Delay of aid-draft law to be considered
By Vicki Olgesby
Staff Writer

A bill introduced by U.S. Rep Paul Simon that would delay implementation of a recently signed financial aid plan will be considered by a House subcommittee Wednesday.

The subcommittee on Postsecondary Education chaired by Simon, D-I1l.-22nd District, will consider the draft bill introduced by Rep Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., whose legislation would delay the implementation of the so-called Solomon Amendment.

The amendment, named after its author, would give federal funds only to schools that have no reverse discrimination policies.

A hearing is scheduled to be held Monday by the Selective Service System's office in Chicago.

City's plan would move proposed garage facility
By John Schrag
Staff Writer

City officials are considering a plan to change the site of the proposed downtown parking garage.

The plan, announced at the Carbondale City Council meeting Monday night, could reduce some of the many obstacles to the troubled project.

A public hearing on the proposal is scheduled for April 11.

If the garage were built on the original conference center site, the city would need to find the land held by the Walnut Street Baptist Church, one of several property owners who refused to sell their property to the city.

The proposed garage project was to be built along the east side of South Illinois Avenue between Elm and Walnut streets.

"Work on the projects was scheduled to be underway by now, but was delayed last June when Jackson County Circuit Judge Richard E. Richman ruled the city's method of land acquisition unconstitutional," said Mayor John Schrag.

The city, claiming that it was acting within the limits of state home rule powers, appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court.

The court heard the case in January and is expected to hand down a decision soon.

But even if the court should rule in the city's favor, a center developer, Stan Hoye, said he plans to pull out of the deal in November.

If the city decides to build the garage on the conference center site, any project built on the original garage site would need to be smaller than the proposed conference center.

Monty, the city's director of community development, said Tuesday that there was no intention of buying any property not in the original plans.

Monty said the $2.6 million federal grant for acquiring the land needed for the project cannot be used for work-release centers.

"There may be no intention of buying any property not in the original plans," said Monty.

After the council meeting, Mayor Allan Fischer said that developers, including Hoye, have expressed interest in building some type of downtown project.

"But nothing has been done. We are trying to get a handle on this thing," said Fischer.

House of Glass fate rests on big 'ifs'
By Christopher Kade
Staff Writer

Whether Carbondale's House of Glass will remain open, or whether it will have to be closed, the fate of closure is subject to "some mighty big 'ifs,'" a state constitutional officer said Tuesday.

James Thompson, the proposed tax increase is approved, and if the Illinois Department of Conservation receives a large enough slice of the additional revenue, then the department may continue operating the glassblowing center.

If the additional revenue is not enough, the House of Glass may be closed.

"We didn't want to close these centers, but we had to since we're out of money," said Thompson.

The House of Glass, a long-time supporter of the center, would like to see the House of Glass continue operating in some way, according to the House of Glass.

The department has so far refused to discuss the issue.

Seven of them have already been closed. The expected closings in July will bring the number surviving down to six, including three in Chicago and one in East St. Louis.

Although the procedure of allowing states to intervene in cases of work-release centers in the state has not led to an improvement in the state's prisons, Hoye said.

"We are working with the department to solve the problem," said Hoye.

Although the proposed fiscal year 1984 budget will provide for an increase over this year's budget, Hoye said that the additional revenue, if any, will be used to pay off the state's prison debts.

Simon fights high gas prices

Bill would limit deregulation

By Terry Leetack Staff Writer

In response to President Ronald Reagan's national gas deregulation proposal, a coalition of bi-partisan lawmakers produced an alternative bill that would extend gas controls and offer more consumer protection.

The Alliance for Abatement Relief Act, introduced to the U.S. House last week, would rolled back price ceilings to last year's levels, extend gas controls two years beyond 1983 and prevent price ceiling adjustments to rise above 7.5 percent of the inflation rate, explained Rep. Paul Simon, D-22nd District, a member of the coalition.

The bill would give states and consumers an opportunity to participate in the pricing process and would hold liquefied natural gas from Algeria at the same price standards the state applies to domestic gas, Simon said at a press conference in Carbondale last Monday night.

The reform package addresses all key factors contributing to the steep climb in Illinois natural gas prices, Simon said, including gas from Algeria, which Central Illinois Public Service Co. uses.

"Take-or-pay" contract obligations and automatic pass-through rate increases are also being targeted.

Rep. Richard Gehrardt, D-Mo., is the chief sponsor of the bill, which was sent to the Federal and Synthetic Fuel Subcommittees for review. The committee is also reviewing the Administration's proposal, according to David Carle, Simon's press secretary.

Those changes would mean a fair rate of return for producers and pipeline companies and fair treatment for the millions of Americans who are at the other end of the pipeline," Simon said.

The Consumer Relief Act has been supported from farm-labor and consumer groups, including the United Mine Workers, Rural America, the Consumer Federation of America, the National Farmers Union and the Illinois Public Action Council.

