

ALTHOUGH SIUC IS FIVE TIMES THE SIZE IT was during Morris' presidency, and the president of the University is likely to be busier than the vice president of Student Affairs, the point still is valid: being open and accessible to those you represent allows you to build a good image and to dispel what might be seen as an adversarial relationship.

Letters to the Editor

Faculty needs to take stand, protest

When I was a student at Duke University some years ago, there were rules made by the administration which set limits as to what our privileges were and what they were not.

We as students may not have liked them for the young seldom ever like limits set on their freedom to do just as they like.

One of the rules was particularly annoying but regardless of the annoyance it was there and we as students obeyed it. That rule was that we were allowed three cuts during a semester and that was all. In case of severe illness it could be waived but otherwise the rule was there and we were careful not to overstep the bounds.

Also a cut before or after a vacation was considered a double cut. With each additional cut over the three hour grade went down automatically one letter.

With this rule we not only learned more than we might have otherwise but we also learned a sense of responsibility, discipline and a respect for our professors and the administration.

Today we wonder what has happened to the educational system? Could it be that the professors and the administration and even the board have shirked their responsibility in not setting limits beyond which the students who are very immature cannot go?

Is not the administration depriving the students of their education right to assume responsibility and to discipline themselves?

That professors who feel required to pass students regardless of performance it seems to me is compounding the disservice to the students. How can a student know the subject matter who never feels any obligation to attend class? Why have professors at all if the students are not required to attend class?

I wonder if the parents of these same students know that their children are completely free to do as they please once they leave home and enter the "University".

I was utterly appalled when I learned of this very sad and unrealistic approach of the administration in shirking their duty toward their students.

Why has not the faculty as a whole stood up in protest?

Graduate evaluates USG candidates

I can hear it. It's like the starting of a jet engine. At first they slowly whine as its turned over, and pretty soon there is a thunderous roar that deafens, chokes, and blinds.

What is it? The annual Student Elections. And like the starting of that jet turbine, a student can be deafened, choked, and blinded by all of the propaganda that exudes from presidential and senatorial candidates.

As I see it, there are three main contenders in the upcoming race: Edwin Sawyer, Troy Arnoldi, and John Schull. What have these people done to qualify to control a six figure budget and lead this campus into the next year? I am sure they will be eager to tell us, but let me share some of my humble observations as a dedicated student voter.

Edwin Sawyer, leader of the Unity Party and presidential hopeful. For two years Mr. Sawyer sat as a Senator on USG. The key word is "sat." Mr. Sawyer initiated no significant legislation or provided any leadership other than getting elected in that two year period. He failed to be re-elected last year, and opted to not participate in student government in any way. What kind of an inspiration will he be to our new senators and our campus at large? Will his motto be, "Status Quo, Status Quo!"

Troy Arnoldi, leader of the Triple AAA party and presidential hopeful. While Mr. Arnoldi was not elected last year either, at least he participates in student government.

He has been active as USG Governmental Relations Commissioner, and sponsored many student registration drives. Although I am pleased to see him doing his job, I have never seen Mr. Arnoldi be the dynamic leader SIUC needs in command.

John Schull, leader of the Progressive party and presidential hopeful. Mr. Schull WAS elected last year.

As one of the few senators working on USG, he has passed several bills aimed at our benefit.

These include a bill opposing tuition increases; a bill sponsoring a book rental program; a bill that forced Housing into providing more meal options; and a bill to fund more smaller student organizations.

My recommendation is to pick the leader that has chosen a path and is willing to take us down that path. Not someone who wants us as a university to grow stagnant, or build their resume for some future job.

Mr. John Schull, Progressive Party leader, can make changes here and now. Will we let him? This one has proven his ability and his trust in us, now can we do what must be done and vote Progressive?

—Jon-Paul Mickle, graduate, MPA

obligations.
Tim Johnson, a bartender at Pinch Penny Pub, 700 East Grand, said the owner paid for his training, and he would be upset if he had to pay for it himself. He said the city should not be responsible for payments.

"With such a high turnover rate of bartenders in the area, the city would be paying a lot of money every year to put people through the program," Johnson said.

Russ Wallace, a bartender at PK's, said the program is a good idea, but that the city should pay for bar employees to attend.

Although he will not be paying for the program because the owner has agreed to cover the cost, Wallace said he will lose wage and tip money to attend the program, and the program probably would not help him because patrons already are drunk when his shift begins.

"I work from nine (p.m.) to close, and most have already had quite a few drinks before I get there," he said.

The program also trains alcohol servers, bouncers and liquor-store employees on how to take the focus off of alcohol and how to prevent a customer from becoming intoxicated by showing concern and respect. It includes alternatives to discuss an intoxicated customer with the bar.

Gregory Hinson, a bartender at Sidetracks, 101 West College, said he took the class last year and the class was worth $15, "because you did not get paid during it. For it to be worth the certification lasts for three years.

Bartenders at the American Tap, 518 South Illinois Ave., said they have never heard of the program.
Gwen Hunt, owner of PK's, said she does not see the point of going through the same program she went through three years ago.

"I don't know why they don't offer a refresher course free of charge to those who have already been through the program. They shouldn't make us sit through the same program -- it should be updated," Hunt said.

Greg Graves, owner of the University Teletack at University Place, said he pays for his employees to be trained, but since the city passed the law, it would be helpful if a large group session were conducted at a lower cost.

Dillard said owners can prevent paying for employees by hiring people who are already TIPS certified.

Karen McNichols, another bartender at PK's, said she will also lose wage and tip money to attend the program, but feels she probably will learn some procedures she did not know previously.

Program coordinator Ann Felu said the $15 people pay for the program covers the cost of a manual and supplement.

"The manual costs $12.50 and the rest of the cost covers a supplement that is specific for Illinois," Felu said.

She said the supplement includes specific Illinois laws concerning legal drinking limits and gives tips on how to spot fake Illinois IDs.

Students with 15+ class hours or more will pay $2,317.50 in tuition starting this year 1995.

SIUC President John C. Guyon said he is charging less tuition, SIUC will lose money slated for undergraduate retention, library materials, and graduate-instructional equipment and other technologies necessary to support teaching.

"There is $890,000 in funds that will not be realized (with 3 instead of 13-percent increase)," Guyon said.

Trustee Molly D'Esposito said adopting the tuition increase was a difficult decision because the trustees did not want to sacrifice the University's good standing.

"Finding a balance between accessibility and quality will be difficult -- the presidents of SIUC and SIU-L have to find the funds," she said.

Norwood said the school has a lot to offer, such as an affordable legal education as well as many programs, such as moot court.
Dean Harry Hayneworth said the increase is necessary because the legislature is not supplying needed funds currently.

The law school's proposed tuition increased last year, but the Illinois Board of Higher Education did not pass the increase recommendation.

The law school composed a long-range expansion program called the Whitepaper Report in May 1992 that includes areas of upgrading at the school to 1997.

The report also states the school wants to increase student enrollment from 343 to 375.
Susan Hall, president of the Graduate and Professional Student Council, said the council does not support the increase because it will make students rely on financial aid.

Friedel said the law school has dropped from 88th to 108th in a national ranking of law schools.
Law school administration did not speak at the trustees' meeting.

of the AAA party is to rally student interest in USG and increase their power in the legislature by registering more student voters.

He said his work in creating ISURGE, a conference where public colleges in Illinois discuss imposed tuition and fee hikes by the Illinois Board of Higher Education and Board of Trustees, is testimonial to how he will fight against student fee increases at the legislature.

Sawyer said the main concern of his party is to reach out to students and obtain their opinions on how ISG should be conducting itself. Key words included representing students.

Clinic offers insight, answers to auto questions

By Angela Hyland
Priorities Reporter

Auto technician Karen Greenberg once stared blankly when questioned about leaky radiators or faulty wiring, but this weekend she will teach students basic car care.

The women's auto car clinic, 12 to 1:30 p.m. Sunday, will teach basic maintenance skills as well as tips on what to look for when buying a car.

Greenberg, an employee at Gary Goodyear in Carbondale, said many problems she sees in her repair shop could be avoided with preventive maintenance.

"The more that people know about the technology they depend on and are surrounded by, the better it is for everyone," she said.

Working on an automobile now seems almost as natural to Greenberg as driving, but she said auto repair is not a profession she dreamt of entering as a child.

"I had a real traditional female upbringing," Greenberg said. "I played with Barbie dolls — I never took apart alarm clocks or lawnmower motors."

