Fortas Acknowledges Presidential Meetings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Abe Fortas publicly acknowledged Tuesday that while serving on the Supreme Court he assisted President Johnson in White House conferences on Vietnam and civil disorders in the United States.

But he also told the Senate Judiciary Committee his role was simply that of summarizing for the President what others had said.

"It would be very misleading to allow the impression to prevail that this is a matter of frequency," Fortas said.

"I would be very reluctant to allow the impression to prevail that this is a matter of frequency," Fortas said. "It does not mean that it has occurred only in matters that are very perplexing and that are critical in importance to the President and he wants some additional assistance."

Fortas told the committee that "whatever opportunity I have to serve my country" in this manner will end Jan. 20. This was a reference to the date on which Johnson's term will end.

Fortas appeared before the committee to testify on his nomination to be chief justice of the United States. He is himself a candidate for that office to be quizzed by a congressional committee.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., leading a fight against Fortas' confirmation, urged the committee last week to look into reports that Fortas is playing a big role in White House policymaking.

Griffin criticized Fortas' White House role in an impromptu news conference outside the hearing room.

"Registration' of Group Gus Bode

Key to SIU

Dean of Students Wilbur Moulton announced today that the Southern Illinois Peace Committee has only "register their representatives with the Student Activities Center" in order to be in good standing with the University.

Moulton added that the requirements of the Peace Committee are the same for all approved student groups this summer.

The Peace Committee had been modified earlier this semester to be allowed to use University facilities unless it meets University requirements regarding the naming of officers and faculty advisers.

Another factor was that the University would "allow the Peace Committee to clarify agreements that the group planned on continuing conversations with military recruiters" in the University Center, Moulton said.

The Peace Committee said that any future "conversations which might be useful" would be "non-binding in nature and that it would not be blocking."

Du Quoin Site of 'Campvention'

By Mary Lou Manning

They came from 45 states and from as far away as Viet Nam and Hawaii, a projected 40,000 strong. Just as with tractors and tents, boxes and suitcases, bicycles and motorcycles, the campers converged on the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds, site of the 1968 National Campers and Hikers Convention. The "Campvention" officially opened Monday.

The 1,400 acre park, stalked out by state divisions, is bursting with outdoor activity. A large area has invaded the grandstand and fire and police department are lodged under a tent. A simulated swimming beach, numerous concession stands and a geocentric house-teen-A-Go-Go have been erected to meet the campers' needs.

Throughout the campgrounds, the older campers greet old and new friends or read newspapers while the youngsters walk their dogs on leashes or scurry to the beach on tandem bicycles.

In the handicapped area, although the activity is more subdued, the spirit is just as high. This area, reserved for campers with physical handicaps, is located at the center of the park with quick access to all activities.

"It's kind of lonesome here, though," explained an elderly woman from Coulbyville, Ill., whose husband has suffered three heart attacks. "All our Illinois friends are parked near the entrance."

The victim of a car accident which left him paralyzed from the waist down, Sam Confer has been in 45 states since his accident and thrives on camping.

Center of Learning

Hue, Vietnam, is a center of Islamic and Buddhist arts and crafts. More than 1,000 university students. Unlike Saigon, where foreigners are the focus of attention, Hue remains almost 100 per cent Vietnamese.

"Before we got our trailer, it was hard pulling his wheel chair, motor car (which he uses to travel around the park) and my son's bicycle but we love it so much," said Mrs. Confer.

The Confers and their three children drove to Du Quoin from Spring Mills, Pa., pulling a custom-made trailer. The trailer has ramps leading up to two big doors, which allows Confer easy entrance. A specially-made bathtub and large closets occupy the middle section of the trailer. Beds pull down from the ceiling leaving plenty of space when not in use. Before this year, however, the Confers had camped out in a tent.

Their next-door neighbors were sporting a new trailer. "We had another new trailer for only two months when my wife saw this one and had to trade," said J.H. Boober, Freeport, Pa., Mrs. Boober has suffered from a heart attack and heart surgery.

