Wallace shot, seriously wounded at rally

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, 52, was shot and seriously wounded Monday morning while shaking hands with supporters after a campaign rally at a suburban shopping center.

A white man was taken into custody shortly after the shooting. The Justice Department later identified him as Arthur Bremer, 21, of Milwaukee, Wis.

Wallace, struck down while making his third run for the presidency, underwent surgery at Holy Cross Hospital in Silver Spring.

Medical concern was centered around possible spinal injuries and paralysis. But a Wallace spokesman at the hospital said:

"The report from the operating room is that everything is progressing systematically. All initial signs are strong."

The department filed charges against Bremer, accusing him of assault on a federal officer and violating the 1968 Civil Rights Act by assassinating a candidate for an elective office. The assault on a federal officer charge stems from the wounding of a Secret Service agent, one of three persons shot with Wallace.

The shooting came shortly before 4 p.m. as Wallace was campaigning for votes in Tuesday’s Democratic presidential primary.

The governor had just finished a speech at the shopping complex 15 miles from Washington. He stepped from behind the podium on the rostrum to exchange handshakes with some of the 1,000 gathered to hear him.

A man wearing Wallace buttons pushed through the crowd, asking the governor to shake hands. When he got near enough, the man stuck a gun in Wallace’s stomach and fired. Wallace fell backward, hit four times.

Pandemonium broke out. People started screaming, and Roland Breder grabbed at the assailant. "He was roughed up pretty bad," police said later.

In Washington, U.S. Attorney George Beall said the Secret Service had recovered a .38-caliber revolver that was purchased by Bremer Jan. 13.

Bremer could get the death penalty if the Secret Service agent dies and Bremer is convicted. The maximum penalty under the Civil Rights Act is 15 years imprisonment.

Wallace received a blood transfusion and went into surgery.

An hour and a half later Wallace’s wife Cornelia emerged from the operating room and said her husband had no feeling from the waist down.

Asked later about the parade report, Billie Joe Camp, Wallace’s press secretary, said: "It’s entirely too early for any question or answer in that regard.”

He said the bleeding and "everything else is under control. Everything from the operating room is very encouraging at this time. His blood pressure is 110, which is considered good."

Tents ordered out of Free Forum area

By Pat Newman

and Richard Lorenz

Daily Egyptian Staff Writers

A spokesman for the Committee to Defend the Right to Speak (CDB) charged Monday that students had an around-the-clock peace vigil at the Free Forum area were threatened with arrest by Security Police if they did not remove tents which a University Official had said would be permitted.

Peggy Curran, CDB member, said Thomas Lefler, a security officer, and Dan Orescanin, assistant to President David Derge, ordered the tents removed about 2:45 a.m. Monday, contradicting an agreement reached earlier with Edward Hammond, assistant to the president for student relations.

Ms. Curran said Lefler and Orescanin had visited the area about 2 a.m. and later returned with officers in several police cars. On the first visit, she said, the two officials had acted "crazily belligerent and brutal" as if they were trying to make the peace camp group angry.

Orescanin later Monday said he had asked the protesters to take down the tents and put out a bonfire, but that he did not consider his "brutal.”

"Last night’s judgement I think was quite reasonable," he said. "You can stand there (in the Free Forum area) and talk, but you don’t need tents to talk. I guess that could be interpreted by them to be belligerent.”

Orescanin said that there could be health problems if protesters continued to camp in the area, since there are no toilet facilities.

"I don’t believe there is any rule that ‘Thou shalt not tent.” It becomes a question of what is reasonable and what is not reasonable,” he said.

"If they are going to stand there and talk and have a discussion, that is alright,” Orescanin said. "But if they are going to make it a residence, then that’s a different problem.”

Orescanin said that he made the final decision, with the advice of other University officials, including the legal department. Derge, he said, was out of town.

The president should not have to be involved in all decisions of this kind, Orescanin said.

"I guess if someone has to be hung for it, it is me," he said. "But I think we made a fair judgement last night.”

According to Ms. Curran, Hammond had the protesters arrested immediately if they could stay in the area. The tents had been set up at 3 a.m. Sunday.

Hammond said Monday he had consulted with Orescanin at about 10 p.m. Sunday and that a decision had been made to let the protesters stay.

Hammond said that he was not consulted when the decision was reversed and that he did not learn of the reversal until later.

Hammond said that he was not consulted when the decision was reversed and that he did not learn of the reversal until later.

