Robinson missing, apparently resigns
By Diana Pfenner
Jackson County Board member Walter G. Robinson, who has apparently resigned from the board, had still not been verified of his letter of resignation, a spokesman for the Jackson County Sheriff's office said.

Chairman William Kelley, who received a letter of resignation signed Walter G. Robinson, said Sunday he also had not heard of any progress in locating Robinson.

Robinson's attendance record at County Board and committee meetings over the last six months shows that he attended two of July meetings and two of 30 committee meetings.

A newspaper report on Thursday cited Robinson's attendance record as being "dismal." Robinson's letter of resignation, postmarked June 16, preceded the article. Kelley said:

Kelley said the last board meeting Robinson attended was Aug. 29.

Kelley said he has problems with the letter because it was postmarked in Carbondale. He said all efforts to locate Robinson in Carbondale recently have been unsuccessful.

Kelley said he will also look into the authenticity of Robinson's signature on the letter of resignation. He said he has not had time to compare Robinson's signature on County Board documents with the one on the resignation letter.

Kelley also chairs the budget and enforcement committee. Because of Robinson's lack of attendance at meetings of the committee, problems have arisen with completion of functions of the committee, Kelley said.

Some budgetary duties of the committee, which oversees the sheriff's department, the courts, the public defender's and the state's attorney's offices, and the probation department, have been relegated to the finance committee, Kelley said.

Kelley said he hopes Robinson will be located in the next two weeks, before the next County Board meeting. If Robinson's letter of resignation is verified, it must still be accepted by the board, Kelley said.

The sheriff's office has also not been able to locate Robinson to serve him with a grand jury subpoena in connection with investigation into the condition of the county jail.

All board members in attendance at the June meeting were served subpoenas, but Robinson was not at the meeting.

Robinson was scheduled to appear at the courthouse for his divorce hearing the day of the board meeting but did not show up, Kelley said.

Kelley said the state's attorney's office will be checking into what steps may be taken if the letter of resignation cannot be verified. He said a temporary head of the judicial and law enforcement committee may be named to speed up budget decisions that must be made soon.

County Board member Mary Nell Chew, who serves on the nursing home committee with Robinson, said his absence has caused some problems.

"It was a few things down. We didn't have a quorum a couple of times at nursing home committee meetings," Chew said.

She said crucial matters, such as the budget, are going to have to be considered soon, and will require input from the full board.

Board member Natalie Trimble said the finance committee may have to take over the functions of the judicial and law enforcement committee. She said she had not heard anything about Robinson's whereabouts.

Cleveland Matthews, contract compliance officer for Carbondale and an acquaintance of Robinson, said he had not seen Robinson since early spring. Matthews said Robinson came to City Hall to check on approval of a construction contract.

Robinson is reportedly now affiliated with the Craig Construction Co. in Carbondale.

Council may end Halloween party
By Mary Harmon
Staff Writer

Equipped with the city administration's final recommendations concerning Halloween celebration in Carbondale, the City Council Monday night will discuss possible actions it could take to tone down and eventually eliminate the annual celebration.

Following last year's celebration, when an estimated 15,000 local and out-of-town party-goers overflowed downtown, an eight-member committee composed of city staff members was organized to study ways the city could reduce fears for safety, and allow concerns for costs expressed by the police department, city administration and citizens.

At a meeting with Towne Central, the Chamber of Commerce and university representatives, the committee told the council May 19 that it could establish one of two policies to deal with the event.

Scott Ratter, committee chairman, told the council it could either "take any and all steps necessary to prohibit a Halloween party in the future" or take several short-term steps toward curbing the problems of Halloween events and adopt long-term policies aimed at eventually eliminating the celebration.

By a 4-3 vote, with one member absent, the committee favored the second alternative and Ratter will present the committee's recommendations to the council Monday.

If the short-term recommendations were approved:

- A formal street party would not be approved by the city, state or the university.

- South Illinois Avenue would not be closed by formal city or state action.