The 22-foot trailer features a shower, air-conditioner, refrigerator, carpet, electric lights and a phone.

"We travel around quite a bit and love these conventions although we haven't had the camping spirit very long," Boober said.

"When we first got here we assigned a spot with the Pennsylvania campers about 1/2 miles from here. I told them I would have to leave because of my wife if we weren't closer," he said.

"Now, I'm certainly glad we didn't."

Member of Art Faculty Accepts Pittsburgh Job

Bruce Breland, associate professor of art at SIU, has accepted a position as head of the painting and sculpture department at Carnegie-Mellon University, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Breland has been a member of the SIU faculty since 1959, although trained as a painter and sculptor, in recent years Breland has explored less conventional art forms, and has made a number of multimedia experimental art films.

Rehearsing for their lead performances in the forthcoming summer Music Theater Company's production of "Sweet Charity" are Linda Hub- leit and Hali Mischka. The duo will perform for SIU audiences July 19-21 and 26-28, in Huckstroll Auditorium in the Agriculture Building.

Marguerite State Park, Grafton, Ill.

Howard Long, chairman of the Department of Journalism, made the presentation. The department is the headquarters of the ECWNE.

The award, given in memory of the Alton abolitionist editor killed while defending his press from a mob, is presented annually to a weekly editor selected for outstanding editorial service. Freeman is the former publisher of the Farmer & Miller of Frederick, Colo.

He conducted a one-man investigation into the takeover of oil shale deposits on public land by commercial interests in Colorado. During the course of this investigation, Freeman was shot at and threatened, and finally lost his newspaper.

'Preposterous Swill'

To the Egyptian:

On Thursday, July 7, the Egyptian published an article from the Lubbock (Colorado) Independent. Entitled "Keep the Faith in America," it was in all likelihood the most preposterous swill ever perpetrated upon the students and faculty of SIU. The Egyptian is acknowledged to be a spokesman for the status quo, and its editorial policy appears to have been established by Dean Rusk and Norman Vincent Peale. But, in comparison with "Keep the Faith in America," the Egyptian's editorial policy would seem to have been lifted from the Daily Worker or the Peking News.

According to this editorial, Americans are the most free, hard-working, religious, friendly, right-thinking, brotherly, law-abiding, tolerant, happily-married, patriotic, brilliant, and moral people that ever were; and thus God in his free-enterprise wisdom has rewarded them for such virtue and excellence by burdening them with "a smaller percentage of Communists than any other modern power."

However, these same Americans shoot each other at a rate many times that of other countries. These same Americans all by ignoring the children in their own country who have had so little to eat that they weigh less at one year than they did at birth. These same Americans let their government spend nearly 100 million dollars a day assaulting and raping the Vietnamese people.

And the list is yet hardly begun. America can probably be healed, but not by telling herself "Here, The Egyptian owes the students and faculty of SIU an apology for publishing in the student's paper such jingoistic nonsense as 'Keep the Faith in America.'"

Rump Session Hint

President Johnson has just dropped a loud hint that he may call Congress back after its tentative August 3 adjournment to complete important business. As a spur to greater congressional efforts before adjournment, Wednesday's presidential statement seems to have been designed to produce far more partisan political solidification than solid legislative accomplishments. Certainly that was the case in 1948 and 1960.

As a free people, how many legislative programs are (as the President seems to feel) "vitaly needed by our people?"

Johnson names thirteen bills, including "Scenic Trails, Scenic Rivers, the Redwoods... the Wholesome Poultry Act," and suggests that there are also "many others." We can understand that the President does not want to express his preferences publicly for some bills over others. But with his long years of legislative experience, Johnson obviously recognizes that he must meet with congressional leaders in the matter of priorities. Otherwise, the scheduling of bills and the scheduling of time, of which there can be too, don't forget—would be legislative bedlam.

Congressional sources indicate that such a horse trading session has not been taken place. Perhaps next Tuesday's White House breakfast with the leadership will range widely beyond the ham, eggs, and hominy grits.

