CIPS asks for 9.4-percent rate hike

By Kara Grover
General Assignment Writer

Central Illinois Public Service Co. is proposing a 9.4-percent increase in gas rates and a 3.3 percent increase in electric rates for March.

New rates would generate about $8 million from gas purchases and $18.7 million from electric purchases.

CIPS serves 65 counties in Illinois. The rate increases would affect 450,000 CIPS customers in Central and Southern Illinois.

The proposal is before the Illinois Commerce Commission, which will make its final decision in March. An

University would pay additional $205,000

By Kara Grover
General Assignment Writer

The University would have to pay an estimated $205,000 additional a year if the Illinois Commerce Commission approves a 9.4-percent gas rate and a 3.3-percent electric rate increase next month.

Central Illinois Public Service Co. is proposing the rate hike to combat rising operational costs.

Based on utility expenditures for fiscal year 1991, SIUC would have to appropriate an additional $173,000 a year for increases in electric rates and about $32,000 for the increase in gas rates, said Marian Brown, assistant to the director at the SIUC Physical Plant.

see RATES, page 7

Michael Shields, SIUC associate professor of economics, said the ICC has to draw a fine line between the needs of customers and a sense of fair rates.

"They are certainly aware that most people don't want higher utilities," Shields said. "On the other hand, the ICC has a notion of what fair rates are based on legal precedent and statutes."

George Sheppard, spokesman for CIPS in Southern Illinois, said the increase could be from zero to 9.4 percent, but he is confident an increase of some kind will take effect in March.

ICC hearing examiner in February recommended a 6.8-percent increase in gas rates and a 1.1 percent increase in electric rates.

Beth Bosch, ICC spokeswoman, said it is too early to give any estimates of how the increase will affect the residential customer because it has not been approved.

BOT passes proposal to find new chancellor

Student leaders express concern advisory panel will not represent them

By Brandi Tipps
Administration Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees passed a proposal by Acting Chancellor James Brown Thursday that allows a search for his replacement to begin but student leaders are concerned an advisory committee will not represent them.

SIU will proceed with its national search for a chancellor to replace Brown.

"I can dream we might have a selection by summer but six months probably is a realistic time period," said Brown, who came from retirement to take the position as chancellor in September when Lawrence K. Pettit resigned.

Brown said the University will advertise for a new chancellor as soon as he finishes writing the text for the advertisement.

The board approved Brown's proposal to reduce the number of committees of constituency leaders to interview chancellor candidates from 10 to five, a move student leaders say leaves them in the cold.

Instead of two faculty, two non-faculty employees from each campus, and one student from each campus, the committee will have one faculty, one non-faculty employee from each campus and one student to represent students on both campuses.

William Hall, student trustee, moved for an amendment to allow another student member on the Advisory Committee so each campus would have one student representative.

Instead, the board passed Brown's original recommendation.

"I would like to have a search which is fast, which is economical and which meets the criteria the candidates are going to want us to be able to guarantee them, that is confidential," Brown said.

"I would hope the argument of representation by numbers would not be a

Stone House sees life Alumni Services to move into residence portion

By Brandi Tipps
Administration Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees voted Thursday to allow the SIUC Alumni Services office to move into the executive residence portion of the Stone House, which will be used as a multi-purpose facility on campus.

The University will continue to use other parts of the building as an entertainment and reception center for guests of the University.

The cost of the project to remodel the three-car garage to make suitable office space and other minor adjustments will be about $34,000.

SIUC President John C. Guyon and Acting Chancellor James Brown developed a list of seven options earlier this year for use of Stone House.

The list included:

■ moving the SIU Foundation into the bottom floor of Stone House while retaining the upstairs guestrooms at a cost of about $110,000,

■ creating a University Museum at a cost of about $140,000

■ making the house into a staff club at a cost of $66,000,

■ moving an academic unit into the house, which would require adding computer links to the mainframe at a cost of about $156,000,

■ combining the foundation and the alumni office in Stone House, which also

Cagers enter final run for conference races

Women at home for 3 of 6 games at end of season

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

The SIUC women's basketball team will start on its final trek to the Gateway Conference Tournament with the last seven games of the season.

SIUC is 9-2 in the conference, a close pace behind Southwest Missouri State, 10-1, which is ranked 12th nationally by the USA Today poll.

The Salukis will play five of their last seven games at home, starting Saturday against Eastern Illinois, which is 2-9 in the conference and 6-14 overall.

The Salukis beat the Panthers Jan. 18 80-63. After Wednesday's win against non-conference rival Murray State, coach Cindy Scott said she hopes her team has built back its confidence to play well and feel good about itself.

"The game against Eastern was a tight game until the last 10 minutes, and I expect them to tough competition," Scott said. "They've beaten us in two of the last four games we've played at SIUC. (Tracy) Roller is a major concern, and so is Carolyn Hagerty. They have balanced scoring."

Roller is the Panthers' leading scorer, averaging 14.7 points a game. She is No. 6 in the Gateway. Hagerty, who was the No. 1 Gateway 3-point shooter until SIUC senior guard Karrie Redeker passed her up last week, now ranks No. 2 making 44.6 percent of her treys. Redeker is shooting 47.5 percent from the perimeter and is ranked 20th nationally.

Roller also is shooting 85.9 percent and Hagerty is shooting 85.2 percent from the line, making them the Gateway's No. 2 and No. 3 free throw shooters. EIU is No.

Dawgs to travel to Tulsa for latest Valley conflict

By Cyndi Oberle
Sports Writer

The race for the No. 1 spot in the Missouri Valley Conference is neck-and-neck, as five teams are within one game of the league leadership.

The Salukis secured first place in the conference Tuesday night after squeaking past Illinois State 65-64, but they will have to defeat Tulsa Saturday to keep the lead.

Tulsa defeated Wichita State Feb. 10 to claim the No. 2 spot in the MVC. The Golden Hurricanes post a 10-9 record overall and have a third-place 8-3 mark in the Valley. After defeating the Redbirds, the Dawgs are 9-3 in conference play and 16-5 overall.

Illinois State, 8-4, fell from first to fourth in the MVC while Indiana State, 9-4, defeated Drake to slide into third place and just one-half game out.

Saluki coach Rich Herrin said Tulsa, which averages a league-leading 70.4 points a game in conference, has an up-tempo style of play similar to the Salukis, who average a second-place 68.8 points a game in conference.

"Their style of play falls into what we do as a team," he said. "Tulsa is a run and shoot basketball team, and it will be a game with lots of points on the board."

Tulsa has a lot of depth, and it has many good aggressive players, Herrin said.

"They play a lot of people who keep the tempo of the game up," he said. "It will be a fun and exciting game."

Tulsa coach Tubby Smith said he has no plans to slow the game down.

"It will be a game that is up and down the court," he said, "and I know Herrin will not do anything to slow it down either."

SIUC has had its ups and downs, but has lived up to the conference's expectations, Smith said.

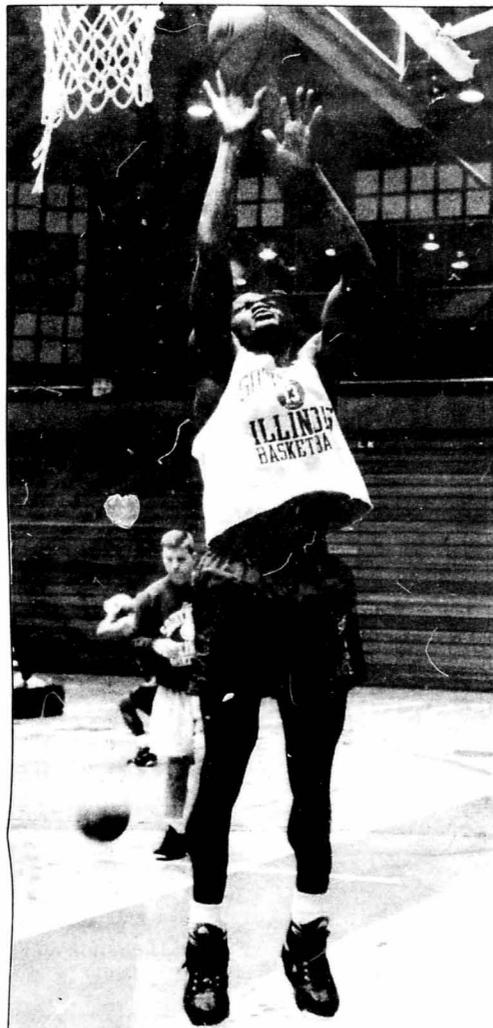

"I am scared," he said. "That is the only way to describe it. We are happy and fortunate to be where we are, but it will be a tough game."