- Any ordinance would be passed prohibiting the sale of wine or beer in glass bottles from four to seven days prior to the Halloween weekend.

- The transportation of alcohol in open containers or "any public way" would be prohibited by ordinance.

- The "weekend would be treated as any other weekend" with the enforcement of 2 a.m. closing time.

- The University would be asked to coordinate its activities with the 2 a.m. closing time.

- The University would be asked not to schedule any large events that would draw out-of-towners to the area and would be encouraged to sponsor smaller events that would deter students from the downtown.

- No special Halloween activities would be sponsored downtown through the cooperation of liquor establishment owners and the University.

The committee also felt that the downtown celebration occurred because of the easy availability of liquor in the area and that long-term policies should be adopted toward limiting that availability.

By a 4-3 vote, Ratter will present the council has long-term policy suggestions, those long-term steps are added:

- The extension of the 2 a.m. bar closing time would be prohibited for any event.

- The issuance of any new Class A liquor licenses for any (Continued on Page 6)

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is expected to get Congress' final approval this week to renew peacetime draft registration late next month or early in August.

The House is scheduled to complete action Tuesday on a bill granting Carter's request for $13.3 million to register all 18- and 20-year-old men at post offices across the country. Selective Service Director Bernard Reuter has said Carter will set the specific date for renewing registration but that it should begin in about five weeks.

The House is also likely to give final congressional approval Thursday to a $3 billion synthetic fuels program, and to take up Carter's $1.2 billion youth job program.

The Senate may take up a $9.9 billion weapons authorization bill that among other things would cut Army manpower by 25,000 in an effort to get better, if fewer, people.

Carter's registration plan would require all men born in 1961 to fill out forms at local post offices one week and all men born in 1960 to register the next week.

The maximum penalty for failing to register is five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

GSC will consider new ceiling on funding university activities

By Charity Gould
Staff Writer

A $350 ceiling for funding of university-related events and an increase in the maximum amount the Graduate Student Council fee board can allocate are two recommendations that will come before the council Wednesday at its first summer session meeting.

The council will meet at 7 p.m. in the Mississippi Room of the Student Center.

In a summary report by an ad hoc committee formed last semester to review the GSC's fee allocation board guidelines and procedures, seven recommendations were given to update the old guidelines.

"It seems the council is funding more professional conferences for individuals or small groups instead of university-wide events," said GSC President Darrin Brown.

In response to this trend, the committee recommended that because of inflation, the fee allocation board should be allowed to allocate up to $200 to individuals or groups before having to go before the full council for approval.

In the past, the maximum amount of a award classification titled "special support" was made by the council for funding requests which might arise that could not be classified in either of the two existing categories of professional development and university-wide events.

Sponsor of three-city bus service hopes for state green light this week

By Diane Penner
Staff Writer

Acting for the Illinois Commerce Commission on a planned Murphysboro bus system was deferred until the commission's meeting next week, one of several items deferred on the agenda, said Raymond Carrol, Murphysboro, who plans to run the service with Earl Bryant, a correctional officer at Menard Correctional Center, said his lawyer had talked to the ICC that the ICC did not get to the matter and will consider it at its meeting in Chicago Wednesday.

Graff said he does not think the postponement indicates opposition to the plan but was just a matter of the commission needing more time to consider everything on its docket.

Graff said he has proposed plan to purchase three buses immediately after the ICC grants approval. He said service could begin between July 1 and August 15.

The planned transit system will link Murphysboro and Chester and Murphysboro-Carbondale. Graff said the route is geared toward employees of Menard Correctional Center.

Legislature bides time before storm

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Workers' compensation legislation is threatening to burst the tranquility of Illinois Legislature's so-far quiet spring session.

The legislation lurched Monday into the final scheduled full day of the session with a raft of proposed tax relief legislation jockeying for position on the agenda, along with a proposal to provide a $20 million loan for a 38-bed drug treatment center at the strapped Chrysler Corp. and several essential and emergency-related bills.

