Clinton plans speech to win citizen support

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—Intensifying an extraordinary campaign to sell his economic plan to the nation, the White House said Sunday that President Clinton will make a prime-time television speech Monday night to explain the program he will unveil Wednesday.

Thus, Clinton will appear on the airwaves twice this week to talk about the same subject—the need for all Americans to sacrifice and bear some of the costs of deficit reduction and new investments in his domestic agenda.

Details of the long-awaited economic plan will be spelled out in his State of the Union Address to Congress Wednesday.

The president's decision to speak Monday night about the thinking that went into his plan suggests just how sensitive the White House has become over public reaction to the higher taxes and spending cuts that will be proposed.

The administration seems especially concerned because Clinton is certain to break a key campaign promise—not to raise taxes on the middle class to finance his programs.

He will propose hitting the middle class with a 5 percent consumption tax on most major forms of energy usage.

Moreover, he will seek to impose taxes on 85 percent of Social Security income—up from the current 50 percent—for retired couples earning more than $32,000 a year and for individuals earning more than $25,000 a year.

Overall, Clinton's massive economic package seems likely to include some of the largest tax increases ever sought by a president. Its tax hikes and spending cuts will total as much as $500 billion over five years.

The president sent out many of his key advisers over the weekend to prepare the nation for his agenda.

The effort is designed to persuade Americans that the wealthy and the corporate community will bear the heaviest burden in financing Clinton's plan.

WIDB tries to win acceptance

Station managers disagree about competition, interference

By Todd Schlender
General Assignment Writer

Editor's note: This is the second of two articles on WIDB radio station.

In its efforts to switch from a cable radio station to on-the-air broadcasting, WIDB has had to clear hurdles with other local broadcasters.

If the student-run station can avoid problems and delays, WIDB hopes to be broadcasting to the Carbondale area on 89.7 FM as early as spring 1994.

When WIDB originally applied for an Federal Communications

Commission license, it faced a possible frequency conflict with a television station in Paducah, Ky.

An engineering study was done by a third party to determine whether WIDB would cause interference to WPSD-TV Channel 6. The study determined that WIDB would be well within FCC guidelines.

Don Steele, operations and programming manager at WPSD, is not convinced.

"You can never be sure how many viewers will be affected until the new station is on the air," Steele said. "We don't think a new station should be allowed to interfere in any way with an existing station."

Steele also said although signal traps can be used to limit the interference, there is no guarantee that they will be effective.

Another local broadcaster does not want to see WIDB on the air because of the possible competition.

Dennis Lyle, WCIL-FM general manager, graduated from SIUC with a degree in broadcast management in 1975. He worked on WIDB during its second year of operation in 1972 and still serves on the WIDB board of directors.

New plan for campus hotel gains approval from board

By Michael T. Kuciak
Administration Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees approved almost everything on President John C. Guyon's wish list for the University, including an initial approval for a hotel next to the Student Center.

America Hospitality Turnkey Development Consortium Inc. was chosen out of 14 bids to put up the four-star, 160 room hotel, but board chairman A.D. Van Meter expressed some doubt Thursday about the hotel deal.

"My main concern is what happens if the hotel comes in and goes belly up," he said. "We would have an empty hotel next to the Student Center."

Guyon said SIU was not putting any money into the project, only inviting a hotel chain onto the campus.

"In the event that several years down the road, the hotel is not feasible, no money is being committed to the project," he said. "I would not be concerned, though. The organization has 5,000 properties around the world, and they certainly know

Director, deans search continues; nationwide applicants considered

By Tracy Moss
Administration Writer

A national search to find a director for the University Press is in the final stages but has yielded no prominent candidate, an SIUC official said.

Two additional administrative searches for deans are in the beginning stages and proceeding well.

Carolyn Snyder, chairman of the search committee for a University Press director, said the committee screened and interviewed candidates and sent recommendations to Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs and provost.

Shepherd said three finalists were chosen upon recommendations of the search committee. He said he will meet with the acting director of the University Press, David Gilbert, and possibly the search committee to decide if a suitable candidate exists.

"At this point, it doesn't look promising," Shepherd said.

The position was left vacant when Welty Withers retired last year. David Gilbert is acting director until the position is filled.

National searches also are being conducted to fill positions for dean of the College of Agriculture and dean of the College of Business and Administration.

Robert Wolff is chairman of the search committee to find a dean of the College of Agriculture.

Wolff said the committee has received between 20 and 25 inquiries and nominations for the position, but about 16 have sent applications.

He said the search is nationwide, but applicants from inside the college are being considered.

The deadline for applications is March 1, and the goal is to have a new dean in place before the start of the new fiscal year, around July 1, Wolff said.

The college was left without a dean when James Tweedy became vice president for administration last summer. William Herr was nominated as interim dean until the position is filled.

Gordon Bruner is chairman of the search committee to find a dean for the College of Business and

Salukis beat Indiana State

By Karyn Viverito
Sports Writer

It was Turn Back the Clock night at the SIU Arena Saturday, and after the Salukis defeated Indiana State, 78-66, all the Sycamores wanted to do was turn back and head for home.

There was a bit of history, with the Dawgs playing in the old 1967 National Invitational Tournament championship team uniforms, but it was a '90s style of basketball SIUC was playing.

Many three-point plays, fast breaks and slam dunks highlighted the night that belonged to SIUC, which is now 9-5 in the Missouri Valley Conference after the victory over ISU. The Salukis are 10-0 at home this season.

SIU head coach Bates Locke said he was upset that his team was not able to execute on either end of the floor.

"When it comes down to it, passing and defense are the only two things that count in basketball," he said. "That disturbs me because it's not just Southern, but it's Wichita State, and anybody else that can just go in there and beat our brains in."

The Salukis outdid ISU on the

SIUC women tracksters fall by 1 point to Indiana State

By Jeff McIntire
Sports Writer

The SIUC women's indoor track and field team came up short by one point to Indiana State in a closely contested meet at the Saluki Invitational Saturday at the Student-Recreation Center.

Florida State tied the Salukis for second place with 69 points.

Indiana State was able to win the meet despite having some key athletes miss some early events due to mechanical problems on the team bus.

