Financial aid processing interrupted

Computer system pinpointed for more than 3,000 aid delay

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

The University Financial Aid Office is behind in processing financial aid checks this semester because of a bottleneck in the newly implemented student information system.

Pamela Britton, director of the Financial Aid Office, said at the beginning of fall semester her office was behind in completing more than 3,000 financial aid packages.

"At the beginning of the 1989 fall semester 6,553 financial aid packages were completed, but because of the installation of the new student information system this semester there were only 3,377 packages completed at the beginning this semester," Britton said.

Britton was unsure of the number of the 1,000 aid package completed as of Wednesday but said financial aid has 10 permanent staff members working evenings and weekends in an effort to catch up.

"I think we're doing a remarkable job," Britton said. "We usually have six months to process financial aid packages and the six months got compressed into a few weeks."

Although the newly installed student information system has caused an inconvenience for the office, Britton said students have been allowed to register with or without a tuition payment, and students with very high need have been allowed to charge their books at the University Book Store.

Death toll in Chicago suburb twister hits 24

No warning or watch issued before tornado

By Jackie Spiner
News Editor

A killer tornado that twisted through the lives of a southwest Chicago suburb residents Tuesday ripped through the heart of some University of Illinois students awaiting news from home.

In the first hours after the tornado hit northeastern Illinois shortly after 3 p.m. Tuesday, reports indicated that at least 10 people were killed and about 200 injured, but estimates of the damage of the tornado's path were sketchy. Some people during the early morning, the death toll had risen to 24, the number injured to 350.

Melinda Fanday, a journalism major from Joliet, said when her roommates told her Wednesday afternoon that her neighborhood on the outskirts of Joliet and Plainfield, the hardest hit area of the tornado was leveled, she thought they were joking.

"I couldn't get through (by telephone) to my home," Fanday said Wednesday. "I heard people were dead, and I just knew it was my family."

When the telephone lines finally connected Fanday and her next-door neighbor, she was able to contact her family. They were all right.

"My grandparents is kind of a bad shape," she said, "her house and my aunt's house were leveled. They still don't know where my aunt is."

Fanday said she was watching television reports of her neighborhood and

Poshard proposes Shawnee plan

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

At a public meeting in Vienna, U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carbondale, introduced a multiuse plan for Shawnee National Forest Wednesday night that he said could provide a more environmentally sound approach to forest management.

The "New Perspectives" plan will explore the roles of the Shawnee National Forest, eliminate timber sales which lose money, and get the public more involved, Poshard said.

"People have different ideas about how a forest should be run and those views should be heard," Poshard said. "Public input is the key here."

Poshard says he has talked to Southern Illinois residents who believe timber production has been overemphasized and has been considered more important than the environment. He said several citizens told him they want a more environmentally sound approach to the Shawnee forest.

Originally the trees in the Shawnee were planted for soil conservation. Ray Morris, chairman of the Shawnee National Forest, said, but now there is no longer a worry about the delta washing away the land, he said, and there are new priorities and objectives for the use of the forest.

The New Perspectives plan would create multiple uses of the forest, emphasize more scientific research, involve more participation by the public, and eliminate below-cost sales, Poshard said.

This year, the Shawnee forest will sell 13 million board feet of hardwood and pine, Rod Sallee, forest supervisor, said, though current sales have not been making money.

The forest service sets a limit on annual timber sales of 10 million board feet of hardwood and 8 million board feet pine, Sallee said. Current sales are 3 million board feet of hardwood and 1 million board feet pine.

"Pine is a poor quality wood and is not in demand, Sallee said."

The reduction won't effect this year's sales but will begin with the 1990 fiscal year. The timber sale includes the 2,502-acre Kincaid Lake said announced earlier this month, according to the U.S. Forest Service.

The forest service added that actual cutting would only be done on an area of 500 acres in the Kincaid area.

USG supports $20 refund; resolution moves to board

University students could get an extra $20 in their pockets by October.

The Undergraduate Student Government voted Wednesday afternoon to support a resolution to turn over $20 to support the students health insurance premium, which if approved by the Board of Trustees, will refund students $20 to their October Board bills.

The resolution called for $20 from the USG, through its student health insurance premium, which is $45 a semester for the academic year.

The Board of Trustees will meet Sept. 13 and will discuss the student health insurance premium.

Once passed by the board, the resolution will be sent to the student health insurance provider on Oct. 1, as required by the insurance plan.

A copy of the insurance plan statement has been kept at Student Life office in the Student Service Building.

The student health insurance coverage, has since been received that is less than the $20 per student bill for the academic year.

The new bill creates a surplus of $900,000 for the student health insurance premium, according to fiscal year 1991.

SIU-C baseball coach Ichty Jones met with his team Tuesday night to say goodbye in case he was offered the University of Illinois head position.

Jones will be out of town Friday when the official announcement is made. SIU-C assistant coach Sam Riggelman said Jones indicated to the players that he would take the job if offered to him and he did not want to leave town without personally saying goodbye.

The interview process for U of I is over and a decision is expected to be made Friday.

Western Michigan's coach Fred Deckel also is being considered for the job. Illinois State coach Bob Warn thought it was a front-runner for the job, but withdrew from consideration Tuesday.

Riggelman said the job was just being discussed and he didn't know why U of I would choose Deckel instead of Jones.

The season ended Aug. 14 when Augie Garrido decided to return to Cal-State Fullerton, where he coached from 1973 to 1987.

It was reported that Garrido made $100,000 a year at Illinois. Jones had this year as his first major role as a head coach and played a major role in his decision if the job was offered to him. Jones earns $56,172.

The money and newer facilities at U of I were attractive to Jones. If Jones leaves the Salukis, SIU-C Athletics Director Jim Hart has indicated Riggelman could be the top contender for the head coaching job.

Hart also mentioned that this ordinance was not a negative thing for SIU-C. He said it is impressive to have a coach from SIU-C be considered for a job in a conference like the Big Ten and a top school like Illinois.

Whether Jones leaves for U of I or not, he is no doubt he has left his mark at SIU-C.

Jones, a native of Herrin, has coached the Salukis to two Missouri Valley Conference titles in his 21 years at SIU-C. He also has taken the Dawgs in 10 post-season NCAA appearances.

The Saluki volleyball team is preparing to serve up tough volleyball competition in the Gateway Conference.

SIU-C has nine leftover winners returning to the team this season, which ranked second in the nation.

The team finished last year with a 18-11 overall record, and were recently projected to finish fourth in the conference by the Gateway volleyball coaches pre-season poll.

Head coach Patti Hagemeyer believes the Salukis have a good chance to capture the title.

"We will make a run for it," Hagemeyer said. "The team is working at a level higher than any point in my tenure here."

The Salukis will be on the road from Sept. 14 to Oct. 2 when they come home to play host to Arkansas State.

The tournament champion, Illinois State, was picked in the poll to repeat as the Gateway champions.

Illinois State returns to conference action with seven leftover winners, while Illinois State has won the Gateway the last eight seasons, the other two going to Missouri.

Auld hopes the conditioning will have the players stay healthy and give them a win.

The team finished last year with a record of 23-9. The team would like to improve on last year's record, but getting as much playing time on the court is Auld's main goal.

"The main thing, even more so than a win-loss record, is to get as much playing time as possible," Auld said. "It's important of the youngsters a chance to play so they can start getting the experience, they'll need for competition."

The first meet for the team is Sept. 13 at Missouri Valley.

Junior Lori Edwards has her sights set on the Roles Midwest Region Qualifiers.