Opposition to the bill is expected in the Senate, Carle said, where gas-producing interests might produce a filibuster, delaying action or attempting to eliminate unfavorable aspects from the bill. "The House will probably pass something closer to our bill and the Senate will pass something closer to Reagan's." Carle said at that point a negotiation committee would work out the differences in the bill.

Simon also said he plans to introduce legislation that would detach pipeline companies from the actual buying and selling of natural gas and make them common carriers. It would reduce their responsibility to distribute gas under contracts between producers and users of natural gas.

Simon said he discussed this plan with Illinois Commerce Commission Chairman Philip O'Connor who estimates such a plan would stimulate enough competition to cut prices 20 percent to 40 percent.

Simon said he would test Congress' willingness to take such a step during the hearings on the Gas Consumer Relief Act and the administration's deregulation plan.

Council renew mowing contract

By John Schrag Staff Writer

After lengthy Carbondale City Council discussion, the Carbondale Abatement District was again awarded this year's city weed and grass mowing contract.

The city, which has contracted with the district in several past years, terminated CMAD's contract last year following a dispute over mowing and equipment costs. CMAD's total bid of $16,958 was the lowest among four bids, accepted by the council at its meeting Monday night.

The second lowest bid - $18,434 - came from Roger Raines of Murphysboro, who was awarded last year's mowing contract. More than a dozen people commented on the problems developed with CMAD.

The contract is for the mowing of city property, private property and rights of way and drainage ditches in the city.

Although Raines' bids for mowing the rights of way and city property was slightly lower than CMAD's bid for those jobs, the council decided that the slight difference between the bids did not warrant the potential confusion of having two contractors.

The district, which is operated with property tax revenue, will take a loss on this year's mowing contract according to CMAD supervisor Bill Kelley. CMAD is willing to take a loss because the coordination of the mowing with its mosquito spraying program will save its district money in the long run, Kelley said.

Carlson Smith of Smith Landscaping in Carbondale, asked the council why the city bothers taking bids when they all know that CMAD will be the lowest bidder.

Smith, who entered a bid of $6,402 for the mowing contract, said CMAD and CMAD can't compete with a taxing district, which does not need to show a profit.

"Fifteen thousand dollars is too cheap, and we all know it," he said.

Smith recommended that the city implement a mowing program involving several local businesses that would provide jobs for minority residents.

While the city rejected this proposal, Mayor Hans Fischer agreed that the city should consider some other method of negotiating its mowing contract.

News Roundup--State escapes credit damage

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Illinois apparently escaped damage from the loss of its top-grade credit rating in selling $600 million in bonds Tuesday at the lowest interest rate since 1980.

"The interest level on these bonds is less than we expected," said Gov. James R. Thompson. "I think this reconfirms that the financial community believes Illinois is capable of solving its problems.

Report says EPA acted 'improperly'

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Environmental Protection Agency acted improperly, or at a minimum, created the appearance of impropriety in deciding not to regulate formaldehyde as a suspected cancer-causing chemical, a draft House report says.

The report accuses assistant EPA administrator John A. Tedder of ordering changes in the opinions of EPA's scientific staff and acting administrator John W. Hernandez of holding "closed-door science courts" that gave industry a special forum for making its case.

Aborted five-births fuel protests

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - The live births of six babies whose mothers had abortions at Madison hospitals in the past 10 months have shocked residents in this normally low-key, dairy-raising point for abortion foes and prompted one hospital to drastically curtail the practice.

All six babies died within 27 hours of birth, four at Madison General Hospital and two at the University of Wisconsin Hospital. The reason they were born alive remains unclear, as does the question of how often such live births occur after abortions.

Nuclear protesters try to stop train

BANGOR, Wash. (AP) -- A train believed to be carrying nuclear warheads pulled past a crowd of demonstrators into a subarctic base Tuesday, ending a 2,300-mile journey. Police arrested six people who tried to block the tracks.

Two hundred people who had gathered peacefully with flowers and signs were ordered back as the train passed through the fence surrounding the base at noon. The crowd scattered forward, but the train didn't stop.

The train's journey from Texas was marked by vigils at yards and crossings throughout the Northwest, and protesters filled the Washington state community as the heavily guarded train made the last leg of the trip.

Daily Egyptian places second in regional newspaper contest

The Daily Egyptian has won second place for best all-around newspaper in the 1982-83 Region Five Mark of Excellence Contest sponsored by the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi.

In competition with about 30 other entries from college newspapers in Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky, only the Indiana Daily Student in Bloomington finished ahead of the DE.

Two reporters on the DE staff also won individual awards in the contest.

Andrew Herrmann, editorial page editor, placed second for best spot-news story behind Jan Chait of the Indiana State University newspaper.

Herrmann's entry was about the abduction of a 10-year-old paper boy. The story was written by Herrmann last summer while he was an intern for the Peoria Journal-Star.

Winning third place for best in-depth reporting was Ginny Lee, associate editor of the DE.