Smith said his team has not been shooting well lately and will have to increase its level of play to win.

"The teams in the league have been taking our threes away from us," Smith said. "Because of this we have changed our game around. We have been juggling our players around and playing a lot of people, but my main concern will be trying to compete with SIUC's size."

Smith said the Salukis are a great rebounding team with a strong front line that also plays well on defense.

Plab 'struggles' despite qualifying leap

By James T. Rendulich
Sports Writer

Despite qualifying for the NCAA Nationals in the first meet of the year and holding the best jump in the country at 7-6, junior high jumper Darrin Plab said he is himself struggling.

Since his jump of 7-6 in the first meet of the year, which qualified him for the NCAA Nationals, Plab said he has yet to jump well.

"The problems I'm having are all in my head," Plab said. "I'm trying too hard, my muscles are not responding the same way and I'm just not getting off the ground very well. It's just something that I have to work out."

Men's head coach Bill Cornell said he agrees with Plab that his biggest problem is in his head.

"Darrin has a huge amount of talent but is very impatient and puts too much pressure on himself," Cornell said. "He needs to learn to relax and to enjoy competing."

Coming off a prep career at Mascoutah High School that saw Plab post a high jump of 7-2 1/2, Plab originally chose to attend the University of Illinois. But after attending Illinois for 30 days, Plab left Champaign.

Men's team to defend No. 14 rank

By James T. Rendulich
Sports Writer

The SIUC men's indoor track team will hope to improve its No. 14 ranking in the NCAA Saturday as it plays host at the SIUC quadrangular.

In the previous NCAA ranking, SIUC also held the No. 14 spot but head coach Bill Cornell said he is happy to be where he is.

"Like rankings in previous years, after the first ranking there is a lot of jumbling," Cornell said. "I'm just happy we stayed where we were."

In the weekend meet, SIUC will compete against Indiana State, Eastern Illinois and the University of Illinois.

Illinois is nationally ranked at the No. 17 spot in the NCAA.

With the exception of Eastern, Cornell said all of the teams have a wealth of talent and will be tough.

"I would be surprised if more than 4 or 5 points separate us, Indiana and Illinois," he said. "It will be a very tight race."

Cornell said he wouldn't mind competing against any of the teams one on one but said together they will take a lot of points from the Salukis.

"Indiana is very strong in all of the throwing events and Illinois has outstanding sprinters," Cornell said. "We are going to have to pick up the slack in the middle distance events."

The meet will begin at 1 p.m. at the Recreation Center.

"For a number of reasons I just didn't like the atmosphere and I just felt out of place there," Plab said. "This area is much more like my home town and I feel more comfortable here. I like it here much more."

Under Cornell, Plab said has gained a great deal of respect for Cornell and feels he can excel.

"He is always trying to do things that are trying to do things in the best interest of his athletes and lets be the themselves," Plab said. "For that I think his players respect him and always give 110 percent."

Last weekend, Plab participated in the Melrose Games at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Men's head track coach Bill Cornell said the meet was one of the most prestigious meets in the country and, if nothing else, would be a great experience for Plab. But Plab said he does not see meets like the Melrose the same way.

"Even though the meet had the first and third best high jumpers in the world, all of the jumpers are just normal people and get along," Plab said.

The lack of fan support track and specifically the high jump-receives at SIUC and in the United States is disappointing, he said.

"A good example is last weekend in New York. We had two of top three high jumpers in the world and nobody could care less," Plab said. "It's discouraging when you go out and do your very best and nobody cares but your parents."

Plab said he realizes track may not be the most exciting sport in

Tennis team to open '92 with 7-team tournament

By Norma Wilke

The young players on the SIUC tennis team will step in to lead the Salukis in the spring season.

The Salukis, who received their highest Volvo Tennis/Midwest Regional Ranking ever at No. 14 in December, will begin play today at the Eastern Kentucky Invitational in Richmond, Ky. SIUC finished the fall season 7-0 in dual action.

The seven-team tournament includes Toledo, West Virginia, Louisville, Eastern Michigan and Tennessee Tech. Coach Judy Auld said the non-scored, single elimination tournament will give the players a chance to perform individually.

SOVIET MILITARY FACES UNCERTAIN FUTURE — The common military future of the young Commonwealth of Independent States hung in limbo as the leaders of the republics gathered for a one-day summit Friday to hash out their differences and bring some security to the former Soviet military machine. "I think the problems will not be solved easily," Russian President Boris Yeltsin said on his way to the C.I.S. summit in Minsk for discussions of several pressing issues.

SERBIAN LEADER WARNS OF ATTACKS — The embattled leader of Croatia's main rebel Serbian enclave Thursday issued a thinly veiled threat of armed attacks against a U.N. peacekeeping force planned for the war-torn republic if the U.N. Security Council approves its deployment without his agreement. Milan Babic, the self-styled president of the so-called Republic of Serbian Krajina, released the text of the letter that was addressed to U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Ghali.

DETAINED YACHTSMEN FLEE MOZAMBIQUE — Three South African yachtsmen, detained in Mozambique for alleged illegal salvage operations, have escaped in their boat under cover of darkness. The Star newspaper reported Thursday. Crewman Michael Bailey told the newspaper by radio how he and his friends decided to make a break for it Wednesday after they heard Mozambican authorities planned to confiscate the boat.

ARGENTINE LEADER TO BOOST EUROPEAN TIES — Argentine President Carlos Menem Thursday began a two-day stop in Brussels aimed at renewing and boosting economic and diplomatic ties with the European Community members. Menem, who called Wednesday for the EC to relent on agricultural subsidies in world trade talks, planned to meet EC President Jacques Delors on Friday and proposed the EC help relocate East European emigrants in Argentina.

REPORTER REFUSES TO REVEAL SOURCE — Newsday reporter Timothy Phelps refused Thursday to tell special Senate investigators the source of information for his October 1991 story revealing Anita Hills' sexual harassment charges against Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas. In an effort to track down leaks about the Hill allegations, special Senate counsel Peter Flemming subpoenaed Phelps, reporter Nina Totenberg and Anthony Marro, an editor for Newsday.

WHITE HOUSE BACKS YELTSIN'S LEADERSHIP — The White House praised embattled Russian President Boris Yeltsin Thursday in an apparent attempt to discourage a possible incursion by the disgruntled military leadership. While the comments did not suggest immediate action may be planned to oust Yeltsin, they clearly reflected the administration's growing concern over the possibility of authoritarian moves to take control of the government.

SIMON PRAISES DIXON IN COMMERCIAL — Sen. Alan Dixon previewed a new television commercial Thursday featuring Illinois' other Senator, Paul Simon, plugging Dixon's re-election bid. Dixon, who has never lost a race in 42 years of public service, has two challengers in the March 17 Democratic primary. Simon, in the Dixon advertisement unveiled Thursday, said Dixon is "one of the most honest, principled persons I know."

JUDGE ALLOWS BROWN PLACE ON BALLOT — A Cook County judge Thursday refused to issue a temporary restraining order to remove former California Gov. Jerry Brown from the Democratic presidential primary ballot in Illinois. Judge Joseph Schneider rejected a request to issue a temporary restraining order, saying the claim brought on behalf of a citizen was not substantiated, a spokesman for the judge said.

Retired police officer recalls past; says overcoming fear key to job

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

Arthur Wright says the real definition of courage is being afraid of something but doing it anyway.

He should know—Wright was a police officer.

"I always said if I ever backed down and failed to do my job I would quit," he said. "Officers must deal with fear all the time, and if you can't it is time to look for another profession."

Wright worked for the Carbondale Police Department for 21 years before retiring Jan. 3.

Wright, a Chicago native, said growing up in the inner city helped him to acquire "street smarts."

"It certainly helped me because I had the background," he said. "You can't con a con."

After finishing high school, Wright joined the Army. While in the service Wright decided he wanted to be a police officer.

When he was 23, Wright went to work with the police department in the Chicago suburb of Wheaton. He worked there for five years before coming to Carbondale in 1970.