"As a team I know we can do it this year," Edwards said. "If we have a chance, it will be this year."

Senior J. belle Jeffrey said the team will have a productive year if injuries don't get in the way.

"Every loss we had in the fall (1989) could be related to injuries," Jeffrey said. "In the spring, I was out for a while with my shoulder, I had to serve underhand."

Auld said Jeffrey will be a key player this season.

DeNooon's runners ready to begin year at Murray meet

By Tiffany Vought

SIU-C's women's cross country coach Don DeNooon said Wednesday that the Salukis are "in very good shape. Her goal" for his athletes concerning the cross-country team on Saturday against Murray State, Eastern Illinois and Austin Peay at Murray, Ky.

"I'd like to see us have seven athletes in both Murray and Eastern have their third athlete in," DeNooon said.

DeNooon's goal appears quite reachable heading into the SIU-C's women's cross country season.

The Salukis have three returning seniors in sophomores Lecan Conway and Dawne Barefoot and junior Kim Padgett. Their MVP from last season.

"All three are coming back and should have a good crop of new talent," DeNooon said.

DeNooon has all seven of last year's runners returning this season. DeNooon feels that the team's maturity to succeed though many of them are young.

"I have some young Saluki women's cross country coach Margaret Simmons said she believes SIU-C to be a very attractive place to go.

"They (Salukis) seem to be a more seasoned group this year," Simmons commented. "We've had all of three practices because of the heat and we're just going to try to survive."

DeNooon said his team has improved since past years when the Salukis were "blown away" by Murray State and he expects his athletes to take this win easily.

Football attendance is pathetic

By Eric Buenger

From the Press Box

Eric Buenger

It's a sad sight to see a capacity crowd pack into the home of the Salukis as they race across the goal line during the winning touchdown with 1:47 left in the third quarter.

Last year's attendance at Memorial Stadium was an embarassment. The average attendance for the 1988-89 season was a meagre 11,700 for the Salukis' five home games. Only Eastern Illinois and Illinois State had lower seasons.

The Salukis average attendance for the last eight seasons was 10,000 fewer students than SIU-C, drew smaller crowds to its home games.

So what's wrong with Saluki fans?

They want a winner. It's no fun rooting for a loser. This was the case when 20,000 fans turned out for the SIU-C Parent's Day game last year against Illinois State.

The crowd anticipated that nearly 15,000 fans would attend the ballgame, but rain forced 2,438 fans to stay away. The crowd included 1,338 fans in the stands.

The only thing to save the Salukis' attendance last year was the interchanging of quarterbacks for Gabbert and Gabbett, both of whom lit up the offensive side of the ball.

Gabbert shattered the SIU-C record books, previously rewritten SIU-C Athletic Director Jim Hart in 1963-65. Gabbett threw for a total 1,338 yards in five games, with 104 yards to his credit.

Gabbett fit in nicely with the pro-style offense Head Coach Bob Warn brought to the Salukis.

With Smith's playbooks and Gabbett's arm the Dawgs soon were passing and passing some more.

Gabbert, who also made his mark in the Saluki record books, produced a winner and bring fans back to McAndrew "sad." The Salukis face what should prove to be their most difficult year in recent memory. Having to play national powerhouse Illinois and South Carolina and reigning Gateway Conference champions Southwest Missouri State or 1990 era-tuff, the Dawgs need to take full advantage of their home courses.

The Dawgs were outscored 94-57 in the fourth quarter last year, but Smith has focused much of his attention on solidifying the defense and generating a running game. Hopefully with the improvement of these two aspects of the game and the abundance of a quality backfield talent, the Salukis should produce a winner and bring fans back to McAndrew "sad."

Graduate seeks unusual donations for children

SIU-C grad sells Guatemalan items and seeks donations of gym shoes, T-shirts

By Mark F. Barnett

Lee Torrence Almousa is a free-spirited merchant with a touch of a tourist usually not found in the give-and-take of the modern marketplace.

Originally from Chicago, Almousa, 31, is selling belts, purses, hats and other items made by Guatemalan residents. Her stand in the south end of the Student Center is an explosion of bright reds, oranges, yellows, deep purples and blues and other colors in various mosaic.

Yet selling these items is not what is remarkable and interesting about the SIU-C graduate who received a bachelor’s degree in linguistics and a master’s degree to teach English as a foreign language. She is asking students to donate old gym shoes, T-shirts and plastic, 51 watches so she can give them to needy Guatemalan children.

“The kids come up to you and admire your watches,” she said. “They like gym shoes and tie die shirts. The students aren’t willing to give them up.”

The kids Almousa “works” with are children who moved the streets and sell hand-made crafts.

“They’re just kids in the streets. They’re kind of like beggars. They’re pushy,” she said. “I’m not anything at them.”

Almousa also said the Guatemalan sellers are somewhat shy and difficult in their selling method. “Don’t go to school for marketing. Go to Guatemala. You’ll learn how to sell,” she said.

“As soon as they (the children) learn how to talk, they pull things from their mother. It’s their way of life.”

She noted, however, that tourists will haggle with the children and other merchants until the merchants agree to sell some items for 1 quetzal, which is about 41 cents, depending on the rate of exchange.

“Vrousa borrowed some money from a relative to get her started after she quit her job as a teacher of English. She said she found no security teaching, English in Guatemala. Almousa’s attraction to Guatemala is economic as well as cultural. It is cheaper to live in Guatemala than it is in Chicago,” she said. “The people are incredibly innocent and warm. I can go down the street and say Buenes dias. Buenes tardes. Buenes noches.” It is very friendly. I can’t do that in Chicago. You have to bite your lip.”

The weather is always nice, she said, “It’s always gorgeous. It’s in the mountains. It’s primo.”

Guatemala also is interesting to Almousa because she likes traditional weavings. “Peru and Guatemala are some of the places you can still see traditional weavings,” she said.

Almousa speculated on the popularity of the items she sells. “In the Midwest, people tend to be conservative and they will buy a belt or coin purse to show they are a little anti-establishment.”

She returned from Guatemala Aug. 8 and sold some of her wares on the beach in Chicago.

“Almousa will not be a long affair,” she said. “I’m doing this by myself. I was looking for something different. I didn’t plan it.”

This table of merchandise, imported from Guatemala by Lee Torrence Almousa, is currently on sale at the south end of the Student Center.

Dick Holliday and the Bamboo Gang to perform

Chicago rock band to play Thursday at Student Center’s Carnival of Craziness

By Eric Reyes

Staff Writer

Dick Holliday and the Bamboo Gang’s good-time wildness has been packing Chicago clubs for the past five years. Now the rock quintet is ready to play a Carnival of Craziness concert at 10 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center ballrooms sponsored by SPC consors.

One of Chicago’s rowdiest and most popular bands, Dick Holliday and the Bamboo Gang plays a mixture of rock, funk and reggae that will bring out the craziness in concertgoers.

The band was started in 1985 by Dick Holliday, lead vocals, guitar and rhythm, and a guy named Klem, bass and vocals.

The two met guitarist Grant Tyge in Hollywood at the Musician’s Institute. Keyboardist Lenny Pecas and drummer Greg Marshall joined the band in Chicago.

Although they released a critically acclaimed album a year ago in the Chicago area, the height of their popularity lies in the bars’ stage show.

But don’t forget their musicianship. About 80 percent of their show is original music, and to survive on the Chicago music scene, the sound has to be light and catchy.

Their high-energy mix of sounds from the Caribbean often puts fans through a workout on the dance floor.

