Black mourners attend funerals of riot victims

By Thomas Mangan
Staff Writer

City Manager Bill Dixon released the city community development department report prepared by public analysts of the SDV Development and Urban Design Act Grant program, the report says.

President Reagan's proposed budget calls for the cutoff of general revenue sharing funds to allow for the elimination of the Urban Development Action Grant program.

Revenue sharing funds constitute the only way cities can share in federal income tax revenues, said Paul Sorgen, city finance director.

Sorgen said that the program could be "cut seriously or eliminated," the report says.

The six men who were buried were killed in rioting in Utenhage's black townships during the past week. At least 44 people have been killed in the townships since March 12. Those three black men were killed as a result of racial violence, raising the weekend death toll to 100, authorities said.

Riot police fired on crowds throwing stones and firebombs late Saturday near Uitenhage, about 15 miles west of the city budget, $333,453, comes from general revenue sharing funds, which pay for 12 percent of the Capital Improvement Program budget, 66 percent of the Human Resources Budget and 46 percent of the Comprehensive Child Care budget, the report says.

Revenue sharing funds are a major portion of three city social service programs, said Robert Stalls, the human resources director. These programs could be "cut seriously or eliminated," the report says.

Sorgen said that the city can fill the gaps caused by elimination of funds such as general revenue sharing by employee layoffs, property tax increases and increases in fees for city services.

Federal budget cuts would hurt Carbondale residents because city services will cost more and those services may have to be cut back, Sorgen said.

About 3 percent of the 1985 city budget, $633,453, comes from general revenue sharing funds, which pay for 12 percent of the Capital Improvement Project budget, 66 percent of the Human Resources Budget and 46 percent of the Comprehensive Child Care budget, the report says.

Airlift of Jews in Sudan kept secret in U.S., Israel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sudan allowed the CIA-directed airlift of some 700 Ethiopian Jews from a Sudanese refugee camp on condition the operation be kept secret in the United States and Israel, the Washington Post reported Sunday. The story has been widely reported in the U.S. press, but White House, State Department and Pentagon officials have refused to comment on the airlift. News reports, citing unnamed administration officials, said the details were worked out in meeting between Vice president George Bush and Sudanese on March 6, during the vice president's visit to Africa.

Class vote predicted in House on MX issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The MX missile comes up for showdown tests this week in the House with opponents and supporters alike predicting an extremely close vote. White House chief of staff Donald Reagan, interviewed Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," said, "We'll win the debate." But Reagan has accepted responsibility for lack of progress in Middle East peace, Sunday and claimed Reagan has been "extremely successful in not being responsible for anything that's unpleasant." Carter has said he will make a compromise on the MX, but Reagan has repeatedly argued that defeat of the weapon would sabotage the Geneva negotiations.

Meese says quotas to continue to be opposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edwin Meese said Sunday the Justice Department will continue to oppose quota remedies for civil rights and look for federal judges who believe in "the sanctity of human life." Meese said the Justice Department and administration favored of affirmative action, but would oppose "impermissible quotas, which in effect discriminate against certain classes of people" and would work to "tax those (court) decrees modified ".

Regan hints at compromise on defense budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House chief of staff Donald Reagan opened the door Sunday to compromise with the House Republicans on reduced defense spending, but said President Reagan "won't even touch" a Social Security benefit freeze. Hinting at a deal to take just one day after this week's vote to protect his defense buildup from congressional budget cutters, Reagan said the administration recognizes there are areas of the Pentagon budget where spending could be cut back or stretched out over years.

Carter says Reagan takes Mideast progress

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former President Jimmy Carter criticized President Reagan's "lack of progress in Middle East peace" Sunday and claimed Reagan has been "extremely successful in not being responsible for anything that's unpleasant." Carter has said he will make a compromise on the MX, but Reagan has repeatedly argued that defeat of the weapon would sabotage the Geneva negotiations.

Official says S. Africa should talk with blacks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — South Africa's white minority government continues to "run the country with good results" but must soon begin negotiations with black leaders, Chester Crocker, assistant secretary of state for African affairs, said Sunday. But Crocker said he expected President Reagan's policy of "constructive engagement," the "rule of quiet diplomacy and friendly persuasion" about an end to apartheid.

Hearings scheduled for crime spree suspects

COLBY, Kan. (UPI) — Preliminary hearings were scheduled for two men and a woman accused of a bloody crime spree that started in Michigan and ended in western Kansas with a four-person death. The suspects were arrested Feb. 13 following a farmyard shootout in which a fourth suspect, Mark Anthony Waller, 18, of Sutters Bay, Mich., was killed. The arrests ended a 3,000-mile rampage of robberies and murders, police said.
Utility customers voice concerns in a public forum

By John Krakowski
Staff Writer

The father from Colp was seated in the front row of the crowded union hall. He pulled a worn-out child's shoe from his pocket and tossed it on the wood floor.

Because his utility bill was taking up such a large portion of his income, Walter Price said, he would have to forgo paying a disconnection notice from the utility company to pay for new shoes for his child.