Also, there is an underlying reality here that cannot be blinked away. All indications point to the fact that the President wants to end his final term of office with as many legislative and other achievements as super-humanly possible. Clearly a rump session ought not to be held merely to garner a few more legislative trophies for the BJ School of Government of Texas University. If, however, there are genuinely "vital" and immediate measures pending, the rump session should be limited to these. This implies a further narrowing of priorities.

Finally, there is the question of when a rump session could be held. The two alternatives: (1) between the two political conventions in August and (2) after the second, Democratic convention. If a session is to be held, the first alternative seems marginally preferable. The session would be shorter, and it is only appropriate if the list of vital measures is really short. Also, a hair, it might be less politically charged than a post-convention session with the presidential campaign in full cry. If one or more of the presidential and vice-presidential nominees come from the ranks of Congress, this almost certainly would be true.

Consequences Too Similar

We would like to pose a question on the meting out of justice. Recently a former high state official was, through due process of law, found guilty of accepting a number of bribes and soliciting a number of others. His sentence was five to six years in prison.

At about the same time a young man who is a draft resister was brought before the court for refusing to obey the Selective Service Act and serve in the armed forces. His sentence was five years in prison.

Here were two separate crimes with nearly identical sentences. The question is not whether the punishments fit the crimes, but did it fit equally?

In the first case, a man was found guilty of breaching a public trust for his own financial aggrandizement. In the second case, the young man, presumably was acting on a matter of conscience. Whether he was right or wrong, intelligent or stupid, right-minded or wrong-headed, he broke the law and is taking the consequences.

At issue in our mind is whether the consequences should be the same—five years in detention by the state. We rather think not. We think that a man in public office who betrays the public trust does considerably more damage to the social fabric than does a youth who resists the draft. We think this is true even if the draft resistance were based on cowardice rather than true conscience. And we feel sure that the wages of prison life would be more wasteful of human material in the case of a youth than in the case of a corrupt public official.

There should be a better way of handling the problem than this.

Japanese Wedding Involves Traditional 'Marriage Arranger'

By John Durbin

TOKYO—Marriage in Japan is a complicated and intricate procedure beginning with the selection of a suitable mate that leads to an exchange of vows at a solemn Shinto ceremony.

The traditional "mai-kokon" or arranged marriage, which died out for a number of years following World War II, has come back into vogue in recent times. It is estimated that about 30 per cent of the marriages which took place in Tokyo in 1967 were arranged.

A "nakodo" or go-between is the principal person in an arranged marriage. When a young Japanese man or woman decides to get married, the parents select a relative or close friend to serve as a go-between in finding a suitable mate.

The "nakodo" begins his work by gathering personal information about both prospective mates. Then, together with the young man or woman's parents, he carefully goes through the information, examines photographs and selects a tentative marriage candidate.

The next step is for the parents of the prospective couple to meet and become acquainted. This gives each family an opportunity to find out what kind of family the son or daughter is marrying into. All of this investigation conducted by the "nakodo" and the parents is done prior to any meeting between the young man and woman.

In recent times in Japan numerous agencies have begun providing the same service as that of a "nakodo." The agency operates in the following manner: A young man or woman wishing to meet a suitable mate may go to an agency and fill out a thorough personal application which includes photographs, age, height, weight, health status, education, occupation, father's occupation, income, religion and any personal preferences regarding married life. The application also asks whether the individual has ever been married before and if so why it terminated.

The next step of the agency is to match the application requirements to produce the most suitable combination for a happy marriage. Some agencies have noted that the average Japanese woman is least concerned about her future husband's present income. Rather she is more concerned about his health and education. On the other hand, the average young man most often looks for a quiet woman with a good family background.

In modern times the traditional "nakodo" has been replaced with the young man or woman's mother who together with her friends makes determined efforts to find a suitable mate. Many families today have been known to hire detectives to investigate thoroughly their prospective marriage mate and family. The cost may run around 10,000 yen or about $29.

