University to restrict Internet server access

By Aaron Butler DE Online Editor

SIUC's Information Technology is arning students and faculty who dial up the University's Internet server that their time online soon will be limited in an effort to make the system accessible to more users.

Currently, access to the University server is available through two telephone numbers: An 94-modem line with unlimited access time, and a 76-modem line recently added for shorter sessions of up to half an hour.

Albert Allen, acting director of Information Technology, said effective April 21, a four-hour connection time limit will apply to the University serv-er's 84-modem line.

If a session extends beyond the time limit allotted to that line and is terminated, that user will not be able to reconnect for 15 minutes. Attempting to reconnect before the 15-minute wait time is complete will cause the wait period to start over again.

This "lockout" feature is designed to free the modem for someone else who may be waiting, Allen said.

When a user disconnects and redials immediately, he has a better chance of reconnecting than anyone else," he said. "We're trying to give access to those next in line."

An Information Technology article released Friday stated that in the past, some dialers have locked up modem connections for up to 24 hours per day, a monopolization the policy changes are intended to prevent.

This change in policy will prevent such monopolization and will free up access to a much broader range of the SILINet's dial-in users, the article stated. Administrators hope that, as a

SIUC student to run in Boston Marathon

By Melissa Jakubowski DE Assistant Features Editor

Neither wind, rain, snow or a bruised knee will keep one SIUC student from running in his first Boston Marathon today.

Despite his knee problem,

Folkens said he will participate in the marathon.

There are going to be past Olympians and world-class runners at this marathon," he said. "These are people I've looked up to for years. I'm definitely going to go for the experience."

Folkerts slipped and bruised his knee while he was trying to avoid an oncoming car over spring

"My knee is constantly going to in the back of my mind," he said. "I'm just going to have to take it easy if it starts to bother me."

Folkerts said he qualified in December for the Boston Marathon at his first 26.2 mile marathon in Memphis. He said he placed 10th out of 1,800 runners with a time of 2 hours, 36 minutes.

"I knew I could run the marathon," he said. "I went to Memphis to qualify for Boston. With this being the 100th anniversary, I couldn't pass up my oppor-Folkerts started training for the Memphis marathon in August 1995. He ran 80 to 100 miles a week around the streets of Carbondale, no matter what the weather was like."

Obviously, marathon running takes a lot of discipline," he said.

He said the adrenaline felt at the beginning of the race can be the downfall of an inexperienced marathon runner.

'A runner like himself will be exhilarated at the race," Holda said. That feeling can literally pump you up. You need to hold yourself back. Otherwise, after you run 20 miles without any type of pacing, your body will just give up on you." Bill Cornell, SIUC men's cross-country coach, said Folkerts was an experienced runner with the crosscountry team, and he knows his physical limitations.

"Steve has the right attitude towards running," he said. "He knows if he runs too hard early on, he will definitely hit the wall."
Folkerts said his family is chip-

Minnie Folkerts, Steve's grandmother, said his family is caught up with the excitement surrounding the race. She said even if his knee bothers him, he will run.

"When he joined track as a freshman in high school, he was the straggler on the team," she said. "But through his determination, he found out if you stick with something, you can do well at it. I know that determination will be there Monday.

AUDIT FINDS WORKING-VISA PROGRAMS ABUSED -

AUDIT FINDS WORKING-VISA PROGRAMS ABUSED — WASHINGTON—U.S. programs that allow entry to tens of thousands of permanent and temporary foreign workers fail to protect Americans' jobs or wages and are riddled with abuses that in many cases have made their original intent a "sham," according to an audit by the Labor Department's inspector general. The audit, a draft summary of which was obtained by The Washington Post, found that employers routinely flout requirements to search for American candidates for job openings and to pay the prevailing wage to the foreigners they hire. The inspector general's office, an "independent agency" within .e. Labor Department, decides autonomously which programs to audit, a department spokesman said. "The inspector general's report confirms what ment spokesman said. "The inspector general's report confirms what we've been saying for years," said Labor Secretary Robert B. Reich.