"It was a satisfying, pleasing victory with our bus problems," Indiana State coach John Gartland said.

The Sycamores had an NCAA-qualifying and Rec Center-record performance in the 200 meters by All-American Hollie Hyche (first place, 23.72).

"I was disappointed about missing the 55 (because of bus problem). I was not confident about the 200, but my friends and coaches peped me up," Hyche said.

Another Rec Center record was set by Trinetta Johnson of Florida State, who recorded a first-place long jump of 19-10 1/4.

Relay highlights for the Salukis included winning the 4x800 relay with a time of 10:29.58, with no other teams participating, and placing second in the 4x400 relay with a time of 4:02.72.

Top individual efforts included Rebecca Coyne winning the 55-meter hurdles (8.2), Dawn Barefoot winning the mile run (5:05.27), and Annette Klett winning the women's high jump (5-5).

"I'm about where I was last year at this time...I'm hoping to bring my time down to eight flat," Coyne said.

"I was happy with the place, but I want my height to go higher for the conference meet," Klett said.

Other highlights of the meet included Karina Daniels' second-place 400-meter run of 59.44, Deborah Daehler's second-place 3,000-meter run of 10:06.97 (fourth SIUC all-time), Jennie Horner's second-place finish of 3:00.17 in the 1,000 meters, Leann Reed's third-place 5,000-meter run of 18:25, and April Cokely's third-place shot put of 43-8 1/4.

"I'm happy with the outcome; overall we had some good efforts," Saluki coach Don DeNoon said.

"Indiana State was the better team, winning in spite of their disadvantage of not being able to compete all of their athletes in all of their events."

Swimmers take lumps from pair of Big 8 squads

By Dan Leahy
Sports Writer

The SIUC men's and women's swimming and diving teams took on two of the top schools in the Big 8 Conference over the weekend, and the results were not pretty.

The Saluki men got dumped by Kansas, 175-67, then went to Nebraska and lost 180-98.

SIUC men's coach Rick Walker cited the road as one of the factors leading to the lopsided scores.

"In a span of 48 hours the kids spent 5 hours swimming, 7 hours sleeping, and the rest of the time in the van," Walker said.

Walker also said the score is not a good indication of the quality of his team.

"The score really doesn't mean anything," Walker said. "The kids were put in a very tough situation and most of them handled it very well."

Next on the agenda for the Salukis is rest and lots of it. The next two weeks of

Cagers get board, put away Panthers

By Kevin Bergquist
Sports Editor

Home is where the wins are for the SIUC women's basketball team.

The Salukis captured their fourth win in a five-game homestand Saturday with a 92-68 win over Northern Iowa at the SIU Arena.

The win solidified SIUC's (13-8, 8-3) third-place standing in the Missouri Valley Conference, while Northern Iowa, 8-13 overall, stayed in seventh place with a 3-9 mark.

The Salukis used a 17-4 run in the opening minutes of the second half to pull away from the Panthers. The senior tandem of Tiffany Bolden and Kelly Firth connected for 14 of those points, most coming on layups or second-chance shots.

"Their putbacks really hurt us, especially to start off the second half," Northern Iowa coach Terri Lasswell said. "We are not going to win if we cannot board."

The Salukis did board, snagging 48 rebounds to the Panthers' 34. Those decisive minutes were a reverse performance of the Salukis' paint work in the first half. SIUC missed a number of easy shots from close range, enabling the Panthers to hang around and go to halftime down only 35-28.

McGuire realized dream in '67 NIT game vs. Salukis

By Karyn Viverito
Sports Writer

NCAA coaching great Al McGuire was able to turn back the clock to the heyday of the National Invitational Tournament and one of his dreams Saturday during a visit to the SIUC campus.

McGuire was head coach for the Marquette team that lost to SIUC in the finals of the 1967 NIT championship.

In looking back to that 1967 NIT, and seeing that SIUC and Marquette were in the finals, neither of the teams was supposed to be in the finals, McGuire said.

"Going back 26 years ago, the NIT was as big, if not bigger, than the NCAA," he said. "We (Marquette) were from Wisconsin, and SIU was from Carbondale, so we were long shots to get there."

The championship was played in Madison Square Garden, where the Salukis prevailed, 71-56.

McGuire said even though he lost, it fulfilled one of his dreams to play in Madison Square Garden.

"I am a New York City guy, and I always wanted to bring one of my teams to Madison Square Garden, with standing room only," he said. "When I got in I walked by the front and there was an announcement over the P.A. that said standing room only, and one of my dreams became reality."

McGuire, now an analyst with CBS sports, also gave his final four picks at the end of the conference.

"It will be Duke, Indiana, Kansas and Kentucky in the final four, with Kentucky winning it all," he said.

"Michigan will get knocked out early and my sleeper of the year is Louisville."

ready to play," Bolden, who scored a game-high 17 points, said. "We beat them by 24 points at their place, so I guess everyone thought we were going to go out there and win, but things changed."

The Salukis' first-half effort was most disappointing to SIUC coach Cindy Scott, who felt her team was on the rise after spanking Drake 82-57 Thursday night.

"I was probably more upset at halftime of this game because I felt maybe we turned the corner Thursday night and now we are back to this," Scott said. "We need to play hard and emotional to win, if we are going to do anything."

The Salukis did do something in the second stanza, extending their lead to 24 points at 59-35. UNI cut the lead to 14 points late in the game, but SIUC knocked down 6 of 8 free throws down the stretch to seal the deal.

Five other Salukis joined Bolden in double figures, including Firth, who chipped in 12 points. Her 10th point gave the Salukis a 68-47 lead and put her in the SIUC record book as the 13th Saluki player to reach the 1,000-point plateau.

"It really doesn't mean anything to me; only that we make the tournament," Firth said. "I hope I score more so we can make the

Malcolm X's daughter talks about SIUC student's death

By Angela L. Hyland
Special Assignment Writer

Malikah Shabazz, the youngest daughter of Malcolm X, said the suggestions of racism by some SIUC students following the death of a fellow student reflect a larger social problem.

"I don't think there's been much progress (in obtaining civil rights)," Shabazz told a standing-room-only crowd in the Student Center auditorium Thursday. "There would have been more progress if (Martin Luther King Jr. or Malcolm X) had still been alive."

