Dan Defose, chairman of the Undergraduate Student Organization's Internal Affairs, is suspicious of the emerging relationship between two fledging campus organizations.

One of the groups—Students for Illinois Public Interest Research Group—can be seen almost daily on campus, stopping students to ask for their signatures.

The other group—Illinois Public Interest Research Group, or IPIRG—is not yet in existence. But it could be if Students for IPIRG succeeds in gathering its goal of 12,000 student signatures.

Defose is comfortable with the correlation.

"If it's a sneaky, underhanded way to get money from the students," Defose said. "The outside organization (IPIRG) is controlling the inside organization."

Cynthia Durgan, IPIRG spokeswoman, said Students for IPIRG, the "inside" group, is now applying for registered student organization status and is not affiliated with the IPIRG that tried to form at the University in 1977 and 1981. IPIRGs are on 190 campuses in 20 different states.

Bill Coady, IPIRG information officer, said despite the fact that they are two different groups, Students for IPIRG and IPIRG will work closely together.

According to a Jan. 19 letter from IPIRG to University President John Gouyn, IPIRG is a "non-profit corporation unaffiliated with a political party."

"The group is designed to offer students a means of addressing public issues on state and local levels, with funding provided by a waivable fee per student, per semester fee increase," the letter states.

"It's somebody's political organization," Defose said. "I intend to write a bill, to be given to the USA, asking students if they want to support a refundable fee to be used by a political action group."

On Jan. 28, Students for IPIRG, which is now applying for student petition drive on campus in an attempt to collect 12,000 student signatures, which would constitute a majority of SIUC's undergraduate and graduate student population.

Durgan said this majority would prove to the University that IPIRG is wanted and needed by the students.

"It has the potential of empowering students generally," she said.

Coady said even if the signature goal is met, IPIRG will not apply for RSO status, but instead will work through Students for IPIRG. He said IPIRG feels it would be able to work more effectively as an independent group.

"IPIRGs are quasi-independent," he said.

Defose, however, said he does not think the IPIRG movement is giving the petitioned students adequate information.

"Most of what IPIRG says it is doing, it is already being done," he said. "I say be honest with the students.

"Most of the IPIRG's displeasure with IPIRG centers on the group's intentions to rate or grade local and national politicians."

"What criteria are they going to use?" he said.

Defose said IPIRG's proposed waivable fee would have to be approved by the President's Budget Advisory Board and the Board of Trustees.

"I can't imagine them opening that door," he said. "The fee, to the best of our knowledge, would not be obtainable under the current guidelines of the University and the laws of the state of Illinois."

Students for IPIRG already has encountered difficulties with the University. Defose and USA President Phil Lyons both said the group broke rules last week in attempting to hand out pamphlets at the Student Center. Consequently, then-president of IPIRG, David Tokuhisa had all his petitioning privileges at the Student Center revoked for 16 weeks.

Sunday night's freezing rain and sleet storm covered freshman Kevin Hammel's car with a thick layer of ice. Hammel chips away to clean his windshield Monday afternoon in the Baptist Student Center's parking lot.

Region unfazed by ice storm

By Catherine Simpson
Staff Writer

Despite the unexpected ice storm late Sunday night, Carbondale and Southern Illinois seem to be handling the weather well.

The Physical Plant at SIU reported a few rooms at Southern Hills and Thompson Point were without heat, but that the storm caused no major power problems.

Central Illinois Public Service Company reported a few tree limbs had fallen, but that no power outages had occurred.

Karel Abrams, chief weather observer at the Southern Illinois Airport, said planes were delayed at Lambert Airport in St. Louis because of icy conditions. Service at the Carbondale Regional Airport and the SI Airport were not affected.

No major auto accidents were reported on campus, in the city or in Southern Illinois, according to police reports.

Southern Illinois schools will not report closings until this morning. School closings will be announced on local radio stations.

Abrams said the weather will continue to be cloudy with light snow.