Lee finished behind first-place winner Donald William Yager, Jr. of Ball State University in Muncie, Ind., and Zack Nauth of the Daily Illini in Champaign-Urbana.

Lee's entry covered the U.S. Attorney's efforts to purchase a library storage facility.

The awards will be presented Saturday at the annual Region Five Conference in Bowling Green, Ky.

Vote fraud evidence turned over to state

An investigation by U.S. Attorney Frederick J. Hess on allegations of vote fraud in the Hamilton County general election last November failed to develop sufficient evidence to substantiate prosecution under federal statutes, the attorney's office announced last week.

However, evidence seized by federal subpoena and investigative reports from the FBI and postal inspectors have been turned over to the Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation.

The federal investigation developed sufficient and numerous examples of conduct which preliminarily suggest that Illinois voting laws have been violated, Hess' office announced.

Hamilton County State's Attorney Alan C. Dowmen said a grand jury will be called April 18. He would not make further comment on the nature of the local investigation or what candidates were involved in the alleged vote fraud.

Correction

Because of incorrect information supplied to the Daily Egyptian, it was reported that Ralph Wayman, who died in the Jan. 15 fire in downtown Murphysboro, lived in an apartment above Murph's Place, 12 N. 11th St.

According to owner Charlie Murphy, Wayman did not live above Murph's Place. The three apartments above Murph's Place were vacant at the time of the fire, he said.

Lee's entry covered the U.S. Attorney's efforts to purchase a library storage facility.

That's not my number

"The new phone books are in! My name is printed in! At last! I'm somebody!" Well, that's my exhaltation when the new phone book arrived. I opened the book to page 36 and there I was. They had even included a photograph of me, which I looked at the phone number and mates, and then I thought to myself, "That's not my number. That's never been my number." I have never been a very reliable man, with a 596 phone number, but this is ridiculous.

I'm through to find names of some of my friends! Hey, that's not Tracy phone number, now, that doesn't even resemble Lisa's number. Looks like Tony got shafted too, etc., etc.

Some people were lucky.

In Frondizi's passing...

Ricard Frondiz, 1912, died. Kaco, Texas, 1983 Professor Frondizi was a courageous, compassionate and modest man. His life exemplified the principle of nonviolence for the pursuit of a just freedom of thought, freedom of speech, freedom of action so necessary for the spirit to grow and develop. A devoted, widely traveled and well-respected teacher of business and public administration and many publications covering the rigorousness and sincerity of his study and thought. During his time at the University of Buenos Aires, 1957 to 1962, he opened many doors for the students and scholars of his home country.

We are assembled in Carbondale, Illinois, Feb. 16, 1962, to honor the memory of Professor Frondizi. Beer battle brews as bugs bubbles up

IF THERE'S one thing you can believe about the Anheuser-Busch, it's the Rev. Jesse Jackson's battle of beer and bugs - it's to believe very little at all.

For the past five months, Jackson and his Chicago-based Operation PUSH have had it out for Anheuser-Busch, which they say has turned a blind eye to the black community and Springfield, SIU, it was said, did not want to be seen as condoning the anti-nuclear rally.

No official should arbitrarily be deciding what political issues are too controversial for the public schools. I think it's much for an institution meant to expand the mind when officials decide that an anti-nuclear political rally is not the place for students to expand their minds.

The boycott has far exceeded our estimates and is effective we thought it could have an impact on the company's bottom line. Operation PUSH.

IRS' new 1040EZ, Schedule W prompt tax turmoil for some

By Ray Quintana

It's tax time again and even though mailing forms to the IRS is a Service tries to make tax forms less complicated, people still have questions and are uncertain about the procedure, about deadlines for tax forms, and about where to go for help on tax questions.

For example, there have been questions concerning the new schedule W marital deduction tax supplement and the new 1040EZ tax form, according to Kay Zini, public affairs officer at the Springfield District Office of the IRS.

The schedule W should be attached to the 1040 Form that was sent out and Zini said many people are not attaching the schedule to the 1040 Form. Because of an "incapacity in the tax structure," Zini said the schedule W was devised to equalize the tax paid by married couples who filed a joint return, when both persons worked before couples paid more tax if they filed separately.

"We estimate about 22 million people will use this form in 1983," Zini said.

"The 1040EZ tax form was designed for the single tax filer who has income under $2,000 in wages and interest only and was under $65," Zini said.

"This should be very popular with students," she said, because most students income is mainly wages and they don't have any interest income.

The 1040 and the 1040A have not been changed and all tax forms still are due on April 15. Zini said.

"If you have a tax liability and don't file by the 15th or if you file a frivolous return," she said, you may have to pay penalties. Zini said the IRS considers frivolous a return that is "completed to delay or interfere with the administration of federal income tax laws," or on which the information supplied is incorrect or incomplete.

Zini said one of the most common mistakes in filling income tax forms is the failure to check arithmetic. "Double check your figures," she insisted.