Shabazz was a guest speaker for Black History Month sponsored by the Black Affairs Council.

She said in her speech that people need to learn from history to deal with racial problems, and she also said a white power structure exists in the United States that creates a system of oppression.

Before the situation in the United States improves, she said, students will need to rethink some of their beliefs.

"You need to plan for our (collective) future instead of just your own future," she said. "We have to unite. We have to be there for each other. That's the only way we can be rid of any racial problems."

After the speech, students asked Shabazz about the death of Jose Waight, 24, who died Feb. 5 from asphyxiation following a confrontation at Checkers nightclub, 706 E. Grand Ave. Police said there was no evidence that a racially motivated crime was involved.

Shabazz listened to students' concerns and said their questions provided her with insight into the issues with which the community was dealing.

The Shabazz problems and questions SIUC students are facing are ones that people all over the world must deal with, she said.

One student who suggested boycotting Checkers was greeted with applause.

He asked who would be willing to show support through a march or protest. The air filled with raised hands.

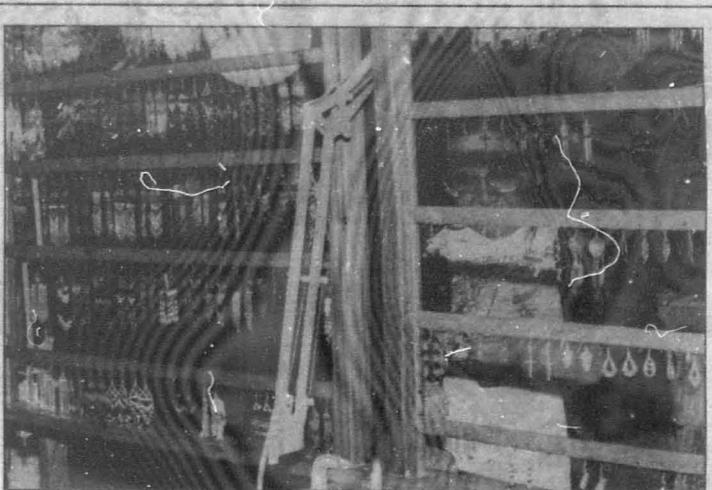

Kimberly Anderson, a junior in political science and the programming chairwoman for Black Affairs Council, said she did not know of any organized efforts to express students' outrage but felt the speech encouraged students to question what was presented to them.

Shabazz said students should look to the past for answers to present problems.

"Nothing you do can bring that boy back," she said. "But what you do can prevent it from happening again."

"When you know your true history, you know what you need to do for the future," she said.

Carbondale Police turned the Jose Waight investigation over to the state's attorney's office. Students and Checkers officials will meet today to discuss ways to prevent such incidents in the future.

SIU team wins law competition

By Shawna Donovan

It took an hour and forty-five minutes for the moot court judges to decide that the 1993 Midwest Regionals champion was the international law team from SIU.

The team beat Oklahoma City Sunday in the final round of the 1993 Jessup International Moot Court Midwest Regional competition at SIUC.

It usually takes two to 10 minutes to decide, but the match was close, judges said.

Professor and faculty adviser Maria Frankowska said winning the competition was thrilling.

"It is really fantastic," Frankowska said. "I am so proud of this team."

Frankowska said the team will go to Washington D.C. at the end of March to compete in the National and even the international competition. Both competitions will be held during the same weekend competition.

International Week benefits all students

THE INTERNATIONAL FESTIVAL, which has been applauded for years for increasing cultural awareness on campus, created a higher level of awareness this year.

In its 19-year history, the International Student Council has expanded the festival from a few events to a week-long celebration of cultural diversity.

Two years ago, the event received national attention for its attempts to expand the University community's horizons. Gov. Jim Edgar proclaimed an International Week for the state, and President George Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle both wrote the council with best wishes and regrets they could not attend.

At the 1993 International Festival, students from all around the world showed cultural pride in a cooking demonstration, an arts and crafts exhibit, a fashion show, a cultural show and a buffet. People attending got to experience the tastes, sights and sounds of many cultures.

Such experiences each year give the SIUC community a better understanding of the people with whom they live, work and learn.

BUT THIS YEAR, EVENTS MOVED in a direction beyond awareness of other cultures.

The Dec. 6 fire, which killed five international students, injured eight and displaced about 40 from their homes, prompted ISC to create new events in remembrance of that tragedy.

The festival officially opened Tuesday with a moment of silence for those who died, and fund-raising events throughout the week were set to help those surviving the fire.

More than $350 was raised in an auction Thursday, and ticket proceeds from the cultural show, which was attended by about 1,000 people, also will go to help the fire victims.

And in a move to help international students adjust to the United States and learn to protect themselves, ISC scheduled a two-hour seminar titled "Surviving in the United States."

The seminar was presented by local police and fire officials as well as Wellness Center officials and was created to give the students safety tips.

The new look to the International Festival was a welcome addition. Not only did the festival help honor the backgrounds of all people, but it also helped teach people from all backgrounds to care for one another and to learn to become one big community.

Social Security law needs fixing so more will get compensation

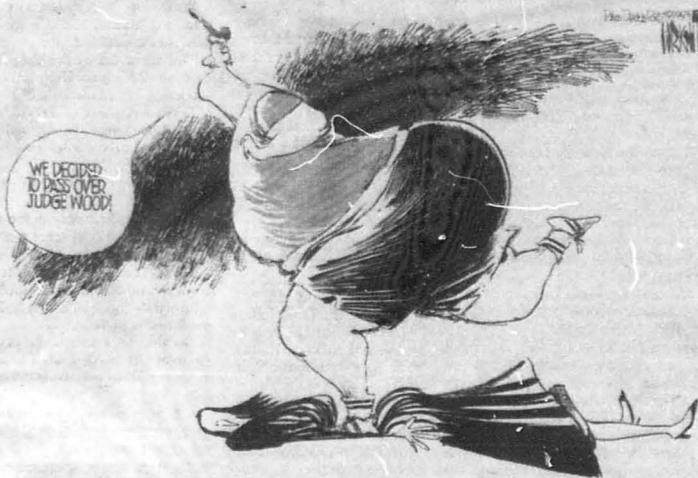

Los Angeles Times

Paying Social Security taxes for baby-sitters, cleaning women and other household helpers who are paid more than $50 over a three-month period is a mind-boggling hassle. So now that people know what is required — in the aftermath of Zoe Baird — Congress...needs to change the law. Laws that are absurd undermine public confidence and inspire lawbreaking.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski has introduced a bill that would raise the income threshold to $300 a year, eliminate quarterly filings and allow employers to file the Social Security taxes with their annual income tax returns. That's a start toward reducing paperwork and making payment more convenient. But the amount of income that triggers the requirement should be raised. The current level of $50 a quarter, set 40 years ago, is unrealistic.