While working at the front desk of a gas station and auto repair shop 12 years ago, Greenberg said customers often asked her questions she could not answer. Rather than telling customers she did not know, Greenberg decided she would learn.

She began spending more time in the back of the store watching repair workers and soon could mount, balance and install tires. She continued learning repair skills and earned her car repair license, a feat which surprised her parents.

"They would never dream of working on their own cars," she said. "They say it's dangerous and dirty."

Kim Gorgens, a counseling and administrative assistant at SIUC's Women's Services, said the class provides an opportunity for women to learn automobile maintenance skills in a non-threatening environment.

"To have a woman come in is empowering in a way," she said.

Gorgens said she often speaks with women who take a car into a repair shop when they had no idea what was wrong.

"For some women, that's intimidating," she said.

If people have a basic understanding about their vehicle's design, they feel more in control when they take their car for repairs, Gorgens said.

Gorgens said she often has wanted to attend the class, but scheduling conflicts have not allowed it.

"Every time my car does something crazy, I think, 'If only I knew how to change this fan belt,'" she said.

The class, taught by and for women, will be at the south end of the Arena parking lot. To register, call Women's Services before 4:30 today at 453-3655.

April 14 thru 21
Is National PIG Week at

Starting this week, for our Fourth Annual Pig Week, Fred's continues a new and exciting way to get in free. For the last 6 yrs, we had only 4 ways to get in Fred's for free: birthdays, weddings, anniversaries, finalized divorces, and your name being Fred, Freida, Fredrick, & Fredina etc.

But this week bring your favorite PIG and receive free admission (spouses & dates do not count). Examples are posters, pictures suitable for hanging, dolls, toys, salt and pepper shakers, etc. Don't just tear out a picture of a pig from a magazine. Bring a real pig object. A more unusual example: someone brought a jar of pickled pig's feet.

Ceramics, paintings art shown in SIUC gallery

By Matthew Lamacki
Entertainment Reporter

A huge, ceramic shoe, a blown glass drum set and some abstract paintings and drawings are all on display at the Associated Artists Gallery in Carbondale.

The gallery, 213 S. Illinois Ave., will have an opening reception from 6 to 8 p.m. tonight for the Independent Artists Forum, featuring artworks from SIUC students. The reception is open to the public.

Patrick Morrissey, president of the independent artists group, said the exhibits include two dimensional and three dimensional works created by students at SIUC.

The art show runs until May 6. Morrissey said the art show is one of three or four the group puts on every year, and anyone is welcome to join.

"We are a group here at school, and we accept any aspiring artist," he said.

"You don't really have to be an art major to join."

Morrissey said artists with especially interesting exhibits include SIUC students Mike Kozien and Yuki Mogaki.

"Mike Kozien is an award winner and has created an interesting oil painting," he said. "Yuki Mogaki has made a ceramic shoe that must be at least four-feet long."

"My own contribution is a drum set made out of blown glass," he said.

Judy Addington, president of the gallery, said she is very excited about the show.

"All of the exhibits are excellent pieces of work and we expect the show to be a big success," she said.

Addington encourages people visiting the reception and talk with artists about their work. Food and refreshments also will be served.

Gallery member, Sadako Clarke, said there are at least 60 to 70 exhibits on display.

"There are so many that it is hard to get an accurate count," she said.

Clarke said prices for exhibits range from $15 to possibly as much as $2,000.

"The museum will get about 30 percent of the sales, which is common procedure for artists who are not members of the gallery," she said.

"For gallery members the percentage is less than that."

Morrissey said most exhibits are for sale and some are for display.

The gallery is open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Former student to talk about life, television career

By Heather Burrow
Entertainment Reporter

Students who watch ABC's "All My Children" may be unaware that actor Wali Willey, who portrays Jackson Montgomery, partied at the American Tap, worked at the Daily Egyptian and graduated from SIUC.

Willey will speak about working on a soap opera and answer questions at 8 p.m. Saturday at Shoney's Auditorium. Tickets are $2 for SIUC students and $3 for the general public.

Willey worked on the Daily Egyptian as a copy editor, was a member of the President's Scholar Program and took classes about topics such as UFOs and Utopian Dreams and Nightmares.

"What can I say? It was the '70s," Willey said.

Willey attended SIUC from 1973-75 and majored in fine arts. He also performed in about 12 plays at the McLeod Theater and the laboratory theater.

"Deciding to quit my job in Du Quoin at Terco and head for New York was not a very well-thought-out decision," Willey said.

"But, I was close to thirty and knew that if I did not try now, I would wonder after what I could have accomplished."

Willey has worked for "All My Children" for seven years.

"For an actor in New York, soap operas are the only game in town if you don't want to go broke," he said.

While in Carbondale, Willey lived in a house by the ROTC office and frequented places like the American Tap, 518 S. Illinois Ave., P.K.'s, 303 S. Illinois Ave., and a now defunct bar called Mabin.

"I went to SIUC because it was the nearest school from my home town of Ottawa and still in the '70s," he said.

For the first time at SIUC, a dean is sponsoring a scholarship for one of the most outstanding theater majors.

The theater department recipient of the award has not been named.

Willey said he wanted this honor to be given because of his experiences in college.

"It's much harder to get through college now than when I went. We're dealing in the field of a hard and sometimes people who are talented don't make a dime," he said.

"If I can give someone a little more time when they don't have to work and can take a few more classes, I will help any way I can."

Improvisational troupe ready to put SIUC crowd in stitches

By Heather Burrow
Entertainment Reporter

A comedy troupe that has given birth to some of the original cast of Saturday Night Live is coming to help celebrate spring with SIUC.

The Second City National Touring Company Sunday will start off the Dawg Days of Spring celebration at SIUC.

The troupe will perform at 8 p.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms. Tickets are $3 for SIUC students and $5 for the general public.

The Student Programming Council is sponsoring this event with the help of Angela Bridges, co-chairperson of SPC Dawg Days, who said students want to see people who will someday be stars.

"We wanted something fun and relaxing. There are so many well-known comedians and people want to see up and coming stars," she said.

Second City originally was called the Compass Players and consisted of University of Chicago students. This group started in 1955.

The student decided to open their own theater in 1959.

The group got the name Second City from a critic who called them the "second city of theater" after New York.

There are three resident companies, companies that are based in the Chicago area, and three touring companies.

Auditions are held once a year in Chicago during the late summer. Those auditions last for three days and when they are finished, five to 10 people out of 300-500 are chosen to be new members.

According to one member, Mark Dalbis, Second City is one of the better places to work.

"People want to become members of Second City because it is the only place to play professionally and get paid for it," Dalbis said.

The troupe coming to Carbondale is a six-member ensemble consisting of Mark Dalbis, Jeff Rogers, Joe Dempsey, Jon Glaser, Rachel Draich and Maria Carell.

The group plays skits from older shows, new skits and improvisations.

"We mainly do social and political satires," Dalbis said. "Our comedy is kind of like Saturday Night Live with an in your face humor."

During the show, the troupe now asks the audience for suggestions or improvisations.

"We love playing colleges because the students tend to be energetic and intelligent and give good suggestions," Dalbis said.

They want to see something real."

Sometimes the group will get a local newspaper and put skits in the show from the local news.

"However, the skits usually stay the same every show except for the improvisation which make the show more tangible," Dalbis said.

Women fight for place in politics

Gender losing significance in office

Even before women earned the right to vote, they fought for places in government, whether national or local.

U.S. Rep. Jeannette Rankin made history when she was only 36 years old by becoming the first female member of Congress — four years before the 19th Amendment granted women the right to vote.

Rankin, a Republican lobbyist for women's suffrage, was elected to represent Montana in the House of Representatives in 1916.

The 1918 election was the last time a female failed to be elected to the U.S. Congress.

Georgia's Rebecca Latimer Felton was the first woman sworn in as a U.S. senator in October 1922, finishing out the term of a deceased senator. Felton was in office a little longer than a month and only attended two days in session before her successor was sworn in.

Illinois women did not wait long to get involved with national politics.

Winnifred Mason Huck was the first of these women, elected to the House of Representatives in 1922 to finish the remaining four months of her father's term in office. She was followed by Ruth Hanna McCormick in 1928, who ran with the slogan "No Promises and No Bunk," and won by 500,000 votes.

Another notable female in Congress was Shirley Chisholm, a Democrat from New York. In 1968, she became the first black woman to be elected to the U.S. House of Representatives and in 1971 she became the first woman to run a serious campaign for president.

Although women still do not have equal seats in Congress, the 1992 elections raised the number of female U.S. representatives from 28 to 48 and senators from two to seven.

