3 new plows, team of 44 clear campus

Snow removal crews were on campus at 5 a.m. Wednesday to clear the two-inch accumulation that fell during the night and throughout the morning in Carbondale's first snowfall of the season. Duane Schroeder, who heads the University's snow removal team, said 11 cars were on site by 8 a.m., about the time students and staff began arriving, the major roads and most of the walkways had been cleared by a dozen people using three new snow removal trucks purchased after last winter, Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services, said. The emergency snow route, a predesignated path between the Health Service, on-campus housing, food service operations and other locations, was cleared first, Schroeder said. Part of the route includes roadsways on campus that would be used by fire trucks and ambulances in an emergency. The rest of the clearing was done by concentrating on smaller areas of the campus. In each area, ramps needed for wheelchairs were cleared first. Campus parking lots were not cleared because they were already full when the crews finished clearing pathways. "We're in a lot better shape than we've ever been with the new equipment," Dougherty said. In addition to the three trucks, which were used mainly to clear roads, the crew used three snow blowers and a tractor with a snow attachment to clear sidewalks. Schroeder said, A mixture of salt and sand, and icemelt, a sodium chloride compound, were strewn on stairways, sidewalks, and at pedestrian crossings, Dougherty said. Dougherty said Physical Plant employees worked until 5 p.m. Wednesday. However, he said if the snowfall continued during the night, they would be out again early Thursday morning. By 6 p.m., about 4 inches of snow had fallen in Carbondale, and the SIU-C weather station at the Southern Illinois Airport predicted that another 1-2 inches would accumulate by midnight. No snow is predicted for the rest of the week, and temperatures should warm into the early 40's by Saturday.

Last January, Carbondale had 17 inches of snow. Schroeder said he first received a snow forecast from Weather Central in St. Louis at 6 p.m. Wednesday. West disappointed with NCAA decision

By Chuck Hempestad
Staff Writer
"It was a sad day in Washington, D.C.," Women's Athletics Director Charlotte West said Wednesday of a recent NCAA decision to create national championships for women in live sports. West, who was in Washington for a convocation of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, reported to the intercollegiate Athletics Committee that the NCAA's action in effect forced women's teams to align with only one of the governing bodies (either the NCAA or the AIAW) to be able to comply with the differing requirements. The women's sports in question are basketball, tennis, volleyball, field hockey and swimming. The requirement will take effect in the fall of 1984.

W. D. Kilimstra, SIU-C's delegate to the NCAA national convention in New Orleans, which ran concurrently with the AIAW convention of Jan. 6 to 9, said the action was "pushed through" by Division II and III schools. Kilimstra said the small schools favored the NCAA because the schools were "male dominated," more familiar with the NCAA, through the movement to save money, and deduced that the NCAA would pay travel expenses for women's team during championship events because they now pay for men. The problem with the travel expense issue, Kilimstra said, is that, "The NCAA doesn't have any additional money."

"In 1967, the NCAA wasn't interested in women's sports," West said, "so the AIAW was formed. Now the NCAA is trying to out-cooperate (women's athletics). The AIAW has asked the NCAA for a five-year moratorium to study the problem without having to constantly worry about an overthrow." In reporting other matters of the AIAW meeting to the IAC, West said the limit of women's softball scholarships was increased from 13 to 15 to allow for an extra pitcher and designated hitter, both required for tournament play.

West voted against both increases in the number of available scholarships because of the additional cost involved.

Kilimstra reported that the NCAA convention was "no exception," other than the discussion of women's athletics and a unanimous decision (among those who did not exist to protest) to support President Carter's proposed boycott of the Summer Olympics in Moscow.

The SIU Board of Trustees has granted the right to appeal the inclusion of an Edwardsville faculty organization in collective bargaining.

Feirich said the order he received from the appellate court in June was "totally unexplainable, with no reasoning whatsoever." It was granted. "Obviously, they decided that there was a serious problem," Feirich said.

The order said the brief on behalf of the board will be due in 30 days, "at which time the court will decide if they will file their brief." In addition, both parties will have 30 days to reply to each other's brief and after that oral arguments will be scheduled, he said.

"After that, it will be late summer or early fall before a final decision is handed down," Feirich said.

Charlotte West has been at SIU-C for 22 years. She has missed only one basketball vacation this year, she said her office "was in the worst condition ever.

West said with the other 11 women's athletics teams and 42 physical education classes, the building was in the worst condition.

The building, which has never been renovated, is No. 15 on the Board of Higher Education's list of priority projects.

"We are proposing a $3.8 million renovation, which will be the worst condition for the gym," West said.

West said the problems range from poor lighting and old wiring to leaking ceilings and warped floors. "The electrical system is so bad that we can't even run the projector at the same time. My knowledge of electricity is limited, but I know it's gotta be very dangerous," she said.

Kennedy campaign contributions up after Carter's State of the Union talk

By Jeffrey Smyth
Staff Writer

President Carter's State of the Union address last Wednesday has spurred pledges of support and money to the Kennedy for President campaign, according to Terry Michael, deputy director for the Kennedy for President Committee in Illinois.

Michael said the Kennedy organization is receiving an increasing number of calls and contributions by people who object to Carter's stance on domestic and international issues.

"Carter has had soft sentiment in the last few months by people who wanted to show patriotism because of the international crisis," Michael said. "We are seeing a real change now because many people believe that the President is bringing us close to a military conflict."

"A lot of students are objecting to the reinstatement of the draft," he said. "A lot of parents are expressing the same opinion."

Michael said the Kennedy organization, which stopped paying staff members across the nation because of insufficient funds, will decide at later date when payment to staff members will begin again. He added that the Kennedy campaign is focusing its attention on the Northeastern states because of the two Ft. ruary primaries in that region.

"Eight right now the 17 staff members in Illinois and all others across the nation will continue to work without pay," Michael said. "The campaign has spent little in the last week because of what happened in Iowa. Money is coming in but we'll have to wait and see. Just this week the national committee on received $85,000 which can be matched by federal funds, but the financial resources will be going into the Northeastern states. When we start doing in Illinois is to energize a constituency and also volunteers."

Although the Kennedy organization has tightened its budget, Michael said the Illinois campaign has generated about $500,000 and has spent considerably less than that. All money received goes into a national fund and allocated from it.