The Federal Insurance Contributions Act has required the quarterly payments since 1954. Yet a generation of household workers, largely poor, has been denied the lowest level because employers failed to pay the required taxes. In part that's because the 1954 law has been an absurdity.

If there is to be compliance in future years, Congress needs to ease the requirements and toughen the penalties. Fairness, to household employees and employers, demands nothing less.

Letters to the Editor

Most Venture workers satisfied

Editor's note: The Daily Egyptian attempted to talk to several Venture employees, most of whom refused to comment. An article appeared on Feb. 5, quoting three employees who requested anonymity.

I am writing in response to the Feb. 5 front page article entitled, "Some Venture employees upset with severance."

This is another example of the DE's cheap, one-sided, lazy brand of journalism. Had you bothered to elicit opinions from more than three of the approximately 150 associates at Venture, you would have known that the consensus opinion toward the store and its top management is very positive. I deeply resent the implication that the opinions of these three misinformed cowards are those of the entire store.

As a company Venture has been very supportive and more than fair in both the severance package and company paid job-search training offered to all associates. I can assure you that the operations and store managers have been anything but lackadaisical. They were both shocked and as deeply saddened as anyone at the announcement of the store closing. I would like to take this opportunity to thank them both

Headline unfair, misleads readers

I fell the headline in Friday's paper "Some employees upset with severance" is vastly misleading and an unfair description of the article it headed.

The article had a mere three strong paragraphs about three employees of Venture who felt management was lackadaisical and that the severance package was unfair.

The rest of the article confirmed that these three were misinformed by quoting Venture managers and representatives as well as community members on issues regarding how many attempts were being made to help the employees find new jobs as well as how concerned they were about the employees, the store closing, and the community, which is losing a major retailer.

The headline gives an incorrect impression that most employees were upset and that the article was about their great loss. The headline should have read "Venture generous, although some feel it's not enough."

The DE is a learning instrument for journalism students.

I am astonished and saddened by how poorly the article was researched and put forth into print.

Apparently, these students have not been properly instructed on how to research, process and write an accurate, unbiased article.

I do hope your readers know better. — Darren Parker, senior merchandise assistant for their support and genuine concern for each and every associate of the Carbondale Venture.

I realize that the DE is a student-run "newspaper" and can not be held to the same scrutiny as a professional paper; however, surely someone in the School of Journalism know the definition of the term "fair and unbiased" reporting. Please pass the definition on the DE staff and see that they abide by it. — John Hopkins, department manager

Severance more than fair

I feel Venture management is doing more than most companies would do and has done for their employees when a store closing has been announced. The statements by three employees of Venture in Friday's issue did not express the feelings of the majority, and the facts they related are incorrect.

As for the vacation pay, only a some employees have been employed long enough to earn a vacation, yet everyone is receiving the same pro-rated vacations.

As for the severance package, Venture doesn't have to give us severance at all. We are all very fortunate to be receiving such a generous package — a package made available to all employees based on their individual length of employment and pay-scale, which is reflective of their level of responsibility. Your sources incorrectly stated that full-time employees were receiving one week's severance pay. Four to six weeks is correct — although it's really no one's business.

If any associate feels the management team at Venture has been "lackadaisical," I suggest they speak to the members of management at V-28 and person-nel from the company office who are there to listen to their grievances and help however they reasonably can. I also suggest they check the employment board at the store, which daily lists new and previous job openings — a system that has helped several employees already obtain new full- and part-time employment.

Employees can also attend the resume and interviewing classes offered at the store, for which they are paid to attend. — Kevin Bailey and Bryce Morris, senior merchandise assistants

Managers, associates part of Venture family

I am a part-time employee at Venture and an SIUC student.

I read your article on Feb. 5, and I have one thing to say. I don't know who your sources were, if you truly had any, but they have no clue what they are talking about. The fact is the management has been extremely supportive of us — believe it or not. We are very close at V-28, associates and management. The decision to close the Carbondale store was upsetting to everyone who works at Venture, and the choice was not made by our management team but rather by the company.

Although closing the store will be an end to many friendships, leave many of us unemployed, and thus far has been an emotional roller-coaster, we know if we stick together we will make it through. We have become a part of each other's lives and we will never forget our Venture family. — Jane Hunter, cashier their market." Guyon said Carbondale hotels and motels serve 11,000 room nights a year, and there would be room in the market for the campus hotel. "It was discussed with the city of Carbondale to build the hotel near the campus, but it was decided that it would not work out," he said. Guyon mentioned that an extra building on campus would be good in the long run anyway. "In any case, it would make a good lab facility," he joked. Charlotte Watson, manager of at the Heritage Motel, 1209 W. Main in Carbondale, said a high-class campus hotel would not hurt business for the other hotels and motels in the area. "If they are charging $70 for a single, and I'm charging $25, I don't think a hotel on campus will be a problem at all," Watson said.

The committee has received more than 30 applications and will likely surpass 40 by March 1, Bruner said. HOTEL, from page 1

Besides a possible green light for the hotel project, the Board of Trustees approved funds for building and repairs, including: $250,000 in housing revenues to replace the leaking, rusty iron pipes in Neely Hall with new copper pipes, about $170,000 from state appropriations to renovate a computing center in Wham and $130,000 of Physical Plant funds for elevator controls in Morris Library.

and maybe different countries from around the world," Frankowska said. The SIU School of Law and the International Law Society sponsored the 1993 Jessup International Moot Court Midwest Regional Competition this weekend at SIUC.