Following World War II the arranged marriage system died out and what the Japanese call "marriages for love" became the most common. "Marriages for love" are the same as those found in the United States; a young man and woman meet by chance or through a friend and a strong relationship develops leading eventually to marriage. In olden times in Japan such marriages were not only uncommon but also forbidden by the son or daughter's parents.

A Japanese housewife, who married through the arranged system, listed a number of reasons why she felt that "the mai or arranged marriage always exist.

She says that unless a young woman is a dam office worker, she will have a difficult time meeting a respectable young man suitable for marriage. Also, she said that Japanese women by nature are shy and not easily receptive to meeting people. Therefore, the arranged marriage system gives them an opportunity to meet a young man without having to frequent night clubs and cabarets and become classified as a bar girl.

Unlike in years past, young Japanese men and women have the option of rejecting or accepting the match-up arranged by their "nakodo" or an agency. Previously, the choice was made for them, allowing them no voice in who they might or might not marry.

Another reason Japanese women readily accept the arranged system, according to the housewife, is that if the marriage does not work out and ends in divorce—they are not blamed but rather the responsibility falls on the other party.

After the prospective mates have been carefully scrutinized by the "nakodo," parents and possibly detectives, too, the couple exchange gifts. The young man sends his future bride some fish, sake (Japanese rice wine) and money to purchase a silk wedding gown. The young woman in turn sends her future husband a home made cake, flowers, and other personal belongings. This is to show that she is ready to give herself to him in marriage.

Now the young man and woman are ready to meet each other. Until this time they only knew each other through the nakodos and photographs.

Angry Words May Result in Law Suit

By Edward J. Demson, A.B., J.D.
(Copley News Service)

You---. Remove that car from my property.

Frank's words, with angry gestures, became an unplanned feature of a live telecast and were heard by thousands in a California city. The outburst was directed against a man who was on a patrol car following the virtues of the automobiles on his used car lot.

Two of the speaker's salesmen tore Frank's shirt in an effort to keep him from interrupting the telecast, but to no avail. The abusive language went out over the air, leading many viewers to think that an unhappy customer was venting his anger on the auto firm.

The trouble stemmed from the fact that Frank's place of business was sandwiched in between two car lots, and auto customers often parked their vehicles on Frank's property. This constant trespassing, added to his intense dislike of the car lot owner, caused Frank's temper to boil over in front of the TV camera.

On advice of counsel, the TV speaker sued Frank for slander per se, meaning that the abusive language in itself constituted a wrong, even though the plaintiff could prove no direct money damages to his business.

During the trial, televisionists testified they had heard the words and saw the gestures.

One viewer declared she would not do business with the car firm after watching the incident.

Frank, while admitting the gestures, denied speaking the obscene words.

After the testimony was complete, the trial judge instructed the jury on the law of slander. It is (a) false, privileged communication, (b) orally uttered in the presence of others, (c) transmitted by mechanical means, (d) directly injurious to another by publication in his office, profession, trade or business, and (e) imputes to the person general disqualification in his business.

Trial Judge Stratton cautioned the jury that the foul language itself, is not actionable as slander. Injury to the victim or his business must be demonstrable.

But the jury brought in a verdict granting $2,500 in special and punitive damages to the firm of Frank's, covering probable loss of profits through the cessation of prospective customers, plus $2,500 in punitive damages.

Frank appealed the decision, contending that since the plaintiff had asked no damages in his complaint, the trial court was in error. Frank also contended that the words constituted slander per se without proof of damage.

Justice Krause, for the appellate court (44 Cal. Rep. 241 Calif. 1945), upheld the trial court's decision. If it can be proved that abusive language tends to cause injury to one's business, he declared the language is defamatory per se, and therefore the plaintiff needed to ask or prove no special damages.

Frank's brief television performances, it was ruled, cost him $7,500.
Florida Lures Democratic Convention

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Florida Democrat Walter Reuther, the nation's faltering, deficit-ridden cash drawer, Miami Beach will transplant anorchid show and the Republican Gov. Claude Kirk will "be a good boy" if he stays at the Democratic national convention here from Chicago.