Richard Durbin, downstate Illinois coordinator for the campaign, said that response to the President's speech has increased contributions from Central Illinois as well as downstate. He said that though funds were cut, it will not stop campaign activity in the downstate area.

"After the cuts," Durbin said, "We had people come to us who we didn't even know supported Kennedy and hand us checks and say, 'What can I do to help?'"

"We're with the national committee before the cuts and planned to raise money through the delegate slate committee. The cutback has only made it a little more difficult for us."

Newton plant upsets SCAM

By Dean Albaes
Staff Writer

The announcement earlier this week that Central Illinois Public Service would extend construction of its half-completed coal plant near Olney until December of 1982 has become the most recent development in a feud between the company and the Newton community. The Newton Movement, a citizens' lobby group for utility reform, SCAM claims the $350 million Newton II Unit is capable of producing 35 percent more electricity than is needed in the area, and the plant will be the cause of five million rate increases. CIPS officials, however, say the plant is part of a long-range plan and will be needed "sometime after 1982." According to SCAM, the first of CIPS' large plants, Newton I, was built to project a 30 percent increase in electricity usage, but organizers say the plant, which went "on-line" in 1977, still produces a 35 percent surplus of electricity that is now being sold to other power companies and energy utilities.

"CIPS was wrong in all their predictions," Mary Kay Bachman, a SCAM organizer, said. "They aren't monitoring closely enough by the Illinois Commerce Commission. We feel that the company's goal is to have its customers pay to have surplus generated." (Unquoted on Page 9)

6 diplomats home from Iran

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — The six Americans who escaped Iran with the help of the Canadian embassy returned to the United States on Wednesday. Air Force officials said:

"They will be spending the night and will meet with their families at the air base tomorrow," said Maj. Robert Groom, press information officer at Dover Air Force Base.

Groom said the diplomats would not be permitted to meet with reporters here, but would go to Washington on Thursday and appear Friday at a news conference at the State Department.

Early Wednesday State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the escape diplomats — Mark and Cora Li Jek, James and Kathy Haffer, Henry Lee Schatz and Robert G. Anders — would be given time to recover from their ordeal.

Carter said the department wanted to make sure that the escapes were not put in danger that might endanger the Americans held hostage in Iran.

Iran upset by Canada's action

Iran's foreign minister, angered by the daring Canadian rescue of six Americans trapped in Tehran, said he expects the U.S. Embassy hostages to suffer for Canada's "duplicity."

The estimated 60 hostages "most probably" will now be treated more harshly. Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said, and the responsibility will be Canada's.

Ghotbzadeh, at a Tehran news conference, denounced the secret Canadian operation as a "flagrant violation" of international law and warned that retribution would be exacted from the Canadians sooner or later.

But the Moslem militants who have held the embassy and hostages for 88 days refrained from immediately endorsing Ghotbzadeh's threat of tougher conditions for their captives.

Oppose peace time registration

Shades of Richard Nixon... It's really interesting to find that Jimmy Carter could steal a play from "Sgt. Bilko". In this new role of Carter's, the President has proposed to consult the Carter Administration's State of the Union Address in which he said that our present armed forces were adequate to meet our nation's needs: but to do behold, we need to reinstate the draft anyway.

I strongly urge each and every SIU-C student to actively oppose this peace time draft registration. Let's not be ignorant of the abuses of presidential power that accrued immediately, cries of "Hell no. I won't go." begin to be sounded by these same mouths that a few months earlier were crying for the marines to overrun Iran.

There are obvious inconsistencies in here that the situation in Iran did not affect our national security, only our pride. Yet more importantly, certain students here are willing to sit back and stand by while the world war as long as there is someone else bearing the cost.

I think that before anyone advocates any form of military action, one must first consider the cost of such a venture in terms of human lives and then decide whether or not the reasons for such an action justify the action.

If a situation does arise that it becomes necessary for us to take military action thereby warranting the draft, I feel it is the responsibility of those who are able to help in any way they can. —William R. Alwood, Sophomore, Political Science

SPC concerts set up only for whites

The fall of 1979 was a good semester for concert entertainment here at Southern. All concerts, vocal and instrumental, were sponsored by the Student Programming Council. The organization should be commended for obtaining such stars as John Lennon and the White Album. The concerts were sponsored by the White Album and the White Album and the White Album and the White Album and the White Album.

How long has it been since the SPC sponsored a concert for black audiences of the community and guest of the students? Are only white students here being used for the planning of these events? If so, there should be an enormous amount of refund for the period that no black oriented concerts were held. It appears that blacks are not represented when the SPC prepares the concert schedules. This is the start of a new decade, therefore, the Student Programming Council can clean up its act before someone else does it for them.

Give this man a hand

I am outraged! Why should the past 21-year-old crowd be maliciously branded the cattle by the motley barroom artists I am referring to the green, black and red stamps, smears and signs that are forced upon us as we enter our favorite watering holes. Not only are they hideous, but they are a bear to remove.

The last thing my bloodshot eyes want to see on weekend mornings is a roadmap of last night's travels. Twenty-one-year-olds unite! Stop the mad destruction before they obliterate the back of the hand we've come to love and respect. — Kurt Boyle, Junior, Political Science

The spirit of Tom Paine...

Editor's Note: The following essays were the winners of the "Spirit of Tom Paine" writing contest conducted at Murphyhows and Caradale schools.

What America means to me

By Natalie Hille

Murphysboro Jr. High

American means liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Thomas Paine strived for these rights of man, for men of his day and future generations to come.

"The sun never shined on a cause of greater worth," Paine said, "than in the affords Opposition to the glories of a city, a state, a province or a kingdom; but of a Continent. Is not the concern of a day, a year or as age: but forever or even to the end of time?" said by Thomas Pain, our forefathers fought for independence and won. If it had not been for their proclamation by Thomas Paine, as Thomas Paine, we could be living under the rule of a king or dictator today.

When we were given life, we were given liberty. Thomas Paine believed that the rights of man were granted by God, not shackle nor brand in the side of others. But he would if it meant expressing my own outlooks on living. The spirit of Tom Paine is what will bring our great country stronger.

Mr. Paine was correct when he stated that every generation must meet its own needs. Government exists to secure the safety, happiness and safety of the governed. The future will not be met with the same rights and liberty of the people to replace the unworthy. Government cannot enjoy freedom, if he does not work for the freedom of others.

