Feds will ask for life term in drug case

By Rob Neff
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Two Carbondale men were convicted by a federal jury March 16 of conspiracy to distribute crack cocaine, distributing crack cocaine and using a firearm during and in relation to a drug-trafficking crime.

Cleveland J. McDade, 26, and Edward L. Mims, 29, were convicted in a conspiracy that Assistant U.S. Attorney Ranley R. Killian said involved 50 grams of crack cocaine.

Killian said the offenses took place between May and July of 1994 in federally funded housing in Carbondale.

"I wouldn't classify it as being huge," he said. "But McDade is an armed career criminal and faces a mandatory minimum of 30 years in jail."

Under federal law, a person is an armed career criminal if he or she is being charged or convicted of a crime involving a firearm and has been previously convicted of three violent crimes, Killian said.

He said McDade has one previous conviction for assault and three convictions for residential burglary, which is considered a violent crime.

McDade was also found guilty of being a felon in possession of a firearm.

Mims faces a mandatory minimum of 15 years in jail. Both defendants could be sentenced to up to life in prison without parole.

Killian said he would ask the court to sentence McDade to life in prison. He was unsure what penalties he would seek for Mims, but said it would be in excess of the 15-year minimum.

Both defendants are scheduled for sentencing on May 16 before Judge William L. Beatty in East St. Louis.

ACLU says graduation prayer out

By Michael D. DeFord
Daily Egyptian Reporter

There will be no prayer during any SIUC commencement ceremonies this year as a result of a decision made by President John C. Guyon.

In a faxed letter to the ACLU branch in Chicago March 21, SIUC President John Guyon wrote, "We (SIUC) will not have prayer at our commencements." Guyon could not be reached for comment.

The announcement came after an ACLU request for the University to change its current policy, which formerly allowed prayer during commencement. The ACLU claims that prayer during the ceremony is unconstitutional and does not comply with the law.

They claim the University is violating the establishment clause of the First Amendment by planning and sponsoring invocations, benedictions or other prayer activities at graduation ceremonies. According to the ACLU, in 1992 the Supreme Court ruled that publicly-funded schools may not sponsor prayer of any kind by any person at graduation ceremonies.

According to a faxed statement to Guyon, the ACLU said, "Accordingly, simply making graduation ceremonies optional, allowing students to receive their diplomas without attending a graduation ceremony, or other-

Spring break was time for burglars

By Rob Neff
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC student Cree L. McMains had a rough trip back to Carbondale from Spring Break Sunday night.

After returning home six hours late because his bus broke down, he walked into his apartment to find more than $7,000-worth of his property missing.

"It was the perfect end to the perfect day," McMains said. "I do have renter's insurance, but I doubt if I will get everything back. I'm supposed to have receipts, and some of the things that were stolen were gifts."

Police said the burglars entered McMains' apartment through his bedroom window and took a VCR, two CD players, an amplifier, a laser disc player, 60 laser discs and 35 CDs. The official estimate of the loss is $7,774.

"Actually, that's low," McMains said. "They didn't print everything that was taken and I didn't have estimates for some of the stuff that was taken."

McMains, of Ottumwa, Iowa, was not the only SIUC student to lose personal belongings during the break. Sgt. Luanne Brown of the Carbondale Police Department said there were 12 residential burglaries during Spring Break with a total loss of $37,711.

McMains said he took some precautions before leaving for break, but did not know anybody who could watch his home while he was away.

"I took all the small valuables and put them all in a secret place," he said. "They didn't get that stuff; what they did get was stuff that was lying out in the open."

Carbondale residents who will be leaving town for a while can stop by the Carbondale Police Department and enroll in the House Watch Program. Police check houses enrolled in the program daily to make sure there has not been a break-in and to check for any suspicious persons in the area.

Police also publish a pamphlet which recommends precautions residents may take to protect homes while they are away.

'Hoop Dreams' subject satisfied with life

By Marco Buscaglia
College Press Service

MILWAUKEE—Some might think that life out of the spotlight hasn't been kind to William Gates, one of the real-life players in the acclaimed documentary film "Hoop Dreams." But the 23-year-old Chicago native would be the first to disagree.

"I'm finishing school. I've got a wife and a beautiful daughter," Gates says. "I feel satisfied with my life."

Now a senior at Marquette University in Milwaukee, where he lives with his wife, Catherine, and his 5-year-old daughter, Alicia, Gates realizes that his glory days in basketball are probably behind him.

After a difficult freshman and sophomore year, the latter in which ended with another knee injury, Gates sat out last season because he says he couldn't give 100 percent. "I didn't want to go out there and let people down," says Gates. "I didn't want to do that to myself or to the team."

During his time off, Gates went to the gym every day, working alone on his rehabilitation and his shooting skills. "It was nice to just be able to shoot baskets for a while," Gates says. "I didn't have to worry about any sort of pressure."

At that time, Gates decided that he would stay in school and get his degree. "Marquette told me I had the scholarship whether or not I played ball, so I decided to study harder to make sure I graduated," says Gates, who is major-

GROUP FOCUS OF GAS ATTACK INVESTIGATION — TOKYO—About 50 people, some of them unconscious, were found lying on a floor in weak condition when police early Wednesday raided a rural center of a secretive religious group just two days after a deadly toxin attack terrorized Tokyo subway riders, authorities said. Police officially linked the dawn raids on 25 or so offices of the Aum Supreme Truth group to alleged kidnappings. The religious group has become a focus of suspicion in the Monday attack involving sarin nerve gas, which killed 10 and afflicted more than 4,700 morning commuters.

UKRAINIAN BABY-SELLING RING INVESTIGATED — LVIV, Ukraine—Ukrainian authorities are investigating what they say is a ring, involving local doctors, that stole or bought newborn Ukrainian babies and supplied them to foreign couples. Ukrainian authorities said they have arrested and charged two doctors, and are investigating others, for taking newborns from their mothers in 1993 and 1994 and selling them for profit. A doctor who helped investigate the case said physicians sometimes obtained babies by falsely declaring the infants died and then sold them to foreigners, including Americans. He said local and provincial officials used falsified documents to quickly transfer the infants.