Thirteen teams from across the Midwest competed in the preliminary rounds on Saturday. Only four teams went into the semi-finals on Sunday.

In moot court, students compete using hypothetical cases and legal situations.

SIU Jessup team also received second place in the best memorials or brief presentations category.

SIU Jessup team members include Dan Jones, third-year law student from Villa Grove; Pat Shockley, second-year law student from Benton and JoDawn Hooks, third-year law student from Murphysboro.

Denise Rusnack, a third-year law student from Belleville and Mark Putnam, second-year law student from Robinson, also are Jessup team members.

Other than winning the regional, some members of the team won in individualized categories.

Pat Shockley received third place, while Dan Jones received second in the Best Oralist category.

JoDawn Hooks said the team was excited over results.

"We are all thrilled," Hooks said. "It is exciting to think about the national as well as the international competitions."

Returning SIU alumni came back to judge the competition.

Professor Frankowska said the returning alumni added a special touch to the weekend.

"We are so happy that they took time out their busy lives to come and judge," Frankowska said.

Jo Anne Holland, a 1986 graduate from Albuquerque, N.M., said she returned this weekend for Frankowska.

"She was my mentor and friend," Holland said.

"I admire her because she is a brilliant international scholar and a wonderful person."

Tom Trendl, a 1988 graduate from Washington, D.C., said he returned to judge and to speak at the Saturday night banquet.

"I came back to tell the young international lawyers what it is all about in the real world," Trendl said.

"I also came back to help professor Frankowska. She has been a real help to me."

All of the returning alumni work in a law firm or have their separate business.

Trendl works in an international trade law firm in Washington D.C. where he handles cases involving different countries on countervailing duties and trade laws.

His clients include Canada, Japan and other different countries.

Lyle has opposed WIDB being broadcast since the first proposal.

"As a school-run station, WIDB would be unfair competition to the local broadcasters," Lyle said.

"I think it is a better learning experience for students if it is kept off the air, due to possible liabilities," he said.

"If there's a niche to be filled by the commercial broadcast community, it should be a local community broadcaster that provides the service."

Lyle said it is a shame that WSIU-FM is no longer available as an outlet for students.

WSIU is a Public Broadcasting Service affiliate and has little locally originated programming.

Not all stations agree with him. WOOZ-FM general manager Bruce Welker does not see a conflict and said his station would not file any charges against WIDB with the FCC.

Another local station, WTAO-FM in Murphysboro, is not afraid of the competition.

"I think it's great," said Chris Gullett, station general manager. "If there's a frequency available, the FCC is going to grant the license."

Gullett said he does not see how a noncommercial station could be seen as an unfair competitor.

He also has at least four graduates of SIUC on his staff and welcomes the addition of well-trained disc jockeys to the workforce.

"It's just amazing that cities such as Chicago, Atlanta, Los Angeles [and] New York have college radio stations broadcasting over the city. Carbondale is essentially a city for students.

If there weren't students here, the city wouldn't exist. And yet the students can't even get a college radio station that can be heard throughout the city," Cotter said.

WIDB offers a split format of alternative rock and urban contemporary.

It also schedules jazz hours and international music as well as news programs with special emphasis on campus events. A popular program that offers discussion about collegiate sports is offered on the weekend.

The SIU Board of Trustees will hold the license and be ultimately responsible for the station.

Until now, the station has been answerable to the University Programming Office.

The switch from cable access to a broadcast format will be expensive.

Costs for the transmitter site, the studio to transmitter link, upkeep and necessary hardware are high, although a $65,000 transmitter may be donated.

There also is a one-time fee for a construction permit, which was estimated at $7,500 in 1989.

Another new cost that WIDB must add to its budget is a salary for a full-time general manager. This position is needed to help oversee the staff and make sure the station stays within Federal Communications Commission regulations.

As a registered student organization, WIDB now receives about $9,000 a semester from the Undergraduate Student Government, with the remainder of their $31,400 annual costs paid for by advertising.

In order to pay for the switch, WIDB is requesting a $2 fee be added to each student's semester charges.

This would free the $9,000 from USG for other RSOs and make nearly $80,000 available to the station.

The increase will be discussed at the next three USG senate meetings.

Food, crafts, fashion exhibits mark grand finale of International Fest

By Candace Samolinski
International Writer

A crowd of about 1,000 joined Fairuz Ivrahim, a junior from Malaysia, on Saturday, as he performed Michael Jackson's "Heal the World" during the grand finale of International Festival '93.

The final three days of the festival were the main attractions including the arts and crafts exhibition, cultural and fashion shows and an international food buffet.

The festival was dedicated to the five SIUC students who lost their lives in a tragic fire.

"All the money raised from the festival will go to benefit the victims of the Pyramids apartment fire," said Mohammad Ali Khan, vice president of financial affairs for the International Student Council. "We have had a really great festival this year."

The arts and crafts exhibition Thursday was highlighted by an auction. Several countries donated items from their exhibits to be auctioned off. The first item, a Turkish shafe wall hanging, sold for $15. Other items included a silk scarf from China and a pair of handmade leather sandals from India.

"We raised between $350 and $400 from the auction," Kahn said. "It should really help the fire victims."

Authentic costumes from 17 international student organizations were displayed at the fashion show on Friday and were combined with traditional dances at the cultural show Saturday. About 1,000 people were in attendance.

"Music, dances and costumes are a fundamental part of many cultures," said Arnon

Lemmonghal, president of the Thailand Student Association. "By presenting them we give others the chance to experience some of the international traditions."

Others included a ceremonial wedding dance from the General Union of Palestine Students, La Jota Moncadena and Maglalatik from the Filipino Student Association and Pentozalis from Cypriot Student Association. The Korean Student Association performed Haakaan Mu, which is said to date back 600 years.

Salsa, dance from the Latin American Student Association, caused some controversy during rehearsal for the cultural show. The organizers for the show questioned whether the dance was too explicit for the production. The association also performed the Merengue and an acoustic guitar presentation entitled "Romance."

Health care plans being revamped by administration

Los Angeles Times

Hospitalization and visits to the doctor's office will be covered. So will prenatal care and childhood immunizations. "Nothing," says President Clinton, "will be more important than preventive care."

