Hartigan pushes for drug strike force is passed. On March 6 the Illinois General Assembly will decide whether or not to accept the Governor's amendatory veto of Hartigan's bill creating a statewide drug grand jury, Hartigan said at a news con-ference Wednesday at the Jackson County Courthouse.

"I recognize that some legislators may have problems with the Governor's amendatory veto, " Hartigan said. "So what? Either we're serious about this or we're not. It's time to put up or shut up. There is no room for partisanship on this issue. This state needs the statewide drug grand jury to go after the profits of drug dealing."

In the past, the government could not seize someone's assets until they were convicted of drug dealing, and then it would be only those assets that were used during the drug deal, Hartigan said. If this bill is passed, the assets can be seized after an indictment and then everything has been maintained by the profits made from drug dealing can be seized, he said.

The assets could then be put back into the community and into the fight against drugs, Hartigan said.

Carbondale loses in first round of 'mall wars'

By Lisa Miller Staff Writer

Carbondale's tax increment financing lawsuit against the city of Marion was dismissed Wednesday in pre-trial hearings. Carbondale officials filed a lawsuit late last year mandating that Marion was improperly using TIF subsidies to finance the proposed Illinois Centre Mall.

City Manger Steve Hoffner said city officials will be reviewing the judge's decision to throw out the case before they drop the lawsuit altogether. "We'll be reviewing the legal-documents and consulting with the city council as well as other city officials before we make our final decision," Hoffner said. "There is a lot to go over before a decision can be reached." Hoffner said he did not know the specifics of the decision to dismiss the case, but he would have the information soon.

The lawsuit charged that Marion was using TIF subsidies to build the new mall on an area that was not blighted, or hard to develop.

As mandated by state law, TIF incentives may only be used for developments on land that is blight-ed and Carbondale's lawsuit contends that the Brceking Property, on which Marion proposes to build the mall, is prime development property near Interstate 57.

According to court reports, the area near Interstate 57 has experienced significant growth and devel-opment in the last 15 years. Marion Mayor Robert Butler said there was not doubt in his mind that the area complies with state guidelines.

"How long do you have to wait to determine it's not going to be developed without some kind of incentive?" Butler asked.

Sports Salukis' Maule to pursue pro career

By Eric Bugger Staff Write

Andre Agassi has beaten Saluki tennis player Mickey Maule twice already, but Maule might soon get a chance to seek revenge.

Maule met Agassi in the 14 and under national indoor doubles championship in 1983. Maule and his teammate took Agassi's team three sets before losing the title. Maule also lost to Agassi in the 16 and under national indoor doubles quarterfinals in 1985.

After graduating in May, Maule, a senior in public relations and No. 1 on the SIU-C tennis team, plans to turn professional and with a good sponsor and a little luck he could face Agassi again someday.

Maule will have to work his way through the ranks of the qualifying tournaments. If he can win at that level it's on to the "big time."

SIU-C tennis coach Dick LeFevre is optimistic about Maule's future in tennis.

"I think Mickey can only get bet-ter in the next few years," he said. "Once he graduates and turns pro he will be playing nothing but tennis. He won't have classes to go to, papers to write, exams to worry about, studying to do and all the other things students have to do. He'll just have tennis to worry about and he'll he able to concentraie solely on his game

Former Saluki coach lubelt talks about basketball teams

By Greg Scott Staff Writer

The Saluki men's and women's basketball teams have enjoyed successful seasons. But for the first time in 27 years, SIU-C is without the services of long-time assistant coach George Iubelt.

Iubelt, a popular 26-year assistant coach of Saluki men and women's basketball, retired after the 1988-89 season

For 18 years (1959-1977) Iubelt as an assistant for the Saluki men. He primarily was responsible for recruiting Saluki greats Walt Frazier, Mike Glenn and J.C. Meriweather. He also was the coaching sidekick of Jack Harman who guided the Salukis to an MIT cham assistant coach, the Salukis went 485-225. During his years as women's assistant coach the Saluki women went 153-52. Iubelt had a hand in a total of 638 Saluki victories

Salukis to play 'unknown' Bulldogs

By Kevin: Simpson Staff Writer

Tonight's Missouri Valley matchup between the Saiakis and the Drake Bulldogs promises to be a game that is high on emotions. Emotional for the Salukis because they are looking to avenge an earlier loss to Drake.