2 percent solution:

Deans concerned about future budget cuts

Editor's note: This is the first article in a continuing series on the 2 percent plan.

By Paula Buckner

John Jackson, worried. For each of the next three years, Jackson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, has to cut $145,000 from his faculty salary budget of about $7.25 million.

That translates into a loss of 13 faculty members from the college's roster of 390. The cuts are in addition to the nine faculty members COLA already has lost in the last two years.

Jackson's dilemma, shared by other SIU-C deans, is the product of what the University calls its 2 percent internal reallocation plan.

The plan—implemented because the Illinois Board of Higher Education and滋 SU-C was overstaffed and its faculty understaffed—is "self-imposed," says its creator, John Gouyn, acting president and vice president for academic affairs.

Two percent of the faculty salary base is set aside to raise salaries, with three-quarters of the amount set aside going directly toward salary increases.

Gorbachev lauds Soviet ‘democratization’

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, applauded by an array of celebrities that included dissident Andrei Sakharov, told an international peace forum Monday that "the broad democratization of our society is irreversible.

He also criticized a proposed U.S. interpretation of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty that would allow testing of "Star Wars" technology and repeated his condemnation of President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative.

"The special danger of the arms race in space means that destabilization will become a fact," Gorbachev said. "The risk of accidental war will increase by several times."

In his wide-ranging, hour-long speech, Gorbachev vowed that "the broad democratization of our society is irreversible." But he emphasized the changes would be based on the "socialist values" of the ruling Communist Party.

"What we are doing will not affect anyone adversely," Gorbachev said to prolonged applause. "The whole world will benefit."

In the audience, Nobel Peace laureate physicist Andrei Sakharov joined in the applause — less than two months after he was released from nearly seven years of exile in the city of Gorky. The speech was the climax of an international forum "for a nuclear free world, for the survival of humanity" that brought some 850 foreigners—including a glittering array of internationally famous film stars, authors and scientists—to the Soviet capital.

Delegates, representing 80 countries, included Kristoferstissand, the controversial "America" mini-series which began Sunday night on ABC.

Reagan urged to remove warships from Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — An American Moslem leader Monday urged President Reagan to withdraw U.S. warships from the coast of Lebanon and end military aid to the Middle East in an attempt to free Western hostages held in Lebanon. Mohammed Mehdi, the secretary-general of the New York-based National Council on Islamic Affairs who defied a State Department ban to travel to Lebanon, also said he would not pay ransom to win the release of the Western captives.

Senate panel to question CIA head nominee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Intelligence Committee will closely question Robert Gates, nominated to be CIA director, after the Tripoli Conference adviser and former director of Central Intelligence Agency "sins of omission or commission," a committee aide said Monday. The committee hearing for Gates, who is the President Reagan’s nomination of Gates, now the CIA’s deputy director, to succeed William Casey, who had broken cancer surgery Dec. 18 and resigned Feb. 2.

Contra leader resigns from directorate

MIAMI (UPI) — Contra leader Adolfo Calero resigned Monday from the three-man directorate that directs the Nicaraguan rebel war but said he would control the largest guerrilla army — setting the stage for more internal strife among the U.S.-backed rebels. At a news conference, the 35-year-old rebel leader said he was pressured to quit his post on UNO’s three-man directorate by the U.S. government or by other rebel leaders.

School roof collapses in India, 14 killed

CHANDIGARH, India (UPI) — The roof of a classroom in a primary-school collapsed Monday after about 12 hours of steady rain, killing two teachers and 12 pupils and seriously injuring 20 other students. The collapse occurred in the Punjab state capital of Chandigarh at the Tagore Model School in Nawansahar, 11 miles to the north of Chandigarh.

Soviet dissident released from N.Y. hospital

NEW YORK (UPI) — Freed Soviet dissident David Goldfarb left a New York hospital in triumph Monday, four months to the date of his arrival in America, and he declared his plan to resume his opposition to the Soviet Union is easing policies against dissidents. But Goldfarb said it is too soon to tell whether the Kremlin’s decision to free some political prisoners signals permanent change. He urged supporters to continue to call for freedom for Soviet Jews and political dissidents, saying public pressure might help sway the Kremlin.