An East Coast promoter has described going to their show as witnessing an event, noting it’s not just another “jig.”

In Chicago, they have have headlined Budweiser Chicago Choice Picks, the Budweiser Chicago Pride Series, and they have played in the Windy City’s Taste of Chicago.

Crisis in Gulf causes produce price raise

CROPS AREN'T the only thing coming up this harvest time; prices are rising along with them.

A report from the U.S. Department of Agriculture said the $5-a-barrel increase in oil prices could add $900 million a year in farm fuel, fertilizer, pesticides and utility costs.

Let's not kid ourselves and think this won't affect produce prices this fall. It will. Presently, consumers are reeling economically from high gas prices. Not everyone has to drive, but everyone has to eat.

BUT THERE is hope on the economically bleak horizon. OPEC leaders approved a temporary rise in oil production as the crisis in the Gulf continues. Such a measure would eventually lower fuel prices, giving the farmers the relief they need this harvest, but the initial damage has been done. Although the OPEC decision is a step in the right direction, it is still vague.

OPEC Secretary-General Su'ud Indo said the decision to produce extra oil is in agreement on principles, but no mention was made about how long it would last or how much it would provide. We applaud OPEC's steps to help, but encourage them to make a more concrete decision.

THE FIRST DOMINO was pushed when Iraq invaded Kuwait, and soon every American will be caught in this chain reaction. First we were stunned as oil companies raised their prices, causing us to delve deep into our pockets to come up with the extra 20 cent a gallon for gas. Soon we will be paying extra just for such bare necessities as food. And it might not be long before heating and electric bills go through the roof. Whether the OPEC decision will alleviate some of our economic burden.

UNTIL THE CRISIS in the Gulf is over...and let's ban together and only support the American companies that are daring to be different by keeping their prices affordable. Let's conserve now so we aren't faced with higher bills in the future. And let's hope for peace. Our pocketbooks will thank us for it.

STEREOTYPES TELL us who the "bad guys" and the "good guys" are. I guess Al Sharpton and Marion Barry are the "bad guys" and the Keating 5 are the "good guys".

Are we really more concerned about an individual's alleged drug problem than with the fact that the American public has been bled out of billions of dollars?

GRANTED, Marion Barry may not be the perfect role model, but his story serves as an important piece to young African Americans: watch your back at all times because no matter who you are or what you've done, you will always be black and thus, subject to disproportionate prosecution.

The Keating 5's lesson? It's all right if you lie, cheat, and steal. You will only get a slap on the wrist. Make no mistake, this distinction is very real.

THIS REALLY hit me home on the occasion when I was speaking to a friend of mine who is a college-educated, Afro-American male. He told me that if it ever happened that a police officer decided to stop him while he was in his car, he would, without hesitation, get out. Before being pulled over, he would actually drive himself to the nearest police station.

"WHY WOULD they pull you over?" I asked.

"They don't need a reason," he replied.

"Why would you drive yourself to the nearest police station?"

"Case I would be afraid for my life."

I explained to my friend that since he was almost certain to get arrested on some charge, the odds against him being assassinated via bullet would be much less at a police station with witnesses than in his car some street.

I DID NOT invent this conversation. This man did not tell me this to prove a point. It was obvious— he had seriously considered his options if the given situation ever arose.

Remember, while some Americans are concerned about lives or lives lost, others are concerned with their survival.

Disabled should not be ignored

On Friday, Aug. 18, 1990, the Student Programming Council introduced students to its weekly movie specials by premiering "Pretty Woman," free of charge.

At the close of a good movie, I stood up. Everyone moved as a complete group to the exit.

As I moved to the right, I noticed that the movement on my side of the auditorium seemed slower. Silently waiting, I inched up slowly and wondered what was the hold up.

Nearly five rows away from the last row of seats was a handicapped man in a motorized wheelchair. He, like the others, had been enjoying the movie and now wished to leave the auditorium.

He appeared to be having difficulty in his departure. As I got closer, I noticed that not one person offered any assistance. Not one.

The others just moved to the side, just passed around him. They found their way so the exit to the door—cut and away.

"Could someone please help me?" he asked. Someone never answered. I guess someone never saw him or heard him. Someone moved past and moved on—away.

"Could you help me?" again he asked.

The young man he addressed replied, "Sorry man, I don't know where you're going." And he moved past—away.

"I'll help you," I said.

All the men needed was someone to pull the chair back, off of the slight incline to level ground, so then he could operate his chair on his own.

He didn't ask for much. He didn't ask for life essential such as food, shelter or money. He just asked for a little help. And someone never helped.

Quite a few guys went past, those who proudly call themselves men, and no one of these men stopped to help.

As I, a female, pulled with the wheelchair, one rash man asked if I needed help, which I did, and he helped.

Two minutes later the man was on level ground and free to operate his chair. I felt I should say something, anything. Something about why someone didn't stop and help.

I wasn't sure what to say or how to say it if I knew. But I wanted to say something about disability.

But I said, "My father is a paraplegic and I'll help anyone if they need help. I'm not sure if it meant anything to him or someone, but it was something.

I turned quickly and walked away, past the people, past the others, past the someone, past my friends. Tears were already streaming down my face and I had to get away. I got to my car too upset to drive and cried.

My friends asked what was wrong. I tried to explain it was simple, "The man asked for help and no one would help him."

I felt sad and mad at the same time. I realized that when my father or anyone, handicapped or not handicapped, is in need of help he would have to ask someone and someone just right needs to do it.
No watch, warning sound before killer tornado hits

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National Severe Storms Laboratory in Colora- do Wednesday confirmed it did not issue a tornado warning — or even a tornado watch — before twisters ripped through the Joliet area, killing one and injuring 17 others.

As a result, residents had no official advance warning of the impending storms.

The NWS blamed the failure, which has occurred on occasion in recent years, on aging technology used to track severe weather in the United States and problems with the storms.

A tornado watch, which is issued for severe storms, could have meant tornadoes were possible, but no watch had been issued for severe thunderstorms.

The storm system moved on after killing one and injuring 17 others.

Several students had been killed.

addition, Britton said the Financial Aid Office increased the amount of short-term loan money.

"I also contacted Carbondale officials and solicited their cooperation in extending deadlines for run and deposits," she said.

Patti Denny, office manager of Bonnie Owen Property Management, said they have received a lot of calls asking when a student's aid checks will be available.

Brandon Hill, director and general manager of University Hall in Carbondale, said the aid office is still handling requests for aid.

University student Robert Ehrsam, a sophomore construction technology major from Plainfield, said a tornado demolished his home several years ago, and Tuesday's tornado was a repeat performance.

"I wasn't really worried because we went through one before," Ehrsam said. "We lost everything again.

University students from Plainfield said they were being able to communicate through telephone lines to contact family and friends who were affected.

"I got a hold of my mom last night about 11:30," said David Nuczyk, a sophomore communication major. "The phone lines were really filled up. We lived about one-fourth of a mile away from where the tornado touched down.

Tuesday Ties, a sophomore engineering major, said he heard about the tornado around 4 p.m.

"There's nothing left," said Bonnie Eigenhauer, one of the vic­ tims of the storm. "But it doesn't really matter. We survived.

"Our house was gone along with dozens of other county homes and state police and National Guarniture helped Will County authorities patrol tornado-ravaged areas to discourage looters.

"I was going to come out on my own if the department didn't send me," said Willowbrook Detective Mike Kurnicz. "We could just count our blessings it didn't happen to our town.

