Tentative agreement reached on coal pact

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United Mine Workers and the soft coal industry tentatively agreed Monday on a contract calling for wage and benefit boosts of 36 percent over three years. The breakdown likely was too late to avert an anticipated strike Friday, but approval by the rank and file could keep the walkout to a few days.

UMW President Sam Church declared, "We've got a decent contract. I think our membership will accept it." He said workers will probably be off the job for four or five days.

Despite the upcoming settlement, the strike will proceed because the union says it does not have enough time to complete the ratification process before the current agreement expires at 11:01 p.m. Monday.

The UMW, which has followed a strict no-contract, no-work policy, has struck over every contract since 1964. Ratification ordinarily takes about 10 days.

Church said the union won major concessions from the 130 coal companies represented by the influential National Association of the Surface Mining Industry, a group in the area realizing growing power in Washington, D.C., in recent years.

A settlement seemed far from sight when bargaining collapsed here last Tuesday, triggering wildcat strikes at some mines and a prediction by Church the walkout starting Friday might last even longer than the 11-day shutdown of 1977-78.

The two sides accused each other of failing to bargain in good faith, and Church charged that the industry wanted a strike.

At 11 a.m. Monday, however, Church and R.R. Brown, chief negotiator for the National Coal Association, jointly announced an accord after a five-hour bargaining session.

The union president said UMW officials would prepare the contract for consideration by the union's 320-member bargaining council on Tuesday. If the council approves, the pact will then be voted upon by the union's 160,000 rank and file members.

Approval by the bargaining council is by no means routine. Twice during the strike of three years ago, the council rejected tentative contract settlements, and the rank and file voted down a contract after it had been on strike for 40 days.

Church said the bargaining council would likely dispute the possibility of extending the contract deadline to prevent a strike. But such a move would violate union tradition, and UMW sources said it was extremely unlikely the council would approve.

Brown said he was pleased an agreement was reached, but declined to comment on what was in the contract.

Legislation that would provide student access on university governing boards a binding vote on any decision, rather than an advisory one, is expected to be introduced into the Illinois House later this week, ULMU leaders said Monday.

The legislation, to be introduced by Rep. Glenn Schneider, D-Dist. 6, has been spearheaded by ULMU Student Trustee Mark Moore of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

The student council, they say, would give student trustees a "more viable voice" in university decision making, by better representing students and making the position "more responsible and more credible."

"The ability for the student trustee to vote is something that would give students more say in university governance," said Moore.

"It is very important that the student council be represented in decisions that are made," saidamedi student trustee. "I hope that I would get my say in this decision, rather than an advisory vote." He added, "This is a selfish quest for mine but students right now do not have a lot of say."

Moore said, "In this day of decreasing financial aid and higher tuition, it's important that the student council be represented in decisions that are made, because students are the ones it's being affected."

While he is optimistic that the legislation will be approved to include opposition from the University's administration and the Board of Trustees.

However, Moore said he was "optimistic that the administration and the board to take a silent attitude towards the proposal, and leave it to the Legislature to vote it down."

Semilogaritmic curves a step in solving problems of the Senate Rules Committee, the administration, and the Board of Trustees.

Byrme to move into projects

CARPENI GREEN RESIDENTS ORGANIZE

CHICAGO (AP) - The crime- ing rapist Cabrini-Green resident about to take in its newest resident Jane M. Byrne and many of her prospective neighbors say the mayor's presence may help prevent the simmering gang warfare, shootings and terror at the project.

"Everybody knows it's cleanup time if the mayor is coming over here," said Cora Moore, a 25-year resident of the Cabrini-Green project. "Even if she doesn't move in, she'll put fear into the hearts of criminals."

Within the next two weeks, the mayor and her husband and political adviser, Jay Mullen, plan to move from their plush Gold Coast apartment to Cabrini-Green. Ten people have been killed and 35 wounded in the last two months in the project.

The mayor said she is moving, while retaining her Gold Coast home, to dramatize the light against an epidemic of violence at Cabrini-Green. Police say most of the violence is due to warring gangs vying for control of narcotics trade.