"Many people are using the 1040EZ and are using unemployment benefits as a source of income," Zini said. "This form is for income that consists of only wages and interest."

For taxable unemployment benefits, the regular 1040 or 1040A should be used. Zini said. Zini said when questions arise in filing tax forms, consult the IRS. The number to call, 1-800-424-1040, is toll free. Calls can be made from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. She said.

Zini encourages the use of the address label that appears on the form, because "sometimes it is difficult to read the taxpayer's writing," she said. Illegible writing could delay the tax refund or the procedure, she said.

"If you lose the tax forms that were sent through the mail," Zini said, "you can get replacements at the post office, banks, or at the local IRS office."

Forms can also be obtained through the mail by calling the toll free number and requesting them, she added.

The IRS also offers tax assistance in various other ways, according to Zini. By calling the toll free number and requesting the TeleTax 11-63 brochure from the IRS, the tax filer may listen to any of 140 tapes to answer possible tax questions, she said.

"You must have a push button telephone for this service," she said. "You push buttons for the tape you want to hear."

Zini also suggested getting the publication 9-10 from the IRS, which would be helpful in answering general tax questions. This too can be obtained by calling the toll free number, she said.
Dance to spotlight student works

By Thomas Sparks
Entertainment Editor

The efforts of imaginative choreographers and talented dancers will unite at 8 p.m., Friday and Saturday in Student Center Ballroom D for a special Spring Dance Concert '82.

The concert, being produced by the Southern Illinois Repertory Dance Theatre, will be performed in-the-round. In-the-round staging does present difficulties, however, because it allows the entire audience to view the performance.

The staging does present some problems, however. The choreographer and dancers of each piece must be aware they are exposed to all times to the audience's scrutiny, and cannot lose composure or take a break by facing the rear of the stage — there is none.

The performance will feature a varied works featuring different styles of dance and music. All pieces have been done completely by students and feature many unique ideas and concepts in dance.

Opening the show will be "Tango," a piece which utilizes the concept of people as props and combined with movement design. Choreographed by Ora Friedal and Jeff Curely, this piece asks the dancers to utilize each other's bodies as though they were inanimate objects while continuing their own dance.

"Unwilling Passages," choreographed by T. Cornell Williams, is performed to the unlikely music of Laurence Anderson's "Walking and Falling." Following "Unwilling Passages" will be a piece performed to the music of Syreco Gycra, called "Here's to Us" choreographed by Frank Thomas.

Following an intermission will be the up-tempo "Hand Jive" to the music of Sha-Na-Na and "Contradeco to the Residents' "God of Darkness." "Hand Jive" is choreographed by Vanessa Evans. "Contradeco" is choreographed by David Zambrano.

The finale of the evening will be "Bolero" by Maurice Ravel and choreographed by Vanessa Evans. The piece features a unique concept called internal spotting which allows the dancer to spin continuously without breaking down. The dancers appear to spin like tops as the upper body tilts in different directions.

The SIRD is composed of students from a wide variety of backgrounds who have an interest in dance that cannot be expressed elsewhere on campus. There is no dance major currently offered at SIUC.

Tickets for this unusual and fascinating show are available at the Student Center Central Ticket Office at a cost of $2.50 for students and $3.50 for the general public.

Works by art faculty to be exhibit feature

By Jeff Williamson
Staff Writer

SIUC will show the strength and depth of the School of Art's faculty artists when "Recent Works by Members of the SIUC School of Art Faculty" opens at the Marshall Gallery at 10 a.m., Friday, April 2. The exhibit will run through April 21.

All art faculty members were given the opportunity to display their work as professional artists — many of whom have achieved national and international reputations in their area of expertise.

The 18 faculty members and their respective works are: Alfonzo Addington, three untitled sculptures in steel; Larry Bernstein, two oil paintings and two pastel drawings; Patrick Cowan, two works in carbon d'ache and cast paper; Harris Delber, porcelain bowl and two vessels; Herbert Fink, two watercolors and a pencil drawing and Syrila Goldsmith, three works in aqua media.

Brent Kingston, sculpture in steel entitled "Liziana," M. Joan Linglau, one work in fiber entitled "Hakannai," George Magliano, three handbound books using linen, leather and paper; Richard Mawdsley, untitled jeweled pin; Michael Owen, four works in gouache and Robert Fasch, several oil paintings entitled "Montana Girls." Ed Shay, three watercolors; Milton Sullivan, wood sculpture entitled "Zambian Journey"; Thomas Walsh, sculptures in bronze and graphite; Dan Wood, still life and two landscapes in graphite pencil; Joel Fullman, two works in mixed media and one brown print and Bill Boysen, three works in oils.

Ed Shay, three watercolors; Milton Sullivan, wood sculpture entitled "Zambian Journey"; Thomas Walsh, sculptures in bronze and graphite; Dan Wood, still life and two landscapes in graphite pencil; Joel Fullman, two works in mixed media and one brown print and Bill Boysen, three works in oils.

