Money woes to blame for faculty loss

The number of faculty members leaving the University has more than doubled since last year and administrators blame shrinking salaries and budgets.

Last year, the University lost 13 faculty members. This year it has lost 31 faculty, and at least 63 more are believed to a reast of more are believed to be at a risk of leaving. Gorbachev's reform talks suppressed at conference

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, joining the debate at the historic Communist Party conference, warned Wednesday there was a conservative conspiracy to suppress discussion of his economic and social reforms. During day two of the 94th party conference, the first such meeting size 1941, delegaus generally praised Gorbachev's proposals for sweeping reforms but signs of a political battle between reformers and conservatives began to surface.

Two military jet crashes re-ignite complaints

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (UPI) — A pair of U.S. 2-16 Falcon jet fighters collided in midair and crashed Wednesday, killing one pilot, and a third Falcon on a NATO maneuver plunged into a forest in a separate incident, authorities said. The incidents prompted fresh complaints over the frequency of air manuevers by the Western military alliance in West Germany and renewed demands for a ban or low-altitude military flights.

Mandela granted six-hour visit with relatives

JOHANNESSBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Jailed black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela has been granted an un-precedented six-hour meeting with relatives on his 70th birthday next month, his lawyer said Wednesday. This will be the first time Mandela will meet with more than two people on his bir-thday July 18. Measure approved to raise minimum wage WASHINGTON (UP1) — The Senate Labor Committee ap-proved a measure Wednesday to raise the minimum wage to $4.55 an hour by 1991, but opponents vowed to create a "don-nybrook" wher the bill reaches the Senate floor. "This moves the legislation into a strong position," said Labor Committee Chairman Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., the bill's sponsor. Under the proposal, the $3.35 hourly minimum wage would increase to $3.75 in 1989, $4.15 in 1990 and $4.55 in 1991.

Transit system would use fees to fix streets

By Kimberly Clarke Write

The city must be specific on how it wants to use student fees to repair and maintain the streets that will be used by the proposed mass transit system, Drayton Roose, chairman of the mass transit committee, said

"The city was very vague when they requested that a mechanism be added to the mass transit proposal (whereby student funds would (whereby student funds would be used to repair streets used by the transit,...' Roose said. "Before we agree to anything, we want to know specifically what streets the money will be used for, and where the money will go if it is not all used."

The transit committee would ane o ansit committee wolld not oppose a city fuel tax in-crease, if a proposal cannot be agreed upon with the city concerning the mechanism, Roose said.

The Illinois Department of Transportation has proposed a change in defining a matching fund. Originally, the city had agreed to take student fees and use them to match funds from IDOT to pay for a public transit system.

A change would mean that the student fees would no longer be defined as a proper matching fund, and they couldn't be used, Roose said.

Whether there is a change in defining matching funds, the transit system will still take place, he said.

Our bread and butter is the "Our bread and outer is the $15 student fee. That will allow the transit to run for the next three years, regardless of help from (matching funds), or outside funds," said Roose. "I ourside runds," said Roose. "I think if we, the city, and other area officials met with IDOT officials, we could persuade them that the change in (matching funds) is not in the best interest of the public."

On Friday, the mass transit cummittee will be traveling on all of the routes, averaging the time and mileage needed for the transit, and providing a scope service for the route.

Thompson deserves an 'A'ward for effort

IF ILLINOIS WERE to give out a "Damned-if-you-do, Damned-if-you-don't" award, this weeks recipient would have to be Gov. James R. Thompson. That's if the committee would put it to a vote. In the past week, Thompson has seen two different roposals, both of which are important to Southern Illinois, proposals, both of which are important to Southern Illinois, killed without a vote being cast — the return of the Hambletonian and his proposed tax increase. Since coming to office, Thompson has received much criticism for allowing education in Illinois to be one of the worst in the country. He also was one of those blamed for the loss of the Hambletonian — one of the legs in the trotting derby's triple crown — when it moved from Du Quoin to the Meadowlands in New Jersey in 1960.

RECENTLY, THOMPSON HAS jumped on the band wagon in an effort to remedy both problems. But it seems no matter how hard he tries, someone keeps playing a different tune.

The Hambletonian Society decided Monday to keep the restignors race in New Jersey. This is no real problem, except the society didn't even consider a late proposal sent to them by the governor and voted 24-0 against the move. The proposal, described by Thompson aide Jim Skilbeck as being mutual for both parties, would have had the race alternating between the two sites every other year. "The disappointing thing is that they didn't even vote on a proposal that would have made us all winners" Skilbeck said, ending the Hambletonian issue until at least 1995.

NOW, WITH JUST one day left before the arrival of the deadline on Thompson's proposed tax bill, it too appears to be dead, and in much the same manner.

Thompson's proposed tax bill would increase the per-sonal income tax from 2.5 percent to 3.5 percent and corporate taxes from 4 percent to 5.6 percent. The increase would bring an extra $217 million to state universities — $18 million to SIU.

$18 million to $10. But, for the second straight year, opposition has mounted against such an increase and Tuesday Thompson conceded the victory. Among those opposing it was House Speaker Michael Madigan. It is Madigan who decides which bills are to be voted upon, and Thompson's bill appears to be nowhere on the agenda.