Lawyers’ group rejects tobacco ad ban

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The American Bar Association refused Monday to join the nation’s doctors in calling for a ban on tobacco advertising. The House of Delegates, the ABA’s governing body, turned down the measure proposed by members of the New York state bar. It would have thrown the association’s weight behind the call for a tobacco ad ban. An American public advertising of cigarettes has been banned for 15 years.

Pope, bishop meet in Hunthausen controversy

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II met privately Monday with Auxiliary Bishop Donald Wuerl, whose appointment by the Vatican to assume some powers in the troubled Seattle archdiocese caused a furor among U.S. bishops. The pope received Wuerl a week after a Vatican announcement that a special commission would investigate the troubled Seattle archdiocese. The Vatican transferred many of Hunthausen’s powers as head of the archdiocese last fall to Wuerl, his auxiliary.

Pregnant woman, 26, dies after saving 3 from fire

CHICAGO (UPI) — A pregnant woman with a history of heart problems collapsed and died shortly after leading three family members safely out of a smoky fire in their South Side apartment, authorities said. Johnette Hodges, 26, returned to her second-floor apartment twice before collapsing outside the doorway of the three-story brick apartment building.

Board to vote on boosts in tuition, fees in March

By Carolyn Schmidt
Staff Writer

Proposals to raise tuition and student fees are expected to come to a vote at the Board of Trustees’ March 12 meeting in Edwardsville.

The tuition proposal follows an Illinois Board of Higher Education recommendation to raise tuition by 4 percent and would mean about a $1,132 increase for graduate and undergraduate students. The recommendations were made by the IBHE in January and will be voted on by General Assembly March 4.

University officials said refusal to follow IBHE recommendations would mean a loss of $3.1 million in next year’s operating budget and that the University needs both additional state tax funds and increased tuition.

Yearly tuition for full-time undergraduate and graduate students would go from $1,609.20 to $1,312.40, an increase of $43.20. Law students would pay $1,310.40 per year, a $50.40 increase; and medical students at Carbondale and Springfield would pay $8,487.40 for their three-semester year, a $777 increase. Since 1973, SIUC has experienced a 169.5 percent tuition increase and SIU-E has had a 139.7 percent increase, compared to a 182.7 percent overall increase at all other state universities, the board said.

The board also will vote on whether to approve a $15 activity fee increase to build a $5.8 million “Fitness Center” at the Recreation Center.

The sale of revenue bonds will provide $6.4 million for the project. The fee increase is needed to “pay all debt service and other costs associated with the bond issue,” said the board.

University officials said the 60,000-square-foot addition to the center would include a six-lane running track enclosing two basketball courts and two tennis courts, seven handball courts, a squash court, weight room, observation corridor and three multi-purpose rooms.

If approved, students would pay an additional $5 per semester beginning this summer. The fee would go up another $10 in next summer, Bruce Swindubne, vice president for student affairs, said. Student currently pay $52 per semester to fund the Recreation Center.

The Undergraduate Student Organization voted to support the proposed addition and fee increases Dec. 3, 1986.

The Graduate and Professional Student Council voted not to support the addition. Not all students use the Recreation Center, the facility is adequate and the fees are high enough, GPSC President Keli McCormick said at Thursday’s Board of Trustees’ art and Design committee meeting.

If approved, the targeted completion date for the project would be late 1989 or early 1990. The $4.6 million fee raise is expected for 1989 in order to cover operating costs, the board said.

A $1 activity fee increase to meet the cost of a $10,000 lease increase at the Rainbow’s End cafe also will be voted on by the board. The fee to support Rainbow’s End would go from $8.35 to $9.35 per semester.

Both USO and the GPSC support the $1 increase, although the GPSC supports the increase for one year and the USO supports the increase for unspecified time period, said USO President Phil Lyons. Both organizations would like an additional $2 since the fee was approved by the Lakeland School to a building on campus.