Emotional for the Bulldog play-ers because they have seemingly won a battle for respect against their former head coach, Tom Abatemarc, who was relieved of his duties earlier this week. The Bulldogs are looking to show their former head coach they can do better without him. Tipoff is 7:35 at the Arena.

Drake handed the Salukis a 79-71 loss in Des Moine Jan. 13. The Dawgs have won seven of their last eight games since that loss. SIU-C is 5-3 in the Valley and 19-5 over-all. Drake's record stands at 11-13 overall and 3-6 in the Valley

As a last resort, the Drake players boycotted two practice sessions and threatened not to show up for their scheduled game against Wichita State. The players stated through an attorney they would not play for Abatemarco but would play for his

The players charged that Abatemarco subjected them to "inhuman treatment of the players in the form of personal harassment

Since then assistant coach Eddie Fields has been named as replacement cosch while Abatemarco has been assigned to other duties within the athletic department until an investigation could be completed on the matter. Drake officials also are running an in-house investiga-tion checking into possible NCAA rule violations. Saluki head coach Rich Herrin referred to Drake as being an unknown quantity because they have a different mental outlook and possibly a different game plan. "We are very concerned with Drake coming in here," Herrin said. They're going to come in with intensity and show that they're cor-recting the situation and show that it's Abatemarco's fault.

it's Abatemarco's fault. "Our intensity level will be up also, We've got some motivating factors," Herrin said, referring to the Valley race and the earlier loss to the Bulldogs. Fields said his players and the assistant coaching staff have put the last week's happenings behind them. "I'm just the acting coach right now and I'm trying to prepare the kids as best I can," Fields said. "We're just trying to direct our attention on the future and moving forward. "We've had some great torward. "We've had some great practices this week and they seem to be really into it," Fields said. "They're looking forward to this ballgame. It would be a great win on the road."

With minimal preparation, Drake lost a close game, 68-62, to Wichita State Saturday.

"We're going to have our hands full," Fields said. "We're going to have the same game plan that we had before and hopefully we'll have some success." Drake's offense leads the league in field goal accuracy at 50 percent. Herrin wants to see his team put added pressure on the Bulldogs.

"Drake is the best shooting team in the conference," Herrin said, "They probably have better athletes than any team in the league. We'll come out and you'll see us very aggressive on the defensive end. That's where we have to pick it up a little bit and show a little more intensity."

Survey shows men more likely to have sex without condom

Cupids no longer shoot rows—they give out condoms. The Student Health Assessment arrow Center, along with the Wellness Center, kicked off National Condom Week Wednesday in the Student Center with games, surveys and free condoms.

"(The stand) is a means of mak-ing the individual aware of condom usage and the consequences of unsafe sexual practices," said Alan Ernst, graduate assistant at the Wellness Center.

Pamphlets on birth control, sexu-ally transmitted seases and preg-nancy were displayed, along with a condom/STD quiz and a condom attitude survey. In "The Wheel of Micfortunes" players approved condom/s ... In "The wine." AIDS-related questions to win balloons, posters or buttons.

"The response has been really good, but some seem embarrassed by the topic," Chris Labyk, coordi-nator of SHAC, said.

Julie Maier, intern at the relness Center, agreed.

Motorcycles require special protection

IN 1969, DONALD FRIES convinced the State of Illinois that its motorcycle helmet law was an infringement on his individual rights. And so ended Illinois' 17-month helmet law.

Never mind that the number of those killed on motorcycles more than doubled after the law was repealed. Individual rights shall not be trod on.

In comparison, Missouri citizens in favor of appealing Missouri's helmet law have not been as successful. Motorcyclists caught riding without a helmet there are charged with a misdemeanor and may be fined from $5 to $500. Outrage!

According to the Missouri Highway Patrol, 30.7 percent of those killed in motorcycle accidents in 1988 were wearing helmets. Of the total 68 killed in 1988, 47.4 percent were riding without helmets.

WAKE UP, ILLINOIS! From Jan. 1 to May 31, 1969, 16 motorcyclists died on your roads. That number jumped to 36 people during those same months one year later months after the motorcycle helmet law was repailed.

So far this year, two University students died in separate incidents from injuries sustained while driving motorcycles. The results of the first accident are waiting to be seen: the passenger, also a University student, has not yet fully recovered.

Causes of both accidents are pending investigations.