Price was one of about 60 people at the Machinist Union Hall in Herrin last Thursday for a public forum with newly appointed Illinois Commerce Commissioner Stanford Levin and ICC Chairman Philip O'Connor.

THE MEETING was sponsored by the Southern Counties Action Movement to give local residents a better idea of what the two men stand on issues of concern to utility customers, especially those in Southern Illinois, and to let residents share their thoughts with O'Connor.

"We feel that we are too insulated from the ICC, that it operates up on a hill," said SCAM board member Max Aud in his opening comments. "We have a very disappointing relationship with the ICC over the last eight years." Aud said he hoped Thursday's event would be a first step in establishing a better relationship with the ICC, and asked Commissioner Levin whether he would consent to meet with downstate residents at least three times yearly. Levin readily agreed — "You call me and we'll set up a time," he said.

LEVIN, a former economics professor at SIUE, took the opportunity to defend the ICC's Illinois Home Energy Assistance Program.

The program proposes that people living below poverty level should be billed by 12 percent of their income rather than by their kilowatt hours. Levin said that the program would encourage people to keep paying their bills.

"We hope the HIEAP program, plus some conservation programs, will keep people paying for their heating," Levin said.

Levin also expressed support for the ICC's moratorium on winter utility shut-offs, although he acknowledged that "there will be a lot of people cut off April 1, when the moratorium runs out.

THE ISSUE at summer utility rates was raised by Robert Gustafson, the governor of the Illinois Senior Legislative Forum. Gustafson asked SCAM's two guests that he thinks the ICC has ignored Southern Illinois' needs by allowing summer rates, which he said penalize the poor and elderly.

"I think it's a crime when anyone is denied their right to have a fan or an air conditioner," Aud said.

Levin denied that summer utility rates are hurting low-income people, saying "the bigger the difference, the smaller the low-income people pay."

"THE FACT is, it is substantially more expensive to supply electricity in the summer and we want the price to reflect that," Levin said.

Aud told Levin that "the theories are fine, but take them down to the level of the grassroots," and he might find that "people would prefer level rates."

"We've got people here on low incomes who say we could manage our budgets better on a level rate," Aud said.

SOMIT: Athletics assistant to be named appoints. If he's searching within the campus, Dan Boydston is the only person, to my knowledge, with athletic administrative experience and he obviously comes to everyone's minds," West said.

Boydstom is chairman of Health Education Department. He was athletics director at SIU-C from 1967 to 1973.

Among the immediate issues the special assistant must assess is the future of men's basketball, Somit said. Also, a national search for a new athletics director will begin because Lew Hartzog will retire August 31.

Hartzog said he will remain as part-time consultant to men's athletics for two years, with the size of his role depending on the special assistant and new athletic director.

During Hartzog's career as director of SIU-C men's athletics, the Salukis received many top 23 NCAA rankings in various sports and captured the NCAA Division II football title in 1983.

Student concern for the future of intercollegiate athletics was voiced by Graduate and Professional Student Council President Glenn Stolar.

"I hope the students will be included in the decisions of people to fill these positions. There are a lot of unanswered questions and I've made my concerns known to the president. I think the Van Winkle incident was just symbolic of the questions that needed to be addressed within intercollegiate athletics," Stolar said.

The Saluki Booster Club Board first learned of the incident when George Imbri started as its president. They made it public when Imbri told them he had been offered the job as head coach of men's basketball and had then discovered Van Winkle would be retained.

The Booster Board released this statement Friday:

"The Saluki Booster Board is satisfied that our former president's name has been exonerated. It is the boosters' foremost desire to continue supporting Saluki athletics.

"Jim McKinney, who took over Isabel's position, hopes he's been an 'acting' president.

"It's entirely up to him, but I'm hoping he'll come back and at least finish out the year because he's the kind of person we need," McKinney said.

Fight over the MX

TO DEPLOY THE MX MISSILE OR NOT: that is the question. The U.S. House of Representatives must wrestle with this week. The debate over whether to secure the 21 MX missiles— with a price tag of $1.5 billion— has raged for months, but with the Senate's clearing the way for the missiles' deployment last week, the debate has heated up.

Two unexpected one-sided votes in the Republican-dominated Senate handed the president his first major political victory of the year, with only the House standing in the way of the missiles' deployment.

Opposition to the controversial first-strike weapon had been enough to prevent the acceptance of the weapons system in the past. But with the election year behind Reagan, and a host of Republican senators up for election in 1988, the president has apparently decided to take his "Make my day!" attitude and apply some political arm-twisting.

It seems to be working. Even in the House, which is controlled by Democrats, the president seems to have the upper hand.

This is unfortunate. For if the 21 missiles are deployed— Reagan is seeking a total of 100 MX missiles eventually—it won't be because of national security.

Rather, like the so-called "Star Wars" system, the function of the MX missiles is as a "bargaining chip." The president argues, and continues to argue, that by failing to commit our resources to a new "defense" system we broadcast signals of weakness and division.

