Hazelwood guilty of minor offense

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Exxon Valdez skipper Joseph Hazelwood was acquitted Thursday of the three most serious charges against him and convicted of the relatively minor count of negligent discharge arising from the nation's worst oil spill.

"I'm just relieved," the balding, bearded mariner said after the jury of six men and six women delivered the verdict in Alaska Superior Court after a hard-fought trial that lasted 7 1/2 weeks. His defense team was more jubilant, calling the decision a "total victory."

Applause rang out from the back of the packed courtroom — where the defendant's father and wife sat — after each innocent verdict was read.

One of the jurors, Jeff Sage, said after the verdicts, "I'm glad to stand here today and say justice has been done."

A second juror, Terrell Smith, shook Hazelwood's hand.

Just after the verdict, the prosecution team pushed through the crowded courtroom and quickly slipped down the courthouse stairs without answering questions.

But at a news conference 90 minutes later, prosecutor Brent Cole said, "Sure it's disappointing. I knew it would be a difficult case."

District Attorney Dwayne McConnell said, "Twelve Alaskans heard this case for seven-plus weeks. They made a decision today. We're satisfied with that decision."

Exxon Corp. issued a statement in New York saying, "We are pleased that the ordeal of the trial is over for Captain Hazelwood."

Gus says the jubilant defendant ran amok after the trial, which, coincidentally, is how he got there.

Settlement will stall anti-abortion actions

CHICAGO (UPI)—A federal judge Thursday approved a settlement of a dispute involving equipment and site restrictions for abortion clinics, thwarting anti-abortionists who had hoped the Supreme Court would use the case to chip away at the 1973 court decree permitting abortions.

The ruling came in a case filed by Dr. Richard Ragsdale, a Rockford abortion clinic operator who contended the state's restrictions added unnecessary costs to abortions, made them prohibitively expensive in some parts of the state and turned abortion clinics into mini-hospitals.

Ragsdale won his challenge in federal district and appellate courts and the case had been scheduled for argument before the Supreme Court, which both sides of the abortion controversy expected would use it to further erode Roe v. Wade, the 1973 Supreme Court decision that gave women the right to an abortion.

Hartigan blasts Edgar; governor race heats up

Neil Hartigan, hot on the gubernatorial campaign trail, blew into Southern Illinois Thursday to blast his opponent for wanting to raise taxes.

Hartigan, the Democratic attorney general, said his opponent Secretary of State Jim Edgar would skyrocket Illinois taxes.

"Illinoisans are rallying around a new approach to government, one that demands results, not more and more taxes," Hartigan said at the Williamson County Airport. "Jim Edgar thinks two income tax increases and more property tax increases are the solution, and high vote totals reflect that."

Hartigan received 300,000 more votes than Edgar in the primary election Tuesday. Hartigan's primary numbers were higher than the total of all three Republican candidates—Edgar,

Steven Baer and Robert Marshall. Hartigan, ending his two-day fly-around in Southern Illinois, said he has learned while traveling through the state that people are fed up with Illinois politics.

'Quacker snacks' a daily treat for Campus Lake waterfowl

Don't ever accuse these guys of not being kind to their web-footed friends.

Byrl C. Evans and David Layton don't know one another, yet the two Carbondale residents share a hobby at Campus Lake that has catapulted them to god-like status among 60 Southern Illinois waterfowl.

Evans has been head waiter for the ducks and geese of Campus Lake, serving them evening meals for the past four years.

"During the winter, I feed them every night. Then in spring and the rest of the year, just every other night," Evans said.

Evans, a ground maintenance employee at Thompson Point, said he first started feeding the ducks one winter when the lake was frozen over.

"I was picking up limbs, and I noticed about 14 of them all bunched up in a pocket of the lake by the steam vents," Evans remembered. "They didn't have anything to eat so I'd 'em."

Evans said he normally buys

50 or 60 loaves of bread every month to support his duck habit.

"I get the leftovers from Lewis Bakery, the bread they can't sell," Evans said, estimating his monthly bread bill at $4.

"It usually takes me about 15 minutes to feed them all. I just blow my whistle and they fly in from all over the lake."

"Once you start it, you'd better keep it up, because they'll expect you to be there," Evans said. "I do it because I just don't want to see anything happen to them."

Environmentalism stresses political activism

By Phil Pearson
Staff Writer

Environmentalist Lou Gold told a packed Lawson 141 Thursday night that the environment should be considered with a holistic attitude.

"A forest is much more than trees, it is many different organisms," Gold said.

Gold, a Chicago native, is a former professor of political science at the University of Illinois who dropped out of the professional world in the early 1980s to get away from the city. He moved out to southwest Oregon to be with nature and soon was back in the political realm fighting for preservation of the Siskiyou National Forest, he said.

Though most of his slide presentation concerned the biodiversity of the Siskiyou area, Gold had advice for activists fighting logging operations in the Shawnee National Forest of Southern Illinois. He stressed political activity and stewardship of the environment.

"The owls don't write letters and the bears don't vote. If you want to make a difference, you have to go back to the city," Gold said.

Though Gold railed against the U.S. Forest Service, claiming the agency was in the "hand" of the industrial logging companies, he qualified his position saying he wasn't against logging that doesn't cause great damage and isn't in ecologically sensitive areas.

He said the main argument about clear-cutting forests is the destruction of scenic beauty but the damage done to nature's balance.

"It's not about scenic beauty, it is about biology and it is about genetics," he said.

Gold called the Forest Service "criminal and contemptible" for allowing logging operations that damage the environment and costs taxpayers' dollars.

Salukis sink SEMO, win streak at 11

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. — The Saluki men's baseball team already is halfway to their total victory mark from last season.

The Salukis, who finished 26-38 last season, improved to 13-2 after defeating Southeast Missouri 9-3 Thursday at Cape Girardeau. It was the Salukis' 11th straight victory.

"We struggled last year because we didn't find ways to win," Saluki coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said. "We discussed that in the fall and this year the players are making every effort to turn things around."

Southeast Missouri fell to 7-6. Pitching has been an integral factor in the Salukis' turnaround this season. And Thursday's game was no exception.

Junior right-hander Dale Meyer (2-0) picked up the victory for the Salukis in relief. Meyer pitched four and one-third innings of shutout relief. He yielded only two hits and retired 12 of the 14 batters he faced.

Meyer relieved sophomore right-hander Ryan McWilliams, who pitched four and two-third innings yielding two earned runs on four hits. He struckout four and walked none. McWilliams had a one-hitter before running into trouble in the fifth.

Jones was pleased with both pitchers.

"McWilliams and Meyer were both in tough positions and did good jobs," Jones said. "They haven't pitched a lot this season. This helps the strength of our staff."

The Salukis broke a 3-3 tie with five runs in the top of the seventh. With two out, Mike Kirkpatrick scored from second on a bloop single to right field by Kurt Endebrock giving SIU-C a 4-3 lead.

Senior center fielder Doug Shields doubled down the right field line scoring Endebrock and the Salukis led 5-3. Shields scored on a line-drive double to the left field fence by senior second baseman Tim Davis giving the Salukis a 6-3 lead.

Senior right fielder Brad Hollenkamp culminated the Saluki rally with a two-run homer to right making the score 8-3.

The Salukis added another tally

SIU-C took an early 7-0 lead with an unearned run in the first inning and two runs in the third off losing pitcher Brian Sigler.

Junior left fielder Bob Geary led off the third with an infield hit and advanced to second on an error.

After advancing to third on an Endebrock bunt single, Geary scored on a sacrifice fly by Shields giving the Dawgs a 2-0

For the first time in three years, the Saluki football team will start the season without a new head coach.

Constantly changing offensive and defensive strategies can take a heavy toll on a program's players. With a year's worth of orientation under his belt, second year head coach Bob Smith is looking for many improvements from the 2-9 mark his squad posted a year ago.

Workout sessions begin March 27 and will continue for four weeks, winding up with a game-like scrimmage April 21.