The hardest part of his job was dealing with domestic disputes, Wright said.

"More police are hurt during domestics than any other situation," he said. "I don't know any officer who likes to go to a domestic."

Wright said domestic disputes were too unpredictable because he never knew the way people would react.

"You try to be a marriage counselor and a police officer at the

"You try to be a marriage counselor and a police officer at the same time and it usually is very hard to deal with."

same time and it usually is very hard to deal with," he said.

Wright said he never had a major injury as a result of dealing with a domestic call, but he did have bumps and bruises.

One time he responded to a call by himself.

"A man was having his car repossessed and got really violent. A crowd formed and I ended up jumping on his back to prevent him from attacking the people who were trying to take his car," he said.

"I needed backup, so I turned on my microphone so the dispatcher could hear all of the screaming going on," he said.

Police officers must be prepared both physically and mentally to handle surprise situations, Wright said.

"You have to react to prevent a situation from getting out of hand," he said. "You don't think about what could happen to you—you just do it. If you don't, someone could get hurt."

Wright said he will never forget Nov. 11, 1970—the day he escaped uninjured from a three-hour shootout with a gang called the Black Panther Party.

A few officers and gang members were wounded, but luckily no one was killed, Wright said.

"Thousands of rounds of bullets were shot that day," he said. "It scared me so bad I was ready to go back to Chicago."

Neal Jacobsen, executive assistant with the Carbondale Police department, said Wright was committed to provide service to the community.

"He shared his knowledge to help establish programs and help the citizens in any way he could," he said. "He was easy to talk to and enjoyed working with the public."

City Manager Steve Hoffner said Wright gave a lot of his personal time to the department and the city.

"He was very interested in crime prevention and did an excellent job with our neighborhood watch program," Hoffner said.

Before being placed in his current position of community relations and crime prevention officer, Wright worked on the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group for undercover narcotics.

The group worked with the federal authorities and state police to arrest drug dealers. It would buy drugs from dealers, formulate a plan of arrest then catch the dealers by surprise with a bust.

Tobacco vs. health smells like hypocrisy

BALANCING INTERESTS AGAINST each other when trying to come up with coherent domestic policy is the federal government's responsibility. Home-front plans have never been a strong suit of the Bush administration, but when one policy contradicts another, someone at the top needs to take note.

A case in point is the recent decision to subsidize Kentucky tobacco farmers with $3.5 million in federal funds. The package is a boost to farmers in that financially bedridden state, where tobacco is a major cash crop.

BUT THE ACT OF SUBSIDIZING TOBACCO production stands in stark contrast to the government's current efforts to arrive at a national health-care plan.

HEALTH CARE STANDS POISED to be one of the 1992 presidential campaign's most critical issues. Sky-high medical costs and rising insurance premiums have voters and politicians crying out for reforms. About $700 billion was spent nationally on health services, and some 35 million Americans are without health insurance.

SO IT COMES AS NO SURPRISE that the administration has begun its own round of public-relations exercises to promote its ideas on health care. President Bush wants cutbacks in Medicare and Medicaid to pay for his package of tax breaks and insurance vouchers, which he says would aid as many as 95 million citizens.

BUT TO FINANCIALLY ENDORSE TOBACCO farming while trying to keep the nation affordably healthy smells like a double standard.

SMOKING IS KNOWN FAR AND WIDE as a major cause of heart disease, respiratory ailments, cancer, fetal injury and other ailments. How many other products have such a drastic impact on personal health that they are required by law to trumpet their ill effects in their packaging?

No doubt the Kentucky tobacco farmers are grateful. Tobacco is a high-maintenance crop which rapidly depletes soil nutrients, and federal subsidizing would help pay for the cost of land management and soil preservation. Kentucky's economy needs the tobacco industry.

BUT BY PAYING FOR TOBACCO PRODUCTION, the Bush administration is helping to feed the consumptive health-care machine that has evolved into a monster over the last decade. That's 200,000 patients dying annually in hospital wards who would not end up there but for the tobacco industry.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT is a bureaucracy of immense proportions, and any given left hand is not likely to know what the thousands of right hands are doing. But on an issue as vital as health care, the administration should make an effort to avoid such hypocrisy.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 350 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potentially libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Community colleges don't look up to SIU

I would like to respond to H. Arnold Barton's statements in the Jan. 21 article in the DE titled "Council: GE courses too easy." Dr. Barton claims that SIUC offers undergraduate students "nothing more than" a community college education. I was a teaching assistant in three SIUC departments during my Master's and doctoral studies, and am now an instructor at John A. Logan College.

The clear implication in Dr. Barton's comments was that a community college education is somehow inferior to that obtained at a four-year institution. This is not only insulting, but objectively untrue. Study after study indicates that the critical factors in learning are class size and experienced teachers.

In the vast majority of courses offered at both schools, JALC classes are smaller. Teachers know the students' names, speak with them after class, in the cafeteria, or in the hallway, and are genuinely concerned about them. How often is this the case with GE classes at SIUC?

Another factor consistently linked with classroom achievement is experienced teachers. The faculty at John A. Logan, full-time and part-time, have academic credentials equal to or better than their SIUC counterparts. SIUC departments such as English, Speech Communication, and Mathematics rely heavily on teaching assistants to handle the bulk of their undergraduate courses. These "teachers" have just completed their Bachelor's degrees, have no experience in the classroom, and are offered classes on "how to teach" while they are teaching. As a rule, teachers hired at John A. Logan (full or part-time) have Master's degrees in their field and/or five years' teaching experience.

As to Dr. Barton's claim that SIUC should stop being just a "super community college"—in many regards, SIUC is considerably less than a super community college. Those of you disillusioned with SIUC, keep right on transferring to JALC. We're happy to teach you.—Kathleen Carl, instructor, John A. Logan College.

Job requirements pack parking

I would like to respond to Mr. Schuyler's letter in the Feb. 10 DE.

As an employer, the University is obliged, as are all employers, to provide parking for its employees. Since staff, excluding maintenance personnel, are required to work during the "core hours" of 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and there are 4,169 blue stickers and only 1,866 blue parking slots, that means there are either 2,303 night employees or a lot of staff having to park in red lots.

However, Mr. Schuyler is quite right about the fiscal problems of the University, and given the staff and program cutbacks which have and are taking place, parking is of minimal concern, or should be.

Clarence Dougherty, vice president for Campus Services, would have $25,000 spent to give a proposal on a parking garage to be built on the east side of the stadium at an indeterminate cost as well as use parking funds to conduct a feasibility study. At a time when the University needs a science building, a library annex and restoration or programs, one may inquire as to who needs to sharpen their priorities pencil?—Michael J. Laudone, LTA I, Morris Library.

All SIUC students, not just athletes, need learning push

I feel the current Athletic Department policy of forcing athletes with a semester GPA below 2.26 to attend study table is fabulous. The athletes owe the University for being allowed to compete under the SIUC banner, and should be thankful; the department is prodding them to better fulfill their potential as students and athletes.

Of course, could not even good students benefit from being herded to study tables? Athletes are paid to maximize their potential in representing this University both on the field and in the classroom. They should earn their pay; to do less is to cheat the University.

Well, now that I think about it, any student with financial aid owes the same. Let's make them come too. Heck, move study table to the Arena.

Then again, SIUC is a state-supported institution. An education here is cheaper because the state foots some of the bill. Gee, I guess every student owes the state their best academic performance. Everyone should be made to attend study table. We can fill the Arena and McAndrew Stadium.

Oops. I forgot the faculty. If athletes owe extra time above and beyond their practice and participation, faculty owe more than their instruction or research. Let's require them to come to study table.

The school's administration should be made to come to enhance their administering. They do owe the state their full administrative potential. We can all become better people together.

Undoubtedly, there will be those who will find this broad, sweeping attempt at social engineering unacceptable. Tell that to an athlete on his or her way to study table.—Mark Stuart, senior, SIU track team member.

Black history completes true American heritage

By Jackie Spinner
Special Assignment Writer

Edgar Jackson was born black. And he will die a Vietnam veteran, a Chicago preacher and a human rights activist.

Jackson is living U.S. history, a history he says does not fall along color lines.

“I told my mother when I was 6 years old,” Jackson said, “I am not a Negro and not a nigger.”

