Weak budget worries new SIU president

By Sue Roll
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Despite the fact that Wednesday was only his second day on campus, David Derge, SIU's new president, looked completely at home.

Leaning back in his chair, with his feet propped up on his desk tray, he sipped coffee and smoked a few cigarettes as he talked about his impression of SIU and what he hopes to accomplish here.

He views dealing with SIU's financial pinch as his most immediate and pervasive problem. Derge said decisions as to the fate of SIU's participation in the Midwestern Conference, possible alteration in the governance system and whether to retain the University Senate veto over-ride power, will come later.

"I want to know more about all these things before I commit myself either way," he said. "I think it would be a great mistake to rush into any of these matters before having a complete understanding of them."

Old and new

It's all smiles for Robert G. Layer (left) outgoing SIU president and David Derge, incoming president. Layer will return to his post as chairman of the Department of Economics, while Derge tackles what he considers to be SIU's most immediate problem—the financial situation. (Photo by John Lopinot)

Derge said he sympathized with the legislature's difficult task of allocating limited resources to the many areas of social demands of which education is only one.

"It is easy to see the crying needs of your own institution and not see the other social demands people make on the state," he said. "It would be presumptuous to assume that a public university that doesn't get every penny it wants has a better case than the other areas of social concern."

Derge said although he understood the financial burden SIU's medical school has caused in view of SIU's failure to receive an increase in budgetary appropriations from the state over last year's allocation, he would not flatly say that the answer is a separate funding for the medical school until he has studied the problem further.

He said the current budgetary pinch on higher education is to a great extent higher education's fault. "In a sense

Nine new Intercollegiate Committee members appointed by U-Senate

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Executive Committee of the University Senate Wednesday appointed nine new voting members when it reconstituted the Committee on Men's Intercollegiate Athletics.

The new members of the Committee are Malvin Moore Jr., associate professor in higher education; Karen Craig, assistant professor in home economics; William Hardenbergh, professor in government; Jim Peters, junior in government; Michael Bernachi, graduate student in journalism; William Bleyer, assistant to the dean for student activities at the Vocational-Technical Institute; Edward Hammond, assistant to the president for student relations; and Jerry Lacey, chairman of the Affirmative Action Task Force.

The voting members of the old intercollegiate committee who will remain are James BeMiller, professor in chemistry; Willis Malone, executive vice president; Roger Spear, alumnus; and Norman Witman, undergraduate.

The non-voting members of the reconstituted committee are Donald Boydston, head of intercollegiate athletics; Elmer Clark, dean of the College of Education; and Albert Ede, alumnus. BeMiller will continue to serve as chairman.

The old committee consisted of six faculty, two students, three administrators, two alumni and one student-athlete.

The committee was scheduled to be reconstituted before the January meeting of the senate. At the January meeting, BeMiller recommended that SIU withdraw from the Midwestern Conference. The senate accepted his recommendation and passed a motion stating that SIU should withdraw from the athletic portion of the conference.

In other action, the executive committee appointed Robert Campbell, assistant professor at the Rehabilitation Institute, to serve as chairman of the Campus Management Committee. Campbell would replace Randall Nelson, chairman of the Department of Government, who resigned from the senate. Nick Astone, graduate student in the administration of justice, was appointed to serve on the management committee.

David Kenney, chairman of the executive committee, announced that William Lewis, chairman of the Governance Committee, is also going to resign from the senate. Kenney said Lewis had informed him (Kenney) that if he (Lewis) received an appointment from the Illinois Department of Conservation that he (Lewis) would be forced to resign. A new chairman was not named. Kenney said Lewis will serve until a new chairman is named.

Procedural disorders mar meeting

By Randy Thomas
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The SIU Student Senate accomplished little at its second meeting of the year Wednesday in a session marked by constant bickering over rules of order and operational procedures.

Chuck White, west side non-dorm senator, criticized Chairman Jim Peters for his inability to handle the meeting. He said that Peters repeatedly spoke out of order and interrupted senators as they spoke.

"If you show respect to the senators," said White to Peters, "then the senators will show respect for you."

Peters said that he was not the only person at the meeting who was out of order and said that future meetings would be more orderly.

Despite the disorder some business was accomplished.

George Camille, president of the student body, vetoed an allocation of $286 to the Student Advisory Committee (SAC). He based action on the fact that the Illinois Board of Higher Education has recently expressed dissatisfaction with the recommendations of the SAC and discontinued funding it.

He said it was wrong for the senate to fund an organization originally formed by the IBHE and originally funded by it.

Though it appeared the senators might override the veto on the recommendations of Gary Dickerson, a member of the SAC, no vote was held because the necessary quorum to override a veto was not present.

In other action, the senate granted a request of $100 to the Shawnee Mountaineering Club.

It turned down a request of $76 for Operation Gripe and tabled a request for $100 by "Theater Now" magazine.

Walker turns campaign guns on Simon and Daley

By David L. Mahsman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Independent Democrat Dan Walker, candidate for his party's gubernatorial nomination, slammed the Daley machine and chided his opponent, Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, during a brief talk before about 250 students Wednesday in the SIU Student Center.

Walker was slated to speak and answer questions in the Student Center for more than an hour, but cut the session short by some 20 minutes. The stop on the SIU campus was only a brief pause in a day filled with campaigning in Carbondale and Murphysboro.

In his talk to SIU students, the 44-year-old candidate criticized Simon for appearing before Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's machine slatemakers. He said Simon went behind closed doors with "these infamous men and begged 'Please may I run for the office of governor?'"

Walker told the crowd that he took his now-famous 1,197-mile walk through Illinois to dramatize taking his campaign to the people, not to the machine. He added that he also walked to meet Illinois citizens and sound out the mood of the state, but he dwelled on his independence of the slatemakers.

Illinois politics, as they are currently conducted, "have not done enough for real people needs," Walker said in explaining his reasons for remaining independent. He cited what he termed "Chicago priorities" as evidence of his contention. These included a $325 million extension of the Illinois Toll Road "from Aurora to nowhere" and a proposed $500 million airport in Lake Michigan.

"Illinois government can find money for these, but the same government says there is not enough for education or for welfare to help the poor," said the Deerfield native.

Walker termed his own priorities as "people needs." He rated education,

Black Jack, famed riderless horse, celebrates 24th year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Black Jack, the riderless horse of presidential funerals, Wednesday had a 25th birthday party highlighted by apples and cake and a greeting from President Nixon.

Black Jack's once black coat has faded to a brownish-grey but his hooves were freshly polished for the occasion. Mounted on his back was the black saddle and reversed boots in the stirrups that he carried in the funeral processions of Presidents John F. Kennedy and Herbert Hoover and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The oldest horse in the U.S. Army whinnied and snorted for the TV cameras and poked his nose in their lenses before settling down to a treat of butter pecan birthday cake—his favorite, according to the hostess—and apples.

Army brass and members of the Maryann Lee Club of Arlington, Va., were in attendance for the celebration in front of the horse stables at Ft. Myer, Va., just across the Potomac from the Lincoln Memorial.

mental health, welfare, health care and an anti-pollution fight as his top five priorities.

"We must be more concerned with people needs than with pouring concrete," Walker said.

After rapping Illinois politics in general, Walker aimed at the lieutenant governor, calling on him to honor a "commitment" to debate the issues throughout the state. Walker played a tape recording to the crowd of Simon saying, "I have indicated that I am willing to (debate) on any number of occasions. That's not a problem."

Simon's quote was taken from a telephone conversation between Walker and Simon Dec. 19 on Radio Station WMAQ in Chicago. The broadcast was to have been a two-hour discussion between Simon and Walker, but Simon failed to appear, and called the station only in the final 15 minutes of the broadcast. Walker said. Since Simon made his statement, Walker said the lieutenant governor has agreed to appear with him on only one half-hour television program in Chicago.

"My opponent should realize that not all Illinois voters live in Chicago," Walker said. "I want to meet Paul Simon all over Illinois."

Walker said that his conclusion from Simon's failure to agree to any additional debates is that he is "afraid" and "trying to cop out." Walker said that instead of regular debates, he would debate tapes of Simon. He explained that he would allow Simon to know where he would be speaking, but in the meantime would set a tape recorder on an empty chair and respond to Simon's comments on the issues as recorded in previous speeches.

After speaking out on Simon's failure to debate, Walker was asked if he would debate Pat Grogin, candidate for governor on the Socialist Labor Party ticket. He responded that there would be "no problem" in setting up a debate with Ms. Grogin as soon as her name appears on the ballot. Her name is not now on the ballot.