Demonstrators said that they were planning a vigil again for Monday night.

Cop stops apparent bombing of ROTC

By Barry Cleveland

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A Saalki patrolman apparently interrupted an apparent fire bombing of the Air Force ROTC building early Saturday morning, SIU security police reported Monday.

The officer said he heard voices on the south side of the building at about 12:15 a.m. However, when he ran to the door of the building, the subjects fled and then when he shouted at them, according to police reports.

A broken window bottle was found on the sidewalk near the building, police said.

The bottle had been full of gasoline and soap powder and had a terrycloth wick.

A towel which had apparently been used to wrap the bottle was found behind the building.

Clothing, jewelry and other items worth nearly $1,400 were stolen from two rooms in Neely Hall between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. Friday, police said.

Items stolen included coats, dresses, slacks, shirts, shoes, jewelry, watches, a television, cologne and cash.

The victims, all residents of the fifteen-floor, were Cindy Newman, 21; Rosalinda Dixon, 19; Cassandra Carter, 20; Elizabeth Brown, 20; Sandra Weiss, 20; Merrick, N.Y., a visitor in the room of Ms. Newman and Ms. Dixon, also lost clothing and other articles.

Both rooms were reported locked when the women left them. However, they were found later unlocked and completely ransacked.

Michael Huff, Allen Hall, reported the theft of $600 in cash from his room Thursday night. Huff said he left thirty $20 bills in a cigar box in his room while he was out. Two new watches near the box were not taken, he said.

Three women reported their purses were taken from their rooms by a thief who cut or tore the screen and removed the purses from the window area.

The victims were Margo Carlhok, 18, and Janice Parem, 21, both of 104 Small Group Housing; and Barbara J. Rummel, 19. 107 Small Group Housing. All are first floor residents.

New U-employs head digs country preachment
By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
Some people may refer to Donald C. Gladden, newly elected chairman of the Southern Illinois Employees Council as a "Jesus freak" because he spends some of his time preaching in a country church. That takes a lot of my time," he said, "but Jesus leads me in everything that I do or I believe that Jesus is coming back soon."
Gladden, administrative accountant, was born in Carbondale and has been around the University all my life. He was graduated from SIU in 1967 and obtained a job with the Illinois Central and later with Standard Oil. In 1968, he landed a job with SIU as business coordinator of Student Services and obtained his present job as coordinator of Student Services on May 3.
Gladden was elected president of the Nonacademic Employees Council on May 3.
"I think that we've got a good council this year," he said. "The people on it are capable of making decisions, but I think that we have to get information, so that we can ratify our council to get the general conditions of the Nonacademic employees.
He said that civil service employees, in particular, have some rights as faculty and we really don't know what's going on."
Attica prison seeks help in restocking library
Books are needed at Attica State Prison.
John A. Morrison, leader of the Oklahoma Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at Oklahoma State University, has sent appeals to colleges and universities around the nation to ask students to send books to restock the library, which was destroyed last summer during the prison rebellion. Textbooks are most needed, but paperbacks, fiction or nonfiction are welcome. Religious books also are being sought, Morrison said.
Several books should be sent to: School Library-Educational Department, Attica State Prison, Attention of Mr. Dukerson Box 149, Attica, New York 14001.

State rests in Davis case

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—The prosecutor rested his case against Angela Davis Monday after reading to jurors her intimate diary declaration that she was "crazy with love and desire" for former author George Jackson.

"The people rest their case," said Asst. Atty. Gen. Albert Harris Jr. He had called 95 witnesses in seven weeks of testimony in efforts to prove that the tall, slim former philosophy teacher plotted a Marin County courthouse invasion which turned to murder.

Miss Davis' motive, Harris claimed, was "simple human-passion." He said she wanted hostages to exchange for Jackson.

The diary, called by the prosecutor his most "critical" piece of evidence, was allowed in evidence in a heavily edited form. The judge cut it from 18 pages to 2 pages.

In it, Miss Davis declares that she and Jackson were married in a "wedding ceremony" which "fused us for life." Repeatedly, she calls herself "your lifelong wife."

"I'm crazy with love and desire...I feel as you do, an terrible this is love." she wrote to Jackson on July 9, 1971, while she was imprisoned in Marin County on charges of murder, kidnap and conspiracy.

The diary was found in George Jackson's San Quentin prison cell after he was slain Aug. 21, 1971. Court was recessed immediately after the reading of the diary and announcement that the prosecution's case was ended. The defense told newcomers they would argue on Tuesday for the judge to direct a verdict of acquittal on grounds that there is insufficient evidence to prove guilt.