Opponents of the law most often cite individual choice as reason enough not to adopt a mandatory motorcycle helmet law. Vision obstruction and sound distortion follow.

But what about the rest of society? Aside from proponents of such a law, those neutral to motorcycles suffer when a motorcyclist takes a fall without a helmet and lands in a state home.

SOON AFTER ILLINOIS repealed its helmet law, a lights-on law was adopted. In short, motorcyclists must drive with their headlights on at all times.

Apparently, if motorcyclists can't effectively provide for their protection, other motorists should.

This is not an acceptable solution. Most motorists know they should drive defensively, but don't. Motorcyclists then, afforded much less protection by the very nature of their vehicle, must be especially vigilant of others.

A look at state policies concerning motorcyclists makes one thing clear: the issue is controversial and only halfway decided.

While legislators will not adopt a helmet law, state programs require them.

The Motorcycle Rider Safety Course mandates participants to wear protective clothing while learning the basic riding skills. The training program is conducted by the division of traffic safety under the Illinois Department of Transportation.

PROTECTIVE CLOTHING REQUIRED by this state-run program includes not only a helmet, but also gloves, a long sleeved shirt, long pants, sturdy boots that cover the ankles and eye protection. Evidently, helmets aren't the only sort of protection motorcyclists need.

Until motorcyclists are convinced that helmets are a necessary piece of equipment for safe riding, their lives will continue to be jeopardized. In turn, taxpayers will continue paying for medical care for those stubborn enough to ignore facts.

Maybe individual choice isn't so individual after all.

To even mention her name in New York is to conjure up the bad word that Barbara Bush once implied fit Geraldine Ferraro. It is something a man cannot even be. Ol' Leona lost her case, and that didn't help matters. New York hates a loser

When Trump "hired" his wife when trump infect alls write to oversee renovations at the Plaza Hotel, a la Leona, he joked that Ivana would be paid "one dollar plus all the dresses she can buy." Isn't that cute, rich humor? The little woman can play at puming a little woman can play at running a hotel and then shop till she drops for her salary. Everything's fine, so long as she doesn't take herself seriously and try to wander out of the realm of fine antiques and interior decorating. Wait, just a Trump minute, though. Maybe Donald is ducking the real issue here, hiding behind Ivana's vanity. Could there be, er, another woman? No, there's not another woman, Trump is quick to say. He's no more than friends with those gor-geous items you see him about town with socialite Catherine Oxenberg, model Marla Maples and ice skater Peggy Fleming. Every man collects such bosomy buddies, especially if he's a billion-aire. Maybe it's refreshing, after Ivana, to be around such simple women

What would a movie star, a mode! or a world champion figure skater have to be arrogant about, anyway?

Donald and Ivana have three kids, including a Donald Trump Jr. You just knew there would be a junior. And whatever happens, you can bet that trio will be taken care of. Pop is worth about $1.7 billion. You don't get a television game snow named after you for being poor.

And it's not as if he's cutting Ivana off without a penny, throwing her out on Park Avenue in her designer rags and Cartier bangles. Rich people take care of such nasty little nuances as divorce before the marriage.

The Trumps reportedly have a prenuptial agreement, A prenuptial agreement is a paper a lawyer draws to protect the party of the first part from the party of the sec-ond part should they discover the party's over.

Some might think this agreement is Ivana's trump card. It gives her a nice Trump house in Connecticut and about $25 million. But Ivana says she wants more, much more. At least $125 million, the Plaza Hotel and a Boeing 727 more, Which leads me to ask, just who in this family has mastered the art of the deal?

'Abstinence week' advocated as healthy, timely experience

Next week has been declared by the W-Ilness Center as "abstinence week," and I wish to express my public support for the intentions of such a week

So many of our young people have grown up with a false sense of sexuality, particularly the idea that one is unfulfilled without sexual activity. A society which publicizes that you aren't a real man or woman unless you experience sex-ual intercourse has set its values far too low.

We can see the moral consequences of indiscriminate sexual activity in the degeneration of our society in child abuse, violence against women, ALDS and lowering of ethical standards from business to the very legislative bodies of our country. It is inter connected. A life of sexual abstinence is a beautiful thing when freely adopt-ed. We can find it in many of the great figures of history. To "save oneself" for a marriage partner is a great expression of love for that partner.

Abstinence keeps one from est blishing false relationships, fre contracting disease and is one Gi is strongest statements of our committment to high ethical values. - The Very Rev. Lewis A. Payne, campus pastor, Payne, pastor, Canterbury Fellowship.