I may never become well-known or be found in history books, and I'm young, perhaps that com comparing to that of the great Thomas Paine, to whom we are so much; but I would like to express one of my outlooks on living. I believe that we are made to bring back the spirit of Tom Paine to today.

Thomas Paine's advocate

By Nancy Okita

Caradale High School

Freedom is the religion: freedom of speech; freedom to think, and feel and express one's own opinions. Freedom to live one's life as the ideal upholding by Thomas Paine, the famed advocate of American independence, and a persuasive agitator of the American Revolution. Paine was very active in the moderate and persuasive campaign against King George III and the government of Britain for their rights to freedom and equality, which equally established a nation based upon the revolutionary concept of the inalienable rights granted by Thomas Paine, to whom freedom is all.

For, without his urgent insistence for rebellion instead of reconciliation with the mother country, the time for rebellion might have been prolonged, and freedom to America so desired might not have been obtained.

We received the precious gift of freedom, liberty and equality through the noble, unwavering deeds of Thomas Paine and his compatriots. Unfortunately, however, Paine was not able to help the people in this gift of civil liberty; he left that job to us up. We have succeeded in maintaining the former government he supported, but it is still ruled by the people.

It seems to me that we have become removed from the government, if only slightly. We have grown apathetic. Paine wanted us to take the precious gift of freedom granted for granted. I concede that we have progressed in terms of individual rights, and that many of us do uphold the rights of our citizens, but God forbid that we should ever do the upchuck of individual rights. But, we seem to be less truly unified in this cause which we once possessed. Instead of one people working towards the same goals, we have different goals and Paine's ideal of liberty and equality for all men, America has become a divided country: not three, but two for number one. "We have become too materialistic; too willing to be led by the spirit of continually battling for the government's improvement."

If we are to return to the high standards set by Paine, we must utilize our greater knowledge and make it the possible way to achieve international peace, and aid in the growth of mankind. To do this we must strike a balance between conflicting interests and our own, and for our causes of our national as a whole, for only then will we be able to uphold our goals, and fulfill Paine's belief that "not a place on earth might be as happy as America".
Hank Williams Jr. set for DeSoto

By Rod Smith
Staff Writer

Hank Williams Jr., a former country and western singer who is emerging as one of the top performers in southern rock music, will present a concert at 9 p.m. Feb. 10 at DuMaroc in DeSoto. Tickets are $10 in advance and $15 at the door.

Williams, who is the son of country music legend Hank Williams Sr., first played in public when he was 8 years old. Three years later he appeared on the stage of the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville.

A versatile musician who plays guitar, fiddle and keyboards, Williams began his career singing mainstream country music, which included his father's popular ballads.

Wanting to break away from traditional country music and escape from being labeled "Hank Williams' Son," Williams left Nashville and the recording executives who wanted to milk the Williams image for all it was worth, and moved to Alabama.

With the help of Toy Caldwell of the Marshall Tucker Band, Chuck Leavell, then of the Allman Brothers Band and Charlie Daniels Band, Williams recorded "Hank Williams Jr. and Friends" in 1975. The album introduced a rock-oriented southern sound.

Rolling Stone magazine called the album "marked his emergence as a major contemporary artist—and his own man."

Soon after the album was recorded, Williams fell 500 feet down a mountain side in the Montana Rockies, shattering most of his face. He was in critical condition for six days and had to undergo major surgery several times. Doctors said he might be unable to perform again at the time of his injury.

Williams recovered and continued playing his new-found style music. He recorded "One Night Stands" and "The New South" before being nominated for a 1979 Grammy Award for Best Country Male Vocal Performer for his album titled "Family Tradition." Williams' latest albums, "Whiskey Bent and Hell Bound," and "Family Tradition" were recently named on Billboard Magazine's Top 15 album chart.

Williams recently completed his autobiography, "Living Proof," accompanied by his group, the Bama Band, he also taped a segment for the movie "Bonnie."

Recycling of University oil

By Judy Shane

SU-C Pollution Control will begin an oil recycling project this spring that will help satisfy proposed Environmental Protection Agency regulations on the disposal of hazardous wastes.

In the past the University has packaged used oil in large barrels. The barrels are hauled to land fills and covered with dirt. In time the barrels begin to rust causing oil to leak. The oil is then sent to a central site for experimental acid clay distillation method.

The oil recycling project will be staffed by Tim Goodman, graduate assistant in pollution control. Goodman has targeted the SU-C Travel Service as the site for the pilot project that will begin sometime this spring. Pollution Control will gather the used oil from the Travel Service and transport it to new facilities who will perform the recycling process. In order to get a higher price for the oil, Pollution Control may do some type of filtering to remove the heavier particles, Goodman said.

"The money obtained from selling the oil to private buyers will probably go to Pollution Control. But the most that could be made is a few hundred dollars," Goodman said. There are several processes used in recycling oil for future use, he said, one way being the acid clay distillation method. The oil is first treated to remove water. The de-watered oil is then sent through clay called fuller earth," Goodman explained. "The rest of the oil will pass through and be treated with acid. This process is repeated until the oil is purified to a certain standard."

The standards for refined oil have been set by the military and the oil is sold to private companies as refined oil for experimental purposes.
Clerical attitude OK'd by court

NEW YORK (AP) — Because the last five years have shown a shrinking respect for religious leaders, a judge says, it's no longer constitutional to prohibit clergy-lawyers from wearing clerical attire before a court.

To do so puts a "substantial burden" on the guaranteed free exercise of religion, ruled New York State Supreme Court Justice Hugh P. McMahon in an unusual decision both analyzing trends of the times and up-setting a higher court's previous ruling.

The decision marked a victory, at least temporarily, by the Rev. Vincent La Roca of Brooklyn, in his long fight for the right to wear clerical garb when defending poor clients as a lawyer for the Brooklyn Legal Aid Society.

A previous ruling by a higher court four years ago held that a Roman Catholic priest-lawyer could not wear his clerical collar before a jury because that might influence sentiment in his favor.

The new ruling, which changes that, still faces further challenge.

"Libraries have the responsibility to preserve books for posterity, just as museums have the responsibility to preserve art objects," said Carolyn Clark Morrow, head of the Morris Library conservation program.