Walker was asked a barrage of questions by members of the Southern Illinois Women's Political Caucus. He seemed to satisfy the women with his views on day care centers, equal pay for equal work and the equal rights amendment. He said that if elected, he would appoint women to responsible positions high in his administration.

Walker was asked his stand on abortion legislation. He replied that it would be "idle talk" and "a waste of time" to discuss the issue while it is being considered in the courts. He said that as a lawyer, he feels that abortion laws will be ruled unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court.

Pressed for his personal opinion of abortion, Walker replied that he would say no more on the issue at this time.

Among the other issues Walker touched upon were:

—Aid to parochial schools. He said he knows the plight or parochial schools, but opposes a direct cash payment to the schools because he feels it would be unconstitutional.

—Higher education funds. Walker termed Gov. Richard Ogilvie's budget cuts for higher education "a meat-ax slice." He said that he would reverse Ogilvie's action.

—Pollution control. Being against pollution "is like being against sin," Walker quipped. He added, however, that unlike many politicians, he would not appoint heads of firms that pollute to the state Environmental Protection Agency. He also called for strong laws, heavy fines and good enforcement to halt pollution.

After his stint in the Student Center Ballrooms, Walker walked downstairs, greeted students and ate lunch in the Student Center cafeteria. From there he went to visit briefly with SIU President Robert G. Layer.

Walker talked privately for some 15 minutes with Layer. After the discussion, Walker said he had discussed the possibility of a board of economic advisers for the govern-nor. Layer will resume chairmanship of the SIU Department of Economics Feb. 1. Walker said, however, that he did not ask Layer's opinion on the matter.

Daily Egyptian gets new business manager

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Howard R. Long, director of the School of Journalism, announced Wednesday that William M. Epperheimer, business manager of the Daily Egyptian, has resigned his position to accept a post as publisher of the Mt. Pleasant, (Iowa), Daily News.

Long said that Epperheimer's successor is Adrian Combs, who has been working on the Daily Egyptian staff as assistant to the business manager.

Epperheimer served as Daily Egyptian business manager and as a lecturer in the School of Journalism for 6 1/2 years. He takes over his new post Feb. 1.

Prior to coming to SIU, he had been general manager of the University of Florida's daily newspaper and executive secretary of the Board of Student Publications there.

Epperheimer also has had experience in editorial, advertising and management positions with newspapers in Illinois and New York.

Epperheimer is a 1958 journalism graduate of SIU, and has been active in Sigma Delta Chi (SDX) professional journalism society. He

America must grant amnesty

The Vietnam war is different from all other wars in which the United States has been engaged. This war has turned out the highest number of men who have avoided or deserted from military service in Vietnam.

And with that increasing number comes a national debate on the question of amnesty for those tens of thousands of young men who felt that they could not participate in such a war.

At present, according to various statistics, there are 75,000 war exiles, most of them residing in Canada. Pentagon data list some 354,427 deserters from 1967-71 with 35,259 of those still at large. What is to become of these men?

The amnesty question is a thicket of thorny moral issues. Some interpret amnesty as a generous pardon from the government for youthful mistakes. Others insist that it is the government, not the exiles, that has made a mistake and should seek pardon.

Sen. Robert Taft, R-Ohio, has proposed a bill that would clear draft dodgers of any offense provided they are willing to spend three years of alternative public service—VISTA, hospital work, etc. President Nixon has rejected any discussion on amnesty while Americans still fight in Vietnam and while POW's are still held by North Vietnam.

Other questions that plague the issue of amnesty include queries as to who should receive amnesty.

The Taft Bill provides amnesty only for draft evaders, not deserters. And if amnesty is introduced and accepted, when should it become effective? Immediately or after all American troops are out of Vietnam?

Some government and military officials fear that an acceptance of any amnesty will result in the breakdown of the military system.

The military system is broken. Its purposes and ideals are no longer what they were in World Wars I and II. The pride men once took in defending their country—right or wrong—is now nonexistent. Men who have followed orders in Vietnam are now in stockades for war crimes. Punishment for obedience?

Spokesmen for those young men who have left the United States say that the majority of those men would probably not return were they granted amnesty. By returning they would be admitting that they were wrong to flee. Others have found better ways of life in other countries and prefer to remain. But that is not the question.

Why should those young men with premature insight into the immorality of such a war be punished? Those men have paid a high price by living in exile or hiding from their families and friends. They have done what they thought was morally right and for that, no man should be punished.

Alternative service is another form of punishment. It is demanding that a man serve this country, forgiving the United States for what it has done to fellow war exiles and to millions of Vietnamese.

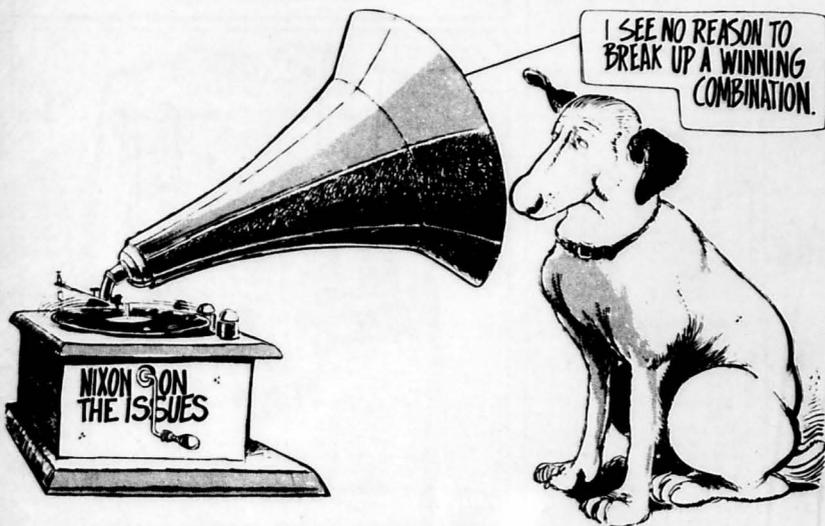

The word amnesty comes from the Greek word "forgetfulness." Amnesty should be a recognition that the moral equations on Vietnam are too complicated and too painful to drag on forever.

Amnesty, now or after the war, must include deserters as well as draft avoiders because the only difference between the two is that one perceived what might happen and chose to avoid it and the other never knew until he was already in the military.

And what of the 5,000 men in Vietnam now in stockades for committing war crimes? Amnesty must include them because the war in Vietnam has produced atrocities, special problems and endless dilemmas that no one ever thought possible. Any kind of reconciliation between the government and its people must include war criminals.

The only way to end the chaotic mess of Vietnam is to let all men come home under amnesty and to let them live—each in the manner he prefers.

Forced to move

To the Daily Egyptian:

The other day I received a call from home, and my parents told me that they received a letter from the dean of housing stating that I am being compelled to move into University housing because I am not a junior or senior. This, I believe, is an infliction against my personal rights.

Now the dean of housing has indicated that I have three choices. I can either quit school, move into University housing or try and obtain some real good excuse and bring it to a higher dean. The only excuse that I can think of is that I want to live in a tranquil and studious environment. I had my share of dorms last year and I need not say what is wrong with them. Even the University approved efficiency apartments have that prison-like atmosphere. I just want to live somewhere where I can study, play music and not worry about disturbing anyone, or them disturbing me.

Upon talking to a few sophomore friends of mine, I have found that the housing office is cracking down on many people. The reason for this must be that the University housing is empty. Should I have to suffer because some of the landlords around Carbondale have done better jobs at housing than the University people?

This issue tends to remind me of another issue last year, which concerned underclassmen having cars in Carbondale. This University rule was declared unconstitutional, and I wonder if this housing rule would pass a test of constitutionality. After all, 18-year olds now have the vote, a right to sign for a car, a right to own a house and many other rights. They should not have to be under any guardianship of a university.

Daily Egyptian missed point of gay caucus

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to say a few words in regard to the misreporting by the Daily Egyptian concerning the seminar hosted by the Gay Women's Caucus.

First of all, 60 women attended the seminar—not 40. If we cannot count on the Daily Egyptian to report accurately so cut and dried a thing as figures, how can we hope for appropriate coverage on finer points—such as emphasis?

Reading the Daily Egyptian, one is left with the impression that "homosexuality," a term which no longer even refers to women, was all that was discussed. At least two-thirds of the women in attendance at the seminar were of the heterosexual persuasion. Homosexuality was discussed mainly as it related to the structure of culture. The lesbian life style was discussed mostly in terms of its relevance to women's liberation.

Lesbianism was presented by the gay women in attendance as a valid life style offering both advantages and disadvantages within the present framework of society—advantages such as the freedom to base any role acquisition on personality components and not on any a priori assumptions such as birthright, and disadvantages such as the double oppression experienced by the lesbian in this culture—both as a woman and as a lesbian.