But workers' compensation, the program that compensates employees for injuries suffered on the job, appears likely to spark the biggest legislative battle as lawmakers head toward a scheduled adjournment at midnight June 30.

The pressure for changes stems from legislative action in Illinois last fall that dominated Legislature dramatically increased benefits under the workers' compensation program.

Since then the business community, complaining about skyrocketing costs of insurance to pay for the expanded program, has sought to place some restraints on those benefits.

Normally, tax relief and workers' compensation might be the gist of the final spring legislative tumult in an election year.

But Republican Gov. James R. Thompson punctured that assumption last month when he dramatically abandoned his own $113 million proposal to provide $10 tax rebates to each Illinois income taxpayer.

Hussein: Palestinians the key to peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leveling new criticism at Israel, King Hussein of Jordan said lasting peace in the Middle East cannot be won until Palestinians in Israeli-occupied territory are given "their legitimate rights to Palestinian soil."

President Carter's hopes for a comprehensive peace settlement in the Middle East clearly include participation by Hussein, who has so far spurned talks among the United States, Egypt and Israel. But in an interview broadcast Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" Hussein gave no sign of progress.

No, Jordan is not closer to joining the Camp David peace talks," he said. "I believe that the talks have been very constructive and the general feeling, I would say, is one of looking forward to the next round of talks."

Continuing Israeli efforts to settle or dominate the disputed territory on the West Bank of the Jordan River threaten "turmoil in the Middle East that might affect the rest of the world," Hussein said.

Japan's ruling party tested in election

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's first "twin" elections—for members of both houses of Parliament—brought out at least 67 percent of the nation's 81 million voters for a contest viewed as a test of the Liberal Democratic Party which has been in power since World War II.

Preliminary results were due early Monday.

The issues, which most candidates of all parties appeared to favor, are reducing inflation, erasing corruption, and increasing defense spending.

In addition to the Liberal Democrats, the other major parties are the Socialist, Buddhist Komeito, Communist and Democratic Socialists.

Opinion surveys taken last week by several major newspapers predicted the Liberal Democrats might keep their thin majority in both houses.

Henry the VIII appetite spurs theft

PERU, Ill. (AP) — Somebody apparently had one powerful appetite.

One or more persons broke into an outdoor food locker Sunday at a Harder's Restaurant in Peru, taking 32 cases of food.

Police said they found locks broken at 2:30 and 10:15 a.m. and was discovered by an employee.

Missing were 20 cases of ham sandwich, 15 cases of beef, 10 cases of chicken, four cases of ham, and a few cases of breakfast sausage links and steaks. Authorities said the ham sandwiches were worth $700, but they had no overall estimate of the food taken.

Police said they had no leads. But they cautioned residents to be wary of invitations to any large outdoor barbecue parties.

Carter the real demagogue among presidential candidates

WASHINGTON—Jimmy Carter says that Ronald Reagan's campaign features "demagoguery." Hmmmmmmmmmm. That's an interesting warning from the man who...

Early in 1977, said: Hey, let's mail everyone some money—a $5 tax rebate. Attacked entire classes of Americans, including doctors and lawyers.

Pandered to other public prejudices with repeated attacks on another safe target, oil companies.

Undermined respect for, and compliance with, the tax system by ridiculing it as "a disgrace to the human race."

Further lowered the discussion of complicated tax measures by displaying, for the amusement of yahoos, a stack of volumes containing the tax code, so that the size of the volumes is self-evident proof of something.

Lowered the tone still further by harping on the "three martini lunch."

Belittled that part of America's inflation on wicked foreigners—OPEC—in spite of the fact that 11 of the 13 industrial nations that are more dependent on OPEC than America have lower inflation rates than America has.

Announced, as the economy tumbled into a free-fall, that his economic policies "suit me fine."

Said, as those policies produced the worst two consecutive months of rising unemployment, "the nation's economy had turned the corner."