The 75-year-old conservation program was initiated through a two-year National Endowment for the Humanities grant and employs four full-time staffers and 13 student workers to repair and conserve library materials.

Undergraduate library books require more extensive repair because of the heavy use of that library, Morrow said, but research materials receive more concentrated conservation.

Periodicals are important research material, she said, because they constitute current information of any field. Between 1,000 and 2,000 magazines and books are bound every three weeks at a commercial bindery at a cost of $80,000 a year.

"Just because we become a university in 1869, down the line we don't have older books," she said. "We have books from the 1600s, from when we became a teachers college in 1869, and we buy old books, as well as new, to complete collections.

"The first job the conservation department tackled was to take the Scotch tape off of a collection of papers by John Dewey, an American educator and philosopher, whose works are the subject of SIU's Center for Dele Stinger.

Each month 300 to 400 library books are repaired by the department and 100 custom-made boxes are constructed to protect rare books from light, light, pollution and temperature extremes, Morrow said.

"We use these boxes for the 18th and 19th century books," she said, "since these books would lose some of their historical significance if new bindings were put on."

The department recently completed leather treatments, which must be repeated every five years, on 5,612 books from the humanities division and 1,500 leather-backed books from the special collections.

They will begin on the leather book covers in the social studies division this spring.

Yellowing and embrittled pages are caused by acid residues in paper made after 1880, when wood pulp was introduced into papermaking.

Prior to 1840, low demand for paper allowed it to be made of pulp from cotton rags, which was sturdier.

De-acidification is now a costly and time-consuming project where each page must be dipped in a special solution, but many de-acidification methods are presently being perfected, Morrow said.

Environmental controls are the best form of preventative medicine, she said, since heat, light and humidity are the main factors in preservation.

"The wrong humidity can cause brittleness of pages or mold," the five-year veteran of library conservation said, "Ultraviolet light from the sun or fluorescent lights is harmful to books, and 16 degrees of heat can double or halve the life of a book.

Mary Schobert, a graduate student in the master of fine arts program, squelches a plastic cover over a map to protect the document against soiling and ripping.

"Heat speeds up chemical reactions, so the cooler it is, the better," she said. "Mold can plague a private collection in a Southern Illinois home, but air-conditioning prevents it ."

Morrow's department also provides conservation workshops for academic libraries within a 300-mile radius of Carbondale.

"On an average day, about 100 books are repaired," she said, "from the 1600s through the 18th and 19th century books.

"It's not a glamorous job," said a 12-year veteran of the library's conservation program. "You can get a new book, and the next day you can see the damage that's been done.

"It's a reward when you get a book in really good condition and you know it's being preserved for 100 years."
Network offers volunteer training

By Robin Saponar
Staff Writer

The Jackson County Network is looking for volunteers who want to help others, according to Susan Sonnen, volunteer supervisor/trainer.

Volunteer training sessions for the 24-hour phone counseling service will be held 6:30 to 10 p.m. Jan. 28 to Feb. 1.

During each session, an experienced volunteer or counselor will discuss proper procedures for accepting calls the Network receives.

Sessions will be held Monday through Wednesday at the Wesley Community House and on Thursday and Friday at the Jackson County Community Mental Health Center.

"To operate efficiently we need 40 to 50 volunteers," Sonnen said. "The service receives an average of 300 incoming calls a month. Through our reassurance program we make about 500 calls a month, and are often referred to by the Libertyville Police Department for suicide prevention training.

"We try to get the name and address and send out an ambulance," Sonnen said.

Volunteers work four-hour shifts, assuring that two people will be on the phones at all times. "Right now we're short. A lot of people are working by themselves," Sonnen said.

Female draft registration talk revives ERA issue in Illinois

By Terri Colby
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - The issue of the federal Equal Rights Amendment, lying dormant for months in Illinois, has been resurrected by talk of requiring women to register for the draft.

The ERA was last voted on in Illinois in June 1978, when it failed to pass the Illinois House. Since then, no vote has been called in the General Assembly, amid general acknowledgement that the votes weren't there to pass it.

Now, both ERA supporters and opponents say their cause has been given a boost by reports that the Carter administration is considering asking Congress to require draft registration for women.

Phyllis Schlafly of Alton, head of the nationwide Stop-Era movement, said the reports highlight the fact that to draft or register women now would at least require congressional action.

Schlafly said if ERA were part of the federal Constitution, Congress would have no choice but to draft women if it chose to do so.

"If we had ERA, it wouldn't make any difference what the American people wanted," she said.

However, Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, an ERA supporter, said the possibility of women registering for the draft demonstrates "that the (ERA) opponents have not been telling (people) the truth" about ERA forcing a draft of women.

"Now it is suddenly clear to people that women may be registered (for the draft even without passage of ERA)," she said.

Sen. Dawn Clark Netsch, D-Chicago, another ERA supporter, said that with the possibility now raised of draft registration for women, "there's just no way they can argue against (ERA)."

"If (women) are subject to the same responsibilities of serving in the armed forces, there's no way you can argue against them getting the same rights," she said.

Prosecutor: Pinto hazard avoidable

WINNAMAC, Ind. (AP) - The prosecutor in Ford Motor Co.'s reckless homicide trial said that the automaker could have reduced the fire hazard in the fuel system of its Pinto sub-compact if it had followed the engineering example of other car manufacturers.

Prosecutor Michael A. O'Connor said a series of posters by other automakers extolling the virtues of fuel-tank placement in other small cars made in the last 15 years showed that Ford "knew what other manufacturers were doing and should have followed their lead."

CHAPMAN: D-Arlington Heights, an ERA supporter, said the possibility of women registering for the draft demonstrates "that the (ERA) opponents have not been telling (people) the truth" about ERA forcing a draft of women.

"Now it is suddenly clear to people that women may be registered (for the draft even without passage of ERA)," she said.

Sen. Dawn Clark Netsch, D-Chicago, another ERA supporter, said that with the possibility now raised of draft registration for women, "there's just no way they can argue against (ERA)."

"If (women) are subject to the same responsibilities of serving in the armed forces, there's no way you can argue against them getting the same rights," she said.

