Collator Is Added At Library

The latest addition to the rare book room at Morris Library is not a rare book. It is an apparatus called the Hinman Collator, an invaluable tool for proofreading texts and manuscripts.

The machine was delivered to SIU personally by the manufacturer, Arthur M. Johnson of Silver Spring, Md.

Johnson demonstrated its operation Monday. The machine is mainly used for comparison of original or reprinted texts for differences in typography or typesetting corrections.

Through the use of lights and prisms, images from two printed pages can be superimposed on a viewer and any discrepancies are indicated by flashing movement of the line of print.

Johnson said about 16 American universities have his machine, including Northwestern University and the University of Illinois.

The principle on which the machine operates was used in the astronomers' microscope developed in the 1880s, but this particular application is fairly recent.

It was first used at the Shakespearean Library in Washington, D.C., to proofread all the printings of the works of Shakespeare against the first folios or originals. It was estimated that without the machine the job would take 40 years and would require a reader skilled in reading Old English and Elizabethan English. With the machine, however, it was accomplished in less than two years, working four hours per day.

Mrs. Jo Ann Boydston will be the first to make use of the new device in her capacity as assistant director of cooperative research on the Dewey Publications Project. The project is sponsored by the Graduate School.

Mrs. Boydston and research assistants will be using the machine to scan texts authored by John Dewey for a planned 40-volume publication of his work. Mrs. Boydston said the machine would cut years off the work-time.

The cost of the machine is approximately $6,000, but when totaling the man-hours saved officials said the price seems small.

Canoe Tips, Student Drowns; 4 Companions Reach Shore

A 20-year-old SIU student was drowned Saturday at Lake Glendale in Pope County, 15 miles north of Metropolis.

Authorities said the student, Billy Joe Wilcox, 20, of Metropolis, and four other boys were in canoes on the lake about 11 p.m. The canoe in which he was riding overturned. The other youths managed to swim ashore but Wilcox drowned.

His body was recovered about 7 a.m. Sunday by a

SIU, 11 Other Universities Set Up Group To Promote Education in Atomic Science

SIU and 11 other schools in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan have joined forces to create a new organization designed to promote graduate education in the areas related to nuclear science.

The goal of the organization, Central States Universities, Inc., is to provide more effective cooperation between the schools and the Argonne National Laboratory.

The organization headquarters is at Argonne, a research and development installation of the Atomic Energy Commission near Chicago.

Henry Dan Piper, dean of the SIU College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and one of the founders of The Central States Universities, Inc., said the organization will help students and faculty members from member institutions take advantage of talent and facilities available at Argonne.

Among other things, Piper said, the organization has proposed an honors program in which senior students preparing for graduate school could spend a semester in residence at Argonne. Part of their time would be spent in research associations with Argonne scientists, and part in planned course work.

The home universities would grant credit for the Argonne work so that students would be able to complete graduation requirements on schedule. Initial areas of study would be biology, chemistry and physics. A program in mathematics might be proposed later.

2-Week Session Attended by 60

The 12th annual Institute for Rehabilitation Personnel began Monday at Thompson Point.

About 60 persons are attending the institute, which will run through Aug. 27.

The two-week institute is a general orientation program designed for professional workers engaged in giving direct service to disabled persons or in developing and coordinating the community resources directed to the needs of the handicapped.

Its primary purpose is to orient new workers to the principles, procedures and programs of rehabilitation.

It also serves as an in-service and refreshment course for experienced rehabilitation personnel.

Many of those attending the sessions are registered for academic credit, either graduate or undergraduate, in Guidance 481.

Themes for the first week's sessions include the human dynamics in rehabilitation, the problems of the disabled, professional resources and research in rehabilitation.

Themes for the second week include the resources of rehabilitation, its sequences of services, ethnogenic aspects, group procedures and allied considerations.

Speaker at this year's institute include faculty members from various departments of SIU and directors and staff of Illinois service agencies.

Speakers from SIU include John O. Anderson, coordinator of research and projects in the Graduate School, Dale C. Larson, coordinator of admissions and scheduling at the Breckinridge Job Corps Training Center, Dr. Richard V. Lee, director of the Health Service, and William J. Helen Keller's Story

'The Miracle Worker' Opens Wednesday As the Last Summer Theater Production

"The Miracle Worker," a play described as one of the most beautiful and terrifying dramas of our time, will be the final presentation of the Southern Player's 11th summer theater season.