Menkes' syndrome is a copper deficiency in the body which caus-es low blood pressure, hypothermia, bone change and brittle hair. The disease is known to be fatal.

Jarvis, a junior in elementary education from New Lenox and the philanthropy chair for the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority, said her sorority and the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, which does comm service for children, jumped at the chance to raise money for Marion Dean Elliot, better known as Baby Dean, from Galatia.

Rita Hollon, Baby Dean's mother, said the doctors are giving him three to six months to live

Academic success

Students recognized on Honors Day

By Melissa Jakubowski and Tracy Taylor Daily Egyptian Reporters

Students who were recognized for their academic achievements for Honors Day Sunday said the awards motivate them to continue with their success.

Honors Day recognizes under-graduate students' academic graduate students' academic achievements with certificates and scholarships each year. The 1,723 students honored in this year's ceremonies have excelled in their classes within their particular college and have at least a 3.5 grade Jennifer Pritchett, a senior in sci-ence from Metropolis and four-time honoree, said the ceremony is good for students.

"It's important because they need to recognize achievements of stu-dents," she said. "It gives them something positive to look forward

"It will help in the future because it is tangible evidence of achieve-ments that can be put down on paper."

Rob Jensen, associate dean for the College of Liberal Arts, said students need to be honored for their hard work so they will continue to have a good academic performance.

"We need awards," he said.

"That's why we do things. Why work hard if you're not going to get anything?

Ryan Hammer, an undecided freshmen from Lawrenceville, said his award definitely will impact his coursework for the next three years

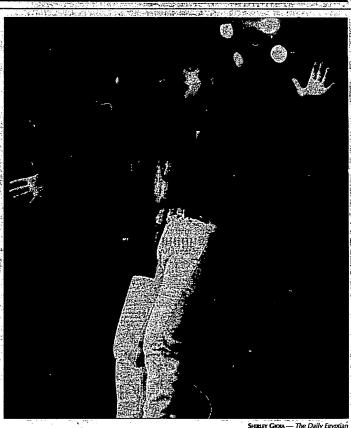

"It motivates you to succeed more in the future," he said. "It makes you want to continue to do

Students who are acknowledged for their academic achievements receive more recognition from their professors, Nicole Zukas, a senior in psychology from Marion, said.

"At the ceremony, you get to meet other instructors," she said. "You can become well-known in the department,"

Myron Stokes, a senior in premed from Chicago, said undergrad-uate awards are a nice complement to the biggest honor — graduation.

"Part of the journey is smelling the roses you get along the way," he said. "I guess this award is smelling the roses and enjoying achievements before the diploma.

Tim McGraw thrills the audience with his song "Down on the Farm" Saturday night when his Spontaneous Combustion" tour came to the Arena.

'Spontaneous combustion': McGraw, Hill ignite crowd

By Lori D. Clark DE Assistant Politics Editor

In what was probably the best country performance to play the SIU Arena this year, Tim McGraw and Faith Hill took over the Arena for nearly three hours for McGraw's "Spontaneous Combustion" tour.

Video screens displaying the ocean, mountains, fire and other natural elements built up to the entrance of the black leather jacket, black cowboy hat, jeans-wearing McGraw.

Performing his hits "Down on the Farm," "It's Just Me," "Not A Moment Too Soon" and "Refried Dreams," McGraw kept audience mem-bers excited by encouraging them to be loud and to sing

One particularly crowdpleasing highlight was during McGraw's remake of the Tony Rich song "Nobody Knows It But Me," as opener Faith Hill took the stage again to make it

Another powerful moment was when McGraw sang his hit "Don't Take The Girl." The not 100 f take the Gm. The song is about a little boy who does not want the little girl next door to go fishing with him and his father, but 10 years later, the two are in love and the boy is afraid of losing the girl to a Strutting across the stage like a biker girl from a 1960s rebel motorcycle movie, Faith Hill opened her performance with "Someone Else's Dream," the first track from her second album, "It Matters To Me."