In 1992, Democrat Carol Moseley-Braun became the first female U.S. senator elected in Illinois and the first black woman to serve in the Senate.

Diane Schmidt, assistant professor in political science, said women are becoming more prominent in the political arena.

"Gender is not a significant issue," she said. "These women are professional women who have political experience — they have careers outside of home. They are running independently on their own credentials. I think it's getting easier (for women to be elected)."

Former Carbondale Mayor Helen Westberg, who served from 1983 to 1987, said she has seen more involvement of women in politics at a local level. Westberg began her political career on the City Council in 1973.

"When I went on the City Council there were not very many women involved (in local government)," she said. "Now there are more, not only in the big cities."

Westberg said when she was elected mayor, many people were not sure what to expect from her.

"I think there were quite a few people who were waiting to see what I would do," she said. "I wanted to do a good job, and I suppose I succeeded — I was re-elected several times."

Last April, SIUC adult education specialist Maggie Flanagan was elected to the City Council. She said her experiences on the council have been good.

"It's all been very positive," she said. "I like having first hand knowledge of the city, and I've had a lot of encouragement."

Flanagan said she feels women should take an interest in politics.

"The more women we get to participate,

Illinois voters get unique alternative at polls

When Illinois voters go to the polls in November, they will have a choice never offered in the state election before — a pair of women running for governor and lieutenant governor on the same ticket.

Brian Hopkins, assistant to Democratic gubernatorial candidate Dawn Clark Netchs, said while 19 women currently are running for governor in the United States, Netchs is the first female nominee for that office in Illinois.

Netchs, the state comptroller, served several terms in the State Senate. Her running mate is State Sen. Penny Sevens, D-Decatur, a graduate of SIUC.

Each was elected separately in the March 15 primary, but will run together in November.

Pat Reilly, the director of communications for the National Women's Political Caucus in Washington D.C., said this Illinois gubernatorial election is unique in the nation.

"Women are making steady gains in politics — recent elections in Illinois are an indication of this," she said.

Hopkins said Netchs's campaign will not emphasize her gender, but focus on her skills instead.

"Dawn is not going to run as a woman candidate," he said. "She's going to run as a candidate who happens to be a woman."

Hopkins said Netchs has many things she wants to accomplish in office, including tax reform and putting more money into education. Above all, he said, Netchs wants to be honest with the voters.

Netchs was a law professor at Northwestern University, where she earned her bachelor's degree. Before serving in the Senate, she was a member of the Illinois Constitutional Convention in 1970 and helped to write the state constitution.

Sevens graduated from SIUC in 1974 with a bachelor's degree in political science. She was on the Decatur City Council for four years and was elected to the state senate in 1987.

Diane Schmidt, SIUC assistant professor in political science, said generally, women are not expected to be as aggressive as men in politics, but said Netchs is a different story.

"Dawn Clark Netchs is so atypical of the type of person who would run," she said. "(Men) need to be aggressive — people expect women to be nicer. She is aggressively nice."

Schmidt said Netchs has qualities not found in many politicians, male or female.

"There is no question about her capabilities," she said. "She has ample experience in politics, has won elections and is fairly conservative. She is incredibly sophisticated in budgetary politics."

Hopkins said Netchs, as the state's fiscal control officer, is known for her knowledge of financial matters.

"She has a reputation for being the state's top expert on financial matters," he said. "She is a much more hands-on type of leader. (If elected,) she will fight for issues — she will take her case to the public and take it to the press."

Netchs

Hopkins stressed that both women are qualified for the job. "There are two women running for governor and lieutenant governor," he said. "It's not the fact that they're women that counts, it's that they are these two women — highly respected around the state."

the easier it will be," she said.
She said women have the same concerns as men when it comes to politics.
"It's a lot to juggle — family, job, and now I've been taking a course," she said. "You do need support from family and friends."
"With more women in government, more women will participate," she said.
Schmidt said to be elected to state and national offices women need the support of political parties.
"It (an election) has a lot to do with where they place in the parties," she said. "The difficulty in getting women elected often starts at the party level."
Women often had been the backbone of the parties, she said.
"Making the switch from service to leadership is difficult," she said.

Society sponsors college pianist

By Kyle J. Chapman
Entertainment Reporter

The Beethoven Society for Pianist is celebrating its 10th anniversary with visiting award-winning college pianist Lawrence Campbell.

Campbell will be the featured soloist Saturday evening in the Law School Auditorium. He will play music of Johannes Brahms and Franz Liszt and will close Sunday evening after five of SIUC's best student pianists perform.

SIUC music professor Donald Beattie said Campbell is considered to be a master pianist and will be named a society honorary member.

Five SIUC students who will be featured before Campbell are: Hsing Fen Wu, Tosha Gwin, Christy Shackelford, Shiang Yu Liou and Rochelle Joyner. The winner will receive the first annual Bill Barras Award for $500.

Society's Spring Festival will be at 8 p.m. Saturday and at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Law School Auditorium. Admission is $5 Saturday for students and $10 for the general public. General admission is $5 Sunday.

Marsha Mallow to give workshop on clownin' for kids in Dawg Days

By Melissa Edwards
Entertainment Reporter

Big, floppy shoes, bright colored suits and smiles that last for miles — clowns brighten rooms just by walking into them.

Marsha Mallow the clown will be giving a workshop from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday in the Big Muddy Room in the Student Center.

Kids interested in clowning around can learn how through face painting, juggling demonstrations, magic tricks and balloons.

She said there are three types of clowns she will demonstrate: an auguste, white face and character. She also will teach how to move like a clown.

Marsha Mallow said she has two reasons for being a clown — she likes children and likes to entertain. She has a degree in physical education, and is a substitute teacher.

The children always want to know if they can "clown around."

"Most children love clowns," she said.

She said a 4-year-old girl once ran up to her, grabbed her hand and wanted Marsha Mallow to be her friend.

Marsha Mallow said she has been a professional clown for 14 years.

She got her start at Triton College in River Grove, and now her children are also learning the tricks of the trade at Triton.

They have been part of her show since they were born.

"Families that work together, stay together," she said.

Admission to the workshop is $2. Those interested can register by calling the SPC office at 536-3393, at the door.

While the Shockers have an excellent pitching staff, the Salukis have had a strong offense to date, and should not be overlooked, Riggleman said.

"While we are considering their pitching, they should also look at us and consider our hitting as well," he said. "The key thing is that we are not going to change our style of hitting when we face their pitching."

The Shockers are coming into the game against SIUC with a 12-game winning streak, and the squad boasts the MVC's hitting and pitching player of the week.

Shocker junior shortstop Jason Adams won last week's award for hitting .500 in four games, while Mike Drumright captured the award with a school-record 17 strikeouts in a 3-2, 12-inning win over Illinois State.

Missing from the line-up is SIUC centerfielder Jason Smith who was diagnosed with a stress fracture in his left leg late in the week.

Smith was hitting .236 and had played in 27 of SIUC's 29 games, committing one error in 84 chances.

Riggleman said the team should be able to recover until Smith returns.

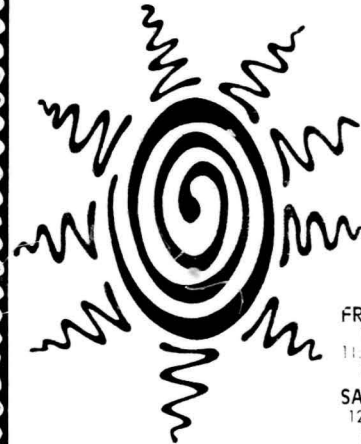

"We hate to lose Jason right now, but at least we have a lot more outfield depth this season which should help out," he said.

Immediate plans call for Braden Gibbs to remain in centerfield, while Riggleman said he also has the option to put Clint Smothers in center and move Dave Taylor over to rightfield.

The Salukis will play the Shockers in a doubleheader on Saturday with games at 2 and 7 p.m., then brave the field once again on Sunday for the last game of the series at 1 p.m.

home, spending time with people who know where you are coming from," Prace said. "It would be a real shame to see that end."

That became a possibility this week with the announcement that the NFL will begin charging bars and restaurants for satellite transmissions of its games. Previously, those telecasts were free if they were not assigned to the region.

Although the league stands to net more than $100 million a year by some estimates, there will be another effect in Southern California.

Hundreds of fan groups from other parts of the country, most with at least several hundred members each, gather in area bars and restaurants every Sunday with assurances that their favorite team will be shown on TV.