Carrie Edwards, a longtime Cabrini resident, said the gangs "are not afraid of her the way I am," while Mullen, afraid of the heat she will bring, "is not going to walk."

Edwards added, Byrne "certainly won't have to worry about her own safety. She can walk down the streets at 12 a.m. without any fear."

Many Cabrini-Green residents also say that Byrne as mayor may mean to better city services and more police patrols in their community.

"The police are not going to be just hiding around, they are going to be staying people," said Tom Woods, aide to the Local Citizens Council for Cabrini-Green.

In fact, Police Supt. Richard Brzowski predicted that after Byrne takes office, in maintenance will improve, the school system will get better and parole and probation officers will return.

Moore said the mayor's frequent unannounced visits to the project already have helped
Reagan canceled negotiations in El Salvador, leaders say

WASHINGTON AP—Two Salvadoran opposition leaders say the Reagan administration last month accepted, then canceled, face-to-face talks with representatives of El Salvador’s left-wing guerrillas.

A State Department official would say only that no date was ever fixed for such a meeting. He asked not to be named, said insurgent forces were now “floating” stories about canceled meetings as a propaganda ploy.

The administration canceled that public offer by sending $25 million in military aid and in additional military advisors to help the ruling Salvadoran junta.

WASHINGTON AP—The Reagan administration, which had claimed it was represented by national security advisor Richard V. Allen, backed out of the agreement on Feb 11.

On Feb 12, American newspapers began giving front-page coverage to the administration’s charges that the Soviet Union and Cuba were using their influence to make the peace talks impossible.

Castillo said the United States and the front agreed on Feb 11 for a meeting to take place in Washington at an unspecified later date. He described the proposed meetings as “dialogue” not negotiations.

But he said the Reagan administration, which he claimed was to be represented by national security advisor Richard V. Allen, backed out of the agreement on Feb 11.

The “technological” charges are expected to make the peace talks impossible.

News Roundup—

Supreme Court rules on rape law

WASHINGTON AP—The Supreme Court ruled Monday that states can require, with some exceptions, the notification of parents or teen-age daughters seeking abortions.

In another case, the court ruled that statutory rape laws are valid even if they only punish males not females for having sex with a consenting minor.

The rulings, both involving teen-ager sex, reflected deep disagreement among the nine justices. They upheld a Utah law prohibiting a family member’s consensual sex with a minor. But they reversed a New York law that designated sexual relations with a 14-year-old girl as a felony.

Aroused racist sentenced to life

SALT LAKE CITY AP—Rushing the bench and demanding his judge and prosecutors, a convicted racist Joseph Paul Franklin was sentenced Monday to the maximum penalty of two consecutive life terms for violating the civil rights of two black joggers by shooting them to death.

About 10 marshals wrestled Franklin to the floor and handuffed him after the outburst, which began with Franklin calling District Judge Bruce Jenkins, “This whole thing is a farce.”

Thompson to propose oil tax

SPRINGFIELD AP—Gov. James R. Thompson will propose a 5 percent tax on the sale of oil products in Illinois as part of a road and mass transit funding package he outlined to lawmakers Tuesday.

However, the sources said Thompson administration officials were still trying to decide whether to abolish the Regional Transportation Authority, as Thompson has suggested several times, or overhaul it instead.

The gross receipts oil tax is the major component of the transportation package to be presented in a joint session of the General Assembly at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Burnett’s libel case goes to jury

LOS ANGELES AP—Carol Burnett’s libel case against the National Enquirer won’t go to a jury Monday after her attorneys asked judges to “hit them where it hurts” by awarding substantial damages.

An attorney, for the National Enquirer said Burnett’s label claim should be rejected to respect the First Amendment and the public’s right to know.

Burnett’s lawyer, Ed Bronson, said in his closing arguments that the paper was mounting an alleged ruse with “Jerry Kassinger at a Washington restaurant, obviously implied the entertainer was drunk.”
Man arrested for purse theft

A 21-year-old man was arrested after allegedly knocking down a 71-year-old woman and stealing her purse as she was entering her home last week. Carbondale police said Kenneth Roy Mitchell, 21, of 100 West Walnut St. is being held at the Jackson County Jail on $30,000 bond, which is a suspect in three other area purse-snatching incidents.