Rushing said the inspection team can make a "fairly accurate esti-mate" even with people moving around.

The Daily Egyptian staff mem-bers conducted patron counts in the same manner as the fire inspection team. Using eight staff members one to three at each bar - and dividing the bars into sections, an approximate court of patrons was taken at 11 p.m. Jan. 19 and Jan. 27. Allowances were made for the number of patrons entering and leaving the bar.

Frankie's manager Kenneth Akers said his bar is the most popular bar in town and is full all the time. He would not, however, disclose the average number of patrons in Frankie's for competitive reasons

But Akers said. "There is no way, child, that you could crowd that many in here. The most would be 200 if you pack them in.'

When a manager has been in the business long enough, Akers said, he can look over the crowd and judge the number of people within the legal capacity.

Frankie's is owned by A & W Enterprise, Inc. Rushing said the legal capacity for the bars is determined by the area of the building, the seating and number of exits. City building code requires that legal occupancy be determined by counting one occu-pant per area unit of building. A sign showing the capacity number must be in a conspicuous place as mandated by city code.

"It should be visible. Most places keep it under glass over the bar or in the lobby," Rushing said.

Frankie's legal capacity is 124, according to the Fire Inspection Bureau. 'How did you know that? You couldn't have seen it behind the bar," Akers told a Daily Egyptian staff member. Rushing said the obvious reason for requiring a cap to be set on capacity is safety. "A few years ago one of the bars, Perrier recalls 160 million bottles of mineral water to be changed every six weeks was

PARIS (UPI) — Perrier announced Wednesday it would recall 160 million bottles of its mineral water worldwide because the popular product was contaminated with benzene when workers failed

'Fourth of July,' 'Miss Daisy' battle for Best Picture Oscar HOLLYWOOD An Oscar battle between "Driving Miss Daisy" and "Born on the Fourth of shaped up Wednesday, as the July two late-1989 releases dominated nominations for the 62nd annual Academy Awards. Both movies were nominated for

The second-biggest grossing Im of the year, "Indiana Jones film of the year, "Indiana Jones and the Last Crusade," did only slightly better, with three nominations, in the low-profile categories of sound, sound effects editing and original score.

Competition over gambling discussed in Iowa

Illinois, Iowa to compete for gamblers on Mississippi River

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (UPI) -Most of Iowa's riverboat gambling developers Wednesday told the State Racing and Gaming Commission their entertainment packages will overcome Illinois' headstart into the floating casino business.

Five non-profit groups made presentations to the commission on their applications for gambling licenses. Four of the groups are on the Mississippi River while one is in Sioux City on the Missouri River. The panel will award licenses next month for operations that can start April 1, 1991.

Iowa passed its riverboat gambling law before Illinois but Illinois' law starts Jan. 1, while Iowa boats must wait until the following April. Robert Kehl, who plans to operate the 350-foot long Casino Belle out of Dubuque, said Illinois competitors will not be able to match the total food, entertainment and gambling production his boat will offer.

And John Connelly, owner of the Connelly Group, which operates seven excursion boats in three large cities, said the Illinois situation has not forced changes his plans for a riverboat operation in Davenport.

"No one is able to touch it," Kehl said about Dubuque's proposed attraction. "Illinois won't be able to compete with our complete package."

"I've not erased one dotted 'i' or one crossed 't'," Connelly, a Pittsburgh developer, told the commission. "We are marketing experts, we realized it was inevitable Illinois would pass gambling legislation. We haven't altered our plans one bit." But Doug Kratz, president of Steamboat Development Corp., which has applied for two licenses to operate boats in Bettendorf, Clinton and Muscatine and another set of stops in Fort Madison, Keokuk and Burlington, said Illinois competition is bound to hurt, especially in the Qaad Cities area.

He was vague about how many people the Bettendorf-Clinton-Mascaine boats would attract, saying the market would support 800,000 people a year, but he expects Illinois boats to cut into that total.

"It would be remiss to say we're not worried about the pie being cut up between too many people, but we know we are going to be able to fill our boats," Kratz said. Besides downplaying the Illinois

Besides downplaying the Illinois threat, the riverboat developers spent their presentations touting the advantages of their proposals.