Yet in the 200 years since the U.S. founding fathers shed the chains that bound them to economic and political oppression, history has ignored the contributions of citizens like Jackson—citizens who were black.

African Pedro Alonso Nino was among the first explorers to arrive with Columbus in 1492, but history hardly whispers a word of his presence.

Peter Salem and Salem Poor fought alongside colonial white men in the Battle of Bunker Hill in 1775, but their faces are absent in depictions of the now famous battle.

Oliver Cromwell and Prince Whipple crossed the Delaware River with George Washington in 1776, but they never have been part of the mainstream history lessons.

“We have lost a major part of our heritage in America,” said Jackson, the executive director of the Martin Luther King Jr. Coalition in Chicago.

African Americans have fought in every war, every bloody conflict in which the United States has been involved.

They helped build the country’s economy as the largest labor force.

And though Jackson says it is impossible to separate black history from U.S. history, it has been done.

February marks a month-long national celebration of black history and the contributions of African Americans to U.S. history.

Black History Month is the extended creation of Carter G. Woodson and the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History. Woodson introduced Black History Week in 1926.

Antonio Washington, president of the SIUC Black Affairs Council, said black history does not begin in 1616 with the introduction of slavery.

“You don’t read about us in the history books,” he said. “It’s like we were nothing before slavery. If you go back further, you will see the contributions that came along the way.”

But Shyrlena Bogard, a sophomore SIUC student, said even African-American students hear only bits and pieces of their own heritage.

“You want to hear the whole story,” she said. “But a part of history is not there that should be there.”

Bogard, a biological science major from Chicago, spent two years at a mostly white high school in her native Tennessee and two years at the mostly black North Chicago High School.

Neither high school taught Bogard any lesson in black history. “What I’ve learned, I learned in college and on TV shows,” Bogard said.

“The problem of the 20th Century is the problem of the color line.”

Jerry Lacey, acting director of the SIUC Black American Studies program, said promoting black history begins early in the classroom with teachers who have knowledge of the contributions of African Americans.

The absence of black history in the education curriculum is a result, in part, of ignorance, he said.

“There was a deliberate attempt in the past to let this ignorance stay there,” Lacey said.

African-American students then learn very little of their own heritage in public schools.

“We all go through the same education primarily, but a black student doesn’t know any more about his or her heritage than a white student,” Lacey said.

SIUC student Jennifer Gillespie, a senior in elementary education from Sparta, said student teachers are not taught enough about how to teach black history. “We don’t know anything about it,” she said.

Gillespie said both teachers and students will come up short in the classroom.

“If I get in a school with black children and children of different cultures,” she said “I don’t think I’m equipped to answer their questions.”

Syd Finley, executive director of the Chicago National Association for the Advancement of Colored People chapter, said as a result of the education system, many young African Americans have no idea who Martin Luther King Jr. was.

“How can they know where they are going,” he said, “if they don’t know from where they came.”

Robert Chrisman, founder of the Black Scholar, said part of recognizing black history is preserving and developing black cultural institutions and seeking full inclusion in society.

Black history has to be part of U.S. history, Chrisman said.

“If you are so separatist you disregard integration, you’ve weakened your struggle into mainstream society,” he said.

Hiram Revels, the first black senator, argued as early as 1870 that African Americans must work toward incorporation, a point in which black history would be recognized not as a history of its own but as a history of American people.

“I maintain that the past record of my race is a true index of the feelings which today animate them,” he said in his first speech to the Senate. “They aim not to elevate themselves by sacrificing one single interest of their white fellow citizens.”

A history that tells of the contributions of all U.S. citizens is “beautiful,” Lacey said.

“We have some blemishes in our history, but true American history is beautiful,” he said. “Slavery is nothing to be proud of, but the fact is that it was here. Slave labor developed this country—recognition of this itself would be monumental.”

In the words of former President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1965, the effort to incorporate black history into U.S. history must be one that does not place people into categories based on the color of their skin.

“It’s not just Negroes, but really it’s all of us who must overcome the crippling legacy of bigotry and injustice.

“And we shall overcome.”

“[W]hen these disinherited children of God sat down at lunch counters they were in reality standing up for what is best in the American dream and for the most sacred values...”

—Martin Luther King Jr.

“If a man is without education, he is ... a giant in body, but a pygmy in intellect... Education, on the other hand, means emancipation...light and liberty.”

Illinois considers dropping Brown from election ballot

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former California Gov. Jerry Brown should be knocked off the Democratic presidential primary ballot in Illinois because the time he spent in Japan and India means he no longer meets the constitutional residency requirements, an attorney said Wednesday.

The challenge filed Tuesday in Cook County Circuit Court was brought on behalf of Chicagoan Andrew Scholberg, who is "concerned about having his vote diluted by someone who cannot possibly qualify," attorney Larry Joyce said.

Joyce cited the section of the U.S. Constitution that requires presidents to have lived in the United States for 14 years.

"Brown was living in a Zen Buddhist monastery in Japan and with Mother Theresa in Calcutta, India, over the past few years and will not be able to qualify for president," Joyce said.

Joyce said Brown spent six months to a year in each of the countries.

Working in the group was a great experience and a challenge, Wright said.

"We always had everything planned out so the bad guys had no time to react," he said. "The guys know you're not there to play."

Wright said usually he carried a sledgehammer with him to knock down doors.

"You know you have to walk up to a person's home, kick down the door and there's a possibility they will have a weapon," he said. "But no one was ever injured."

The saddest part of his job with undercover narcotics was seeing the losses children faced when their parents deal or use drugs, he said.

"The children have to be taken somewhere to stay while their parents are in jail," he said. "It's pitiful to see how some little kids have to live: in filth, with no food because their parents spend all of their money on drugs."

But being able to help people is the best part of his job, Wright said.

"When you save a life it's really rewarding," he said. "And there is always pleasure in putting someone away who deserves it."

units that currently report to these administrators will be re-aligned with a new position, vice president for administration.

One unit, Information Resources, will not be switched to the duties of vice president for administration. This unit will report to the SIUC budget director.

The rationale behind switching Information Resources to the budget director is to allow the University to coordinate better information and budget resources.

John Baker, executive director of Information Resources, said Guyon's plan is similar to an earlier administrative structure at SIUC.

"The change will be a replication of a previous structure of the administration which

Clarence Dougherty, vice president of campus services, said an increase of any kind is unwelcome, especially during extreme budget woes.

"This year it's a particular burden because of the recession," he said.

Of the utility costs SIUC generates, 61 percent go toward CIPS. Other sources of utility are Egyptian Electric and Illinois Power Co.

Although SIUC officials were not expecting a utility increase of this amount, additional funds for a 5-percent increase for gas and a 5-percent increase for electric rates were requested at the beginning of fiscal year 1992.

Brown said SIUC officials have no idea if the funds will be approved until August or September.

"It will really hurt us if we don't get the additional funds," she said, and some staff may be let go to compensate for the increased costs.

George Sheppard, spokesman for CIPS in Southern Illinois, said the cost increase is in its final stages.

An ICC hearing examiner in February recommended a 6.8-percent increase in gas rates and a 1.1-percent increase in electric rates.

From July 1991 to now, SIU has generated a $3-million power bill, said Charles Williams, Physical Plant mechanical engineer.

CIPS last increased gas rates by 6 percent in December 1990. SIUC paid about $10,000 additional a year for this increase.

Prior to 1990, the last rate increase was in 1982.

If the propose rates are approved, SIUC will feel a big impact, Williams said.

resolution to the problem. There are other problems that need to be considered and these are specifically cost," he said. "It's very easy to spend money as if it were going out of style when trying to conduct a search."

But Susan Hall, president of the Graduate and Professional Student Council, said cost cannot be a factor because the Undergraduate Student Government at SIUC and SIUE offered to pay the costs of having an extra student on the committee.

As it is now, if problems arise later, the constituent groups will say it is because they were not properly represented, Susan Hall said.

"We are concerned that there is only one student to represent the entire system. We think that greater constituency involvement in the search process will allow for greater constituency cooperation after the hiring," she said.

If each constituency feels ownership in the process, there will be less room for future criticism of the office of the chancellor, Susan Hall said.

William R. Norwood, board member, said it would be nice to have every constituency represented; however, once the number of committee members starts to increase, it continues to increase.