During its case, the prosecution entered more than 200 pieces of evidence, including hair samples, registration slips showing they were owned by Miss Davis. The guns were found in a yellow van in which four persons were slain at the Marin County Civic Center of Aug. 7, 1970.

and that they would hold workshops all day Tuesday. According to Ms. Curran, they are urging students to attend Derge's "State of the Camp" address to the faculty at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Shreyb Auditorium.

Ms. Curran said the protesters were planning to have the Free Forum area "indefinitely."

The campout and tent incident follow a series of peaceful antiwar protests at the forum area Saturday and Sunday. About 160 persons Saturday heard Jonathan Seldin, former president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers, Douglas M. Allen, assistant professor of philosophy, who has charged the Board of Trustees with denying him tenure because of his antiwar activities, and Bill Moffett, Student Mobilization Committee spokesman.

Speaking on antiwar feeling among unions. Seldin told the group many people are seeking a way to show their dissatisfaction with government policies and that the antiwar movement could become the vehicle of their discontent.

Allen said that President Derge, as a friend of President Nixon, dislikes large groups protesting Nixon's policies.

"We know who commits violence," Allen said. "Students don't have B-52s."

Allen warned those in the crowd to be on guard against provocateurs and undercover agents. He said John Huffman, recently appointed SIO legal assistant, had hired undercover agents against the antiwar movement at Kent State, where Huffman formerly was an administrator. Huffman has denied the allegation.

Moffett called for a student-conducted referendum on removal of the Air Force ROTC and the Center for Vietnamese Studies.

Reflection on the past week's disturbances will no doubt produce charges and countercharges by those who feel that finding a convenient scapegoat is the only way to solve a problem.

Committee after committee struggled in vain to place the blame for the Seven Days in May two years ago. It would be a waste of time to repeat that folly. What is needed now is a cold, hard look at the mistakes of last week with an eye toward preventing future violence.

Neither the war demonstrators, peaceful or otherwise, nor the police particularly distinguished themselves as upholders of free speech and law and order.

The cat-and-mouse episode Thursday night which followed the clearing of the Free Forum Area—after Ed Hammond, dean of student relations, said the protesters could remain if they stayed peaceful, which they did—was a debacle that would have been funny had it not been so tragic and if it didn't make the University administration look so hypocritical.

For Mayor Neal Eckert to call a curfew in the city Thursday night without consulting with SIU President David R. Derge would be a simple, firm request for the people to move.

Lack of communication between University and city officials caused the folderul Thursday night. Both of these groups had better learn from the results of their shortsightedness last week and thank God that their faulty planning didn't result in disaster.

And there simply is no excuse for the kind of behavior—stupid is the only word for it—that occurred early Friday at Schneider Hall where two tear gas canisters were thrown into entrances in the absence of any disturbance there whatsoever. Witnesses at the dorm said either Carbondale or State Police were responsible—though both agencies have denied it. If police did maliciously misuse tear gas in this way, the authorities should be as publicly outraged about that as they are about the rock throwing and should move vigorously to bring the culprit or culprits to account.

It is particularly important that the police be held at a tight rein because the war protests will continue. There is no reason for the sincere, peaceful antiwar crusade to be stifled by a few bent on violence. The vigil taking place at the Free Forum Area is an example of the sincerity of the cause and the people who support it. For police to interfere with the constitutional rights of those people to assemble could undermine the uncertain peace that prevailed last weekend.

Since the provocation last week came from a few trashers who gained anonymity within an otherwise peaceful candlelight march, it seems logical that organizers of future antiwar activities should take steps to deny potential troublemakers that anonymity.

The Committee to Defend the Right to Speak and the Southern Illinois Peace Committee have said in a joint statement, however, that they will not cooperate with police in singling out and apprehending trashers. Nor should they, for that is the responsibility of the police.

But the CDRS, SIPC, Student Mobilization Committee and other organizations dedicated to ending the war and removing the Vietnamese Studies Center from SIU should not allow their events to be used as staging areas for the violence-prone. These groups must make every attempt to dissociate themselves from the trashers and refuse to provide the faceless anonymity the rock throwers need to muster their courage. It is to the credit of these organizations that many of their members have already done this. If future violence is to be prevented, however, they must redouble their efforts.

As long as America's foolhardy adventure in Southeast Asia continues, there will be a good reason for the war protests to continue. There has never been, and never will be any reason for them to become violent.