The annual exhibition is an opportunity for students and community members to view or purchase fine work by the artists of SIUC. Buyers are asked to contact the artist directly to arrange a purchase. Works may not be removed from the exhibit until the closing date.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Friday. Admission is free.

The playwriting program in the Department of Theater is currently taking entries in the 1983 new play contest, which will include categories for one-act plays as well as full-length plays.

Any student of the University during the 1982-83 academic year is eligible to enter. A prize of $100 will be awarded for the best full-length play, with $50 plus a modified production.

Organ student receives top honors

SIU-C music student Lynn M. Trapp of Perryville, Mo., has won the right to compete in the American Guild of Organists Region VI Competition in June in Denver.

Trapp, a sophomore in the School of Music, advanced to the 10-state regional competition by winning top honors in the St. Louis Open Competition in organ playing March 5.

Auditions for a chorus of 16-12 boys for the 1983 Summer Playhouse's musical production of "Oliver" will be held Saturday from 1 until 4 p.m. in the McLeod Theater.

Students interested in receiving assistance with preparation of their tax returns can bring their tax forms, W-2 forms and all other relevant information to the VITA site. They have received training in tax preparation.

Law students offer aid with tax return

Students from the SIU-C School of Law will be available to assist individuals in the preparation of their 1982 federal and state income tax returns Friday and Saturday.

For students interested in receiving assistance with preparation of their tax returns can bring their tax forms, W-2 forms and all other relevant information to the VITA site. They have received training in tax preparation.

Clearchill dredge up old rape case

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A man convicted of rape 10 years ago but allowed to go free through a paperwork error has been ordered back to court for sentencing after clerks cleaning out old files stumbled on his case.

According to his attorney, the defendant, William Brooks, has lived in Albuquerque during the last 10 years.

"I've never had one like this before," said District Judge Philip Ashby, who is supposed to sentence Brooks on Monday. Ashby has ordered a pre-sentence report, so sentencing may be postponed again to give probation officers time to compile one.

Brooks' lawyer, Dale Dils, has filed a motion to void the guilty verdict and dismiss charges. He alleges the court has lost jurisdiction in the case because of the time lapse.

Court records show Brooks was indicted in July 1972 on one count of raping a woman hitchhiker he allegedly had picked up near Albuquerque. He was convicted Jan. 22, 1973 in a trial before Judge James A. Maloney, who has since retired.

Dils speculates the paperwork was put aside by someone in Maloney's office and then slipped through the cracks.

He said Brooks spent a day or two in jail before being released on appeal bond. Dils said he realized at the time that the sentencing hearing never was scheduled but didn't mention it.

"I'm a defense attorney," he said. "A defense lawyer's job is not to convict his client or make him go to jail.

With help from Scott Miller, a graduate student in environmen­tal design at SIU-C, lawyers who use litigation models from the 500 mailers reading. "Let the other guy make his point with a song and dance routine," lawyers from Mt. Vernon to Anna. So far he has had no response in the month since he began his venture.

Though working part-time as a designer and technician for American Resources Group Ltd., a private archaelogical research group in Carbondale, Miller's motive for trying to sell litiga­tion models is simple — "I need the money."

He said he got the idea for litigation models from "a friend of a friend of a friend." He knows of three other model makers also in the business, one on the East Coast who claims a 94-per­cent success rate for lawyers who use his models.

One of the reasons for the slow response to his idea may be because of Southern Illinois' low population density. Miller said there are only about 300 lawyers in the area he is covering. "It may be seasonal," too, he said. "Maybe more people get hurt in warm weather?" Miller said the models would be of most use in personal injury cases.

Miller, 35, has a bachelor's degree in speech education from SIU-C. He said he has always been interested in model making. He built models from scratch in high school.

Scott Miller displays a model of the Braille map of campus. The original map, designed to aid the blind, is in Woody Hall.

He and other students built a tactile-Braille map of the SIU-C campus that won a $1,000 national award in 1978 from the Better Information Project. The prize was for Education for the map and a project proposal. The map, on display at Woody Hall, is used in the Carbondale Student Center.

The Student Center is in cooperation with Southern Illinois Genetics Club, established at SIU-C, and members of the Southern Illinois Genetics Congress in the 1978-79 SIU-C Student Series.

This series consists of a buffet dinner served in the Student Center's dining room, from 5:00 to 8:30 p.m., followed by a concert at Student Center Auditorium.

Civil War discussion to be held

"Southern Illinoisans in the Civil War" is the topic of a public discussion scheduled for 2 p.m. Friday in Morris Library Auditorium.

The program, co-sponsored by the Jackson County Historical Society and the SIU-C Department of History, will feature talks on two of the area's most famous Civil War commanders, Michael K. Lawler and Daniel Harmon Brush.

William M. Anderson, president of Carl Sandburg College, will discuss "Colonel Lawler and the Lawlers 18th Illinois Infantry." John V. Simon, executive director of SIU-C's Ulysses S. Grant Association, will speak on "Daniel Harmon Brush and the 18th Illinois Infantry."