"As far as confidentiality, when we start getting 10 or more our confidentiality becomes a problem. Now we all say that it can't happen; but the only one we can speak for is ourself," Norwood said.

During the last search for a chancellor, 10 people made up the committee. Hall said as far as he knows the confidentiality of the search was not broken during that search.

"If they are concerned about confidentiality why don't they do it straight by the book and pick one representative from each constituent group," Hall said.

would cost about $156,000 and making a conference center out of the house at a cost of about $224,000.

Brown and Guyon chose to propose the first option because it was the least costly of the seven, Brown said.

Brown told the board that the recommendation of the first option was based on three assumptions:

■ Stone House will no longer be used as a residence,

■ responsibility for the supervision of the house will fall on the president and the board will have no more say in its use than it does for any other building on campus and

■ the cost is an important factor when deciding on an option.

Edward M. Buerger, director of Alumni Services, said the move to Stone House will almost double the office space.

"It will help us provide better and more programs and services to the University and alumni," he said.

Buerger said Stone House provides a comfortable setting to entertain the 150,000 alumni of SIU.

"We're excited to be considered new residents of the Stone House," he said. "I think it's something that the alumni will feel good about and it should send a positive message to the alumni, that they are important to the University."

The next few months will be spent remodeling portions of the house, Brown said.

It probably will be summer before the alumni office moves in, he said.

The 36-room mansion originally was designed as a combination executive residence and a large-scale dining and entertaining facility for distinguished guests of the University.

SIUC began construction of the house in 1968. It became the W. Clement and Jessie V. Stone House in 1982.

Three presidents and one chancellor have lived in the house: David R. Derge, Warren W. Brandt, Albert Somit and Lawrence K. Pettit.

USG calls for return of MAP funding to students

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

The SIUC Undergraduate Student Government has adopted a resolution opposing cuts to the 1991-92 Monetary Award Program by the Illinois Student Assistance Commission.

A USG resolution in opposition to the MAP cuts calls for the funds being taken from SIUC students to be given back.

"This is money students counted on, money that was in their pockets, and now it's being taken back," USG President Jack Sullivan said.

"That's unforgivable—the resolution is a protest for any future act coming up almost secretly, as did this one."

ISAC voted in an emergency meeting Jan. 31 to cut the annual MAP award by 12 percent.

The cuts affect 6,500 SIUC students and 95,000 college students statewide.

The reductions for the average grant recipient will be about $120 but can range from $12 to $142.

The money taken from the grant package already is credited to student accounts.

Financial Aid Director Pamela Britton said a debit is being applied to student accounts for the amount of the reduction.

"Basically, students unexpectedly are having to cope with less resources at a very late date in the year," she said.

"They have less excess funds to help with their living expenses," Britton said.

Student groups speaking out against the cuts is important, Britton said.

"I support (USG's) resolution," she said. "If it will have any direct impact, I don't know."

"But it's important for student groups to say something to the State of Illinois and ISAC about the cuts and how they feel," she said.

The USG resolution is being sent to ISAC, Illinois legislators and Gov. James Edgar.

USG Chief-of-Staff Brad Cole said the money being taken from students can make the difference between a month's rent, a car payment or books.

Cole also is one of the students affected by the cuts.

"I can't work because of student government, so I rely on the MAP refund to cover some of my costs—it's almost a month's rent for me," he said.

"This is money I'm going to have to come up with someplace else," Cole said.

The money is being taken back at a time students need it most with costs continually increasing, Cole said.

"Since the action has already been taken, (the resolution) is purely therapeutic," he said.

"It's probably not likely anything will change, but it could," Cole said.

Sullivan said he first found out about the cuts in the newspaper three days after the vote because action was taken on a Friday. He received a press release from ISAC the following Tuesday.

"USG had no prior knowledge of this coming down the pipe," he said. "Since then, we've snapped into action to get on top of it so something like this won't happen again."

USG is working to tighten its dialogue to ISAC to alleviate the various information channels, which proved unfruitful, Sullivan said.

Condom companies help cupid on holiday

By Trumler Camphor
General Assignment Writer

Condom companies nationwide are giving cupid a little help this Valentine's Day—but some SIUC students said their gestures are a bit over-priced.

National Condom Week begins today and runs through Feb. 21, and condom companies have begun their campaigns to sell condom kits by promoting the kits as a unique Valentine's gift.

Dimension, Inc. in Arlington, Va., and Personal Healthcare Products, LTD. in Brea, Calif., are both marketing mail order condom kits.

The Pro-Safe condom starter kit, sold by Dimension Inc., sells for $4.95.

Personal Healthcare Products, LTD. is selling a variety of novelty condom kits. Its Safetex condoms comes with 32 condoms packaged in a heart-shaped box for Valentine's Day.

The cost is $19.50.

The Pro-Safe kit includes "how to" instructions, three condoms and two small packets of lubricant.

Personal Healthcare Products has a toll free number and offers a free catalog with more than 30 types of condoms from which to choose.

Sylvia Patre, president of Dimension, Inc., said in a statement that the kit provides a convenient way for sexually active people to protect themselves.

SIUC Health Service nurse practitioner Sylvia Chalem said the Pro-Safe kit is a good idea, but it is too expensive for college students.

"The cost will probably be a deterrent for students who may want the kit," Chalem said.

Chalem said she thinks the kit may help people become more educated, but most students would be better off using the Health Service pharmacy.

Environmentalists push letter writing at teleconference

By Todd Welvaert
Politics Writer

Members of the first Earth teleconference urged concerned environmentalists to begin a letter writing campaign to push U.S. involvement in the first ever U.N. Earth Summit.

The telecast allowed local environmentalists to voice concerns and questions with international and national experts on the environment Wednesday night at the Student Center.

The teleconference allowed local groups to help develop issues for discussion at the first ever Earth Summit in June in Rio De Janeiro, Brazil.

The U.N. Conference on the Environment and Development will lay the foundation for a global partnership between industrial nations and developing nations to ensure the future of the planet.

The teleconference was broadcast live from the University of Iowa.

Former chairman, prof emeritus of economics dies

Obituary

By Christy Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

George H. Hand, a former SIUC vice president for business affairs who was the University's first higher education chairman, has died.

Hand died Tuesday at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale. He was 88.

Memorial services will take place at 10 a.m. Saturday at First Presbyterian Church, 310 S. University.

Hand, a professor emeritus of economics, came to SIUC in 1952 and was an executive assistant to the president. He was the University's first higher education department chairman, overseeing training of college-level teachers in 1959.

Hand served as an accreditation expert and trustee for McKendree College in Lebanon.

Before coming to SIUC, he also taught at Denison University in Granville, Ohio, Ohio Wesleyan University and the University of Vermont.

It was at Ohio Wesleyan where Robert Layer, a retired professor at SIUC, met Hand and began a friendship that spanned a period of 50 years.

"He had a wonderful personality, was level-headed, had a good sense of humor and was a pleasure to work with," Layer said.

"He had high academic standards and students really liked him," Layer said.

Paper to publish alternative news, focusing on investigation – editors

By William Ragan
Entertainment Writer

Religious leader Mohandas K. Gandhi suggested at the Empire Theater in Johannesburg in 1906 that India use Satyagraha to "fight anger, not provoke it" in dealing with oppressive British rule.

Ghandi defined Satyagraha as "direct action for truth."
A local publication bearing the name Satyagraha was published today for the first time in nearly a year, and editors Ken Boyte and Adam Broad said they are seeking the truth the mainstream media does not provide.

Boyte, a graduate student in journalism from Phoenix City, Ala., produced the first issue of Satyagraha in late spring 1990.

The topics covered ranged from stories about toxic waste dumping to criticism of the Drug War.

Boyte continued to publish Satyagraha sporadically for a year, halting publication in late spring 1991 to concentrate on academics.

The new issue of Satyagraha features stories about the history of the CIA and the Shawnee forest, an essay comparing George Bush to Jeffrey Dahmer, book reviews, poetry and political art.

"Because we don't have any pretense of objectivity, we can better examine the causes behind a story."

—Drew Hendricks

Boyte said the publication still is a viable source of information and commentary in the community. "Satyagraha is an outlet for expression," he said.

"It's a medium for us to expand public discussion," Boyte said.

Drew Hendricks, a junior in journalism from Carbondale and Drug War page editor, said because Satyagraha is a monthly magazine, the writers have more time to report a story.