Join the vigil!

To the Daily Egyptian:

Students, faculty, and some townpeople are protesting the escalation of the war in Vietnam and SIU campus antiwar activities are being curbed.

The protest is not receiving much publicity simply because the involved are not blocking doorways, are not breaking windows, are not voicing their opposition in any violent way. They are sincere, concerned citizens, many attempting to last for three days.

Many Americans perhaps feel that protests accomplish very little. They might consider the words of Dietrich Bonhoeffer, the pacifist turned activist German theologian and one of Hitler's concentration camp victims.

"Are we still of any use?"

'We have been silent witnesses of evil deeds; we have been drenched by many storms; we have learned the arts of equivocation and pretense; everywhere has made us suspicious of others and kept us from being truthful and open. Intolerable conflicts have worn us down and even made us cynical. Are we still of any use? What shall we do? We shall need is not geniuses, or cynics, or misanthropes, or clever tacticians, but plain, honest, straightforward men. Will our inward power of resistance be strong enough, and our honesty with ourselves remorseless enough, for us to find our way back to simplicity and straightforwardness?"

Dietrich Bonhoeffer, "Letters and Papers From Prison" (New York: Harper & Brothers, 1946), p. 17. Perhaps those who are protesting have discovered "simplicity and straightforwardness." Perhaps those who join with them may still be of some use.

Reformless garbage

To the Daily Egyptian:

The Daily Egyptian and city officials are optimistic that the protesting will stop. Do you think that the issues behind the anti-war movement will simply disappear? Mr. Derge and your bureaucratic friends can't wish forth such reformless garbage.

Your optimism is only a pretense. As most bureaucrats, you think that if you wait for four years we will be gone from your list of problems. Do you think that because you Mr. Derge came after Mr. Morris, his problems were his problems and not your concern?

"The University will continue to give freedom of choice," you have stated. Mr. Derge, how can this University continue to give those very ideals which it lacks?

Rights violated

To the Daily Egyptian:
Wednesday night a group of students numbering approximately 300 were holding a peaceful demonstration in the area of the Free Speech Forum which is in front of the president's residence on campus. At midnight, the provocation of the police savagely charged the group of students who were sitting on the ground singing songs and chanting anti-war slogans. It is my belief that that irrational action taken by the police was in direct violation of the constitution and rules of the university.

The constitution of the U.S. protects the freedom of all citizens to demonstrate in a non-violent protest. It is obvious to me that the police do in fact respect or follow the U.S. Constitution. I think that if any more violence occurs on this campus it can be attributed to the police and not to the demonstrators. Americans who do not and cannot accept violence as a means of protest is my belief that violence on the Carbondale campus of SIU does not violate the direct responsibility of the police officers.

Intimidated

To the Daily Egyptian:
I have been intimidated. As a student at SIU, I feel that I cannot go near a police officer without getting bad feelings. The disturbances caused by those few who don't give a damn about others in the University have made it hard for me to enjoy my studies and other activities here on campus.

When Ed Chambless was sentenced to 5 years in prison for his political activities I was concerned how I would deal with the police and other authority figures on this campus. I hope that those who are cooped up into participating in the disruptive aspects of the demonstration will soon realize that they are not showing the President of the United States or anyone else that they know how to end a war. All they have shown is that they also know how to start a war, and they have done a pretty good job of it here. You can't stop wars with cars.

Punish law breakers

This is a response to those who wish to avoid the responsibility of updating themselves about current affairs. Individuals who have lived in this country for an extended period of time should have little influence over those who protest this war. They should not have the right to march with little success in trying to stop them. Enter the Carbondale police--let those who break the law pay for it. You are watching the violence--don't be blind from hiding in the crowd. When violence breaks out gather with all the information possible as it is the police who punish the wrong people. Let the police capture the law-breakers--then let's peacefully disagree with Vietnam policy.

Since most dissenters would agree that violence only brings about suppression or overthrow. peaceful dissent seems to be the more constructive approach. Violence only forces the establishment to stifle all active dissent.