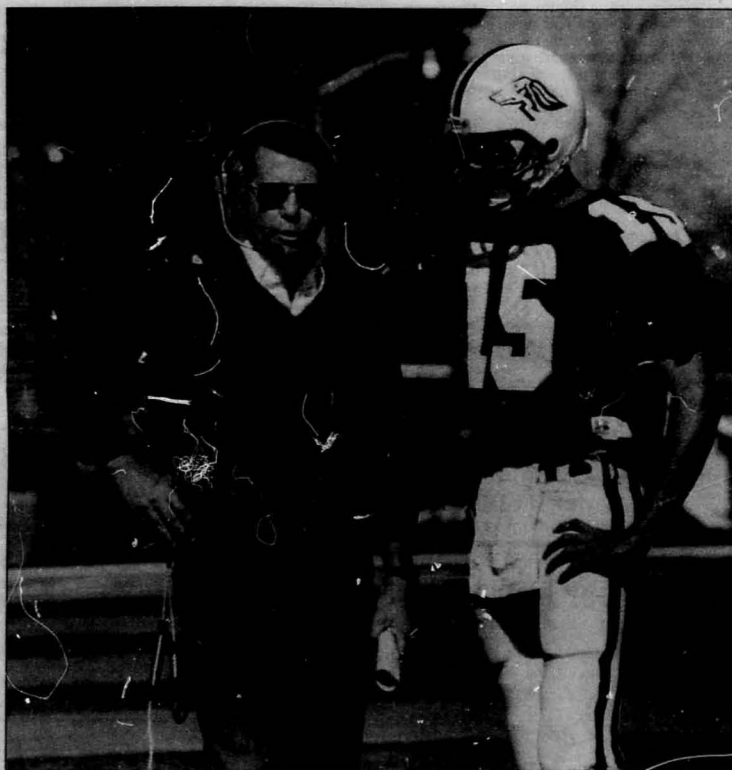

Smith said he and his aides are ready to apply some finishing touches to the pro-type offense they introduced a year ago at SIU-C. Smith took over for Rick Rhodes, who moved to an assistant coaching position at Alabama after spending just 11 months at SIU-C.

"We fell our people made some statements last fall, have continued to do so this winter in the weight room and are ready to take the second step," Smith said. "I don't know that I've ever been around a program where there is more excitement and we're ready to make a move up."

Five of the Salukis nine losses last season were by a touchdown or less. With another practice season for the offensive scheme to sink in, the Salukis could be a formidable force in the Gateway Conference.

The Salukis averaged 20 points and 346 yards offensively per game. A total of seven offensive team records were set last season including most yards gained in an 11-game season with 3,814.

Sophomore quarterback Scott Gabbert should provide instant offense for the Salukis after setting five offensive records as a freshman. Smith is looking to build a strong defense to match an

Bob Smith, Saluki head football coach, will return for his second season in 1990-91. This marks the first time the Dawgs have already potent offense.

"We established the fact that we can move the ball," Smith said. "But step two in our program will include emphasis in areas we weren't too good at a year ago... being a more dominant defensive team and developing consistency in running the ball."

"We want to simplify the offense and defense some from last year," Smith added. "It may have hurt us some by trying to do too much in too little a time. We know so much more about our people now... and about our opponents, that we may be able to eliminate some aspects of our offense and defense and strengthen both as a result."

The football players posted a cumulative 2.5 grade point aver-

Golf teams to combine for tourney

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

For the first time in the history of SIU-C golf, the men's and women's squads will compete together as a team.

Southwest Missouri State will host the tournament March 26 and 27 at the Highland Springs Country Club in Springfield Mo.

The first annual co-ed collegiate golf tournament will begin with 36 holes on Monday and 18 holes on Tuesday to wrap up the tourney.

Lew Hartzog and Diane Daugherty (men's and women's coaches respectively) are excited about the chance to showcase their teams as one unit.

"The tournament is decided by the combined score of the men's and women's teams," Hartzog said. "The team score will be computed by the outcome of each hole on the golf course. We're looking forward to the tournament."

Daugherty also is looking forward to a first-of-its-kind tournament.

"As far as joint scoring like this, I think this could be a brand new thing, first time in the country," Daugherty said.

An outright favorite to win the tournament would be hard to pinpoint because some schools have strong women's teams and others may have more strength in their men's team.

Round robin invitational up next for softball team

The Saluki softball team brings its 9-3 record into the Saluki Invitational this weekend against Northern Iowa, Bradley, Northeast Louisiana and Ball State.

SIU-C will open the round robin tournament at the IAW Field across from the Recreation Center today against Gateway Conference foes Northern Iowa and Bradley at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m.

Saturday, the Salukis will battle two-time invitational champ Northeast Louisiana at 1 p.m. and Ball State at 3 p.m.

The Salukis are coming off a successful spring trip to Florida and Georgia. The team won its first two games against Mercer University before falling to nationally-ranked Florida State.

The Dawgs bounced back to go on a seven-game winning streak, taking two from Valdosta State and Florida A&M. They also beat Connecticut, Nicholls State and Miami of Ohio in the Florida State Invitational.

The next day of the tournament the Salukis fell to Nebraska and Furman before the rains came and cancelled the rest of the tournament.

The Salukis pounded out 10 home runs on the road trip, already equaling the team total of a year ago. As a team the Salukis hit .333, with senior second baseman Shelly Gibbs leading the way at .447. Junior Mary Jo Furbach contributed with a .405 average and 12 RBIs.

The Salukis outscored their opponents 72-17.

For the most part the softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer was without the services of All-Gateway sophomore catcher Billie Ramsey, who hit .339 a year ago while driving in 24 runs. Ramsey, recovering from knee surgery, saw limited action in the outfield and as designated hitter. Even with being hampered by the recovering knee, Ramsey hit .360 and slugged two triples.

Brechtelsbauer is certain Ramsey will be in the lineup this weekend, but not necessarily behind the plate.

The spring trip performance of the pitching staff was a pleasant surprise for Brechtelsbauer.

Sophomore Dede Darnell and junior Lisa Robinson led the staff going 4-1 on the trip. Darnell recorded four shutouts and compiled a 0.44 ERA. Robinson threw one shutout and brought home a 0.40 ERA in 35 innings.

Lithuania fears use of force; appeals for help from world

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Mikhail Gorbachev ordered Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis to stop forming civil-defense brigades Thursday as relations between Moscow and Vilnius deteriorated further. In an urgent "appeal to world's nations," Lithuania appealed early Friday for help in stopping what it said are preparations by the Soviet government to use force against the small Baltic republic.

Colombian presidential candidate assassinated

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A gunman working for the Medellin cocaine cartel assassinated leftist presidential candidate Bernardo Jaramillo at a crowded airport Thursday, triggering a series of violent riots across the country. Jaramillo, 35, the candidate of the Patriotic Union Party in the May 27 elections, was shot in the chest and throat at Bogota's El Dorado International Airport about 8 a.m. and died two hours later at a clinic.

Transylvania quiet as troops guard square

TIRGU MURES, Romania (UPI) — Troops and tanks guarded the main square of Tirgu Mures Thursday, but life appeared to be returning to normal after two days of ethnic rioting that shook the Transylvania city. Clusters of ethnic Hungarians and Romanians continued to mill around the central square under the watchful eyes of government troops, but there were no reports of new violence.

Leftist rebels, Salvadoran troops battle

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Fierce fighting between leftist rebels and government troops reportedly left 14 people dead in northern El Salvador, officials said Thursday. Separately, Americas Watch, a human-rights group, issued a report saying that after nearly $1 billion in direct U.S. military aid to El Salvador, the United States has failed to spur improvements in the Salvadoran military's human-rights performance.

House committee agrees on smog legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Energy and Commerce Committee reached agreement Thursday on tougher measures to reduce urban smog, resolving one of the knottiest issues blocking quick House action on clean air legislation. The compromise lays out pollution control measures and compliance schedules for 101 cities now exceeding federal health standards for ozone smog. Most of the cities have until the turn of the century to comply, while Los Angeles, the smoggiest city, has until 2010.

NASA ponders sending shuttle to aid satellite

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — NASA engineers Thursday debated the possibility of a shuttle flight to repair or salvage a stranded $150 million communications satellite, and while no final decisions were made, such a mission would appear to be technically feasible, officials said. The satellite was stranded in a low orbit March 14 when a wiring problem prevented the spacecraft from separating from its launch rocket.

Audit says treasurer losing potential interest money

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A delay in getting information from banks that hold state funds means the state treasurer is not getting the most for Illinois' money, a new audit said Thursday. Illinois Auditor General Robert Cronson said the state treasurer's office has lost thousands of dollars in potential interest because it has not been kept up to date on excess balances in non-interest bearing accounts.

Big Twist

Carbondale bluesman remembered at local ceremony

By Tracy Sargeant
Staff Writer

Larry "Big Twist" Nolan performed all over the world but he never forgot his hometown crowd. And, with his death in Chicago last week, the great "Big Twist" came home one last time to be remembered by the people whom he never forgot.

WSIU-FM radio is tentatively scheduled to broadcast a memorial in honor of "Big Twist" from 7 to 9 p.m. Saturday.

NOLAN, 53, was buried in Tower Grove Cemetery, Murphysboro, Wednesday. Some 400 people filled the Greater Gillespie Temple Church of God in Christ in Carbondale to hear eulogies and celebrate the memory of Nolan.