In short, life styles were compared and contrasted. Questions were asked freely, and all the women went away with an increased sense of relating openly to their sisters. This increased awareness of sisterhood among the women, an aspect completely ignored in the Daily Egyptian's coverage, was truly the important contribution of the seminar.

Experiences such as the women shared at the seminar are the beginning of true community and group consciousness among all women. Hopefully, a growing recognition of our common oppression as women and a growing pride in ourselves as women will strengthen our united stand against the divisive tactics of name-calling so popular in the past.

Peace bombers

By Arthur Hoppe
Chronicle Features

Once upon a time in the country called Wonder-land, there was a little group of left-wing activists called "The Bombers for Peace & Justice." It had six members.

For years, it blew up mailboxes and things and had lots of fun. But one day, its leader, Jack (Che) Armstrong, had a great idea. He snuck bombs into bank safety deposit boxes across the country, which was easy. Then he told the police where to find them.

This scared the Wonderlanders out of their wits. Next Jack sent a ransom note to the President:

"Dear Mr. President; We have planted bombs in 132 structures worth $47.3 billion and occupied by 276,642 people. Unless you release all political prisoners, we won't tell you where the bombs are or when they'll go off. So there! Yours Very Truly, etc."

"Gentlemen," the President grimly told the National Security Council, "we have no choice. The country's near panic. These fiends have us where they want us. Release all political prisoners. Whatever they are."

No one was more surprised by their success than the Bombers for Peace & Justice themselves. "Now," said Jack, "what will we do?"

"Let's go back to blowing up mailboxes," cried Sally (The Red) Koed, clapping her hands. "It was oddles more fun."

"Don't be silly, Sally," said Jack. "We're running the country now. If they'll release the political prisoners, they'll do anything we tell them to. At last we'll achieve Peace & Justice. It shows what a small band of dedicated people can do if they're willing to set off a few bombs."

So The Bombers for Peace & Justice sent the President another ransom note, demanding that he recognize Red China, double the dole and defrock Billy Graham.

But before the President could yield to these further threats, disaster struck. The Bombers for Liberty & Freedom, a radical right wing group with five members, sent him a note:

"Look here, Pres, any idiot can plant bombs. We've planted ours to blow up Cape Kennedy, The Kennedy Center, Mount Kennedy and other Commie spots. But we won't tell you where or when unless you make everybody under 30 get a haircut. So there! Patriotically Yours, etc."

The President, shoulders bowed, ordered the nation's barbers to stand by. Jack Armstrong was furious. "If you sell out our democratic heritage by knuckling under to a few Fascist pigs," he wrote the White House, "we'll blow up Hoover Dam, Hoover Library and the Hoover Vacuum Cleaner Factory. P.S. Legalize pornography."

Ransom note followed ransom note. In the succeeding months, the President issued and countermanded orders to invade Cuba, jail William Buckley, ban miniskirts, disband the Army, and make dental care, the captive nations and pot all free.

Finally the President could take no more. He sent himself a ransom note: "Dear Sir; I know where more bombs are than anybody. If anybody sends me another ransom note, I'll set them all off."

So the radical left went back to blowing up mailboxes and having fun. And the radical right went back to secretly drilling in the hills and having fun and the country returned to what is taken for normal.

Letter to the editor

Why doesn't Starrick play ?

To the Daily Egyptian:

Some loyal, concerned Saluki fans are trying to figure out why our All-America guard candidate, Greg Starrick is only getting to play 25 to 35 minutes a game.

You don't have to be a big time coach from Texas to realize the talent and ability of someone like Greg. He plays 25 to 35 minutes a game, averages 23 points a game, leads the nation in free throws and is always making key assists and steals to lead the offensive attack.

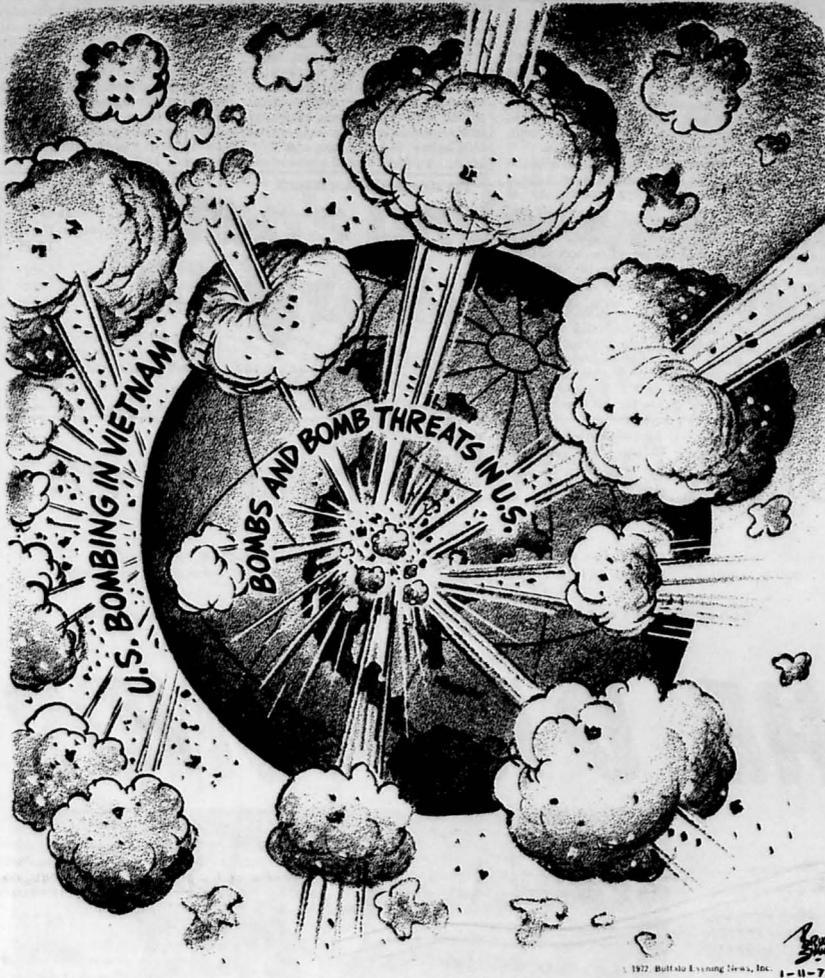

Even if his defense isn't the strongest, I've seen every home game the last two years and have yet to see his man contribute more to the game than he.

It's just hard for many of us fans to understand why we're the only school in the nation that has an All-America candidate that just plays part-time, especially in a close game like the one with Creighton.

His records in the past and that game speak for themselves.

Opinion

A fog of corruption

By Harry S. Ashmore
L.A. Times Syndicate

Milton Friedman, the conservative economist who recently parted ideological if not political company with President Nixon, has been arguing for some time that we have passed the point of no return in the appropriation of public funds for welfare purposes.

Lumping together direct welfare payments with such related items as housing and urban redevelopment, Prof. Friedman calculates that annual expenditures have reached $3,000 per capita for those officially classified as below the poverty line. Nevertheless, the poor continued to grow poorer during the period when we more than doubled expenditures for the so-called "war on poverty."

What this means, the professor points out, is that the money thus being extracted from the public purse not only isn't reaching the poor but is being used for purposes that actually contribute to further deterioration of the quality of life our affluent society imposes upon its bottom segment.

What, then, happens to the poverty funds? They are, as Prof. Friedman affirms, being siphoned off for the ultimate benefit of real estate developers, agribusiness combines and the providers of various goods and services—and for the maintenance of the swollen army of bureaucrats and political fixers who provide the channels through which the golden flood is diverted.

Prof. Friedman, true to his conservative faith, places the primary blame on the assorted do-gooders who try to promote social reform by the collective spending of public money. All this does, he insists, is provide the bait that attracts able and energetic operators and entrepreneurs from the private sector—who, under the laws of social Darwinism, are bound to take over the operation and shape it to their own interests.

Those of opposite persuasion reverse Friedman's chicken-and-egg order and argue that it is the materialistic Establishment's rapacious exploitation of the public sector that prevents any effective approach to resolution of the society's numerous and well-documented social ills.

The proponents of these polar positions tend to dominate what passes currently for political debate, and I suspect they are largely responsible for the confusion and apathy that has marked the early rounds of the presidential campaign. The typical voter is likely to find merit in both arguments and no indication that either points toward realistic solutions to the problems that concern him most immediately.