"The Miracle Worker," which will run Wednesday through Sunday evening at 8 o'clock in the Southern Playhouse, vividly portrays the story of Annie Sullivan, the "slum bred, once-blind girl who tamed the young animal that was the blind, deaf and mute Helen Keller."

At the age of 20, Annie Sullivan came from the Perkins Institute for the Blind in Boston to a little town in northern Alabama to care for Helen Keller, who was then seven years old. "The Miracle Worker" is the story of the struggle that took place as Annie tried to work with the young girl.

Sherwin F. Abrams, associate theater director, will direct the Summer Theater members in this production. Darwin Payne is in charge of stage settings. Technical direction is by Charles W. Zoeckler, associate professor of theater, and Douglas Wigton is stage manager.

Tickets for the production are priced at $1.25 and may be purchased at the theater box office. Box office hours are from 10-11 a.m. and 3-4 p.m. daily and 7-8 on show nights. All seats are reserved at the air-conditioned Playhouse.

Adult Education Workshop Stresses Teaching Technique

More than 50 teachers and administrators from Illinois and Missouri began a workshop in basic adult education techniques on Campus Monday.

It is the first of two one-week workshops offered on the subject by the Division of Technical and Adult Education. The second begins Aug. 23.

The workshops for teachers, supervisors, administrators and guidance personnel are conducted in cooperation with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction under a Federal grant provided through the Economic Opportunity Act.

Emphasis will be on the special techniques required in preparing and teaching courses for adults, according to SIU Adult Education Supervisor Glenn E. Willis.

The SIU workshops are part of a program of such courses conducted this summer at six locations throughout the state. Attending the session beginning Aug. 16 will be:

Fred L. Chamness, Anna. Muriel Bankson Bunch, Jo Elma Carther, Patsy R. Moore, all of Cairo.

Norma H. Zinn, Ray Oxford, Cave in Rock.

Bruce McLean, Centralia. E. Wenona Harrison, Chester.

How About It, Know-It-Alls?

Each of us, at one time or another, wonders what is going on in the world around him. For example, we were just wondering:

What Abdul Nasser thinks about the appointment of Arthur Goldberg as American ambassador to the U.N.?

What Nikita Khrushchev is doing these days?

How old Jack Benny really is?

If Kwame Nkrumah is communist, socialist, neutral, pro-western, liberal, conservative or just plain old charismatic Kwame?

Why the U.S. lost out to the Russian team in their last track meet?

Why a Southern Protestant appointed a Jew to represent him in the U.N.?

Whatever happened to Jack Ruby?

What's happening to the New York Yankees?

Why the biggest losers in American professional baseball are making as much money on attendance as the biggest winners?

If the NCAA and AAU will reconcile?

Why television programming is still as bad as ever?

Why we still can't get a parking space on campus?

Who will replace Charles de Galle, Fidel Castro, LBJ, Sukarno and Frank Sinatra?

If Richard Nixon "will not run again"?

What that Arizona department store owner is doing nowadays?

Why Bucky Fuller's dome is geodesic?

Why it takes longer to call Murphysboro than it does to call long-distance to New York?

Why no one has ever invented an air-conditioned business suit?

Why Congressman Adam Clayton Powell not go to Harlem?

Why the British prime minister writes all of Liz's addresses to Parliament?

What LBJ will be serving at his next barbecue?

Where astronauts go to "get away from it all"?

How many people would rather switch than fight?

Where my next paycheck is coming from?

THE BRAKE

"Well, Here We Call It 'Chitlins,' But Actually It's Eggs Benedict"

By Arthur Hoppe
San Francisco Chronicle

Adjusting my combat helmet at a jaunty angle, I made an exhaustive tour of the lines. And I want to assure all you moms and dads back home that morale is high and victory is in the air. I'm speaking, of course, of the War on Poverty.

The war is now being fought from a brand new eight-story building. On the ground floor is a brand new interior decorator's shop and a brand new dimly lit restaurant called "The Embers," where you can get a nice lunch for less than $10. On the top floor are the offices of Mr. Sargent Shriver, who does not like to be called "Poverty Czar."