Minority group named RSO

The Undergraduate Student Organization student senate gave the registered student organization status Wednesday to the Minority Association for Excellence to build a “MAX,” Robin Roy, president and co-founder of MAX, said the association’s will focus on boosting minority student grade averages and lowering the minority student dropout rate.

The proposal received some opposition. According to MAX, organized in November 1986, it is a supplement to the University’s existing minority oriented organizations.

“Most minority organizations are social,” Roy said. “MAX is designed to add academic achievement and career preparation to those programs.”

Membership is open to all majors and through GPA qualifications, Roy said. Membership fees are $15 per semester or $25 for fall and spring semesters.

Grease fire closes McDonald’s

A small grease fire early Sunday closed the McDonald’s restaurant, 2102 W. Main, until Monday morning.

The fire, which started at about 5 a.m. Sunday while employees were preparing to open for breakfast, was confined to the restaurant’s grill rangehood.

James Short, McDonald’s owner, said the fire forced him to lock McDonald’s doors until 9 a.m. Monday.

Clifford Manis, assistant Carbondale fire chief, said that in addition to the rangehood fire, some food items and paper products received smoke damage.

Manis and George Browning, associate sanitarian for the Jackson County Health Department, were on the site Monday morning and allowed the restaurant to re-open.

McDonald’s was “extremely clean and very aware of the inherent danger,” Manis said.

Repairs included recharging the automatic rangehood extinguisher and replacing the flue pipe gasket seals that were damaged by heat.

‘Amerika’ differs little from America

AFTER TWO EPISODES of ABC’s mega-hit mini-series “Amerika,” most people are probably asking themselves what the hell is going on. We certainly are.

Set in a Soviet-controlled United States 10 years hence, “Amerika” is so superficial as to take the serenity. The series’ loaded political message is muted by the usual TV fare of sex, glamour and violence. In fact, the first episode leaves an ambivalent view of the Soviet occupiers, choosing instead to take several underscored shots at the United Nations, whose Darth Vader masked security forces oversee fied Amerika.

The only people who seem to be taking “Amerika” seriously are those on the far right of the political spectrum. On Monday’s “700 Club,” host Pat Robertson—the TV preacher and Republican presidential candidate—bemoaned the loss of American moral fiber and suggested that “Amerika” was an accurate portrayal of what may happen if there’s not a rebirth of Christian morality in the country.

“AMERIKA” HAS ITS roots in another ABC political tour de force: “The Day After,” which portrays the aftermath of a nuclear holocaust. Right-wing groups such as Accuracy in Media, upset with the anti-militarist message of “The Day After,” clamored for equal time to air their points of view.

Ben Stein, a columnist and former speech writer for Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford, also supposedly suggested in one of his columns that ABC consider airing a movie that “would be about a few days or weeks of life of several American families after the Soviet invasion has taken over America.” ABC paid Stein for a “quid-quid deal” to his idea and started piecing together a story line that became “Amerika.”

That was 1983, the height of President Reagan’s personality cult, a time when America was feeling good about itself and—for the most part—placing the qualms-fractured trust in a man who had been asked about outlawing Russia and beginning “bombing in five months.” Mikhail Gorbachev then, the Iran-Contra affair has marred the president’s credibility. Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev seems genuinely interested in striking some kind of arms deal with the United States, and in reforming the Soviet system.

Presumably, these developments prompted ABC to make many changes in the original script of “Amerika,” lest the wrong message get through to the viewing public about who the real villain is. But try as they might, the producers cannot disguise the fact that many of the problems faced by Americans in Red America are the same problems now plaguing red, white and blue America. The government is taking away farmers’ land. Thousands of homeless do walk the streets of our cities. Freedom of expression is being stifled by the complicity of “enemies lists” and by denying foreign authors with views different from those of the Reagan administration entrance to the United States.