CRUISER MAKES FRIENDLY CHINESE PORT CALL — QINGDAO, China—In an effort to rebuild U.S.-China military ties and reduce tensions over a confrontation in international waters last October, a U.S. Navy cruiser sailed into the important northern naval base of Qingdao on a friendly port call Wednesday, the first by the Americans since 1989. Rear Adm. Bernard J. Smith, senior American officer aboard the modern Ticonderoga-class cruiser USS Bunker Hill, denied any connection between the visit and the October incident in which the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk tracked a Chinese nuclear submarine in international waters off the Shandong Peninsula.

FAMILY REDEFINITION TO CUT WELFARE COSTS — WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that states can cut their welfare costs by counting all needy children living under one roof as a single family group, even if they are not all brothers and sisters. The unanimous decision, written by Justice Clarence Thomas, is a victory for states that have wanted more control over Aid to Families with Dependent Children, and it jibes with congressional efforts to give states more flexibility in managing welfare funds. But it is a loss for guardians who end up caring for nieces, nephews and other orphans in one home.

STATE SECRETARY'S DEPARTURE RUMORED AGAIN — WASHINGTON—The rumors are back about Secretary of State Warren Christopher's departure. The last rumor cycle, only three months ago, had Christopher leaving under pressure because of foreign-policy failures. The latest incarnation, about as plausible as the last, has it that Christopher's going because he's plain tuckered out. This variant, possibly sparked by Christopher's slyer attack in Ottawa in February, has him out of there in the next couple of months. His replacement, under this scenario, would be U.N. Ambassador Madeleine K. Albright, who in turn would be replaced in New York by Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke.

In the March 22 edition of the Daily Egyptian, in the photo of the man using the metal detector, the man's name was spelled incorrectly. His correct name is Dennis Burks. Also, Burks only uses his metal detector on his spare time, not every afternoon.

In the March 22 edition of the DE, in the article "Regional tourism guide reveals recreational fun," information about the Carbondale Convention and Tourism Bureau was stated incorrectly. The Carbondale Convention Bureau is an independent non-profit service, providing tourism information for all of Jackson County.

In the article "Odessa Meeks recognized with Lindell Sturgis Award" in the March 22 edition of the DE, two facts were misstated. Meeks has worked at SIUC for 26 years in various departments, and raised four children primarily by herself.

Real estate license goal of ILP class

By William C. Phillips III
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC students who are taking a finance course now have the option of becoming a real estate broker.

The course, Finance 320 Sec. 3, an Individualized Learning Program, gives students the advantage of obtaining an Illinois Real Estate Salesperson License.

The content of the course ranges from real estate ownership to basic construction and design.

The course has been approved by the Illinois Department of Professional Regulation which qualifies students to take the Real Estate Salesperson Examination.

Susan C. Edgren, a instructional developer for Individualized Learning Program, said the course has two major benefits for participating students.

She believes the course is convenient because students can choose when and where they want to study and also students have the option to obtain the Illinois Real Estate Salesperson License.

Robert C. Waldron, an SIUC business lecturer, said one main concern is students are prepared to take the licensing examination.

"The course is structured for those who have a conflict with coming back to campus but are near a degree," Waldron said. "We can also assist those who want the knowledge about real estate, or obtain the Illinois Real Estate Salesperson Examination," he said.

There are 18 students involved in the course and there is a 95 percent completion rate, Waldron said.

The students purposes are as diversified as the adult population, he said.

Since the students do not have an instructor, the course is academically challenging.

Home beer brewers make toast to ancient practice of zymology

By Dustin Coleman
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The art of brewing beer, zymology, has been around since the times of ancient Egypt and Mesopotamia. Though the beer-making process has changed much since then, a local group of home beer brewers are sticking to the ancient basics of brewing to create their idea of perfect beer.

The Egyptian Zymotic Brewers, a group of home brewers, has been around for years but was inactive for the past three years until a couple of area residents recently became interested in brewing decided to regenerate the group.

Jeff Bean, one of the regenerators, said he and some friends had been home brewing when they found out there was a group that had already been established.

"My intentions for the group were to find others in the area and to share information on home brewing techniques," he said. "You can never have too much information on home brewing."

Besides sharing information, the group has a lot at the Carbondale Public Gardens, which will be the sight of their hops crop. Bean said the group plans to enter their brewed beer in contests across the country.

"Home brewed is easily compared to or better than most imported or micro-brewed beers," he said. "Whole idea is to stray away from the major label beer manufacturers."

Bean said the difference between home brewing and the process the major breweries use, is most home brewers use high-quality ingredients, and that major breweries concentrate on mass-production.

"Most American beers aren't exactly good beers."

The group also plans to have a contest among themselves with the winning recipe being sent to a registered brewer, put in kegs, and will possibly be put on tap at Pinch Penny Pub, Bean said.

"They will get to name the beer and have the satisfaction of having their beer on tap," Bean said.

But besides entering contest and sharing techniques, there are other benefits to the group and home brewing in general, said Gary Smith, a group member.

"It's a satisfying hobby, that has a finished product you can enjoy," he said.

Smith said the process of brewing beer at home is much simpler than most think.

The process goes as follows: Put grains into boiling water, then add malt extract and boil it for an hour. Then put grains and extract in a fermenter with yeast and let it set for a month, Smith said.

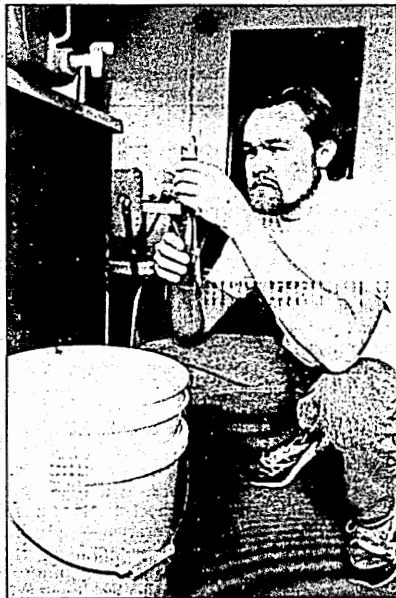

"You can make any type or flavor of beer that you want depending on your taste," he said.

Smith said although you can stick to one recipe, it is hard to reproduce the exact same beer.

"In big breweries, there is a computer controlled environment, which enables them to get the same taste every time," he said. "In home brewing you always get something different."