According to police, the woman was entering her home on East Johnson Avenue at about 6 p.m. Thursday, and Mitchell allegedly threw her onto the ground and took her purse, which contained about $11 in cash and identification cards. Ruffin was arrested when he returned to get a hat that he lost during the scuffle with the woman, police said.

The victim sustained minor cuts and bruises and is in satisfactory condition at home. Mitchell has a prior arrest record and is a suspect in three other purse-snatching incidents, including the theft of an 80-year-old Carbondale woman on March 8.

City Council expected to award siren contract

Although installation was expected sooner, Carbondale should have its long-awaited weather warning sirens before the end of June.

By Monday Cook
Staff Writer

Rejection of two bids for installation of the sirens, the city council decided to re-examine bids and will officially announce the contract at its April 6 hearings in Springfield. Dan Hopson, dean of the Law School, said one unanswered bid, if passed, would mean eliminating many second- and third-year students from the University's law program.

The Law School plans to increase enrollment by 30 students next year and 50 the following year. Hopson said passage of the bill would signal a dramatic reversal of the Legislature after its 9 million appropriation in 1978 for construction of the new Law Building.

"If it wasn't for students, faculty wouldn't be here, staff wouldn't be here," Mitchell said that while Dunn has said recently that he still opposes the bill, it will be made to sway the legislation..."his vote is considered to be "critical." He added that an attempt would be made to organize students and others to lobby state representatives in other colleges and universities in order to lobby state representatives from other districts.

Reagan fights inflation by starving the poor

AS THE DISTURBING TREMBLE WITH FEAR that their food stamps will be cut down, the poor in the United States are beginning to realize that they are being starved. The government, under President Reagan, is trying to reduce the cost of living by cutting food stamps, which are essential for survival. However, the poor are not the only ones affected by this policy. Many working-class families are also struggling to make ends meet.

The government claims that this policy is necessary to cut the deficit, but in reality, it is a tactic to shift the burden of poverty onto the shoulders of the poor and working-class. The average household income of food-stamp recipients is about $1,000 per month, which is far below the poverty line. In addition, the government is also cutting welfare benefits, which are essential for many families to get by.

The government is also trying to lower the cost of food by reducing the amount of food stamps that people receive. However, this is not a solution to the problem of hunger. The poor need more food, not less. The government should be providing more support for the poor, not cutting it down.

There are many solutions to the problem of hunger in the United States. The government should be implementing programs to provide more food for the poor, such as food banks and soup kitchens. They should also be increasing the minimum wage to help people support themselves. In addition, the government should be providing more support for the unemployed, such as unemployment benefits and job training programs.

The government is trying to shift the burden of poverty onto the shoulders of the poor, but this is not a solution to the problem. The government should be providing more support for the poor, not cutting it down. The poor need more food, not less.

Southern rock and country-western music will make its special debut at SIU when the Commander Cody Band plays starting at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 4, at Shryock Auditorium.

Tickets, priced at $7, will go on sale at 8 a.m. Thursday at the Student Center Central Ticket Office.

George Frayne, or Commander Cody, with his first and best-known band, the Lost Planet Airmen, released their first album. "Lost in the Ozone," in 1973. The album included many of his trademark tunes like "Bees and Bees," "Hot Rod Lincoln" and the title cut.

The Commander, a honky-tonk keyboard player who has been known to dance on top of his piano in concert, is touring with a new band, but he has retained the C&W, rockabilly sound that is evident on all nine of his albums.

The Roadside Band, a regular at several local clubs, will soon be releasing its debut album. This four-man group features a harder rock edge to its Southern style that is in the same vein as music from Lynyrd Skynyrd and the Outlaws.

The show is sponsored by the Student Programming Council Concours Committee.

Canadians, Americans prove the grass is always greener

By Charles J. Hanley
Associated Press Writer

Dollar-a-gallon gasoline isn't the only thing drawing Americans across the border to Canada. The grass is also greener on the Canadian side for two reasons, some say: in the pocketbook and in the medicine cabinet.