But what about chiropractic services? And prescription drugs? Or coverage for mental health and drug abuse? Organ transplants? Vision and dental care? Frostbite examinations?

Will mammograms and Pap smears be covered? If so, starting at what age, and how often? What about elective abortions?

These are a few of the questions the Clinton administration faces as it nudges the nation toward a revamped health care system in which every American will have medical insurance.

By promising to enshrine universal coverage as a basic right, the president and his health care reform task force, led by first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, now must figure out what medical services their basic package of benefits will contain — and what it will not.

"This is the first and most basic issue that has to be solved," said Bill Custer, research director of the Employee Benefits Research Institute.

The task promises to set off a struggle among medical specialties and other providers that could bog down the entire reform initiative.

"The first explosion will come when the package of basic health benefits is unveiled," predicted John J. Polk, president of the Council of Smaller Business Enterprises in Cleveland.

Then the special interest groups will have at it. The mental health people, the substance abuse people, the AIDS people, the child health people, the naturalists, will all converge on Washington to assure they are represented in the package," he said.

"If you're not in that basic package, your livelihood is going to be threatened," Custer added.

Such Angst already is simmering. "The paranoia of my constituency is working overtime these days," conceded John Carson, chief lobbyist for the American Podiatric Medical Association, which represents foot doctors.

In designing a core package of benefits, the administration must not only strike a balance among high-powered, competing interest groups, but also guard against offering too much — or too little.

Too rich an array of benefits could bankrupt a system already teetering on the brink of collapse. Too skimpy a package invites a Faustian bargain: If people lack certain medical coverages, they are likely to delay seeking care until their illnesses require far more expensive treatments.

"If we are going to expand coverage so that everybody is covered, and have cost control, that means very simply that not everything that everybody wants is going to be covered all the time," warned Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo.

The contents of a basic benefits package will have an impact far beyond the estimated 37 million uninsured Americans who would be covered by such a plan.

That's because, as a way to help finance universal coverage, the administration may levy a first-ever tax on the health benefits that workers receive from employers.

A coalition already has formed to fight any effort to tax benefits at all.

Liquor control group streamlines process

By Sanjay Seth
City Writer

City officials said narrowing the hearings process of the Liquor Control Commission from a five-member panel to one person will lead to a more streamlined and efficient process.

City Attorney Michael Wepseic said a new ordinance, which was adopted Feb. 2, will move the hearings more rapidly.

"Previously, hearings were held before the entire commission," Wepseic said. "All five members heard the evidence and then made its own findings."

Under the new system, the commission will appoint a hearing officer who will hear the evidence and make a ruling.

The officer then will present a prepared report and make recommendations to the whole commission.

City Manager Jeff Doherty said the hearings will follow some sense of legal proceedings.

Doherty said the commission felt with this system it would be able to serve the licensee better.

Commission hearings usually would be after City Council meetings, and the meetings often have long agendas.

Commission hearings would be delayed at times, or hearings could be delayed several months after the violation because the council does not meet every week.

"With the hearing officer, we can be more expedient," Doherty said. "We are giving the licensee holder a speedier hearing in a better process."

Wepseic said in the new system, the hearing officer will summarize the testimony and present the key issues to the commission.

The commission can then do three different things — either accept or reject the hearing officer's recommendations, or accept some and reject some recommendations.

"The important thing is to note whether violations have occurred, and if so, what penalty should be imposed remains with the commission," Wepseic said. "Instead of wasting four to eight weeks when charges filed for hearing can be entertained, the hearing officer can meet the liquor license within a week or two."

Wepseic said people's memories in general tend to fade over a period of time.

"A shorter period of time will aid in testifying," Wepseic said. "Witnesses also have a tendency to 'disappear' over a period of time."

Wepseic said this would make it easier for the attorney for the licensee and the attorney for the city to locate witnesses and make sure they are present for the meeting.

Romantic flick shows 'bimbo' with big heart

Film Review

The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD—Caroline (Marisa Tomei) is a Minneapolis waitress who can't quite disguise her yearning heart. When we first see her, primping for a date with her steady, she seems like the kind of pert chickadee who wouldn't look out of place in any mall in America.

But then she's dumped by her boyfriend in the very next scene, and her bubblyness pops. It's not just that she's been rejected; it's as if her soul has been rejected. Her sudden deep-down sadness enlarges our perception of Caroline and makes us ashamed of having "typed" her as just another bimbo.

This scene is a clue to what's best about "Untamed Heart," the romantic drama directed by Tony Bill and scripted by Tom Stierchio. By all rights, a movie about a girl who finds true love with an orphaned busboy (Christian Slater) who needs a heart transplant should be a hoot. It's a unique premise—that doesn't mean it's a good premise.

And swatches of the film are indeed as goopy as one might fear. But what keeps the film together is Tomei's performance, and Bill's recognition that the emotions she's calling up are the real thing. She pulls you into Caroline's spunky despair without ever condescending to the character. "Untamed Heart" may be one of those "little people" love stories but we never think of Caroline in such terms. She's an original because Tomei brings a new-minded freshness to every moment, every gesture.

The scenes in the diner, with Caroline gabbing and roughhousing with her best buddy Cindy (the always spunky Rosie Perez), have an easygoing charm that captures the way people can turn their jobs into cabaret—as a way of keeping sane.

Adam, the busboy who, unbeknown to her, follows her home every night, is barely communicative. He seems puppyish: feral but non-threatening.

When they finally discover that they were made for each other, the romance acquires "Beauty and the Beast" vibes. The film (rated PG-13 for strong language, violence and sensuality) becomes a young girl's fantasy about a scruffy Prince Charming whose heart is literally breaking.

Last call: Cheers cast toasts 11 funny years

The Hartford Courant

HOLLYWOOD—It's a sad day for viewers when a show like "Cheers" goes off the air—but sadder still, have no doubt, for the cast and crew.

This spring after 11 hilariously memorable seasons, they're closing down "Cheers," the most famous bar on television, the Emmy-winning watering hole where everybody knows your name.

Millions of viewers have spent more than a decade belying up to the NBC sitcom Thursday nights. They've downed round after round of satisfying comedy in the Boston bar owned by former Red Sox pitcher Sam Malone (Ted Danson).