Submitted a budget calling for a percent increase in federal expenditures exceeded only once in a quarter of a century, and it announced that Edward Kennedy was "the biggest spender perhaps in the history of the United States Senate."

Said that, "the differences between me and Sen. Kennedy are very minor."

Following that performance in the history of speeches, the "malaise" sermon, in which he told the nation: "I'm up here, and you are down there, you working man or woman can find fault with our policies."

Return government to people

June 10, the headline in the Southern Illinoisan stated "Two gasification plants receive OK."

This was very misleading in that it is only half a truth. The "two gasification plants" are in CC and the one in Ohio were approved by the House Ap­

Said, when it suited his political situation: "I want the world to know that I am not going to resume business-as-usual as a partisan campaigner out on the campaign trail until our hostages are back here-free and at home."

Buried the Ayatollah with the national Christmas tree.

We must return to a representative form of government. In 1865, Abraham Lincoln said: "We have the right of making war, but we have also the right of peace and it is our duty to secure peace."

Heart attack victim won’t wait for death; he jogs away from it

By Carol Knawles
Staff Writer

John Howe could be sitting in a rocking chair waiting for his next heart attack; but he’s not. Instead, he’s trying to make the most of his life.

"A person has a moral responsibility to control what he can of his life," Howe said. "I’ve been active all my life; I couldn’t just sit around playing cards."

Howe, an associate professor of philosophy at SIU, experienced his first heart attack in January 1976. Five months later, he began his exercise program by jogging six-tenths of a mile a day. Now, four years after his attack, he runs an average of three miles a day.

"I couldn’t do too much and kill myself, or I could stick to my program and be fine," Howe said.

Howe keeps daily records of his own progress. He records the distance he runs, his heart beat rate and how he feels after his jog.

Some alterations have been necessary in Howe’s lifestyle. He avoids high cholesterol foods and no longer smokes.

Howe said doctors are too hesitant to consent to exercise programs for heart patients because of possible law suits.

"I can’t blame them for their caution, but someone needs to be on the rehabilitation side of this," he said.

Howe has found such a person in cardiace specialist Terence Kavanagh, M.D., author of "Heart Attack—Counter Attack."

Kavanagh’s philosophy is to allow his patients to exercise. In his first campaign, patients have run in the Boston Marathon, and Kavanagh went along with them for support.

Howe has also received support in his efforts. Howe’s 13-year-old son Stephen trains for and competes in races with his father. Howe also gets support from his wife.

"She was worried at first, but she sees that jogging helps me and backs me all the way," he said.

Howe began running competitively for the first time this spring. His most recent race was a 10,000 meter run held in Metropolis.

Howe said that jogging is not for everyone.

"I don’t believe jogging is a panacea, but it’s not," he said. "I jogged for 10 years before my attack. Jogging didn’t prevent it from happening."

Howe said he has no plans to run in the Boston Marathon. "I don’t run to win races," he said. "I just run to finish."

Illinois congressmen freely spend tax dollars on own offices, lunches

WASHINGTON (AP)—Which Illinois congressman spends the least on his Washington office? The answer is, according to the latest records from the House clerk's office, Melvin Price, chairman of the Armed Services Committee. In 1974, Price spent $213,231 on his office, putting him among the top 10 non-spenders.

The nine congressmen with the lowest office expenses are entrenched incumbents who face only token opponents at election time. Unlike the typical congressman, they don’t have to spend office funds on thinly disguised publicity to get re-elected. Price has been in Congress since 1954.

The records also show that some lawmakers who are leading “working lunches” onto their office accounts are Reps. Edward Derwinski, R-III., and Edward Madigan, R-III. "As a rule of thumb, any expense I have out in the district, I consider political and charge to campaign expenses," Derwinski explained. "Here in Washington I consider it an official expense." Such practices are not unusual in the House.