"Deadline reporting is not conducive to investigative reporting," Hendricks said. "Because we don't have any pretense of objectivity, we can better examine the causes behind a story."

Satyagraha addresses issues that may not be presented always in the media, said Curt Wilson, a junior in psychology from Troy. Wilson writes for the paper.

"Satyagraha selectively chooses to present and discover information that is not adequately addressed by the mainstream press," Wilson said.

Wilson said the Satya has helped unite the activist community at SIUC by devoting advertising and articles to Registered Student Organizations such as the National Organization for Reform of Marijuana Laws, the Mid-America Peace Project and the Student Peace Alliance.

Satyagraha won a second place award for student magazine last year from the Society of Professional Journalists Mark of Excellence competition, and the paper is sent to campuses across the country.

The people who write for the Satyagraha and volunteer their time are concerned about what goes on around them, said Broad.

"The people I've seen working for the paper want to help their community. They're not doing it for selfish motives. They don't get paid," he said.

"The selfishness comes from wanting to live in a better world," he said.

Telephone board sponsors logo contest for 911

Contest open to all; winner to receive $100 cash award

By Scott Wuerz
Police Writer

The Jackson County Emergency Telephone System Board is calling for help from creative minds in Jackson County.

Glen Seaver, secretary of the board of directors, said the board is inviting citizens of Jackson County to submit proposals in the county's 911 emergency telephone service logo design contest.

The winning designer will receive a $100 cash award.

Seaver said the winning logo will be used on the board's letterhead, in promotional displays and possibly on emergency vehicles in the county.

"We're wide open on design ideas," Seaver said.

"The only major requirement is that the design be in black on white paper. We want a logo which can be easily reproduced in one color," he said.

Although people of all ages are invited to enter the contest, the Emergency Telephone System Board has solicited most heavily in local schools, Seaver said.

"We've concentrated on the schools because we think it's important that young people are aware of this service and they know where to turn if an emergency situation should come up."

Seaver said the 911 telephone service has come to Jackson County as a sign of the times.

"This is a more efficient emergency system made possible through technology," he said.

"Many surrounding counties already have a 911 service, and Perry and Randolph counties have just passed referendums to set up a system," Seaver said.

The emergency telephone service will come on line in December, Seaver said.

The Jackson County Emergency Telephone Board office will be located on the second floor of the Jackson County Jail building in Murphysboro and will maintain four dispatch centers across the county.

The emergency telephone service is funded by a $1.25-a-month charge on each telephone line in Jackson County.

Entries for the 911 logo design contest should be submitted to the Jackson County Emergency Telephone Board, 1001 Mulberry St. in Murphysboro by 4 p.m. Mar. 6.

Centers to have open house

SIUC career-help offices to reveal renovations at reception

By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

When the doors of Woody Hall open this afternoon, it will not be business as usual.

The Career Development Center, the Testing Services and the University Placement Center will reveal renovations and services at an open house.

The three centers are dedicated to helping students with career services.

They received money during the last two years from several companies and used the money to renovate a shared reception area, said Pam Good, placement counselor for the University Placement Center.

Good said about $6,600 was donated from AMAX Coal Industries, Castle Medals, Caterpillar, May Co. Stores, Underwriters Laboratories, Venture and Walgreen to help the services.

"The three centers are united both by a shared reception area, which was renovated with the money and the general idea of helping students with career choices.

"We're having the open house to show everyone the new reception area and our library system," Good said.

James Scales, director of Career Development, said the open house is to introduce the new facilities of the services to the public.

The career resource library contains information to help students with career information and open vacancies in their chosen job markets.

Good said the Placement Center helps students with internships and finding professional job opportunities and part-time jobs.

A computer program titled "Discover" will be demonstrated.

The program enables students to type in their special interests and experience, and then the computer helps them find careers that they would find interesting, she said.

The computer program will be shown at 3 p.m. and again at 4 p.m.

Scales said the computer program also enables students to find out about possible schools they could attend and general information on their individual majors.

"We're having the open house to show appreciation to the companies that donated the money," said Ralph F. Arnold, coordinator of testing services.

Testing Services offers a number of tests, ranging from placement tests to National Interest Exams, Arnold said.

Good said guests such as upper-level administrators, potential employers and academic advisers will attend, but everyone interested is invited.

Refreshments also will be served.

The open house will be from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. today in room B208 on the second floor of Woody

One in five women to send flowers for Valentine's Day

NEW YORK (UPI) — This Valentine's Day more men than ever before will receive flowers from their wives or lovers.

"It's perfectly fine to send flowers to men," said Ruth Owades, the owner of Calyx & Corolla, a San Francisco-based catalog business that distributes fresh cut flowers across the United States.

The number of men receiving flowers from women through the catalog company doubled in 1991 over 1990. "One in every five orders for Valentine's Day are from women sending flowers to men," Owades said.

In choosing flowers or plants for men, women opt for a "masculine-looking flower like a Bonsai, for example, or an orchid, Heather, ginger ... something exotic," she said.

Technological advances in audio could drive CDs out of the market

By Ronn Byrd
Entertainment Writer

Compact discs may someday join stacks of vinyl 45s collecting dust in the garage.

New technology in stereo equipment may make CDs as obsolete as records.

John Phillips, electronic product manager for Memorex, said the newest development is the digital compact cassette tape. The DCC is cassette tape that can record digitally and audibly. It is similar to a CD.

Phillips said what will make the DCC system widely acceptable is its "backwards compatibility." The DCC is able to play regular cassettes as well as those created for DCC.

"So you won't have to throw out your current library," Phillips said.

Compact Discs first were released in summer 1983 and were met with luke-warm interest. Many listeners liked the clarity of sound the disc offered but did not want to pay the $900 dollars the player cost.

"Generally it was the price that put people off," said Chas Vale, manager of Disc Jockey Records in the University Mall. "CDs cost from $18 to $24."

Within 18 months on the market, compact disks were beginning to outsell records. As the demand rose and the price fell, people who had not bought stereo equipment since their original systems were converting to compact discs.

It was this surge in popularity that finally nailed shut the coffin of vinyl records.

"There was too much maintenance on the records," Vale said. "People liked the sound clarity of CDs."

Vale also said there came a point where record labels would only take records back up to a certain date and then no more.

Developers were working on a system Digital Audio Tape they hoped would become the next wave in sound products. But DAT would have required another overhaul of a listener's sound library and fell flat.

The DCC system will be costly most likely upon its release into the market, just as the Compact disc system was, but if it is accepted like CDs, its compatibility might push sales of DCC past those of the CD.

But DCC and CD probably will remain popular, Vale said.

"The cassette will always supplement the CD," Vale said. "It's a fool's dream to think that everyone is going to have a CD player. I can see them both improving, but I think they're here to stay."

New developments in CD technology could save CDs from extinction. CD ROM and CD Interactive are examples of new types of CD use.

CD ROM is used to store information for computers.

"It's a good way in getting in a lot of play," Auld said. "There is no pressure on them to perform as a team. It's strictly how they go and play and how well they can play for themselves. It also gives us a chance to see teams we don't normally see. We've been practicing since school started, and it gives us an idea if we're going in the right direction."

SIUC will have to start the season without junior All-Conference player Lori Gallagher, who ranks No. 1 on the all-time SIUC career win percentage in singles. She has won 83.6 percent of her games. Gallagher injured her hand early last fall and continues to be hampered.

Gallagher, who would have played one of the top three spots this season, won the No. 4 singles Gateway title last season, and with junior Wendy Varnum also won the No. 2 doubles championship.

Senior Lori Edwards, who will play the No. 2 spot in singles, said the loss of Gallagher has had a big impact on all the players.

"We did well without her in the fall," Edwards said. "This weekend we should not notice the difference since it is an individual tournament, but when we play as a team we'll have to scramble and try to do well without her.

"This weekend's tournament could be tough. I'd rather play as a team, but individual also is fun. You're a representative of your team."

Auld said Gallagher originally planned to be back in February, but now she might not return until late March.

"Lori's definitely a very contributing player," Auld said. "We had a very good fall season, and the reason we did was because the young kids stepped in and assumed the leadership and responsibility, and they're going to have to continue to do it. It's going to give them a lot of good playing time and experience."

Seven singles players and three doubles tandems will play in the upcoming tournament. Varnum, who was 5-10 in the fall, will play in Flight 1.