Hill put on more than just an opening act, she and her band played and wailed as if they vere the headliner

In a dress which looked more like paint than fabric, Hill performed the title song from "It Matters To Me" while a couple slow-danced in the aisle. In her third outfit of the evening, a black suit, Hill per-formed "Keep Walkin' On," which had the sounds of an old-fashioned church revival.

Hill also performed the songs "Wild One," "Let's Go To Vegas" and Janis Joplin's "Piece of My Heart" to end the show, until the cheering audience brought her back for an McGraw's energy and Hill's powerful voice made the show one of the best to perform at the Arena since last November's Reba McEntire concert.

Alim, Vingren offer best USG option

WEDNESDAY, IT WILL BE TIME TO ELECT AN Undergraduate Student Government president. Unlike last year, when there was only one president/vice president ticket on the ballot, students have a choice between two sets of running mates.

We recommend they choose the Students First Party tickct of Troy Alim for president and David Vingren for vice president over the Saluki Party team of Scott Pfeiffer for president and Robert Irby for vice president.

THE STUDENTS FIRST PARTY RUNNING MATES

wisely oppose increasing student fees to fund Registered Student Organizations. More RSOs are formed every year, and asking the student body to open their wallets for these new organizations is a process that is unsustainable. The Pfeiffer/Irby team is aware of this problem and says RSOs will eventually have to take on more responsibility for funding themselves, but when such an increase came to a vote last month, Irby was in favor of it. Despite giving early support, Vingren changed his stance and voted against the increase.

We see shortcomings in both tickets, however. Neither can adequately explain how to involve a larger portion of the student body with USG policy decisions. Voter turnout for the elections is usually around 10 percent. Both parties: claim to have a makeup that is reflective of the University population. This is not a fresh idea. Presidential candidate Ed Sawyer tried this with the Unity Party in 1994, and voter turnout was still low. We do not see how this concept would work differently this year.

ALIM HAS SUGGESTED INVALIDATING THE results of elections that have less than a 10-percent turnout. This is a good idea, but we cannot see how it will show students what USG has to offer. It only illustrates the problem of low interest. It does nothing to promote inter-

We're also concerned that the candidates of both tickets skirt issues with jargon and boring discourse. We hear a lot about declining enrollment, but no candidate has shown us a well-structured plan, with ideas for implementation, to solve this problem. We hear plenty of generalized concepts like "We need to work with the city and the administration to tackle this" though. Bogging down students with such generalizations keeps students away from USG. We wish USG would stay away from generalizations.

BOTH PARTIES ALSO SEEM TO PLACE STATE

lobbying for education too high on their list of priorities. Although it is necessary for higher education to have a presence in state legislation. USG's influence is very limited in this area. We think USG's time would be better spent in Carbondale than in Springfield.

Some of Alim's ideas to improve student life on campus show he has accurately gauged student needs. Alim says the University needs study facilities that are open 24hours-a-day. He has also presented the idea of check-out laptop computers students can use when they cannot make it to a computer lab. These are great ideas. Although USG: cannot implement them, using USG as a medium to make the administrators aware of such ideas is a good service to the student body.,

AS PRESIDENT OF THE BLACK AFFAIRS

Council, Alim showed fiscal responsibility by bringing the organization's budget out of the red.

Rational policy suggestions an opposition to student activity fee increases and Aiim's budget work at BAC make him and Vingren the superior ticket in Wednesday's election. But all candidates need to work on their specifics.

Personal attacks mar religious arguments

STOP! I am getting fired of the arguments in the Daily Egyptian going back and forth between people arguing on the "side of Christianity" and the people arguing "against Christianity in public." These letters to the DE are not doing a bit of good to anyone. Both sides are taking extreme stances on the issues and the other side just shuts them out completely. A person does not change minds by telling people they are hypocrites. My advice to everyone is to chill out and listen to the other side, work with each extreme I heavy them. with each other instead of yelling at the top of your lungs. I know there are going to be letters in response to "Christians must save homosex-are going to be letters in response to "Christians must save homosexuals" but keep the letters on a civilized tone.