Down branching corridors from the Poverty Czar are offices containing such things as Plans & Evaluation, Private Groups, Deputy Directors, General Counsels, Correspondence Control (that's the mail room) and public affairs (that's the press agents). A sign saying "Stairway Men" leads to the seventh floor.

On the Seventh floor we find signs saying Logistics, Please Open Door Gently, Conservation Centers, Urban Centers, Women's Training Centers, Operations Center, Programs, Program Development & Evaluating, Community Relations, Men's Urban Centers Section, Women's Urban Centers Section, Technical Support Section and Stairway Men.

On the sixth, we have signs reading Director of E & P, Field Placement Branch, VISTA Screening Board, Evaluators May Bite the Head Off Anyone Inquiring as to the Status of an Applicant-Pax Vobiscum, Vista Evaluation Branch, Personnel, Urban Projects Division, Training Division, Volunteer Assistance, Personnel (again), Stairway Men and a bulletin board with two long lists of "Civil Service Examinations Offering the Best Job Opportunities," which a young man was studying thoughtfully.

On five are Community Action Programs, Projects and Files, Program Director Project Head Start, Mr. Sexton and Mr. Drob Have Moved to 508, Policy Development, Field

Operations Division, Program Support Division, LAP Processing and a note on a closed door saying, "Note, this door is closed."

On four, to name a few, are Office of Management, Audit Division, Contract Division, Management Support Division, No Admittance, Budget Division and Travel Has Moved to Room 410. On three are the Bureau of Employees Compensation, the International Manpower Institute and what not. And on two are the various offices of the Neighborhood Youth Corps, plus a big seal in the corridor over the legend, "U. Department of Labo," several of the three-dimensional letters having already peeled off.

We Should, Will, Shall, Must, Shouldn't, Won't, Shan't, Can't!

We are told what we can wear and what we cannot. We are told what magazines we can buy and what we cannot. We are told where we can play cards and where we cannot. We are told when to come in and when to go out. We are told that the rules are administrative decisions by a pri-ivate business. We are told that we do not and will not come under the federal minimum wage law. We are told that this edifice is a University Center for a private concern, but not a Student Union for the pupils and faculty of Southern Illinois University.

Human Value Needed To Soften Technology

By Bryant Evans
Copley News Service

Frankenstein's monster destroyed Frankenstein. Are modern men becoming Frankensteins and do they face destruction of some kind or another from a monster they have created? A monster called technology?

In a recent series of university lectures two speakers dealt with the possibility that the miracles of technology are creating a world which is destructive of the things that make life rich, creative and worth living.

Dr. John Wilkinson, of the Center for Study of Democratic Institutions in Santa Barbara, Calif., went so far as to say that history as we have known it is at an end. He explained that he meant that philosophies, ideals, human aspirations—the things that have given history meaning—would give way to technology.

Wilkinson was not just talking about machinery. He cited the technology of public relations, of creating images out of mediocre men and thus creating the illusion of leadership. One might ask how well a candidate for office would fit the public relations technology of the moment as a principal criterion for accepting him or rejecting him. One is reminded that many people thought Richard Nixon's poor makeup on a television debate might have cost him the election.

Automated teaching was a case in point. Some things can be taught very well by the program system. Others cannot. Will the curriculum be chosen according to what courses fit machines instead of according to what courses are needed by the students?

The most pressing example of the dehumanizing impact of technology is technological unemployment—taking from people the dignity of productive work. There is a fear that millions of children now in school will never have in chance for economically useful jobs.

Technological unemployment was discussed by Dr. Richard Farson, psychologist and director of the Western Behavioral Sciences Institute in La Jolla, Calif. He pointed out that adjusting to the fact that an important proportion of the jobs in the world are being taken over by machines must force a change from well-entrenched attitudes. People have felt deeply that their personal worth is involved in earning a living. How, then, can they maintain their self respect when that is no longer possible?

Technological unemployment is not new. It occurred during the Industrial Revolution. We saw it in factories, farms and even in the kitchen. Over the years new jobs were developed to take up the slack. In the past, the community adjusted. But Farson points out that the rate of change is far faster today. Can attitudes keep up with the change in technology?

Farson believes the problem must be met head-on by a conscious learning of new ways to evaluating people—not by their economic participation, but by their human values. He urges training appreciation of the values in human expression and feeling.