But these things were promised Tuesday if a strike of telephone workers stalls planning for the convention site forces the party to move Aug. 26 meeting to Miami Beach.

Preparations are almost complete for the Republican National Convention starting here Aug. 6. It would be a simple matter for the Democrats to move in and use the same facilities.

Also, a new problem, said State Sen. Robert Knowles of Wisconsin, executive secretary of the convention, would be to "take down the elephants and put up the donkeys."

"We'll be glad to sell them one slightly-used rostrum which cost $23,000," Knowles said.

Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., said Monday top Democrats had inquired if Florida party leaders would raise $600,000 to get the convention for Miami Beach.

"We don't see any reason why we would have trouble raising the money," said Robert Morgan of Miami, chairman of the Democratic fund-raising committee.

If Smathers or the Democratic National Committee makes a definite request, Morgan said "the first place I'm going to go" is to the television networks.

Knowles estimated that the TV industry would save $3.5 million if it could use the same facilities for both conventions. Newspapers, news magazines and wire services would reap large savings.

A top Florida Democrat who is close to President Johnson said Democratic National Chairman John Bailey told him, if the telephone strike "lasts more than a day, there would be no other place for the party to go but Miami Beach."

One of the reasons originally listed for the selection of Chicago was the flare of Florida's GOP governor for grabbing headlines and television time. But the Florida source said Kirk telephoned him and Bailey yesterday and said: "You can let the people know I'll be a good boy" if the Democrats come down.

An orchid show, a trade mart, and a Ford Motor Company model showing are scheduled for the convention hall the week of Aug. 26, but convention hall manager Duke Decoff said other arrangements could be made for them.

Miami Beach Mayor Jay Dailey said he was committed from the hotel industry to provide all the first-class rooms and meeting halls the Democrats want.

The Republicans are taking 15,000 rooms, only a fraction of those available in this resort city.

Telephone Co. Offers Union New Proposal

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. made a counter offer today to a proposal of striking electrical workers for binding arbitration to settle a wage dispute which threatens to move the Democratic National Convention from Chicago.

James W. Cook, president of Illinois Bell, told Mayor Richard J. Daley that binding arbitration would not be binding on the electrical workers union until ratified by them.

Cook said he would submit through Daley Wednesday a revised three year contract proposal.

Nixon Nixes Possibility Of Deal with Wallace

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Republican National Convention leaders Tuesday the idea of political negotiations with George C. Wallace and said the former Alabama governor will have no bargaining power in the selection of the president even if his third party campaign sends the ultimate choice to the House of Representatives.

The new Republican leader nor the Democratic nominee will win a clear majority of the Electoral College votes the decision would go to the House and each state delegation casting one vote, Nixon said Wallace would have no bargaining power in the selection of the president even if his third party campaign sends the ultimate choice to the House of Representatives.

Nixon called Wallace an effective campaigner, and acknowledged the former governor could cost the GOP votes in November.

Nixon said he expects to be the Republican nominee and forecast first ballot Democratic nomination of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

He said flatly that neither he nor Humphrey would deal with Wallace.

"There are no circumstances I would negotiate nor would I support Humphrey," he said.

Nixon came to Philadelphia for private conferences with party leaders concerned striking electrical workers delegates who were the Republican Convention and with groups concerned over the state of the economy.

Reportedly Nixon said the GOP convention will be an open one with delegates free to nominate whom they will.
Disarmament Meeting Opens in Geneva

GENEVA (AP) — President Johnson told the opening ses-tion of the 17-nation disarmament conference that "the fate of mankind" may hang on whether the United States and the Soviet Union face their responsible roles in averting a global nuclear arms race.
In a message to the conference, Johnson made clear the United States was eager to take a Soviet lead for mutual discussions on limiting strategic and defense nuclear weapons systems, including the antiballistic missile.

Soviet Delegate Alexi A.
Kosygin agreed on the importance of the talks, but disappointed Western officials by controlling negotiations in existing systems. This would cut back effectively — and for the first time — on the vast possibilities for destruction that each side possesses.