To learn a civilized tone, take a GED 102 class and learn how to do an argumentative paper. This is an institute of higher learning not a high school where people resort to personal attacks. When a person resorts to personal attacks they just discredit their paper. Use reason to argue a point and not pure emotion. Try thinking a little bit, it will make your argument more valid and there is a small chance you might make some headway to a compromise between both sides.

Christians can still love those who hate

One thing I do not want is to engage in a war of words with those who have a different world-view from my own. While I continue to stand by my March 28 letter to the Daily Egyptian, I do want to express to my critics that it was in no way intended to bash homosexuals as persons. It was, however, a refection of such pseudo-mar-ital and family arrangements. It also exalts an ideal from which our ital and family arrangements. It also exalts an ideal from which our society has strayed. Mending, not modifying, the family is our need. The adage, "Hate the sin but love the sinner," applies here. Because gay men, lesbians, and bi-sexuals are people created in the image of God, for whom Jesus died and rose again. The only appropriate response for Christians to take toward them is one of Christ-like love, which promotes their redemption. Through my church and denomination, I support counseling and ministries which offer help to gay people and AIDS patients. "The church is not a country club for saints; but a hospital for sinners." Every one of us fall into this last category. Christianity is a religion based on divine love and truth, which are revealed in Jesus Christ and the divinely inspired Scriptures. By the Lord's command (Mant 28:18-20), the church's mission is to teach and reach the world for him - something very unpopular with many in the Lore s command (Mant 28:18-20), the church's mission is to teach and reach the world for him - something very unpopular with many in the world. In fact, Christian-bashing has become a socially acceptable practice for many in our post-Christian culture. As one young woman on our campus told me, when I offered her a Christian tract, "I hate Christians!" Jesus told His disciples this would be so (John 15:18-19; 17:14). My response to her then, and now, was and is, "We Christians love you?"

May the love, truth and healing grace of Christ restore our frac-ared and hurting world. And may the virtues of tolerance and love be applied to Christians too, who practice their faith in a free society.

Jackson to tackle political, social problems in speech

By Dustin Coleman DE Special Projects Editor

A message of the situation in today's society and how people can work within that structure to make a difference will be given Tuesday at SIUC by Jesse Jackson Sr., the coordinator of a campus organizations says.

Jackson is scheduled to speak Tuesday at noon until 1 p.m. on the Shryock Auditorium steps.

"The speech will focus on how we can improve ourselves socially and individually," Troy Alim, Black Affairs Council coordinator, said.

The tour is concentrating on getting people involved in the political system and educating and registering voters so they can make a difference in society, Alim The speech will focus on how we can improve ourselves socially and individually.

Because African Americans make up nearly 16 percent of the population, anytime anyone speaks about African-American issues, they are addressing something that affects everyone, Alim said. Jackson's visit is part of his Illinois Freedom Bus Tour which runs April 15 to April 19. The tour is part of a national campaign.

Monday, the tour will start with stops in the south suburbs of Chicago, Champaign, Urbana,
Decatur and Mount Vernon.
Tuesday. Jackson will visit Tamms, and Cairo before coming to SIUC.

The tour will round out the day with a visit to East St. Louis in the afternoon.

Jackson ran unsuccessfully in the 1984 and 1988 Democratic presidential primaries. He is president and founder of the National Rainbow Coalition.

He also was elected to the post of U.S. senator for Washington. D.C., which is known as the "shadow senator." The position has no voting rights in Congress.

Officials seek Kaczynski's ex-girlfriend

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—The failed relationship between Unabomber suspect Theodore J. Kaczynski and a woman he worked with at an Illinois plant in 1978 was an abbreviated one that may have spanned one or two dates but developed into infatuation on the part of Kaczynski, a relative of the woman said Saturday.