What the president fails to mention is the fact that since his presidency began, this country has seen the greatest buildup in defense spending ever—well over $1 trillion including future appropriations.

Giver that, it is unlikely that Moscow will receive the "wrong" signals, whether we splash the system or not.

But what is most troubling about the direction the MX debate has taken is not so much that we may yet another deployment of nuclear weapons in the environment— both sides have more than enough weapons of the world many times over— but that the president is using his mandate from the people in such ill-advised ways.

It is hoped that at least whether the controversial first-strike weapon is needed as leverage in dealing with the Soviets. What isn't arguable is the price tag: $1.5 billion, 21 MX missiles won't feed many starving people, and they won't do much toward righting the national debt.

It is hoped that the House of Representatives realizes this, and won't knuckle under to the president's pressure.

There's more to off-campus living than 'partying'—check with L.T.U.

How can tenants or prospective renters reduce and avoid the problems associated with rental housing in Carbondale?

Recently, many people have addressed this question of the Undergraduate Student Organization's Landlord-Tenant Union (USO-LTU). The subject is fairly complex, but following a few short steps should reduce the red tape.

First of all, students should determine the requirements to live on or off campus. (Call University Housing, Washington Square, Off-Campus division.) Ask how to obtain a free copy of the "Off-Campus Tenant Survival Manual." This short booklet is chock full of valuable information, but it is not the last word in rental housing by any means.

If living alone is unaffordable, then roommate selection should be considered. Remember, roommates should be chosen by how financially responsible they are, not how much they like to party. The paper will come calling and there will be bills to pay.

Transportation also comes into the picture. The distance of a rental unit from campus, and home needs services will help determine the rent.

Demand will be high for homes that are close and convenient to campus. But remember, gasoline costs can get high in the long run, too. Bicycles can be used much of the year in Carbondale, and are tremendously efficient.

A budget should be prepared that includes tuition, fees, books, rent, security deposits, food, gas, heat, electricity, telephone, transportation, and entertainment. There are many ways to spend money. Present tenants can help explain how bills fluctuate with the time of year and size of the home.

It is critical to start this whole process early, if possible—now—to get a place for next fall or this summer. Summer leases can be half or less because of the shortage of renters at that time and the need for sub-leasers. However, the costs of living must still be kept in mind. Air conditioning can be as expensive as heat.

There are over 7,000 rental units in Carbondale, so be choosy. If things need to be fixed, get them written into the contract before signing it. Do not accept verbal agreements, because they do not stand up in court where it counts.

Finally, SIU-C students are encouraged to bring leases or contracts to the Students' Attorney's Office on the third floor of the Student Center. For appointment, call 536-6677. There is no charge for this service as long as all SIU-C fees have been paid. It is important to know the landlord and fully understand the rental agreement. Keep the lines of communication open.

Following these steps carefully will lessen most of the impediments that might prevent a student from finding "home away from home." — Susan Hail, Landlord Tenant Union member.

Proposal a turkey

What seems to be the hassle with Thanksgiving Break being a week long? I do not know about the Faculty Senate, but the "break is the only time I get a chance to catch up on term papers, etc. and get ready for finals in a relaxed atmosphere. The same response has been conveyed to me by both students and faculty. The first four to five days of break allows a student to catch up and prepare for the coming weeks while the rest of the break affords the chance to relax and celebrate. I hope this is not too difficult for those faculty members who support the break "break-up" to understand.

I know of many students and faculty who like to visit their families in other parts of the country for Thanksgiving celebration. Most can only afford to drive. The supposed "beneficial break-up" will certainly not help those travelers. Spending two days traveling time with only three days vacation does not seem like much of a vacation or a time to get any work done. I transferred from SIU to a S.N.Y. College of Forestry at Syracuse, New York, where going to Chicago for Thanksgiving with my family was uneconomical because of this so-called beneficial break-up.

I only hope President Somit will see the folly in the proposed resolution. If the students and most faculty members will have less to be thankful for on Thanksgiving Day— Tom Purcell, graduate student, Forestry.
Cancer victim's courage
a heroic symbol of peace

NOT A MINUTE too soon a $10,000 donation has come into the life of Marlow Boyer. At 25, he is an honors graduate of the University of Washington, living in Seattle, a skilled writer and photographer, the son of a senior writer of the National Geographic and a peacemaker who believes Americans and Russians will share a safer future if they do not make war. Boyer has been suffering for the past 10 months from Ewing's sarcoma, a rare cancer. He has been told by doctors at the National Cancer Institute that death may come soon.

The story of the $10,000 gift and Boyer's work for peace would be worth telling regardless of his illness. That he does have cancer—and has written and lectured about it—adds a haunting beauty to the idealism of a young man using his last days to take out a brick or two in the wall of hatred between Americans and Russians.

