Legal Service Advises Qualified SIU Students

Nearly 250 students went to Jackson County Legal Service Bureau, last year to obtain assistance and legal advice. John H. O'Neill, chief investigator for the bureau, said student account for over 40 per cent of the cases handled each year.

"We try to give special attention to students with families and who receive no assistance from their parents," he said. He noted that some of the students who seek aid from the bureau come from high-income families and receive generous assistance from their parents. In those cases, he said the bureau usually refers them to private legal counsel.

"But if a student is really strapped, we'll take the case," he said.

According to Helton, the Legal Service Bureau is a delegate-agency of the Office of Economic Opportunity under the War on Poverty, created "to help low-income families with free legal assistance in civil matters."

"In order for a single person to qualify, he must be supporting a spouse and not earn over $1,000 per year before taxes," he said. "With no dependents, the maximum combined gross income cannot exceed $2,000. Proportionately higher incomes are covered under the guidelines as the number of dependents increases. Heilton said these guidelines are established by the O.E.O. and are generally rigidly adhered."

"In those cases where the person is not eligible for assistance from the bureau, Helton said that frequently the person is directed to the referral service of the Jackson County Bar Association,"

Heilton said the bureau has two full-time investigators and a part-time attorney in addition to himself. The bureau is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m. Helton said he would prefer to have persons call for an appointment before coming, but that in no case would legal advice be given over the telephone.

The Legal Service Bureau has offices located on the third floor of the Carbondale City Hall on East Main, and also on the second floor of the Jackson County Courthouse on Walnut Street in Murphysboro.

Bunny's Driver

Hoppity Over Job

While many college students spend their summers off-campus, back-breaking construction line or boring classroom, Joseph Fine will be driving a car full of Playboy bunnies.

Fine, a sophomore majoring in business finance, was selected as a chauffeur for Hugh Helten, director of the magazine's public relations. During Christmas break last year, Fine was chauffeured by other Playboy officials. He said the experience was interesting and thrilling but on the first day of work, he was so nervous he walked out of the house without his driver's license and with socks of two different colors.

When asked for the magazine, Fine had the opportunity to see the entire process involved in putting on an issue.

"Believe me, no one could possibly imagine all the time and energy that goes into putting the magazine together. Many long and tedious hours go into preparing each department of the magazine before it reaches the public," he said.

Fine, from Chicago, has his own office in the Playboy mansion and spends his free time there.

When asked what he enjoyed most about the job last Christmas, Fine replied, "I guess you would have to say that the girls are pretty nice."
Committee Plans Confrontation With Military, Removal of ROTC

The Peace Committee also agreed that it would be necessary for "continued confrontations" with all military recruiters in the University Center and that earlier attempts to seek the removal of the ROTC from the campus would have to be revived. It was also decided to seek continued support from local religious organizations in opposition to the Vietnamese War and to strengthen ties with other peace groups and nearby campuses pacifist organizations.

Representatives from the American Friends Society (Quakers) told the committee they would be able to supply several pacifist movies to the group for public showing. The representatives said it would also be possible for them to supply several speakers in addition to the movies.

William Moffett, who chaired Tuesday night's meeting, said copies of "The Purpose of the Peace Committee," which would be circulated on campus and left in the University Center for interested persons to read, Moffett said that essentially the purpose of the Peace Committee is to oppose all wars generally, and the war in Vietnam specifically, through non-violent action and education.

The committee entered into a lengthy discussion about recent decisions of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam. Several persons said this group was attempting to become a multi-issue organization similar to the Students For a Democratic Society.

These same persons said that a multi-lease organization would lead to weaken the importance of the Vietnamese War and that a formal letter should be sent to the Mobilization Committee opposing its becoming a multi-issue group.

The committee decided to support this suggestion and recommended that members present draft letters to the Mobilization Committee indicating the Peace Committee's sentiment.

Supporters for Senator Eugene McCarthy who attended the meeting were unsuccessful in their attempt to gain official support for McCarthy from the Peace Committee. Several members of the Peace Committee indicated they would individually support McCarthy but said that they did not think the organization should endorse any candidate.