And as the Yankees stream northward, the southbound lanes are for Canadians in search of X-rated movies, liquor and easy abortions on the American side.

They are taking advantage of a unique symbiosis between two nations that goes back a century and a half, when they settled a string of major transcontinental squabbles.

More than 70 million border crossings are made each year, with heaviest traffic in such spots as the cities and Detroit where American motorists lately have been stopping up at Canadian gas stations for gasoline that costs $4.00 a gallon. Half a century ago this season, it cost Canadian motorists $1.50 a gallon.

But perhaps the strongest bond that unites the little country towns that hug the 3,895-mile-long border is a mutual disdain for each other's government.

In some senses, it's like one community of 1.6 million people, explained the Calais city manager, William Bridges, the U.S. born son of Canadian parents.

Calais, in Maine, and St. Stephen, in New Brunswick, are a pair of 100-year-old towns linked by two bridges across the 100-foot breadth of the St. Croix River.

"In some senses, it's like one community of 1.6 million people," explained the Calais city manager, William Bridges, the U.S. born son of Canadian parents.

Calais and St. Stephen sometimes lean on each other. The Maine mayor is water from St. Stephen, and the two fire departments respond to each other's emergencies. The family and commercial web uniting the towns is even thicker.

Women from one side often have their babies at the hospital on the other, "depending on your doctor," said a 2,600,000-year-old woman. Sometimes it depends on whether the woman is a dual U.S.-Canadian national who wants to capitalize on generous Canadian government maternity benefits by giving birth in St. Stephen.

Some people spend their lives perfecting the system, the city manager said with a laugh.

At the other end of this continental divide, Blaine. population 2,000, has become something of an X-rated outlet for the 1.5 million people of metropolitan Vancouver, British Columbia.

Blaine's two "hard-porn" movie theaters --"adult" and "family" -- have packed with Canadians who have no similar attractions at home because of anti-pornography laws, "dry" states and other restrictions.

But thousands on both sides make the crossing for more serious purposes, often driven by pain, fear or high prices at home.

For women, from the heavily Roman Catholic province of Quebec where abortion has been legal since 1969, a pain clinic or hospital on the Canadian side is sometimes a lifeline.

In Burlington, Vt., social worker Dana Gallagher said the number of Canadians coming for abortions has risen. "But the newest thing is that we're getting more inquiries from Canadian women about having cervical exams filed here."

At the Women's Health Clinic in Burlington, Vt., social worker Dana Gallagher said the number of Canadians coming in for abortions has risen. "But the newest thing is that we're getting more inquiries from Canadian women about having cervical exams filed here."

At the other end of the spectrum, the average American can fill up on staple items like milk, eggs and bread for about $4.00, half the price back home.

It seems that barrier methods of birth control are not as popular up there and not as available," Gallagher said.

"But thousands on both sides make the crossing for more serious purposes, often driven by pain, fear or high prices at home."

Classical guitarist set to give recital in Old Baptist Chapel

By Alan Staley
Staff Writer

Classical guitarist Joseph Breznikar, an associate professor of music, will give a recital at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel. Admission is free.

Breznikar’s one hour performance will include a piece written by James Marshall that was dedicated to Breznikar, “Suite For Guitar,” a Pulitzer Prize-winning composition by Ned Rorem.

Breznikar, who joined the SIU-C faculty in the fall, has had many works dedicated to him and has played the world premieres of two Mignone compositions, Guido Santorsola’s “Concerto a Cinque” and Rorem’s “Suite For Guitar.”

A project Breznikar hopes to work on this summer will be an album. He said if he gets to do the album, it will either contain contemporary works by composers from North and South America or feature one side of contemporary classical music and one side of traditional classical music.

Breznikar has taken two trips to Brazil where he studied under Santorsola and Mignone, performed concerts and recitals and also appeared on “Hojt,” the Brazilian television equivalent of NBC-TV’s “Tonight Show.”

Classical guitar differs from other forms of guitar because it involves playing the sounds of the voice and playing the accompaniment and melody at one time rather than concentrating on only the chords, Breznikar said.

According to Breznikar, classical guitar in America is experiencing a renaissance. He said there are more players, more people playing guitar for recreation, bigger and more appreciative audiences for recitals and more composers writing music for classical guitar.