Johnson said it is expected that the United States and the Soviet Union would shortly reach a decision on the time for talks on limiting nuclear weapons systems.

"The United States," he said, "would be prepared to prevent from the Western powers possessing nuclear weapons to all down at a conference table for negotiations to consider this international affair," he said. "The Soviet Union would be ready to sign without delay."

Hughes Drops Offer to Buy ABC Stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — Howard Hughes offered to buy a major interest in the American Broadcasting Companies, Inc., Tuesday after he fell 400,000 shares short of the million he had sought.

Leonard H. Goldenson, president of ABC, halted the deal last Thursday after a number of major stockholders had rejected Hughes' offer. He said the deal "was a misunderstanding and faith in the future of our company."
Hughes offered July 1 to pay $74.25 a share when the stock was selling for $58.57, it soared to $72 last Friday, but dropped to $69 Monday and closed at $67.75 Tuesday.

VC Threat to Saigon Relaxes

But Fighting Continues in Delta

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. troops proceeded to Saigon as the Viet nameeas's major offensive had slowly unfolded to Saigon, threat-ing the threat to the capital.

The fighting in the delta showed the Viet Coniusal forces were in force on the city's approaches.

Pacifiotists of the United States 9th Division struck the enemy force 16 miles southeast of Saigon Monday and had the battle raged on until the early morning hours of Tuesday.

Asian-based artillery gun ship and dive bombers joined the battle. A U.S. spokesman said 76 enemy troops were killed while the Americans lost 21 and 21 wounded.

The toll of enemy dead
another battle 50 miles deeper in the delta was raised from 104 to 106.

In this fighting, about 10,000
U.S. 9th Division troops and more than 1,000 South Vietnamese cornered a large enemy force near the provincial capital of Phu Vinh.

While the threat to Saigon was reported eased, U.S. sources did not discount the possible impact of a sudden strike, noting that enemy strategies call for the greatest possession of surprise.

None believes that the enemy has given up his aim to strike at the capital and to raise the South Vietnamese government to strengthen North Vietnam's hand at the deepest talks with the United States in Paris.

While the war ground on, the South Vietnamese submissive to the Saigon administration, a meeting between President Johnson and President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Johnson referred to the recently concluded treaty init-at ed by the United States and the Soviet Union to halt the spread of nuclear weapons as "a triumph of sanity in international affairs.

Johnson also showed intrest in the recent proposal of Soviet Premier Alexei N.
Kosygin for guaranteeing the peaceful use of ocean floors.

Kosygin declared an international convention banning the use of nuclear weapons would be a very serious de-terence to those who would be prepared to use such weapons against other states.

"It appeal to the Western powers possessing nuclear weapons to all down at a conference table for negotiations to consider this international affair," he said. "The Soviet Union would be ready
to sign without delay."

SAIGON (AP) — Saigon
radio urged an insurrection.

HONG KONG (AP) — Declaring that anarchy "has paralyzed and in destroying our country," a secret Chinese radio has called on Reds to rise up against the North Vietnamese proportional to Meng Tai-Tung.

The radio calls itself the "Voice of the Liberation Army," the official army name. It has been broadcasting nightly for some time.

It centers its fire on Mao, the Chinese premier, his wife, known as Chiang Ching, and Defense Minister Lin Piao, Mao's brother.

One broadcast the past week asserted that "the Mao-Lin ministry is a group of power in the Communist party is the dirtiest event and the most shameful exploit to our country's history."

A growing number of Chinese, angry in Hong Kong, believe the station is transmitting from mainland China.
One factor encouraging this belief is the known fact that many in the army hate Mrs.
Mao. They feel that through Mao's radical revolution — with power struggle she has tried to undermine the army.

There is speculation that the broadcasts may come from Chinese nationalist-army agents known to be operating in south China. But analysts say nationalist proaganda efforts have never been this effective.

Other possibilities were that the broadcasts might come from dissident groups elsewhere in Red China.

Here are what some of the broadcasts have been saying:

—There must be "a true Communist re-voli 1 on against Mao, his wife and Lin."