IN THE SPRING of 1983 Boyer was one of 31 citizens from Seattle who traveled to four Soviet Union cities—Moscow, Leningrad, Samarkand and Tashkent. The purpose of the excursions was a personal gambit on the need to eliminate the us-and-them lies and hostilities that lead of both countries perpetuate about the other. Seattle-Tashkent, in addition to being sister cities and regional centers of culture, are sites where weapons of annihilation are built or tested. In recent years, cross-cultural exchanges have become common—from the Veliga Peace Cruise to the USA-USSR Citizens Exchange, founded by Carol Pendell of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. There have been the well-publicized and worthwhile visits of everyone from Billy Graham to Samantha Smith.

THE SEATTLE-TASHKENT

location. The program has a stunning professionalism to it, worthy of the son of a journalist who for 33 years has been a master craftsman at the National Geographic. "People To People" is one of the few pieces of film work that records the development of personal relationships between Americans and Russians.

The $10,000 came to Boyer through the assistance of the Forum Institute, a Washington-based research and policy organization. The money is to be used in converting the still-photography of "People To People" into a film and videotape. It can then be distributed nationally in a way now impossible in a slideshow format.

MOVIE MAKING WAS NOT the way Marlow Boyer had planned to spend whatever time is left to him. But he has chosen to listen to both the urge of his own hopes and to the encouraging prase given to him by everyone from the cultural attaché of the Soviet Embassy to officials of the State Department.

Boyer's convictions are in the tradition of classic peacemaking: that the force of beauty, as revealed in his film—and that the mere force of dialogue among human beings is more effective than weapons of peace than weapons of war. Hope is the ultimate deterrence, not the bomb.

Boyer is a credible peacemaker because of the remarkable tranquility he is playing about the understanding cancer is now inflicting on his body. I spent an hour with him the other evening. There was not a word of self-pity or remorse. He has a writer's fascination with a new subject, in his case the medical maneuvers of cancer treatment. He tells of currently participating in "a truly guinea pig-like way in a 'phase one study' of a new drug that has only recently been introduced to human populations. It has never been administered to patients with Ewing's sarcoma. The tests they are performing have more to do with documenting the various levels of toxicity and the side effects that can be caused by the drug than they are with the actual treatment of the disease. As (one doctor) put it, there are significant benefits to be gained by your participating in the study—it's just that the benefits will not necessarily accrue to you personally. Fair enough. It beats sitting on my ass, and watching the grass grow.

With "People To People" assured of a wider and wider audience, the life of Marlow Boyer will also be better known. Fewer idealists are more deserving of the nation's thanks, and few peacemakers have defined greater odds—either in their own future or the planet's.

Continuing campaign of slander
by D.E., just begging for libel suit

The Daily Egyptian has taken another step in their crusade to participate in a libel suit. First, your paper accused a local man of child prostitution, when in fact he was charged with child pornography. Now, the D.E. has issued an incompetent report towards the undergraduate Student Organization.

The editorial on March 1 was so full of outspoken, assumptions, and slander, it seemed you just wanted to derive to print it. The only fact you had right was that there is a petition to bring the Grateful Dead to SUU-C. Other than that, your editorial was filled with more lies than Pravda could ever master up. If your reporters would spend more time investigating stories than playing games with their word processors, they would have discovered the Grateful Dead Committee is only seeking RSO status to obtain access to activity rooms for meetings in the Student Center. They never planned to request funding.

You imply throughout your editorial that the USO was running the whole show, when we were only encouraging their efforts. We always encourage students to organize and fight for a cause. If more people stood up for what they want and believe in, America wouldn't be so prevalent on campus. Trying to bring the Grateful Dead to SUU-C is a harmless undertaking. If they were running around with petitions to bring Muammar Qaddafi to SUU-C, we would object, but the Grateful Dead? No way.

I think you took up this petition subject just to throw a few extra punches at the USO. Your remark about the "aborted cyanide campaign" was slanderous at best. By calling it a campaign, you are implying the USO went around campus promoting the idea. If you had any conception of what "facts" are, you would have known the "campaign" was only one senator trying to draw attention to an cumbersome social issue. Furthermore, if it had gone before the Student Senate for a vote, it would have been shot down quicker than the time most of your reporters spend investigating a story.

The D.E. owes the USO and the SUU-C students an apology and a retraction of the false and offensively opinioned statements made. If the D.E. cannot undertake this noble gesture, than I've been vesting all my efforts to begin a "bring a respectable newspaper to SUU-C" petition. With RSO status.—Robert M. Jones, First Campus Senator, Undergraduate Student Organization.
Big-time brilliance offered by small-city ballet troupe

By Belinda Edmundson
Staff Writer

If my habitual Shylock-goes-opted to forgo Friday's performance by the Oakland Ballet, it would be understandable. So far, the dance performances at Shylock this year — those by the SIU Repertory Dance Troupe and Gus Giordano's Jazz-Dance Chicago — have been something less than brilliant.

However, those who did forgo Friday's performance.