Direct mail wizard Richard A. Viguerie, the man who raises millions for conservative candidates, is still trying to collect thousands of dollars in old fees from his ex-client, Rep. Philip Crane R-III.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters union, a target of federal investigations, is enrolling thousands of policy officers, an organizing trend that worries some law enforcement authorities who note the union's reputation for links with organized crime.

These officials fear that Teamster representation could be the path to crime syndicate control of police departments. We are deeply aware of the possibility," FBI official James Neilson told a Senate subcommittee recently. "We are aware of police departments that are organized by unions that are influenced or controlled by organized crime."

Nelson, a unit chief in the bureau's organized crime section, said the FBI has no evide..ce that crime syndicates have attempted to control a police department. The FBI, he said, is monitoring the situation "very closely and in a couple of instances, very, very closely." He said it was "very difficult to be elected president outside the two-party system."

To get on every state ballot, a third-party or independent candidate would have to collect a national total of 50,000 signatures under ground rules that vary from state to state. The trouble is, Nelson said, when a third-party or independent candidate gets his name on a ballot, he may be closed out of debates, conventions. traditions and sometimes even the possibility of running on the Citizens Party ticket. The two-party system offers stability to Americans because they co-opt the system — whatever the sins of its candidates or the platforms that they adopt. Blacks' job education to be studied

By Donna Seoglns

Student Writer

Two project members, Co-chairman Harvey White, dean of student life, and Special Consultant Ernest Boykins, president of Mississippi Valley State University, will lead a number of sessions that will focus on learning some factors that may be a hindrance to reaching career goals for blacks. Other questions raised will deal with opportunity discrimination, knowing how to get a job, the nature of the job market, general education in the schools and the motivation behind blacks.

"The conference is not interested in whether there is a need to train 120 carpenters in Illinois during the next two years," Keene said. "The conference proposes to focus upon many fundamentals questions and would be especially interested in matters that might hinder members of the black minority in becoming carpenters."

The conference will be held June 23-24 in the Wabash and Vermilion Rooms in the Student Center. Sponsors include the Division of Adult Vocational and Technical Education of the Illinois Office of Education and the Department of Higher Education at SIU-C.

Keene said the project workers are asking the conference participants for a formative evaluation and sincere judgment regarding what is important in connection with the career aspirations of blacks.

A report from the conference will go to the state and will be made available to persons interested in the study or making use of vocational education.

Two house trailers robbed

Two separate burglaries to house trailers in Carbondale have been reported, police said. In one instance thieves pry door locks on the front door of trailer number 2 at 11 p.m. Thursday. The lock on the front door of trailer number 2 at 300 S. Graham Ave. was forced off by a burglar sometime after midnight Saturday and property worth $750 was stolen, police said. Jane E. Gooden told police that a black and white television set, assorted jewelry and other items were missing. Police have no suspects in the case.

Tribune barred from city hall press room by Mayor Byrne

CHICAGO (AP) — Journalists and civil libertarians were rankled Sunday to resist Mayor Jane Byrne's eviction of the Chicago Tribune from the City Hall press room in retaliation for printing what she called "lies" and "character assassinations."

James Hope, publisher of the Chicago Sun-Times, called the action "indefensible," and the American Civil Liberties Union said it clearly violated the First Amendment. The Tribune said it would continue to publish news without getting City Hall approval.

The mayor's order comes after a front-page story in a previously suppressed report on city government.

There was no indication of retaliation against the Sun-Times.

MCMLXVII

McMullen said the Tribune story on the transition report was "the straw that broke the camel's back." In a statement, the mayor accused the Tribune of engaging in "innuendoes, lies, and smears."
Crowded jails, tough sentences give prison officials headaches

By The Associated Press

U.S. prison officials are caught in a tug-of-war, ordered by Congress to deal with dangerously overcrowded conditions but faced with public demands to lock up more criminals under tougher sentencing laws.

Eighteen states—Kentucky and Utah the latest—are under federal court order to relieve overcrowding and halt the brutality that so tarnishes the mark prison life. Federal suits in 11 others are pending.