However, Rep. George Hudson, R-Hinsdale, a staunch ERA opponent, said the possibility that women may be registered for the draft will "bear out what (ERA) opponents have been saying all along."

He said that Congress now has the option of deciding whether women should be drafted, but that "if ERA becomes a part of our Constitution, I don't think there will be any option."

Despite discussion of the draft and ERA, supporters of the amendment differ on whether it is likely to be called for another vote this year in Illinois.

Janet Dewall, president of the League of Women Voters of Illinois, which has been pushing hard for ERA ratification, said she thinks another ERA vote is not likely until next year, after a new General Assembly takes office.

However, Chapman said she expects another vote this spring, after the General Assembly returns in March.

Local communities in America are losing hundreds of dollars more if they convert to alcohol fuels instead of other types of petroleum, an alternative energy expert said.

Richard Archer, professor and researcher in the Community Development and Design Department, spoke to 40 students at a discussion gathering Tuesday at Murray Library. Archer was one of four experts that spoke on the future of alternative energy in America.

"Energy conservation and renewable energy resources are a community development tool," Archer says. "We can start by looking at the things we can do on our own less than a community development tool.

Fortune survives consumer trends; 40 magazines celebrate birthday’s

NEW YORK (AP) - It was once popular to say that magazines had a life-death cycle. They were born, they developed, and then they faded away together.

Fortune magazine, celebrating its 50th birthday, researched the notion and found that when exposed to the facts the notion also faded. Forty magazines have observed or will observe their 50th anniversaries.

They - Business Week, Harper's, Atlantic, New Republic, Reader's Digest among them - did it, said Robert Lubar, Fortune's managing editor, by changing with the times. And how the times have changed.

The first Fortune weighed more than two pounds, and measured about 16 by 11 inches. It was sumptuous: its cover was of cardboard; its pages felt like parchment and looked like ivory.

It wasn't for a mass audience, but seemingly for those fortunate few whom the good God's guidance had come to rob inflation or terrorism, the tycoons, whose names might identify themselves. The magazine was not for a subway or even a commuter train, but for the parlor car en route to the Hamptons or Palm Beach. At home it wasn't to be tossed with the daily newspapers, but placed neatly on a coffee table and then bound in volumes for the lifetime.

It wasn't for consumers, who rarely were a force, but for the producers, who were a power.

The nearest thing to a consumer article in the first Fortune was "A Budget for a $25,000 income in Chicago" that included $1,300 for servants and $2,500 in savings - and $830 for taxes.

Its advertisements honed smokestack America, Her- culean figures, and firewheel and towering skyscrapers depicted industrial might. And ads for sports cruisers, Pierce Arrows, and the White Star Line suggested the comfort that came to those who ran the show.

It's a different show now. Regulation, taxation, and economic democratization grew from the New Deal. After the depression was mass prosperity, the consumer movement and inflation.

The magazines that survived these decades have done so by charging while miraculously retaining the same.

Fortune especially has had to accommodate to a swifter pace that means smaller articles.

CHAMPAIGN, ILL. (AP) - World opinion and a more firm military stance by the United States probably will convince the Soviets that the United States would tolerate no further aggression.

"If they see us standing firm, that's the way I think you'll eventually see those troops go out," Bush, the former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, said.

He also said if the Russians tried to invade Pakistan, they would find even more resistance.

"If you see the Soviets go into Pakistan, you're going to see a bunch of Chinese soldiers in there too," he said.

Bush, who won the Iowa caucus earlier this month, was on a two-day campaign swing through Illinois, and predicted he would win the state's March 11 primary.

He said the United States needs to be able to mobilize its conventional forces and not just have them ready to be grabbed by the Soviets that the United States would tolerate no further aggression.

By James L. Dick
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Montgomery Ward officials are reviving a four-letter word for the company — sex — and not because someone yelled it at them during a board meeting.

The offending word — the most common Anglo-Saxon term for sexual intercourse — is scrawled on a bedroom wall shown on page 122 of nearly 8 million of the retailer’s latest sales-catalogs.

"There is a word in the background, but it’s very, very hard to see," spokesman Ken Darre acknowledged.

Gift of Ratner

Ratner members spent a day sifting through Ratner’s photographic collection of nearly a million photographs, including 7,000 photographs of Dewey.

"The cornerstone of Dewey’s character" is a word in the catalogue of the main research library of the University of Chicago.

"I believe the employee in question has resigned, but not a thing can be done," Darre said.

"We will apologize to anyone that calls, of course, but otherwise, we’re handcuffed. Anyway, I doubt whether it will have any long-range effects.

The sales catalog is one of 12 issued annually by the company and is considerably smaller than either of the general merchandise catalogs shipped twice a year.

Darr said the catalogs were sent out about two weeks ago and the problem was first brought to Montgomery Ward’s attention by a customer who called and asked about it.

"There haven’t been many others," he said.

A couple of years ago, Sears, Roebuck and Co. was similarly embarrassed by a men’s underwear advertisement in one of its catalogs.

Despite such precedents, Montgomery Ward is being regarded as one of the more conservative merchandisers in the business world, is embarrassed.

A couple of years ago, Sears, Roebuck and Co. was similarly embarrassed by a men’s underwear advertisement in one of its catalogs.

The photograph of the man modeling the underwear had a shadow cast on it in an area that made him appear to be in a state of arousal.

The papers were donated by the late Joseph Ratner, a former student of Dewey’s. When Ratner died last June, Boydston and two other center staff members spent three days sifting through Ratner’s apartment. The material they found filled eight storage boxes.

Boydston said the particularly valuable aspects of the Ratner papers are the materials gathered by Ratner in preparation for his biography of Dewey, which he never finished.

Among the items for that unwritten biography were 489 letters and postcards of letters from Dewey and Albert Barnes, a wealthy philanthropist and art collector. Ratner had received permission to copy the letters maintained by the Barnes Foundation Boydston said those photographs are particularly valuable because the foundation has not allowed other scholars to see the letters.

Boydston said the personal letters provide a needed dimension of Dewey’s character. The Ratner papers are being housed in the Library’s special collections section where archivists are making an inventory of the materials.

Gift of Dewey papers valued at $22,330

By University News Service

A New York appraiser has placed a value of $22,330 on a collection of manuscripts and personal papers donated to Still C by a close friend of American philosopher and educator John Dewey.