The family member, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, and an official close to the investigation confirmed that the woman is Ellen Tarmichael, 47, a manager at Foam Cutting Engineers Inc., a small, foam-rubber products manufacturer in Addison, Ill., where Kaczynski worked for several months 18 years ago until he was fired for harassing

At the time, Tarmichael was a supervisor at the company, a superior to Kaczynski who worked mostly with a saw cutting foam. days ago.
Since then, according to sources close to the probe, investigators have found what they believe is a draft of the Unabomber "manifesto" in Kaczynski's cabin in what could be the key piece of evidence linking him to 17 years of bombings that killed three people and injured 23 others.

Abdul-Musawwir said he believes student enrollment and student fees will be major issues discussed by the board next year. He said he wants to voice students' concerns on these issues effectively to the board.

"The best way is to collaborate with the student organizations and get all of their views on the issues," he said. "I would make sure that every idea is discussed thoroughly and then brought to the Board of Trustees for review."

He said the board needs to remember that students are con-cerned with campus issues and not just their future.

"Students are concerned about the whole University," he said." Even if they don't understand the dynamics of an issue, they are con-cerned about everything that is-going on that might; in some way, affect them."

Abdul-Musawwir said if elected, he would primarily focus on increasing awareness about SIUC's good qualities on a local, state and national level.

"We need to be working on the image and enhancing the quality of education at SIUC, not focusing on what a party school we're sup-posed to be," he said.

Abdul-Musawwir said he was disappointed · that Jennie. disappointed that Jennie McCarthy, SIUC alumna and host of MTV's "Singled Out," said SIUC was a party school during an appearance on "The Late Show with David Letterman."

"We have one of the best radio and television departments in the nation, but instead of hearing about that outstanding quality, we hear about an alumna telling David Letterman that SIU is a party school," he said.

"On all issues, working with USG and GPSC next year, and coordinat-ing their feedback with the administration is going to be more important than in the past," he said. "The two student governments will be more proactive when it comes to the issues that affect the student body. I would make sure they get the information as early as possible so there can be stu-dent feedback."

He said his primary focus will be opening the lines of communication between the board and the student between the board and the student organizations by visiting each orga-nization affected by a particular issue, explaining the issue and then taking the feedback to the board. Bottom said the two most important issues facing the board this year that directly affect students are the University's 1997 budget and student enrollment and retention at SIUC.

Bottom said he believes the bigger issue facing the board next year is STUC's declining enrollment. He said he believes changing the focus on stu-dent recruitment will help alleviate that problem.

"I think the University should start looking more at its mature and diverse non-traditional student population, and stop relying so heavily on the traditional high school graduates for recruitment," he said. "The nontraditional students make up 35 percent of this campus and are on the

Dismembered scientist's wife found, questioned

COLD SPRING HARBOR, N.Y.—For two years, Rita Gluzman seemed to be everywhere.

In the early 1970s, she traveled the United States with her infant son, testifying before Congress, buttonholing politicians, speaking before American Jewish groups, seeking out interviews, threatening a hunger strike in front of the United Nations. All in an effort to get the man she loved out of the Soviet Union.

But since Sunday, when her cousin was arrested tossing the chopped-up body of her estranged husband, Yakov Gluzman, into the Passaic River in northern New Jersey, she was nowhere to be found. Friday Rita Gluzman was discovered hiding out in a guest cabin on the grounds of Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory on Long Island, the place where her molecular biologist husband had achieved his greatest scientific breathrough. She was undergoing questioning Friday night by Nassau County, N.Y., police and prosecutors from Rockland County, N.Y., where authorities believe Vakov Gluzman, 48, was murdered.

Rita Gluzman, 47, of Upper Saddle River, N.J., has not been charged in connection with her husband's murder. "We refer to her as someone we want to locate," said Detective Sgt. Terry Humacker of the Orangetown police in Rockland County. "We're glad she's in custody." But Nassau County police have charged her with second-degree burglary for being in the cabin and with possession of stolen New York license plates on her car. She will be arraigned Saturday in 1st District Court in Hempstead, Long Island, on those charges.