But another 18 passed mandatory sentence laws in 1979, five others stepped up midterm laws limiting sentencing options and judges and parole boards. Twenty-seven have some form of mandatory sentencing.

Many corrections officials fear a new wave of prisoners is on the way, adding to the 314,000 already in state and federal prisons, because Congress's new prison bill is the nation's overall law-and-order mood.

And there is concern over the mounting public pricetag of incarceration—the $40,000-plus average cost of building a single new prison cell, and the up to $30,000 it cost some states to house a single inmate each year.

"What I see ahead is more prisons, less money for programs," said warden Stephen Dalheim of New York's Ossining Sing Sing Correctional Facility.

The new prison reforms: prisoners in Alabama no longer have to sleep sitting up on toilets, and seven states, aided by federal dollars, are exploring the feasibility of vocational training programs that are a far cry from the usual mop-the-floor or make-license-plate-duty work.

The effects of these reforms are being blunted by the larger realities of prison management: overcrowding, and soaring prison costs.

In Florida, inmate complaints about conditions at New Mexico State Penitentiary, including overcrowding, led to a riot that killed fellow prisoners. "New Mexico's riot was not an exception," said Robert Smith of the Justice Department's National Institute of Corrections. "It was really a precursor to the problems prisons are facing around the country."

Just how skittish some authorities have become since New Mexico was seen in April, when then Gov. Joseph Brennan ordered 350 state police to the Maine State Prison to quell an inmate disturbance. Brennan said he acted to prevent "a repetition of Attica" or "the nightmare at New Mexico."

"If we fail to improve the grossly inadequate prison facilities that exist in California, then we will be dealing with another Attica in no time," said Michael Cantrall, executive director of the California Public Defenders Association, referring to New York's Attica State Prison, where prisoners rioted in 1971, and where there were disturbances as recent as two days ago when 31 inmates before the New Mexico riot.

The state and federal prison population has risen 76 percent from 170,000 in 1970 to the current 314,000. In the same period, the general population increased only 23 percent, from 193 million in 1970 to about 219 million.

Some experts believe the growth rate is peaking. Latest federal figures show the prison population increased just 2.3 percent in 1979, and 2.1 percent in 1978. That compares with growth rates in state and federal prisons as high as 10.5 percent in 1975, and 9.5 percent in 1974.

"I think we're pretty close to the peak right now," said William Negrin of the Reduction Institute of Corrections. "I may be speaking too soon, but I think the conservative attitudes that would send all criminals away have died down, and fiscal conservatism. The cost of building new prisons has gone right through the ceiling."

He and others believe the bulge of new prisoners in the 1970s was caused by the post-war baby boom and a decade of chronic unemployment. The effects of the baby boom are abating, if not the unemployment.

But some fear the slowdown in the prison population growth may be temporary. In states where new prisons are being built and tough sentencing laws promise to fill them, early release and commuted sentences may become rarer.

If there is a new crush of prisoners, taxpayers may balk at paying the soaring bill for new, more progressive prisons.

The taxpayers' cost of keeping one person jailed averaged $22,000 a year. In some states like New York, the cost can range as high as $30,000.

In many prisons, as it becomes increasingly difficult to pay for vocational and recreational activities for inmates, they are considered a daily threat, prison experts say.
Lee, Moses one heat from hurdles showdown

Compiled from Associated Press Reports
SIU-C's David Lee and record-holder Edwin Moses were the only two entries in the one heat of the 400-meter intermediate hurdles at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials at Eugene, Ore.

Lee, the 1960 NCAA champion, tied for first place in his preliminary heat with former NCAA champion... 49.82. Finishing third was Larry Graybeil, who was Chris Pseud of Maryland, 50.06, and Penn State's Paul Lankford, 50.15.

Moses, returning to action for the first time since... 49.22. He defeated Bart Williams, 1979 NCAA runner-up, whose time was 50.4.

Moses and Lee should win their respective heats Sunday night.