Terry Harrmann, director of the Dubuque Racing Association, which is backing the riverboat proposal in that city, argued the gaming commission should award a license to Dubuque because of its success with a greyhound track.

Journalists demand Reagan tape

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twelve news organizations insisted Wednesday on access to Ronald Reagan's videotaped Iran-Contra testimony, charging that "secret testimony" by the former president would destroy public confidence in the judiciary.

U.S. District Judge Harold Greene made no immediate ruling on the renewed request by news organizations for access to Reagan's testimony Friday in a Los Angeles federal courtroom. Ábandoning a long legal fight, Abandoning a long legal fight, Reagan has agreed to respond to 154 questions and follow-up examination prior to the trial of John Poindexter, Reagan's former national security adviser accused of five criminal charges.

Reagan's videotaped testimony then would be played at Poindexter's trial, now scheduled for March 5 in Washington. Poindexter is the last of eight current Iran-Contra defendants in the Reagan administration's worst scandal.

"Nothing could be more destructive to public confidence in the judicial system than accret testimony by a former president in the criminal trial of one of his subordinates," the news organizations told Greene.

Reagan, the Justice Department and special Iran-Contra prosecutor Lawrence Walsh all oppose opening the videotaping session to the press and public. Poindexter has told the judge that Reagan's testimony should be given in open court.

Reagan is further insisting that the American public should never see the televised testimony. Even if it is played in court, Reagan argues, the tape should not be released for rebroadcast and the press should only be given a printed transcript

Pictures taken by Voyager 1 to be sent to Earth in spring

Data from NASA's Voyager 1 probe indicates the aging spacecraft successfully snapped 64 pictures showing most of the solar system's planets for a historic mosaic giving an alien's-eye view of Earth's home from 3.7 billion miles out.

Two television cameras aboard the Voyager 1 probe, launched 13 years ago this September, took the unprecedented pictures over a fourhour period starting at 8:12 p.m. EST Tuesday.

The images, however, were stored on magnetic tape for relay to Earth in March and scientists at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory were forced to rely on engineering data radioed from Voyager 1 for indirect evidence the photo sequence was successfully accomplished.

"Engineering data shows the proper commands were executed, the tape moved to the expected the tape moved to the expected position, the (photo) scan platform was in the proper position," said Dick Rudd, a Voyager project engi-neer. "It would appear the imaging sequence went well."

The pictures will be radioed back to Earth over an 11-day period starting March 16. It will take Voyager 1 30 minutes to transmit each photo to the home planet and the signals, traveling at 186,000 miles per second, will take more than 5 1/2 hours to complete the

The first pictures will be released to the public in late April. Only mighty Jupiter will show a clearly discernible disk, with Earth show-ing up only as a brilliant star-like point of light. Launched at 8:46 a.m. EDT on Sept. 5, 1977, the nuclear-powered Voyager 1 flew past Jupiter in March 1979, using the giant plan-et's gravity for a slingshot-like boost on to ringed Saturn in November 1980.

Since then, Voyager 1 has been cruising toward the edge of the solar system on an endless space odyssey.

Star Wars satellites to test feasibility of plan

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A Delta 2 rocket safely boosted two "Star Wars" satellites into orbit Wednesday in a $313 million experiment to show the feasi-bility of using space-based battle mirrors to direct laser beams at enemy missiles.

Low-power lasers identical to those used in Walt Disney World light shows will be fired at the satellites in coming months for research that one day could be used to build efficient, ground-based lasers capable of destroying enemy missiles in flight by bouncing energy beams off orbiting mirrors. "This is the most ambitious SDI experiment to date," said Air Force Col. Tom Meyer, director of the Strategic Defense Initiative's direct-ed energy missile defense program. "Both spacecraft are doing almost exactly what we expect them to do.

The 126-foot, $38 million Delta 2, the first rocket purchased com-mercially by the Air Force, flashed to life on time at 11:15 a.m. and quickly vaulted away from launch complex 17 at the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, leaving a churning cloud of exhaust in its wake as it shot through a partly cloudy sky. The picture-perfect launching came one year to the day after the first Delta 2 rocket drilled a Global Positioning System "Navstar" navigation satellite into orbit on Valentine's Day 1989. The goal of the flight Wednesday, the seventh success in a row for the Delta 2, was the launch of two sensor-studded sate! lites built for the Strategic Defense Initiative — "Star Wars" — mis-

Initiative — "Star Wars" — mis-sile defense research program. One, called LACE for Low-power Atmospheric Compensation Experiment, will be used as a target for lasers fired from the Air Force Maui Optical Station on Mount Haleakala in Hawaii to learn more about how to counteract the effects of atmospheric pollution and distor-tion, which can weaken laser beams up to 1,000 times.