Joe Ann Boydston, director of the Center for Dewey Studies, said the materials are priceless to Dewey scholars and could be the cornerstone of some rarely studied research.

Wirtz denies funneling funds at trial of Attorney General Scott

By Susan J. Smith
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) -- Arthur Wirtz denied in court Wednesday that a salary he paid to Illinois Attorney General William Scott's wife-to-be in 1972 and 1973 was intended as a payment to Scott, and said he was not afraid of Scott.

"Absolutely not," Wirtz said when Scott's attorney, William Barrett, asked him if he considered the salary checks he signed for Ellen Cooper, an actress, to be any fashion to be money going from you to William Scott.

"Did you consider yourself to be pressured in any way by Bill Scott to put her (Ms. Cooper, who later married Scott) on the payroll?" Barrett asked.

"Absolutely not," Wirtz answered again.

"And did you have any fear of Bill Scott?" Barrett asked.

"Absolutely not," Wirtz replied.

The government's attorneys contend that Ms. Cooper did no work for the salary Wirtz paid her. They allege that her income from Wirtz was actually Scott's.

"Scott generated" the salary by asking Wirtz if he could find a job for Ms. Cooper in the payroll.

The government contends that Scott should have reported Ms. Cooper's income from Wirtz, which amounted to about $23,000, on his tax returns.

Scott is charged with underreporting his income to the Internal Revenue Service for the years 1973 through 1975.

Wirtz testified Tuesday that he had arranged for Ms. Cooper to be hired after Scott had asked him to do so. But Wednesday, he denied that the salary was intended to go to Scott or to curry his favor.

Barrett also asked Wirtz if he gave the checks to Ms. Cooper because state agencies were renting space in a building owned by Wirtz.

"Absolutely not. I wanted more rent for the space I had rented too cheaply," responded Wirtz.

U.S. Attorney Thomas P. Sullivan then asked Wirtz whether he had been aware at the time he put Ms. Cooper on his payroll that Scott was the top legal officer in charge of enforcing anti-trust, insurance and other laws affecting businesses such as Wirtz.

-Chicago teachers threaten to stay home, if more positions cut by board

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) -- School hallways and classrooms were quiet again Wednesday as prospects dimmed that they soon would be filled with the complaints of teachers and students.

Caught between the positions of the Chicago Teachers Union and the Chicago School Finance Authority, the school board went ahead Tuesday and slashed another 683 teaching jobs and $13.7 million from its budget.

The union has said teachers, who have been out of work since May 21, demand a $460,000 salary hike, would not return if there were teacher job cuts booked last week.

But Jerome Van Gorkom, chairman of the authority, said the board sliced its budget by $8 million to bring total cuts to $60 million. The authority is scheduled to receive the budget on Friday, and Van Gorkom said it will not be approved if the full $60 million is not cut.

"They'll have to get the other $4 million or $5 million," he said.

The board was expected to meet Thursday to make those cuts. On Tuesday, the board approved cutting a total of 2,613,000 positions. The 1,873 teaching jobs cut last week and Tuesday included 800 classroom teachers, 227 assistant principals, 78 non-quot teachers, 23 counselors and other support staff teachers and 26 teachers in Access to Excellence, a voluntary desegregation program.

New Morris Morris Library Circulation Policies, Effective February 1, 1980

Grace Period for Overdue Library Materials

Following a period of extensive study and review, new circulation policies for Morris Library have been written. These policies, which incorporate compromises based upon recommendations from both faculty and student constituency groups on campus, were officially approved by Acting President Lusor on December 3, 1979.

The new policies will become effective on February 1, 1980. Preparatory to their implementation, there will be a GRACE PERIOD from Monday through Thursday, January 26-31, 1980. During this period overdue library materials may be returned without payment of fines. The non-grace period grace period applies to all SIU-C students, faculty, civil service and administrative/professional staff, and courtesy card holders.

The following library materials are not included in the grace period:

- Recalled items
- Reserve room items
- Items charged out overnight only by special permission
- Materials from the SIU-C Law Library or Learning Resource Service

All overdue materials not returned by 12 midnight, January 31, 1980, will remain subject to overdue charges in line with the new circulation policies. These policies appear in the January 24, 1980, issue of the Daily Egyptian, and printed copies are also available in Morris Library.

Expression of appreciation on behalf of representatives from constituency groups, faculty members, students, the Library Affairs Advisory Committee, the ad hoc Morris Library Circulation Policies Committee, and members of the University administration who have contributed to these policy changes.

Walk-in career counseling available

By Mimi Jarzemska
Staff Writer

A Career Planning and Placement Center policy change permitting students to see a counselor on a walk-in basis is in effect this semester.

Harry Daniels, coordinator of the Career Planning and Placement Center said the previous policy required students to make an appointment to see a counselor. Under the new policy "students can walk in and probably be seen within 20 minutes to a half hour," he said.

Daniels said students are motivated to see a counselor and to get things done and do not want to wait to see a counselor. Last semester there was a six week waiting list to see a counselor, he said. By implementing the new policy "we're trying to take advantage of the motivation that the student brings in with him," Daniels said.

An increasing demand within the last 15 months to see the three full time and two half time counselors on staff brought about the change in policy. "The demand became so great our existing policy no longer hand - it," he said.

The policy change will be evaluated at the end of the semester. Daniels said, "If my hunch is, the policy will be around for a while," he said.

The following job interviews have been scheduled at the Career Planning and Placement Center, Woody Hall B-30.

Ruby, Greer chosen as new lady cage captains

By Cindy Chosey

Student Writer

It’s not very often that a coach must replace both his team’s elected captains midway through the season. However, such was the case of the SIU women’s basketball team and head coach William E. Morrow.

In the sixth contest of the season, original co-captains Terri Faber and Lynne Williams both were victims of injury, sidelining them for the remainder of the season. Williams recently has undergone surgery, while Faber, an alternate captain, awaits knee surgery to repair torn cartilage and ligaments.

The loss of Williams and Faber, both starters from last year’s NCAA championship team, left Scott with a team needing recognizable leaders. She chose Ruby and Greer, a transfer from Paducah Community College.

Such a decision isn’t anticipated in the middle of a season; however, Morrow and Greer was an easy decision, according to Scott.