Sophomore Leesa Joseph, 7-6, will play in Flight 3, freshman Irena Feofanova, 11-6, will play in Flight 4, junior Karen Wasser, 8-8, and sophomore Anna Tsui, 6-2, will play in Flight 5, and sophomore Wendy Anderson, 13-5, will play in Flight 6.

Edwards and Joseph, 8-6, will play in Flight 1 doubles, Tsui and Varnum, 4-3, in Flight 2 doubles and Wasser and Feofanova, 13-3, in Flight 3.

Because the weather has been good the team has been able to practice outside on some days. Other days they practice at the Sports Center's indoor courts. The Salukis also are conditioning four to five days a week at the recreation center, Auld said.

"In practice I've been concentrating on them doing more with agility and explosive-type action," she said. "I've cut back on the distance they were running so that they have to recover quickly. Physically, I think they are in good shape."

"Right now they just need the competition. They need to get out and play some matches and start working on their mental game."

The Salukis start at 8 a.m. today at Eastern Kentucky.

2 in the Gateway in free throw percentage.

SIUC leads the Gateway in three-point shooting making 41.4 percent of its treys. SIUC also leads in rebounding averaging 40.2 a game. SIUC junior center Kelly Firth is the Gateway's No. 2 rebounder averaging 9.5 boards a game. Firth also is averaging 12.7 points a game.

After a career-high 21 points against Murray State Wednesday, junior point guard Anita Scott said coming off a win always adds spark to team. She said the win over Murray State will keep SIUC working hard in last seven Gateway games.

Anita Scott leads the team in scoring averaging 13.2 points a game. She also leads in assists averaging 4.5 a game, steals and minutes played.

Rodeker is averaging 12.3 points a game, and junior forward Angie Rougeau is averaging 11.4 points a game and leads the Salukis in blocks.

The Salukis play at 7:35 p.m. Saturday at the Arena.

Slugger Canseco charged with battery after car chase

MIAMI (UPI) — Oakland Athletics outfielder Jose Canseco was arrested Thursday and charged with felony aggravated battery after trying to run his wife off the road.

Metro Dade police said Canseco, 27, was released from the Dade County Jail after posting bond in the incident involving his estranged wife, Esther, 25.

Detective Ralph Fernandez said the two were involved in an early-morning argument that escalated into a car chase, in which the slugger rammed his wife's BMW with his Porsche, causing $10,000 damage.

Fernandez said Esther Canseco told police she and her husband were arguing about 4:30 a.m. and Canseco took his wife's purse.

"During the course of the altercation he did return the purse to her and at that point she jumped into a 1991 BMW and fled eastbound," Fernandez said. "He jumped into a 1985 Porsche and went after her.

"He got up next to her and struck her vehicle twice, trying to get her off the road. She pulled off the road, at which point he walked up to the driver's side window and spat on the window."

Fernandez said police were called by witnesses and officers arrived at the same time Canseco approached his wife's car.

"When she related her story to officers, he was placed under arrest and was charged with aggravated battery," Fernandez said. "Her vehicle sustained approximately $10,000 damage during the incident. She was not hurt."

Fernandez said Canseco would be ordered to appear in court within 60 days. The charge carries a maximum penalty of up to 15 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Police said the argument took place on the sidewalk in a neighborhood of apartments and small businesses. The couple is living apart but neither of them live in the area and police did not know why they were there.

The incident took place less than two weeks before Canseco was scheduled to arrive at the Athletics' spring-training base at Scottsdale, Ariz. It was not immediately clear how the outfielder's court date would affect his ability to report.

Canseco, who tied for the major-league home run lead last season with 44, also was arrested in April 1989 for carrying a loaded semiautomatic pistol in his Jaguar. While traveling earlier that year, his personal secretary was arrested for trying to board a flight with a pistol in his briefcase.

The outfielder also has received at least six tickets for traffic violations over the last three years, having been caught for speeding in Florida, California and Arizona.

No pain for Gooden in first spring workout

St. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — New York Mets pitching ace Dwight Gooden passed the first test of his repaired shoulder Thursday, throwing pain-free in a 12-minute workout.

Gooden tossed the ball from long range for seven minutes and then worked off the mound for five minutes under the supervision of new Mets Manager Jeff Torborg and pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre.

The outing, at the spring-training base of the St. Louis Cardinals, marked Gooden's first test of his arm since rotator-cuff surgery last September. He threw only fastballs and stressed the importance of taking his time during rehabilitation.

"I feel great," the right-hander said. "My main concern is trying not to do too much.

You want to pop a couple, but you just have to hold back."

Gooden will throw again on Saturday with Milwaukee Brewers third baseman and childhood friend Gary Sheffield, who was on hand Thursday. He will continue to throw every other day through the start of spring training next week.

Gooden has said he expects to be available for opening day April 6 at St. Louis. However, Torborg was more cautious.

"It's only the first time, so you don't want to read too much into it," said Torborg, who joined the Mets in October after three years as manager of the White Sox. "But he looked real relaxed and fluid. He looked like he'd never been off."

Gooden underwent surgery Sept. 7 to repair a partial tear in the rotator cuff.

American wins first freestyle ski gold

TIGNES, France (UPI) — American Donna Weinbrecht captured the first gold medal ever awarded in Olympic freestyle skiing Thursday, using the motivation that came from failing to finish atop the elimination round.

Weinbrecht, a 26-year-old racer from West Milford, N.J., said she bore down during Wednesday night's countdown to the finals after coming in second to French rival Raphaëlle Monod in the semis of the moguls.

"I made a subconscious decision to do well," said the American, the 1991 world champ in the fast-rising sport. "I remained focused and laid down a good run."

The current World Cup leader this season, Weinbrecht scored 23.69 points from seven judges, who ranked on technique (50 percent), jumps (25) and speed (25). Heavy snow made the conditions poor.

After Monod, the last of eight skiers, made a major mistake going off her second obligatory jump, Weinbrecht knew that victory — and a small piece of history — were hers.

"I'll go through a lot of different emotions," she said after performing before a crowd of 20,000 that included her parents.

"Yesterday (after the semis) I was crying with my dad, crying with my mom and crying with my coaches. You never know. Then today I had to wait for Raphaëlle to come down."

Though her trophy chest is already bulging, the new gold medalist said that finally arriving in the Olympics means a lot for a sport that only began two decades ago.

"It was really important for me to have won the first gold medal ever awarded in freestyle," Weinbrecht said. "I wanted to bring it home to the USA and to be a part of history in the making.

Hopefully, they (Olympic officials) will accept the other two events (freestyle aeriels and ballet, demonstration sports at the 1992 Games)."

Howard Peterson, chief executive officer of U.S. skiing, has long been a supporter of moguls. "It's a rock and roll and Levis kind of sport," he said. "It's really American. It's great to have it in the Olympics."

Being the pre-race favorite was difficult for Weinbrecht, according to Peterson.

"She had a couple of difficult days where it was extremely hard for her to focus," he said.

U.S. hockey tops Finns, goes to 3-0

MERIBEL, France (UPI) — The United States hockey team survived its first major test Thursday, beating a much quicker and experienced opponent to assure itself a spot in the medal round of the Olympics.

Scott Young scored twice, the second coming on a short-handed breakaway late in the final period, to keep the U.S. squad unbeaten with an impressive 4-1 triumph over Finland.

"We feel Finland is one of the better teams in the tournament," Young said. "They've always been in the running along with the Czechoslovakias, Russians, Canadas and Swedens, and we felt that this was a true test for us.

"I'm not going to try and lie to you. We've been reading the papers. We knew that everyone was going to gauge us on this game, and we came ready to play."

Tim Sweeney and Sean Hill also scored for USA, while C.J. Young set up two goals. Ray LeBlanc, meanwhile, again remained steady in net the entire 60 minutes for the Americans, 3-0, who became the first team in the A Division to gain access to the medal round, which gets under way Tuesday.

The Finns employ nine former NHL players in their lineup.

Norwegian distance skier wins second Olympic gold

LES SAISIES, France (UPI) — Norway's Vegard Ulvang, celebrating with Viking howls of joy, collected his second gold medal of the Olympics Thursday, winning the men's 10-kilometer race.

A short time later, Marjut Lukkarinen of Finland churned through the soupy snow to win the women's 5-km classic technique race by nine-tenths of a second on the first day of the controversial two-day "pursuit" event.