Probably there are few people who will find this metamorphosis of values satisfactory. At the moment it seems both slight and vague. Before it can be understood, it will take a lot of implementing. Yet it is a beginning. There is a convincing need for human regrouping to meet the encroachments of technology.

How real the problem is, as posed by these scholars, is hard to evaluate.

Wilkinson said quite frankly that he did not know how valid his argument was, "but if there is just a five per cent chance of its being right, you ought to listen."

It is true that if we become more aware of such things as goodness, kindness and honesty in ourselves and in each other, there will be no harm done.

'Worst Is Over'

'Guerrilla Fighting' Continuing in L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Six days of "rioting and looting has now ended" in the Los Angeles Negro section, Gov. Edmund G. Brown said Monday. Negroes in the area violently disagreed.

"Guerrilla fighting with gangsters continues," the governor told newsmen, "but the worst is over."

Police and National Guard officials agreed with Gov. Brown's evaluation.

But a survey team of Associated Press reporters heard an entirely different view in the Negro community of Watts where the violence started last Wednesday when a white partolman tried to arrest a Negro motorist.

"The riot is not over, it's just a quietness," said the Rev. E.L. Hicks, a Baptist minister. "There will be rioting here until police brutality stops."

"The governor may say it's over. But we work among the people and know what is going on."

The answer was the same from 20 others interviewed, and the clusters of Negroes who gathered around and listened. Many of them were admitted rioters and looters. The Rev. Mr. Watts was the only one to permit use of his name.

The governor, who interrupted a European vacation to take personal command in Los Angeles, said 15,000 National Guardsmen will remain here "until Los Angeles is safe again." He said they will vigorously track down "hit-run hoodlums and terrorists" whose activity continued even as he spoke to newsmen.

The riot toll in human lives rose to 33 dead and 812 injured. All but six of the dead were Negroes. The others included five whites and a Japanese-American.

Property damage will run into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Fire damage alone was estimated at $175 million. Daily costs for police and National Guardsmen who have cordoned off a 42-square mile area are running to $500,000 a day.

Arrests increased to 2,902, largely for looting, or assaulting officers.

Augmented courts began the massive task of arraigning those arrested, almost all of them Negroes. Bail was generally set at between $500 and $1,000.

As sporadic sniper fire continued, Police Chief William H. Parker told newsmen "we are now in what I hope we might call the recovery period."

The governor and the police chief made their optimistic remarks less than 24 hours after racial violence leaped to other Southern California cities as far away as San Diego, 130 miles to the south.

In Los Angeles, police reported signs of Negro hoodlums trying to sneak out of the carefully guarded curfew zone. Several cars, loaded with Molotov cocktails, were halted.

3, 200-Mile Voyage

Cleveland Newsman Near British Coast

FALMOUTH, England (AP)—Mrs. Robert Manry had a reunion Monday with her sailor husband in the Atlantic and said he was just as fit as the day he rode his 13 1/2-foot Tinkerbelle out of Falmouth, Mass., June 1.

The wife of the Cleveland Plain Dealer newspaperman sailed out to meet him 55 miles off Cornwall Monday afternoon and came back with the expectation that he would arrive here late Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

"Robert is a methodical man and he plans everything he does," she said. "This is his plan, and he will do it his way, and he seems not to have done so bad."

The mother of two was thereby emphasizing an aspect of her husband's character, which made it possible for him to plot one of the most incredible sailing voyages in history out of his pocket money—3,200 miles from Falmouth, Mass., to Falmouth, England—and make it work.

Manry was sighted for the first time in a week shortly before noon Monday, 70 miles out and dead on course in spite of three or four days of howling gales.

Mrs. Manry crawled down from the trawler and boarded the Tinkerbelle.

"Well, I just hugged and kissed him," Virginia Manry, 46, said. "He said to me: 'I'm just going to kiss Mother Earth when I land. On second thought, I'll kiss you first and Mother Earth second.'"

Mrs. Manry said he told her: "Well, the Tinkerbelle finally got you to England. You always wanted to come, and she wasn't big enough to bring all of us but now she's done it."