Dance Review

missed a chance to see a company with a repertory that is surprisingly original, with dancers who are uniformly excellent, and which, if sheer merit counts for anything, in the future ought to enjoy a star status disproportionate to its classification as a small-city ballet troupe.

THE TROUPE'S artistic director, Ron Guidi, is a dedicated preserver of old and forgotten pieces that caused such a sensation in New York last February and earned high praise from that city's jaded dance critics who, as they say, have "seen it all!"

DISAPPOINTINGLY enough, none of the Diaghilev pieces that caused such a sensation in New York were on Friday's program, but the pieces that were performed were so varied and innovative that one hardly feels the loss.

The first piece on the program, "The Kid," is a dramatic ballet choreographed by American choreographer Eugene Loring, which weaves the story of Billy the Kid into a deep commentary on the life and attitudes of the American pioneers. No sensational leaps and bounds here, the movements are deliberately stiff and jerky to signify the pioneers' painstaking carving out of the western wilderness.

THE PIECE concentrates on the spatial placing of the dancers to achieve a sort of pageantry effect, with the various groups that made up the west performing separate dances as they came onstage.

The total effect is one of a series of still-lifes; each panel is frozen into our consciousness, and then slowly comes to life. Through this technique the choreographer conveys the varying moods of the frontier town — its sense of community, its passing shock, at a public shootout, and its acceptance of murder and lawlessness: as an inevitable part of frontier life.

The second piece, "Gallop, Kisses," is a very traditional, if somewhat syrupy, ballet. Choreographed by Guidi himself, the piece makes no effort at storyline or a theme, choosing instead to be a cheerful pastel, its beauty as movement.

PERFORMED by a less accomplished set of dancers, "Gallop, Kisses" would probably be mediocre, but the Oakland troupe, being uniformly excellent in technique and presentation, made the piece memorable.

The last work, "The Green Table," Kurt Jooss' alternately satirical and despairing depiction of World War I, was greatsque, shocking, and absolutely excellent. Going from the conference table, with its silly elderly negotiators, to the battlefield, where Death (Ron Thele), painted in white and black, hovered like an ominous valentine, Jooss achieves a searing portrayal of war's horrors and futility.

Cairo man to help plan state King celebration

By Lisa Eisenhauser
Staff Writer

A civil rights leader from Cairo named by Gov. James Thompson to a commission to plan the state's birthday celebration of Martin Luther King Jr. says he believes his reputation as a spokesman for blacks earned him the honor.

The Cairo man is naming the Rev. Charles Koen, an ordained Baptist minister and 14 other people to the newly formed committee was made March 1.

Koen, 40, has been an active black leader in the most city in Illinois for 24 years. During a recent telephone interview, Koen said he was surprised to learn that he had been named to the commission.

"During the years," he said, "I had heard of the King's birthday celebration, but I did not think I would be named to it."

Koen said he is enthused about his new appointment, especially because of his deep respect for the man he is going to be representing.

He added that the slain civil rights leader "definitely" influenced his own life and work. "People who were committed to him in life are still committed to him now that he is dead."

As the president of the United Front of Cairo, a non-profit group that works for social justice and community development in the city, Koen has led boycotts against downtown businesses believed to discriminate against blacks.

As a member of the Cairo City Council, he said he has sought to give blacks in the city a strong voice in city government.

Although the committee has yet to meet to plan and coordinate events to celebrate King's birthday, Jan. 15, Koen has ideas about how King's "spirit" should be passed on.

One of his ideas is to develop what he referred to as "King commissions" to promote economic development across the state. He said that, ideally, the commissions would be set up by the government in depressed areas of the state and focus on aiding groups questioning Ronald G. Frye of 700 S. Lewis Lane in connection with a separate investigation when a stolen radar detector was discovered in his possession.

Police discovered the radar detector belonged to Robert E. VanCleostere, 66, of Murphysboro, VanCleostere's car was parked at 623 E. Main St. at the time.

Frye, 24, was arrested, charged with burglary to auto and transported to Jackson County Jail, police said.

Two radar detectors recovered

Carbondale police recovered two stolen radar detectors in separate incidents Thursday before the victims even realized they were missing.

Three Murphysboro youths, whose names police are withholding, 16 and 17, were stopped by a Carbondale police officer at about 2 p.m. after being suspected of truancy, said a police department spokesperson.

One of the youths, a 14-year-old boy, was arrested and charged with burglary to auto.

Police said the owners of the radar detectors, valued at $250, were found in the possession of the first suspect.

The boy was later released to the custody of his parents.

A civil rights leader from Cairo named by Gov. James Thompson to a committee to plan the state's birthday celebration of Martin Luther King Jr. says he believes his reputation as a spokesman for blacks earned him the honor. Koen, 40, has been an active black leader in the most city in Illinois for 24 years. During a recent telephone interview, Koen said he was surprised to learn that he had been named to the commission. "During the years," he said, "I had heard of the King's birthday celebration, but I did not think I would be named to it."