But now it's last call. So recently, series veterans George Wendt (barfly Norm Peterson), John Ratzenberger (postman Cliff Clavin) and Rhea Perlman (waitress Carla Tortelli LeBec) joined Danson and creator-producers James Burrows, Glen Charles and Les Charles on the set at Paramount Studios for a look back.

And though nobody was exactly crying in their beer, the mood on Stage 25 was tangibly melancholy.

Danson, quickly surrounded by a small group of reporters on his arrival at the bar, tried to explain—sometimes successfully, sometimes not—why he decided late last year to call it quits after this season, effectively canceling the show.

Soft-spoken and serious, as if he had just wakened from a Zen-like trance, Danson said, "I have no idea where I'm going, which is kind of the appeal for me of stopping. It feels like it's time for me to scare myself, and, I'm about to scare myself in a big way. It's not a career decision. It is not a personal, private family kind of decision. And it's certainly not my advisers' decision. It's just—I don't know—it's something inside of me that says that it's time for me to stop."

It was about this time that Ratzenberger walked in, saw Danson and shouted, in his most Clavinesque voice, what seems to be the underlying feeling of the rest of the cast.

"There he is!" bellowed Ratzenberger, pointing. "It's all his fault!"

A bit embarrassed, Danson laughed. "John, please," he said, and then continued his thought:

"I don't know that my transition is going to be easy," he admitted. "The kind of work I want to do, I have no idea whether they're going to let me do," he said, explaining he'd like to do something "a little more real than some of the work I've been doing."

He confessed to some narcissism: "I don't fear for my compatriots at all. I don't think anyone here has shot their wad or gone as far as they can go."

Indeed, Kelsey Grammer, better known as that too-tightly-wrapped shrink Frasier Crane, has been signed for a "Cheers" spinoff. (Look for his estranged wife Lilith, actress Bebe Neuwirth, to return soon.) And Wendt, too, has signed a deal with the network, though he won't necessarily be playing Norm.

But for Danson, the decision to leave "Cheers" obviously runs deep—even if he can't, or won't, quite put his finger on it. "There's too much in my life that's coming together, you know?" he said.

ORGANIZATIONAL HEALTH AND SUBSTANCE ABUSE

Tuesday, February 16, 1993

1:00 - 3:00 p.m.

Student Center Auditorium

Mr. William White, Director of Training and Consultation at the Lighthouse Training Institute in Bloomington, Illinois, has written over thirty-five articles and three books related to substance abuse issues. In this session, Mr. White will discuss trends in prevention efforts and intervention strategies in substance abuse for university settings. These trends and strategies will help prepare staff to make a positive difference in the alcohol and other drug issues listed by the Surgeon General as the number one health problem on college campuses today.

The RSVP project also offers training to SIUC staff as a part of an institution-wide effort to reduce the negative effects of alcohol and other drugs on campus. Presentations can be scheduled through Barb Fijolek by calling the Student Health Program Wellness Center at 536-4441. Mr. White is being sponsored by the RSVP (Retention of Students Via Prevention) grant funded through the Department of Education, FIPSE.

GOP preparing for debate

Republicans plan attack on Clinton TV speech, proposals

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—After 12 years of flanking a president from their own party, Republicans will be in the unfamiliar role Wednesday night of rebutting a Democratic president's televised address to Congress.

House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, Ill., who will give his party's official response to President Clinton's economic message, said his remarks will be "deliberately civil."

He said while he will raise questions about the Clinton economic program and other presidential decisions, including the effort to lift the ban on homosexuals in the military, Michel acknowledged he is cognizant of public perception.

"It would be wrong and politically stupid to launch an all-out attack on a new president," said Michel, whose speech will be broadcast live after Clinton's 9 p.m. EST talk.

As Republican leaders continue debating how to be constructive opponents, House Minority Whip Newt Gingrich, Ga., said Michel's response should "offer our thesis of where America has to go rather than try to be the antithesis of Clinton." Senate Minority Leader Robert J. Dole, Kan., said that when Americans leave their television sets Wednesday night, they should have a sense that "the Republican Party is alive and well" and can be an influential voice for the 57 percent who did not vote for Clinton.

While televised opposing-party rebuttals have become tradition when presidents deliver a State of the Union address or other message to a joint session of Congress, some Republicans are not eager to carry on that tradition.

"I think they've always kind of flopped," said Sen. Don Nickles, Okla. The public, he said, will "tune in to listen to the president and may or may not tune in to listen to opposing views."

Other Republicans question whether Michel, who at age 69 has been in Congress for 36 years, is the right spokesman to rebut a youthful president who campaigned on the theme of "change."

"My feeling is that Bob Michel is the old school," said a GOP consultant who asked not to be named.

Michel was not exactly begging for the assignment. When Dole asked him to "take this first one," a surprised Michel responded, "Well, thanks a lot."

Republican congressional leaders and their aides debated whether to assemble a panel of congressional experts to rebut portions of Clinton's speech, whether to use graphs and charts for emphasis (a la Ross Perot) and whether Dole and Michel should split the time the four major television networks have agreed to give the Republicans.

But they decided there was too little time for a grand production and that a standard sit-down speech "with no gimmicks and delivered in a conversational style," to use Michel's words, was the best option.

A Michel aide described the draft response as "fairly wide-ranging" but with a strong critique of Clinton's economic approach, including the GOP view that Clinton is not trying hard enough to find spending cuts to reduce the annual deficit.

Clinton encouraged by proposal to remove troops from Somalia

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—President Clinton said Saturday he is encouraged by reports that the United Nations is developing a plan to remove most U.S. forces from Somalia within two months, leaving up to 5,000 as part of a new multinational peacekeeping force under U.N. command.

Clinton, speaking to reporters as he started a White House meeting with members of Congress, said he "will do some work on that Monday." He did not elaborate.

"This does need to go from a U.S. mission to a U.N. mission," Clinton said of the effort to stabilize the North African country and deliver food to those suffering from starvation.

U.S. officials in Somalia expressed confidence Saturday that most U.S. forces could be removed at least by May.

White House officials said later that Clinton was referring to a report in Saturday's New York Times that U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali is near completion of a timetable to remove U.S. troops before April and replace them with 15,000 to 20,000 other troops.