Mileur said McDonald's handed out coupons for the car wash so people knew where the car wash was and to raise awareness of the fundraiser.

Hollon said the fundraiser will help cover the costs for transportation to Cardinal Glennon Children's Hospital in St. Louis for medical treatment, funeral arrangements and special equipment for the baby.

"I really appreciated the help from the sorority and the fraternity," she said. "Since we don't receive any financial assistance for our baby, the fundraiser was a great asset to my husband and me." Jarvis said her sorority is looking

Another planet discovered

The Washington Pos

WASHINGTON— Astronomers in California say they have found another planet around a sun-like star, this time in the constellation Cancer (the Crab).

The discovery brings the total score to five new planets (or superplanets) detected in Earth's neighborhood, around stars similar to the sun, since the first one was reported a scant six months ago.

"It seems as if we're entering the planet-a-month era," said codiscoverer Paul Butler, a researcher with a joint appointment at the University of California-Berkeley and San Francisco State University. He and colleague Geoffrey Marcy, also of San Francisco State and a visiting scholar at UC-Berkeley, in January reported the detection of two Jupiter-class objects that could harbor water and other building blocks of life. The new planet, confirmed by Butler and Marcy in observations made last weekend, is in orbit around a Magnitude 6 star about 45 light-years from Earth that, under the right conditions, is visible to the naked eye, Butler said in an interview. The star is 55 rho Cancri, in the northern portion of the constellation, astronomers said.

Barb Mileur, a supervisor of McDonald's, said the sorority was very professional about the fundraiser.

"The girls were very receptive to new ideas of how McDonakl's handles fundraisers," she said. "McDonald's tries to offer help with any events to bring out awareness."

Kyle Metheney, a junior in English education from McLeansboro and philanthropy chair for Sigma Phi Epsilon, said his fratemity posted fliers promoting a car wash at Wal-Mart, 1450 E. Main St., in conjunction with the fundraiser.

The fundraiser brought our fraternity closer together," he said. "It made us realize what families go through with situations like this as a result of the new policy, users will have a better chance of getting access to the SIUC network when they need it.

Allen said dialing the 30minute line is effective for short tasks, such as file transfer and e-mail.

"I use the 30-minute line exclusively," he said. "You can pull down 150 e-mail messages in 15 minutes."

The announcement stated that there will be no warning issued to users connected while the time limits are initiated on the four-hour line.

Because of the variety of ways people connect to this modem pool, it is not poule to send out a warning before the change is made.

Allen said to be on the safe side, users should disconnect before the 'scheduled changeover alld reconnect after the clinggover.

Allen said the changeover will occur between 6 p.m. April-20 and 12 p.m. April-21. He said this is the time Information Technology regularly schedules for maintenance on the server.

Southern blanked the Sycamores in both games of Friday's contest with scores of 3-0 and 5-0, as junior pitcher Jamie Schuttek recorded her third one-hitter of the season.

The Salutis then took care of the Braves Sahaday with a 6-4 win in game one and a 10-6 come-frombehind victory in game two.

Schuttek got the win in the first game, while sophomore hurler Kim Holder got the win in the second

Senior center fielder Christine Knotts and junior third baseman Becky Lis helped pace SIUC's victory by adding homers in the second game. Lis went two-for-two at the plate and drove in four runs, while Knotts was two-for-four with a pair of RBIs.

However, things turned out different as the Salukis themselves were swept by the Redbirds Surday, scar-ring SIUC's perfect league record.

Southern was shutout 3-0 in the first game, then lost the second 4-3.

SIUC jumped out to an early three run lead in the first game on a pair of doubles by Lis and Knotts, only to watch it diminish in the fifth imning when the Redbirds rocked freshman starter Beth Fields for four earned SIUC seems minor in comparison to the scare the team got when Schutlek was hit in the head with a line drive off the bat of Illinois State's Casi Cusac in the first game.

A dazed Schuttek was taken to the We don't give hospital for further examination, but returned to the dugout midway through the second game.