Scott described the personalities of Greer and Ruby as complementary to one another.

“Diame is a quiet leader,” Scott said. “She’s very motivated, dedicated, and always shows good sportsmanship.”

Greer is described by Scott as the outgoing spirit booster of the team.

The role has produced an added pressure on Greer and Ruby, who probably feel enough strain playing on a team with a 7-12 record.

Her initial mental setback of losing Faber and Williams, Ruby began to think of the season as a challenge of working with new players.

With the exception of the team, one of Ruby’s hopes is to have the young players experience the satisfaction of becoming consistent winners.

Greer sees one of her strengths as being able to captivate her ability to encourage all of her teammates.

If the snow stops and the sun comes out, we may be able to use her. But she can’t change hands now,” said Greer.

Ruby and Greer have had a hard time at the outset of the season, when the team seemed to be going nowhere, with easy games left to play before the state tournament, she has confidence in the team’s ability to pull together and win.

Bradley coach builds winner

Versace said Anderson has become Bradley’s team leader, replacing Aguirre as DePaul’s leader.

Mitchell is a little more of a quiet leader,” said Versace. “He’s one of the most unassuming players on the field.”

SIU Sports Hall to induct 19

The SIU Sports Hall of Fame will welcome 19 new members during ceremonies at a banquet at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Student Center.

The new inductees’ accomplishments occurred during two time periods: 1913 to 1945 and after 1945.

The inductees from 1913 to 1945 and after 1945 will be introduced by members of the board. Ticket prices are $10 for adults and $6 for students.

Tickets for Friday’s banquet and game are available through the Arena ticket office.

Snow leaves trackmen in the cold

By Rod Smith

Staff Writer

The record winter snow is falling outside, but inside, SIU men’s track coach Lew Hart­ zog, whose season already is under way, is wondering where he can find a practice site for his team.

“We have nowhere to put our feet down on dry ground,” Hartzog said. “ It hurts now because we need good workout, but it will hurt badly four weeks from now when we try to get ready for the Valley meet."

Despite this chilly temperature, the track team has been practicing at McAndrew Stadium.

Hartzog said his team is taking the second step toward savviness and confidence for the Missouri Valley meet in March when it travels to Bloomington, Ill., for the 38-team Indiana Invitational Friday and Saturday.

While Hartzog and 21 track men are in Indiana competing with schools from around the nation, assistant Coach Jan Johnson will take a team composed mainly of freshmen to Champaign to compete in the Illini Striders Track Club meet Saturday. This meet consists of high school, college and masters divisions for both men and women and Hartzog said will give his young team “a chance to compete and get going.”

The Indiana Invitational will have two former Saluki track stars competing, Sian Boddy, the SIU record holder in the 3-pound weight, and Gary Hunter, both three-time All-American in pole vault, both will compete.

The Salukis are allowed to enter two athletes in each event. And Hartzog said he is looking for quality in placing his top runners in their specialties because someone will do real well, but I don’t expect anything great,” Hartzog said. “We just try to get as much done as we can.”

The team will run three relays, the distance relay, the sprint relay and the two-mile relay.

The men relay team of Mike Ward, Derek Hooker, Lance Peeler and David Lee, but he is experimenting in the two-mile with freshmen Mike Choffin, Jeff Heath and Tom Rona, and sophomore Ken Perkins.

Choffin, Heath and Rona all competed for Hartzog last fall on the Saluki cross country team.

“We’re using the freshmen in the relay because they need to score and grow and compete to get ready for the Valley,” Hartzog said.

For the past two years, Hartzog’s teams have had the most wins of all teams competing in large meets, like the Valley meet, according to the coach, the Salukis must prove themselves.

Badminton team gains ‘Old Moe’

By Rick Klett
Staff Writer

People in sports like to refer to him as ‘Old Moe’. He’s responsible for many of the biggest victories in college and professional sporting events. For those not familiar, ‘Old Moe’ is momentum, and the team or player that has it generally is given the better chance to win.

Why all this talk about ‘momentum’? There’s a rumor running around that the badminton team will try to employ it Friday and Saturday at the Eastern Illinois Invitational.

“We had a good tournament last weekend,” Coach Paul Blair said, “and we’ve had a couple of good practices this week. Things just might be starting to go our way.”

Last weekend at the Western Illinois Invitational, the Salukis captured a fifth-place finish with their score of 28. The finish was a pleasant surprise to Blair, who was concerned with the lack of practice during semester break.

The week before in the Saluki Invitational, lack of practice was the main reason given by Blair for the teams’ dismal performance—sixth place, with 28 points.

The Salukis’ weekend opponents are virtually the same as those in the past two invitationalists. Host EIU, Northern Illinois, Western Illinois, Illinois State, Ball State, Blackburn College, Wisconsin-Carthage and David Lipscomb College are included in the two-day event.

“The main opponent, as usual, is Ball State,” Blair said. “We trampled them last week after they did the same to us in our invitational. But, what I’d like to see us do also is close this up—own us and Northern.”

“We’re improving every week,” Blair said.

Schieble walks on to stardom

Dave Schieble works on his specialty, the pommel horse, during gymnastics practices at the Arena. Schieble scored 9.4 or better on the pommel horse 57 consecutive times until he tallied an 8.5 Saturday at Illinois State.

Schieble walks on to stardom

medium between education and sports.”

Schieble obviously has found that medium. He has made the dean’s list all four years and is one of the top two male scholarship winners in the yearbook.

It is difficult for an athlete to gain these achievements in only four years. It is even more difficult when you have a double major, accounting and Russian.

Schieble has only the rest of this year to compete on the pommel horse, because specialists aren’t allowed on the Olympic team.

“I have learned a lot through gymnastics and traveling with the team,” Schieble said. “I’ve made a lot of friends, I’m really going to miss it.”

Saluki gymnastics fans will have a chance to see Schieble and the rest of the Salukis in action Thursday night, when the team will take on Louisiana State at the Arena.

Baseball negotiations stalled

NEW YORK (AP) — Talks continued between the Major League Players Association and baseball but there were no indications of any progress.

“We’ve been talking for 19 weeks with little or no progress,” said Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association.

Miller said discussions with Ray Greyber, who now heads baseball’s Player Relations Committee, the owners’ negotiating team, “are following the pattern of past negotiations. The facts are in the same position as they were four years ago, seven years ago and 10 years ago,” said Miller.