The nearly 2,000-member Southern California Brown Backers Association has agreements with 27 area establishments to show Cleveland Brown games every week. With the new rule, fans can still watch their hometown team together. But they expect to be asked to absorb the higher cost through increased food prices or a cover charge. Or worse, say some, they will be forced to leave longtime Sunday gathering spots for larger, more impersonal spots because smaller businesses can no longer afford to host them.

within two runs, 8-6.

SIUC went to its bullpen again in the eighth as Chris Evans came in and blanked the Indians for the first time in three innings.

The Saluki bats then began their comeback charge as Clint Smothers led off the bottom half of the inning with a double to center. Taylor came through with a double of his own, scoring Smothers to make the score 8-7.

Gibbs joined the hit parade with an RBI single to right that tied the game at eight.

With one out and Gibbs on second, Bill True came through with a single. But Gibbs rounded third on the hit too wide and was picked off trying to make his way back to the bag for the second out in the inning.

However, Saatchi came up with a clutch single that scored True from second to give SIUC a 9-8 lead heading into the ninth.

Chad Blumenstock came in for SIUC to try and seal the win for the Dawgs and started out by fanning the first two batters for SEMO with blazing fastballs.

The next two Indian hitters drew walks from Blumenstock, but the big night came back strong against the fifth hitter, SEMO's Kerry Robinson.

Robinson hit a two strike grounder to Saluki shortstop Craig Shelton, but the ball went through the sophomores legs and scored the tying run.

Indian designated hitter Sherron Rives followed with a two RBI single that put SEMO ahead 11-9.

"The focus ends up on the ball that went under Shelton's legs, but we walked the two batters before him," Saluki head coach Sam Riggelman said. "It's unfortunate too because our kids batted back and had a great offensive show in the eighth."

The Saluki bats went down in order in the bottom of the ninth to preserve the SEMO victory.

Riggelman said he had no words for his team after the heart-breaking loss.

"Sometimes it's not all bad to leave things unsaid," he said.

SIUC is now 15-15 on the season and is heading back into Missouri Valley Conference action this weekend at Wichita State.

The Shockers are the No. 6 ranked team in the country and boast a 6-0 mark in the Valley.

After losing four straight games, Riggelman said the trip to WSU will provide a gut check for his team.

"You would like to have some momentum going into Wichita," he said. "But it will be interesting to see how we bounce back and regroup."

The first of three games with the Shockers is slated for Saturday at 2 p.m.

Dawgs lose despite late rally

By Grant Deady
Sports Reporter

The only thing missing from the Saluki baseball team's storybook game on Thursday with Southeast Missouri State was a happy ending.

SIUC fell behind and came back four times against the Indians and were within one strike of victory when the game took a dramatic twist and left the Dawgs 11-9 losers.

The Salukis fell behind in the first inning when SEMO scored two runs on two hits off SIUC starter John Strank.

However, the Indian's lead would not last for long as the Saluki bats heated up in the bottom of the second inning.

Pete Schlosser started the inning off with a double to right and advanced to third when SEMO's pitcher balked. Dave Taylor walked and Braden Gibbs followed with a single that knocked in Schlosser and advanced Taylor to second. Craig Shelton drew a two out walk to load the bases and Chris Sauritch cleared the bags with a three RBI double to give the Dawgs a 4-2 lead.

SIUC added another run in the bottom of the third off an RBI single by Gibbs that put the Salukis up 5-2.

SEMO refused to roll over for the Dawgs, though, and added three runs in the fifth to tie the game at five. The Indian rally also knocked Strank out of the game, who was relieved by David Kranz.

Kranz was unable to put a lid on the surging SEMO offense either as the Indians slapped out another run in the sixth and two more in the seventh to go up 8-5.

The Salukis crept back with one run in the bottom of the seventh when Scott DeNoyer scored on a passed ball to pull the Dawgs

No. 6 Wichita State up next for Salukis

by Karyn Viverito
Sports Reporter

Springtime roadtrips usually call for a lot of fun and relaxation, but the roadtrip that the Saluki baseball team will take this weekend pits them against one of the top teams in the country in Wichita State.

The Salukis have had their work cut out for them, starting out with three of the toughest teams in the Missouri Valley Conference. They have already taken 2 out of 3 from Creighton, but lost both games against Southwest Missouri State.

Now the Dawgs take on the Shockers, who stand atop the MVC at 6-0 and are nationally ranked at No. 6 in the country.

Saluki head coach Sam Riggelman said the Shockers without question are the best team they are going to play in the conference.

"I think the fact that they have been nationally ranked says it all," he said. "They have an outstanding pitching staff and that is what we are going to get by."

Riggelman said Wichita State's pitching is going to be the best pitching that the Salukis have seen so far this year.

"For a three-game series, each of their pitchers for each game are going to be as good as the one before them," he said. "All their pitchers are going to be good and we cannot go into the game thinking that it is going to be a slugfest, so we have to hold them down offensively."

Leading the Shockers pitching staff is lefthander Brandon Baird who is 5-0 with a 1.63 ERA mark. Jamie Bluma is the MVC's bullpen star at 3-0 with five saves and a barely recordable 0.41 ERA.

Bluma has given up only one run in 22 innings.

Salukis close out MVC season with doubleheader

By Chris Walker
Sports Reporter

The Salukis finish their Missouri Valley home schedule this weekend with doubleheaders against Northern Iowa and Drake.

Hitting and scoring have been assets so far for the Salukis. They are currently 18th in the nation in hitting and 19th in scoring. The Salukis pitchers have not been too shabby either as they have a 2.25 team ERA in comparison to their opponents 4.78.

Six regulars for SIUC are hitting .300 or higher including the Valley's No. 2 hitter, Jamie Schutteck (.451), Becky Lis (.383), Jenny Klotz (.329), Christine Knotts (.320), Mandy Miller (.324), and Laurie Wilson (.312) round up the top hitters for the Salukis.

Today, Northern Iowa will play its first conference games of the season. The Panthers have not won in Carbondale since 1990 and the Salukis will look to increase their 21-11 lifetime edge. Earlier this season, the Panthers bowed to the Salukis 2-1 in the Saluki Invitational.

Drake, who opens their Valley season today with a twinbill at Indiana State, comes into town tomorrow. Drake had been devastated by the Salukis for years, but lately it has been a different story. In 1991 SIUC owned a 17-2 edge, but over the last couple years Drake has a 3-2-1 mark against them.

The story on Friday may be whether the Salukis can contain Stacy Weber and Jen Dean. Weber, a sophomore shortstop, is hitting .264 with seven homeruns and 33 RBIs. Dean has been a mixture of speed and power for the Panthers as she has slugged seven homeruns, driven in 32, and swiped 21 bases.

Offense is not the only thing that has lifted Northern Iowa to a 28-12 record, as their pitching has sparkled. Two experienced seniors lead the way on the mound for the Panthers. Desiree Bebout is 9-6 with a 1.15 era and Dana Happel is 12-3, 1.44 ERA.

Drake is coming into Carbondale streaking. The Bulldogs have won seven of nine. The defending MVC champs have used their underclassmen to move to 18-9. Sophomore Danielle Tyler and freshman Aimee DeKeyser are both hitting above the .400 plateau with over 20 RBIs apiece.

The MVC action gets underway at 3 p.m. today and will be followed tomorrow with the MVC home season finale against Drake on noon.

It is their love for the Green Bay Packers, whom they gather to watch on a special feed from a satellite dish.

Going to Graceland: Trip lands unique insight

By Karen Ham-Gordon
Special Assignment Reporter

As spring entered all its glory two years ago, green grass and blossoming buds overwhelmed my senses. Temperatures soared into the mid 70s. No longer could the confines of Carbondale tickle my fancy — one word said it best: roadtrip.

I felt the urge to travel sights unseen, dreaming of a journey to far away places, hoping to find excitement and adventure. Destination: Graceland. The home of Elvis Presley beckoned.

Two friends and I chose the capital of tackiness by referring to the Rand-McNally road atlas my parents had given me months earlier. One glance at the lack-luster radius of Carbondale made Memphis an obvious choice. The four-hour trek was set in stone.

The next four hours were memorable, but not as exciting as I imagined.

A half-hour into the trip, we got lost — no one bothered to tell me I was driving north until we reached Du Quoin.

Being the hot-tempered driver that I am, I refused to utter so much as one word to my co-pilots for an hour and a half.

Upon reaching Arkansas three hours later, the car needed gas. One never realizes how diverse the world is until gawked at by locals. Was it the Illinois license plate or my faux Doc Martens that gave me away?

The drive was boring — we amused ourselves by singing showtunes and Dead Milkmen songs. We then finally arrived at Memphis, well almost.