Wrong tactic

Tragic irony

To the Daily Egyptian:
Why is it that Jethro Tull can draw 10,000 at SIU but a band ofhacktivists, and maimer and fellow registration to protest the killing of millions in Viet Nam cannot draw a single soul. The reason is obvious I think that most people here do not agree with the plan of closing down the university until the war ends. But, they disagree with this tactic for different reasons. This opposition can be broken down into groups. The "rock throwers" believe, as does the Nixon administration, that "fighting for peace" is the best method. This group also includes "rock throwers" who do not care about the protest—they just like the excitement of breaking windows. Also, opportunists are included here in the group who might say "rock thrower" say that she was going along just in case some stories were lofted. I do hold particular care for those who are attempting to destroy a police"s property because of their attacks on the town money-makers, but because of the low cost concern for other students For instance I saw the "rock throwers" break windows and then run away leaving the remaining crowd to deal with the police and tear gas. Guiltlessness is highly typical of the "rock throwers". Probably, they only throw rocks because they do not have the guts to boycott classes and registration.

Another group is the "apathetics." Included here are people who are too lazy, too stupid, or too "im-"portant" to be interested in trying to stop the war. "Apathetics", too, lack the guts to boycott.

Finally of course, there is the group of SIU people who are in favor of Nixon's war, hoping that we can blow all those geeze to hell.

Before you go to class, it might be amusing to see what of the above groups you really fit into. If you do you might feel better about going to any of them—don't feel you look closer.

Stop escalation

To the Daily Egyptian:
We the undersigned graduate students in the Department of Psychology strongly condemn the recent United States' actions in Southeast Asia and express the desire for an immediate and total withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia, and Thailand. We also strongly condemn Southern Illinois University's complacency with the new policies of the administration. The obvious answer is "Peace Now.

Never again

To the Daily Egyptian:
Well, this is the time in three years SIU has proven it has about 300 radicals and 2,000 suckers. The demonstration plans were good, but not lively enough for the level of protest. These are little rascals didn't give up though, they knew where the local police force would be located. They brought fun-loving bodies to begin the night's festivities. Rock throwing (true act of courage), profanity, running and tear gas were all on the agenda and added up to a fun night in Carbondale.

Did you hear?

To the Daily Egyptian:
"Oh, by the way, did you hear about what happened at Kent State?" One coed interrupted the conv ersions. She had heard the news on the radio. "No, what happened?" asked the other.

"Well, the students tried to interrupt the war into Cambodia. These students have a right to protest—who wants to get killed in this war—I don't think it's worth it.

Yes, that was the news two years ago. We threw rocks two years ago and what did we get? A few S's and a Maynard in U. S. A. for you, a wild street party to finish it off. There will be two more years to get any S's and we already have our street parties. Closing the school won't accomplish a thing for anybody.

It's a shame to all of the candidates to run for a candidate who is against the war, talk to your parents and tell them to vote for the candidates who support the war. Rock throwing will only alienate those who need us on our side to win. It's time for change, but we must work for this change from within the system. Ring? The coed was awakened by the sound of the phone in her room. It was 8 a.m. Who would be calling at 8 a.m? It was her dad.

"What's going on down there?" he wanted to know. "I'll pack you up at 4:30." He hung up. Feeling tired and subsequencial, she went back to bed.

As plans for another campaign attempt to take her home, out of the strike zone. So the coed left the scene of action with something of a sign of relief. Af- ter all, she had only interrupted the war.

Rebuild relationships

To the Daily Egyptian:
In ending the war in Vietnam there had really been what those who marched downtown on Wednesday night had in mind. It is doubtful that their march would have had the consequences it did.

The only real effect that the throwing of bricks, breaking of windows and hiUmaning of police could possibly have would be to alienate the townspeople even further.

It is an economic and social fact of life that those who control the principal Vietnam policy are the middle class workers, farmers and the big businesses and in Carbondale in particular the "cooling off" period after the demonstrations will be long and tiresome. It is not just the town and townpeople a chance to mend broken ties. Some of the townpeople will remain forever alienated by the riots of 1970. In the middle class sector of the towns community and it is not possible to do what they think was done.

If those who took to the streets Wednesday think they are not going to face any trouble after the riots, they are deluding themselves. They hope to effect change in Vietnam policy, there is something sorely lacking in their logical processes. They are only concerned about the white middle class and the rabble rousers who were there only for the carnival atmosphere or because there was nothing good on television, their immaturity, in fact their mere presence, did nothing but detract from the efforts of those who were there for the purpose of valid protest.

To the Daily Egyptian:
What irony. "A free area this has been provided by the University, complete with amplification equipment, a stage, lights and a microphone. What does he have any group with something to say?" (DE, May 12, 1972, p. 1)

"However, police used gas to scatter a crowd of about 200 at the Free Area at about 12:15 a.m. after it was told the area was only to be used by Mayors Eckert.