—The three are "counter-revolutionaries to the pre-
-1949 Socialist revolution that freed our nation."

—One basement summed it up this way: "Through the eff-f of Mao and Lin Piao, that flabby Chiang Ching is caring out the campaign of villization of the PLA."

—All the evidence of what has happened in the past two years of Mao's cultural revolution has been sufficiently proved that the Mao-Lin-Chiang Ching China minority are deaf enemies of our people and our nation.

—The situation is "prepared, soon the military call will be sounded over the whole country; patriotic thought and fighters: Should you be loyal to the party and the great Socialist revolution or should you help the Mao-Lin-Chiang counterrevolutionary minority to build a Mao dynasty?

Hughes Drops Offer to Buy ABC Stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — Howard
Hughes offered to buy a maajor interest in the American Broadcasting Companies, million he had sought.

Leonard H. Goldenson,
president of ABC, halted the deal last Thursday after a number of major stockholders had rejected Hughes' offer.

Goldenson said the deal was a misunderstanding and faith in the future of our company.

Hughes offered July 1 to pay $74.25 a share when the stock was selling for $58.57, it soared to $72 last Friday, but dropped to $69 Monday and closed at $67.75 Tuesday.

Transportation Service Provides Charter Trips for Campus Groups

By Kevin Cole

Campus organizations with an interest in travelling do not have to worry about transportation to their University-sanctioned functions. They have made it.

They have made it because of an action-ready fleet of six 45-passenger and four buses operating out of SIU's Transportation Service.

They have made it because the buses have a nearly unlimited field of operation, and for 25 cents a mile or $6 an hour (whichever total is greater) will transport groups just about anywhere in the U.S.

They have made it because all the groups have to do is submit in triplicate a bus scheduling request and the buses will be there.

"We could probably arrange a trip to Crab Orchard Lake in 30 minutes, but for a trip to New York we'd like to have the request as soon as possible to make the proper arrangements," according to John Belt, assistant supervisor of Transportation Service.

On the form, available at the Transportation Service in the Physical Plant and at Student Activities Office in the University Center, interested organizations indicate destination, length of stay, number of persons participating and SIU account title and number, Belt said.

Most organizations have accounts with the Student Activities Office. "But some, like the Society for the Advancement of Management, have their own accounts and therefore deal directly with us, Belt said.

The men behind the steering wheels are students, all with chauffeur licenses. The organization arrange to pay the driver's lodging and food expenses, as well as any toll charges, in advance.

The most frequent charter trips are to the St. Louis area. "The great variety of recreational and educational facilities there make it appealing in one way or another to most groups," Belt said.

Buses make frequent trips to surrounding states, but trips to Washington, D.C., Oklahoma, Connecticut, and Louisiana are not uncommon, he said.

DAILY EGYPTIAN
House Full Of Pottery, Bone Tools

A house full of pottery, stoneware, bone tools and musket balls representing more than 1,000 years of culture in northern Mexico is being studied and catalogued at SIU. The painstaking analysis marks a milestone in a major archaeological research effort at SIU, the most extensive ever undertaken in the Mexican provinces of Jalisco, Zacatecas and Durango.

Since 1952, archaeological field teams under SIU's museum director, J. Charles Kelley, have combed the ancient sites of the Indians who lived on the northern frontier of Mesocamerica. Those prehistoric cultures have links to the Indians of the American Southwest. It was the SIU research group that first proved the Pueblos were an offshoot of the Chalchihuites culture south of what is now the Mexican border.

The National Science Foundation has awarded Kelley an $18,300 grant for the one-year wrapup. The end result will be a large illustrated volume chronicling and describing the life of frontier Mesocamerica from 100 A.D. until their still-unexplained disappearance in the 1300's.

The formal report will attempt to resolve some archaeological mysteries about the vanished tribes. One mystery concerns movements of that civilization's frontier. It advanced from central Mexico 1,000 miles northward and then, inexplicably, shrank back to near Mexico City.

Kelley says remnants of the northernmost reaches of the frontier still remain in customs and dress habits of today's residents. Barbaric advances from the far north may have played a role in the Chalchihuites' retreat.