Moffett, speaking for the committee, told the McCarthy supporters that the group was "not a political organization." He said that the basic function of the Peace Committee is "educational and not political." Moffett said "McCarthy is the loser of the evil" of all the popular candidates, but that he has never stated he would withdraw unilaterally from Vietnam.

In other action the committee decided to have a rotating chairman at each meeting. It was also decided to seek additional financial support from the faculty to help cover the present $80 deficit in the committee's treasury.

Lions Club Sponsors July 4th Celebration

Carbondale Lions Club will sponsor its first annual Fourth of July Celebration beginning at 6 p.m. on the SIU baseball field, southwest of the arena. The program is free.

According to Howard W. Shand, publicity chairman for the event, the Club hopes to make the first of a series of annual Fourth of July celebrations for the area.

The Lions lent lightbulbs and became the "blind" to Carbondale. Proceeds of this sale will be used to finance the celebration.

Farmers to Hold Co-op Workshop

The eleventh annual Workshop for Farmer's Cooperatives will be held July 16 at the ballrooms of the University Center. Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m.

Problems of cooperatives facing an expansion decision will be explored.

The workshop is sponsored by the Department of Agricultural Industries and the University Extension Division.

Helmuthscreened Annex Need Funds Approval

University archives are awaiting approval by the federal government to continue bids for an addition to the Communications Building to be used by the archives.

Charles Pulley, head archivist, said he hopes the government-funded $1 million project will receive the approval early next month.

A Junior League All-Star game will begin the festivities at 6. p.m. Boys from the Carbondale Junior League will be selected to play in the game. At 7:30 p.m. the world-famous Black Knight Drum & Bugle Corp will present a drill program. The Corp, men of the East St. Louis DeMolay Ained Shrine Temple, have performed across the U.S. as well as South America and Canada.

Climaxing the activities will be a 45-minute -to-an-hour firework display and a dance, sponsored by the Activities Programming Board and the Department of Recreation.

The "Rainy Daze" will play for the dance.

Bleachers will be provided at the field but late-comers are urged to bring blankets or lawn chairs.

A free bus will leave Lincoln School, 429 S. Washington, at 8 p.m.

The President No One Saw

By Arthur Hoppe

Herewith is another unxhritten chapter of that unpublished reference work, "A History of The World, 1950 to 1997." Its title: "The President No One Saw." By 1984, Presidential campaigning in the United States had settled into a rigid pattern. The various candidates, on announcing their aspirations to lead the people, immediately retired to underground bomb-proof shelters until Election Day.

From there, they would broadcast to the Nation as often as their finances permitted—vigorously avoiding, as usual, taking a stand on the issues and challenging their opponents, as usual, to come out and fight.

The system worked well. But the people missed the motorcades, the rallies and the handshaking. "How can we judge the candidates' qualifications," they would say, "if they won't come out among us in person?"

It was an unknown candidate named Leslie Wiggins, who saw the opportunity and seized it. Candidate Wiggins, it was announced, would take part in a plain motorcade, rally and handshaking, in person.

On the historic day, curiosity-seekers and doublers lined the curb. No car was standing up in the back of an open car, appeared the candidate impersonated, of course, in an armor-plated eight-foot-high box, equipped with a loudspeaker and a one-way bullet-proof window and two mechanical hand-shaking arms.

The crowd, which hadn't been so close to a candidate in years, went wild.

Letter

To the Editor:

Below is the breakdown of final grades posted last quarter for Biology GSA-201b. Of the 629 students, 519 received no grades or incompletes.

What could cause such a lopsided grade distribution? Spring quarter? Small students? Incompetent professors? An unrealistic General Studies program? If this is education, I hope somebody learns their lesson!

Make It Farms, Farming, Farmers

The right word has had its full meed of praise, but the wrong one, which can often be more thought-provoking, has gone without encomium. A recent special dispatch from the New York Times commented that "Kansas, which is in a transition period from a farm state to an agricultural state, is finding that subtle labor is its main problem." "Industrial" might have been just the word that was being sought when "agricultural" was put down, but we confess to a weakness for the wording it stands.