The "small, warped group of per- sons," mentioned by President Derge in his published release, really included those at that gathering Thursday night who were warned to leave after Ed Hammond had earlier given permission to stay. At 12:15 a.m., when the police ordered them to leave they were literally whipped by University police with no provocation.

Violence, whatever its form, is counter-productive and is not the best means to an end. Is this going to be 1970 Revisited?

Goldman’s ‘Hot Rock’ is jewel of a funny movie

By Glenn Amato
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Hot Rock’ is the Sahara Stone, and a United Nations diplomat (Moses Gunn) wants this rare gem, which is kept in The Brooklyn Museum, stolen and returned to its African nation of origin.

The crooks he enlists aren’t adept at pulling off the perfect crime. Through a series of increasingly complicated and funny bungles, they’re forced to steal the stone four times. It winds its way through the museum, a jail, a precinct house and a safety-deposit box before the crooks are able to claim it for keeps.

The comedy at the Fox, with a screenplay by William Goldman, who also wrote “Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid.” and direction by Peter Yates, who did “Bullit,” simply compounds its near-miss escapes, scrapes and disasters to achieve its color and impact.

A Review

There are all sorts of race, wry touches. The post-titles sequence which shows George Segal as an expert locksmith who can’t cope with a car’s push-button controls, is prime fun, and the raid on the precinct houses, complete with smoke bombs and a puzzled chief of police, is preceded by a helicopter ride over Manhattan that’s worth the price of admission alone.

Just the right actors have been employed by Gunn—as well as by Goldman and Yates—to go after “The Hot Rock.” Segal, Robert Redford, Paul Sand and Ron Leibman never falter for a frame, and Zero Mostel is grand in the kind of ham villain role he played in “The Producers.” Zero, as always, is a big plus.

To be sure, things begin to get out of hand near the finish. The means by which Redford gets into the safety-deposit box—via hypnotism, no less—are absurd. But so is his whole caper, and watching the crooks wade through the mess is what makes the film a small gem in its own right.

Campus briefs

Edwin Pearson, assistant professor of physics, was co-author of an article entitled “Millimeter-Wave Spectrum and Structure of Hypervalent Acids. 10F and DOF,” which was published in a recent issue of the Journal of Chemical Physics. The other authors were H. Kim, associate professor of chemistry, at the University of Missouri, Columbia, and E.H. Appelman, of the Argonne National Laboratory, Argonne, Ill.

Pearson also read a paper, “Centrifugal Distortion Analysis of Hypervalent Acids,” co-authored with Kim, at the recent annual meeting of the American Physical Society in San Franciso.

Seventeen SIU agriculture students and their leader, Howard Olson, dairy specialist, have returned from a three-day field trip to dairy farms and dairy industry facilities in Illinois and Wisconsin. The students are enrolled in a dairy cattle breeding and management course taught by Olson.

The group spent two nights at Curtiss Breeding Service facilities at Cary, Ill., touring the agency’s bull barns and laboratories Thursday afternoon after stops enroute at the Kaisaksa Egg Co dairy farm at Greenville, Ill., and the Mohr Guernsey farm at Normal. Then the group visited one day at various dairy farms and plants in Wisconsin.

On the return route to Carbondale, stops were made at the University of Illinois dairy barn at Urbana, the Walloway Farm at Neoga, the Platz Farm at Siegel, and the Lamanlind Farm at Walton, all dairy farm operations featuring purebred Holstein cattle.

Morris Lamb, assistant professor in elementary education, has been appointed to the editorial committee of “Childhood Education,” a publication associated with “Childhood International.” It is a two-year appointment in which Lamb will be writing a monthly book review column, starting with the October issue.

Charles Pulley, advisory architect on the staff of the Board of Trustees, participated this week in Houston, in a panel discussion by representatives of the Association of University Architects. AUA at the annual convention of the American Institute of Architects.

“Marketplace of New Ideas” was the convention theme, and the AUA panel topic was “College and University Planning.” Pulley, was to speak on “The Architect and the University Gears,” and show slides of the SIU-Carbondale campus.

UI graduate students discuss
China visit with SIU audience
By Rita Pang
Student Writer

After a month's tour of mainland China which included a six-hour talk with Premier Chou En-Lai, graduate students from the University of Illinois outlined China's attitude toward Taiwan and the mainland in a series of separate discussion sessions.