"Only 1 1/2 stories of the three-story complex remained in the area," said a police officer, who hit without warning.

Plainfield High School was virtually destroyed by the storm and school officials were thankful closed classes were able to start until Wednesday. The school was virtually deserted except for the football and volleyball teams and coaches managed to move the athletes to safety before the storm hit.

The aluminum tower on St. Mary's Immaculate Church near the high school was ripped off and swirled and nearby pines of the church's stained glass was broken out.

Three bodies were pulled from the wreckage of the church, ineluding student Macon Brande and Mary Keenan. Three more died at the high school.

Drug PACs may affect committees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's pharmaceutical companies, engaged in a legislative battle to get the most expensive drugs that treat rare illnesses, have selected key lawmakers for political donations, government figures show.

In the House, 16 of the 25 top recipients of political action committee money from drug companies are members of committees that will decide the future legislation over drug prices to encourage the development of sophisticated drugs. In the Senate, 12 of the 25 top recipients are on key panels. Many of the 7/8 lawmakers are from districts with major pharmaceutical concerns.

Rep. Edward Madigan, R-Ill., ranking Republican of the Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health and the environment, was the House leading recipient, collecting $45,000 from January 1989 through 1990.

In the Senate, Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., whose state is limited with major pharmaceuticals, was the leading PAC recipient. He received $67,600 from the companies since 1981, Federal Election Commission records show.

Other leading Senate recipients include: Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., who collected $57,300; Dick Durbin, R-Ill., who got $56,100; Dan Coats, R-Ind., $54,500; John Danforth, R-Mo., with $55,600.

In the Senate, Madigan was followed by Sen. Bob Michel, R-Ill., the Republican leader, who received $55,000; Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Energy and Commerce Committee, who collected $54,400; and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., who netted $59,700; and Dan Galla, R-N.J., with $56,500.

The disclosure of PAC money, reported by the drug companies, comes as Congress is poised to determine whether to expand the 1963 orphan drug law to allow for increased competition, or merely abandon funding for the act.

The law has spurred the production of 45 rare but critical drugs (i.e., a small p: population, and nearly 140 drugs that are in the final stages of testing. But the controversy over whether to invoke more competition among companies centers on three drugs that are being marketed under exclusive seven-year monopolies by companies that are parlaying generous subsidies into millions of dollars in profit.

The products include human growth hormone, or treated abnormally low growth hormone, or used to treat thyroid, or used to treat thyroid abnormalities. The orphan drug law, approved as part of a research funding bill, came into being when researchers found certain patients suffering from a genetic condition that would cause them to become dwarfs.

Some of these drugs were taking another look at the blood of all five patients 19 to 22 days later.

Study indicates transfer genes may fight cancer

FORTUS (UPI) — New data provide the strongest indication to date that transfer of foreign genes into human rats may be a safe and effective means of fighting cancer and other diseases, researchers said Wednesday.

Genetically-altered cells injected into cancer patients were found in their blood up to two months later, showing such cells potentially could last long enough to fight tumors or cure disease-causing genetic defects, said Dr. Steven Rosenberg of the National Cancer Institute.

The study also confirmed earlier findings that gene transfer causes no apparent immune system health threat, Rosenberg and colleagues reported in The New England Journal of Medicine.

In work approved after a lengthy Federal review and a legal challenge by some genetic engineering opponents, Rosenberg last year began inserting cells bearing foreign genes into eight patients receiving an innovative treatment for advanced melanoma, a deadly form of skin cancer.

Rosenberg said gene-modified cells were detected in the blood of all five patients 19 to 22 days later.
Committees join for depot project

By Anne Ryman
Staff Writer

The Old Depot Restoration Project charged another step forward in the direction of the Station Carbondale Restoration Committee when it was agreed to join Carbondale Uptown Inc. on Tuesday.

The Station Carbondale Restoration Committee will work in several ways by its association with Uptown, said Foster. The basics have an organized structure. Getting an organization approved as non-profit is lengthy and expensive, she said, noting that the fee to the Internal Revenue Service alone is $300.

By joining Uptown, the depot committee does not have to go through the process because Uptown is already an approved non-profit organization.

"The basics have already there to let them devote their time to working on a specific project," Foster said.

Uptown also has money left over in its budget for this year that is not allocated and could be used to get the depot committee started, she said. A prime concern of the committee will be fund raising.

Although national funds are available, they are limited and shouldn't be looked on as a major source of funding, Redmond said.

The committee of Uptown includes members of Old Town Square, Festivals, Historical Preservation and now the Depot. Uptown President Jeanne Foster said.

"There's a challenge ahead of us. First we must stabilize the structure and then deal with the interior," said downtown coordinator Tom Redmond.

It may cost about $100,000 to stabilize the structure, Redmond said. A good portion of this estimate will depend upon whether hazardous materials such as asbestos are in the building.

Separate deer season approved by Thompson

By Todd Gardner
Staff Writer

A separate deer season for muzzleloading black powder rifles was signed into law by Governor Thompson at the Du Quoin State Fair on Tuesday.

The law, which goes into effect January 1991, schedules the new season following the regular firearm season.

The muzzleloaders are a minority among deer hunters, and they see themselves as a unique group who deserve their own season like bow hunters, said Mike Simons, co-owner of Crossroads Sporting Goods in Carthage. It is their feeling of being a distinct group that motivated gun owners to lobby for the new season.

"It's a very personalized sport," Simons said.

Hunters using these guns have been hunting during the regular shotgun season. The new regulation will not prevent hunters from continuing to do so, Simons said.

Kube, Forest Wildlife Program Manager for the Illinois Department of Conservation in Springfield,

Hunters can either participate in the shotgun season or the muzzleloader season, but they cannot participate in both, Kube said.

"Nowhere from 3,000 to 5,000 hunters over the past six or seven years have signed permits to use black powder rifles," Kube said.

He said he doesn't see this number changing because of the new season.

Cindy Haecker, press secretary for Senator William O'Daniel, Mt. Vernon, who sponsored the bill, said the new season will help maintain high deer populations by extending the season. Haecker also said the longer season will bring more hunters to the area, increasing the tourist dollars received by Southern Illinois merchants.

The new season could be even more challenging for hunters, using because fewer people will be in the woods flushing game. It is what some hunters would like to see.

"We want the disadvantage of the numbers," Simons said.

Simons has been hunting with black powder rifles since it was legalized in the mid-1970's. He made the switch from shotguns to the powder rifle because he liked the greater skill involved with the single-shot rifles and the change it offers the sport. There is also an element of nostalgia that goes along with the old guns, he said.

"It gives you a taste of the old days," he said. "You have to be more of a woodsman."

Muzzleloading rifles resemble the unique guns, but they are not as primitive as people might think they are, Simons said.

"They're not that big puff of smoke that you have to duck down under to see what you shoot," he said.

"There's a lot of modern technology built into the guns today."

Many people become interested in black powder firearms after seeing them at re-enactments and club events, Simons said.

Students flee Florida campus terrorized by killer

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Students panicked by the serial killings of five students fled the University of Florida Tuesday, while those who stayed behind stocked up on guns, Mace and deadbolt locks.

The FBI, helping a task force of local police on the case, prepared a psychological profile of the person believed to have killed the five students found since Sunday within 2 miles of the campus.

Some students huddled together in hall rooms, too scared to return to their apartments but the prospect of more murders was too much for others.

"We're leaving their dorms," said pre-med student Jill Cerny, 21, a senior from West Palm Beach. "We had seven deadbolts installed yesterday (Tuesday) but we still didn't feel secure."