Classical guitarist Joseph Breznikar, associate professor of music, will give a free recital at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.
'Back Roads' is refreshing, high-quality entertainment

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

Amid the tidal wave of slimy horror flicks and infantile drama and comedy pouring out of Hollywood film studios these days there's also at least one healthy trend developing—a growing influx of films about interesting everyday people trying to cope with life's shortcomings. 'Back Roads' is just this type of refreshing, high-quality entertainment.

Such films as 'Melvin and Howard,' 'Ordinary People' and 'The Competition' are classy, well-acted studies at people who are not superstars or superheroes, but instead, believable human beings trying to live, love, and survive in a world which is often turning too quickly for them. No car chases, gunfights or hatchets in the head, just a nice, intelligent human touch.

'Back Roads' features Academy Award winner Sally Field as a proud, high-spirited prostitute who feels the need to escape from her depressing lifestyle in Mobile, Ala. She gives her services to an illegitimate, washed-up boxer (Tommy 'Jones') who feels Mobile with him after an encounter with the law.

The two decide on Los Angeles as the perfect spot to wipe the slate clean and start new lives and new careers. The rest of the film follows Field and Jones on their hitchhiking odyssey across the American South through its dingy country-western bars, greasy diners, bus stops and county fairs.

Filmed on location in Alabama and Texas, director Martin Ritt and also guided Field in her award-winning 'Norma Rae' and photographer John Alonso give us a lush, well-detailed picture postcard of the modern South which serves as an effective backdrop for the film's simple story. Writer Gary Fields' script develops characters and feelings which are both humorous and sympathetic without ever being condescending.

Both Field and Jones are utterly believable as two habitual losers who still keep fighting to live the way they want to. They effectively combine serious and comedic elements to create multi-dimensional characters who are independent and strong willed, but can still laugh at themselves. The film is more than a romantic comedy; it's a story of people just getting by while the world seems to work against them.

Field displays an innate knack for physical comedy while still keeping her performance under control. She always stays "in character" while bouncing around the back of a pickup truck, falling off a train or skipping out on a dinner tab. Jones whose Southern drawl is reminiscent of his role as Loretta Lynn's husband in "Coal Miner's Daughter," matches her scene for scene as a 'fool-mouthed simpleton whose main sources of income are crime, punch outs and con games.

Together the two form an appealing duo who draw us into their lives and make us root for them to succeed against the odds, much like Richard Dreyfuss and Amy Irving in 'The Competition.' They're likable people who care about each other and deserve any rewards they may attain.

It's too bad we don't see more characters like those created by Field and Jones. But who knows, maybe Hollywood is realizing the public will buy human characters with interesting stories. With lively films like 'Back Roads' coming out, let's hope so.

Purpose:

1) To provide a lighted access route around campus to help ensure the safety of pedestrians. This is the most populated, well-traveled route. Through use of the Brightway Path, the Security Office can concentrate night patrols along the Brightway.

2) This route designates sidewalks which will be cleared of snow and ice so that individuals with disabilities will have access to campus buildings.

Clean-Up Day broom earning Ripley nod as world's largest

By David Murphy
Staff Writer

Believe it or not, a broom built by students in Carbondale has been accepted by Ripley's as the world's largest broom, according to Keith Kovarik, public relations commissioner for the SIUC Undergraduate Student Organization.

The broom was built in September by 11 members and students in the Comprehensive Planning and Design Department to promote "Carbondale Clean-Up Day 70," an effort by students and city workers to rid the city's streets of litter.

The broom was 2 feet wide and the handle was 49 feet long. The CBS received a letter from Ripley International Ltd. last week which stated that a cartoon feature of the broom will be published as soon as Kovarik features Syndicate is prepared to publish it, according to Kovarik. Kovarik is the distributor for Ripley cartoons.

Edward Meyer, archivist for Ripley's said, "We will proceed rapidly in having your 'world's largest broom' published in our cartoon feature. When King Features Syndicate is ready to print, they will be in contact with you."

Kovarik feels optimistic that the broom will be published as a world record.