The 18th Illinois Infantry was the first Southern Illinois regiment enlisted to serve in the Civil War. Lawler, its first commander, was an anachronistic officer who was court-martialed and convicted for a series of offenses, then restored to the rank of colonel and promoted. Brush, who founded Carbondale, succeeded Lawler as commander of the 18th Illinois.

Anderson has written several articles and a book on the Civil War. He is former dean of instructional services at John A. Logan College and a SIU-C graduate with a Ph.D. Simon, professor of history at SIU-C and an authority on the Civil War, is editor of the Ulysses S. Grant Papers. The program is free.

has names of buildings in Braille on strips that can be pulled out of the map. He said the judges were so impressed with the map that they had trouble believing it was made by students.

"You get a kick out of that," he said.

Miller has written a book on building maps for the visually impaired as his graduate project at SIU-C.

Although he hasn't had any clients yet, Miller said he knows several students who would like to take over the business if he leaves the area.

Miller said he has looked for work as a special effects designer in Hollywood, but he's hard to break into, "in that field. He said he is considering a job at a museum in central Illinois, but if possible, he would like to earn his living building litigation models.

Sphinx Club notes service, leadership of 28 inductees

By Duane Schombert
Staff Writer

Sphinx Club, which recognizes individuals who have provided leadership and service to SIU-C, recently inducted 28 new members into the organization, according to David Nyman, Sphinx Club president.

Freshman of the Year was Louis Puelia, majoring in radio and television. Puelia is a member of the public relations committee of the Undergraduate Student Organization and an associate member of Alpha Epsilon Rho, the national broadcasting society.

Sophomore of the Year was Lynda Sylora, also a radio and television major. Sylora has been involved in Sigma Rho and Schneider Hall Council, among other activities.

Eight seniors were inducted into Sphinx, including David Campbell, psychology; Angela Cleen, business; Stephanie Jackson, political science and radio and television; Steven Kow, Spanish and French; Catherine Kujawa, physical therapy; and David Nyman, Animal Industries; Patricia Petrow, speech communications; and Charles Stitt, Agriculture education.

Seniors included Joseph Angelillo, psychology; Perry Baird, accounting; Gerald Bevignani, radio and television; Joseph Bloski, science; Kimberly Curtis, speech pathology; Ray Higgenbottom, mechanical engineering technology; Loren Hix, accounting; and Frank Keck, telecommunications.

Other seniors included Juliane Kelly, journalism; Ruth Lewis, clothing and textiles; Maureen Malas, clothing and textiles; Robin McGee, music education; Victor Simpson, architecture; Thomas Sparks, public relations; John Steinway, and Karen Shari, public relations.

Honorary members inducted into Sphinx were George Brown, director of the University Honors Program; George Kupusta, plant and soil science professor; and Charles Shapley, radio and television professor.

Sphinx Club president for the 1983-84 academic year will be Angela Cleen.

Motorcycle rider classes scheduled

A new series of motorcycle rider classes will be offered by the SIU-C Safety Center, beginning in late March.

The first course will be offered March 25 to 27 on the SIU-C campus. Seven more 24-hour courses will follow over the next five weeks in Carbondale.

The instruction and use of motorcycles, which are supplied by local dealers, are free and open to all Illinois residents with valid driver’s licenses or learner permits from any state or county. Enrollment must be at least eight junior high students. Under age 18 must provide evidence of parental consent.

Courses will be taught by employees of the SIU-C Safety Center.

The program is administered through the Illinois Department of Transportation, Division of Traffic Safety. It is funded through state motorcycle licensing fees.

About 1,200 Southern Illinois residents passed SIU-C Safety Center motorcycle rider classes in 1983.

Faith healer speaks at SIU-C, emphasizes importance of God

By David Wilhelm
Student Writer

Jim Whittington, a nationally-known faith healer, emphasized the importance of faith in his religious philosophy. He said that faith is as the major tool one needs to be healed of any sickness. "Faith" is his crusade every Monday night at the Student Center. Whittington, who conducts a ministry through traveling and a television program, Whittington World, every Sunday at 9:30 a.m. on CBS, spoke to a crowd of about 50.

Whittington, 42, told the crowd, "I want to pray for you, to pray to God to heal your soul and body, your anxieties and your worries."

"To please God and go to Heaven, you just have faith. It doesn't matter how many times you've been baptized or if you speak in tongues all over the world. In the end, you must have faith. It is important to please God without faith."

Whittington, his band and others were involved in a bus wreck in 1982 in which Whittington said, "The devil tried to kill all of us."

Since the wreck, "the services we've conducted have been the best ever. God can do anything but fail," he said. Whittington, who has been preaching for 20 years, said, "God didn't call me to convince people to turn to God, but to tell them the truth about him: They have to make up their own minds about their lives."

"People today are disillusioned with themselves and are always trying to change," Whittington said.