"Some are saying they're staying until Thursday or Friday or until they find another body. I don't know why they're staying though. Five is plenty for me," John Dewing of Boston was on a phone for Gainesville two hours after his daughter, Ali, 19, called her mother in Palm Beach Tuesday and said she was scared.

"According to my mother, I'm not coming back up here until this guy is in jail, whether it's two months or two weeks," Ali Dewing said. "I don't want to be here if there's a crazy guy running around killing people."

"Everybody's pretty much going home and I think that pretty much tells you how scared everybody is."

The bodies of four young women and one young man were found Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in private apartments in southwest Gainesville, within 2 miles of the University of Florida campus. Four were UF students and the fifth was a student at Santa Fe Community College.

Police Chief Wayland Clifton Jr. said no suspects had been identified but all five killings appear to be connected to the same one or two suspects.

The FBI planned to release a psychological profile of the killer Wednesday. A task force of more than 100 officers — including the crime lab specialist who helped catch serial murderer Ted Bundy — were working on the case.

A noon prayer service was scheduled for the victims at the university.

Police would not say how any of the victims died but acknowledged that at least some of the first three had been mutilated. The Gainesville Sun, quoting unidentified sources, said at least one of the young women was decapitated and one or more of the victims' nipples had been cut off.

The newspaper also said there were signs of forced entry at the scenes of all five killings but police would not confirm the report.

ISC split over Student Center Cyprus display

By Leslie Cop
Staff Writer

Executive members of the International Students Council met behind closed doors Wednesday night to decide the fate of a display featured at the Student Center.

After the meeting, ISC contended that in accordance with its constitution, the council would not get involved in political issues, but if both student associations were willing to accept its decision, it would rule on the matter.

The display was approved by Student Center officials, but the Cyprus Student Association says the contents violate the Student Center's display policy.

The policy states that, "All items displayed must be in English or have a legal translation written in English adjacent to it." The display does not meet this condition.

"Our decision has been made to keep it (the display) up," said Doug Daggett, assistant director of the Student Center.

Hafiz Deccelck, president of the Turkish Student Association, the organization that assembled the display, said, "I do everything within the rules and regulations."

The Greek Cypriots have consulted with student legal assistance, but no action has been taken as of yet, Harry Charemou, member of the Cyprus Student Association, said.

"The primary theme of the (display) is acceptable, (but) we're happy to act on whatever legal counsel recommends."

The decision of opinion over the display is noted in a political controversy concerning the Turkish occupation of Cyprus.

The display shows a map dividing the country of Cyprus into two separate entities. The northern part, occupied since 1974 by Turkish troops, was labeled as the Turkish Republic of Cyprus. 'We wanted to show some facts about the Cyprus problem," said the president of the Turkish Student Association.

Both organizations agree that the northern half of Cyprus is not recognized as a separate country by the United Nations, but the Turkish students claim the northern half is a separate country with its own constitution. The Greek Cypriots do not recognize the division and claim the country is still whole.

Members of the Cypriot Student Association in the Islamic Republic of Cyprus want to try and change the demographics of Cyprus.

"It's not our country; it's our country," said Christianna Philippou, president of the Cypriot Student Association.

"They are promoting our heritage with the help of Maria Constantinidou, member of the Cypriot association, said.

The Cypriot Student association president said, "The Turkish Republic of Cyprus does exist."

George Allen returns to sidelines

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — When Clemson played Long Beach State in the season opener Saturday, more attention will be focused on the sidelines than the playing field.

Clemson is expected to blow out the 49ers in little more than a scrimmage for the 10th ranked Tigers. In fact, most oidemakers aren't even putting a line on the game.

Still, Clemson sports information director Emeritus Bob Bradly said the game is getting more national attention than he's seen in more than a decade. The reason — the return of George Allen to football.

Allen, the second oldest coach in NCAA history, behind only the legendary Amos Alonzo Stagg, who was 84 during his final season at Pacific, Allen hasn't coached at the college level since his 1956 season at Whittier (Calif.) but was 16-6-4 in 12 seasons with the Los Angeles Rams and the Washington Redskins.

Adding his time in the USFL, Allen had 14 years at the pro level — without a losing season, which makes Saturday's matchup with Clemson something of a hain pill.

"Somebody said we were a Six-point underdog," Allen said. "It's like Mike Tyson fighting an amateur. These are hard new kids. Some of them weren't even regulars in high school or junior college..."

Last year, Long Beach went 4-4, allowing 333 yards and 451 yards a game, and the Big West team has lost 10 starters. In the three years since Long Beach nearly folded its football program, the 49ers are 11-24.

A losing season this year is practically a given, which leaves a winner like Allen — who once Brooke his hand in frustration for losing three straight games — scratching his head and wondering how to pull the "Bombers" off.

"Boy, I don't know," Allen said. "I do know one thing — I've got to run and swim because I get real stressed..."

While Allen munches antacid tablets on the sidelines at "Death Valley", Clemson Coach Ken Hafid looks like he's about to play in the NCAA probe of the Tigers' athletic program.

Hafid, with 11 years' head coaching experience, holds a career record of 22-4-2. At Arkansas, Hafid had a 76 percent winning ratio and is just one of four active coaches to take a team to a bowl game in each of the past eight years.

Returning to this year's roster are All-Canadian players junior Leon Eckford from Marcy, New York, and senior Joel Meyer from Marion, Ill. Bill Buell, senior from Addison and Brent Favelson, senior from Fort Atkinson, Wis., return for their third year in the Missouri Valley Conference, last season, also return to the team.

SIU-C's men's golf team finished in fourth place behind Tulsa last season. It was the first time since Saluki men's golf team had tied for third place that it finished better than fourth.

In 1989 Wichita State went to the regionals, being selected over SIU-C despite the fact the Salukis defeated the Shockers twice. The Salukis lost to Wichita in the New Orleans Invitational, and tied tenth in the Missouri Intercollegiate Invitational, but defeated them twice later in the season.

"We were a little upset that regions' selections were made so early," Hartog said, "we just have to do well enough in the year this season".

Hartog said he has three players other than the top four that he expects a lot of success from. He'll be looking to junior Sean English from Paducah, Ky., freshman Sam Scheib from Edwardsville, and senior Rich Krazenberg from Champaign.

Krazenberg is a transfer student from the University of New Orleans. "This year we have much more depth," Hartog said. "Right now we have seven guys playing extremely well.

"This is the most experience we've had at Southern in a long time," Hartog said, "and experienced players can handle pressure better."

Saluki players are competing against each other to qualify for their first tournament, the 1990 Murray State Invitational being held Sept. 14 and 15. The top five SIU-C qualifiers will represent SIU-C in tournaments. "It's good to have competition on the team," Hartog said, "the players are always trying to improve."

So after three rounds, Favelson is leading his teammates with an average of 71.66, followed by Scheib at 72. Bellas and Krazenberg at 74.66 and Mullican at 75.

Lendl moves to third round at U.S. Open

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ivan Lendl, suddenly the only Grand Slam champion this year in contention at the U.S. Open, climbed into the third round Wednesday with a tense four-set victory over West German Michael Stich.

Lendl, the Australian Open champion and a three-time winner at Flushing Meadows, defeated Stich, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3.

Earlier in the day, French Open champion Andre Agassi lost his first round match to Brazilian Luiz Maitre Masters, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3, 5-3, while Wimbledon champion Stefan Edberg was ousted Tuesday. The marks the first time during the open era that two Grand Slam champions were eliminated the first round of the U.S. championship.