Doug Diggle, manager at Old Town Liquors, and a member of the group, said

New Alzheimer's research conducted

Medical progress: Possibilities for earlier diagnosis may help victims prepare.

Paul Reuscher had to take the car keys away from his wife because she could not remember where she lived.

"She couldn't drive because she couldn't find her way home," Reuscher said. "(Now) she doesn't know her name or my name or where she is or anything."

These may sound like the symptoms of some exotic disease in a far-off country, but that is not the case. They are some of the symptoms of Alzheimer's, an incurable disease that affects 200,000 people in the state of Illinois alone and 1,400,000 people across the U.S., according to Wayne Fyffe, office manager for the southern Illinois chapter of the Alzheimer's Association.

In the most recent issue of the American Medical Association's journal, a UCLA study was cited for discoveries that may allow doctors to diagnose Alzheimer's cases even before the patients begin experiencing any clinical symptoms, Fyffe said.

By providing doctors with advanced notice of the onset of Alzheimer's, they are able to prepare the patient for the inevitable symptoms and can administer treatment in an attempt to delay the progression of the disease, according to Fyffe.

Sheryl Williams, the vice president of Medical and Scientific Affairs, the Chicago-based research division of the National Alzheimer's Association, said in the article: "The value of this and other research lies in early interventions that could change the course or reduce the severity of the disease."

Despite ongoing research, the disease is not curable. While patients may have "good" days, once someone contracts it, their condition can only get worse.

Alzheimer's disease results in a gradual loss of memory and other mental faculties as plaques and tangles form between brain cells and inhibit cell-to-cell communication.

"These abnormalities appear initially in the memory portion of the brain," said Fyffe.

Fashion flashback: People, clothes regress to childhood

By Kellie Huttes
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Oh, baby. Gone are the days of flower-print, ankle-length dresses and sun bonnets.

This season's fashions are babyfied. From baby pinks to baby blues, infantile hues are the colors to be seen this spring, and in extra small sizes, too.

Although the fall fashions debut in Paris and London this week, their futuristic, cyberspace look is light years ahead of the styles to be seen in the months to come.

Reverting back to the looks of toddlers, trend followers can find the clothes their mothers dressed them in years ago. From head to toe, in almost every store nationwide, childlike fashions abound.

Heads up

Heading up with the plastic, pastel barrettes commonly found in grocery and drug stores, women can pin those out-of-place bangs back. Bobby pins, plain and jeweled, also will help hold curls.

Tea time

T-shirts, known as baby tees, are available in every size, but all take the same, skin-tight shape of an extra small.

From tiny teddy bears to hearts and a simple statement of "love" across the front of the shirt are the subtle scripts to be seen.

They're comfortable and look great under those baggy overalls. The jeans may not be Osh Gosh B'Gosh, but they sure are fun to climb the monkey bars in.

If you dare...

Short-shorts and above-the-knee socks have a leg up on the classic nautical looks this season and are tied together nicely with the retro-skinny leather belt.

City needs stronger stance on bar entry

IF THE BAR-ENTRY AGE WERE A SITCOM, IT would be in syndication by now, in a time slot between the chocolate-factory episode of "I Love Lucy" and the week's umpteenth airing of "Animal House." As the bar-entry age debate enters its third rerun, it looks as if the Carbondale City Council finally may pass an ordinance raising the age to 21 after nearly two years of indecision.

The question of whether to increase the bar-entry age to 21 has been raised on multiple occasions in the past. In fall 1993, the council compromised with citizens worried about the risk involved with keg parties and agreed to raise the age to 18 and a half in an effort to keep high-school students out of the bars. A few months later, the age went up again — to 19. Big deal.

One of the stumbling blocks in the way of a solid commitment to raising the bar-entry age has been concern that underage students would have nowhere to go for entertainment and might turn to keg parties and other unsupervised activities if the age goes up.

LAST SUMMER, UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT Government president Ed Sawyer and USG chief of staff Matt Parsons, who is one of four SIUC students running for city office, worked with representatives from the Student Programming Council and the Student Recreation Center to develop a calendar of events that provided non-alcoholic entertainment every weekend. According to Parsons, the plan never got off the ground because the estimated cost — between $15,000 and $16,000 — was too much for the University to fund.

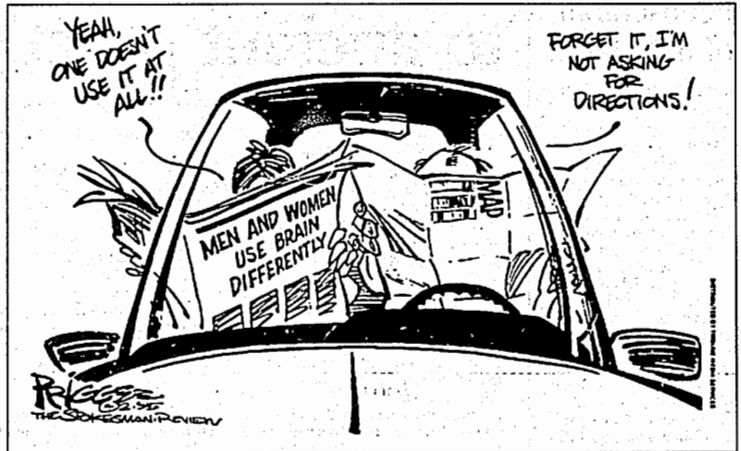

While alternative entertainment obviously is necessary to stem the potential problems created by raising the bar-entry age, one may question the need for city or University action. Should SIUC be expected to exceed its budget to provide entertainment above and beyond current programming? Should the city be held responsible for showing students a good time? No. Involvement from campus and local authorities is probably unnecessary, and it certainly seems unreasonable.

ACCORDING TO CARBONDALE CITY MANAGER Jeff Doherty, there are 6,641 SIUC students who are under 21. There are many enterprising businesspeople in Carbondale who probably would jump at the chance to cash in on underage students' boredom. A late show at the movies, more coffeehouses or a dance club geared specifically toward underage students and other non-drinkers could present opportunities for profit if the under-21 crowd is driven out of the bars. As it stands now, such entertainment sources often are overlooked because students have other options.

Doherty said the purpose of the current proposal is not just to stop underage drinking; its primary aim is to send a message to students and to the general public about the city and the University. By implementing a stricter bar-entry age, the council is telling the world that Carbondale is serious about enforcing the rules.