With a sweet baritone voice, Nolan led the rhythm-and-blues band called the Mellow Fellows. The once bearish figure (6-foot-4, and 300 pounds) was famous for his trademark three-piece suit and fedora in which he was buried.

NOLAN WAS one of the most popular performers to come out of Carbondale.

Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows roots run deep in Southern Illinois. It was 1972 when guitarist Pete Special and saxophonist Terry Ogolinski first heard Twist play at a roadhouse in Buckner, Ill. The stage was enclosed with chicken wire fence to protect the bands from the Pizza King (now PK's).

The band wrote and performed the song, "I'll Be Coming Home," especially for the Shryock concert. The song is a tribute to the earlier days in Southern Illinois. Several references to area places were woven throughout the song.

THE BAND moved to the Chicago in 1978 to explore the larger R and B circuit. Since moving to Chicago, the band recorded several albums including "Big Twist and the Mellow Fellows" in 1980, which received a four-star rating from Rolling Stone magazine. "One Track Mind" in 1982, and "Playing for Keeps" in 1987.

Nolan had been ill for the past several years and was undergoing kidney dialysis.

Opinion & Commentary

AIDS Awareness:
Everyone's worry

AIDS.

Is there any other word in the English language that evokes such fear, ignorance and prejudice as this one? To combat this phobia on the local level, the Wellness Center and the Health Education department have designated next week as AIDS Awareness Week. We urge you to support, participate and, most of all, educate yourself against this disease that could destroy our generation. Activities planned will kick off tonight with the "Let's Shake AIDS" dance-a-thon at the Rec Center (which begins at 8 p.m.) and will continue with informative productions throughout next week such as plays, lectures and rallies. Grassroots education programs such as this are very important to reach the public. Despite continuing efforts such as our campus program, media exposure, research and health education efforts, the number of people infected with AIDS continues to skyrocket. This silent killer has been perceived in the past as "a gay disease," God's judgment on immoral hedonists or something horrible that only happen to someone else with questionable morals.

HOWEVER, the facts speak louder than the folklore. The latest information, reported March 1, reads like the grim reaper's batting average. According to a report by the National AIDS Surveillance task force of the Centers for Disease Control, there are 1,021,645 people who have this incurable disease in this country and an immeasurable amount of people who have come in contact with the deadly HIV virus. (That's right—more than one million. That's roughly equal to the population of metropolitan Indianapolis.)

Closer to home, Illinois ranks sixth in this grim statistical race. The Illinois Department of Public Health reports that 3,099 people have tested positively to the HIV virus and 3,660 have AIDS. Forty-seven new cases of AIDS were diagnosed in February alone. Of the 20 to 29 age group, the demographic bracket college students traditionally fall under, 757 people in this state have AIDS. There have been eight reported AIDS cases in Jackson county—a figure Sheila Patterson, Jackson County AIDS educator, said also has been steadily on the increase in recent years.

THE STATS may cause your eyes to glaze over. However, the myths behind this blatant ignorance and deadly apathy need to be exposed as the fallacies they are because almost everyone falls into some sort of risk of getting AIDS. Everybody. College students seems to think they are infallible—despite irrefutable evidence to the contrary, poll after poll indicates college students do not take preventative measures against the disease. However, it is estimated that an average of two out of every 1,000 students on college campuses are infected with the HIV virus. And that's where we need to be worried. This translates into the fact that, statistically, about 23 people could be infected at SIU-C right now, as you read this. It could be the person sitting next to you, your professor or your best friend.

The disease can lay dormant in your system for up to a decade after contact before you show signs of AIDS. The Human Immunodeficiency Virus, the virus that causes the deadly disease, is an equal opportunity infector. It doesn't care who you are or what part of society you're in. You could contract the disease during a wild period in your college years, but it won't manifest itself until much later. After you've most likely gotten married and maybe had a few children. As things stand right now, if you've got the disease, you stand a good chance of dying. So please. Utilize this excellent opportunity to arm yourself against AIDS. In this case, what you don't know can hurt you.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, the associate editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a School of Journalism faculty member.

Letters to the editor must be submitted directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Letters

Fan justifies troubling cheering habits

In a recent letter to the D.E. about the SIU-ISU basketball playoffs, Todd Thomas, sophomore, in a disheartening example of ageism, disparages SIU's older sports fans. He labels them as "donation-giving boosters" and accuses them of sitting on their "thick wallets." He scolds them for not screaming and yelling, chides them for not doing "the wave," rebukes them for lack of support, charges them with not having the "noise, spirit and enthusiasm to get the job done" and orders them to "put your money where your mouth is." (Whatever he means by that.)

Perhaps what Todd Thomas, sophomore, sees as enthusiasm, spirit and support is seen by others as something different. At Sunday's games in Bloomington, a large block of SIU students stood—in sort of a permanent wave—during the entire two games, obstructing the view of six rows of (mostly older) SIU Boosters and preventing them from seeing the games they paid to see. Is that "support" or bad manners?

At Tuesday's games, my 15 year old grandson, three other young teenagers, and two older people were seated in an area completely surrounded by SIU fans. This little group of SIU supporters shouted their enthusiasm, but each time they chanted "SIU" the Illinois State crowd around them screamed "SUCKS." Does that show "noise, spirit, and enthusiasm" or does it reveal bad manners, poor sportsmanship and a adolescent vocabulary?

Unfortunately this sophomore behavior is not limited to SIU. At SIU home games, a group behind the basket yells "shit asshole" each time an opponent makes a free throw. Does that demonstrate noise, spirit and enthusiasm or, again, does it just expose bad manners, poor sportsmanship and a limited vocabulary?

Perhaps this is why so many SIU students fail to go to the games—out of embarrassment at the infantile behavior of this unrepresentative—but loud—group.

I am probably the "elderly woman" of whom Todd Thomas, sophomore, complains for telling him his sign was vulgar. If so, he was not honest in his letter about the contents of his sign, which referred to SIU coach, Bob Bender. The sign I felt—and still feel—was offensive enough to speak out about read: "Bob 'Bender' over and do it like a big dawg." Todd Thomas may have thought that was clever and witty; others thought it was crude and immature.

Todd Thomas, sophomore, derisively states that he "saw that couple stand only once...and, yes, that was during the National Anthem!" Although he is wrong about the number of times we stood, he is correct that we stood during the National Anthem. I must confess, we also sang.

Once, several years ago, we were told that Southern fans have a reputation for being obscene. That reputation is undeserved, except for a very small group of people in a state of arrested adolescence.

Todd Thomas, sophomore, whines that the Saluki Boosters sit on their thick wallets. I think he sits on his brains.—Ruth M. Narusis, senior, life.

Football 'facts' misconstrued; alum wants vote

Instead of sending his graduate student lackeys as usual, I see where the head of the OAFS (Oppose and Abolish Football! Sorts) has come out himself to personally stick his knife in the back of the football program again (DE 3-5-90). He wants to establish that there is solid support for his anti-SIUC football position. He's willing to accept a non-scientific estimate of faculty against football, but he wants to be sure there is a scientific poll of the alumni. Of course, he failed to mention another unscientific poll conducted by the Southern Illinoisan (5-7-89) showing 79% voting to retain football at SIU-C.

He's more than willing to document the votes again... football from such irrelevant groups to the issue as the Medical School Faculty and the Graduate and Professional Student Council, but he conveniently ignores the overwhelming vote of support from the representatives of the most relevant group, the Undergraduate Student Government (DE 5-10-89).

For a change, Handler has challenged another relevant group in the undergraduate SIUC alumni, and I agree a proper survey needs to be taken of them. I'll admit if these alumni (or the undergraduate students) do not support football, we don't deserve to have it, but I am extremely confident they will also back the continuation of our football program in overwhelming numbers. Handler himself is not eligible to vote in this group, so I've already got a 1-0 lead—let's get on with it!

Handler also insinuates that President Guyon tacitly supports the OAFS' position. What he wouldn't know is that John Guyon has been a regular football game attendee since way before he became president. I agree with Handler on another thing though: it is time for Dr. Guyon to publicly express his feelings about SIUC football—I'm sure he'll join Chancellor Pettit in endorsing it (DE 9-29-89).

Finally, while Handler points out we have won only 42% of our games since he came in 1962, it should be noted that we have won 53% of our home games in that same period, so the home folks have had winning football to watch for almost 30 years! Maybe not Notre Dame, but a winner nevertheless. Keep up the faith—Coach Smith will have us winning again in the tradition of Coach Dempsey. —William M. Vicars, SIU alumnus, 1961.