"You can take just the way you are, whether you are fat, ugly, skinny or pretty," he said. "You just get yourself to Heaven. It's not the clothes you wear or the looks that gets you there. It's the heart that matters."

Whittington said he has "never claimed to be a healer. God does that. I pray, the person believes, God heals."

Whittington spoke out strongly against child abuse.

"People who pick on innocent children, the way who would be punished," he said, "if you could see the crippled bodies of children I've prayed for, you would never beat your children. I've seen blind children, mongoloids, waterheads, children with arms no bigger than my finger."

He said, "Mama, if Papa can't even sit and talk minutes late, don't take it out on the children. When I watch children play, I see God. God will teach you parents bow and when to chastize your children."

Whittington also addressed alcoholism and drugs, which he believes the world is dependent on.

"Things the world leans on, such as alcohol or pills, will not support a person. The only thing they will stay sober for is God. God is the only thing that will help you feed a baby. God, for me, tells you to drink alcohol."

"What is a pill or bottle of booze can't do. God can. God can fix your empty lives and make them worthwhile."

"God didn't take away all your problems — it just helps you get through them easily, something the world doesn't have."

Before the meeting was over, Whittington's prayers had apparently healed people from heart trouble, arthritis and cancer. He said, however, that these healings said not take place unless the person receiving prayer had faith in God.

John Hauke of Carbondale, who asked Whittington to pray for success in his life, said, "I felt a spiritual transformation and invigoration" when Whittington prayed for him.

Pauline McGeath of Murphysboro said she was delivered of cancer and a troublesome left arm which she could not twist or raise before Whittington prayed for her.

"I know I've been healed. My left arm felt hot. I know this stuff isn't fake. I used to be able to raise my left arm. Now I can. Praise the Lord," she said.

McGeath said she has been a Christian for 10 years and has seen many people healed during that time. She also said that she has been going to hospitals, nursing homes and prisons for the past eight years praying for people.

Donald Jones of West Frankfort was told by his doctors in February 1981 that he had a heart attack. "I got home the day after he had suffered a heart attack in April 1980 and heart failure in November of the same year. Jones' lungs had also failed and had to be tapped of water periodically."

"I was spending over $100 a week on medications and I never thought I'd see my 40th birthday," he said.

month on medication,” Jones said.

His wife, Joyce, said she was watching “The 700 Club” one evening when Donald was in the hospital undergoing tests for his physical problems. The host of the program asked for people to reach out and touch the television screen while he prayed for a person who was experiencing heart trouble.

Mrs. Jones said she “had nothing to lose” – she reached out and touched the television while the program host prayed. Mrs. Jones then said that within an hour, the

The best catch in town.

McDonald's delicious light Filet-O-Fish...an American favorite fish sandwich. Probably because McDonald's knows nothing but prime portions of white fish from the North Atlantic. It's dipped into golden batter, breaded, cooked hot and tender inside, moist and flaky inside. Then guaranteed with our special recipe tartar sauce and different burgers. Could be the best bite you'll eat all day.

"SL Woman of the Year named

"I'm so happy. I didn't think I had a ghost of a chance," Mavis Wright said. She was recently named Southern Illinois Woman of the Year during a ceremony at University Mall culminating the events celebrating National Women's History Week.

Wright was one of 10 women nominated by regional women's organizations who receive the honor. She was nominated by Laureate Onslow Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority of West Frankfort, the West Frankfort Girl Scouts, of which she is a life member, the West Frankfort Area Historical Society, the West Frankfort Area Museum, the West Frankfort Women's Club and the West Frankfort Arts Council. Wright said she never thinks about what she'll receive whenever she does a good deed. "West Frankfort is my town and I didn't expect anything in return," she said.

At 66, Wright, a retired nurse, is very active in community projects. She said she works eight days a week at the museum in West Frankfort. She is also founder and president of the West Frankfort Area Historical Society.

In 1971, Wright was the first woman to receive the West Frankfort Citizen of the Year award. She has been commisioned as a "Kentucky Colonel" and she was honored for her leadership in the Illinois Bi-Centennial activities.

The Southern Illinois Woman of the Year award will be an annual event because of the favorable reception it received from University Mall merchant and women's groups who participated, said Edie Crane, coordinator of the event. As Southern Illinois Woman of the Year, Wright said she received roses, a trophy and various other prizes from local merchants. "It was quite a surprise," she said.

Turner, Mississippi's assistant coach, after the Rebels advanced with a 56-57 victory over South Florida in one of eight NIT games played Monday night.

But the road to Madison Square Garden, where the NIT finishes up, can be a difficult path. Just ask DePaul and Texas Christian, which squeezed into the third round with narrow two-point victories.

NIT action resumes Thursday night when TCU plays at Nebraska. Wake Forest goes against South Carolina at Greensboro, N.C., and Fresno State plays at Oregon State.

On Friday night, Mississippi plays DePaul at Rosemont.