"Farm" has long been in status trouble, as have "farming" and "farmers." "Agriculture" goes up several notches in the world, and becomes allowable when the quondam farm becomes a "ranch" or "plantation" or "country estate," automatically elevating the possessors.

Our own personal cheering section will cast its voice against transition from a farm state. The country, and that includes the cities, has need of many acres of farms, on which farming is done, by farmers.
Tokyo Students
Please Parents
With Education

By John Durbin

After talking with a group of Japanese students who attend Keijo University in Tokyo, it is evident what they want from a college education is no different than that of American students.

Japanese students, like Americans, seek a college education as a key-to unlock the door to their future. Their primary purpose in going to college is to receive that piece of paper which says they have completed four years of scholastic requirements and may now step out into the world. These students go to college to become specialized in a particular field in an effort to prepare themselves for a lifetime career.

The difference, however, between Japanese and American students is found in their secondary reasons for going on to higher education. Many American males are in universities today to avoid the draft and the Vietnam War, to have a good time at the party school of their choice or just because they have nothing else better to do at the time.

On the other hand, the Japanese males seek higher education because their parents have sacrificed throughout life so that they could attend college. The students at Keijo admit they are going to college if for no other reason than to please their parents who have done so much for them. In Japan merely being accepted into a university is a matter of high prestige for any student.

With the rigorous entrance requirements all students must take to get into college, there is a great deal of pride among the parents of children who are accepted.

Although many persons feel females who attend colleges in the United States are doing so in order to "book a man," with the rigorous entrance requirements in Japanese colleges a young girl is expected to make good use of her education after she graduates.

A number of students at Keijo, a private four year college with an enrollment of about 20,000, feel there is definitely one big difference between college students in Japan and those in the United States. "We cannot help but admire the independence of the students in the United States," one student majoring in political science exclaimed, "We are very dependent on our parents until we graduate from college."

The chief reason for the independence—dependence difference between college students in the two countries is that there are very few Japanese universities with dormitory facilities allowing students to live away from home. Also, according to students at Keijo, very few students hold jobs while they attend college in Japan.

"We don't take part-time jobs because with our education system we just don't have the time to work and keep up with our studies too," one student pointed out.

Keijo students explained that the school and the student body are very conservative and that even though many of the students would prefer living in a dormitory and away from home "the students just do not feel it is their place to demand or even ask for dormitories from the administration."

Keijo, like many Japanese universities and unlike any American ones, operates on a year round basis rather than on the semester or quarter system. Popular in colleges throughout other parts of the world, an average student may take 12 courses simultaneously for a one-year period. The school year begins in April and the following March a two-week examination period is held covering all the work completed in courses for the past year.

According to one student, "the exams are very lengthy and difficult and many students study for weeks in advance to prepare for them. And during the exam weeks students often study several days in a row, only taking time out for meals and short naps." This system has come under some question recently from a number of Japanese educators.

One student said that "there normally are not any tests or examinations throughout the year in most of the courses, although this is left up to the discretion of the instructor."

With so many uprisings on college campuses across the world, why has Keijo avoided any such occurrences from happening? "There has been no violence because the majority of students feel that education is a privilege—something their parents have worked long and hard to allow them to receive," one student said. "Therefore, students here are too concerned about studying hard and doing well because being accepted in Keijo is difficult to start with."

Also, students feel that it is to their advantage to learn what their experienced teachers have to offer rather than try to reform the university. "Some people may call it apathy," one student said. "But we feel that they know more than we do about how to run a university."

Although the educational systems of Japan and the U.S. are different in many ways, the students in both countries talk about the same things such as politics, classes and girls. Despite the physical and mental strain suffered from the college set-up in Japan, students still find time to do the same things as their counterparts in the states. They date, watch television and follow their favorite baseball team or wrestler.

Pay Plan for City Employees

A low bid of $5,048.70 for tractor and grass cutter from Murphy-Harbor Tractor and Equipment Co., approved by the City Manager, will fill the unexpired term of the Rev. Edward L. Hoffman, former fire department personnel.

City Approves Pay Increase Plan

Mayor David Keene and the Carbondale City Council have approved a classification and pay plan for city employees. The plan, which will cost the city an estimated $120,000 additional each year, will give pay increases to employees retroactive to May 1, according to City Manager C. William Norman.