Driving across a bridge from West Memphis, Ark., a large, gleaming metropolis awaited — that is, until I took a wrong turn and found myself going back across the bridge into Arkansas.

Would this journey ever reach fruition? Not with my navigational skills. Wrong turns continued and we saw a side of Memphis we did not plan on — the decaying river city side.

After twenty additional minutes of driving through neighborhoods with bars on the windows, we arrived at Elvis Presley Boulevard.

Jumping out of my maroon Chevy S-10 pick-up to the sound of "Blue Suede Shoes," my spirits soared as we ran towards the ticket booth.

"I really hate this music," I said to myself. "But this will be a something to tell the kids."

We each shed $8 to see the King's living quarters.

"Official tours of Elvis cars and Elvis documentaries are available at an additional price," the billboard stated.

"I want to grasp a piece of true Americana, but I can live without seeing the gold stretch-limousine," I muttered under my breath.

"This is the corniest thing I think we've ever done," we all agreed, trying not to insult die-hard Elvis fans near-by.

Upon boarding the official "Elvis Shuttle," we were greeted by our tour guide, Ed.

As the shuttle crossed Elvis Presley Boulevard, Ed dwelled on curiosities of Presley's life and family.

"Is he really dead, Ed?" one innocent visitor dared to ask among fans insulted by this presumption.

"I couldn't tell you," Ed replied. "He was a unique individual. I'm sure it's totally possible he's dead. Then again, he could be working covert operations for the CIA."

The two-minute ride came to a halt. I prepared to glance upward at the white palace of an American legend. This was, after all, the closest many midwesterners could ever get to a Buckingham Palace or Taj Mahal.

The excitement grew unbearable.

"This is it? I drove four and a half hours to see this?," I said as I stood on the King's front porch. "America's biggest legend lived in a shack."

While it is slightly larger than a shack, it is not a palace. I would say it is more on the scale of a decent two-story house, which happens to house a pool, a cemetery and a racquetball building.

Upon entering the house, I immediately derived two things about the King: he loved shag carpeting and had a fascination for vinyl — especially the 15-foot white sofa in the living room.

As the tour continued, we experienced the Jungle Room. Words cannot describe this room, so I will not even try — just think "earthy, in a 1970s Mike-and-Carol-Brady way."

The tour reached its climax as we entered the racquetball building. This structure houses

Pick a direction: Fun trips within reach of Carbondale

By Karen Ham-Gordon
Special Assignment Reporter

Roadtrip is not yet defined in the Webster's Dictionary, but nearly every college student can find meaning in the word. Fortunately for SIUC, Carbondale is a good central location for fun seekers wishing to break through the boundaries of a campus town.

For a fun-day trip, a four-hour journey is perfect. So find a road atlas, fill the tank and turn up the radio.

South: Memphis

Not only is it the home of the King, but home to Beale Street Blues. Memphis is the perfect trip for a group of friends looking for something distinctively non-Carbondale.

Must see: Graceland, Beale Street.

Travel tip: Stick to the main roads. It is a major city with big-city problems, so stay safe and keep out of trouble.

Getting there: Take Route 13 east to Marion, get on Interstate 57 south. Take Interstate 57 to Interstate 55 south. Drive on Interstate 55 until reaching the Elvis Presley Boulevard exit.

Estimated travel time: four hours

North: Rockhome Gardens, Arthur, Ill.
Not only can one visit with faux-Amish people (real Amish refuse to associate themselves with a tourist attraction), but one can see great artsy-craftsy spots. The country setting and romantic charm make this trip best for couples.

Must see: The Seven-Up bottle house.

Travel tip: This is not Disney World, so do not visit expecting action-packed excitement. Take your time, relax and learn.

Getting there: Take Route 13 east to Marion, get on Interstate 57. Drive until the Arthur exit.

Estimated travel time: four hours

East: Garden of the Gods
One of the most beautiful natural sites in Southern Illinois, Garden of the Gods is a short trip beyond Harrisburg. Plan extensive walking, hiking or climbing. Picnicking is also a popular function of the park.

Must see: The beautiful view of Illinois.
Travel tip: Clean up your mess before you leave. Litter has become an all-too-common sight.

Getting there: Take Route 13 east to Harrisburg, pick up Route 34 south. Follow the signs to Garden of the Gods State Park.

Estimated travel time: one hour and 15 minutes

West: University City Loop, St. Louis, Mo.
This St. Louis sister-city provides one of the most culturally-blended communities. Alternative clothing shops, vintage-record stores, used-book outlets and international cuisine are just a few of the highlights. It is mini-Greenwich Village.

Must see: Vintage Vinyl record store, Blueberry Hill restaurant and Zezo's clothing.

Travel tip: Have fun, but bring an open mind. The Loop is a very liberal, laid-back neighborhood.

Getting there: Take Route 13 west to Pinckneyville, get on 127 to Nashville. At Nashville, get on Interstate 64 west. Take the Poplar Street Bridge across the Mississippi River to St. Louis. Stay on 64 (also known as Highway 40) until reaching the Skinker Boulevard/Clayton Road exit. Make a right turn onto Skinker Boulevard until reaching Delmar Boulevard. Turn left onto Delmar and drive about two blocks.

Estimated travel time: two hours the infamous bathroom in which the King was dethroned. The bathroom was off-limits, but shag carpeting continued to reign supreme.

As the tour began to wind down, we walked through the trophy room and felt awe in the progression of Presley's physical stature. From the slim, 1950s sport coat and pants to the bulkier, sequined jumpsuit of the 1970s, Presley was an emperor with some fairly loud threads. The man was married in brown corduroy, need I say more?

The final stop on tour du King included the meditation garden, the burial place of Presley and his close relatives. Our visit grew to a close, leaving a somber portrait of a dead legend to linger in our minds.

With our mission to visit an American mecca completed, I wondered what would be next. A twisted side of my personality wandered, I thought of Ed.

"It's no big deal, somebody will see him in a Kentucky Fried Chicken in upper Michigan in a few weeks," I said. "Maybe he'll be dining with Kennedy."

Natural beauty blossoms in Southern Illinois

Outdoor wonders give travellers spectacular view of local wildlife

By Aleksandra Macys
Special Assignment Reporter

A giant sandstone city, a garden of gods and a natural area with blossoming Oriental trees join in nature's annual re-birth when the outdoors will once again offer a haven for people with cabin fever.

Lush dogwood trees, spring wildflowers and various forms of wildlife will soon be in abundance in Southern Illinois.

Located south of Carbondale in the Shawnee National Forest is Giant City State Park where nature lovers can enjoy the beauty of Southern Illinois.

Park Superintendent Bob Kristoff said the park got its name from an area in the park where giant rock formations create walls with steep right angles, appearing to form streets or alleys resembling a city.

Surrounded by enormous sandstone bluffs and woods, the 3,694 acre park is famous for its abundance of wildlife and spectacular scenery.

"The park is a natural area with nature preserves for wildflowers and other life species. We are not a place to go play volleyball — we concentrate on nature," he said.

Shelter bluffs, or rock shelters, worn into the sides of the cliffs reveal evidence of human habitation in Southern Illinois as long as 10,000 years ago. The blackened ceilings caused by early inhabitant's fires are still visible today.

On an 80-foot sandstone cliff near the main entrance, the remains of a Native American stone fort originally built between A.D. 600-800 can be seen.

Besides hiking along the 18 miles of foot trails, such as Post Oak, which unlike most trails is handicapped accessible, Devil's Standable, Stonetort and Indian Creek, the park offers picnicking and camping areas, fishing, horse riding and a lodge with 34 cabins and a restaurant. Kristoff said people should use caution while hiking in the park because cliffs can be dangerous. A teenager was killed in the park Easter Sunday when he fell from a cliff while rock climbing.

Kristoff said most of the trails go under the cliffs rather than over the top.

Also located in the Shawnee National Forest, southeast of Harrisburg is a 3,300 acre wilderness area known as the Garden of the Gods Recreation Area.

Leon LaVigne, assistant ranger of recreation, said the area has some of the most unique rock structures in Southern Illinois. Rock formations have names such as Camel Rock, Anvil Rock and Devil's Smokestack.

"The area shows what Southern Illinois is all about," he said.

LaVigne said the area is an ideal place to see spring wildflowers, but visitors are encouraged to leave no trace of their visit.

"It's everyone's national forest and they should come enjoy it," he said.