"Well, it looks like the city of Carbondale has a world record, but until King Feature Syndicate contacts me, I will still be termed 'unofficial' in saying it is true," Kovarik said.

Kovarik said the letter from Ripley's also informed him of a broom made in Nebraska in 1940 which was 33 feet long with a 18 foot handle. He said he now plans to contact the Guinness Book of World Records, which was previously uninterested in publishing the broom because there was no other record to compete against.

CBS makes 'Morning' a little longer

By Tom Jory
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) -- CBS, bidding for a bigger portion of the largely untapped early evening TV audience, will expand its "Morning" news show this fall by 30 minutes. Industry sources say the move probably won't immediately affect the competitive balance in the period.

"Morning with Charles Kuralt" will maintain its hard-news character opposite "Today" on NBC and ABC's "Good Morning America," both of which mix entertainment and information. And if recent broadcast history is any indication, the expanded CBS show is more likely to attract viewers who now don't watch morning television than to win them away from the rival programs.

"I doubt it," said Gene F. Jankowski, president of the CBS Broadcast Group, when asked if the realignment, to take effect Sept. 28, would tip the scale in favor of "Morning."

"I think we've carved a niche as the morning network providing news throughout the program, and I don't see any need to change that. We've been increasing our audience right along, and I think that will continue," Jankowski said.

The model for CBS is the success of "Good Morning America," which premiered Nov. 3, 1975.

Business, industry speakers set for Special Projects Day

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

The third annual Special Projects Day, scheduled for Friday in the Student Center, will feature more projects than ever before, according to William Shupe, chairman of the Special Projects Day Committee.

Shupe said the six-member committee has been soliciting ideas from various academic departments, originally planned to accept 18 projects for presentation, but expanded the number to allow 24 presentations.

"We had close to 30 applications," said Shupe, an assistant professor of electrical technology in the School of Technical Careers. "We found so many good ones that we went to the Student Center and reserved another room for the day."

Shupe said Special Projects Day, sponsored by the Office of Continuing Education and the Department of Continuing Education, is "kind of a community service" which enables speakers from businesses, industries and schools from the Southern Illinois area to share their ideas with students, faculty and people from the community. Four of the 50-minute long presentations will be given simultaneously in Ballrooms A and B and the Illinoisan and Mackinaw River rooms.

The first session will start at 9:10 a.m. and the last at 3:10 p.m. Shupe said this schedule was adopted to encourage students and faculty to view the presentations.

"I think there's a lot of presentations that students would like to see," said Shupe. "And what we would really like to see is instructors bringing their whole classes over to see a presentation."

The speakers will be presenting a wide range of topics, according to Shupe. The schedule of events lists presentations varying from a discussion of the use of microcomputers in education to an overview of hazardous waste management.

The keynote speaker William Metheny of Texas Instruments will begin the day's activities with a 45-minute lecture entitled "What the World of Work Expects From You," starting at 8:15 a.m.

Registration for the presentations will be held prior to the lecture at 8 a.m. in the Student Center Gallery Lounge.

Election for Graduate Council set

Eight faculty positions on the Graduate Council need to be filled during elections scheduled to be held April 3 through 13, John Jackson, assistant professor of electrical technology in the School of Technical Careers, said Monday.

Two representatives from the College of Science and two from the College of Education are to be elected, with the persons to be elected from each of the other colleges. Members of the graduate faculty will nominate one or two representatives from the respective colleges, depending on vacancies.

Jackson said although the graduate faculty minister number about 950, usually only 150-200 ballots are cast. A deadline has been set for returning nominating ballots, which were distributed last week.

Jackson compared the low ballot return rate in Graduate Council elections to that of student government and said he would like to see the percentage increase. He said that apathy in elections nationwide is something difficult to overcome.

After the nominating ballots are returned, nominees will be called by Jackson to see if they are willing to accept the three-year Graduate Council term. Election ballots will be mailed to graduate faculty members with a return date of April 13. Jackson said the legitimacy of the election depends on the integrity of the faculty.

Newly elected members will begin their term in May, when the Graduate Council will vote on a chairperson and vice chairperson of the group.