The Carbondale Personnel Board, which handles city employment, approved the plan in response to demands for salary increases by employees. The Personnel Board recommended a pay increase for employees, which was approved by the City Council.

The pay plan is based on a classification system, which sets pay scales for different job classifications. The plan also includes a merit pay system, which provides for pay raises based on employee performance.

Nomination Sparks Controversy
Abe Fortas Named For Supreme Court Chief Spot

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson nominated his longtime close friend, Justice Abe Fortas, Wednesday to succeed retiring Chief Justice Earl Warren.

And to fill the vacancy on the Supreme Court, the President picked a fellow Texan and friend, Judge Homer Thornberry of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, a member of Congress for 14 years. He, like Fortas, is a Democrat.

Fortas, 58, would if confirmed be the first Jew to be the chief justice of the United States. He and Thornberry, 59, are both considered liberals, the dominant trend in the high court under Warren in recent years.

Some Republicans had indicated, when reports of Warren's retirement leaked out last Friday, that they would oppose the President's successor by a "lame duck" president. But praise for the

Yields $166 Million in Heroin

Auto Seized, Dope-Shuttle Ring Smashed

NEW YORK (AP) — Narcotics agents on both sides of the Atlantic were credited Wednesday with smashing a huge, international smuggling ring and seizing 730 kilograms of heroin hidden in a French-made automobile which had been shuttled back and forth across the ocean.

In Washington, Amy, Gen., Ramsey Clark called it the largest single seizure of heroin in the nation's history.

Five men were arrested, one in New York and four in Paris. Clark, who shuttled between the French capital and the United States, was quoted as saying the dope came from heroin in the United States—$160 per gram.

Authorities said this was enough dope to supply 60,000 addicts for a year.

Six other men were being sought in France as members of the ring. One of an unidentified banker said to have financed the operation.

The ring was said to have imported morphine and other raw materials for heroin from the Middle East or Far East, processed it in France, then shipped it to the United States. A hunt was on overseas for the processing laboratory.

The vehicle for smuggling the dope was a metallic gray Citroen, a French car that had made seven round trips across the Atlantic aboard ships, registered each time under a different name.

The car was shipped the last time from Le Havre and seized after it had been unloaded in New York April 24.

Police said 224 small sacks containing 12 kilograms of heroin were found in a gummy gas tank, in body post, under fenders, and in the trunk.

Arthur Benvenuto, 63, New York, a naturalized American, was arrested April 26 at the French Line's Pier 88 on the Hudson River. The bureau of Narcotics said the car was being delivered to him and that he was in charge of its unloading.

Rusk Vows NATO Support
For Clear Berlin Routes

BONN, Germany (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk told Germans on their homeland Wednesday that the entire North Atlantic Treaty Organization—NATO—is determined to keep open the ground routes to West Berlin.

Rusk arrived at noontime to show U.S. military support of the West Germans in the face of the new East German travel restrictions to the isolated city.

The Secretary departed later for Washington.

After three hours of meetings with Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger and other West German leaders, Rusk offered no prospect that East Germany would be persuaded to cancel new overland travel fees and charges announced two weeks ago for West Berliners and West Germans.

Rusk read a statement that implied that the United States and West Germany were reluctantly accepting the charges while warning the Communists not to go so far as to physically obstruct access to West Berlin, which is entirely surrounded by Communist territory.

Rusk, who flew to Bonn from the spring NATO meeting in Iceland, emphasized that NATO foreign ministers "unanimously associated themselves with the determination of" the United States, Britain and France whose post-World War II occupation sectors make up West Berlin to maintain freedom of access to the city.

"We hope there will be no misunderstanding in any quarter as to the vital interests which are thus expressed in the NATO communiqué," Rusk said, in words aimed at East Berlin and Moscow.
SIU Health Service

The director of the SIU Health Service in Carbondale, Dr. Walter Clarke, believes that the unit is on the threshold of outgrowing its space and facilities.

Clarke estimates that by Sunday, the Service will have treated over 43,000 patients since July 1 of last year—5,000 more than were treated over the same period in the previous fiscal year.