Lesar seminar today will feature ways to handle child witnesses

By Chris Walka
Staff Writer

Maintaining a sensitive attitude toward young children who testify in court, while ensuring all the facts dealing with the case are obtained, is the focus of a seminar today in the Lesar Law Building Auditorium.

Patrick Delfino, assistant director of the Illinois State's Attorney Appellate Prosecutor, said the day-long seminar will feature new ways of training law enforcement officers, prosecuting attorneys, judges and defense attorneys who deal with child witnesses in court.

In addition, the meeting will include a session on the legal problems and constitutional rights encountered with these types of cases. The seminar will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today.

Delfino said he hopes one benefit of the seminar will be informing law enforcement personnel of new techniques when interviewing children.

"These people have to be sensitive because they have the first contact with these youngsters," Delfino said.

Delfino said people interviewing children for trial testimony must have the best training possible in order to avoid legal problems and to avoid situations where the child has been improperly interviewed.

The seminar will feature Dr. Ian Ross, a child and family therapist from Encino, Calif. He will speak from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. about developmental aspects of the young child in court.

During the afternoon, the Honorable Marshall P. Young, who is the presiding judge in Rapid City, will speak about the legal and constitutional issues when children testify.

Testimony defended by Reagan

BOSTON (UPI)—Former President Ronald Reagan insisted Thursday he had maintained the integrity of executive privilege despite providing hours of videotaped testimony for the trial of John Poindexter.

Reagan, who successfully battled colon cancer during his presidency, made the comment as he visited with children receiving treatment at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston.

While accepting a crystal sculpture depicting the Boston skyline from two young patients, Reagan told reporters executive privilege was still intact in spite of the testimony taped for the Poindexter trial.

"I think so. What we had to do was preserve a tradition not to start something that would invade the presidency," Reagan said.

When asked if he was embarrassed by his poor memory recall on the tapes, Reagan said, "Well, I just had to say 'I don't remember' so many times, and it was easy to say that."

The former president said that over the course of his eight years in office, he had meetings with more than 400 heads of state.

University professor snares role in company production

By Stephanie Steirer
Staff Writer

A familiar face from the SIU-C's theater department can be seen in The Stage Company's upcoming performance of "Steel Magnolias."

After two days of auditions in February with a turnout of 40 members from the community, Lori Merrill, assistant professor in the theater department, was chosen to play the part of Shelby, one of six women in the all-female cast.

Merrill has been teaching movement and musical theater classes at SIU-C for two years. "This is the first opportunity I've had to perform since I've been here," Merrill said.

The play, written by Robert Harling, opened on Broadway in 1987 and has recently been made into a motion picture.

"Steel Magnolias" is set in Truvy's beauty salon in a small Louisiana town and focuses on the lives of six women who work in or visit the salon.

"Each woman comes from a different background," Merrill said. "Yet when they come together in the salon, they share a certain commonality."

The plot in "Steel Magnolias" centers on M'Lyn and her daughter Shelby and their rela-

Lori Merrill will star in the production of "Steel Magnolias"

Merrill, who has always had the desire to do theater, received her Masters of Fine Arts degree from the University of Arizona-Tucson.

But Merrill has no desire to break out into the professional world of acting. "I'm perfectly happy right where I am," she said. "I love performing and teaching equally. They are the same parts of a whole, which is theater."

This summer, Merrill will direct the musical "Pajama Game" at McLeod Theatre.

"Steel Magnolias" will open April 20 at the Stage Company, 101 N. Washington St., and will run for three consecutive weekends.

tionship. "The women in this play are strong, intelligent and nurturing," Merrill said. "I have girlfriends like these women and much of the dialogue reminds me of them."

Wildlife casualty estimates from Exxon spill increasing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Longterm harm to fish and wildlife from the Alaska oil spill appears worse than expected, with early findings of reproductive damage to herring, salmon, rockfish and endangered falcons, Alaska's fish and game commissioner disclosed Thursday.

Commissioner Don Collinsworth revealed preliminary results of some damage assessment studies in written testimony prepared for a House subcommittee hearing two days before the first anniversary of the Exxon Valdez spill.

His statement contrasted sharply with the testimony of Exxon executive C.M. Harrison, who told the panel there was "no evidence" of damage to herring and salmon since nearly 11 million gallons of crude oil fouled Prince William Sound off the port of Valdez, Alaska, on March 24, 1989.

While the outright death of tens of thousands of birds and mammals was perhaps the most dramatic consequence of the accident, the spill's enduring effects "are more insidious" and "may cause the greatest damage," Collinsworth said.

Longterm damage can manifest itself in the diminishing ability of certain species to reproduce, either because of lost habitat, loss of food and prey or reduced sexual fitness, he said.

The state, federal government, Exxon and the Alyeska Service Co., which runs the oil terminal at Valdez, are in the process of assessing longterm damage to the natural resources of Prince William Sound and the Gulf of Alaska.

Collinsworth said details from those studies could not be revealed for legal reasons, but he added, "The more we learn in the way of preliminary results, the greater seems the risk."

He cited four examples:

■ Recent analysis of some samples of herring larvae hatched from eggs collected near oiled shorelines showed 90 percent with abnormalities, compared with just 6 percent of those from unaffected areas.

■ Mounting evidence that rockfish and other deep-dwelling sea creatures that experts had hoped would avoid the oil were in fact "stressed, and in some instances killed by the oil."

■ Biologists have been unable to find even a single salmon egg, alevin or fry in the inter-tidal portion of salmon streams where tens of thousands of eggs or juvenile fish would normally be found.

■ Peregrine falcons, an endangered species, appear to occupy fewer nests than expected and to have "lower-than-normal productivity" in the area of the spill.

"The worldwide population of this peregrine subspecies is roughly 2,500 individuals, so the loss of even a few birds may be significant," Collinsworth said.

Harrison acknowledged the documented deaths of some 36,000 seabirds, 1,000 otters and 150 bald eagles whose carcasses have been recovered, but he said given the "natural resiliency" of wildlife, "most of these species are likely to recover rapidly."

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service estimates that, between 90,000 and 270,000 seabirds died from the spill — the worst bird mortality ever recorded from an oil spill.

'Miracle monkeys' now serving quadriplegics

By Eric Reyes
Staff Writer

A visitor to associate professor Donna Falvo's Rehabilitation 513 class hugged students one moment and tore their folders and chewed their pencils the next.

The playful visitor was Wendel, a capuchin monkey being cared for by Susan Pardee of Marion. Pardee is one of more than 100 foster care parents in the United States who take care of a capuchin monkey that will eventually be trained at Boston University to work with a quadriplegic.

Helping Hands, the unique organization behind the monkeys, has placed more than 100 monkeys with foster parents in the last 10 years.

A foster family cares for a monkey for about three years, teaching it is basic skills and socializes the monkey. Then the monkey is matched with a quadriplegic who sends in an application and has been screened by Helping Hands.

When the monkey is matched with a quadriplegic, the critter is trained in six months to respond to a beam of light that the disabled owner directs from a mouth-operated laser pointer.

The monkeys also are taught to transfer sandwiches or drinks from a refrigerator to a feeding tray, place books on a reading stand and other tasks.

Pardee read from case studies about simian aides that operate microwaves, push glasses up on the quadriplegic's nose and change compact discs.

Becky Thompson, who is paralyzed from the neck down except for limited use of one arm, received an aide, Holly, in January. Thompson, of North Carolina, applied for an aide two years ago when she was a student at East Carolina University.

"Holly has been a joy for me. She is a big part of my life. I'm a big part of her life," Thompson said.

The concept of simian aides began when behavioral psychologist Dr. M.J. Willard realized the tasks she was doing to help a quadriplegic friend could be learned by an intelligent animal. In 1979 a grant from the Paralyzed Veterans of America allowed the first placement of a trained monkey.

Pardee said she took on the responsibility of caring for Wendel because she felt it was her way to help the handicapped.

"I do three specific things, potty-train, teach not to bite and to go to the cage. He also learns to socialize," Pardee said.

Pardee said she satisfies Wendel's sweet tooth by rewarding him with cookies. But Wendel sometimes tries to satisfy his cravings himself by breaking into Pardee's containers where she keeps her sweets.

"Before you can whistle Dixie, he has three appendages full of candy," Pardee said.

Wendel demonstrated his desire to explore the environment by reaching into students' pockets and handbags and finding candy.

Falvo said the students in the class who study the medical psycho-social aspects of disabilities were amazed. "A lot didn't realize what they are able to do," Falvo said.

During Pardee's speech she asked students to put their hands behind their backs and sit still. "What if you itch? What if you were thirsty? This is what it is like for the quadriplegic," Pardee said.

Thompson said Holly enjoys helping. "She opens snacks for me. She helps with drinks. She likes to open and close things for me. They like to do things like that."