Martina Navratilova, the No. 2 women's seed, advanced to the third round with a 6-4, 6-0 victory over Clare Wood of Britain.

Lendl had his service broken three times by Stich in the first two sets, and struggled for just over two hours before securing his victory. Stich, ranked No. 65 in the world, hurt his cause with 52 unforced errors as compared to 31 for Lendl.

"I actually was expecting a tough match," Lendl said, "but I think he got tired after the second set, you could see," Lendl said. "I think he served well, I think he pushed it as a good return and then his hard.

Wichita State finished the 1989 season with a overall record of 19-16 and were tied for sixth in the Gateway this year. The Shockers return with seven lettermen and three starters. The team added five freshman newcomers in 1990.

The Indiana State Sycamores added six newcomers this year. Their head Coach Dave Gehman filled the Sycamores in 1987 when they tied for six.

For the first time Tom Hayford is ranked eighth in the national pre-season poll. Last year the Panthers finished 20-15 overall, 5-4 and tied for sixth in the Gateway.

The Drake Bulldogs made its highest Gateway Finish in 1983 when they tied for third place. The Bulldogs added seven newcomers to this team this season.

Stanley added five freshmen newcomers for 1990. The Lady Blizers finished 7-28 overall, 9-9 and tenth in the Gateway.

Quarterback talent plentiful for '90 Salukis

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

The 1990 Salukis have three ready-and-willing quarterbacks ready to pull the trigger and lead the offensive attack. The question is who will Head Coach Bob Smith pick as his top gun.

"It is not a controversy," Smith said. "It is three very capable quarterbacks who all have the ability to compete and somebody's going to have to take the first snap."

A brief scouting report on the three Saluki battling shows they each have specific skills that make each one excel.

Fred Gibson, 6-foot-2, 200 pounds: The most experienced of the three, Gibson, from Franklin, Tenn., has seen three coaches in as many years as a Saluki. He has played in a wishbone-style offense and in Smith's wide open passing attack. He has thrown for 2,687 yards and 10 touchdowns in his career. Gibson also excelled as a runner in the wishbone attack. He has rushed for a total of 690 yards in a Saluki uniform and has run for three touchdowns in his first three years at SIU-C.

"I've been a starter for a long time," Gibson said, "and I think I have proved myself as a leader, and that I'm a worthy candidate for the position. We each have our talents and strong points."

Bob Smith on Gibson: "He is a Jack-of-all-trades quarterback. He runs well and throws very well. With Fred in the game we would utilize our running game and his running ability."

Scott Gabbert, 6-foot-3, 175 pounds: Gabbert, from Ballwin, Mo., burst onto the scene last season and didn't stop running the football until his name was put into the SIU-C record books. He holds records for most passes in a game (50), most completions in a game (41), most passing yards in a game (381), in addition to several others. In his two seasons Gabbert has thrown for 2,045 yards and 14 touchdowns.

"I think I proved last year," Gabbert said, "but I think I have to also prove myself now because we have three other QB's who can do the job."

Smith on Gabbert: "Scott is a pure touch passer. He doesn't have a real strong arm, but he gets the ball right on target. He reads defenses well also."

Brian Downey, 6-foot-2, 183 pounds: A transfer from Ricks College, Downey is a newcomer that the Saluki coaching staff expects great things from. He threw for more than 2,900 yards and 46 touchdowns in his two years at Ricks. The 23-year-old, from Arzentberg, Idaho, spent two years at a missionary in Portugal following his high school graduation.

"I feel that as a newcomer that I've been given an equal chance to get the job," Downey said. "The coaches reinforced that fact to me. I'll just do my best and see what happens."

Smith on Downey: "Brian is a stereotype pro-style passer. He's got the strong arm and he can get out of trouble with his running ability."

The summer practices have given the team a chance to display those abilities in front of Smith, who said the competition has been good for them.

"It is a healthy, friendly competition," Smith said. "Each of them help each other. We aren't too concerned who takes the first snap, we have confidence in all three."

Downey echoed Smith, commenting that there are no hard feelings between any of the quarterback candidates.

"We push each other in a positive way," Downey said. "We help each other out and the three of us are really good friends."

As far as each quarterback's chances of taking the first snap of the season on Sept. 1 against Northern Iowa, each believe that they have the ability to be the starter.

In the end the final vote will be cast by Smith and his staff. He said one of the criteria he's using to make his choice will be how the offense flows with each particular quarterback.

"I will look at how the rest of the offense blends with a certain quarterback," Smith said. "That may have to as much to do with it as much as anyone's particular skill."

With the opening game just ahead, most fans want to know who will be the No. 1 quarterback going up at Northern Iowa. So will Smith say who the favorite is?

"No favorite," Smith said. "It's still even-steven with these three guys. I will make my decision the week of the Northern Iowa game. The rest of the practices until then will tell the story."

Nevertheless, the Salukis have three quarterbacks ready to step in to take the first snap.\n

Smith's warm-up complete, ready for 1990

Smith heads into his second season with Saluki football

By Julie Autor
Staff Writer

The last 18 months have been like a pregame warm-up for Saluki football head coach Bob Smith. Smith joined the SIU-C football program a few days before the 1989 signing period and found himself behind in the recruiting race.

"I consider this my first year," Smith said. "I came here first week of February and it was tough timing. We were in the process of recruiting kids and we salvaged a good recruiting class.

This year Smith has been focusing on recruiting players from Illinois high schools.

"We're building up the recruiting class by class in a deliberative way. It's something that we all can be proud of," Smith said.

"We've only scratched the surface in our few months here," Smith said, "but the fact that we already have a foundation in place and expect to start building this season. Our players totally accepted what we had to offer last year. They liked the office. They had fun. That's so important and we simply feel good about the situation."

At the end of last season, Smith set three goals for the 1990 season. A better running game, a more dominant defensive team and making the kicking game a more vital part of the Saluki attack are Smith's objectives this season.

Smith began his coaching career in 1962 as an assistant coach in the Keller District in Peoria. In 1972 he was named the Greater Peoria Football Coaches Association Coach of the Year.

In 1973, as head coach at Manual High School in Peoria, Smith led his team to the Central Illinois National Coach of the Year. He also coached the Illini High School All-Star game in 1977 and was named Central Illinois Sportsman of the Year.

SIU-C head football coach Bob Smith gets set to begin his second season at the Saluki helm. Smith hopes to improve on the 2-9 record his team posted last season.

He spent 15 years at the high school level before breaking into the college ranks. His collegiate career began in 1978 when he became the tight ends and receivers coach at the University of Illinois. Smith spent time as the offensive line coach at U of I from 1980 to 1983 and returned in 1988.

In 1984, Smith accepted the head coaching position at Southeast Missouri State. He rejuvenated the team and led it to a co-championship of the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association and was named Coach of the Year in that conference.

Smith believes SIU-C has the potential to have a good football program.

Smith came to SIU-C because he believes they have "the best head coaching position, in Illinois, next to the University of Illinois. We're as good as any team in the country at the LAA level.

"The opportunity to become SIU-C's head football coach is one I simply could not pass up despite the fact I had tremendous loyalty to the U of I and to Mackovic (U of I football coach)," Smith said. "I was very fortunate to be leaving a situation that I respected so much only to be joining another staff headed by a person like Jim Hart, who I had equal respect for."