Gymnast competes without 'free ride' by Ed Dougthery Staff Writer

The driving force behind all athletes is, in one form or another, money. In college, great athletes don't get paid, but they do get everything paid for, right? Wrong. SIU has an exception to this rule on its gymnastics team, Dave Schieble is the exception. Schieble came to SIU in the fall of 1976 with hopes of winning a spot on the gymnastics team and getting a scholarship. Even though he had been recruited by the University of Illinois, he came to SIU because of its history of good gymnastics teams.

"Coach (Bill) Meade told me he wanted me on the team, but he didn't have any scholarships left to give out," Schieble said. "I decided to stay because I like SIU and I like Coach Meade." Schieble's decision to stay has had a tremendous effect on the gymnastics team. During his first three years on the team, he has been SIU's best performer on the pommel horse. He was an All-American during his freshman and sophomore years and missed being an All-American last year by .025 points.

Schieble has finished no lower than 15th in any AAU competition in his four years on the team. After placing fourth at the NCAA championships last year, he placed fourth at the NCAA championships and last year's season he was second at the AAU finals.

"I really enjoy gymnastics because of the type of competition," Schieble said. "It's a good experience compared to competing against another team. I'm competing against myself."

"Gymnastics is different from other sports," Schieble said. "You're fighting against you, everyone is pulling for you. It's one man's struggle against another and everyone is a camaraderie, a fellowship of gymnasts, particularly as we go into the NCAA conference.

Schieble's 'feel' for gymnastics is equalled only by his ability to perform. "In my four years at SIU, my biggest goal would be to win a national championship," Schieble said. "I have tried to find a happening place for me, and I think I've got one."

Controversial Versace builds winner at Bradley by Scott Shlaiber Sports Editor

Dick Versace is controversial. He is also a winner. The Bradley coach, who will bring his Missouri Valley Conference-leading Braves into the arena Thursday night for a contest with the Salukis, was accused last year of changing the stands during a bench-emptying brawl at Tulane. He was quoted as saying that the fans at Illinois State were "rednecks."

When Versace took the Bradley head coaching job in 1978, some fans were offended by his salty language. Versace has a snappy response to that. "I'm your new coach, I'm cracked, not your new pope."

Despite all the controversy, Dick Versace has been successful. Last year was the silver-haired Versace's first losing season (5-11) in 12 years as a head coach on the high school and college levels. The Braves finished last in the MVC, losing six of their seven points and eight by six points or less.

However, Bradley has turned things around this season. The Braves, with the addition of Paul Anderson, the exciting sophomore forward, are undefeated at home, have knocked off Bradley and Wichita State on the road and are 14-7 overall.

Versace's trio to downplay his controversy by preferring to dwell on the team. "I think the news media decides who you are, your particular image is," he said. "I'm just trying to let people know we're talking about the team, not the coach. That's how it should be."

"Last year was a new experience for me," the 36-year-old Versace continued. "I had some close games I thought we should have won, but things didn't go our way. When you lose, you learn a lot about yourself as a coach. You have to have confidence in what you're doing.

While the Braves were losing the court, they were winning recruiting battles. David Thrskill, a junior college All-American, chose Bradley over hundreds of other schools. Donald Reese, Eric Duhan and Steve Johnson are from junior colleges, also. From high schools, Versace signed Eddie Poteet, a point guard, to finish the season.

Versace said he sells the enthusiasm of Brave fans to overcome Bradley's lack of national exposure and a modern campus arena when he is recruiting.

"Since there is no pro team in Peoria, Bradley basketball is all the fans here have," Versace said. "We try to sell them the enthusiasm of the Missouri Valley, which I feel is the most underrated conference in the country."

An incident early in the season nearly split the Braves. After a 3-3 record, seniors Carl Manisalco and Ken Garrett quit the team. But Versace believes that point, that has won nine of its last 11 games.

We thought Garrett and Manisalco were fine players, and we were sorry they left the program, but they obviously know what they want to do."

Recruiting philosophy important to cage success by Scott Shlaiber Sports Editor

Editor's note: This story, the final in a three-part series, takes a look at the front of Saluki basketball.

We've seen it before. A Salukis' five freshmen will have a year of experience under their belts. Charles Moore and Edward Thomas will be a year older and wiser. A winning season is guaranteed, right?

Maybe. "We're going to have a lot of experience back, which is a positive thing," Saluki basketball Head Coach Joe Gottfried said. "But we still need some help."

That's where recruiting comes in. One super player can turn a program into a winner, as evidenced by Larry Bird's career at Indiana State. A good class of recruits can do the same thing.

Gottfried's class came to SIU, Gottfried had an "umbrella" philosophy toward recruiting, as players in the Southern Illinois area were evaluated first. When Gottfried and his assistants then fanned out to other areas.

Gottfried has changed that policy slightly, as he is looking into areas the Salukis never have recruited from.

"We've looked at players in this area and we've looked at players from as far away as New York and Washington, D.C. Gottfried said. "We're trying to find players who will fit into what we're trying to do, and also fit into with the people we've got coming back."

"We've looked in St. Louis and in Indiana," the coach added. "We're trying to keep it as close to home as we can. unless we have a line. we've got ties in Washington, D.C. and New York."

The Salukis historically have had little success in recruiting in those areas, where the talent usually is among the best in the nation. But Gottfried said the Salukis' top five will be strong this year as they have been in past years. "It's not as strong as it was a year ago," he said. "Even though the programs are strong, there have been improvements."

"Every school has to sell what its situation is," Gottfried said. "We sell the University in the academic, social and financial environment. We sell the community, the location, the beautiful campuses is the country."

Gottfried said the Salukis will sign three or four players this spring, rather than the seven they signed last year.

"Every year you like to bring in three or four players so there is continuity in the program," Gottfried said. "With Wayne Abrams leaving, we'd like to find a guard or two, and perhaps a forward or two."

We're just looking at a lot of players.

Since SIU receives little state money, Gottfried rarely appears on television. Gottfried must sell other factors to the recruit.

"Every school has to sell what its situation is," Gottfried said. "We sell the University in the academic, social and financial environment. We sell the community, the location, the beautiful campuses is the country."