Thompson said she spends most of the day with Holly. When Holly isn't helping she plays with her toys and watches television.

"When she sees people arguing on TV and moving around, she gets real close and tries to grab them," Thompson said.

Thompson said she had to have her rooms "monkey-proofed" because of Holly's natural mischievousness, but Holly gets better and better.

"I just can't imagine life without her," Thompson said.

Helping Hands program director Judi Zazula said 3,000 people applied to be a foster care parent and 200 people were accepted. A total of five people in Illinois have monkeys.

Pardee said a party with the other Illinois foster parents was in the planning stage. Pardee asked, "Can you imagine all those monkeys running around?"

Pop star gets steel-rod implant; doctor expects normal recovery

NEW YORK (UPI) — Surgeons Thursday implanted two steel rods into pop singer Gloria Estefan's back, broken when a tractor-trailer rig plowed into her tour bus on a snowy Pennsylvania highway.

"The surgery went very well," said Dr. Michael Neuwirth, one of two surgeons who performed the nearly 3 1/2-hour operation. "I have every expectation she will make a normal recovery."

Neuwirth said he expected no complications, such as bleeding or swelling, for the lead singer of the Miami Sound Machine as she recovered at the Hospital for Joint Diseases in Manhattan.

Neuwirth spoke to a huge crowd of reporters and cameramen in a hospital auditorium banked with flowers from fans of the 32-year-old pop singer.

Estefan kept two dozen white roses and asked that the others be given to other patients in the hospital.

Asked if she would make a full recovery, Neuwirth replied, "I'm quite optimistic she'll be able to return to all her pre-injury activities."

Hospital authorities said the facility had been flooded with flowers, balloons, T-shirts, and phone calls from around the world. Singer Elton John sent flowers, and Diana Ross had called saying she wanted to visit Estefan, said hospital spokeswoman Mary Costello.

Voters approve 43 percent of school funding referenda

SPRINGFIELD (UPI)—Voters in Illinois school districts approved 43 percent of the tax and bond referenda on their primary election ballots Tuesday, including six districts on the state's financial watch list, an Illinois school group reported Thursday.

However, three districts considered by the Board of Education to have money problems had their tax and bond questions fail.

The Illinois Association of School Administrators compiled the list of successful and unsuccessful measures.

Voters approved referenda in the following districts on the watch list: Cass 63 in Du Page County; Batavia 101 in Kane County; Grand Prairie 6 in Jefferson County; Barrington 220 in Lake County; Eastland 308 in Carroll County; and Union Oakwaka 115 in Henderson County.

Voters rejected referenda in these money-troubled districts: Harvard 50 in McHenry County; Hall 502 in Bureau County; and Yorkville 115 in Kendall County.

Board of Education spokesman Lee Milner said the percentage of successful school referenda in past elections has fluctuated from as low as 25 percent to as high as 60 percent.

"Forty percent seems fairly close to where they've been of late," Milner said. "It's usually tied to the message coming from the state. When that message is that the funding we can provide is very low, the percentage goes up. I don't know if that message is out yet this year, but it's going out."

Downstate residents appeared more willing to approve increases in taxes than their counterparts in Cook and the "collar counties" surrounding Cook County, said IASA Associate Director Linda Knibbs.

Knibbs said 41 percent of tax increase measures were approved in downstate counties, while the success rate in Cook County school districts was 31 percent. Voters in the collar counties approved 25 percent of the school referenda on their ballots.

"These people may believe our schools are just simply asking too much of us," Knibbs said.

Some party leaders also have blamed the anti-tax revolt for the ouster of several incumbent officeholders in the primary, particularly in Du Page County.

The IASA study indicated all areas of the state were more willing to pay higher taxes to build or improve buildings, perhaps because voters can see the effects of their dollars, Knibbs said.

National organization holds anti-wilderness conference

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—A national organization representing agriculture, mining, motorized recreation vehicle and timber industries Thursday opened an anti-wilderness conference.

"We don't want anymore wilderness in the United States," said Don Rawlins, spokesman for the American Farm Bureau Federation. "We think there's enough wilderness."

Rawlins, of Chicago, said the 3.8 million member farm organization "has no problems with the wilderness status for lofty mountain peaks. The problem is it turns out to be everything you can see and then they want a buffer zone around every mountain."

The Wilderness Impact Research Foundation's third annual National Wilderness Conference "will focus our attention on the fact that agriculture doesn't go out there and survive by itself. We need gas and oil and wood products and machinery. These all come from public lands," he said.

University students turnout in low numbers for election

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

The majority of University students must have been hit by a tidal wave of voting apathy during the primary election Tuesday.

With more than 21,000 students attending the University, only 77 students managed to get to the polls to vote for their favorite candidates on Tuesday.

Robert B. Harrell, Jackson County clerk and recorder, said while only 77 students voted in the three precincts that are part of the campus, more students who live in areas outside of Carbondale also may have voted.

He said, however, it wasn't likely that a large number of students voted in other precincts.

"Students are most likely to vote on campus between their classes," Harrell said.

The breakdown of students who voted in the three campus precincts include:

- In Carbondale 22, which constitutes Southern Hills and the triads, eight students voted Democratic and four voted Republican;
- In Carbondale 23, which constitutes Neely, Schneider and Mae Smith Towers, 16 students voted Democratic and 11 voted Republican.
- In Carbondale 25, which constitutes Thompson Point and other small group housing, 21 voted Democratic and 11 voted Republican.

Obviously, getting people to vote is a problem on campus. Harrell said he attributes the low numbers to many students who are only registered to vote in their hometown instead of Jackson County.

Tim Hildebrand, president of the Undergraduate Student Government, said the USG worked in conjunction with the Black Affairs Council to hold a voter registration drive prior to the primaries.

Although Hildebrand did not have the exact figures of how many people registered, he said they had "quite a few people registered."

Because spring break was the week before the primaries, many students may have forgotten about the elections.

Patrick Brown, president of the College Republicans, said his organization tried to get together a registration drive before the primaries, but training wasn't available.

Before someone can register people to vote, he or she must take a training class through the county clerk's office.

"We tried to get the class, but I wasn't being offered at the time," Brown said.

He said because spring break was the week before the primaries, many students may have forgotten about the election. The College Republicans went through the towers the night before the primary to distribute sample Republican ballots.

"There just wasn't enough time to promote the election with spring break and all," Brown said. "We wanted to talk the sample ballots to all the dorms, but we ran out of time."

He said he will try to put together another drive before the election in November.

But the University wasn't the only area to be hit by the wave of apathy.

In Jackson County, 3,494 citizens voted Democratic and 2,842 voted Republican. The total number of registered voters in the county is 29,275.

Harrell said comparing this primary to the last one two years ago would be difficult because it was the presidential primary.

"There is always a much higher turnout when the election includes presidential candidates," he said.

In 1986, however, only 3,043 people voted in Jackson County. Curiously, there were more registered voters at the time. The county clerk's office estimates about 32,560 voters at the time.

State Rep. Larry Woolard, who defeated Sesser Mayor Ned Mitchell 9,054 to 5,371 in the bid for the seat in the 117th district, said there was a bigger voter turnout than he expected.

The Carterville Democrat said he expected to receive 8,272 votes, but he exceeded that amount by 782 votes.

Department of Public Health and the American Civil Liberties Union, representing Ragsdale, is "lawful, fair, reasonable and adequate."

Nordberg said opponents of the settlement are wrong in contending the Supreme Court would have upheld the restrictive regulations and also rejected arguments the settlement would endanger women's health, saying both sides had consulted with doctors in drawing up their agreement.

Victor Rosenblum, legal counsel for the Illinois Right to Live Committee, called the ruling an "absolute triumph of politics over law."

"The question of how a state attorney general can modify the express will of the legislature of his state remains to be answered," Rosenblum said.

"We might as well dissolve the General Assembly in Springfield," said Richard O'Connor, executive director of the committee. "If the attorney general of Illinois can arbitrarily veto regulations passed by the citizens' elected representatives and get away with it, we no longer have representative government."

"We live under a dictatorship," Hartigan said earlier; the agreement would give the state the ability to regulate abortion clinics while preserving a woman's right to privacy.

"For every woman living in Illinois, I hope the effect of the agreement...will soon result in the implementation of a set of regulations that guarantee that any abortion performed in this state must be performed under conditions that assure the health and safety of the woman," Hartigan said.

ACLU attorney Colleen Connell said the agreement will pave the way for more doctors to open abortion clinics, making it easier for women throughout the state to obtain the procedure.

The agreement permits abortions to be performed in the offices of private physicians and allows doctors to determine whether the setting is appropriate to the individual patient.