There are two main observation trails in the area — an upper-paved trail that is handicapped accessible, and a River-to-River trail between the Saline and Fork Rivers which runs through the entire wilderness area. Users of the river trails are encouraged to obtain more detailed maps before entering the trail system.

Visitors should use caution when walking along the various observation trails because of high cliffs in the area.

"We have a number of falls each year," LaVigne said.

Picnicking and camping also are available to visitors at the Pharaoh picnic ground and campground. Both areas are opened and maintained year round. Picnic and observation areas are only open 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., and camping is allowed in designated areas only.

Those who want to stay in Carbondale and enjoy nature also can visit the William M. Marberry Arboretum located at the intersection of South Wall Street and Pleasant Hill Road.

The arboretum consists of 24.7 acres of land and more than 20,000 trees, a swamp and a lake.

Marberry, who used to work at the SIUC Botany Department, began developing the arboretum in 1940 after it failed as a peach orchard.

He planted trees such as the Table Pine, the Weeping Higan Cherry, the Japanese Silver Bell, the Korean White Pine and the Japanese Spring Cherry which has pink and white blossoms that look like snow when they fall.

As well as traveling to India, China and Burma to acquire trees, Marberry traveled to Europe to get other species. Many of the trees in the arboretum are rare to the Southern Illinois region.

More information about the arboretum can be obtained by calling the Carbondale Park District at 529-4147.

More information about Garden of the Gods can be obtained by calling the Elizabethton Ranger Station at (618) 287-2201. Those wanting information about Giant City can call 457-4836.

Lights, camera, nostalgia survive

Drive-in fascination going strong despite dwindling numbers

By Shawna Donovan
Special Assignment Reporter

As the gates open at 6:30 p.m., cars slowly make their way from all over Southern Illinois to visit a drive-in theater and try to get a good parking place before the first show starts at 7:30 p.m. Music from Nat King Cole to Garth Brooks echoes over the P.A. system.

The Egyptian Drive-In, located 12 miles east of Carbondale on Route 148, has a movie screen standing 12 stories high and 95 feet wide, encompassing many acres near the Williamson County Airport. Owner Alene Smith boasts the drive-in is the largest in the world.

People not only come to the drive-in for the massive screen, but to grasp the tiny bit of culture the establishment offers every Friday, Saturday and Sunday night during the spring and summer seasons.

Mike Pavlovic of Johnston City said he has been going to the drive-in every weekend for the last twenty years.

Pavlovic used to work at the drive-in, and now he comes here with his family.

"There are a lot of different reasons I come to the drive-in," he said. "I come to smoke without being harassed for it, they always have good movies and it is nice to be outdoors underneath the stars."

The drive-in, founded by Smith in August, 1948, has under gone major renovations, including a concession area full of local favorite food, such as Texas Tornado Taters, and a full-dining area.

People begin coming into the concession area which is garnished with autographed pictures of Richard Nixon, Bill Cosby, Bob Hope and many other entertainers.

Ten minutes before showtime, Smith gets on the microphone and starts talking to the incoming cars filled with moviegoers.

Smith, 74, talks about everything from current events to her pet cockatoo, Huggs.

This night is special to Smith because her grandson, Steve Willhite of Fort Worth, Texas has come to visit his grandmother whom he has not seen in a year.

"My grandmother works real hard to book good shows," Willhite said. "This is a taste of Southern Illinois. This is a fun place."

Willhite joined Smith in a conversation over the system. Being a little nervous, Willhite quickly put the microphone down when he was finished.

"Yeah grandma, I would like to hear my favorite artist Garth Brooks," Willhite said, putting on his black cowboy hat.

Smith, along with 12 drive-in employees, tries to make customers feel at home by decorating the concession area like a sit-down restaurant. When the theater is closed during the week and over the winter, the concession area turns into the Egyptian Drive-In Theater Restaurant.

The drive-in has been a stage to bands such as Shenandoah as well as many circuses.

Dawn Taylor a junior in special education from Cartersville, said she has been at the drive-in several times and enjoys the atmosphere.

"Not being in a stuffy theater is one of the best things about the drive-in," Taylor said. "I think it is great that we have one in the area because it seems their numbers are decreasing."

In 1991, there were only 910 drive-in theaters left in the nation. Twenty-five were in Illinois. The peak year for drive-ins was 1958, with 4,063 in the country.

The drive-in holds about 600 cars, but this night only 30 cars parked underneath the calm, clear April sky. The sun set and the show was about to begin.

"I am just waiting for the signal from Tom (projectionist)," Smith said over the system. "I see the flashlight signal. Lets begin the picture."

The movie starts on the gigantic screen. People in their cars turn off their lights and turn on their radios to hear the starting show. Smith chuckles as she turns off the microphone.

"Again, thanks for coming to the Egyptian Drive-In," she said. "We'll see ya next week. Remember that during intermission we will have a drawing for a 2 liter of soda."

Serious sounds: Talent marks Eric Anthony

Local band's music intense, melodic mix of varied influences

By Tre Roberts
Special Assignment Reporter

The four members of Eric Anthony are afflicted with the classic "Dr. Jeckyl and Mr. Hyde" syndrome.

On stage, Martin Call's, Tom Bryant's, Tim Horsley's and James Brown's attitudes are serious—serious about providing the audience with intense and impeccably performed music.

Off stage, well, prior to this interview, Call, Bryant and Brown were critiquing the finer points of an episode of Melrose Place and gulping down whole slices of pizza.

Eric Anthony is a genuine product of Southern Illinois with its four members from Shelbyville, Cartersville and Marion. The four have been together for about three years.

The musical chores are divided up as such: Call handles the singing, Bryant plays guitar and tosses in an occasional harmony, Brown plays bass and Horsley works the drums and adds harmony vocals as well.

When asked to describe the flavor of their musical compositions, the four tossed out a plethora of descriptions in the groove/intense funk rock vein, but conceded the band does not really fit a particular style of music.

"People ask us and we don't have anything really to say, we have combined so many different influences into our own style," Horsley said.

"We have a lot facets, some of the songs aren't funk at all, others are overloaded with it," Bryant said.

Call added, "We are intense, it's not a term for musical style, but it is a characteristic of our music, even our slow and moderate stuff has an edge to it."

"We started off as an instrumental band," Horsley said.

"We played Gatsby's and they would yell 'play some songs with lyrics' and he (pointing to Bryant) would say 'We have songs with lyrics, but we're gonna play some instrumentals right now.' Of course nobody would show up for those shows."

Band Spotlight

The band has more than its fair share of talent. Each member has achieved a level of mastery on his respective instrument that other musicians never attain even after a lifetime of practice.

Horsley is a tight and creative drummer who is also fluent on bass, guitar, piano and vocals; Call sings and plays bass; Bryant is a stunning guitarist and Brown is a solid, creative bass player.

When the group debuted a new song at a recent Carbondale show, Horsley switched from drums to electric guitar while Bryant demonstrated his capability on the acoustic guitar.

Another demonstration of their musicianship is the use of vocal harmonies. In a number of songs, both originals and covers, the group incorporate complex and tight three part harmonies.

Last Tuesday, Eric Anthony secured themselves a spot in the Sound Core Spring Battle of the Bands finals by beating two talented local bands.

To date, the band's best gig was opening for Cry of Love at Mississippi Nights in St. Louis last March. The four performed to a sold-out crowd of about 850 people.

"It was a great experience," Bryant said. "We were all pumped."

"It was the fastest 45 minutes of my life," added Brown.

"We were a bit nervous before we went on, but once we went on stage I knew we were going to go over well, for some reason," Call said.

In addition to their good gigs, the band has had some strange experiences, said Call.

"We were playing Gatsby's and (Horsley) is doing a drum check," said Call.

"I'm standing there on the stage, when this lady comes stumbling up and sits in a booth next to the stage and starts saying (imitating a heavily intoxicated person) 'Hey!, what's your name...? What's your name?!' and I go

Eric Anthony, a true product of the Southern Illinois music scene, concedes that the band does not fit into a particular musical niche. The band will play Dawg Days at the Free Forum Area, 2 p.m. April 19.

'Eric Anthony,' and she goes 'What?' and I said 'Eric Anthony,' and she says 'What?!?!... we go through this about three times and finally I go 'you heard me.'

"Then he starts doing a sound check again and she yells out 'rock n' roll...turn me on drummer!'"

Bryant, Call, Brown and Horsley are intent on taking the band as far as possible and have set high goals.

"Personally, I want to be doing nothing but this, playing shows, by the end of the year," says Bryant.

"That's our goal."

"It is hard to be a realist and still be a dreamer at the same time," said Horsley. "But that is what we want to do."