Manry developed sailing skill on Lake Erie and also became an accomplished carpenter as well as a keen amateur photographer. He put all of these skills into a six-year project: To rebuild his tiny 30-year old boat into something which just might make history. The Tinkerbelle will be the smallest boat to cross the Atlantic nonstop.

"Robert was very fit and well," Mrs. Manry reported.

Guardsmen on Alert

Rioting in Chicago Brought to a Halt

CHICAGO (AP)—A special detail of 500 policemen kept the peace Monday in a West Side Negro neighborhood torn by race rioting two nights last week.

Saloons and package liquor stores in the area were kept closed.

And at five armories throughout Chicago 2,000 members of the Illinois National Guard were on duty, ready for quick transport to any area to supplement the police force.

The guard commander, Maj. Gen. Francis P. Kane, postponed a trip planned for Tuesday to inspect missile sites in Los Angeles. An aide said Kane would put off the trip until the alert for his men was ended.

The area patrolled by police is bounded on the east by Pulaski Road, the north by Madison Street, the west by Kostner Avenue and the South by Harrison Street.

In disorders Thursday and Friday nights 67 persons were injured and 123 arrested. On Saturday night there was no new violence but police arrested 28 persons for heckling them or not promptly heeding orders to keep moving.

Peace Corps Turns Back Farm Clock

Old-Fashioned Animal Power Offers Hope in Primitive Areas

Farming took a step backward at SIU this summer but it was all in the name of progress.

With gleaming new tractors and other modern farm equipment parked nearby in barns, a group of Peace Corps volunteers learned some aspects of farming the hard way.

They were taught to cultivate a field behind a horse-drawn walking plow and coax a pair of reluctant steers, substituting for oxen, to pull a spike-tooth harrow.

With this knowledge when they reach their eventual assignments in Niger and Senegal, two African nations, they will be able to show the native how to improve their farming techniques with the limited resources at hand.

Returning veterans of Peace Corps service in the two African nations are included in the teaching staff to add realism to the "technical" instruction and to give tips on how the volunteers can help natives improve their farming practices. This involved some improvising at SIU, too.

For example, consider the instruction in using oxen for farm work, a responsibility of Peace Corps veteran George Hatfield of Centerburg, Ohio. Rather than rent a team of trained oxen with a driver as was done last year, Hatfield borrowed a pair of young Guernsey steers from SIU, patiently "broke" them to lead, and introduced the animals to a homemade oxen yolk for pulling small farming tools. Peace Corps trainees were given several hours of practice handling the steers.

Plowing furrows in a weedy field with a steel walking plow drawn by two horses also was a vigorous experience on a summer day when the thermometer registered 95.

"Introducing animal power instead of hand work to native farmers will be progressive agriculture where you are going," Hatfield told the trainees.

Although enthusiasm outstripped skill, the Peace

Corps trainees in agriculture learn surprisingly fast, instructors say, especially considering that most of them are city-reared college graduates with little or no farming experience.

They sharpened and welded hand scythes lustily for cutting tough, tall weeds or small grain instead of using forage choppers or self-propelled combines as their American contemporaries would. Some had experience in digging a well and in constructing a small storage building with a few hand tools.

There was shop experience to learn how to repair simple farming tools and work with leather to make harness parts.

All planted and cultivated a vegetable garden plot to learn how fertilizers and irrigation can increase production. A poultry project involved learning about improved feeds for getting higher egg and meat production.

The 1965 training program was adjusted to suggestions from 1964 trainees now serving in the two African nations and from on-the-spot observations by Herbert L. Portz, SIU assistant dean of agriculture, who recently returned from an eight-weeks inspection of Peace Corps agricultural work in the nations. He is coordinator of the agricultural phase of the Peace Corps training.

ON COURSE - Peace Corps trainees Raymond Thiebault (left) of Newport, Mich., and Leslie Mansfield of Cincinnati, Ohio, master the technique of driving a young team of "oxen" pulling a section of spike-tooth harrow. The oxen, a pair of young Guernsey steers from the SIU Dairy Center herd, were trained for work by Peace Corps instructor George Hatfield who recently returned from service in Niger.

SIU Runners Place 1-2 in 15-Kilometer Race

Moore, Colehour Take Honors In State Fair Endurance Test

Being a successful athlete often means putting forth that little (or big) extra effort that it takes to win.

Five SIU students showed just that kind of effort in a championship AAU 15-kilometer run in Springfield Sunday.