EVEN MORE INSULTING than “Amerika”’s skewed view of who is to blame for America’s domestic problems is its portrayal of its foreign problems. The Nixon-Ford era is cast as one of the few women under Soviet rule. They’re still the treacherous, money-grubbing opportunists they’ve always been. When the Russkies need a delicious diet, they can always count on a woman. Yes, sexism seems to transcend political ideologies.

In “Amerika,” the anti-Americanism is “real America” as real meat and political freedom. The policalachotics being performed in the mini-series would make any John Birch招商引�er. We would hope viewers take reality into account when watching the remaining episodes of “Amerika.”

Letters

S. African couple misrepresented

The following letter of concern concerning the Jan. 12 article “S. African couple—West has faulty picture” is correct in clear. Mr. and Mrs. Makhudu are unaware of our concerned response to the article they refer to in “Letters” (DE, 2-12). We are not “spoken for or about” apartheid. Quite the reverse is true. Before coming to the United States, I was a teacher at a black high school in a black township near Cape Town, and have been a member of organizations actively directed toward abolishing apartheid, including The Women’s Movement for Peace and the Community Arts Project (PAC) in Observatory, Cape Town. We were deeply distressed at Mr. and Mrs. Makhudu’s misrepresented attacks on people ideologically committed to democratic government in South Africa, which apartheid policy denies.

“Platoon” just another Hollywood war movie

“Platoon” is the best film Hollywood has made on the Vietnam War, but that isn’t saying a great deal. Previous films, such as “Apocalypse Now” and “The Deer Hunter” lost the human truths of the conflict in their wide-screen sight and sound shows, and “Platoon” is only a marginal improvement.

True, it does present a more complex account of the (American) men who fought there—the diverse back-grounds and attitudes thrown together, and the never-ending hammer-dice are suggested, somehow the film never looks at the realities of the experience.

A steady succession of fireworks, explosions, bodies—all of which we know are staged—becomes another cinematic exercise that leaves our other sensibilities untouched.

We need to know motivations to care about characters—who they are, why they are there, what they hope and fear, and this is given only the briefest treatment in Stone’s film. Maybe the war lacked clear, consistent explanations, but the men had their reasons for being there, and these are quickly passed over for more marketing and gunfire.

“Platoon”’s characters never fully come to life, feeling individuals, remaining more like models of the kinds of soldiers who fought there. It is not coincidental that the Vietnamese enemy remain faceless marauders, like the anonymous Indians attacking countless Western wagon trains.

For all the noble intentions of its producer and its audience “Platoon” fails to really tell what was going on—about—in the words of the time, to bring it home. The best films of the war remain Stanley Kran’s “Hamburger Hill,” which was about—novel in about the war, in the words of the time, to bring it home. 'Math myths' workshop set

Some Myths About Mathematics will be the topic of a lecture by Shirley Hill at the Illinois Council of Teachers of Mathematics annual conference Feb. 21.

The conference will be held from 9 to 3 p.m. in Wham. Fees are $12 for the public and $6 for students.

Hill is chairwoman of the National Research Council Mathematical Sciences Education Board and a current education professor at the University of Missouri-Kansas City.

A new method of teaching addition, subtraction, division and multiplication basics, called "Touch Math," and sessions on problem solving and critical thinking will be offered.

Sponsors of the program are the Department of Mathematics, the Department of Curriculum, Instruction and Media, the Illinois Council of Teachers of Mathematics and the Southern Illinois Mathematics Council.

Advance registration is encouraged. For information and registration, contact Barbara Emri, Division of Continuing Education, 536-7531.

Harvard’s ‘foreign policy’ blasted by board candidate

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—One of six pro-divestment candidates running for Harvard’s Board of Overseers accused the school Monday of promoting “its own foreign policy” by not divesting from companies doing business in South Africa.

Jerome Grossman, a 1938 Harvard graduate, heads the six-candidate slate seeking entry to the elite board that approves faculty appointments and picks the university’s president.

“Harvard should just do the right thing and not have its own foreign policy,” Grossman said. “This is the great moral question of our time and I think Harvard should take the lead.”