Brown tosses in his contingency plan. "If this doesn't work out I'm going back to professional wrestling."

Response to the band's music has been very good recently, as is evidenced by their position in the Battle of the Bands, but the four make note of a problem which has plagued many Southern Illinois bands.

"It seems like you can't pull a crowd in around here, you can get great reviews but it is really hard to get people out to the shows," said Bryant.

Eric Anthony will play Dawg Days in the Free Forum Area at 2 p.m. on April 19, and it is in the process of lining up more local gigs. Check them out.

And if your wondering, Eric is Bryant's middle name, and Anthony is Call's middle name.

Garden party: Bars add atmosphere

By Grant Deady
Special Assignment Reporter

Springtime to many midwesterners is a time to replant summer gardens with various foods to be eaten on picnic tables throughout the summer.

But springtime to Carbondale bar owners and many SIUC students means spending time in a different type of garden—a beer garden to be exact.

As temperatures continue to rise, bars on South Illinois Avenue and other scattered local watering holes will open their doors, allowing patrons to spill outside to quench their thirst.

Beer gardens in Carbondale offer a refreshing alternative from the smoke-filled rooms that have bottled up customers all winter long. Partiers wait months to be able to enjoy their beverages under the bright sun or sparkling stars, signifying the arrival of spring in Carbondale.

Brian Shannon, a sophomore in education at John A. Logan, said the opening of beer gardens gives him incentive to head for the bars.

"I honestly go out more when the beer gardens are open because the bars are usually stuffy and hot inside, and I enjoy it more outside," he said.

Pinch Penny Pub and Garden, located at 700 E. Grand, is one of several local establishments to offer an outdoor drinking emporium away from the Strip.

Pinch's General Manager Eric Jensen said when temperatures increase, so do crowds in the garden.

"We draw a large crowd when the garden is open and try to create a nice, pleasant area for everyone to enjoy," he said. "Pinch Penny appeals to more of a mature crowd."

For the sporting type, league volleyball and horseshoe can help partiers pass the time in Pinch's garden. Plans for a Pinch Penny Weekend Jam Fest are in the works which will bring live music to the garden on Friday's and Saturday's with special reggae nights on Wednesdays.

For a more relaxed outdoor atmosphere, Cousin's, at 201 W. Washington, Booby's, at 406 S. Illinois and Murphy's Bar and Grill at 501 E. Walnut cater to Carbondale's more sophisticated crowd.

Cousins and Boobys offer live music on Sidetracks, at 101 W. College, has a beer garden popular in the summer because of its beach volleyball court and outdoor porch.

occasion while Murphy's has more of a sporting motif.

If having a brew and some pizza sounds good, LaRoma's at 515 1/2 S. Illinois is the spot to dig in. Nothing beats an ice-cold quart and a picnic table with a view of the Strip on a warm spring night.

"I like to keep our beer garden nice and mellow for the customers," LaRoma's owner Jim Tomljanovich said.

But if getting rowdy with loud music and a big crowd sounds more suiting, Carbondale has a cornucopia of gardens suited for partiers.

Jennifer McBride, a freshman from Palos Park, said there is no substitute for South Illinois Avenue when the beer gardens are going full tilt.

"Me and my friends definitely prefer beer gardens on the Strip because of the crowd and it's so much nicer to stand outside when it's nice out," she said. "But we try and avoid the ones that are too overcrowded."

Frankies, located at 204 W. College, packs in the people with a mix of classic rock and dance music in its garden while offering plenty of spots to take a seat or lean on a rail. As a bonus, there is usually plenty of room to socialize and make your way inside to use the restroom.

The American Tap at 515 S. Illinois is non-stop action and usually starts drawing a crowd in mid-afternoon with its famous Friday Afternoon Club on warm days. A spot on its ancient stone wall is the best seat in town, but you better be ready for a crowd because the place buiges with people by 11 p.m.

Sidetracks, located at 101 W. College, is a sportsman's dream with outdoor sand-volleyball pits and live remote broadcasts from WTOA radio on weekends. Tracks also gives away free pizza during certain hours and boasts one of Carbondale's hottest bikini contests of the spring.

Ed Klimeschmidt, a manager at Sidetracks, said upcoming events will help kick off the bars garden season.

"Our business practically doubles when the beer garden is open and we have a lot of live music scheduled to start soon," he said.

"May 7 is our anniversary party with the bikini contest and we'll start serving tropical drinks as it gets nicer out."

Summer tunes lend spirit, fun to driving time

By Karyn Viverito
Special Assignment Reporter

Music is often characterized by the moods it represents.

There is music for romantic encounters, psychotherapy, elevators, and when the sun breaks out and the weather gets warmer, there is cruise music for those long drives.

There is a wide choice of music to play while on drives, ranging from old favorites to today's hit songs.

Classic rock always has been associated as the standard "highway" favorite. Special television offers for classic rock albums show a group of friends speeding down the highway in their sports car machine baring the tunes.

Classics such as "Slow Ride" by Foghat, "Sweet Home Alabama" by Lynrd Skynrd and the original "Layla" by Eric Clapton are sure to get the drive on the way.

If the need for speed is overcoming, Sammy Hagar's "I Can't Drive 55," should do the job — just make sure a fuzzbuster is handy before tuning in the song.

If guitar solos lasting years are not the music for some, recent hits could also do the trick.

Recent songs have more than just a good beat, but lyrics that are meant to be sung along with, such as Snoop Doggy Dog's "Gin and Juice," Salt and Peppas with En Vogue "Whatta Man," Ace of Base's "All That She Wants," and Tom Petty's "Mary Jane's Last Dance."

Casey Hampton, associate at Tracks in University Mall, said while the rock and pop music are popular sellers, the store stocks up on reggae when the weather starts to heat up.

"Reggae is very upbeat and because of its origins makes you think of warm places," he said. "The most popular sellers are Bob Marley and UB40."

Bob Marley's "Legend: The Best of Bob Marley and the Wailers" is the best buy if you are looking for some of reggae's best.

Songs such as "Could You Be Loved," "Buffalo Soldier," and "Get Up Stand Up" are songs with a message and a meaning filled with a lot of summer pep and emotion.

UB40 came out of the blocks with their popular song of drink "Red, Red Wine," to lead the way for a strong career that would lead to the remake hit from the movie "Sliver," "Can't Help Falling In Love" off of their "Promises and Lies" album.

Great outdoors: Alternative sports get hot

By Dan Leahy
Special Assignment Reporter

Throw away the snowshoes, hang up the ice skates and store away those skis. Spring is here with warmer temperatures and a slew of trendy sports to accompany the sunshine.

In-Line skating, rappelling, rock climbing and Ultimate Frisbee are a few of the non-traditional sports-hobbies that have caught the attention of SIUC students.

One such sport is Ultimate Frisbee, which can best be described as a hybrid between football and soccer. The sport is played on a 120-yard field with 25-yard end zones. Teams score when a player catches the disc in the end zone.

The disc is advanced on offense by passing only, as players are allowed three steps once they gain possession. There are seven players to a side.

On defense, no contact is allowed except for occasional bumping and banging for position. Defensive players try to cover their assigned player and prevent them from receiving or throwing the disc. Once a defensive player intercepts or knocks the disc down, that team takes possession and play instantly goes the other way.

Games are played to 13, 15, 17 or 19 points, with one point being earned for each catch. Halftime occurs when a team scores one more point than half of the final total.

Stephan Sipos, head of the Ultimate Frisbee club, said the sport has a lot of positives going for it.

"It's really easy to play and it's a great workout because you're always running," Sipos said. "Anybody I've known that's gone and played in a tournament sticks with it because it is like being in a big network of friends."

"The membership is worth while because you get four or six newsletters and you can be in UPA tournaments," Sipos said.

Rock climbing and rappelling are big attractions to SIUC students, as rock-heads can find good climbing at close locations like Giant City and Garden of the Gods.

Rick Reeve, owner of Shawnee Trails, said recently climbing has become a little more popular than rappelling.

"Rappelling is just sliding down a rope and can get boring after a little while," Reeve said. Start-up costs for a rappeller average around $160 for the needed equipment, while climbers can start to take a hike for the cost of climbing shoes ($80-$160).

Reeve said both activities have an element of danger to them, but proper training and equipment can go a long way towards insuring a safe adventure.

In-Line skaters are a common site to anyone who treads through campus, as people wearing contraptions resembling a cross between ice-skates and roller-skates zip by.

Reeve said students buy in-line skates for a number of reasons.