It also permits abortions in clinics devoted entirely to the procedure and does not require those clinics to have special equipment or personnel on hand for abortions up to the 18th week of pregnancy.

"You and I as taxpayers subsidize the whole thing. One of the largest subsidies is road building," Gold claimed, adding, "the Forest Service is the largest road building agency in the world."

Many of Gold's comments against the Forest Service were met with hearty applause from the audience of students and members of various area environmental organizations.

He added that opposition efforts to end logging operations is that many jobs, especially in Oregon, depend on the logging industry.

Another point of Gold's agitation with logging operations in publicly owned forests is that 6 billion board-feet a year is harvested and sent to Japan, where Gold claims the Japanese have exhausted their timber resources.

Oregon is the home of the large cedar trees the Japanese want as well as the huge Douglas fir and Redwoods.

because they're not getting any corn on their taxes.

People are saying they've had enough," Hartigan said. "The old Republican rhetoric that Edgar has been handing out isn't going to suffice in the 1990s."

He said the state has been taxed to death over the past decade. In the last 12 years, Illinois taxes have suffered through 21 increases.

Every time there is a problem in Illinois, the Republicans throw another tax increase," Hartigan said.

"I think we need to come up with new solutions instead."

He said 14 years of the Thompson/Edgar regime is enough and the primary turnout was a clear sign Illinois is ready for a change.

"More people are saying 'yes' to my message than to Jim Edgar's, and we've only just begun," Hartigan said. "As this campaign progresses, we will see a groundswell of support for a new direction in the state of Illinois."

In addition to their daily bread, the ducks' fine-feathered friends also are treated to a duck dinner of corn. Evans said he goes through nearly 1,000 pounds of corn a year.

Layton's bill of fare for these playful birds is identical to humans', only Layton's menu is pared down somewhat.

"I come out mainly on the weekends," said Layton, a 36-year-old Carbondale resident.

Layton, who's been taking care of the ducks and geese since last December, said he first became interested in the birds only as subjects for nature photography.

"I'm an outdoor nature lover," Layton said. "I've got them to where they'll come up on shore and eat right off my hand."

But Layton cautions against trying to handle the Campus Lake birds.

"Don't pet them. They're not pets. They're residents here, and this is their home," Layton said, adding that visitors to Campus Lake should respect the birds as wild animals.

"I tried to pet one of the two white honkers one time while he was eating out of my hand. He started hissing and backing off. He didn't like it too much," Layton said.

"The ducks are happy in this lake because there aren't any hunters around. They know nobody's out to hurt them here," Layton said.

"I think the geese are beautiful, graceful like swans," he added.

Evans said the two honkers in question are actually Chinese white geese.

"There used to be three of them, but somebody got one," Evans said. "The ducks are mallards. Some are mixed. Some are blonde. Some are green-heads."

Evans said the ducks are pairing off and nesting this time of the year, noting that he personally counted 58 ducklings that were hatched out last year.

"Out of 58 hatched, only 30 survived," Evans said. "Thirties must've got the little ones."

Right now, there are about 50 or 60 ducks out on the lake, but it won't be long until there's a bunch of little ones hatched out. At least I hope so," he said.

Most restrictive abortion law in nation approved in Idaho

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — The Senate Thursday approved and sent to the governor a bill giving Idaho the nation's most restrictive state abortion law, which supporters hope will lead to similar bans across the country.

Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus, an abortion foe, has not said whether he would sign the bill, which cleared the House on a vote of 25-17 after 4 and a half hours of debate before hundreds of supporters and opponents. Passage required a minimum of 22 "aye" votes.

The announcement of the vote resulted in a roar of cheering.

The bill would prohibit abortion as a method of birth control — banning all abortions except in cases of rape, incest, profound fetal deformity or threat to the life or the health of the mother.

Abortion rights advocate Sen. Marti Calabretta, a Democrat, called the measure a "terrible bill ... being rammed down our throats by a vocal minority," and she begged her colleagues to seriously consider if "Idaho should join in this holy war."

But Sen. Roger Madsen, a Republican who authored the legislation, countered: "This is not a religious issue, it is a civil rights issue of the first order. Abortion in my opinion is cruel and unusual punishment."

Andrus has held to his policy of refusing to comment pending legislation.

The bill is viewed by the National Right to Life Committee, which spearheaded the effort in Idaho, and other supporters as the best hope of over-

End sought to filibuster on abortion

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Maryland Senate leaders worked feverishly Thursday to find a compromise proposal that would end a weeklong filibuster waged against legislation liberalizing state abortion laws.

Eight days have passed since opponents initiated the effort to kill an abortion rights bill allowing the procedure in most circumstances.

Pressure on senators to resolve the filibuster continued to mount as bills approved by the House of Delegates backed up behind the abortion debate, bringing the Legislature to a near-standstill with just over two weeks remaining until adjournment April 9.

A decision by Senate leaders to call for a premature cloture vote Tuesday fell one vote shy of the 32-vote Senate majority needed to end the filibuster.

turning the landmark 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortion.

However, opponents believe it is patently unconstitutional and could not be upheld by the Supreme Court. It would ban about 95 percent of abortions in Idaho.

"Under existing law, the whole thing (bill) is unconstitutional," said Lynn Paltrow, staff attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union in New York. "The Supreme Court has recognized the fundamental right to have an abortion."

If the Idaho measure becomes law, pro-choice advocates have vowed to seek injunctions all the way to the high court to prevent it from being implemented, a process expected to take up to two years.

Madsen, R-Boise, said he targeted his measure specifically at Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, considered by the pro-life movement as the swing vote to overturn Roe vs. Wade.

"We've targeted the bill to get a five-person majority of the Supreme Court, and we do feel that four justices of the Supreme Court have expressed a strong willingness to uphold this type of legislation," Madsen said.

"Four other justices, the aging coalition of justices, will almost certainly with very little doubt, will rule it unconstitutional. Therefore, Justice O'Connor is a very important vote," he said. "She is the swing vote."

He said the exceptions allowed by his bill present "a strong frontal attack on Roe vs. Wade."

But opponents believe the exceptions — especially concerning rape and health of mother — are drawn far too narrowly. The rape exception, for example, would be allowed only if the rape is reported within seven days after it occurs.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

Please Be Sure To Check
Your Classified Advertisement For Errors
On The First Day Of Publication

The Daily Egyptian cannot be responsible for more than one day's incorrect insertion. Advertisers are responsible for checking their advertisements for errors on the first day they appear. Errors not the fault of the advertiser which lessen the value of the advertisement will be adjusted.

All classified advertising must be processed before 12:00 Noon to appear in the next day's publication. Anything processed after 12:00 Noon will go in the following day's publication. Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for those accounts with established credit. A 25¢ charge will be added to billed classified advertising. A service charge of $7.50 will be added to the advertiser's account for every check returned to the Daily Egyptian unpaid by the advertiser's bank. Early cancellation of a classified advertisement will be charged a $2.00 service fee. Any refund under $2.00 will be forfeited due to the cost of processing.

All advertising submitted to the Daily Egyptian is subject to approval and may be revised, rejected, or cancelled at any time.

The Daily Egyptian assumes no liability if for any reason it becomes necessary to omit an advertisement.

A sample of all mail-order items must be submitted and approved prior to deadline for publication.

No ads will be mis-classified.

VICE CHANCELLOR FOR ACADEMIC AFFAIRS AND PROVOST SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY

The Chancellor invites nominations and applications for the position of Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs and Provost to succeed Dr. Howard Webb, who retires June 30 after 24 years of service to SIUC, the last 16 years as Academic Vice Chancellor in the central administration.

Southern Illinois University is a multicampus university with two constituent institutions: SIUC has its main campus at Carbondale and School of Medicine at Springfield. SIUE has its main campus at Edwardsville, a School of Dental Medicine at Alton, and a center in East St. Louis. Altogether the University has an annual operating budget of $400 million and an enrollment of 35,000. SIUC is a Carnegie Research II institution, and SIUE is Comprehensive I.

SIU is regarded along with the University of Illinois, the Board of Governors and the Board of Regents as a "system" within the Illinois "system of systems."

The Academic Vice Chancellor functions as the chief academic officer of the University, providing leadership to the campus academic Vice Presidents, consultants, deans, Presidents, and support to the Chancellor on all academic matters. He or she is the University's spokesperson and representative in discussing academic programs with the Illinois Board of Higher Education. The Academic Vice Chancellor also staffs the Academic Matters Committee of the SIU Board of Trustees, and commands a leading role in university-wide strategic planning.