In a summary of the past year for the Health Service, Clarke cited statistical evidence of a growing need for the service.

Although the Health Service is designed primarily for student use, SIU faculty members, maintenance personnel and other SIU workers are admitted as patients on an emergency basis.

There are eight doctors with one full time administrator, 14 nurses and a large roster of student workers, according to Clarke.

The Health Service also has a round-the-clock ambulance service for emergency patients.

The most common ailments, according to Clarke, are in the upper respiratory area, those of a gastrointestinal nature, vehicle accidents and skin ailments.

Dr. Clarke says vehicle accident statistics have decreased markedly since the motorcycle regulations went into effect in 1966.
Student Teachers Let Future Homemakers Try Varied Activities

Student teaching is a time of for the student a chance to live and make mistakes. At least that's been the experience of the future Home Economics students of the University of Illinois. Mrs. Linda Karman, guidance counselor at Carbondale Community High School, said five high school students will enroll in classes at SIU. The University policy regarding these dual academic program states that students must be recommended by the high school, Mrs. Karman said. They must be sophomore status or above and must carry at least three academic courses at the high school in addition to the courses taken at the University. They may receive university credit for transfer if they desire but do not receive any high school credit toward graduation for the SIU courses. Jack Harrison, 18, of 802 W. Cherry, Carbondale, was a participant in this fall academic program last year as a senior. He was a June graduate of Carbondale Community High School, Harrison took Russian grammar 216 last winter quarter. During spring quarter, he was enrolled in Calculus 130 and Russian grammar 216. In addition to his high school academic courses, Harrison carried three high school academic courses, one P.E. course, and participated in sports in the winter season. Harrison said he decided to take extra courses because he had taken Russian and four years of math in high school. He said, "It wasn't too hard and the workload did become heavy. But, as Harrison said, "I was just work I had to do." Asked if he would recommend this program to other students, he said 'Definitely yes. It gives you a strong background and no matter what college you go to, you still have a good foundation.' Harrison said the greatest difference he noticed between high school and college was the amount of lecturing. He said he knew college conformed of more lecturing because of class size. Harrison will attend the University of Illinois this fall. Two of the five Carbondale students who will participate in the program this fall are Mike Rogers, 17, of 2004 Meadow Lane, and Deborah Redden, 17, of 1206 W. College. Both Rogers and Miss Redden will be seniors at Carbondale High School in the fall. Rogers plans to take a course which combines analytic geometry with calculus while Miss Redden will be taking a French conversation course. Both said they had taken all the high school courses offered in those areas. Miss Redden hopes to speak French more fluently. Rogers is a bit apprehensive about the word load, "but I hope it won't be too much. It will be different." He is looking forward to it and thinks he will be able to meet the competition of college students.

Miss Redden feels this program will help further her education and be "something new." As for competing with some students, she said, "I wouldn't have taken the course if I didn't think I could handle it." neither Miss Redden nor Rogers plans to attend SIU, Rogers hopes to attend the University of Illinois after graduation. Miss Redden's choice of university is not definite.

The other three students participating in the program are Shellely Bedford, Barbara Edelman and Betty Trouman.

Former Record Holder

Boydston Directs SIU to Big Time

By Dave Palermo

About 28 years ago Donald Newell Boydston was high jumping 6-8 1/4, at that time something to behold. Since taking over as athletic director at SIU in 1957, Boydston has the whole athletic program jumping—right into the ranks of major colleges.

In the year before Boydston came to SIU, the Salukis, competing in 10 sports in the Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, had just finished another "average" year. They won 58, lost 48, and tied one.

Under Boydston's direction between the years 1957-61, Southern won 25 of 42 possible NCAA championships with an overall winning percentage of .738-.395 wins, 135 losses, and five ties.

Boydston, a tall, thin, balding man, once leaped 6-8 1/4 in the 1940 Texas Relays to set a world record. The jump still stands as the all-time mark at Oklahoma State. In 1961 Boydston and the Salukis made their first major jump—into the ranks of the NCAA college division and out of the NAIA.

It was that same year that Southern left the IIAAC and began competing as an independent.