The men have a 15-km freestyle race Saturday while the women will compete on a 10-km course after which a second set of medals will be awarded.

Ulvang, who led a 1-2-3 Norwegian sweep in the first men's race, this time overcame soft, wet snow and a bad spill in which he broke his pole in midrace. His decision to use waxless skis paid off as he was clocked in 27 minutes, 36.0 seconds.

Marco Albarello of Italy took the silver in 27:55.2 and Christer Majbäck of Sweden won the bronze in 27:56.4.

Ulvang came to these Olympics with a reputation for never winning the big race. He had won silver and bronze in the 1988 Olympics and recent World Championships, never taking the gold. When he won the 1990 World Cup, he did it without winning a single race.

Now, the 28-year-old mountain climber, who scaled Alaska's Denali (Mount McKinley) in 1990 and skied across Greenland a year later, has two victories.

Blair, Docter prepare for final speed events

ALBERTVILLE, France (UPI) — While American speedskater Bonnie Blair hopes to win her second gold medal of these Games Friday, teammate Mary Docter could be nearing the final Olympic race of a long and, at times, tumultuous career.

Blair, Olympic bronze medalist at 1,000 meters in 1988, battles Christa Luding, defending Olympic champ and world record-holder, and Angela Hauck, both of Germany, as well as Japan's Seiko Hashimoto and the Netherlands' Christine Aafink.

Docter, the four-time Olympian from Madison, Wis., who turned 31 this week, finished a disappointing 15th in the 3,000 meters Sunday and also was 15th in the 1,500 meters. She is scheduled to race at 5,000 meters Monday.

Blair, 27, of Champaign, captured the 500-meter gold

Monday, then used Wednesday's 1,500-meter event as training, finishing 21st in the 33-skater field.

The 300-meter world record holder and current World Cup leader at 500 and 1,000 meters, Blair held the second-fastest time after 300 meters, but cruised through the finish after 1,100 meters as per her coach's plan.

"I thought I had a pretty good race through 1,000 or 1,100 meters," Blair said. "And that's when I started to drop off. I knew I was out of it at that point and I wasn't going to kill myself since I have another race."

Docter was the highest-finishing American in the 3,000 and 1,500. But she was not pleased.

"I wanted to finish in the top 10," said Docter, whose sixth at 3,000 meters at the 1980 and 1984 Winter Games were her highest Olympic results.

Meningitis

Definition and Cause

Meningitis is an inflammation of the membranes that surround the brain and spinal cord. Meningitis can be caused by viruses or bacteria.

- Viral meningitis (also called aseptic meningitis) is generally less severe than bacterial meningitis and requires no specific treatment. Viral meningitis is most frequently due to a viral infection in the stomach and intestine (enterovirus). A small number of cases are transmitted by insects such as mosquitoes or ticks (arbovirus). There tends to be seasonal increases in viral meningitis cases in late summer and early autumn. There are, on average, 500 cases of viral meningitis in Illinois annually; fewer than 1 percent are fatal. The highest attack rates are in children younger than one year.
- Bacterial meningitis is often quite severe and may result in permanent brain damage, such as hearing loss or, rarely, mental retardation. Before antibiotics were used, at least 70 percent of persons with bacterial meningitis died of the infection. With modern antibiotic treatment, the fatality rate is usually 15 percent or less, but the patient may still suffer long-term neurologic problems. Bacterial meningitis occurs most often in three forms:
 - 1) Haemophilus meningitis, caused by Haemophilus influenzae type b or Hib, is the most common bacterial meningitis in children aged 5 years or younger. (Occurrence of the disease in persons older than aged 5 is extremely rare.) There are, on average, 230 cases of Haemophilus meningitis in Illinois annually; fewer than 10 percent are fatal.
 - 2) Meningococcal meningitis, caused by Neisseria meningitidis, is primarily a disease of young children. The incidence of cases declines with ages older than 1 year, and the relatively few adult cases generally occur among those housed under one roof, such as in barracks or dormitories. The disease most often occurs during spring and winter. (In a very small proportion of infected persons, the organism can cause meningococemia, a severe blood infection.) There are, on average, 100 cases of meningococcal meningitis in Illinois annually; approximately 7 percent are fatal.
 - 3) Pneumococcal meningitis, caused by Streptococcus pneumoniae, generally strikes infants, the elderly and high risk individuals. There are, on average, 100 cases of pneumococcal meningitis in Illinois annually. In general, 5 percent to 10 percent of cases are fatal; however, in persons with certain pre-existing serious illnesses, the rate can be 20 percent to 40 percent.

How It's Spread

Meningitis is not highly contagious. Both viral and bacterial meningitis are transmitted from person to person through direct contact with nose or throat secretions. In addition, healthy persons can have these bacteria in their throats and spread them to others. In addition, fewer persons can have these bacteria in their throats and spread them to others. Fortunately, fewer than one in 100 household, day care or classroom contacts of a person with meningitis will become sick with meningitis. An infected person can transmit the disease by coughing or sneezing directly in the face of others, kissing a person on the mouth or sharing a glass or cup.

Viral meningitis can also be transmitted as a result of failure to wash hands after contact with infected stool. Children, whose hygiene practices are below the level of most adults, are more likely to transmit and suffer from meningitis.

Symptoms and Susceptibility

Meningitis usually starts with sudden fever, headache and stiff neck. Other symptoms may include nausea, vomiting, aversion to bright light, confusion and sleepiness. In newborns and small infants, the classic findings of fever, headache and neck stiffness may be absent or difficult to detect, and the infant may show only extreme listlessness, irritability, poor feeding and sometimes vomiting. As the disease progresses, both infants and older patients may have seizures and decreased alertness progressing to coma. Meningitis can also produce very mild symptoms, such as a low-grade fever, malaise lasting 2 to 3 days and headache.

Although persons at greatest risk of meningitis are household contacts, most persons are not susceptible to meningitis because they have had prior exposure to the particular strain of viral or bacterial infection and have become immune.

Treatment

Bacterial meningitis requires immediate medical attention by a physician and can be treated with a number of antibiotics. Appropriate antibiotic treatment of most common types of bacterial meningitis should reduce the fatality rate to less than 10 percent, though the fatality rate is higher in infants and the elderly.

The diagnosis is usually made by growing bacteria from a sample of spinal fluid. The fluid is obtained by performing a spinal tap, in which a needle is inserted into an area in the lower back, where fluid in the spinal canal is readily accessible. Identification of the type of bacteria responsible for the illness is important for selecting effective antibiotics.

In cases of viral meningitis, treatment is usually limited to keeping the patient hydrated and reducing fever.

Prevention

Transmission of meningitis can be prevented by raising the level of hygiene among persons at risk of infection and those who might be spreading the disease. Persons should cover their noses and mouths when sneezing or coughing and discard used tissues promptly. Wash hands thoroughly following exposure to respiratory secretions or fecal matter, including handling of soiled handkerchiefs, diapers and so forth. To avoid exposure, persons should not share cigarettes, straws, cups, glasses or eating utensils. Eating and drinking utensils can be used by others after they have been washed.

For bacterial meningitis, household contacts and others who have close personal contact with infected persons are recommended to receive the antibiotic, rifampin, which kills bacteria living in throat secretions. Since the recommendations for use of rifampin vary according to the specific situation, it is best to consult a physician or local health department for recommendations. Even if rifampin is taken, close contacts should be observed, and any signs of disease should be promptly evaluated by a physician.

Vaccines for Hib and Neisseria meningitidis are now available. Two vaccines for Hib are licensed for use in infants beginning at 2 months of age. The American Academy of Pediatrics and the Advisory Committee of Immunization Practices both recommend vaccination of all infants beginning at 2 months of age. A third vaccine is only licensed for children 15 months of age or older. Neisseria meningitidis can attack persons of any age, but is relatively uncommon in the United States; therefore, meningococcal vaccine is recommended only for persons traveling to other countries where epidemics are in progress.

TIPS

- ✓ Good hygiene practices prevent the spread:
- ✓ Cover nose and mouth when sneezing or coughing.
- ✓ Discard used tissues properly.
- ✓ Wash hands after handling soiled tissues, handkerchiefs or diapers, and
- ✓ Don't share cigarettes, straws, cups, glasses or eating utensils