If passed, the current proposal would do everyone a favor. In addition to improving the image of the town and the University, the higher age limit would encourage business owners to provide entertainment for non-drinkers and expand profit opportunities for non-alcohol-centered establishments.

TWO YEARS OF DISCUSSION ARE ENOUGH. It is time for the city to take decisive action. Rerunning the old "propose and compromise" gag again and again defeats the purpose of changing the rules. Instead of projecting an image of strength, watering down proposals shows that Carbondale is soft on alcohol issues. Enough of the same old reruns — it's time for sweeps week on Carbondale's bar follies show.

NCAA score narrow loss; future bright

Your headline in Tuesday's paper that read "Orangemen crush dawgs, 96-92" must have been in anticipation of a crushing blow at the hands of Syracuse.

The final score of 96-92 is more of a "squeeze" rather than a crush!

It was a very good year, and I am looking forward to a four-peat and an eighth or ninth seed in the NCAA in 1996!

Clinton makes wise choice, shows diplomatic patriotism

Los Angeles Times

After much political soul-searching, President Clinton has made the right choices about how he will observe the 50th anniversary of the Allied victory over Nazism in Europe.

He could have stayed home and attended several among the numerous solemn celebrations of VE Day. He could have gone to Britain to share the day with America's closest World War II ally, or to France to commemorate the beginning of the liberation of Western Europe. Finally, and most controversially, he could have gone to Russia, without whose enormous sacrifices Hitler's Germany could not have been defeated.

Clinton's decision, properly, is to preside over ceremonies in Arlington National Cemetery on May 8, the day the Western Allies observe VE Day, and then fly to Moscow for Russia's observance, which occurs on May 9. The trip will also take Clinton to Kiev, capital of Ukraine, where wartime destruction was vast.

This was decided only after Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin signaled that the military rites in Moscow will be largely retrospective, saluting the veterans of what Russians call the Great Patriotic War. A show of respect by the leader of the United States for what Russia and Ukraine suffered so terribly in World War II will not be forgotten by the 200 million people of those countries.

This editorial appeared in Wednesday's Los Angeles Times.

U.S. could learn from Eritria

By Tom Killian
For the Los Angeles Times

Does America have something to learn from Eritrea, an African country devastated by 30 years of war and divided by ethnicity and religion?

Seventy thousand young Eritrean men and women gave their lives to free this land along the Red Sea from the brutal grip of its big neighbor, Ethiopia. The struggle ended only three years ago, after claiming the lives of a quarter of a million people on both sides and forcing one-third of Eritrea's 3 million people into exile as refugees.

Eritrean nationalism is clearly of the positive variety, for the Eritrean nation is not based on a common ethnicity, religion, language or culture. All the things that seem to have made a negative nationalism so strong in the 20th century are lacking here. Eritrea's small population is divided into nine ethnic groups with their own languages, split almost evenly between Islam and Christianity.

Despite an overwhelming 99.8 percent vote for independence last year, Eritrea's newly won national identity is not uncontested. Although the issue of political linkage with Ethiopia is settled, another group threatens the new nation's stability: Islamism fundamentalism, which has developed as a powerful political force across Eritrea's border in the Sudan.

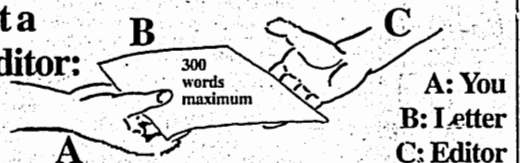

This growing movement has the potential to mobilize Eritrean Muslims against the secular ideals of the current government, and has already recruited and organized an "Eritrean Islamic Jihad" among some of the hundreds of thousands of refugees who still remain in Sudan. Last December, the Eritrean government broke diplomatic relations with Sudan, alleging that the Sudanese were supporting a movement that seeks to create an Islamic republic in Eritrea through armed attacks on the new government and its supporters.

Against these forces, the Eritrean government is actively promoting a positive, multiethnic, religiously tolerant, secular nationalism — the type of nationalism on which the 19th-century republics of Europe and the Americas were founded. It is the form of nationalism that created the best ideals of the United States, including equal citizenship under the rule of law, irrespective of ethnicity, gender or creed.

The Eritrean example, consciously based on some of the ideals of American society but elevating the national good above special interests, would serve us well in our own national debate over how to create a positive future for ourselves.

Reuscher said he cared for his wife until about four months ago when he became so overwhelmed by the responsibility of caring for her that he had to put her in a nursing home.

"I almost had a complete nervous breakdown," he said.

Reuscher said he had people come in to help him but his wife was uncooperative.

"The first time (they came), she sat there in the room with them and only answered yes or no (to their questions)," he said. "You get lonelier and lonelier all the time. It just seems like they (friends) avoid you. They don't know what to say or how to act."

Alzheimer's Association Helpline

Caregivers Alzheimer's patients in need of information, assistance or support can call 529-7231.

The association is requesting $350 billion from Congress for Alzheimer's research for the 1996 fiscal year, which is the same amount as this year. According to the NAA, an estimated $4 trillion in patient care and lost work time could be saved by delaying the onset of Alzheimer's in patients five to ten years.

Other research is being conducted by the Alzheimer's Association that deals with early detection and treatment of the disease. A study showed that the eyes of four out of five of Alzheimer's sufferers would dilate when a special eyedrop was administered. The eyes of non-Alzheimer's-afflicted people would remain normal in the presence of the eyedrop.

Another study of young rats showed that exercise can have a slowing effect on the progression of Alzheimer's. Researchers plan to repeat the study in older rats and later in human subjects.

Caregivers of Alzheimer's patients who need information, assistance or support can call the Alzheimer's Association's Helpline at 529-7231.

The Alzheimer's Association is located at 409 N. Springer in Carbondale. Their phone number is 529-2107.

"Working with the material much more creates an enhanced retention factor," Waldron said.

"If you cannot manage your study time you will have a major problem," Waldron said. "We want serious students," he said.

The book that is used in the classroom is parallel to the book used for the individualized learning program.

"All tests are proctored and students go to authorized testing centers so there is no academic dishonesty," Waldron said.