One inescapable conclusion, no matter what view one takes of cause and effect, is that the condition represents a serious breakdown in the political process. This is manifest in what John Gardner of Common Cause cites as tangible evidence of "a fog of corruption over Washington"—documented, name-calling press reports of preferential treatment and direct cash benefits involving corporate and individual campaign contributors and conniving politicians. The range is broad and nonpartisan, spreading across the executive and legislative branches and, increasingly, into the judicial reaches of the regulatory agencies and special courts.

Gardner reports that corruption is now the source of the major complaint he hears as he travels around the country seeking support for his "people's lobby." If that is so, it could be an encouraging sign that public opinion may yet force the wandering candidates to deal with matters that have been obscured by the politics of passion and the techniques of mass media campaigning.

Under the circumstances, the first thing the voter needs to know about any candidate is where his money is coming from.

Tournament Week events set, entries available

By Daryl Stephenson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Tournament Week, which begins Monday and continues until Saturday, is being sponsored by the Student Government Activities Council and the Student Center Programming Committee. All events will be in the Student Center, according to Bob Saieg, advisory consultant to the S.C.P.C.

All amateur undergraduate and graduate men and women in good standing are eligible to participate, according to Tournament Week regulations.

Winners will be awarded prizes and will have the opportunity to represent SIU in regional competition against other schools.

According to regulations, all competitors for regionals must have a 3.00 grade point overall as of January 1.

Saieg said that rules for each event are available in the Student Activities Center office, second floor of the Student Center. He said there is an entrance fee of $1 payable at the SAC office.

Entry forms for each event may be picked up at the Student Center bowling alley, the Thompson Point game room, the University Park game room, the Student Activities Center and the VTI Student Center. Entry forms for all events must be returned by noon Monday, Saieg said.

Here is a schedule of the Tournament Week events: bowling—preliminary games at 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday and finals at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center bowling alley; chess—games will be played at 7 p.m. Wednesday and finals at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Mississippi Room; table tennis—both singles and doubles, preliminary games at 7 p.m. Monday and finals at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Roman Room; bridge—all games at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Kaskaskia and Missouri Rooms; billiards—preliminary games at 7 p.m. Tuesday, finals at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the billiard room on the first floor of the Student Center.

The regional tournament will be Feb. 17-19 at Purdue University in Lafayette, Ind.

Group plans welcome for President Derge

By University News Service

David R. Derge, who takes over officially as University president Feb. 11, will be welcomed to the Southern Illinois area when he attends the annual meeting of Southern Illinois, Inc., at Carbondale Feb. 8.

The dinner meeting will be in the SIU Student Center beginning at 7:30 p.m. Derge will speak to the gathering during the evening. SII is an area-wide organization dedicated to promoting the development and economy of the area.

"The people of the area want to greet and welcome the new president and want him to become a part in the development of Southern Illinois," said Gofrey Hughes, SII executive director. "Southern Illinois appreciates what SIU has done for it in making the total environment better as well as providing a tremendous boost to the economy."

Choir group presents new look, sounds

The Southern Singers, a choir with a "new look and a new sound," will be making its first public appearance next month at SIU.

The new image, according to Robin Buckner, manager of the group, consists of wearing modern clothes and singing pop tunes as well as the classical music.

"We're a little different," said Buckner. "We don't go up on stage and hold our hands behind our backs. We're like a show choir, we move around."

The Southern Singers is a result of eight months work by Robert Kingsbury, director of choirs at SIU. The group has 31 members, both men and women.

The program includes two Renaissance motets and modern songs like "Never My Love" and "Close to You."

The concert will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 15, in the Home Economics Auditorium. There is no admission charge.

Correction

Because of an editing error, an article in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian combined WSIU-TV call letters (Channel 8) with the channel number (3) of WSIL-TV, Harrisburg.

The panel discussion at 9 a.m. Friday on Douglas M. Allen, assistant professor of philosophy, will be telecast on WSIL-TV, Channel 3.

New officers will be installed and appreciation awards are scheduled to be presented for outstanding service to Southern Illinois in general. Russell Davis of Benton will succeed Robert A. Reel of Marion as the new president. Other new officers are William Bowlby of Marion, secretary; and the Rev. Jettie Vaughn of Cambria, treasurer.

SIU student found dead

An SIU student was found dead in his room at about 12:20 a.m. Wednesday.

James J. Demmert, 21, of 510 S. Hays in Carbondale, had apparently been dead for between 24 and 48 hours when his body was discovered by Carbondale police.

Demmert was lying on his bed in the locked room, police said. No signs of violence were discovered. Police were summoned after Judy Criswell, a friend of Demmert, reported that he had not been seen for two days.

Demmert, formerly of Champaign and Mt. Prospect, was a junior at SIU majoring in radio-television. He transferred to Southern from the University of Illinois.

Cause of death has not yet been determined. County Coroner Harry Flynn said an autopsy would be conducted.

Board meeting will feature retirement system issue

By Sue Millen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Election of officers and funding of the state universities retirement system are two top priorities slated for Friday's Board of Trustees meeting.

The meeting will be held on the Edwardsville campus at 9:30 a.m. in the International Room of the University Center.

In addition to electing board officers, membership of the board's executive committee and board representatives to state and national educational organizations will also be decided upon.

State legislators have been criticized for not allocating the state's share in the funding of the state universities retirement system. The board will vote on a resolution urging legislators to appropriate the necessary funds.

Approval of a Doctor of Philosophy degree in rehabilitation, a request for Illinois Board of Higher Education priority amendments to personnel policies affecting civil service employees ranking for refrigeration Plant South under Phase I, and budget recommendations for the Board of Higher Education are also on the agenda.

For the Edwardsville campus several items are up for approval. They are:

—Change in student fees by increasing the University Center fee to $10.

—Approval of a Master of Science degree in nursing.

—Approval of a four-year Air Force ROTC program.

—Revision of admission, retention and graduation standards.

—Approval of a Master Land Use Map.

—Awarding a bid to the Foundation for Air Structure for the temporary physical education facility.

Men, ladies may share bathroom aboard ship

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women's lib may be getting ahead—at least aboard American flag ships. The head, or shipboard bathroom facility, for women crew members, is to be the same one that male crew members now use exclusively. The U.S. Coast Guard is proposing that women be allowed to share and share alike because it has found that segregating the bathrooms causes discrimination against women in crew selection—and it's just too difficult to add more heads aboard ship.

Current regulations for passenger, cargo, oceanographic and other miscellaneous vessels require female crew members to have toilet and wash facilities in separate spaces from those of male members.

The Coast Guard is taking public comment until Feb. 18 and will issue its ruling a month after that.

A spokesman for the National Maritime Union in New York City said some ship companies use the bathroom restriction rule to hire primarily all-male crews by complaining not enough space is available to have separate facilities for women.

Capt. G.H. Read, deputy chief of the Office of Merchant Marine Safety, said the demise of several huge passenger-carrying ships in the past few years has led to a high competition between men and women for jobs as stewards or in dining rooms on remaining vessels.

The Maritime Union, which has petitioned the federal government to erase the segregated bathroom rule, is seeking to help unemployed women who had worked aboard passenger ships and who now seek stewardess or kitchen jobs on tankers or freighters.

"It's wrong to think the crews will be divided armed camps with the men fighting for the affections of the women," said the Maritime Union spokesman. "A seaman should be judged on his or her qualifications.

One's sex should not stand in the way."

Read noted that commercial airliners use the one-bathroom-for-both-sexes policy for both passengers and crew, and it doesn't deprive anybody of privacy because there is a lock on the door.

Two Roads

Of't I don't know which way is best;
Two roads point forward as a test.
I claim the right to choose the one
That God would have me travel on.
I do not know what lies ahead
But I remember what God said,
"Just trust in Me, I'll bring you through I'll be with you what'er you do."
I pause for light to find the way
Lo here, lo there while it is day.
Then I reach out and grasp his hand
And boldly seek a distant land.

Beulah Bell 1961

If compared to a rose, she's the sweetness in it; if compared to a tree, she's the strength it holds; if compared to the world, she's the hope, dreams and the true beauty in the universe today.

But to look at her, she's just an ordinary 84 year-old grandmother who's trying to get her collection of poems published. She's an ordinarily simple woman, but in her presence, it's like being with royalty. She's an extraordinarily active woman for her age who feels that her 84 years have not dimmed her zest for living nor her quest for the truth. And live it she does.

She's Mrs. Beulah Bell whose philosophy is, "I've got to do some good for somebody; I've got to reach somebody. And whatever I do, something good always comes from it."

It is quite obvious that Mrs. Bell is one of the rare people in her age group. Able to overcome her hardships, sicknesses, and thoughts of aging, her energy now is being channeled into getting her collection of poems published.