The education system and the lifestyle of the people in mainland China were also topics under discussion.

Slides were shown depicting the scenery of Peking, Nanjing, Hangzhou, Shanghai, Chengdu and places where the students frequented during their Forums trip to China.

"We don't claim to be experts on China after a two-month trip," Chen Hen-Chie, doctoral candidate in international law at the University of Illinois, said. "Our words are by no means official statements: we only report what we've seen and heard from this trip.

According to Chen, "China wants peace to carry on its national construction. Because of this reason, China is wary of the military road against Japan, since the Chinese had suffered a lot from Japanese aggression during World War II, Chen said.

"China has not been and will not be the first to attack another country," he said.

He cited examples of the Korean War, in which "the United States promised the Chinese the China-India War of 1962, in which "The world will support our army into Chinese territory."

"Although China has an obligation to help countries in the third world, China also believes that the revolution of a country has to be performed by the country itself. That is why China will not send an army to intervene in the revolution of any country," Chen said.

What China will definitely do is to liberate Taiwan and the Chinese people on Taiwan, he emphasized. "China is confident that Taiwan will return to its motherland-China. It will thrive instead of being conquered by unfriendly countries who would try to make Taiwan independent," Chen explained.

"When Taiwan is returned to China, China will try to raise the living standard of the working corps by reducing the tax and increasing the wages and benefits. Also, present government officials under the Chiang Kai-Shek regime will not be persecuted," Chen said. "They will be given proper jobs and will be allowed to retain their social and political status.

"China is aware of the great difference in lifestyle between Taiwan and the mainland," he continued. "Taiwan doesn't have to be converted to socialism overnight. Education, instead of coercion, is the answer to social change."

Chen said that the Chinese government will try to incorporate Taiwan by "peaceful methods" and not by "armed conflict.

"The Chinese leaders want a peaceful solution," he said. "Should force be needed in the process of incorporating Taiwan as a province of China, it would be used against the ruling class of Taiwan or any foreign interference."

While discussing the role of the overseas Chinese in the Chinese government, Chen explained that Chinese communication to the audience his impression of what Premier Chou En-Lai had said.

"All Chinese, if they choose to be patriotic, should identify themselves as Chinese and should take a stand either for China or for Chiang's government in Taiwan," Chen said. "If they choose to identify with China, they must adapt themselves to the notion of serving the people.

Jerry Chen, who is now researching computer science at the University of Illinois, added that the overseas Chinese fall into three main categories: pro-China, indiff erent or pro-Chiang.

"He said that those who want to return to China to serve the people there should consider whether their family background, educational background and their way of thinking would be causes of distinction in the process of adaptation to living in China.

"They should not make rash decisions," Chen (Jerry) said. "I recommend that you visit China first before deciding to settle down there.

Benny Ko, a graduate from the medical school at Indiana University, said that higher Chinese officials advocate non-interference and respect on the part of the overseas Chinese toward their host countries.

"They should not be submissive elements," he said.

Commenting on the school system in China, Jerry Chen noted that after the Cultural Revolution, schooling comprises five years of high school and another five years of high school.

After the high school stage, the children will be assigned either to the farm, to the army or to the factories where they will work for two or three years. If after their training period, they are recommended by their superiors, they may then enter college, Chen said.

All education in China, from grade school to university, is free. "Administrative power of the schools and colleges are on the hands of the revolutionary committees in which the students have a main voice," Chen said.

Medical fees are semi-free for the people on mainland China. They have to pay a nominal fee of $1 per year, he said. "For government workers and soldiers in the army, however, medical care is completely free.

From the recent Nixon visit in China, Americans might have gathered from the pictures and telecasts that China is so technologically backward that the masses have to be motivated to clean their streets and to grow rice with brooms and brushes, Chen (Jerry) recalled.

"They (the Americans) have failed to realize that this kind of thing is intended to associate the people with their society, to give them a sense of belonging to the society and of serving the people." He attributed this kind of personal involvement as a good way to fight alienation which, he said, is a common disease in America today.

Russian class offered each fall

The Department of Foreign Languages has announced that Russian 238A, which is offered every summer, will now also be taught Fall quarters beginning next fall.

Joseph R. Kupcek, head of the Russian section of Foreign Languages said: "Russian 238A is offered as a research tool for undergraduate students majoring in various things and to help graduate students prepare for proficiency examinations.

The 23-hour Russian course, Kupcek said, will be taught by Igor Shkrok at 3 p.m. Monday, Wed­nesday and Friday at Wheeler Hall in room 303 during Fall quarter.