The Harvard Corporation is just being stubborn about this,” Harvard has more than $350 million of its $4.1 billion endowment invested in companies doing business in the business-in-the-segregated country.

Six slots are open on the 30-member panel, and Grossman said nine present members are “sympathetic to total divestment. He speculated all six pro-divestment candidates would be elected when ballots are due in May.

Grossman dismissed the Harvard Corporation’s concerns that total divestment of its South African holdings would contribute to the collapse of the South African economy and cause further oppression of blacks.

“I am unimpressed with Harvard’s reason for not divesting, and I am unimpressed with their worry about black unemployment,” Grossman said. “That’s up to the blacks in South Africa to decide.”

Church urges more S. Africa divestment

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Presbyterian Church USA said Monday it will support only shareholder resolutions that call for U.S. firms doing business in South Africa to withdraw or “significantly alter the economic relationship there,” in its fight to end apartheid.

The action by the denomination’s General Assembly Council, which will cast proxy votes on more than $2.4 billion in holdings by its Board of Pensions and the Presbyterian Foundation in shareholder meetings this spring, adds to the escalating pressure being put on U.S. firms with South African investments.

Churches and other nonprofit organizations have been the leaders in the “corporate responsibility movement” since the Episcopal Church filed the first anti-apartheid shareholder resolution 16 years ago.

The movement seeks to use the stock owned by churches as a means of changing company policies deemed immoral.

Church investors have generally supported the Sullivan Principles, named after the Rev. Leon Sullivan of Philadelphia, which commit a firm to enhance the status of black workers employed in U.S.-controlled firms in South Africa.

Wellness Center

Most of us would like to believe that we're in charge of our own health—which we think for ourselves and make our own decisions. But for many of us, quite the opposite is true. Without being consciously aware of it, we are being shaped, manipulated, cowed and lied to dozens of times a day, often with disastrous consequences to our health and happiness. Television shows, movies, books and magazines seduce us with attractive, and convincing yet unrealistic and unhealthy images of who we ought to be.

The Result? A growing number of people who strive to imitate behaviors and attitudes that are quite fashionable but downright self-destructive.

During the past nine years working with SIU students at the Wellness Center, I have seen many casualties of our society's implicit portrayal of the "ideal" human condition. People who, like Coke commercials that depict life as if it were a never ending stream of ecstatic excitement, liquid advertisements that promise close friends, good times and lots of easy success; cigarette ads that appeal to our macho sense of outdoor adventure.

These are just a few examples of how we are sold unrealistic images, harmful in themselves, that also strongly encourage the consumption of products that are at best worthless and at worst deadly. A casual examination of our popular television shows and movies reveals a fantasy world predominantly inhabited with young, strong, thin, sexy people whose lives are filled with action, intrigue, wealth and pleasure.

The Harder We Try to look, act and feel like those beautiful TV people, the more depressed, anxious and unsure of ourselves we seem to become. Alcohol and drug abuse, high-risk thrill-seeking and a whole host of stress-related diseases are often a result of this chronic sense of dissatisfaction.

Psychologists' offices are filled with people who have burned themselves out trying to be something that they are not and hating themselves for who they are as they un-successfully try to live up to the mass media's image of the "good life."

Does this sound familiar to you?

If you're tired of being manipulated and want to create your own lifestyle based on free and conscious choice, you can do a number of things. You can begin to carefully scrutinize the messages you get from TV, movies, books, magazines and newspapers. Question everything. Nothing for granted, take nothing at face value.

It sometimes helps to find a guide to assist in this process of self-awareness and personal growth. Friends, teachers or counselors can all help you along the way. The Wellness Center, the Counseling Center and the Career Development Center are a few of the campus resources that are available to assist you in getting to know yourself better.

Memoirs tell of ironclads’ battle

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI) — Historians are digging into the archives to prepare for a four-day event to mark the 150th anniversary of the Civil War battle between the Monitor and the Merrimack — the first encounter of ironclad warships.