One of her channels was Jack Fenoli, a graduate student in Community Development at SIU. Working with senior citizens in the Mt. Vernon area, Fenoli heard Mrs. Bell recite some of her poetry and was impressed. He in turn, contacted Miss Jessie Hailey of University Services at SIU. She too was impressed and is now in search of publishers for "Two Roads," Mrs. Bell's collections of poetry.

But where to begin the history of her 84 years? She remembers fondly her elementary school days on a big farm near Cape Girardeau, Mo., where she jokingly added, "We busshed on foot eight miles a day, four going and four coming—winter too."

When she was 23, she left her home and lived in Logansport, Ind. and in 1918 came to Mt. Vernon, married and gave birth to two sons, Damon and Felix. After her first husband died, she married William Bell who also preceded her in death.

"They all die on me," she added jokingly. "I even thought of marrying again a few years ago, but he died as well," she said, "so I gave up the thought then."

One of her first works was the "Negro Soldiers Blues" in 1918, a song she wrote for her brother. As she tells it, black men were not allowed to join the service in the First World War. Consequently her brother couldn't enlist, and that inspired her to write the protest song.

Not only does she write lyrics and poetry, she also—among other things—writes articles, plays the harmonica, is contemplating writing a book about her father and grandfather; she sings and keeps herself busy making creative objects for herself and friends which, as she puts it, "Helps fill up your life."

She is a strong believer in a superior force that puts "powers around us so we can do anything we want to do."

"I've found that power and step by step, I've used it. And I'm satisfied," she added.

Mrs. Bell has always been active in community affairs in Mt. Vernon. She was in the forerunner of the Mt. Vernon PTA which was called the Education Advancement Society at the local school. She worked with Homefinders (finding foster homes for children), created a nursery school for working mothers, has appeared on TV talk shows and talks enthusiastically on the black history she's experienced with her family, friends and other black people in the Southern Illinois area.

The eloquence written in the introductory words to her collections of poems puts her philosophy well:

"I offer not magniloquence for my reader to be stumbling over, but I may worry you a bit with too much sentiment. Just try to remember that I am gliding down memory's lane from the vantage point acquired from a full and happy life—my 84 years have not dimmed my zest for living nor my love for my family, my God and my country. I am responsible if too much bad feeling, insincerity, shallow sentiment or foolish depth of affection for people betray me."

U.S.—China discussion cites future relations

By Elmer Lewis and David Brenner Student Writers

The nature of future relationships between Communist China and the United States was outlined Tuesday by Oliver Caldwell, professor in the Department of Higher Education.

Caldwell spoke on the "Future relationship between the People's Republic of China and the United States" at the Air Force ROTC lecture series.

He said that on the surface not much of anything would happen immediately. "There has been a gradual shift and breakdown of communication between Peking and Washington," he said.

Caldwell listed four aspects that, according to him, have contributed to the existing relationship between the two countries.

He said the initial American influence in China was much too reactionary.

"As far as I'm concerned, this was the greatest mistake Americans made," Caldwell said.

Another aspect, Caldwell said, was an ethnocentric outlook adopted by both Chinese and American peoples.

"One of the obstacles between Chinese and American relationship is social arrogance on both sides," he said.

The third aspect, Caldwell said, was a split personality attitude Americans possess. He said Americans resist involvement in the Chinese affairs, but also often show interest in that direction.

Finally, Caldwell blamed the American government for the existing tension with China. He said that in the department concerned with foreign affairs there is no insight whatsoever to produce a viable relationship.

Commenting on President Nixon's visit to Red China in February, Caldwell said, "What can come out of the President's visit? I wish I knew. There is equal opportunity for political distaste or success."

He said what may happen is a gradual shift to a non-official U.S.—China axis.

Caldwell said this would strengthen the U.S. disarmament effort because "the Communist world would split."

On the other hand, Caldwell said, there may be a complete breakdown between Peking and Washington "which could very well lead to World War III."

Caldwell said relations between the two countries could deteriorate if "Mao's enemies got the upper hand," or if there is a shift in alliances over the Middle East. He said the Chinese would like to "make themselves felt by imposing a Chinese peace in East Asia."

Caldwell, a former dean of International Services at SIU, is a Chinese born American. He holds three doctoral degrees.

Program is as unusual as its 7:47 p.m. starting time

By Kent Mattox
Student Writer

A fine arts intermedia production entitled "Media Interface—American Impressions" will be presented by students and faculty of music, art, design, theater and film production departments at 7:47 p.m. Jan. 28 in Lawson Hall.

Allen Oldfield, assistant professor in music and coordinator of the program said the program is as unusual as the 7:47 starting time points out. The purpose of the program is to bring all the arts together. Areas that will be involved include art, design, film production, theatre, and music, said Oldfield. "This is definitely a first because there has never been this many areas tied in together," Oldfield commented. "I've been to a lot of weird programs in my life, but never anything this diverse."

The various facets of the show will occupy all of the first floor of Lawson Hall.

One of the unusual things about the program is the way all things will be combined. "There will be a variety of approaches to everything," said Oldfield.

"The main concentration in one room might be on film production," he explained, "but will also involve some other areas such as music and design. At the same time in the next room the concentration might be on music."

"One of the highlights of the program will include some audience participation programs where the audience, by their own responses, will control some of the happenings," said Oldfield.

Also nudity will be included in some of the programs, he said.

One of the largest pluses for the program, Oldfield feels, is the combination of faculty and students working side by side to make the production possible.

Besides Oldfield, others responsible for planning the event include Will Gay Bottje, professor in music, Jim Sullivan, assistant professor in art and Patric Bétaudier, associate professor in art; Larry Shustak, lecturer from design; Craig Hinde, assistant to program director in film production; and W. Grant Gray, assistant professor from the theater department.

Faculty Council makes selections for panels on grievance hearings

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Faculty Council Tuesday recommended appointees to three panels of five members each to hear grievances on non-reappointment of nontenured faculty members.

The members of the first panel are Russ Trimble, associate professor in chemistry; Scott Hiners, professor in animal industries; Erwin Atwood, associate professor in journalism; Mary Jane Grizzell, assistant professor in music; and James Parker, instructor in educational administration and foundations.

The second panel consists of Betty Fladeland, professor in history; John Mercer, professor in cinema and photography; Robert Graff, assistant professor in guidance and educational psychology; Edward McNichols, instructor in English; and Vernold Feiste, assistant professor in electrical sciences and systems engineering.

The third panel is composed of Florence Foote, professor in physiology; Miriam Dusenbery, from the Reading Center; Steven McNeel, assistant professor in psychology; Robert Davis, associate professor in cinema and photography; and C. Addison Hickman, professor in economics.

The motion to create the panels passed unanimously.

Thomas Pace, chairman of the council, emphasized that the names listed are only recommendations. Pace said approval would be needed from either Willis Malone, executive vice president, or Issac Brackett, vice president for academic affairs.

The panels will hear specific cases arising from budget cutbacks, Pace indicated.

A special panel was formed to hear a tenure case involving a faculty member in linguistics.

The members of the tenure panel which were recommended are Marvin Kleinau, associate professor in speech; William Herr, professor of agricultural industries; Ed O'Day, instructor in history; JoAnne Paine, assistant professor in government; and Malvin Moore, professor in educational administration and foundations.

The council also agreed that Anna Carol Fults, professor in home economics, and Larry Taylor, assistant professor in English, should serve on the Extra Pay Panel.

In other action, the council received a report from the three faculty representatives on the Presidential Selection Advisory Council.

In the report, the representatives told how the council was formed and operated. The report said that information on 24 persons was presented to the advisory council for screening. From this, the advisory council chose ten who were to be interviewed off campus. According to the report, David Derge was one of the people interviewed.

The report went on to say that five candidates visited SIU. One of these was Derge. Following a check with various references, the advisory council's executive committee presented the council's findings to the executive committee of the Board of Trustees. The report stated that two of the five candidates withdrew, and the board then made its selection from the remaining three.

The report was made by Milton Edelman, professor in economics; Harvey Fisher, professor in zoology; and Randall Nelson, professor in government. Fisher and Nelson are chairmen of their departments.

Before recessing, the council considered four legislative proposals made by the Faculty Status and Welfare Committee.

Approval was given to a motion allowing faculty rank for administrators provided that approval is received from the department chairman in accordance with the department's operating procedures.

The council defeated a motion concerning continuing and term appointments. The committee recommended that the standards regarding these appointments be applied uniformly without regard to academic rank. The committee also recommended that term appointments not be used when the appointing unit has reason to believe that it will reappoint the appointee.

Approval was given to a motion establishing notice standards for the nonreappointment of faculty members. For people who are term appointees and are in their first or second year of service, notice must be made no later than Dec. 15. If the appointment expires during the year, a notice must be sent six months in advance of the termination date.