A successful candidate will have academic credentials and achievements sufficient to merit a tenured faculty appointment within the University, preferably administrative experience at the campus or central level within a complex university which offers a range of programs through the doctorate, a familiarity with current national dialogue on education issues, and some acquaintance with academic policy making at the state level. In addition, the Academic Vice Chancellor should possess the kind of leadership qualities that would make him or her an appropriate stand-in for the Chancellor. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply. For full consideration, nominations or applications should be received by April 11, 1990. Responsibilities will be assumed early in Fiscal Year 1991.

The salary is competitive. Interested parties should write to:

Mr. Donald W. Wilson
Vice Chancellor for Financial Affairs and Chair, Search Advisory Committee
Office of the Chancellor
Southern Illinois University
Carbondale, IL 62901

NASA ready for launch of telescope

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Launch of the Hubble Space Telescope next month from the shuttle Discovery will revolutionize astronomy with the most significant "quantum leap" forward since Galileo first trained his spyglass on the heavens 400 years ago, the astronauts said Thursday.

The shuttle Discovery and its four-man, one-woman crew are scheduled for blast off from the Kennedy Space Center at 8:21 a.m. April 12 to kick off the 35th shuttle mission, the third of nine planned for 1990.

Tucked inside the spaceplane's 60-foot cargo bay will be the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope, the most powerful such instrument ever built to operate above Earth's turbulent atmosphere.

"It should be a great source of national pride for the country," said shuttle skipper Loren Shriver. Once on station, the boxcar-size observatory is expected to remain in operation for at least 15 years, allowing astronomers to peer deeper into the universe than ever before and with 10 times greater clarity.

"It's widely touted as ... the single greatest quantum leap in mankind's power of observation of his solar system and the cosmos that has occurred since Galileo's first (use) of the telescope," astronaut Kathryn Sullivan said in an interview.

She said the telescope would help scientists learn more about "how did the universe come to be, what are the forces that created it, that govern it, that sustain it? What are the forces that drive the dynamics of planetary atmospheres? All of those things ... we should be able to get great new insights into and possibly even discover new processes and dimensions we hadn't expected."

The costly telescope is scheduled to be transported to launch pad 39B.

Health officials claim alcohol robs more time from work than tobacco

ATLANTA (UPI) — Alcohol-related deaths accounted for more than 1.5 million years of lost work life in 1987 — more productive years than smoking robbed, federal health officials said Thursday.

The national Centers for Disease Control said alcohol was responsible for the loss of 1,531,200 years of potentially productive life, a figure calculated by subtracting death age from the retirement age of 65.

By comparison, an estimated 950,000 years of work life were lost due to smoking-related fatalities in the same year, 1987, the last year for which figures are available.

"The same is not true of the years of life lost before life expectancy," or age 75, "because of the great number of smoking deaths between 65 and 75," said Jim Schultz, a medical professor at the University of Miami.

Schultz said there are far more annual smoking deaths — some 390,000 last year — but alcohol leads to a great deal of "adolescent and young adult death" and therefore, a higher number of years of life lost before 65.

Of the 105,095 alcohol-related fatalities in America in 1987, 25 percent occurred before the age of 34, the CDC report said.

"On average, each alcohol-related death was associated with 14.6 years of potential life lost before age 65 and 25.9 years of potential life lost before life expectancy (age 75)," the report said.

New protein may be aid in learning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists have identified a protein that may play a "crucial role" in storing memories, enabling animals — and possibly people — to learn, it was reported Thursday.

Experiments by government researchers involving a Pacific sea snail indicate a protein known as "G protein" may enable individual nervous system cells to register learned associations.

"We're very excited," said Dr. Daniel Alkon, chief of molecular and cellular neurobiology at the National Institute of Neurological Disorders and Stroke. "For me it represents a breakthrough for my own research."

In a paper published in the journal Science, Alkon and colleagues Thomas Nelson and Carlos Collin reported results of experiments involving a species of sea snail called Hermissenda crassicornis. Alkon and his colleagues have been working with the snails for decades.

Loyola team using new perspective

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Loyola Marymount feels it has negated its NCAA Tournament inexperience with a perspective unique to the remaining teams.

"The death of Hank Gathers let the players realize that basketball is trivial in light of the other things," Coach Paul Westhead said Thursday, a day before the Lions were to make their first-ever appearance in the third round. "Basketball for two hours is fun — the other 22 hours are jittery."

The Lions, who have been eviscerated by much of America since Gathers died during the West Coast Conference tournament, play Alabama Friday at Oakland Coliseum Arena. Loyola Marymount, 25-5, is a slight favorite after a 19-point triumph over New Mexico State and 34-point rout of defending champion Michigan.

"Whatever happens, if we were to win, I wouldn't really say the tragedy was the reason we won it," said forward Bo Kimble, who leads the tourney with a 41-point average. "We've played together and we've played quality basketball."

"The teams that play the best basketball late in the season are usually the ones that win. That's why there are a lot of upsets."

Still, Kimble said Gathers' death pushed the players to greater heights.

"I've seen players take on a more important role in doing all the things we miss in Hank," the nation's leading scorer said. "The whole team is rebounding better and that was one of our biggest challenges all season."

"We're more aggressive and using all of our emotional effort to play better defense. We need a total team effort — 110 percent."

Guard Jeff Fryer, who scored 41 points against the Wolverines, said the team feels support from across the country.

"It's a real help for us to have all the backing," he said. "It just makes us play harder knowing everyone is behind us all the way."

"Our goal before Hank's death was to make it to the final 16. We've become close in the last few weeks and that has helped us."

Westhead promised reckless abandon against an Alabama team which has won 26 games.

"We haven't prepared any differently," said Westhead, whose team has led the nation in scoring in each of the past three seasons. "We never do. That's nothing against Alabama. We didn't do it against Michigan or any team in our league. We play the game for ourselves."

"It's like a race for us. We don't worry about who's in the race. We'll run the race strong and finish in the lead. I'm not concerned with Alabama and its strategy."

"Some teams won't shoot on 3-on-2s and some won't shoot on 3-on-1s," Westhead said. "Everyone shoots on 3-on-ones. It'll be a battle of tempo. I think we'll win that tempo battle."

Michigan St. to face "Lethal Weapon III"

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — After 19 years of coaching college basketball, Michigan State's Jud Heathcote needs a fresh challenge.

He's got one. The fourth-ranked Spartans place a 12-game winning streak on the line Friday night in an NCAA Southeast Regional semifinal at the Superdome. Recognized as a defensive guru in five years at the University of Montana and 14 seasons at East Lansing, Heathcote faces the specter of No. 7 Georgia Tech and its "Lethal Weapon III" trio of Dennis Scott, Kenny Anderson and Brian Oliver.

The Yellow Jackets, 26-6, average 88.8 points per game while Michigan State tied Purdue in Big Ten scoring defense, yielding just 68.2 points per outing. Spartan opponents shoot only 43 percent from the floor while Georgia Tech is firing at a 50 percent clip.

Obviously, something has to give over that new plank parquet floor.

"We have had a lot of time to prepare for Georgia Tech and that's important when you have a defensive club rather than an offensive club," Heathcote said Thursday. "We've worked on trying to stop them rather than worrying about them stopping us. We're not an offensive team. We have to outwork people and out-defend people. Maybe we're blue collar and they're white collar."

Before you offer Heathcote your condolences — and your jump shot — check out his talent. The 28-5 Spartans didn't win the Big Ten championship because Heathcote is deft with a quip. Steve Smith, a 6-foot-6 guard, averages 20 points, seven rebounds and five assists per game. Sixth man Kirk Manns shoots 46 percent from 3-point range and Ken Redfield, a 6-7 forward, will test his superb defensive skills against Scott — who averages 27.6 points per game.

"We have to control their big three players," said Smith, who has not been held under 21 points in the last seven games. "It's true we have a lot of matchup problems with them ... but they have some matchup problems with us."

The Spartans rely on a stifling man-to-man defense that did not allow any opponent to score more than 81 points this season.

"I just have to go out and play Dennis Scott basketball and do what it takes to help us win," said the 6-8 forward, who shed 25 pounds before his sensational junior season. "Having Kenny Anderson on this team has been a great addition to my game, having a true point guard to find me when I'm open."

Scott, whose shooting range begins shortly past the midcourt circle, will be shadowed by Redfield. Anderson, the runaway Freshman of the Year, represents a difficult backcourt matchup for the Spartans. Anderson averages 20 points, 5.4 rebounds, 8.5 assists and two steals per game while Oliver, nursing a stress fracture in his ankle, adds 21.6 points and 6.3 rebounds from the backcourt.

"It's been a fun season and I really thought it would be a rebuilding year," said Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins.