Waldron recommends students to take the individualized learning program class if they have difficulty in making it to campus or for whatever purpose they would like to use it for.

"The program is multi-faceted," Waldron said. "It could fit in many areas," he said.

The course are available to students with junior status or permission from an instructor, Edgren said.

home brewing is a hobby that has been growing strong over the last two or three years.

"It (home brewing) is not a fad, and it probably won't go away any time soon," he said. "People are just looking for a new taste in their beer, and home brewing is the answer."

Diggle, who was a member of the original group, said the new group has a strong beginning and strong foundation.

"The first group had a problem with finding a meeting place and time because the members were from all over Southern Illinois," he said. "Now we have many people in the group from right here in Carbondale."

Any homebrewers, or anyone interested in home brewing, can attend the Egyptian Zymotic Brewer's monthly meeting which is held the first Tuesday of every month at Pinch Penny Pub. The next meeting is scheduled for April 4. For more information, call Jeff at 457-3513, or Gary at 529-5494.

Two SIUC students vie for scholarship

By Amanda Estabrook
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation will decide Friday if two SIUC students will be among the 85 recipients of the $30,000 scholarship for graduate study, and SIUC administrator said.

Jenny R. Rubin, a senior in political science, and Ambar R. Zobairi, a junior in political science and history are two of the seven finalists chosen from Illinois.

Notification of the awards will be mailed out on Friday. The scholarship awards are given to outstanding students who intend for a future career in public service.

Frederick Williams, director of University Honors Program, said the scholarship demands excellence in almost every area of a student's career with a focus on public service.

Rubin is SIUC's representative on the Illinois Board of Higher Education's student advisory committee, and is president of Gamma Beta Phi, an honor society committed to public service.

She has also interned with Sen. Paul Simon's Carbondale staff and hopes to get a fellowship in Gov. Jim Edgar's office this summer.

"It feels great to be a finalist," she said. "But I'm keeping my fingers crossed."

Rubin said she spent 10-20 hours a week on her application. She also applied last year, but did not make it to the finals.

Zobairi, who is currently doing an independent study involving the political and social situation of Japanese women at SIUC's campus in Nakajo, Japan, speaks three languages and is a published poet.

Zobairi is an Algerian native and has lived in Algeria and Nigeria before coming to the United States with her family.

The other five Illinois candidates are from private institutions, Williams said.

"Not only are we among an elite group, but we are the only represented public institution from Illinois," Williams said.

"We had two candidates who have become finalists," he said. "This year SIUC won the lottery."

The two students spent the fall semester meeting with SIUC's Truman Scholarship committee to fill out the 15-page scholarship application.

The scholarship committee, a group of faculty members that coached the students through the application process, was formed by Williams.

The scholarship committee advised the students through the application process and as they were writing an 800-word analysis of a public policy issue, Williams said.

"The students deserved everything we could provide," he said. "We offered advice, editing, and refinement of thought."

Williams said all qualified and interested students attend an open house in the beginning of the fall. The committee then chooses which students will be nominated by the University.

Williams said these two students were nominated because of their outstanding qualifications and their interest in public service.

Carbondale keeps 'Tree City' status

By Dave Katzman
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Carbondale's association with trees goes beyond naming several streets after different species. The city was recently recognized as a Tree City USA for the 15th year in a row, due to the efforts of its Forestry Management department.

Tree City USA, sponsored by the National Arbor Day Foundation, is a program that recognizes cities across the nation that actively plant and care for trees, promote public awareness of the benefits trees offer and help recruit citizens for these efforts.

The program began in 1976 as part of America's bicentennial celebration and has continued since. Carbondale's continued success places the city in a three-way tie for third place in Illinois.

Greg Kline, city forester, said Carbondale submits Tree City USA applications yearly to the Illinois Department of Conservation, which passes them along to the National Arbor Day Foundation.

Kline, the only full-time Illinois city forester south of Decatur, said he was hired in 1978 to begin the department.

"When we first started out, Carbondale didn't have an ongoing tree maintenance program," he said. "When I was hired to organize a forestry program, we found there was a large number of hazardous trees located on (city property). We removed 200 trees over the first three years I was here."

Kline said Carbondale currently plants about 100 trees a year.

The responsibilities of the department have changed since its inception.

"Once we addressed those problems, our focus turned to replanting those trees that were removed and organizing tree planting programs," he said.

In the last 8-10 years, Forestry Management expanded to include maintaining drainage ditches, mowing city property and reseeded.

Jeff Doherty, city manager, said the Forestry Management program is a high priority in Carbondale.

"It allows us to not only plant new trees, but maintain existing ones," he said. "It provides for a healthy community."

ing in communications and rhetorical studies and is scheduled to graduate this December. "I know having that degree will mean a lot to me. I intend to get it."

Gates says he was overwhelmed by the attention "Hoop Dreams" received at first, but has since grown to accept it. "I'm always going to be that kid who had dreams of turning pro," he says. "People will always look me up at some point in my life to see what I'm doing."

Like they are now. Gates says he gets media requests every day.

Gates may have a deeper connection to "Hoop Dreams" in the near future. He is currently working with Spike Lee on a fictionalized version of the film for Turner Broadcasting.

Although the film received only a best-editing nomination from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, critics across the country called it one of the best films of the year. Fine Line Features, the film's distributor, recently opened the film on 250 screens nationwide, which is a highly unusual number for a documentary.

Gates says he can see why it made the top of most critics' lists for 1994. "I think it's different from most movies because everything in it is real," says the soft-spoken Gates. "We weren't acting. We were just living our lives."

"Hoops" producers and SIUC graduates Steve James, Frederick Marx and Peter Giltner focused on two Chicago youths, following their basketball heroics on grade school playgrounds to their senior year in high school. Gates' story was juxtaposed against the life of Arthur Agee, who also began his high school career at St. Joseph High School in Westchester, Ill., with Gates but transferred to a Chicago public school near his home after his family was unable to pay the Catholic school's tuition.

Cameras followed the players often, filming everything from morning train rides out to school to late-night conversations with family members in the kitchen.

After two years at a junior college, Agee is currently playing starting point guard at Arkansas State University. ASU coach Nelson Catalina has halted Agee's interviews with teh media until the senior's grades improve.