Koen said he is enthused about his new appointment, especially because of his deep respect for the man he is going to be representing. "People who were committed to him in life are still committed to him now that he is dead."

As the president of the United Front of Cairo, a non-profit group that works for social justice and community development in the city, Koen has led boycotts against downtown businesses believed to discriminate against blacks.

As a member of the Cairo City Council, he said he has sought to give blacks in the city a strong voice in city government.

Although the committee has yet to meet to plan and coordinate events to celebrate King's birthday, Jan. 15, Koen has ideas about how King's "spirit" should be passed on. One of his ideas is to develop what he referred to as "King commissions" to promote economic development across the state. He said that, ideally, the commissions would be set up by the government in depressed areas of the state and focus on aiding groups...
Professor says pica needs more research

By Justus Weatherly Jr.
Staff Writer

Lead poisoning was once common and frequently known to occur among inner-city children who consumed paint chips, but that kind of poisoning has declined since some companies no longer produce lead-contain paint.

However, lead poisoning is but one of a number of items related to the ingestion of non-food substances, commonly called pica.

Ella Lacey, SIUC School of Medicine faculty member, said besides plumbism, or lead poisoning, has declined since some companies no longer produce paint chips, but that kind of poisoning has declined since some companies no longer produce lead-contain paint.

Lacey said there is disagreement among experts as to its cause and there is a lack of research for it. However, she said pica may result from a need for attention, which could rule out any physiological basis. It may be a habit passed on within cultures from parents to children, or may be used to relieve hunger pains, nausea, or as part of an instinctive search for deficient nutrients.

Lacey also included nutritional deprivation, obesity, feal impaction or death. Lacey said the definition of pica also includes nutritional deprivation, obesity, feal impaction or death.

Lacey said it can also be considered as a sociological concern because the literature has dismissed it as a cultural abnormality.

The last serious study of pica was conducted about 15 years ago, Lacey said, and researchers who have studied it are unclear in their data in establishing causative mechanisms.

Registration accepted for acid rain conference

The Coal Research Center is taking registrations for those interested in attending its second acid rain conference April 10, which will focus on processes to control or eliminate acid rain effects.

Those taking part in the program, to be in the Student Center, include officials from the U.S. Department of Energy, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the Canadian Ministry of the Environment.

The cost for the all-day conference is $10 for SIUC students and staff with lunch included, or $3 without lunch. Laundry start eating should be more serious research given to pica disease. More than controversy, it's essentially neglected as a legitimate concern.

In the normal flow of information and professional journals, "the literature says that it's a pernicious habit," Lacey said. "It is, then psychologists should be more aware of it in their particular disciplines."

Lacey said it can also be considered as a sociological concern because the literature has dismissed it as a cultural abnormality.

The last serious study of pica was conducted about 15 years ago, Lacey said, and researchers who have studied it are unclear in their data in establishing causative mechanisms.

Two SIU-C agriculture faculty members have been honored by alumni for the lasting impressions they made through research, teaching and service.

Robert D. Arthur, associate professor of swine nutrition, and Dwight R. McCurdy, professor of forestry, share the School of Agriculture’s annual Faculty Service Award.

More than 4,000 agriculture alumni of SIU voted on the award.

Arthur, an Indiana native who came to SIU-C in 1977, has traveled internationally to promote swine nutrition, and was among the first Western scientists to work in the People’s Republic of China.

McCurdy, native of West Virginia, joined the SIU-C faculty in 1965. He is a leading expert in forest and outdoor recreation management, and has written three books on the subject.

Date rape to be discussed at workshop

If a woman says “no” to sexual intercourse but a man she knows forces her into it in some way that situation can turn into date or acquaintance rape, said Susan Smith, campus safety representative.

Smith and Gwen Drury, graduate assistant in Women’s Services, will be conducting a workshop on date rape, at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Recreation Center 158, sponsored by Women’s Services.

The purpose of the workshop will be to promote awareness among women and men about the problems of date rape and why it is a crime and psychologically damaging to women, Smith said. A presentation by Smith and Drury will include defining various kinds of rape and why date rape is prevalent on college campuses.

Tennis men end losing skid by defeating Purdue, UI-C

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

The SIU-C men’s tennis team ended a four-match losing streak this weekend by defeating Purdue 5-4 at West Lafayette, Ind., Saturday, and by blanking Illinois-Chicago 6-0 in a rain-shortened match at the Arena tennis courts Sunday.

The Salukis, who improved their record to 6-0 with the wins, were able to capture all six singles matches Sunday before the match was called because of rain.

Per Wadmark defeated Darren Cohen of Illinois-Chicago 6-4, 6-1 at No. 1 singles; Gabriel Coeh defeated John Mistro 6-1, 64 at No. 2 singles; Chris Visconti defeated Ivan Salazar 6-2, 6-2 at No. 3 singles; Rollie Oliquino overcame Eric Salazar 6-3, 6-3 at No. 4 singles; Scott Krueger edged Arias Nobel 6-1, 2-6, 6-4 at No. 5 singles; and Lars Nilsson beat Tony Hainzl 6-0, 6-1 at No. 6 singles.