The other satellite, called the Relay Mirror Experiment, or RME, will be used to reflect a maximum 10-watt laser beam from one ground station to another in a pro-ject that could lay the groundwork for future laser systems that would utilize orbital mirrors to direct energy beams to "kill" enemy missiles.

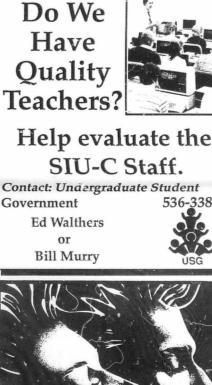

Birth Control options not a priority WASHINGTON (UPI) -

Americans have too few birth control options and a lack of research in the United States makes prospects bleak for future contraceptive development, a National Academy of Sciences report concluded Wednesday.

To help alleviate the prob-lem, the Food and Drug Administration should Administration should change the way it approves new birth control methods and Congress should pass laws to protect contraceptive makers from lawsuits, the report stat report states. The 153-page report, "Developing New Contraceptives: Obstacles and Opportunities," was pre-pared over two years by a 16-member expert committee

A lack of adequate birth control methods contributes to the estimated 1.2 million to 3 million unwanted pregnancies each year.

Laboratory Theater to show three one-act student plays

By Tracy Sargeant Staff Writer

Three student playwrights will present their original one-act plays at the Laboratory Theater in the Communications Building this weekend.

"Infatuations on the Seventh Floor," by Denise Dillard, graduate student in theater, is a comedy about a materialistic yuppie who becomes bored with the trappings of today's modern society and adopts a simpler way of living.

Dillard said she got the idea for the play while she was working at a news radio station. "A poll came across the AP wire machine that ranked the ambitions of U.S. college students," Dillard said. "The number one answer was attaining money and material wealth. I thought to myself, 'Boy, that's sad." Dillard said the play is based upon that poll.

'(The main character) is a young professional with an MBA from Harvard University," Dillard said. "He eventually trades his BMW for a horse

Dillard said the play is about change.

"It's never too late for a second chance," Dillard said. "In God's Name," by Danny Stark, graduate student in theater, is the contemporary adaptation of the Biblical story of David and Absalom.

Stark said the play closely parallels the Bible's story. The character of David is an evangelist who is the minister of a mountain retreat while running a food chain on the side.

David's son, Abe, as a young boy, is the only witnesses to a murder committed by his father.

Abe, who lives with his mother after his parents divorce, grows up to resent his father and eventually blackmails him with the information he knows about the murder.

The story comes to a dramatic and violent end as David and Abe confront one another. "Petticoat Battleground," by that have been passed down through generations of Morris' family.

family. Mortis said the story is set in West Virginia during the Civil War. George Washington Remley, a character named after her great grandfather, is torn between sup-porting the North or the South in the war

Remley chooses not to fight for either side because of his religious background. He also has neighbors and friends on each side, complicating his decision. Remley hides in the woods near his property whenever the army comes close to town. Remley's mother hangs a red peticoat on the clothes line when danger is close and a white peticoat when everything is clear.

"Petticoat Battleground," is taken from this petticoat scene.

Times & Tickets Dates:

One-Act Plays at the Communications Laboratory Theater tonight through Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m.

Tickets:

Prices:

Available at the Theater Box Office and also at the door of the Lab Theater before each show.

Tickets are $3.

There also is a dramatic twist to the play. Remley's son believes his father is a coward because he won't fight in the war. The boy had an uncle who was killed in the war and can't understand why his father is acting the way he is. "I have talked with several fami-lies in the Southern Illinois area, and I have found very similar stories," Morris said.

By Jeanne B. kler Entertainment Editor

For many people, Southern Illinois is the place to work and play, cat and sleep, to go to school and go home at the end of the day.

This all sounds rather ordinary. None of this may seem worthy of documentation.

But Photogenesis, a photographic organization within the cinema and photography department, would like non-professional photographers to consider recording Feb. 17 on film

"A Day In the Life of Southern Illinois" is the theme of the12th annual Photogenesis show. On this date, non-professional photographers from Illinois are invited to take pictures that will depict this day in the life of Southern Illinois.