"They can get to class fast and take the skates into class without having to worry about them being stolen," he said. "They can give you a great workout and are generally cheaper than a bike."

Interesting flick facts essential, part of students' overall culture

In every college student's life, certain facts exist which, regardless of career goals, major or course of study, must be learned to make the student a more well-rounded member of the University community.

Sadly enough, many students graduate with only a flimsy knowledge of the world around them and must face the real world unprepared for its many peculiarities. Simply because they fail to learn the tidbits of main-stream weirdness that infiltrate every aspect of American life.

Granted, knowing the lyrics to the "Gilligan's Island" theme song is probably not going to mean the difference between the executive staff and the custodial staff, but references to low-budget films, trashy television programs, and '70s fashions are so prevalent in our vocabulary that it is virtually impossible to understand the world around us without some awareness of pop-culture phenomena.

Take, for example, Mel Brooks' flicks. A movie such as "Spaceballs" is only mildly amusing for viewers lacking at least a skeletal awareness of George Lucas' Jedi principles and a basic Trekkie vocabulary.

The more a person knows about these essential aspects of pop culture, the funnier the film becomes.

Even basic communication can be difficult without some background in motion movies and bad cable reruns.

When everyone else is laughing about a subtle reference to "Monty Python and the Holy Grail," it can be downright painful to admit I have never seen this cult classic.

It is the duty of the University to provide every student with an adequate education, yet some students graduate without even discovering why the line "Hey, Riff! Show us your mother!" is so terribly amusing.

It seems to me there should be some sort of test administered to all graduating seniors to ensure that all students have achieved a working knowledge of pop culture.

For those who fail, we should offer remedial classes.

After extensive (cough) research, I have composed a brief exam to test the reader's awareness: Question #1: Name George Jetson's son. (Hint: "His boy" —)

Question #2: Credit this quote: "That's cool...huh, huh-huh."

Question #3: Where does Murphy Brown do lunch?

Question #4: Which has more caffeine — Jolt or Nitro?

Question #5: Who is Tim Curry's favorite character on Star Trek?

It may seem a trifle ludicrous to test students on information learned by wasting time that could have been better spent studying, but think about the kind of student who would fail such a test.

Obviously, we all are on campus to get an education, and our classes should be our top priority, but how many students spend every waking minute of their lives with their nose buried in a book?

All students' educations should include developing social skills so they can interact effectively with others in the workplace after their impressive transcripts land them those prestigious jobs in New York and Los Angeles or wherever.

Even President Clinton, a Rhodes scholar and Yale Law School graduate who has procured himself the most powerful job in the country, finds time to listen to a little U2 music now and then.

Clinton's strong knowledge of everyday life actually helped him win the 1992 election.

Of course we need to read our Shakespeare and listen to our Tchaikovsky and memorize our trigonometric functions, but what would it hurt to take a break from our studies and watch a Saturday Night Live skit now and then?

Dawg Days kick off Friday; promises music, comedy, fun

there we chose alternative, rock and multi-cultural sounds."

The feature band this year will be Lil' Ed and the Blues Imperials, Bridges said.

"This band has an energetic sound that makes you want to snap your fingers and tap your feet," she said. "When you think of blues people often picture a relaxed feeling, but this is a lot more up-beat."

For those looking for laughs, Jim Breur of FOX's Uptown Comedy Club, Renee Hicks of ABC's "Hangin' With Mr. Cooper" and Second City, the oldest comedy ensemble in North America, will appear.

"A big part of our budget goes to the bands, celebrities and comedians," she said. "Because this will go on two weeks before final exams we tried to get the best possible entertainment to give people a break before they start hitting the books."

A mixture of cult-classic films, such as "The Blues Brothers;" or those dealing with more serious subject matter including "The Joy Luck Club" and "Dark Habits" and "Dazed and Confused," a movie aimed at college students make up the film agenda.

A number of celebrities will be appearing throughout the festivities beginning April 16 with Walt Willey of ABC's "All My Children."

Tara Hielema, SPC expressive arts chair, said Willey, an SIUC alumni, was anxious to come home to his alma mater.

Hielema said Willey will be discussing his career in daytime television, his experience at SIUC and will be taking questions from the audience.

In celebration of Asian-American month, Dawg Days is bringing Lauren Tom, star of "The Joy Luck Club."

Hielema said the event is co-sponsored by the Asian-American Awareness Month committee.

On a different note, "The Nudes," a musical duo, will perform as part of the Coffeehouse activities.

This is the first year a volleyball tournament will be included, and Bridges said the turnout should be good.

Spring is roaring into Southern Illinois like a Dawg, not a lion, bringing with it the Dawg Days of Spring celebration sponsored by the Student Programming Council at SIUC.

The event kicks off today with three band performances in the Free Forum area, and continues through April 24. The festival will bring students an array of activities ranging from comedians and concerts to clowns and celebrities.

Beginning at 12 p.m. today Trouble Pryor will take the stage, followed by the bands Cruces and the Natives. The entertainment will continue until 3 p.m.

Dan Benoit, member of the SPC consorts committee, said Trouble Pryor is a 12-year-old boy who performs his music as a solo artist.

"Pryor should be something different for the audience," he said. "His sound is really good, and he is so young it is surprising."

Dawg Days chairperson Angela Bridges said the event is in its second year and has a different flavor this year.

"We have tried to tailor events to reach out to groups that are often overlooked," she said. "We have Lauren Tom, an actress from the Asian Community; Monzetsushi, a Japanese band and Marsha-Mallow, a professional clown from Chicago who will come down to teach clown tips to kids of non-traditional students."

Other bands appearing during the week include Khruschev's Shoe, 420 In Progress, Crank, Tripledose, Eric Anthony, Stiviks, Girls With Tools, Throat, Waxdolls, Phydex and Meat-n-Onions.

"I decided to focus on Carbondale bands because this will be a great chance for them to gain exposure," he said.

Bridges said the committee tried to look for diversity when picking the bands for this year's celebration.

"We wanted bands who would appeal to a wide audience," she said. "We asked bands to submit demo tapes and from

Springing into fashion: Soft linens keep it cool

By Kellie Huttes
Special Assignment Reporter

From the traditional bright neons and red-hot summer fashions to cool Earth tones made of natural fibers, spring styles have taken to the lighter side.

Surprisingly, the new styles seem to be a large carry over from the fall fashion scene, only in softer colors and in lighter-weight fabrics.

Linens is the key for spring and summer in both men's and women's apparel. Shirts, tanks, skirts and shorts are made of the classic warm-weather fabric.

Jennifer Maricle, manager of Express in University Mall, said along with linens, the slip dress, active wear with racing stripes, pajama pants and wrap skirts with fringe will be very popular in the coming months.

Short, tight and tied white layered shirts create a crisp, cool summer look, she said. Accessories include short sun chockers and silver bracelets are sure to add shimmer to any hot outfit.

Brenna Matthews, assistant manager at The American Eagle Outfitters, said versatility is the key in choosing fashions for the next few months.

She said the striped, calf-length dress is easy to dress up with a pair of sandals or present a casual look with a pair of Keds tennis shoes. Mustard-colored work boots worn in the fall with jeans also are still in style to wear with shorts.

She said men have a harder time showing their true colors through fashion, but fishing hats with various prints are a way to add a splash of color to the male wardrobe.

Emily Walton, assistant manager of Structure, said linen walking shorts, blazers and banded collared shirts, present a spiffy summer style.

"We have a rainbow of colors for casual wear," Walton said. "But naturals like olive, mustard, blurlap, rust and pumpkin dominate dressy items."

Vince Quevedo, an SIUC clothing and textiles lecturer, said there is a greater focus on the dressy look, but unlike any season before, there are no definite hem-line lengths for the season.

Kristie Kelly, co-manager of The Limited in University Mall, has reiterated Quevedo's no hem-line rule throughout the store. Babydoll dresses with vests, the mini bandanna sarong skirt and mini flannel skirts are typical limited additions.

When the heat is on and the water is warm, it also is a time to shop for a swimsuit. Maurices in University Mall has a wide variety of suits to satisfy any swimmer or sun worshipper.

Maurices Manager Tammy Basilotto said the shop is known as the swimsuit store and has a lot to offer customers. Traditional bright-colored swimwear is fading and plaids and suits with daises are popular.

A new item in bikinis this year are the "bikini inserts," foam inside the chest area of the suit, she said.

"Underwire suits and inserts act like a push-up bra," Basilotto said. "They give more cleavage and look very flattering."

Solid and plaid trunks for men will serve as suitable beach attire, Basilotto said.