After two or more years at SIU, a continuing or term appointee would be sent a notice 12 months before the termination date.

Finally, the council rejected a motion concerning the regularization of faculty titles. The motion would have given the title of professor, associate professor or assistant professor to all the persons assigned to instruction or research who have received a doctorate degree or its equivalent. The rank of instructor and lecturer would have been given to all persons assigned to instruction or research who had received a master's degree or its equivalent.

Peters files petition for March primary

By University News Service

James Peters of Quincy, a junior majoring in government at SIU said he has filed a petition to have his name placed on the Democratic Party ballot for the March 21 primary election.

Peters, who is seeking a delegate seat as a representative of the 20th Congressional District, is vice president of student government at SIU.

He said that he will run as an uncommitted candidate because he feels that "too many things can happen between now and the time the convention starts in July...No one is sure who all the candidates are now, nor does anyone know who will be left in the race by then."

Peters said that he is concerned about the outcome of next November's election, but he is optimistic that young people will take a serious part in the political system in 1972.

"I hope my candidacy can serve a dual purpose," Peters said. "I hope that the new voters...will give me support...and by accepting my candidacy and by giving me the opportunity to be heard in Miami, this 'more experienced electorate' will prove to young people that they are willing to accept us into the political realm."

Peters has held positions in student government as president of Schneider Hall; student senator in 1970 and was elected to his present post as vice president of student government in 1971.

Peters plans to attend law school upon his graduation from SIU and eventually hopes to become involved in politics.

Dan Walker

Dan Walker, independent Democratic candidate for governor, visited SIU Wednesday. Walker spoke at the Student Center (above) criticizing the Democratic machine. Walker then made use of the walk-and-talk campaign style he has made famous. He visited Synergy, drug crisis center, (middle) and he visited other points of the campus, including the Home Economics Building (right).

While working toward his degree at the SIU Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections, Kotch worked with the Carbondale Work Release Center and most recently was assistant supervisor and employment coordinator.

The Aurora facility will be the sixth to be opened by the Illinois Department of Corrections. The purpose of the centers is to provide a transition from prison to free society for inmates who are within six months of parole or release. The centers provide not only work experience but individual and group counseling.

Black History Week

The Friends of Distinction to appear at SIU Arena

By Richard Koselke
Student Writer

Roberta Flack and The Friends of Distinction will appear at the SIU Arena at 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 5, in conjunction with Black History Week.

According to Bill Searcy, assistant manager of the SIU Arena, tickets will go on sale at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 25, at the arena. There will be two lines, one for block tickets and the other for regular tickets.

Applications will not be required to obtain block tickets, Searcy said. Ticket sales at the other regular ticket outlets, Penney's, Tempo and the central ticket office in the Student Center, will begin that afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Miss Flack, who records on the Atlantic label, is said to be one of the rising young black singing stars in the business. "Her newest album, 'Quiet Fire,' is reported to be doing very well on the sales charts," Searcy added.

Miss Flack will be accompanied by her own combo. She plays piano, David Williams plays bass and Bernard Sweetney plays drums. They will perform music ranging from jazz to rock.

The Friends of Distinction will be backed up by their own group and will open the show. They record on the RCA label and have had such hits as "Grazin' in the Grass" and "Going in Circles."

Miss Flack has a degree in music education from Howard University and has taught school for seven years, six of those in Washington, D.C. She was graduated from high school at 15 and received her degree from Howard University at 18.

While teaching in Washington, D.C., she moonlighted by singing in area night clubs. She was discovered while performing at Mister Henry's Pub on Capitol Hill and was offered a recording contract.

The concert will be performed in the round with the use of the circular stage. Ticket prices are $3.50, $4.50 and $5 for the general public and $3.50, $4 and $4.50 for SIU students.

Committee functions unanimously approved

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Governance Committee of the University approved Tuesday a motion placing the functions of the Committee on Convocations and Commencement under the Campus Management Committee.

The vote on the motion was unanimous. Approval followed a meeting with Wilbur McDaniel, chairman of the commencement committee, and Andrew Marceec, secretary.

During the meeting, Marceec and McDaniel told the committee members that the commencement committee handles only two functions—Honors Day and graduation. Both Marceec and McDaniel emphasized that their committee has nothing to do with convocations.

Approval from the senate is needed for the motion to go into effect. Presently, the commencement committee is a presidential committee.

The governance committee deferred action on the study of the Board of Trustees, because Jim Storzum, senate intern, was not present at Tuesday's meeting. Storzum has been assigned to the committee to collect information.

A letter from James BeMiller, chairman of the Committee on Men's Intercollegiate Athletics, was presented in response to a request for a statement concerning to whom the intercollegiate committee might report. No action was taken.

A question of black representation on the senate was postponed until the next meeting.

Previously, a suggestion was made by William Simeone, former president of the senate, which would allow the Black Faculty and Staff Council two seats on the senate in much the same manner as alumni are now represented.

Discussion of spectroscope set for Friday

"A Treasure Hunt in Sulfur Vapor by Matrix Spectroscopy" is the topic of the upcoming seminar sponsored by the Department of Chemistry and Biochemistry.

The seminar will be held at 4 p.m. Friday in Room 218 of Neckers Building, T.V. Oommen, who is currently doing post doctoral work in the SIU chemistry department, will be the guest speaker.

Oommen will discuss the use of the spectroscope for examining sulfur vapor in the Pacific Northwest area of the U.S.

Allyn evacuation nearly complete

By University News Service

Evacuation of the Allyn Building, second oldest on the campus, will be completed within the next three or four weeks, according to space allocation authorities.

The building, constructed for the University Training School in 1908 and occupied since 1954 by the School of Art, is to be remodeled at a cost of $500,000.

A number of art departments—painting, drawing, printmaking and sculpture—have been relocated in temporary quarters in Pulliam Hall and the Chautauqua Street barracks. Others are in former residences owned by the University and in the leased former Glove Factory. Herbert Fink, director of the school, now has his office in 0839 Chautauqua Street barracks.

Soon to be moved are the ceramics, metalsmithing and glassblowing programs, for which permanent quarters in the industrial education wing of Pulliam Hall are being completed. However, kilns and furnaces that have been ordered for the new facilities have not yet arrived, according to William Boyesen, instructor in glassblowing.

The largest art work involved in vacating the Allyn Building is the monumental outdoor architectural sculpture grouping executed under a commission from the University's Architectural Arts Program. Completed in 1970, it has been stored in the Allyn Building pending funds for installation on the campus.

"Since it would cost almost as much to move it into other storage," said John Baker, assistant to the president for planning and review, "it will be installed on the campus as originally planned."

The 11-piece grouping of free-standing complementary forms, ranging from 6 to 14 feet in height, will go in an open area between Lawson Hall, Wham Building and the Morris Library parking lot.

Remodeling of the 63-year-old Allyn Building, named for Robert Allyn, first president of the University (1874-1892), will include addition of an elevator-stairwell wing on the south side, a revamped heating and electrical system, air-conditioning, ramps to accommodate wheelchair students and a sculpture exhibition court.

When remodeling is completed, it will be reoccupied by the School of Art (with the exception of the ceramics, glassblowing and metalsmithing studios) until such time as a new art building can be built. The remodeling is planned to facilitate conversion to a general classroom facility thereafter.

The Allyn Building was the fourth permanent structure built on the campus, after Old Main No. 1 (destroyed by fire in 1888), Old Main No. 2 (built in 1887) and Wheeler Library (1896). With the destruction by fire of Old Main No. 2 in 1969, Allyn became the second oldest.

For 46 years it housed SIU's training school (or model school) enrolling children from the elementary-high school, providing the means for teacher-training students to observe and practice the act of teaching.

'Budget is biggest problem' -- Derge

universities have done all as well as they should in explaining what they are doing in building a great university and what it means to the people directly," he said.

"For too long the University has said 'We need X amount of dollars, now give us this money, rather than saying 'if you wish the following things for the men and women in your family, we will need the following amount,'" Derge continued.

This approach worked for a while during the great expansion of higher education in the 60's, Derge said, but now the people need to know what higher education is all about. Derge called the student body, faculty and physical structures on campus the University's greatest assets.

"Students, really, over the long haul are the ones who establish the reputation of the University in the body politic," said Derge. By what they do, say and accomplish, they demonstrate whether the University is doing its job."

He said SIU's campus, buildings and facilities are more adequate and useful in serving the needs of students and faculty than is the case in most other universities.