The five, Oscar Moore, Grant E. Colehour, Arthur Somner, John Trowbridge and

AAU, NCAA Agree to Truce For Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP)—The feuding rulers of amateur athletics agreed Monday to a truce while Congress studies their row, and promised that athletes caught in the middle will not be penalized while it is in effect.

The moratorium came at the opening of a hearing by the Senate Commerce Committee into the deadlock between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association. They can't agree on a plan for dual sanctioning of competition, and trouble erupts every year.

Committee Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., got the two sides to agree to the truce until his committee can finish its study and report to Congress.

The star witness on the opening day was distance runner Gerry Lindgren. The 18-year-old athlete, a tense, slim figure, told how he defied an NCAA ban on athletes competing in an AAU meet to select the U.S. track and field team that went to Russia this month.

Lindgren said the dispute had prevented the United States from fielding its strongest team because many college athletes feared reprisal if they defied the NCAA ban. The Soviet men's squad beat the Americans for the first time in the annual dual competition.

If the feud continues, Lindgren said, he doubts the United States ever will field its strongest possible team.

"I'm very worried," he said, "that every other athlete . . . is going to have pretty rough going if he has to fear going into open meets."

He said he believes open meets matching college athletes against top non-college talent are vital to proper preparation for the Olympic games.

Lindgren sat at the witness table with his coach at Washington State University, Tracy Walters, and Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., who represents Lindgren's home city, Spokane.

Robert L. Allison, left Carbondale at 4 a.m. Sunday to drive the 160 miles to the capital. The race, held in conjunction with the Illinois State Fair, began about 10:45 a.m.

The race was run over the back hills and woods of the Springfield area, through part of Lincoln Park and finished with a turn around the fairgrounds. Types of surfaces run on were dirt, asphalt and a freshly oiled road.

The 90-degrees-plus heat in Springfield Sunday was no less a hindrance to the runners than were the surfaces they had to run on, Moore, who won the race with a time of 47:07.0, passed out four times while running.

The crowd presented another problem. Twice Moore was knocked down by spectators during the turn around the fairgrounds.

Colehour, who finished second with a time of 49:57.2, was sent in the wrong direction over a part of the course by one of the race officials. He corrected the mistake and was still able to finish second.

Somner finished the race in 15th place. No time was available for him, because of confusion at the finish line in front of the grandstand on the fairgrounds.

Trowbridge and Allison both dropped out of the race. Allison was stepped on and could not continue, and Trowbridge became ill.

Moore, who enrolled at Southern in the spring, was one of the three United States entries in the 5,000-meter race in the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo.

In races previous to the Olympics Moore recorded times of 3:59 in the 5,000 meters, 13:32 in the three-mile event and 8:42 in the two-mile.

As a freshman Moore finished second to fellow Olympian Gary Lindgren in the Coliseum Relays at Los Angeles.

Moore was clocked nearly 10 seconds slower at 8:48/5, but the time was more than the same measure better than the SIU freshman record Moore had set only a week before of 8:57.2.

OSCAR MOORE

Peithman to Teach Course on Indians

Irvin M. Peithman, SIU staff member and recognized authority on American Indian cultures, will instruct an adult evening course on Indians of Southern Illinois at Olney this fall.

Registration and first class session will be at 8 p.m. Sept. 7 in Room 202 of Olney Community College. Tuition is $10. The class will meet Monday evenings through Dec. 6, with the exception of the month of October, when no classes will be held, said Jeff Fee of the SIU Division of Technical and Adult Education.

A research assistant in the Department of Outdoor Education and Recreation, Peithman has been with SIU since 1931. He is a former curator of archaeology in the SIU Museum and has written a number of books.

Praise From Players

Rich Jones, in Coaching Debut, Guides SIU to 3rd-Place Finish

By Joe Cook

Richard (Itchy) Jones had a short reign as Southern's baseball coach, but it was by no means unsuccessful.

Given the coaching job just a week before the season started, Jones had one big problem to overcome—his lack of experience and also that of his players, who were mostly freshmen.

Only one player, pitcher Ron Guthman, who joined the team in mid-season, had varsity ball experience with Southern.

Jones had never done any extensive baseball managing, although he had played four years under Coach Glenn (Abe) Martin here and had played briefly in the minors with a Baltimore Oriole farm team.