"Independent status gave us a chance to compete against more big-name schools," said Boydston. "We were no longer hampered by being committed to schools that offered little competition in certain sports.

After its divorce from the IIAAC, Southern and Boydston began dominating championships in the college division. In gymnastics, basketball, track, cross country and baseball, SIU grew. University Division status became a necessity.

It finally came last winter when all sports at Southern began competing on a major college level. The turning point is the decision to go "big time" came when the Saluki cagers won the National Invitational Tournament at Madison Square Garden in New York.

But still SIU lacked facilities and finances to compete with other major colleges.

"I think there are three reasons why SIU has found success in sports competition up to this point," explained Boydston. "First, we have the wholehearted support of the administration. Second is the extensive student work program that was initiated by President Morris to give our athletes a chance to work their way through college. Third, in my opinion, we have the finest all-around coaching staff in the country. It is through the hard work of the coaches that we are able to be successful,"

The coaching staff was practically hand-picked by Boydston. After coming to Southern, he spent time at Carmel, Ind., Piccione as football coach, Ralph Casey was track coach, H. E. Gallatin was basketball coach, Harry Galtatinn was coach the basketball team, and Lew Hartzog was track coach.

Gymnastic Coach Bill Meade came to SIU the same year Boydston was appointed athletic director. Glenn Martin, Jim Wilkinson, Dick LeFevre and Lynn Holder were all around at Southern.

Boydston later recruited Joe Lutz, an ex-professional baseball player, to coach the basketball team, Ray Eseck to lead the swimmers and Jack Hartman to replace retired Gallatin.

"Mainly the coaches were able to recruit the best boys through their reputations and because of the fine teams that we compete against," explained Boydston. "We have been able to maintain a sound athletic program with one of the smallest athletic budgets in the country."

A recently approved general program for athletic expansion may ease Boydston's financial problems in the future. The program calls for 230 more NCAA scholarships, additional travel expenses, and expenses for the student work program type of scholarships and the building of a new football stadium.

"I greatly appreciate the work of all concerned in getting this program for SIU," said Boydston. "It's good to know the administration and students want and appreciate a balanced program of athletic expansion."

A former marine and newspaperman, directed graduate program in health and physical education at the University of Mississippi before coming to Southern.

He received bachelor's and master's degrees from Oklahoma A & M and a second master's and doctorate from Columbia University.

There have been some misfortunes for Boydston too. One summer he visited the Olympic games in Rome, and Ralph Boston, a leading American long jumper, walked up to Boydston and asked if he was from Southern Illinois.

"Boston told me he had written to the school three years ago for a scholarship, but he never received an answer," Boydston recalled.

"He wrote here but nobody appeared interested. He had jumped 23 feet in high school. I've never had the courage to tell Lew Hartzog. Can you imagine that? Boston won the broad jump at the Olympics."

Memorable Moment

Westrum Eyes Mets' Players

NEW YORK (AP)-First base coach Wes Westrum of the San Francisco Giants says he's happy in his new job but on his first visit to Shea Stadium this season he said:

"These are the kids I would have had if I were managing this year."

The former Met manager was referring to pitchers Tom Seaver, who won 16 for him last year, and rookie pitchers Nolan Ryan and Jerry Koomey-man and rookie second baseman Ken Booell.

Less than three hours later Koomey shut out the Giants on seven hits and two walks.

has survived far longer than any other manager in either league. This is his 15th season.

What will happen now that general manager E. J. (Buz) Bavae moved south to San Diego is another matter. Bavaae was a great asset to the Dodgers. The two fashioned one of baseball's greatest winning teams, boasting four world championships during the 15-year span.

Not even Alston is immune from the coronation of "Buz the-manager" fever which can overcome the nobility of owners at any time.
SIU Sailing Club
Promotes Sailing,
Sun-Tan, Good Time

By Barb Leebens

It's a beautiful summer afternoon, the weather is sunny and warm and there is a little breeze... just enough to set sail and begin another interesting regatta for the Sailing Club.

Kathy Beeman, the secretary of the club, began her sailing long ago.

"I sailed while I was at college and taught sailing at a large camp in Michigan," Kathy said. "I heard that Southern had a club, so I came here to continue my sailing and to further my education."