"The faculty I have met here appear to be not only fine professionals and the type who try to do their best in the training and education of students, but they also see SIU as something they can commit themselves to and help build," said Derge. "I think this is very important."

Derge said he could not give any indication of his attitude toward the University Senate veto until he has investigated the governance system further. Indiana University, where he served as executive vice president before coming to SIU, does not have anything comparable to the SIU senate's veto power, Derge said.

Concerning athletics, Derge said he thought it is important to have a well-rounded university, and athletics is a part of this. Derge said it could be a mistake either to commit too much of a university's resources to athletics or to completely abolish intercollegiate athletics.

"The basic purpose of a university is academic," said Derge. "But I think it would be an error to sacrifice a diversified sports program for one or two major sports only."

Derge's academic area of specialization is political science.

He said he was drawn into this area because it was exciting to him. "I guess I became intellectually fascinated with the subject," he said.

He first became interested in teaching as a graduate student and teaching assistant. "The first time I walked into a classroom I knew this was what I wanted to do. It was the most satisfying thing I had ever done."

Although Derge has emphasized that his ties with partisan politics are over, until fairly recently he was very involved with politics and the Republican Party.

While in Bloomington, Ind., a group of citizens, including Derge, became fed up with what they considered to be a totally ineffectual, unresponsive city government. Their efforts to change the situation resulted, for one thing, in Derge serving a four-year term as city councilman in Bloomington.

"It took a lot of time but it was a fascinating experience," Derge said. "I learned a great deal about the practical ins and outs of political science from it. And I think I was a better teacher and political scientist because of it."

In 1968, because of some work he had done in polling research methods, Derge was asked to set up a national survey research center in Washington for the Nixon presidential campaign.

After this was done he returned to Indiana, but his affiliation with national government was not over. In the four years that followed he was offered several national government posts, including assistant secretary of state, director of the Bureau of Census, assistant secretary of interior, and deputy commissioner for higher education.

He declined all these offers because, he said, "I thought I could be more useful in an academic institution. This is what I think I do best."

In fact, Derge said, he had absolutely no intention, at first, of leaving Indiana to come to SIU as president.

"When I talked to members of the University's presidential selection committee first, I had no desire to leave Indiana," Derge explained. "The interesting thing is that what brought me where I am sitting today is that the University turned me around on that subject and made me want to come here. I was enormously impressed without being prepared to be."

So Derge turned down Washington and came to Carbondale. "I think I made the right decision and I'm very happy to be here," Derge said. Derge said he didn't expect the controversy over the method of his appointment to cause him any particular problems. Some individuals and groups within the University had charged that the Board of Trustees overlooked the recommendations of the Presidential Selection Advisory Council and said that Derge had not been among those recommended by the council.

"I'm president as of Feb. 1 and I want to be the best president I can for Southern Illinois University."

Derge said he didn't expect any particular obstacles because of the controversy since he was not involved in the selection process at all except as a candidate, but he acknowledged that there may be some individuals in the University who will wish to carry on the controversy.

"All I can do is give every ounce of professional experience and know-how accumulated in my 20 years as an educator, just as I'm sure faculty give deeply of themselves in their responsibilities," said Derge.

Derge said he did not see SIU's powerful Board of Trustees and chief of board staff to cause problems by diluting his power to actualize what he feels is best for the University.

He described the chief of board staff and Board of Trustees as being very capable and devoted men who want the best for the University. "I want what's best for the University, too," he said.

Derge chuckled and briefly glanced around his temporary quarters in Anthony Hall. "It looks as if this is going to be 18 hours a day, too, if yesterday is any indication of what university presidents do after they have dinner," he commented.

Aside from his academic and administrative pursuits, Derge is a music lover. His musical tastes run in a classical vein and he names Mozart as his favorite composer.

"But I've received a fairly extensive education in jazz and rock from my son," he commented. Derge's son, David, is a percussionist majoring in music at Indiana University and currently plays drums in a band. Derge's daughter, Dorothy, is a junior in high school in Bloomington and will remain there for the rest of the school year.

Derge says he loves to be near water, does a lot of swimming and enjoys learning about other cultures through travel and study.

He said he used to be an avid squash player, but added "I haven't even had a racket in my hand for four years, anyway."

Derge doesn't foresee too many days off in the near future but said he would most likely spend his first free days exploring the people and places of Southern Illinois.

Testing Center begins college exam program

By University News Service

The Testing Center has been designated an Open Test Center for the College-Level Examination Program (CLEP), which means candidates tested can have scores reported to colleges and universities of their choice.

Previously the SIU test battery was used on an institutional basis according to Harley Bradshaw, National Testing Center coordinator with offices in Washington Square.

Bradshaw said CLEP, which began in 1965 with a national system of placement and credit by exam, has objectives that include: (a) provisions for exams that can be used to evaluate college-level education regardless of how it was gained; (b) provision by which entering and regularly enrolling college students can earn placement and credit by exam; and (c) aid to adults in order for them to meet license and certification requirements, and assistance to military personnel on active duty in their taking the general examinations through the United States Armed Forces Institute.

Bradshaw said that while both general and subject examinations are available at open CLEP test centers, credit is awarded for only the general examinations on the Carbondale campus. Questions related to awarding credit, he said, should be directed to Sue Eberhardt, admissions and records, Woody Hall.

General exams consist of tests in English composition, mathematics, natural sciences, history-social sciences, and humanities. To obtain a descriptive and registration brochure on the CLEP test series, inquiries should be directed to Testing Center, Washington Square, Building C. SIU at Carbondale. Test sessions are scheduled monthly with prior registration required three weeks before the session. The 1972 fees for two or more CLEP general examinations is $25.

U.S. phantom jet downs enemy MIG in air fight over North Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Navy Phantom jet shot an enemy MIG21 from the skies 170 miles deep inside North Vietnam on Wednesday in an air campaign steadily mounting in intensity. It was the first MIG shot down in 22 months.

The engagement came as B52 Stratofortress launched the heaviest raids in nine months in South Vietnam, and fighter-bombers attacked the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos to blunt an expected enemy offensive. The nuclear carrier Enterprise, back from the Indian Ocean, sent its planes into action against enemy supply lines. She was not involved in the battle over North Vietnam.

The command said the action began when eight surface to air missiles and fire from anti-aircraft guns were aimed at five American planes near Quang Lang airfield, 170 miles north of the demilitarized zone separating the Vietnams and 155 miles south of Hanoi. One of the planes suffered minor damage, but all returned safely to their carrier, the Constellation, said Maj. Robert O'Brien, command spokesman.

Four jets were accompanying an unarmed Navy reconnaissance plane when the enemy missiles and anti-aircraft fire opened up. The escorts returned the fire.

Four minutes later, a Navy Phantom appeared, caught the MIG21, fastest in North Vietnam's air arsenal, with air missiles and sent it crashing.

The MIGs are being sent out to harass American strikes at the Ho Chi Minh trail, but only a few have been sighted at a time.

The last MIG shot down was on March 28, 1970. According to U.S. Command records, 112 MIGs have been shot down by U.S. fighters compared to 50 American planes downed by the Soviet-built interceptors.

Swimmers have Ohio coach in dark and it worries him

By Ernie Schwelt
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Ohio State swimming coach John Bruce is in the dark and as far as he can see, it is not going to get any lighter until after Southern Illinois' swimming team leaves Columbus Saturday after its dual meet with his Buckeyes.

Like most people Bruce doesn't like being in the dark and to be honest, it worries him. "I really don't know what kind of meet to expect," Bruce said by phone Wednesday, "SIU has really got us worried."

Southern has five great swimmers and there is just no way to get around them. In fact we are all sitting around up here trying to figure out how we can hedge around them."

If it sounds like Bruce is giving up the meet before the first event, forget it; especially with the host of talent he's got swimming around the OSU pool.

The Buckeyes are led by freestyle and sprinter man Bill Catt, Reed Slavin, diver Todd Smith and breaststroker Gary Grunau, all of whom were NCAA qualifiers last season and helped OSU to their ninth place finish. Southern finished eleventh.

The only loss Ohio State suffered due to graduation was diver Mike Finnerin and that's some loss. In 1973's national meet Finnerin finished second behind Phil Boggs of Florida State in the three-meter competition.

Southern will enter the Ohio State battle with a 1-1 dual meet record, a first place finish at the Illinois State relays and a second place finish last weekend at the Sooner Invitational.

The Saluki victory came over Wisconsin, 58-54, while losing to a tough Michigan team at Ann Arbor.

Recordwise the Buckeyes are off to a fast start rolling to a 3-1 mark with victories over Purdue, Kent State, and Cincinnati while losing to

"Our times against Indiana were really poor," Bruce said, "and we haven't looked good in practice since. I think we were tired from Purdue."