Then there's the puzzle of the mines, a series of large excavations in western Zacatecas. The mines were studied in 1910 by a passing archaeologist who interpreted them as caverns, used by the Indians as hiding places when they were under attack.

Kelley and other fieldworkers combed the region from 1961 through 1963, discovered more mines, and correctly identified their function.

"The whole area is as large as the SIU campus. It's as if someone were to discover Southern Illinois strip mines had been in existence before metal tools were used. What were they for? What were they getting out of the mines?" Kelley asks.

Speculation is that some empire in southern Mexico sent technicians and soldiers into Zacatecas and put the local Indians to work, perhaps to excavate low grade iron ore. Stones, or maybe they were looking for emeralds.

The strange mines were worked between 300 and 900 A.D. It is suspected, SIU graduate anthropology student Phil Weigand, now curator of North American Archaeology at the Museum, explored some of the dangerous, unbraced tunnelings. He found as handles, sorting piles and burned torch splint, Radio-carbon tests dated the torches at 390 and 600 A.D.

While most of the SIU work in Mexico was marked by routine digs, some of the discoveries, according to Kelley were dramatic moments. One of them was the unearthing of a 20-inch-high stone statue of a god in an intact altar at Moctehuma. It was a big find because the Indians usually destroyed their religious centers when leaving a community.

Another highlight was the discovery of a handful of pelvic bones believed to have been those of a high priest. They had been left near a shrine entrance, apparently by a tribe in hasty retreat.

The mass of data is being classified at a onetime housing, now used by the Museum for research laboratories. Kelley says the decade of study represents "by far the outstanding archaeological job in northern Mexico and has made SIU pre-eminent in this particular field."

The windup study now underway "will add more than 1,000 years of life in Mexico to the understanding of human history."

No Rest for the Ladies; Golf Team Keeps Busy

Members of SIU's Women's Recreation Association golf teams are keeping busy participating in summer golf tournaments.

The WRA captured the Women's National Collegiate team championship at Duke University with a total of 152 strokes last season.

Captain of the team, Paula Smith, Belleville, has participated in two Illinois tournaments since she won the consolation of the first flight in the national tournament. Paula won the Danville Open on July 5 from Jean Rausch. A sudden death play-off came about after the pair tied after the regulation 36 holes.

On July 11, Paula won the Lake of the Woods Golf tournament at Champaign with a score of 81-79 for a 160 total. Paula defeated Sally Jones of Champaign who turned in a second place performance of 80-81 for a 161 total.

Dot Germain, Blytheville, Ark., who was the low medalist for the nationals with a 78 cancelled out of this year's Broadmoor, scheduled for the first week of July at Colorado Springs, to enable her to practice for other tournaments.

Dot will compete Thursday in the Western Amateur Women's Golf Tournament at Colorado Springs. During the first week of August she will travel to Detroit, Mich., for the National Women's Amateur Tournament. Later that month, Dot is scheduled to play in Detroit at the Trans-Mississippi Tournament.

A third member of the group, Lynn Hamline, Carterville, shot an 80 at the collegiate and placed midway in the top 15 golfers. Lynn is now attending summer school and is playing third base for the WRA softball team.

The WRA golf team will continue its action in the fall when it competes in the Illinois State Invitational. The invitational is usually held in the spring but is being switched to the fall. (SU will also host the 1969 Midwest Invitational which was held at Michigan State this year.) Plans for next year may include a trip to New Mexico during the first week of October to participate in the New Mexico Open Golf Tournament.

Black Athletes Want Black Coaches
AMES, Iowa (AP) — A special committee named to study complaints of Negro athletes at Iowa State University urged Monday the "immediate appointment of a black coach in football."

The Ad Hoc committee of the human relations committee also recommended "aggressive recruiting of black coaches in other sports."

The Ad Hoc committee was appointed by president W. Robert Parka June 28 to investigate grievances submitted to the athletic council by the black student organization. The grievances included one that no Negroes are on the coaching staff.