The Sailing Club, which boasts the largest campus club membership, meets every Thursday night at 8 p.m. in Room 118 of the Home Economics Building, to set up activities for the coming weekend.

"We encourage anyone who has had some experience or none at all to come out and give it a try," Kathy added.

"A person need not own a boat to join, for the club owns several boats and many of the members have boats."

The Sailing Club owns five boats: three Penguins which are 11-1/2 feet long and two Flying Juniors which are 14 feet in length.

"The club hopes to buy one additional boat per quarter," Kathy said. "We hope to buy more Flying Juniors for that is the boat which most of the members in the Midwest Collegiate Sailing Association buy."

The Flying Juniors are bigger boats; you can have more fun with the boat since it has two more sails than the Penguins. All this enables the two-man crew to do more work and learn more about sailing.

"The main objective of the club, when it was started back in 1966, was to promote the sport of sailing," Kathy said. "Phil Klemann and I, as freshmen back then, initiated the club and it is still going very strong."

Basically, the club has two kinds of members: the sailing member and the social member.

"We have lots of parties and regattas, as well as this summer," Kathy said. "This Saturday night we are having a pajama party for the new members. On July 13, this year, we have a regatta and dance with Iowa and Wisconsin--an all-night affair in Seal Harbor."

Participants are kept busy every Saturday learning more about sailing. When a new member comes out to the club, a skipper (a person who has passed all the required tests--a knot test, written test, and boat test) takes the novice (new member) out and shows him the basic procedures. Soon afterwards, the novice is able to take over the tiller (boat's steering device) and the mainsail.

"After a member becomes acquainted with all the sailing rules and regulations and knows how to hold the boat well enough, he or she is given a key to the boat house. This means that he or she can take the boat out any time."

"I like this the best about the club. You have the feeling that the boat is yours," Kathy said. "I enjoy taking care of it as well as sailing it. These functions allow our group to be so closely knit."

"All the members love to sail," Kathy said. "It's a good feeling to go with groups like this. Many are new and inexperienced yet, some know all the ropes. I would encourage anyone who has thoughts about sailing once not to think about it again, but come out and try it."

\[\text{SIU Graduate Student Captures Wheelchair Archery Tournament}\]

Gene Geisanger, an SIU graduate student, won first place in the American round of the National Wheelchair Games archery tournament held recently in New York City.

Against 279 wheelchair archers and 15 men in the American round of the national tournament, Geisanger shot 969 points on the course. His score was 14 less than the national record of 710 points held by Jack Whitman, Champaign, Whitman has held the record since 1961.

Only recently did Geisanger begin archery shooting. The national title is added to a growing list of accomplishments which includes a gold medal for first place in the Columbia Round and a silver medal in the Czech tournament.

"I started shooting here in Carbondale three years ago," Geisanger explains. "I met Art Hiansen and he showed me all the correct steps and shooting styles to become a good archer. He has been an influential instructor."

\[\text{Ralston Gains Wimbledon Win On Amateur Cliff Richey's Fault}\]

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)--On yet another rain-plagued day, pro Dennis Ralston saved two match points and went on to defeat amateur Cliff Richey on a controversial foot fault in Wimbledon's open tennis championship Wednesday.

Ralston, ninth seed from Los Angeles, knocked out Richey, the US. amateur from San Angelo, Tex., 6-3, 6-3, 6-3, 6-5, 13411 in a three-hour marathon second-round match that thrilled the crowd of 30,000 on the No. 2 court. In another marathon contest, Briton Mark Cox beat American Herb Fitzgibbon, the tournament's only giant-killer so far, on the center court 4-6, 6-3, 7-9, 9-7, 12-10.

For the third day in succession a cold and blustery wind and driving and intermittent rain wrecked the card and left more than half the day's 73 scheduled matches unfinished.

The girls fared even worse. So far only seven matches in the women's singles have been concluded.

Ralston's lucky break came in the 23rd game of the final set. The 25-year-old Californian led 40-30 on Richey's serve. Then the Texan faulted on his first serve. As he let whip his second serve the linesman called a fault and Ralston had the vital break. Ralston served out the match.