Agee, who is currently averaging 8.1 points, 3.7 rebounds and 2 steals a game for the Indians, spent five days in jail last year for credit card fraud. But Catalina says Agee is working hard on his grades as well as his game, and should graduate within a year with a degree in communications. Although he still has aspirations for the NBA, Agee may end up playing in the CBA or in Europe. If not, the former Marshall High School star plans to pursue a career in broadcasting or television.

Gates says he still speaks with Agee once a week. "He's doing good, working hard," says Gates. "I sometimes think we could've done more if we finished high school at the same place but that's all in the past now."

Gates rejoined Marquette's basketball team at the beginning of this season after watching the premier of "Hoop Dreams" at the New York Film Festival last fall. "I was inspired," he says. "It made me want to get back on the court again."

"If I have a shot, I'll take it, but I know I'm not the playmaker anymore. You can't be a star forever."

Prayer

wise excusing students from participating in the prayer would still contravene the establishment clause."

During last year's commencement, six of 13 SIUC colleges allowed religious activities during graduation ceremonies.

Harry Haynsworth IV, Dean of the School of Law, agrees that the decision not to hold prayer will not affect the University in any way.

"The purpose of prayer is to add dignity and serenity to commencement," he said. "Although there are other ways to add to that dignity..."

"The music, academic gowns and the ceremony itself clearly show you have done something important," he said.

According to Haynsworth, the Supreme Court's decision is one that has to be obeyed.

"In many cases we have certain traditions and you often wonder why those traditions cannot be allowed to continue," he said. "However, when the Supreme Court rules on something like this, you have to abide by it no matter what."

Autonomy was tradition

Haynsworth said that traditionally, SIUC's colleges have had autonomy with the prayer issue.

In the event SIUC did not comply with the ACLU's request to omit prayer at commencement ceremonies, they could pursue legal action; however, Carbondale attorney Ronald Isaacs said it would be a waste of time.

"It would be absurd and contrary to all Supreme Court cases to file a lawsuit against the University," Isaacs said.

University Legal Counsel could not be reached for comment.

Mark Abraham, a senior in electrical engineering from Chatham and member of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, said he feels the ACLU has no right to interfere with what SIUC does during commencement.

"I believe prayer is up to the individual and an institution should not play a part in that decision," he said. "They should have a moment of silence so an individual can pray the way they want."

"I think it's obscene that an organization in Chicago can be used as leverage to force their opinion on the administration on what we can do during religious ceremonies," Abraham said.

Exotic dance: Play takes look at female roles

By Kristi Dehority
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The monologue conversations of exotic dancers will take center stage tonight in the performance "What's A Nice Commodity Like You, Doing In A Spectacle Like This?"

Lesa Lockford, is taking societies' perception of women, specifically exotic dancers, and giving the personal outlook of those women in a monologue forum.

Lockford, an SIUC doctoral student in performance studies in the speech communication program, started in theater by receiving a bachelor's degree from University of California at Los Angeles.

Lockford said the idea for the performance developed out of a conversation with an adviser that challenged the preconceived views she currently held about exotic dancers.

"I sort of spouted some easy answer to a question that he asked," Lockford said. "And he commented that the women who did this (exotic dancing), would not view themselves in the way I suggested."

Lockford pursued this conversation by extensively interviewing women who were exotic dancers and turned their excerpts into a play.

The performance includes five monologues that are composed into fictional characters based on her interviews, along with semi-nude photographs of dancers.

Lockford said the performance concentrates on how society views these dancers through confining avenues.

"The performance is concerned with how women are represented in society and men's culture," she said. "I'm looking at the way not only how women view themselves in work, but also how we look at women theoretically."

"People are not (confined) by theories or lenses that we use to view other things," Lockford said. "There is always some sort of excess. People are just more complex than a lot of our theories."

Lockford is the lone performer and does not leave the stage throughout the act. She felt the con-

Beach Bumz will be rocking this Sunday with the sounds of Cruces, Bob and Smoke Ring.

The hard-edged alternative pop sound of Cruces will open the showcase. This will be their last Carbondale gig before they head down to take their spot in the third largest music festival in the nation next month.

They will be playing at 616 at the Crossroads 95 Music Festival in Memphis, which lasts three days.

The band's manager, Karen Clayton, said over 1,200 bands applied to the festival, but only 200 made it.

The festival will last three days with music styles that range from gospel, rap, blues, jazz, heavy metal, hip hop, singer/songwriter, pop, and three different categories of alternative rock (hard, commercial, adult).

She said there will be over 500 industry representatives at the festival including Artist and Repertoire representatives, producers, engineers and entertainment attorneys.

"Needless to say we're very excited," she said.

Another band playing Beach Bumz is Bob, from Millstadt.

The band has been described as having "The Midwestern Sound" like Uncle Tupelo, but bassist Scott Morris says they just do their own thing.

"It's a rootsy type of music, a little bit of country there, I've heard country-punk, country-grunge, but by and by it's just down-to-earth rock," he said.

Morris said the band, who have been gigging pretty well in the St. Louis area, hopes to open doors by releasing a CD, which they will work on next month. If the band can get more work he hopes to quit his day job.

Smoke Ring brings two years of experience to Beach Bumz Sunday. Cruces and Bob will make appearances also beginning at 9:30 p.m.

"We're not gonna make any money off it," he said. "It will go back into the band, I would like to get to the point that I wouldn't have to have a day job, who wouldn't?"

Smoke Ring's mates Jake and Chris Martin, D.J. Campbell and Shawn Storckman, have been mixing their musical influences for the last two years.

Storckman, the bassist, said the band has plans to get their music out to audiences

"I made a mistake, and I've paid for it. I'm still paying for it, literally, financially and mentally, and I mean it's taken a lot out of my life. I feel like I'm 30 instead of 24."

Faces on campus

What is your favorite cartoon character or comic strip and why?