Smith is joined on the sideline by defensive coordinator Phil Meyer, receivers coach Sam Venuto, offensive line coach Tom Seward, defensive secondary coach Stanley King, defensive line coach Ralph Young and defensive coordinator Gerry Hart, who returns to the Salukis after missing the 1989 season because of heart surgery.

Smith also receives assistance from head trainer Ed Thompson, equipment manager Steve Ward and strength coach Mike Jones.

In naming Smith as Saluki's head coach, Athletics Director Jim Hart said, "Bob Smith matched every criteria we set up in looking for our new coach. He's well-documented as being a successful coach. He's sensitive to the needs and concerns of the players. He's a team player and he was willing to make a long-term commitment to SIU-C. That was important.

Hart is pleased with the progress Smith is making with the team in practices so far this season.

"I'm very happy with Coach Smith and his staff," Hart said. "They're a super group of people to work with."

"We're headed in the right direction so we can get the coaching staff to stay here for a while. The players are just saying 'O.K. who's next?' We've got to have someone who will be around for awhile."

"Bob is this way. He's from Illinois. Everything runs to stability lie him staying here. Hart is eager for the new football season to begin.

"I wish the best for them," Hart said. "I wish for them to vie for the conference championship. No one else in the conference thinks that they're capable of doing that."

"I have a gut feeling that they won't finish last, but they'll surprise some people."

Senior middle linebacker Kevin Kilgallen said Smith is working the team nice and slow this year.

"He's not killing us like (former coach) Earl Rhodes did a few years ago. He's gradually working us to where we need to be," Kilgallen said.

"He (Smith) is a good leader, he sets a good team concept for the players." Smith has his work cut out for him this season, but of optimism counts for anything in football, the Salukis could find themselves atop the Gateway Conference in the near future.

The Salukis are in a rebuilding situation, but with three capable quarterbacks in senior Fred Gibson, junior Scott Gabbert and junior-transfer Brian Downey, Smith hopes to guide the Dawgs offense to their first Gateway Conference title since joining the conference five years ago.

SIU-C loads schedule with Fighting Illini and South Carolina

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

The football Salukis 1990 schedule may seem monochromatic to some, but the squad and its second-year head coach Bob Smith relish the chance to knock helmets with some of the best teams in college football.

"The schedule might be a nightmare when you look at it," Smith said. "There are no sure-win games on there. We could be very much improved as a ballclub and not improve our record."

The nightmare schedule Smith speaks of contains 11 teams that carry a combined 75-49 win-loss record last season. Smith said the squad, which is still getting accustomed to the pro-style offense instituted last season, will benefit from the tough competition.

"It's better to have a tough schedule like this in a year when you are growing," Smith said. "Then to have an easy schedule and not be able to determine how much you have improved."

The Salukis will have to battle via Gateway Conference foes, including the Southwest Missouri State Bears and the Eastern Illinois Panthers, each of which made it to the Division I-AA playoff quarterfinals.

Another threat in the Salukis side is the fact that the team plays four of its 11 games at home, with just two home games conference.

The Salukis will play host to conference foe Indiana State Sept. 8 and Western Illinois Nov. 3.

Indiana State comes to MacAndrew Stadium for the SIU-C Hall of Fame Day. Western will visit Carbondale for the Salukis' Homecoming game.

Non-conference matchups at SIU-C include Murray State Sept. 15 and Arkansas State Sept. 29.

More fearsome than the conference challenge are the two Division I-A teams, University of Illinois and South Carolina, which appear on the Salukis' schedule. The biggest challenge should come when the Salukis face the Fighting Illini in Champaign Sept. 22.

U of I possesses one of the stingiest defenses in the land this season with the return of pre-season All-Americans Moe Gardner and Derrick Brownrow. Three national sports publications have the Illini, who were 10-2 in 1989, as the preseason Top Ten, and one has them at No. 3 in the country. The defense is ranked as the best in the country by more than five national publications.

Even in the face of playing a team with the firepower of Illinois, the Saluki players and coaches are excited about the challenge.

"We aren't nervous to play the Illini. They are just regular people like everyone else," said sophomore wide receiver Johnny Rooks, a pre-season all-Gateway pick. "We can do well against them."

"(Illinois) will definitely be our most outstanding challenge of the season," senior quarterback Fred Gibson said. "We are looking forward to it and we are going to have to rest up to do well.

An added incentive of playing against Division I-A teams is the monetary benefits that are to be made for the football program. Smith said the pay from the I-A games will affect the lack of home consis.

"Division I-A games will give our program strong financial benefits," Smith said. "We should realize somewhere in the neighborhood of $300,000 from the I-A games. That will make up for having only four Gateway games."

Another benefit the Salukis will receive is the exposure from traveling to various places such as South Carolina, Champaign and to other away games at Arkansas State and Gardner-Webb. The Salukis will battle Central Florida on its home field, the Citrus Bowl. The game is scheduled for Oct. 27 when SIU-C is in the middle of its new fall break.

"The fact that people are talking about the Illinois and South Carolina games months beforehand is exciting," Smith said. "These away games will give us some good, positive exposure."

Gateway award renamed for the late UNI football coach

By Tiffany Youther
Staff Writer

The Gateway football Coach of-the-Year award has been renamed the "Bruce Craddock Award" in honor of the late Western Illinois head football coach.

Craddock passed away in 1992 after a battle with cancer. Gateway Conference Commissioner Paty Viverito said the decision to rename the award was made during the summer when the Gateway Conference was thinking of possibilities for a tribute to Bruce Craddock.

After much consideration the idea came up about doing something with the Coach-of-the-Year award.

"Bruce Craddock touched the lives of everyone around him in a positive way and we must never forget him and all he did for us," Viverito said. "For these reasons, the Gateway's annual Coach of the Year award will carry his name.

Over the course of his career Craddock spent seven seasons coaching the Leathernecks, guiding them to the 1988 Gateway title and an NCAA I-AA tournament appearance. He was honored as the Gateway Coach of the Year for 1987 and was co-winner in 1988 as well as Kodak Midwest I-AA Coach of the Year.

SIU football coach Bob Smith, who was a personal friend of Craddock’s, said the renaming of the award in honor of Craddock was "an admirable move" on the part of the Gateway Conference.

"It was a sad day for our whole conference when we lost him," Smith said. "He was the epitome of what you’d like a football coach to be.

He added that this change in title "added prestige" to the award.

Viverito explained that the winner of the award is selected by a vote of his peers and is a great honor for any coach.

"To be the Gateway Coach of the Year has always been an honor. To be the ‘Bruce Craddock’ Gateway Coach of the Year makes the honor even more meaningful," Viverito said.
TAILGATE POLICY

The University Alcohol Policy prohibits all possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages on campus unless an exception is specifically authorized. As done by many colleges and universities for football games, the University has permitted what is known as “tailgate” activities in designated areas, intended to give persons attending football games the opportunity to arrive early, park and have their own food and beverages (including alcoholic beverages if they wish) prior to the game. Since these events are permitted through exception to the University Alcohol Policy, the following guidelines have been formulated and will be in effect for your health and safety throughout the football season:

1. Possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages within the intent described above will be permitted only during the period from three hours prior to the kick-off up to fifteen minutes prior to game time on Saturdays of home football games and during the half-time of those games in the following areas (these spaces to be available for set-up three hours prior to kick-off):
   a) Parking Lot 13, directly west of the stadium;
   b) Lot 13A, southwest of the stadium;
   c) Lots 10A and 10B, north of the stadium;
   d) Lots S3 and 43, near the Physical Plant;

Consumption of alcoholic beverages on campus other than at the times and locations specified is prohibited by the University Alcohol Policy, unless specifically authorized.