Schuttek appeard to be fine upon her return to the dugour, but SIUC coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said she was unsure of the extent of Schuttek's injuries.

Despite Sunday's sweep, Brechtelsbauer said she was pleas with ending the weekend by taking

"I think they had a great weekend," she said. "The only team we lost to was Illinois State. They battled right down to the end and that's the only thing you can ask for."

Brechtelsbauer said the team will go light this week in practice because of the bumps and bruises the team has suffered.

"We're battered and beaten in a lot of positions right now," she said.
"We've got a week to recuperate so we can take care of the nagging injuries. We'll take Monday off, have a light practice Tuesday and then a good practice on Wednesday for those who are ready to go for a full practice."

Koss said the Salukis will be up for the task against the Northern Iowa

"It is close to home, and I knew that if I came to SIU, I would have a lot of help," Tucker said.

'It is also important that I'm familiar with the place."

Terry Erickson, Tucker's legal guardian and a former SIUC track athlete, said there were a number of positives SIUC had over other schools recruiting him, which drove Tucker to sign with the

"He did want to come home, and play with Troy (Hudson), and be figured his chances for making the pros were good, along with the amount of playing time he expects to receive," Erickson said. "He also feels the his academic needs will be fulfilled at SIU more than the other schools. That's a dynamite program they offer, which he thought increased his chances for graduation.

Herrin said Tucker is a very versatile player, and can provide the Salukis with a balanced attack.

Tucker is a superb basketball player who at 6-7 can play at any one of several positions," he said. "He can pass, rebound and shoot the ball.

"He should become a great player for us, and certainly is a tremendous boost for our program."

Last fall, Tucker, who is widely regarded as one of the top junior college recruits in the country. made a verbal commitment to St. Louis, but did not sign.

He also made a verbal commitment to Iowa April 5, but again,

After finishing CCHS, Tucker chose to take the junior college route to gain a Division I scholar-- mostly because of his academic record.

He began at Lincoln (III.) College his freshman season, averaging 17.9 points, 9.4 boards and 4.3 assists per game.

After his freshman season, Tucker traveled the road north to Southeast for his sophomore se son, and led the team to a 27-5

During that season, he was selected to the first-team all-region squad, and averaged 15.9 points, 8.9 rebounds and 4.3 assists.

As far as what Tucker, who plans to play small-forward, expects to bring to the Saluki program, he freely used the word

"My style of play is to do a little of everything, which includes posting-up and shooting from the perimeter," he said.

"I can make it a stronger team, and bring more respect to the pro-Carbondale, I mean, the team finished last in the conference last season, and I think I can help the team

"The competition was everything we expected."

Daniels brought her time in the 400-meter run down to 54.84. Although the meet was unscored, Daniels finished third behind two runners from Baylor.

DeNoon said some of the running events SIUC competed in did not go as well as expected, but said the field events, once again, were strong.

"We looked like we were real weak in the distances over the weekend," DeNoon said.

"We had good throws, good jumps, and good sprints."

The shot put, discus, and hammer throw were all strong events for DeNoon's team as it overshadowed competitors in each event.

If the Tyson Invitational would have been a double-dual meet for DeNoon's team, according to DeNoon, Southern would have won

"We would have (won the meet) by a few points," DeNoon said. "There wasn't a big gap between us and Baylor."

Weather played a big role in last year's invitational, as it cut the meet short due to severe conditions.

This year, according to SIUC men's track and field coach Bill Cornell, poor weather was not a con-cern as he said the meet was one of the best weather-wise.

Good weather was not the only aspect of the invitational Cornell was satisfied with, as his field event squad held up to the competition

Saturday.
"It (the Tyson Invitational) is definitely top class competition, Cornell said.

"Our field event men have done pretty well.

One big tale of the invitational this year for Southern was sophomore high jumper Neophytos Kalogerou.

He placed second in the jump behind former Saluki Cameron wright, with a jump of 7-2 1/4, which provisionally qualified him for the NCAA Championships at Eugene, Ore. May 29.