However, he obviously was able to overcome this lack of experience.

Southern's three victories this weekend over the University of Illinois put the Salukis in third place with 13 victories.

The victory total far exceeded the conservative figure of six, which SIU athletic officials were predicting.

What did the SIU players think of their summer league coach?

It was nearly unanimous that he was the best coach that they had ever had.

One player said, "The spirit and will to win that he exhibited had a positive influence on all of us."

Another player responded with, "He taught me more about baseball than I ever knew."

A third player was impressed by his coach's coolness in handling tight situations on the field.

One player thought Jones exhibited qualities which few coaches have these days. "He wanted to win, but he didn't bark and growl at us the way most coaches would do when we made mistakes on the field. I think his patience with us earned him a lot of respect from the players."

Another player agreed and responded with, "The type of ball we played, especially at the beginning of the season, would have made most coaches blow their tops, but he calmly talked over our mistakes with us and we would spend the next week in practice correcting them."

Jones, a 1960 graduate of Southern, is currently finishing work on a master's degree in physical education. He will return to his post at Jacksonville High School in the fall as freshman football and varsity basketball coach.

Salukis Defeat Illini to Move To 3rd Place in League Play

It took the Salukis until the final week of the season, but they finally moved out of the basement of the Midwest Summer Collegiate Baseball League.

The Salukis took undisputed possession of third place, by winning three of four games last weekend from the University of Illinois.

Southern took the opening game of the series Friday night 3-0 on the three-hit pitching of Ron Guthman. Guthman, who walked six batters in the six inning game, was in constant trouble against him.

In the first game of Saturday's doubleheader, Southern spotted the Illini a firstinning run, but then rallied for single runs in both the fourth and seventh innings to take the game.

Bob Ash went all the way for the Salukis, scattering five hits and winning his third game of the season.

Southern started the second game with a two-run uprising in the first and three-run explosion in the second, but was held scoreless the rest of the way.

Mike Lyle, the Saluki starting pitcher, was unable to hold the lead. Lyle gave up two runs in the third and one in the sixth, before he was replaced by reliever Steve McCollum.

McCollum was able to retire the side without further damage, but was tapped for three runs in the seventh and suffered his second straight loss.

The game Sunday found the Salukis taking a quick 4-1 lead, but the Illini battled back in the middle innings and after five innings had tied the score 4-4.

Jack Brown, who had pitched his first ball game for the Salukis, came in the sixth inning replacing the Saluki starter Jim Guidry, and picked up the victory.

The final league standings:

Parsons College	26	9	.743	...
St. Louis U.	14	17	.452	10
SOUTHERN	13	18	.419	11
Illinois	13	22	.371	13

BASEBALL COACH RICH JONES

Former SIU Student Killed, 3 Hurt in Main St. Collision

Funeral services were held Sunday in Willisville for a former SIU student killed in a two-car collision on West Main street in Carbondale.

Darwin D. Mathis, 21, died almost instantly from the impact, police said. An autopsy Saturday showed that

Address False,

Student Pays $50

A 21-year-old junior from Skokie who said he had been driving an improperly registered car since last spring was assessed $50 Monday, according to a spokesman for the Office of Student Affairs.

The spokesman said the student gave a false address outside the two-mile limit when registering his car with the University. He was recently involved in an accident and gave police a different address, inside the limit. When University officials confronted him with the discrepancy he said that he had falsified his address on the registration card, the spokesman said.

In addition to paying the assessment the student was placed on disciplinary probation through the fall quarter and ruled ineligible for motor vehicle privileges as an undergraduate.

the cause of death was a ruptured heart.

Police said Mathis was driving an open sports car west on Main Street Friday when his auto collided with a car driven by Donald McWhorter, 21, an SIU student, crossing the highway in front of the Murdale Shopping Center.

McWhorter was treated for minor injuries at Holden Hospital. Police charged him with failure to yield right of way. Lamont J. Cover, 20, a passenger in McWhorter's car was also treated at the hospital.

Allen Nagel, 20, of Steelville, suffered a fractured arm and injuries to the head, chest and face. He was a passenger in Mathis' car and is listed in fair condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Belleville. Two other passengers in Mathis' car escaped injury.