“They’re not one of the better teams we’ve played,” SIU-C coach Dick LeFevre said of Illinois-Chicago.

The Salukis had a more difficult time with Purdue, the first Big Ten conference team that SIU-C has defeated this season.

“It was a real cliffhanger,” LeFevre said. “We could have lost it, in a lot of different ways.”

Wadmark rallied to defeat Purdue’s Kevin Gregory 6-7, 7-6, 6-3 at No.1 singles. Krueger and Nilsson were also able to earn singles victories for SIU-C.

In doubles competition, the No. 1 team of Wadmark and Oliquino defeated Gregory and Jim Gray 6-2, 7-6. Krueger and Visconti picked up the decisive victory for SIU-C, as they defeated Carl Casco and Jim Shumacher 6-2, 6-4 at No. 3 doubles.

The Salukis will return to action next weekend.

Men gymnasts win season finale; set for NCAA bid

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

Thursday’s Bulldogs Invitational was just another tussle for the smooth-running Saluki men’s gymnastics team, as SIU-C concluded its regular season by scoring 279.50 points to finish first among the five-team field.

The Salukis, 18-3 and ranked in the top ten nationally all season, have guaranteed themselves an NCAA championship bid with their season’s average of 279.45.

Parrish won’t take Tulsa grid job

HUNTINGTON, West Virginia (UPI) — Marshall University football coach Stan Parrish says the “positive situation” in Huntington made it easy for him to remain with the Thundering Herd.

Parrish withdrew his name Friday from consideration for the head coaching position at Tulsa.

Parrish said the university’s administration, the players and the community are excited about the job he has done at Marshall.

Parrish said: “That’s what it came down to in the final diagnosis. We’re happy here.”

Parrish coached the Thundering Herd to a 6-5 season last year. It was the school’s first winning campaign since 1964.

Parrish said he also felt it was “awfully late in the season” to take another job.

He said he felt that if he made a move now it would be detrimental to Marshall’s football program.

The job attracted more than 60 applicants. Parrish was believed to be among the eight top candidates.

Parrish said he and his staff will continue preparing for spring practice.

“That one felt good,” Coach Kay Brechtelshauer said. She attributed the win to good defense and clutch hitting.

On Saturday, the Salukis had three more games, starting with Illinois Central College from Peoria. The Salukis came from behind to defeat ICC 8-3. Jenny Shupryt had two runs batted in.

Ball State was the Salukis’ fourth opponent of the tournament. SIU-C posted another come-from-behind win by a score of 6-5. Shupryt, who leads the team with a .357 batting average, drove in the winning run while Lisa Peterson improved her record to 3-3.

The last game of the tournament, against Indiana State, turned out to be much like the first. Neither team scored in the first eight innings. The Salukis threatened in the bottom of the seventh and eighth innings, but failed to get a run across. In the bottom of the ninth, Erin Evans advanced a runner to third with a sacrifice bunt. McAuley, who had doubled earlier, then drove in the game-winning run.

“We’ve got a much better hitting ball club than we’ve had in the past few years, and we have good contact hitters who are taking good swings,” Jones said.

The Thoroughbreds scored twice in the third on a bases-loaded single by third baseman David Butts, and once in the fourth on a home run to left-center by catcher Greg Doss. Doss had doubled to start MSU’s third.

Women swimmers finish fifth at NCAA finals

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

The SIU-C women's swimming team finished seventh in the national title race this weekend, the highest finish ever for the Salukis at the national finals.

The Salukis finished seventh at last season's NCAA championships. Texas won the national title with 644 points. Florida was second with 430 points. Stanford was third with 340 points. Georgia was fourth with 283 points. SIU-C was 19th with 221 points and USC had 229 points.

Diver Wendy Lucero, runner-up in the 3-meter diving competition, and swimmer Nancy Martin, who finished sixth in both the 100- and 200-yard breaststroke events, also swam on two All-America relay teams. Martin is the Salukis' only other national champion.

Compound finished seventh in the 1,650-yard freestyle with a time of 16:25.39. Coontz and Martin become only the second and third Salukis to earn All-America recognition four times. Pam Ratliff, who graduated last season, is the only other swimmer to hold the distinction.

Rae set three school records in her first NCAA meet and earned All-America honors in two different events. She swam in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 54.56 and placed seventh in the 50-yard freestyle. She set school records in those two events as well as the 50-yard butterfly. Rae also competed on four All-America relay teams. She was the Salukis' leading scorer at the meet, scoring 25 individual points and 26 points on relays.

Baseball Salukis gain easy victory over Murray St.

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

For the third straight game, the Salukis walked to the plate with runners at the corners, the situation that the SIU-C pitchers have had to deal with on their way to a 5-3 win over Murray State may prove to be more important in the long run.

While the Salukis were walking three Thoroughbred pitchers with 18 hits, SIU-C limited MSU to three runs on six hits, including two strong innings of relief from Gary Bockhorn.