All entries should be shot on this day somewhere in the following Southern Illinois counties: Jackson, Union, Perry, Johnson, Williamson, Franklin, Randolph and Saline.

John Durniak, an internationally known photojournalist, will judge the show.

Winners will be announced March 26 at the Student Center Ballroom D, immediately following Durniak's presentation of "A Day In the Life of America and the Soviet Union.

Work submitted to this show must be received before 4:30 p.m. March 5. Entries should be delivered to the Department of Cinema Photography and in the Communications Building.

Accepted prints will be displayed at Art Alley, on the second floor of the Student Center.

The Stage Company, Jackson County's community theater, will conduct audi-tions for "Steel Magnolias" at 7 p.m., Feb. 19 and 20 at the theater

Afghan president offers proposals to end rocket exchanges with rebels

KABUL, Afghanistan (UPI) ---President Najibullah offered a series of new proposals Wednesday to encourage a dialogue with the nation's rebel groups on the eve of the first anniversary of the Soviet troop withdrawal from Afghanistan.

The president's proposals, including a proposal to end some rocket attacks between the two sides, apparently came in response to a shift in the U.S. position on a ettlement in the Afghanistan war. Washington recently dropped its demand that Najibullah step aside before talks on an interim govern-

A: "Not a whole lot. I don't want to interfere in any way. If she wants to visit with me in regards to the team I'm happy to be available. But this is her ballclub --- it always has been. I don't want to offer any suggestions unless she asks for them. She's done a great job for the ballclub. They're a young team and have come a long way." Q: What are your overall impressions of this year's Saluki women? A: "I've been impressed with some of the players. I've been pleased that Amy Rakers has been able to maintain her stability and stay in games without fouling out rapidly. She does a great job on the offensive end of the floor. Q: Do you think Amy Rakers could be All-American?

A: "I expect her to be a much better ballplayer yet and be an All-American next year. I think they should push her for All-American this year because I'm sure that she's just as good as a lot of other people that will be nominated and named to All-American. But if I were there, I would b pushing all the time for her to be even better." Q: How much of a factor will experienced Gateway coaches like Cindy Scott and Julie Beck (Saluki women's assistant coach) have in the conference race?

A: "They can let the players know exactly what they need to do to win. They have been through it more than once and know what it takes to win those close ballgames

Q: The men and women are battling for conference titles. Have you ever seen SIU-C basketball on such A: All of the excitement that went along with winning the NIT championship is one of the greatest experiences I had. It was a great accomplishment going undefeated in the Gateway Conference with the women two years in a row." Q: Your feeling on being induct-ed into the Sports Hall of Fame?

Women will volley with Louisville today

By Sean Hannigan Staff Writer

The women's tennis team will be traveling through the back roads of Kentucky long enough to learn the words to "Dixie." The Salukis leave Thursday The Salukis leave Thursday morning to play the University of Louisville in the afternoon. Quicker than you can say "game, set, match" the Dawgs leave Louisville and board the bus for a two-day tournament ai Eastern Kentucky.

Coach Judy Auld hopes that by starting out the season with a lot of matches, followed by next weekend off, her team will be ready for its first conference match against South West Missouri State March, 2.

"We're gearing up for South West Missouri down the road," Auld said. The Salukis faced Louisville in the fall and defeated them 3-2. There were fewer matches because the teams were forced to play indoors due to the weather. "I think where we can beat them is in our depth. We have pretty strong one thru six singles and now that we have solid doubles we should do well," Auld said

The team then travels to Eastern Kentucky where it will face six teams in a flighted tournament. The teams include Eastern Kentucky, Ohio State, West Virginia, the University of Toledo and the University of Louisville.

The non-scored tournament pits players of equal ability from randomly seeded teams against each other.

"The number one from our team plays other number ones," Auld explained. "It's just an opportunity to get them to play as many matches as possible. It gives us an opportunity to see exactly what we need to work on. You go hard in practice, but you put everything into a match," Auld said.

he has realized how hard it is to recruit the "best" players. "We are very lucky to have Mickey here. As in any sport, the wery top athletes are hard to come by, so I was lucky to get him," LeFevre said.

Since coming to SIU-C Maule has had a lot of ups and downs. His freshman year he went 21-21 in singles and 18-14 in doubles.

It's hard to say."