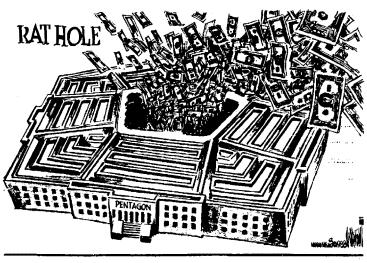

SO, DESPITE HIS efforts to move the state's education system forward and bring the Hambletonian back, lack of action by those in charge of the voting has brought an end to both issues.

If this is the way politics works, the students have b going about their protests all wrong. Instead of seeking the support of the Legislature to end such things as tuition increases, students should be writing Thompson asking for support of a tuition increase. Since those in power seem blind and dear to the needs of the people, maybe his sup-port will move things the right way. Nothing seems to stop the cogs more than the backing of the governor.

Rocky Mountain News, Denver

Rocky Mountain News, Denver Other government scandais of recent years may pale beside the one developing in military weapons contracting. One Justice Department source was quoted as saying it is a case that "will rewrite the law on defense procurement." If that is so, it's high time. The Pentagon's purchase of planes, ships, electronics, guns, land vehicles, and even nuts and bolts and coffee pots has been ingrained for decades with waste, cronyism and apparent criminal skullduggery.... If the scandal turns out to be as big as indicated, the Republican administration no doubt will feel the brunt of the political fallout.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A divided Supreme Court said Wednesday it offends "civilized standards of decency" to execute children under 16, but left it up to each state to set a minimum age for the death penalty.

The court, on a 5-3 vote, overturned the death sentence of William Wayne Thompson of Oklahoma, who was sent to death row for a murder he committed when he was 15.

But only three members of the court agreed with Justice John Paul Stevens' who said it violates the Eighth Amendment protection from cruel and unsual punishment to impose the death penalty against anyone 15 or younger at the time of the crime.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor said it was premature for the court to set a minimum death penalty age and that state legislatures should be given more time to develop a national consensus on the issue. Nonetheless, she agreed with the plurality that Thompson's death sentence should be overturned.

As a result of Wednesday's ruling, Oklahoma and other states that don't have a minimum age must set one.

Ethic act backed by court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the in-dependent course law Wed-nesday, erasing a major question about the special prosecutor system used to investigate, indict and convict tron forteral officials

The decision was a defeat for the Reagan administration, which had joined a former top which had joined a former top Justice Department official in arguing the law violated the Constitution's separation of powers requirement — a view the justices rejected on a 7-1 vote in a decision written by Chief Justice William Rehnquist.

Justice Antonin Scalia wrote a lengthy and bitter dissent and, in a rare move, read aloud from his opinion as his colleagues sat at the bench in colleagues sat at the bench in the ornate courtroom. Although his investigation was not directly involved in the case before the court, Iran-Contra prosecutor Lawrence Walsh said in a brief statement, "The independent coursel statute provides a workable solution to a difficult problem. We are gratified" by the decision.

At issue in the case was whether the Ethics in Government Act violated the Government Act violated the separation of powers principle by giving a special federal court the power to appoint special prosecutors — a func-tion usually reserved for the Attorney General's office of the executive branch.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, while repeating "doubts about the constitutionality" of the law, said "the administration has faithfully and consistently complied with all of the act's requirements" and would continue to do so.

The case before the justice involved former Justice Department official Theodore Olson, who is being investigated.

Official says areed caused arms scandal

WASHINGTON (UPI) WASHINGTON (UPI) — Old-fashioned greed and bribery are at the heart of the military arms-buying scheme, top Pentagon officials said Wednesday, in the first congressional hearing on the constdel scandal scandal. The Pentagon's top pur-chasing officer, Robert Costello, testified before the House Armed Services Committee and when Chair-man Les Aspin, D-Wis, asked him why the scandal erupted, Costello replied: "One word — greed." greed.

Larger military contracts are part of the problem, said Costello, the undersecretary of Costello, the undersecretary of defense for procurement. "The contracts are bigger; there are fewer of them," Costello testified. "People will do anything, perhaps, to get that contract. Costello testified. "I don't think the competitive bidding process has resulted in a greed factor."

Guyon meets search group

2-hour talk yields no decision

By Beth Clevin

President John Guyon met with the athletics director search committee Wednesday but said he still hasn't decided the new athletics director will be.

"We talked for two bours, but no decision was reached," Guyon said.

Guyon said. Guyon said he did not know when he will meet with the search committee again, but he will keep them informed of the actions he is taking.

cratyon has been interviewing coaches since Monday and says their opinions will weigh most heavily on who is chosen for the position. He said he is interviewing interviewing a few more

After only two games with the Long Island Knights basketball teem, former Saluki Steve Middleton decided it was time to get out. Jim Murphy, coach of the Knights, said Middleton snuck out of practice and hasn't even returned his uniform.

"He showed up late because of school and be was a little of school and P2 was a little chunky, but that wasn't really too much of a problem," Murphy said. "But he thought I didn't give him enough of a chance, and that's just not

Murphy also said Middleton had to take a couple of days off to attend an NBA tryout camp in Chicago and that he took his time returning. "Steve was supposed to be back (from the camp) on Sunday and I didn't hear from him that day, or Monday." Murphy said. "He did decide to get in touch with me on Tuesday."

Murphy added that he picked Middleton because he