"My favorite comic strip is Garfield because... he don't do nothing except eat, sleep and run the whole world."
Barton Taylor, a senior in political science and law enforcement from Chicago

"I've always like Spiderman, his agility, his strength and the fact that he's a scientist. He's not just a freak like the X-Men mutants."
Jason McCammon, a sophomore in photography from Roselle

"Mother Goose and Grime, the drawings and the characters. They aren't so straight edged so pretty they're a true representation of society."
Jason Melch, a junior in biological sciences from Marion

"I like the Smurfs, because they're blue, little and they have their own village. (Jonah) likes David the Gnome, because they're little, wise and have their own village."
Jonah Storm and Lori Gustafson, a junior in photography from Huntley

"I like the Simpsons 'cause of the mockery of the American family. Homer eats 64 slices of American cheese and tells Bart to watch the TV."
Greg Edwards, a senior in drawing from Nashville

"Nancy because she reminds me of myself. Her favorite colors are blue and gold" Tycee Thomas, a junior in psychology from Chicago bodies, identities, onto my own body," Lockford said.

"The whole construction of self is very foregrounded in the show." Lockford said the show does contain mature themes, such as graphic language and semi-nude photographs.

"What's a Nice Commodity Like You, Doing In a Spectacle Like This?" is a Kleinau Theatre Production and starts tonight and runs throughout the weekend.

Due to renovations at Kleinau, the performance will be located at Quigley Auditorium.

Show starts at 8 p.m. and tickets are $4 for adults; and $2 for students with I.D.

world-wide.

"We're definitely about getting out and making our music known nationwide, worldwide, every kind of wide there is," he said.

Storekman said they write all their own stuff and have several music influences.

"We work from our influences. There's a lot of the Beatles, the Stones, Pink Floyd, Jimi Hendrix and even Bob Dylan and Buddy Holly."

Smoke Ring has a publicist in New York that is working on a record contract, but it hasn't come through yet, Storekman said.

"We have demo tapes made, but we're not signed or anything yet... yet," he said.

early.
"She had one of the best performances at the meet. Sometimes LaTonya seems to be overshadowed by Jennie Homer. We have a lot of shining stars on this team, but one star seems to shine brighter than the others."
Saracco's throw marked an outdoor personal best and excited DeNoon about her potential.

"Stefany had a two or three inch improvement over her outdoor lifetime best," DeNoon said. "I'm excited about what she'll do in the future. She had a good field of competition and yet her performance stuck out."
Quality Saluki times that finished near the middle of the pack made it evident that the meet's slate of competition was strong.
"We had 30 or 40 kids in each event," DeNoon said. "For instance, Katrina Daniels finished fourth or fifth (actually seventh in the 400-meter run), but that time (55.96 seconds) would probably hold up as fourth or fifth in the conference.

SIUC will host the Saluki March Invitational Saturday at McAndrew Stadium beginning at 9 a.m. The competition could be dubbed a mini-conference championship preview with MVC rivals Illinois State and Indiana State slated to compete along with Southeast Missouri State and Eastern Illinois.
"If we compete as well as we did last weekend and the ones who didn't compete step up, we've got a good shot at winning," DeNoon said.

petition today at the NCAA swimming and diving national championships at Indianapolis.
A two-time All-American, Siracusano's best chance at the national title comes on the 3-meter, according to SIUC diving coach Dave Arey.
"He knows he's beaten all these kids before and just has to get out there and do it," Arey said.
"He has a very realistic shot at bringing back a national championship."
Arey has recently finished a week long trip Mar del Plata, Argentina, where he coached at the XIIIth Pan American Games.
Arey was chosen from a list of National Team coaches.
He has previously coached at the 1994 World Championship Trials, the 1991, 1993 and 1994 Olympic Festival, and the U.S. National Team.

The men's track and field squad will play host to opponents Illinois State, Indiana State, Southeast Missouri and Eastern Illinois Saturday at McAndrew Stadium.
Men's action begins at 10 a.m., and SIUC head coach Bill Cornell said the support of friends and family at this meet will play an important role for the track athletes.
"I would hope they want to look good at home," he said. "Even if they don't win, I would expect many of them to come close to personal bests."
"This is their only chance to show what they've got at home this season."
Saluki netters had a full slate of competition, as the men's squad took on six non-conference schools during the spring break.

The squad won against University of New Orleans, 5-2, and University Texas-Pan American 6-1.
Losing efforts cam from Tulane, University of Arkansas-Little Rock, Southwest Louisiana, and Southern Mississippi.
With the record of 4-4 for the season, tennis coach Jeremy Roberts said tough competition during the week will enable the Salukis to perform well when they go up against conference opponents.
SIUC men's golf edged out 17 other teams to finish 9th at the Embry Riddle/Palm Coast Resort Intercollegiate Golf Tournament that was held March 17-19.
The Salukis garnered a team score of 629, just 37 points behind from tournament winner Iowa State.

Theo Fleury: Bigger not always better

By Larry Wigge
The Sporting News

National Hockey League teams are going after wide bodies who can add bang to their lineups, figuring it's easier to push a smaller player around and block him out on defense.
"That's a bunch of crap," says the Calgary Flames' Theo Fleury, who is 5-foot-6, 160 pounds and is in the middle of every altercation on the ice. "If that garbage was true, how do you explain the 17 goals I've scored this season? Charity for the little guy? Come on. ... Most big guys don't have the guts to play the game hard. They're like big, dumb robots out there."
Fleury, in fact, has been among the best right wings in the NHL this season—up there with the Pittsburgh Penguins' Jaromir Jagr and the St. Louis Blues' Brett Hull.
"I've never run into a more stubborn competitor in the NHL," says Blues left wing Esa Tikkanen, who faced Fleury seven times a season when Tikkanen played for the Edmonton Oilers. "You could call him a runt, a little SOB, anything, and he wants to fight you."
"He's got a mean streak next to none, and he uses it to stand up to all of the bigger players in the league. He's something else."
With Gary Roberts out for the season, Fleury, Joe Nieuwendyk and Joel Otto are the only Flames left from their 1989 Stanley Cup team. It's easy to see why Fleury is still around.
"Theo plays the same way every night," Coach Dave King says. "That's what makes him such a great leader for our young players. They have to be impressed by the effort he puts in every night."
"I've had to play this way since I was 5," Fleury says. "If I let down, I might as well quit. I've earned a pretty good living in this league."

8-run explosion leads Dawgs to win

SIUC offense provides 9 runs while 9 pitchers combine for 9-6 victory

By Doug Durso
Daily Egyptian Reporter

After a tough road trip the SIUC baseball team returned home to impach the Austin Peay Governors Wednesday.