Bockhorn, who led the staff in wins and strike outs last year as a sophomore, hadn't stepped on the mound since the Salukis' opener back on March 8 because of arm soreness. He worked the last two innings with a lead of 4-0, and teamed up with Mark Wood to give SIU-C five scoreless innings of relief.

"We wanted to work three pitchers and we wanted to get Gary in for a while. If he had given us trouble we would have gotten him out, but he did the job for us," SIU-C Coach Steve Bockhorn said.

Paul Salikan (2-3) worked the first three innings, giving SIU-C a 0-3 lead, while MSU starter Richard Garner (0-3) lasted three and a third innings after giving up seven runs on seven hits and four walks. It was the sixth straight loss for the Thoroughbreds.

Garner was lifted with two outs in the Saluki half of the third inning, when freshman Tony Hillermann drilled the first pitch over the left centerfield fence with two runners aboard. Hillermann finished the day two for two, with a walk and three runs scored in three plate appearances.

The Salukis used their speed to get on the board in the first inning, as lead-off man Randy Pitchford walked and stole his 13th base. Tony Hillermann singled Pitchford to third, where he scored on a Steve Finney ground out to first. It was Pitchford's 20th run scored of the season.

SIU-C also scored one run in the second and fourth innings, and put the game away with a three-run fifth to take a 5-0 lead.

Jim Kromont, who took over for Garner in the fourth inning, was hit for six runs on seven hits before his fifth inning was over.

Pitchford finished the day with two hits, a walk and three runs scored in three plate appearances.

Jay Hammond is tagged out at home plate by Murray State catcher Greg Doss during the second inning of Saturday's game. The Salukis defeated Murray State 14-3.

Softball team wins Saluki Invitational

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

The Saluki softball team came into this weekend, playing solid defense and getting timely hitting to win the Saluki Invitational.

The Salukis won two games in extra innings and also staged a come-from-behind win over the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference when they defeated SIU-C in the bottom of the seventh.

The Salukis' first game was a pitching duel against Northern Illinois, with Lisa Peterson throwing for SIU-C against the Huskies' Sharon Law. The game was scoreless until the top of the 8th inning, when the Salukis broke out on top 1-0 in the eighth. First baseman Nancy McAlvey began the rally when she advanced a runner to third with a sacrifice bunt. In international rules, a runner is placed on second base in all extra-inning games.

Left fielder Kim Hassinger then brought the run home with a sacrifice fly to win the game.

In the second game of the tourney, the Salukis were forced to wait out a rainstorm against Illinois State. ISU won runs in the sixth and seventh to take a 3-1 lead.

In the bottom of the seventh, Jan Vronan hustled to beat out a grounder to second that was momentarily bobbled. A sacrifice bunt loaded the bases. As a pinch runner, took second on a passed ball. First baseman Nancy McAlvey then singled up the middle to put runners on the second and third bases.

Laura McCune singled to left-center field, driving in a run and making the score 3-2 in favor of ISU. Pitcher Kelly Powell drove in the game-winning runs with an infield smash that was deflected into left field. Powell upped her record to 3-3.

St. John's frustrates N.C. State

DENVER (UPI) -- All-America Chris Mullin scored 25 points and the St. John's defense smothered North Carolina State's top shooters to cruise to a 67-50 win in the East Regional final, propelling the Redmen to the Final Four for the first time since 1975.

Walter Berry added 19 points and Bill Wemnington 14 to move the Redmen into their fourth meeting of the season against Georgetown.

The Salukis added a run in the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Chuck Verschoore to make the final 11-4, and Jay Burch finished the total in the last three games to 41. Pitchford finished the day with two hits, a walk and a stolen base, and Finley went 3 for 4 with three runs batted in.

Burch, Verschoore and Robert Jones each had more than one hit, and Kating had two walks and a single before being pinch hit.

St. John's is outscoring all Conference USA schools, 2-1.

The Redmen's front line of Wemnington, Berry and Willis Glass so stacked up the middle that N.C. State's forwards couldn't get to the rim to take advantage of their height.

Villa Nova upsets North Carolina

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) -- Villanova overcame a height deficiency by playing an extremely aggressive second half Sunday to beat No. 7 North Carolina 58-44 in the NCAA Southeast Regional final, earning the Wildcats a berth in the Final Four.

Trailing by eight points in the closing seconds of the first half, the Wildcats, who haven't been in the Final Four since 1971, surged into the lead after 3:30 of the second half. Villanova, given an unexpected boost from reserve guard Harold Jensen, outscored the Tar Heels 12-3 in another 3:39 span to take a commanding 10-point lead with barely eight minutes left to play.

From that point on, Villanova stuck mainly with a stall, picking up most of its points on free throws as the Tar Heels were forced to foul.

Villanova, 23-10, plays fourth-ranked Menphis State, 31-3, n next Saturday's Final Four semifinals at Lexington, Ky.