The celebration, which will include a symposium and culminate March 9 with the announcement of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration’s choice of a site for a museum to house artifacts from the Monitor, the Union ship that later sank in a gale. The Confederate vessel Merrimack was destroyed two months after the battle.

Among the major old items to be discussed in the celebration sponsored by the Portsmouth Civil War Roundtable has been a crew member’s personal portrayal of the battle, published in 1867.

Richard Curtis, who became a successful Norfolk businessman, was a gunner aboard the Merrimack. Curtis, who said he wanted to set the record straight, wrote his own account of the battle. While scholars generally believe the battle at the mouth of the James River on March 9, 1862, was a draw, Curtis insisted that the “Old Ironsides” as he called the Merrimack, won.

He said that many previous articles were “misleading and out of place, some of them written by men who were not there.”

‘Cycle mamas’ lose status as gang activities evolve

Oxford — Miss. (UPI) — While women’s rights have been increasing on many fronts, a University of Mississippi sociologist said Monday one segment of the female population is losing status — motorcycle mamas.

The women who ride with bikers aren’t as important as motorcycle gangs as they used to be, said sociologist Columbus B. Hopper.

Hopper, who has made motorcycles his specialty for 12 years, said “in the underworld generally, females become less important as groups become more complex and professional.” In the gangs of the 1940s and 50s, females were practically members, if not bona fide.

Since the earlier gangs weren’t involved in organized criminal activities — partying was the main purpose — the women knew everything about the gang’s business, Hopper said.

“Today, there is a need to limit the number of people who have knowledge of the gang’s economic endeavors, so women are excluded from knowing anything of importance,” Hopper said.

“More and more, they are limited to ritualized sex. They’re still prominent and important but are considered more property than partners.”

Hopper said “brothers before bitches” is a common biker term today, meaning loyalty to the “brothers” comes before loyalty to an “old lady.”

With considerable assistance from former motorcycle club president Johnny “Big John” Moore, now a University Food Service employee, Hopper has been able to study outlaw bikers close-up for years.

While an outlaw may love a woman, he still will not treat her with respect,” Hopper said. “Bikers have a genuine belief that the male is superior and that the woman should be regarded only as property.”

If a biker showed his “old lady” any respect, he would lose prestige with his brothers, Hopper said.

The sociologist said many women share the view of male superiority and talk of being free even while being dominated.

“You don’t agree with society so you find someone you like who agrees with you,” one woman member told Hopper.

“While their belief that men are meant to be dominant and that their role is to be available to women for sexual purposes, they are similar to females in fundamental religious groups who believe that wives are subject to their husbands,” Hopper said.

Austin, Texas.

After the second day of competition, the Salukis won 11 of 12 events and were enjoying a comfortable lead. But the SIU-C Tankers had set only one invitational record and Ingram said he was a little worried.

"Four meet records was our goal before the meet and after two days we only had one," Ingram said.

The coach's concern may have helped to rally the tired Tankers in their third day. The Sunday morning preliminary competition opened with sophomore Scott Roberts' record-breaking performance in the 200-yard breaststroke.

The freestyle and backstroke specialist from Tacoma, Wash., swam the distance in 1:51.47 to break his own meet record of 1:51.82 set in 1986. Roberts' time ranks eighth in the nation.

In addition to taking part in the setting of three Saluki invitational records, Roberts also won the 200-yard freestyle, 100-yard backstroke, 100-yard freestyle and teamed with Yokochi, Chris Gally and Kevin Nagy to win the 400-yard medley relay.

An outstanding Saluki swimmer, Yokochi, a breaststroke specialist from Portugal, reinforced his NCAA position by qualifying in the 200-yard breaststroke at the Saluki Invitational.

Yokochi's time, which is seventh in the U.S., will be accepted by the NCAA, which accepts times set in either yards or meters. Ingram said he is glad Yokochi was able to also qualify in yards.

"It's really good to see him do it in yards," said Ingram. "He'll have more confidence now."