Women's IM champs crowned

There was some classy basketball played at Davies Gym Monday night as the women's intramural A and B division championships were crowned. Spankysgang beat Inseparable 53-40, for the A division crown and Dilligaf crushed Experienced 32-31, for the B division crown.

In the A game, Inseparable took the halftime lead 24-22. But with only five of its 10 players there for the game, the team quickly tired and was overpowered by Spankysgang.

Becky Robinson and Coach Lucy Poprawski of Spankysgang were the high scorers for the game with 16 points, most coming in the explosive second half. Robinson scored 12 of her 16 points in the second half and sank four of five free throws. Also scoring high for Spankysgang was Sandy Martin, 14. Lisa Kathesimer was the high scorer for Inseparable with 13.

Laurie Dvorak was the star for Dilligaf in the B division contest, scoring 25 points. 17 in the second half.

At halftime, Experienced was winning 17-16. But Dvorak came alive in the second half, along with teammate Kris Stauffer, who scored 10 points. Cathy Allen led the scoring attack for Experienced with 10 points.

The winners were given intramural t-shirts while the not-so-lucky were awarded visors. The men's intramural A and B basketball championships will be played Wednesday at 6 p.m. in Davies.
Altopp said his team had been practicing indoors, and was anxious to get outside and play, cold weather or not. "Sure it's cold," he said. "But that doesn't bother me or the players, unless it drops below 40 degrees."

The Panthers have played only one game this season, that a 6-5 loss to St. Louis University. Rain, and then snow, and then freezing temperatures wiped out six recent games.

Altopp said his team had been practicing indoors, and was anxious to get outside and play, cold weather or not. "Sure it's cold," he said. "But that doesn't bother me or the players, unless it drops below 40 degrees."

The Panthers were 22-19 last year, and then lost big to quadruple deckers, until they were 8-1 last season. Their top base stealers last season, Terry Johnson, swiped 34 bases.

The Panthers are back. "We're a young ballclub," said Altopp. Tt top hitter is Brian Martin, who batted .418 and drove in 38 runs last season. His top pitcher, lefthander Jerry Grasso, will be on the mound Wednesday.

"We're going to throw a good pitcher at them," said Altopp. "If his control is good, if he can get the ball where he wants, he can be tough."

"Offensively, the Panthers have a reputation for running. Their top base stealer last season, Terry Johnson, swiped 34 bases."

"If we get on base we might try to run," said a cautious Altopp. The Panther coach knows full well that his team will be a decided underdog.

"Sure it's cold," he said. "But that doesn't bother me or the players, unless it drops below 40 degrees."

Ace Martin field should be in good condition, said Jones, and was drying out Tuesday afternoon. If it doesn't rain or if the temperature doesn't drop drastically the game will be played.
Salukis to test new hurlers against tiny Greenville College

By Dan DeLine

Greenville, an NAIA school with less than a 1,000 students, likes to schedule an occasional game with a top notch team. SIU-C, one of the better teams in the area, is happy to oblige. So every year, or in the area, is reputation. Playing a game today will not be a part of the Missouri Valley Conference next year.

In a press conference Monday in Las Cruces, N.M., Athletic Director Keith Colburn cited increased travel finances and the school's 1-4 status in football as the chief reasons for dropping out of the MVC and accepting admission to the Pacific Coast Athletic Conference.

SIU-C Athletic Director Low Hurst and NMSU made the right decision. "I'm happy about it. It's going to relieve us of a great deal of expenses," he said. "Our fans don't identify well with New Mexico State. We identify more with Illinois State and people like that, who are close." SIU-C will cancel its two scheduled basketball games with the Aggies this season, but will add six to its 1994-95 schedule.

Effective Dec. 31, NMSU will join PCAC member California State-Pomona on July 1, 1995, and will leave the Missouri Valley.

"We're excited to get them," said Jones. "They're one of the big schools they like to have on their schedule." Greenville plays at SIU-C tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at Abe Martin Field, in a game that will give Jones an opportunity to experiment with his pitching staff. Mike Blumhorst and Rich Koch will pitch for the first time this season as Jones continues to search for some pitching depth.

The game Wednesday is the first of a 14-game homestand that will see the Salukis play Illinois, Memphis State, and five other schools in the next two weeks. "We've got to develop another pitcher or two," said Jones. "We can't go into a weekend without a couple of pitchers to choose from." Right now, three consistent pitchers is what Jones has. Jay Helms, Rich Ellis, and Gary Backman have all earned credit for the Saluki coach. Meanwhile, veteran left-hander Dick Wysocki and Tom Coulfield have been getting criticism over poor early season showings.

Jones will come back against Wisconsin Wednesday, but he will also try "3-strike closer" Blumhorst and sophomore Koch. "If we're thinking about pitching these guys, we've got to give them the opportunity." Koch was 3-3 with an earned run average of 2.43 last year, primarily in relief, but Blumhorst hasn't pitched in three years, since his American Legion days.