"The game plan was for our big three to hold the fort, but instead, they took us to a new level. They were so good, they compensated for our inexperienced front line. To see Dennis shoot, Brian play so hard and Kenny handle the ball has been inspiring."

Freshman Malcom Mackey, a 6-10 starting forward, has surged for Georgia Tech, grabbing 14 rebounds in the 94-91 NCAA Tournament triumph against Louisiana State last Saturday. Overall, though, Georgia Tech's unholly trio represents 78 percent of Cremins' attack.

"They just look so balanced," said Cremins of the Spartans. "Manns is a great shooter with a lot of guts and Steve Smith is gonna be a pro and gonna be a star. Jud, of course, has been around the block a few times."

Herzog: Lack of injuries is a team record

ST PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — With the expansion of the major league rosters to 27 players for the first 21 days of the season, St. Louis Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said he would take either 12 or 13 pitchers north when the season starts on April 9.

"That is, is we have that many healthy," Herzog said, referring to past pitching woes and injuries the Cardinals have suffered.

There are 20-pitchers in camp, including injured pitcher Todd Worrell, who will undergo more elbow surgery and will be out at least until July. Also, Danny Cox, Greg Mathews and John Tudor are coming off arm problems.

Herzog said jokingly, "If seven or eight break down, I'll go with 12. If nine break down, I'll go with 11."

"Nobody has gotten hurt for two days," Herzog said. "I think that ties a record."

lead. Endebrock stole second base and scored on a rbi double to left-center by Davis and SIU-C led 3-0.

Southeast tied the score with three runs in the bottom of the fifth.

Designated hitter Britt McConnell reached on an error and scored one out later on a double to left center by Clay Moehrs cutting the Salukis' lead to 3-1.

With two outs, Scott Pruneau and Jeff Steffens added rbi hits to tie the score at 3-3 and knock McWilliams out of the game. But Meyer got the final out of the inning and held Southeast in check the rest of the way.

"This was a good win because SEMO always gets up to play us," Jones said. "You have to find ways to win in any sport. If our players keep playing hard, we feel that good things will happen because we have good athletes."

The Salukis play Eastern Illinois in a pair of doubleheaders today and Saturday at Abe Martin Field. The action begins at 1 p.m. today and noon Saturday.

Eastern Illinois (5-3) is coached by former Saluki assistant coach Dan Callahan.

age last term. Thirty received Gateway academic awards and 33 topped the 3.0 level. Smith said this is important in keeping with SIU-C's philosophy of student first and athlete second.

"Our players have accepted our challenge of improving themselves academically and I have to admit that I'm as proud of them in that respect as is the progress they've made in the weight room."

"That's important to us and to our program," Smith said. "It proves to me that this group is eager to improve and is listening to what we have to say. With that kind of an attitude we can't help but move forward."

The University of Illinois and University of South Carolina—both Division I schools—are on the Salukis' schedule for 1990.

Other schools on the Saluki schedule include Northern Iowa, Indiana State, Murray State, Arkansas State, Southwest Missouri, Illinois State, Eastern Illinois, Central Florida and Western Illinois.

Chicago's Zimmer admits his mistake

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — Stop the presses. Call re-write. Put a banner on top of the page.

A major league manager has admitted to a mistake. In fact, Cubs skipper Don Zimmer kept repeating it. "I made a mistake," he said, in front of the cameras no less.

Like most of us, major league managers seldom care to admit they have strayed from perfection's path. Now and then they'll emphasize this with invective and tobacco juice.

Not Zim. Under the sun of HoHoKam Park, Zimmer said he erred last spring by giving rookie right-hander Mike Harky a spot in the rotation. Harky developed a sore arm and spent the season in the minors.

"I made a mistake," Zimmer said. "I'm not making that mistake again. I kind of made a fool of myself."

If so, then Zimmer redeemed himself during the season, leading the Cubs to the National League East title. With rookies like center fielder Jerome Walton and catchers Rick Wrona and Joe Girardi in the lineup, Zimmer showed enough patience to keep them producing.

"We made so many mistakes," Zimmer said, "that if I wanted to be a raving maniac, I could have been."

"I knew there's going to be mistakes," he said. "I anticipated it to happen. And it did happen."

Critics may cite Zimmer's performance in the National League playoffs as one big mistake. In the opener, for instance, the manager let right-hander Greg Maddux face Wt. Clark with the bases loaded, instead of summoning left-hander Paul Assenmacher.

Clark launched a grand slam into the street, and the Cubs won in five games. Fine. Lots of managers would love to advance far enough to be second-guessed in the playoffs.

The point is, Zimmer never claims to be a genius. He tells you he doesn't know what's going to happen in 1990, saying only that his job is to get everyone to play as hard as they can.

Zimmer admits he never believed much in team chemistry until last season. When asked if he took chemistry in high school, Zimmer snorted as if to say no. "Shop," he said.

Zimmer can probably use his shop training for 1990. He must construct a solution at third base, which Vance Law vacated in favor of Japan. With catcher Damon Berryhill recovering from shoulder surgery, Zimmer must juggle Wrona, Joe Girardi, and perhaps Lloyd McClendon.

No one knows yet whether outfielder Andre Dawson's knee has recovered from surgery. And Chicago needs a fourth and fifth starter, with Harky back. This time, Zimmer calls him a candidate and nothing more.

Men's track to battle at McAndrew

By Peter Zalewski
Staff Writer

The men's indoor Missouri Valley Conference champion Salukis venture outdoors Saturday to host their first of three meets that will include the MVC championship May 10-13. The quadrangular meet starts at noon Saturday with the hammer throw, while the first running event is scheduled for 1 p.m.

"The meet will be up for grabs," Bill Cornell, head coach of track and field, said, "but Ball State is the early favorite."

Ball State, Illinois State and South East Missouri State will come in to McAndrew Stadium looking to knock off the cocky Dawgs.

Eric Pegues won the 400 meter dash last year with a time of 47.32 seconds. Pegues said he was not expecting to win the event tomorrow, but hopes to run a flat 47. Pegues said he is "geared towards running well in Florida (Relays on March 30-31)."

Pegues also said the "team is practicing better and will win the meet instead of placing third (referring to last year's meet)."

"The meet will be very competitive," Joe Rogers, coach of Ball State, said. The Cardinals won last year's meet by scoring a total of 67 points.

Rogers said the strongest events for his team are the 100 meter through 400 meter in hurdles and relay. And added that the Cardinals were very strong in the 4 x 100 meter relay event.

"Ball State may be the strongest of the four teams here this week," Cornell said. "They have a very well-balanced team which may make it tough on all the rest of us."

Scott Sanders won the long jump last year with a leap of 22 feet, 11 inches (for Ball State) but is capable of jumping 25 feet Saturday, Rogers said.

"Everyone must do his job for us to win meets," Cornell said.

Women's track will compete at Murray

By Peter Zalewski
Staff Writer

Outdoor Conference championships are starting to become second nature for the women's track and field team under coach Don DeNoon.

DeNoon will begin his venture for a fifth straight Conference championship with dual meet competition against four universities at 11 a.m. tomorrow, in Murray, Ky.

All-Conference performers Angie Nunn, Michele Williams, Danielle Sciano, Michelle Sciano, Jamie Dashner and Deon Jackson will be expected to lead 21 freshmen in the outdoor season.

The Salukis, a "closely knit unit," will compete against Austin Peay State, Vanderbilt, Memphis State University and host Murray State.

DeNoon said it should be a "tight meet" between four of the five teams. He referred to the Austin Peay State women's team as "a rag-tag team that was just thrown together," but added that the program would improve in the future.

SIU-C has one of seven first-place finishers returning from last year's Racer Races. Michelle Sciano won the women's 400 meter hurdles. Sciano is the leading returning scorer from the last outdoor season with 33.75, which ranked seventh on that squad.

Jamie Dashner placed 2nd in the 400 meter hurdles with a time of 1 minute, 8.3 seconds, and also placed 4th in the javelin with 88 feet, 2 inches. "The team will improve constantly, because our kids are getting better all the time," DeNoon said. "The team will end up being a little more of a solid team outdoors then indoors."

Beverly Klett came in third at last year's Racer Races in the high jump with a 5-4.

DeNoon cited freshman Crystalla Constantinou as a large factor in the approaching outdoor season in the sprints and noted that the team had good athletes at every event.

Deon Jackson placed third in the 100 meter dash with a time of 12.80, but did run a season-best of 12.50 later last year.

DeNoon said he expects the team to score in each event.

those things where you just can't tell how you're going to do," Daugherty said.

"We're going into this as one team combined," she added. "We want to play well because we'll drag them (the men's team) down if we don't and I'm sure they want to play well."

Other teams in the tournament include Creighton, Wisconsin, Wichita State, and Bradley.