2. The above limited exception applies only to those persons of legal drinking age (21 years of age or older). Underage possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages in any public place is illegal. Violators will be subject to prosecution.

3. The sale or delivery of alcoholic beverages, direct or indirect, is strictly prohibited. (Sale of other items are permitted only if approved in advance and meet the other requirements of the University Policy on Solicitation.)

4. It is recommended that containers be limited to individual servings, but kegs will be permitted, except in the Free Forum Area, subject to provisions of number one above. Only individual servings will be permitted in the Free Forum Area.

5. For safety reasons, the use of non-glass containers is encouraged for all beverages.
Hart back with Salukis

The Hart is back in the 1990 Saluki defense. Gerry Hart will be starting his first full season as defensive coordinator for the Saluki football team this year. Hart was sidelined with health problems for most of what was to be his 1992 season last year.

Hart, a 1992 SIU-C graduate, underwent triple bypass heart surgery last August and missed all but four games last season. Although his physical presence was missed on the field, Hart felt that the team was "all in it together last year."

A native of West Frankfort, Hart has put his health problems behind him. He said he was going to focus his attention not on his health problems of the past, but the future improvement of Saluki defense.

Hart began his collegiate coaching career here at SIU-C in 1965 as a quarterback coach. After leaving SIU-C in 1966, Hart began a 10-year association with Illinois State, five years as defensive coordinator followed by five as head coach. He then moved to Western Illinois for a three-year stint as defensive coordinator followed by six years coaching in the Canadian Football League.

"He knows the game inside and out," said senior middle linebacker Kevin Kilgallon. "He knows so much about the game, every day it seems like he teaches us something new."

Head football coach Bob Smith looks forward to benefiting from Hart's "ability and defensive savvy." Smith isn't concerned that Hart's health may impede his performance as a coach.

"Gerry participated in the last four games last year and spring ball," Smith said. "He seems happy, healthy and aggressive and glad to be back."

Hart has his work cut out for him. The 1990 defensive squad will be missing five starters from last year. Hart will be trying to improve on the fourth quarter defense of last year that allowed a total of 94 points.

Defence can play a vital part in every ballgame and Hart is back to see that the Saluki defense is solid.

NCAA to enforce SIU-C drug test

By Julie Autor

Staff Writer

This season, the Saluki football players are experiencing all kinds of physical tests of strength, but the one test they haven't experienced yet is the drug test.

The NCAA has issued a mandatory drug test to stop the use of performance enhancing drugs.

Saluki head football coach Bob Smith believes the drug testing won't affect the players. "It's something they've just got to do," Smith said. "I don't believe they have any strong opinion about it."

The penalties for any performance enhancing drugs found in a player's system is suspension from the team for one year. Smith believes the punishment given by the NCAA is too harsh. "If they find some evidence of performance enhancing drugs," Smith said, "I think they should counsel and help them with the problem and then retest them. If they want to help young people, they should test all 24,000 students." The tests are paid for by an NCAA grant. The NCAA sends its own people to the school to do the testing, so there is no cost to SIU-C.

The athletics department is notified 48 hours in advance when the NCAA plans to arrive to administer the tests.

7. The University assumes no responsibility for any liability incurred as a result of an organization’s or individual’s violation of these regulations or any applicable laws governing the use and consumption of alcoholic beverages. 8. For all events on campus where use of alcoholic beverages is planned or anticipated, the event sponsor must submit through appropriate administrative channels a form either requesting approval of such use of alcoholic beverages pursuant to these regulations, or requesting permission to conduct an event where unauthorized use of alcoholic beverages is expected. When use of alcoholic beverages is not approved for such an event, publicity for the event, if conducted, should clearly state that the use of alcoholic beverages is not permitted.

9. For all events involving the use of alcoholic beverages on campus, the event sponsor will be responsible for assuring that:
   a. Non-alcoholic beverages and food are made available at the event.
   b. Provisions are made to regulate portions of alcoholic beverages served per individual and that the event shall not include any form of “drinking contest” in its activities or promotion.
   c. Adequate supervision and security are available for the event as necessary to provide for a safe atmosphere and to permit enforcement of the law concerning underage consumption of alcoholic beverages and other State laws and University regulations.

Special events scheduled for home football games

Even though the Salukis have only four home football games on their 1990 schedule, each of them will bring a special event to SIU-C.

The first home football game at 1:30 p.m. Sept. 8 against Indiana State has been dubbed Fall of Fame Day.

Past Hall of Famers are invited back to SIU-C to be honored during this special weekend.

A group of six inductees for SIU-C’s Hall of Fame will be honored at a brunch at 10:30 a.m. on Sept. 8 at the Student Center Ballroom.

The inductees include Michael Franks, an NCAA tailist in the 400-meter dash in 1985, John Sayre, a two-time NCAA runner-up in decathlon and four-time All-American in track, Connie Price, a 1988 Olympian in track and five-time national tailist, Lionel Antoine, a two-time Saluki All-American in football, Amanda Martin, SIU-C’s only national champion in women’s swimming, and Wendy Lucero, a 1983 NCAA diving champion and a sixth-place winner at the ’88 Olympics in Seoul Korea.

The Salukis second home football game at 1:30 p.m. Sept. 15 against Murray State has been pegged Beef Day.

The Illinois Beef Producers Association sponsors the festivities in part with other area sponsors.

Student athletes will be honored for their academic achievements during halftime.

The Great Saluki Tailgate is Sept. 29. The festivities begin at 900 a.m. At 1:30 p.m the Salukis tackle Arkansas State.

The theme for this year’s tailgate is “It’s a Family Affair.” Businesses, students and organizations are encouraged to dress up as their favorite family and come to the tailgate party.

Groups can become the Simpsons, the Munsters, the Flintstones, or even the Bradys. Use your imagination and become your favorite family.

The grand prize winner will receive a cruise for eight to the Bahamas.

In the Saluki Business Spirit category, the first-place prize is a weekend trip for eight to Kentucky Dam Village.

In the Student Tailgate category, the first-place winner will receive a trip for eight to Orlando, Fla. for four days, three nights and tickets to see SIU-C play Central Florida.

The second-place winner will receive eight customized Saluki Tailgate jackets.

The traditional Saluki Tailgate first-place winner will receive a weekend for eight at Union Station in St. Louis. The second-place winner will receive a weekend for eight at the Marion Holiday Inn Holdowme.

Those are some of the nicest prizes that have ever been garnered,” said Athletics Director Jim Hart, “I’m looking forward to that (the tailgate). It ought to be fun.”

Entry deadline for the Saluki Tailgate is 4:30 p.m. Sept. 26 at the athletics department.

The Homecoming game is Nov. 3. The Salukis will play Western Illinois at 1:30 p.m.

“There haven’t been too many times where Homecoming was in November,” Hart said, “but we didn’t have a choice.”

Hart said the October fall break affected the scheduling of home football games.

“We can’t have a football game when no one is here. We scrambled to get another game,” Hart said. “Central Florida was available, so we decided to go down there and play.”

The Salukis meet Central Florida during SIU-C’s fall break on Oct. 29.

“Students have a fall break and now the team can have one too,” Hart said. “Hopefully they can win the football game as well.”

Saluki football coach Bob Smith said the special festivities give the team an added incentive to win the game.

“We strive to be an exciting team,” Smith said. “We’ve got to make it (attending football games) the thing to do on a Saturday afternoon.”