Gymnasts edged by LSU in final meet

By Michelle Schwent

The men's gymnastics team ended its regular season with a loss, but it wasn't a sour note to end on.

The Louisiana State Tigers beat the Salukis for the second time this season. Their final score was 125.150-115.8.

The Salukis finished second with 115.8, while Southeast Oklahoma State finished third with 115.8.

The team's dominant performance was in the pommel horse, where senior Randy Bettis captured the title event with a score of 8.95. It was the second year in a row Bettis won the event.

Bettis' performance was part of a dominant night for the Salukis. The team had six top-10 finishes on the night, with five coming on Ring 1.

Coach Mike Ficher said Bettis earned his first trip to nationals with his performance.

The Salukis also had strong performances in the floor exercise and parallel bars.

The team's highest score of the night was 8.875, which was earned by junior Randy Babcock in the parallel bars. Babcock's score was the highest of the season for the Salukis.

Senior Eric Jones' SIUC wrestling career came to an end last week when he was defeated in the second round of the national championships at Princeton, N.J.

Weighing 158 pounds in the tournament, he managed a 6-4 win over Yale captain Alan Washington before being eliminated.

Jones went into the tournament with a 24-12 record, which he compiled by wrestling consistently, despite being overweight by most of his opponents.

"Since I've been wrestling up a weight, I haven't really had the opportunity to overpower anybody," the Saluki captain said near the end of the regular season. "I have to compensate by relying on quickness and reflexes more.

Baseball team is 6-4 following spring trip

By Dave Kane
Staff Writer

CORA L. GABLES, Fla.—It’s been said that to get the best out of the baseball team, you have to play against the best. Saluki baseball coach John Sayre couldn’t have picked a better place to put SIC-U to the test over spring break than Coral Gables, home of the 1-0 Miami Hurricanes.

Sure enough, this weekend compiled a 6-4 record in Hurricane land, and you can guess who now anchors the four losses.

“We’re going to have a good baseball team this year,” Sayre said. “They took a loss in Miami, but they couldn’t anchor that loss to Hurricane territory.”

Hartzo’s performance of April 11 eluded the Saluki pitching staff.

Coach John Sayre. Stephen Wray of Memphis won the 1-0 game with a 3-26 final. Wray made the opening height of 7-8, but “he seemed to go to sleep” during the second half of the game, Hartzo said. Wray had two outs, but lost the game when he was up in the ninth inning, running by a Saluki runner at the home plate.

The Salukis won with a 7-0 time, followed by the 98-100 record in the Southeast. They will have six games to go after Saturday’s game.

Sayre had six losses en route to Wednesday’s game. The Salukis were leading 9-8 after four innings when they were down 11-10.

“The game was on track,” Hartzo said. “We lost to the Salukis and we lost to the Hurricanes.”

The Saluki team was 6-4 overall in the spring, but lost to the Hurricanes in both games. The Salukis lost the first game, 1-0, and beat the Hurricanes, 9-8, in the second game.

The Salukis didn’t have a chance in the opening game, but the entry was quite a change. They had an opening height of 7-8, but “he seemed to go to sleep” during the second half of the game, Hartzo said.

The women’s swim team and Coach Tim Hill were racing for several reasons. One, it was that final goal, a place in the top 8 in the nation. That exclusion is the reason the Salukis have been there. Two, if they weren’t far enough off in winning a national title, Hill is generally pleased with the outcome of the meet.

“We’ve swum well but not as well as we expected,” Hill admitted. “The results are good, but we pooled the team.”

Hill said that the women’s team swam as well as they could have.

The Salukis won 7-0, and had a 7-0 time. The top two swimmers swam a 7-0 time. The top two swimmers swam a 7-0 time. The top two swimmers swam a 7-0 time. The top two swimmers swam a 7-0 time. The top two swimmers swam a 7-0 time.

The Salukis converged on the home of the Hurricanes in front of 4,125 fans. Sophomore lefthander Rick Wysokiet spoke the call for SIC-U. While Wysoken gave up a single and a walk, he still struck out the Hurricanes in their first trip to Miami.

Even the best tracksters lose at the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championship, according to SIC-U Coach Lew Hartzo. So it’s “understandable,” Hartzo said. “We’re happy just to be there.”