Yokochi also won the 100-yard breaststroke and had a hand in SIUC's victory in the 400-yard medley relay.

Injured Saluki sprinter Angie Nunn, who DeNoon said "led from wire to wire" even though she is not 100 percent recovered from an injury suffered at Eastern two weeks ago, won the 500-meter run in 1:16.34. She was followed by teammate Dora Kyriacou with a time of 1:16.96. Saluki Lisa Judascak set a school record in the 1,000-yard run, taking third with a time of 2:43.15.

Chirsian Philippou took second in the long jump with a Saluki record leap of 18-10. The Salukis placed two-three in the triple jump with Philippou finishing at 37-3 and Brenda Beatty at 36-4. DeNoon said that Beatty, who was injured at Louisville two weeks ago, is not 100 percent either.

Other strong SIU-C performances saw Kathy Raske finish second and Felicia Vea! third in the 60-yard hurdles with respective times of 8.22 and 8.30 seconds. The Saluki mile relay team took first with a time of 3:54.49.

DeNoon said his team ran "really well in a very strong meet," and that the team's performance Saturday indicates the Salukis are "maybe looking at an indoor Gateway Conference championship." Feb. 27-28 in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Men tankers set five records, keep Saluki Invitational title

By M.J. Starshak

The Salukis were the victors in the Nicodemus Invitational Meets this weekend, setting five records in the process.

SIU's 19th-ranked men's swim team earned a 93.5-point lead over Bradley's 114.0 points after Saturday's competition, sailed smoothly from there on and glided to a 2,423.3-point finish place at this weekend's 19th Annual Saluki Invitational Meets.

When the water calmed, the Salukis came away with five invitational records and a NCAA Midwest zone qualifier.

Saluki coach Don Inger said his team's performance in the three-day contest indicates how the Salukis will do at the upcoming regional meet, the next chance for the NCAA's.

"I feel good. We know we've done well," said Ingram.

"Now it's a matter of resting, doing pace work and working on that." Ingram started his tankers with three最优 wins in the first day of the competition to take a substantial lead over last year's MV.C champion Western Kentucky.

Ingram's tankers won three of the four events in the first day of the competition to take a substantial lead over last year's MV.C champion Western Kentucky.

The Salukis diver Bob Cox won the three-meter diving titles, the No. 1 seed in the No. 1 seed and the No. 1 seed and the last-first event.

Drake, SIU and Indiana State are knotted in seventh place with a team standings and three league teams remaining.

The Redbirds left the charge for the No. 2 and 3 seeds and two of the three first-round tournament meets. The coaches are concerned for the No. 1 seed and a first-round meet.

So, the Salukis' fourth-ranked TC winning streak, the Hurricane stayed at the top of the standings.

The Redbirds and Shockers lead the charge for the No. 2 and 3 seeds and two of the three first-round tournament meets. The coaches are concerned for the No. 1 seed and a first-round meet.

Drake, SIU and Indiana State are knotted in seventh place with a team standings and three league teams remaining.

Cellar-dwelling Creighton must win all four games to finish with six conference wins. The Bluejays face Bradley Monday, followed by SIU-C, Drake and Illinois State.

Drake, with the best overall record of the seventh-place teams, closes out the season with road games at Wichita State and Bradley and a home game against Creighton.

After a non-conference bout with Western Kentucky Wednesday night, SIU travels to Creighton and Tulsa before closing out the season at home against Indiana State.

Indiana State plays at Tulsa and SIU, with a home contest with Wichita State sandwiched between the two road games.

Of the three teams attempting to break the tie and finish in fifth place, SIU-C has the scheduling advantage. While Drake and Indiana State both play two of three remaining games against teams in the Valley's upper half, the Salukis play two of three teams in the lower half of the league standings.

This year's MVC postseason tournament awards the No. 1 seed a first-round bye, while the No. 2 and 3 seeds host first-round games. With Bradley unable to participate in post-season play, the team finishing the season in fifth place will be moved up a notch to fourth.