These would include 3,000 to 5,000 U.S. troops specializing in logistics, communications and intelligence.

They said Clinton had no independent knowledge of such a U.N. plan.

At one point, there were nearly 25,000 U.S. soldiers in Somalia to safeguard emergency food delivery but the number now is about 19,000, Pentagon officials said.

U.S. and U.N. officials had said earlier, in a historic first, some U.S. troops would remain in Somalia under the command of Turkish Lt. Gen. Cevik Bir, the first time that U.S. troops have ever served in a U.N. force under the command of a foreigner.

The new force also will operate under the current U.S. rules of engagement, allowing a more active role in disarming armed factions than U.N. peacekeeping forces operate under in say, Bosnia.

Boutros-Ghali and U.S. officials agreed earlier on the need to switch from a U.S. force to a U.N. force, but the timetable for such a transfer of command has been unclear.

Lucas lets his team be itself; guides Spurs to top of NBA

Los Angeles Times

SAN ANTONIO, Texas—It is the afternoon of Dec. 18, less than two months ago. Red McCombs, in the neighborhood only because he has a meeting for a charity function, stops by the offices of the San Antonio Spurs, the team he owns. He runs into Jerry Tarkanian, the coach. Tarkanian asks if they can talk.

Tarkanian, 20 games into his first pro coaching stint after a very successful college run at UNLV, again urges McCombs to acquire a starting point guard, someone to run the offense besides Avery Johnson, waived by the Denver Nuggets in 1990-91 and the Spurs last season, or Vinny Del Negro, returning to the NBA after a year in Italy. This was at the heart of what discouraged the coach most during his 9-11 start, at the heart of why, the owner says, "Tark was convinced the 12 guys we had could not compete with .500 clubs."

About 20 minutes into the meeting, McCombs excuses himself to talk with Bob Bass. McCombs said he woke that day with no thought of firing Tarkanian, but now he was telling his vice president for basketball operations to explore some options. What were Bass' thoughts on Rex Hughes, a Spur assistant, or Stan Albeck, the team's coach in the early 1980s who still lives in town? And get John Lucas on the phone in Houston.

Lucas and McCombs had been friends for years and had often talked in detail about the league and its personnel. But never, both insist, did the notion of Lucas running McCombs' team ever come up. Now, suddenly, came the call from Dallas: "Are you interested in coaching this team? Are you interested in starting today?"

McCombs returned to Tarkanian while Bass called. McCombs excused himself again a few minutes later to check with Bass. Lucas had answered yes to both questions. McCombs went back to the other room and fired Tarkanian, 20 games into a three-year contract, in favor of someone whose only previous coaching experience was with the Miami Tropics of the United States Basketball League, and Lucas owned the team.

"I knew all my peers in the business would think I was the village idiot," McCombs said. "I knew that."

That notion lasted about a week. Today, McCombs is the village genius, San Antonio is in first place in the Midwest Division and unproven, unconventional, 39-year-old John Lucas is 22-3, the front-runner to be voted coach of the year. All while taking it one day at a time.

It is the night of Dec. 18, after Hughes had coached San Antonio to a 21-point victory over Dallas to improve to 10-11, good for third place in the Midwest, and shortly after Lucas has been hired. He is in the home locker room at HemisFair Arena to meet his players.

"He gets up to talk to them and says, 'You're the most out of shape team in the NBA.' That was for openers," McCombs said. "I bet on John's leadership ability. I saw it in the first two sentences of his first talk to the team."

Lucas immediately emphasized the transition game and coached his first game four nights later against Denver. The NBA has rarely seen anything like it on the sidelines. The coach turned one timeout over to Del Negro and walked out near midcourt. Later, he told Johnson to diagram a play during a huddle.

"I almost choked on my water," Johnson said.

That quickly became the essence of Lucas. He used the same principles to coach a pro basketball team that he used with the recovering addicts in the rehabilitation program he runs in Houston, putting the people in charge of their own lives. Lucas, a former No. 1 pick who played 14 years with six teams and is beating an alcohol and cocaine problem himself, has lived both roles.

Putting players in charge of timeouts has become a regular occurrence, although Lucas will preside in tight situations. They also run portions of some practices, occasionally give the post-game talks and assess fines. Most unusual of all, a committee of veterans has input on personnel moves, such as when they voted to activate injured Willie Anderson before he was ready to return rather than sign someone to a 10-day contract.

David Robinson is atop this new hierarchy, the CEO as Lucas constantly promotes his all-star center also serving as team leader. Dale Ellis and Sean Elliott are the vice presidents; Johnson, his play improving in line with the new responsibility, the secretary-treasurer.

Before anyone had time to question Lucas' technique, the Spurs took off. Victory No. 1 came that Dec. 22 night, a team-record 10-game winning streak followed. So did January victories over Phoenix, Utah, Portland, Chicago and Seattle.

"We needed to make up ground," Del Negro said. "We started poorly with no confidence, or very little confidence, and very little enthusiasm. We thought he was turning us into an extra-confident team."

Said forward Antoine Carr: "John brought excitement. Tark is a good coach, no doubt about it, and he always will be, but he was a little laid back I guess you could say. John is total energy."

Lucas? He wasn't sure what all the fuss was about.

"I'm getting out of their way," he said when asked what he is doing differently than other coaches. "I'm letting them have their team."

It was Lucas, after all, who went against the previous administration and declared Johnson more than fit to be his point guard, resulting in fine play, a very happy Robinson and Del Negro playing more at his natural shooting guard spot. Also not to be overlooked is Bass acquiring Ellis for much-needed shooting and, J.R. Reid for front-court depth.

tournament."

Firth's effort Saturday, which included 8 rebounds, as well as throughout her productive career in a Saluki uniform, drew the praise of Coach Scott.

"I think Kelly, in terms of her work ethic, is in the top three of any of the kids I have coached," Coach Scott said. "She has made the most of her talent."

Angie Rougeau and Rocky Ransom (11 points each), and Anita Scott and Robin Smith (10 each) also checked in with double-digit efforts.

The Panthers were paced by Julie Street's 14 points. UNI's leading scorer, Ann Miller (16.2 points per game), was held to seven.