It’s probably too early to give the Salukis’ tennis team its fearsome nickname, like the Barrymore Menace. But SIC-U seems well on its way to establishing that type of moniker after winning seven of nine matches during its season-opening spring break trip through the South. The Salukis defeated Millsaps, 5-4; Nicholls State, 5-4; Okalahoma-Walton Junior College, 4-0; Alabama Southern, 5-4; Mississippi College, 5-4; and Georgia State, 5-4.

The Salukis’ lone losses were to the University of Alabama, 7-0.

Coach Judy Auld wasn’t surprised by the strong start, pointing out that SIC-U won all of its last five matches during a 7-8 fall season.

“Last year, we didn’t come away with a record close to this,” Auld said. “This fall, I saw the team progress from weekend to weekend and I thought we’d do the same this spring. We had a couple hard matches to start with that were closer than they should have been, so I think that helped our mental preparation.

“Even though we lost to Tulane and South Alabama, we were in the matches all the way. Only two Salukis, Nos. 1 and 3 singles players Lisa Warren and Janie Martin, had trouble in the doubles, and then in the singles. We did not lose on the records in the top two, Warren, a sophomore in the top two, Warren, a sophomore in the top two, Warren, a sophomore in the top two, Warren, a sophomore in the top two...”

Five Salukis won in No. 5 against Martin and No. 2 singles; Stacy Sherman was a 5-3 at No. 3 and 5-2 at No. 2 singles; Stacy Sherman was a 5-3 at No. 3 and 5-2 at No. 2 singles; Stacy Sherman was a 5-3 at No. 3 and 5-2 at No. 2 singles.

The Salukis won all but four of the individual events, and won the 400 and 1,500-meter relays. Lee and Clarence Robinson were both double event winners. Lee captured the 110-meter hurdles in 11.7, the 400-meter intermediate hurdles in 49.9, and anchored the 1,500-meter relay team with Javel Jones, Mike Ward, and Lance Peeler to a 3:36.49 finish.

Robison won the 100-meter dash in 10.34, and the 200-meter dash in 21.92.

Schultz missed qualifying for the NCAA Indoor Championships by 1.9 seconds in the 1,500-meter run, when he ran a 4:03.68.

“Even though we lost to Tulane and South Alabama, we were in the matches all the way. Only two Salukis, Nos. 1 and 3 singles players Lisa Warren and Janie Martin, had trouble in the doubles, and then in the singles. We did not lose on the records in the top two, Warren, a sophomore in the top two, Warren, a sophomore in the top two, Warren, a sophomore in the top two...”

Five Salukis won in No. 5 against Martin and No. 2 singles; Stacy Sherman was a 5-3 at No. 3 and 5-2 at No. 2 singles; Stacy Sherman was a 5-3 at No. 3 and 5-2 at No. 2 singles.

The Salukis won all but four of the individual events, and won the 400 and 1,500-meter relays. Lee and Clarence Robinson were both double event winners. Lee captured the 110-meter hurdles in 11.7, the 400-meter intermediate hurdles in 49.9, and anchored the 1,500-meter relay team with Javel Jones, Mike Ward, and Lance Peeler to a 3:36.49 finish.

Robison won the 100-meter dash in 10.34, and the 200-meter dash in 21.92.

Schultz missed qualifying for the NCAA Indoor Championships by 1.9 seconds in the 1,500-meter run, when he ran a 4:03.68.

LA FAYETTE, La., with Southwest Louisiana and Louisiana Tech, were in line to lead the Salukis to the top of the standings. The Salukis had to face another formidable foe.

Hartzo said when the teams arrived on Friday, the weather was 80 degrees and clear. But Saturday temperatures dropped to near 50 degrees, winds were 20 mph, and it drizzled all day.

The Salukis still won with 109 points, while USL had 80, and Tulane, 2.

Auld was a double winner in the 100 intermediate hurdles, 50.4, and the 110 high hurdles, 14.9. Hartzo called Lee’s intermediate hurdles time “super great because he was running against the wind.”

Lee then anchored the 1,600 relay...