The Dawgs jumped out to an 8-1 lead and held off a late Governors rally to get stop a four-game losing skid, 9-6.

After Austin Peay jumped out to a 1-0 lead, SIUC scored four runs in the second inning and four in the third to take a commanding seven-run lead.

In the second inning, Dan Esplin had a one out bunt hit with Chad Isaacson and Jay Mansavage connecting on back-to-back singles driving in Esplin. Bill True and Jason Smith followed with doubles to account for the four runs.

After an error in the third, Tim Kratochvil singled, Esplin had another bunt hit and Isaacson drove them both in with a double and scored on a Mansavage ground out.

Mansavage and True continue to carry the offensive load for the Salukis, as the duo combined for five hits and five runs.

SIUC baseball coach Dan Callahan said True, who only hit .094, and Mansavage have been doing well all year.

"Jay's just been on a roll," he said. "He has been hitting the ball well right-handed and left-handed."

"True's success has been a little more quiet, because of Jay, but he has been swinging great."

In preparation for the Missouri Valley Conference opener against Bradley this weekend, Callahan pitched a different hurler each inning to get his staff ready for league play.

"It's harder to hit against a different pitcher each at-bat, because it kept them (Austin Peay) and for a while we were cruising along, but had a little trouble late in the game," he said. "Every pitcher who through has a good chance to pitch against Bradley and I want them to be ready."

Junior Zac Adams picked up the victory for his first of the year as SIUC improves to 8-7 on the year.

The Governors scored two runs in the seventh and eighth and with one run in and two runners on base the Governors sent the tying run with two out. However the Dawgs were able to hold on as closer Brad Blumenstock struck out first baseman Dave Sloan to end the game.

Even though Callahan was happy overall with the team's performance, he still is worried with the teams sporadic hitting.

"I'm a little concerned about inconsistent hitting right now," he said. "We scored eight of our runs in two innings and don't hit for six innings, so to be a good hitting team we have to be more consistent."

The Dawgs next game will be at conference foe Bradley with doubleheaders on Saturday and Sunday starting at 1 p.m.

—MICHAEL J. DUNN — The Daily Egyptian

Saluki left fielder Dan Esplin (4), a senior from Lake Forest, beats the throw to first base as the Dawgs went on to defeat the Austin Peay Governors 9-6 at Abe Martin Field on Wednesday afternoon. The Salukis will be in action this weekend as they play back-to-back doubleheaders against Bradley in Peoria.

• Three Saluki athletes have captured MVC Athletic of the Week honors for their performances over the past week.

Jennie Homer, senior track athlete, set a record in the 1500-meter run at the LSU Invitational last weekend. The Armington native captured the No. 1 spot on the list, beating a former mark set in 1980 in Cathy Chiarello.

Homer not only won the 1500-meter at the invitational, but also finished first in the 5000-meter, which earned her fifth place on the Saluki all-time outdoor list.

Brian Miller, a senior on the men's track and field squad, captured a first place at the Florida State Invitational.

The Marion native's distance of 56-1/4 in the shot put boosted him over the competition at the Florida State Invitational, which was held March 17-18.

Sanem Berksoy, a freshman from Istanbul, Turkey, earned a 5-0 record in tennis last week at Hilton Head Island, S.C. Berksoy defeated her opponents in straight sets, and only dropped 10 games on the week.

In flight four singles competition, Berksoy's record for both this and the Fall seasons is 20-8. She also combined with Helen Johnson in doubles action to repeat the feat of a 5-0 record.

After short pit stop, 16 teams still driving on road to Seattle

By Grant Deady

After going more than three days without a single NCAA tournament basketball game, college hoops fans will be foaming at the mouth when March Madness resumes play tonight.

In Birmingham, Ala., Kentucky faces Arizona State, followed by North Carolina vs. Georgetown. And in Oakland, Calif., Maryland battles Connecticut before No. 1 UCLA takes on Mississippi State.

Did you know? UCLA has not won the National Championship since 1975 when the Bruins captured 10 titles in the previous 12 years.

This season's version of the baby blue and white has even caught the attention of legendary Bruin head coach John Wooden, who said, "UCLA is putting it all together at just the right time."

Bombs away: The Kentucky Wildcats are clawing their way towards a Final Four appearance and most of KU's scratching is coming from beyond the three point arc.

Just ask Louisiana State head coach Dale Brown, who saw KU hit 20 shots from the trifecta back on March 5 during LSU's 127-80 loss to the Wildcats.

"I think the only people on their bench who didn't make one were the coaches," he said. "Did their equipment manager make one?"

The record for three-pointers in the tournament is 21, set by Loyola Marymount in 1990.

Travel plans: Here's where the next five Final Four's will be taking place: 1996- Meadowlands, East Rutherford, N.J., 1997 and 2000- RCA Dome, Indianapolis, 1998- Alamo Dome, San Antonio, 1999- Thunderdome, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Cha-ching: Last year, CBS signed a $1.725 billion deal with the NCAA to have sole rights to the tournament through 1996.

Murre boob tube: CBS is expected to eclipse last year's record coverage of the NCAA tournament, which brought 61 hours, 28 minutes of hoops to its viewers. When CBS took over the NCAA tournament contract in 1982, the network offered 34 hours, 41 minutes of live action.

However, NBC still holds the record for the highest rated college basketball broadcast of all-time — the 1979 championship showdown between Magic Johnson's Michigan State Spartans and Larry Bird's Indiana State Sycamores.

CBS does own the other top four rated games: 1985: Villanova-Georgetown, 1992: Duke-Michigan, 1983: North Carolina State- Houston, 1993: North Carolina-Michigan.

Jobby-jobs: It takes 30 people at each site for CBS to broadcast a single NCAA tournament game. The crews includes technical, production, administrative and a support staff, in addition to six armed cameras. The network also uses two graphic generators, 13 microphones and four videotape machines.

Women's track shines at Louisiana State Invite

By David Vingren
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Distance runner Jennie Homer had yet another SIUC record-setting performance as part of a stellar overall showing by the SIUC women's track team in its outdoor opener last weekend at the Louisiana State Invitational.

Homer was clocked at 4:27.78 in the 1,500 meter run, which broke the previous outdoor SIUC best set by Cathy Chiarello in 1980 (4:28.4). The senior's previous best was run last season at 4:30.89.