Beating the Boilermakers apparently meant a lot to the OSU swimmers but following up the next week with Indiana and then SIU isn't easy.

"We worked hard to beat Purdue," he continued, "because we felt we could beat them. Of course we knew we couldn't beat Indiana, but there was no sense in holding back; then of course there's SIU."

In last year's SIU-OSU meet the Salukis came up with a 63-50 upset in the Pulliam Pool. But as far as this year goes, well Bruce is still in the dark.

"If our boys can get back into it, then we can make it a close meet, but if they can't...well I don't know what's going to happen. I really don't."

Guard averaging 21 points

Boynton leads freshman scoring

Six freshman basketball players are scoring in double figures as the Salukis enter mid-season.

Ricky Boynton, a 6-1 guard from Columbus, Ga., is currently the team's scoring leader averaging 21 points a game.

Boynton is being challenged by improving forward A.J. Willis with a 19.2 average. Center Joe Meriweather, a 6-10 205 pounder, follows averaging 17.7.

Tim Ricci, a guard from West Frankfort, is averaging 14 points followed by guard Jim Gower with 12.3 and Feltn Chinn averaging 10. Meriweather leads in field goal accuracy after six games, 531 per cent while hitting 41 of 65 attempts, and in rebounds, 15 a game.

The Salukis host Florissant Valley and Paducah junior colleges Saturday and Monday nights, respectively, in the SIU Arena.

The Salukis are currently averaging about 96 points a game while holding opponents to around 79.

The statistics exclude pickup games against the SIU Alumni and Breckinridge Job Corps Center which Southern won.

A two-year hunt ended Tuesday night when Lionel Antoine was named the greatest contributor to football prestige ever at Southern Illinois.

It was two years ago that the NCAA instructed SIU to name such a person. But, at the time, football coach Dick Towers, athletic director Donald Boydston and former athletics coach-administrator Glenn Martin could not determine a worthy recipient.

But because of the notariety that Antoine has brought to Southern Illinois this year, he was given the award and a three-minute standing ovation.

Antoine's award and a host of others

Antoine biggest boost to SIU's grid prestige

were made during the annual football banquet, held this year in Trueblood Hall.

Charles Canali received defensive lineman honors with Dick Smith earning offensive lineman honors.

Brad Pancoast and George Loukas tied for co-offensive backs of the year.

Loukas and Mark Otis were inducted into the Victors Club.

David Reid was judged the year's best receiver with Terry Anderson getting the nod at linebacker. Russ Hailey received defensive back honors.

The Red Helmet Award, given to the scout team member who shows greatest dedication, went to Gary Graham.

Antoine and Pancoast were recipients of the Gold Helmet Award. This honors the team's co-captains, named by the coaches at seasons end.

The most valuable freshmen were running back Bob O'Neal and flanker Willie Turner.

pullout dilemma

That Southern Illinois will work its darndest to withdraw from the still infant Midwestern Conference is a virtual certainty. Everybody says so, mostly off the record. Nevertheless, departure appears more imminent everyday.

Nearly five months ago, July 27, 1971, the Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics got the ball rolling with unanimous approval of a motion calling for withdrawal.

Supposedly, all head varsity coaches have voted to withdraw, according to a Jackson County Alumni Association letter sent to the Board of Trustees this week.

Ten days ago, the University Senate approved a recommendation to the Board for withdrawal by an 18-14 count. Remaining members of the 50-man Senate abstained or were absent.

The close vote, which received much unwarranted publicity, indicates not all non-athletic types support leaving the five-team league. But actually, the University Senate need not concern itself anyway.

As structured, that intra-campus body has no voice in any matter dealing with intercollegiate athletics, according to Warren Brown. He is assistant executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

U-senate lacks ratio

Brown said SIU's University Senate lacks proper faculty-administrator percentage membership to rule over this institution's NCAA-affiliated program.

And furthermore, two letters outlining the rules discrepancy were sent to President Robert G. Laver before the vast Governance System-University Senate conglomeration swallowed the Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics.

"I've repeatedly called this to their attention but, you know, they've gone ahead," said James BeMiller, chairman of the Intercollegiate Athletics subcommittee.

"We'll see what happens from here. I think this means more trouble for us." In simple majority votes, all that was needed in the recent Senate decision, the NCAA states 51 per cent of the governing body's members must be teaching faculty or administrators.

Of the Senate's 50 members, only 22 qualify, according to the NCAA. Soon-to-be-replaced Laver is the lone eligible administrator. Impending presence of future president David Derge will not alter the ratio.

Can accept advice

Apparently, that would leave all decision making to BeMiller's athletics sub-committee. But Laver sought Senate advice anyway.

He did insist, however, that BeMiller's sub-committee will "maintain independence in all matters where the NCAA deems it necessary."

That is a safe statement considering NCAA rules assume only one body, excluding a Board of Trustees, will administer intercollegiate athletics.

It doesn't say who should decide a conference membership issue. And leaves the president open to accept advice from one, both or neither party. As Laver said any president would be free to do.

BeMiller considers the conference membership question a matter for his committee and not the Senate.

And so it goes. Apparently everybody wants to leave but none are really sure how to go about the task.

A good man to ask might be conference commissioner Jack McClelland. He nearly went to the Big Eight a few months ago. And with the five soon to become four probably wishes he had.

Lindner faces Japanese in gymnastics meet

By Jim Braun
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Another round of internationally-flavored gymnastics competition awaits Southern's Tom Lindner in Evanston, Sunday night.

Lindner is one of six gymnasts who will be representing the United States as they take on a Japanese team in a dual meet slated for 7:30 p.m. in Northwestern University's McGraw Hall.

The Japanese squad, which hopes to represent their country in this year's Olympics set for Munich, made a shambles of a dual meet with another U.S. gymnastics team in Los Angeles, last weekend.

According to Bill Meade, SIU gymnastics coach, the Japanese completely dominated the six events by frequently scoring in the 9.7 and 9.8 point range.

"The six gymnasts from Japan this weekend are also liable to finish in the top six at this year's Olympics," Lindner said.

The record books reveal that Japanese authority in the sport has no boundaries. Results at Mexico City in the 1968 Olympic games show that Japanese gymnasts finished in six of the top seven places after the final all-around competition was completed. Only a third placed by a Russian kept Japan from perfection.

The U.S. group includes Kanati Allen, the only one with previous Olympic experience, Bob Dixon, Rich Swetman,

Agile beauty

Paul Tickenoff, George Greenfield and Lindner. The SIU gymnast is the only member that still has undergraduate status.

Lindner has previous international experience during his college days at Southern. He competed abroad for the U.S. on four different occasions last year, including encounters with the Soviets at Riga and at the 1971 Pan-American Games where he placed sixth all-around. He has already qualified for the semifinal round of May's Olympic trials in Berkeley, Calif.

Frazier found West 'offensive'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jerry West, "Mr. Clutch" as he's called in Los Angeles, and Walt Frazier, "Clyde" to New York Knicks fans, played a little one-on-one basketball the other night.

West won.

The whole thing was over in eight seconds actually, but the one-basket duel staged by the guards with the contrasting style's had greater significance. It gave the West All-Star team a thrilling 112-110 victory Tuesday night over the East in the 22nd National Basketball Association All-Star game.

West is a premier scorer, once plogging in 63 points in a single game, the all-time record for a backcourt man.

Frazier (a former Saluki star) is a three-time member of the loop's all-defensive team. Their dramatic battle came with the score tied and nine seconds left on the clock at the Forum.

"I had very good position on him but what can I do?" pleaded Clyde. "This guy is just fantastic."

West took the inbounds pass from Oscar Robertson and dribbled as Frazier hounded him. The Laker guard backed to about 20 feet out and let fly with a jumper just as Frazier stuck a hand in West's face.

"On that last shot, we played Jerry very well but what can you do against a guy like that? He's amazing," said losing Coach Tom Heinsohn of Boston.

West was named most valuable player in the game, his 11th, and most observers believed it was justly deserved. Even so, the West team trailed by 10 points at halftime, 64-54, and came back primarily on the strength of some superb shooting and all-round play of Phoenix forward Connie Hawkins, a nonstarter. Hawkins and West each had 13 points, Connie getting six in the crucial third period.

The West team led 87-84 after three periods and only the late-shooting heroics of Boston's John Havlicek and Dave Cowens gave the East late hope. Cowens shot with 14 seconds left tied the score, setting up West's winner.

Frazier and Havlicek each had 15 for the losers.

Winning Coach Bill Sharman of the Los Angeles Lakers, had praise for West, saying, "He had at least seven steals and was just fantastic on defense."