In addition, Kalogerou's jump set a new record for his native country

According to Cornell, his team is making progress on the track, and one example of that is the perfor-mance of freshman David

He ran his fastest time of the outdoor season in the 800-meter run with a time of 1:54.6, finishing first in his heat.

"It's a shame he (Waddleton) wasn't in the fast heat," Cornell said.

"It would have helped him if he had been in the fast heat. They had three heats and he was in the second fastest one and he won that pretty convincingly.

The Salukis will compete against 18 teams and play 54 holes at the Tallgrass Country Club in Wichita, Kansas today and Tuesday.

The team played a practice round Sunday.

The Missouri Valley Conference teams who will be present are Drake University, Evansville, Illinois State University, Northern Iowa, Southwest Missouri University and host Wichita State University.

Shaneyfelt said his team's perfor-mance is on the down-side because of lack of concentration and focus

"They have too many things on their minds right now," he said. "We've got to somehow figure out how to shut it off when the gun goes off so they can totally focus on playing.

Shaneyfelt said he depends on his two seniors to carry the team. "If our seniors don't play well, we can't play well," he said. "I depend on the seniors to post good numbers.

Shaneyfelt said the poor weather has effected the entire team's performance throughout the season.

Our scores are worse than everybody that's in the tournament, and are higher than we are used to shooting and have shot in the last couple of years," he said.

"This is my fourth year as the golf coach, and the scores are higher this year than they have ever

The team currently only has six players, but started out the year with "Some of the players have moved on to take jobs in the golf business, and some have quit the team so they could work and concentrate on their grades," he said.

"We, have only got six kids, and you have to have five to travel and compete, and I think that hurts us because there is not a lot of competition on the team when there is Nobody is really fighting to make that traveling team when you only have six players."

Shaneyfelt said he has been scouting prospective golf players, and has already signed three players for the next season.

Scraped-up softball team sweeps Indiana St., Bradley, falls to Redbirds

Banged up and bruised after three Missouri Valley Conference doubleheaders, the SIUC softball team is looking forward to some much needed time off this week.

The six-game home stance, which began with two wins against Indiana State University Friday, and ended with a pair of losses to the Redbirds of Illinois State University Sunday, proved to be a physical six games.

One small step for Rich Herrin One giant leap for Saluki basket-

Following a disappointing 11-18 season in 1995-96, losing five seniors and the transfer of two sophomores (sophomore center Shane Wells and freshman forward Reggie Nelson), SIUC men's bas-ketball coach Rich Herrin needed to find talented, experienced players to fill the holes left behind from last

At least one of those holes was filled in the opening week of college basketball's signing period for Rashad Tucker, a versatile 6-7 forward from Southeast Community College (West Burlington, Iowa), made his intention to attend SIUC official by signing his national letterof-intent, which was received by Herrin Friday.

Tucker reportedly passed up offers from Texas Christian University, the University of Iowa, St. Louis University, and the University of Cincinnati to play for the Salukis.

The 6-7 forward should be no stranger to Carbondale Iocals, as he played for Carbondale Central High School. Tucker and Saluki sophomore guard Troy Hudson both played for CCHS, and lead the team to a second-place finish in the 1994 Class AA Illinois state basketball

Tucker, who is planning to major in sports management, said he chose SIUC over the other schools because of its location, and because he would have an abundance of support in

SIUC looks to improve upon its subpar season

By William C. Phillips III Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC men's golf coach Gene Shaneyfelt said his team has had a disappointing season thus far, and must improve its performance to finish near the top of the Diet Pepsi/Shocker Golf Classic in Wichita, Kan April 15-16.

"We have some young kids and some old kids, and we're working at it," Shaneyfelt said.

"All we can do is just go out and play a practice round, try to mark the course, figure out a strategy to play the golf course, and go from there."

Southern is coming off a 17th place finish at the Billiken Intercollgiate April 7-8. Freshman Todd Eaker led the