HEW decision in Amoros case rejected by SIU; called unfair

By Sue Millen

The civil rights office of the Health, Education and Welfare department (HEW), received notification from SIU legal counsel Monday that the University did not accept their recommenda tions concerning the Marissa Camot-Amoros case. According to a HEW official, Richard Magr, SIU legal counsel, said Monday he did not feel he could release specific details of the letter sent to HEW. He said this office pointed out errors of fact and omission and said the University felt the decision was unfair and incorrect.

Ms. Camot-Amoros said there was recently a precedent set for her case at Loyola University, Elizabeth Farran, assistant professor of theology at Loyola, filed a complaint with HEW June 30, 1979. HEW told Loyola it was in violation of executive orders and said it would not stop her for the time she was unemployed. Loyola refused and is now in the final step of appeals.

The Washington office has upheld the decision of John Huglic, civil rights regional director, who first charged the University with the violations.

Ms. Camot-Amoros said that in the finish step the HEW has several sanctions which they can opt for at any time during the hearing. HEW can suspend or terminate all federal contracts and make the university ineligible for further federal contracts.

She said she has been told by an informed source, it would cost the University about $10,000,000 worth of federal contracts if that happened. She said she is expecting confirmation on this figure in a week.

She said while HEW can use these contracts to pressure universities to comply with its ruling — it has no power, as such, to enforce individual decisions.

There is however, several other reasons. The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Act was amended in Aug. 27, 1972 to include sex discrimination. There is also a federal law effective March 1972, the Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1972, which has expanded its protection of Title VII of the civil rights act to include academic institutions.

While these laws aren't in effect when Ms. Camot-Amoros was terminated, she says the University is presently in violation of them because of the University's demit to reimburse her:

Prison art show

Elia Brantley, warden of Menard State Penitentiary has invited members of the SIU community to attend an art exhibit. The exhibit is from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday in the Educational Building of Menard Prison.

On display will be more than 1,500 different entries submitted by more than 100 inmate artists. Brantley said works are done in oils, water colors, pastels, pencil and charcoal, photography, and various media, he said.

Besides the art displays, Brantley said there would be live music and free refreshments. The public is invited, except children under 16 years of age and relatives of inmates.

Purchases of art work on display may be made. Brantley said portraits and other paintings may be commissioned.

The University Service

M. Keith Humble, former VITI director, dies at 66

By University News Service

M. Keith Humble, 66, retired director of the SIU Vocational Technical Institute, was pronounced dead on arrival at Herrin Hospital at 2 p.m. Monday.

Humble, who retired August 30, 1971, had been in ill health for several months. He returned to his home in Carterville last spring from an assignment at the Afghan Institute of Technology at Kabul, Afghanistan, because of health problems.

A native of Oklahoma, Humble was the first director of the Vocational Technical Institute. He came to the post in September, 1955, from the University of Illinois where he had been in teacher training.

In addition to his duties as director of the 1,500-student VITI, Humble served as chief of party from 1961-65 for an SIU team which worked under a U.S. Agency for International Development contract at the Phu Tho Technical Institute in Saigon, and at Kabul from 1970 to the spring of 1971.

Born in Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 12, 1910, Humble earned his bachelor’s degree from Oklahoma A&M, Stillwater, and was awarded the master’s in industrial education and doctorate in industrial education and school administration by the University of Missouri.

Humble taught at the University of Missouri and University of Illinois before joining the SIU faculty as full professor. He served the U.S. Navy during World War II as superintendent of training and was separated in 1947 with the rank of commander.

He was a member of the National Education Association, American Vocational Association, Illinois Industrial Education Association, and Phi Delta Kappa.

He is survived by his wife Alberta of Carterville and brothers Otto, Durango, Colo., and Forrest, Albuquerque, N.M.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Riggin Funeral Home, Carterville.

Political figures denounce shooting of Wallace

By the Associated Press

His supporters and his opponents alike denounced the shooting Monday night of George C. Wallace. Those who worked in Wallace's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination were shocked and angered.

Two of his opponents canceled some of their campaign appearances.

Many officials recalled the assassinations of Martin Luther King Jr. John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy, and lamented for the state of the nation.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, the liberal who defeated Wallace last week in the Nebraska Democratic presidential primary, said in Kalama, Wash., "I'm totally shocked by this savage act. If we've gotten to this point in this country where a public figure can't speak out on the issues of the day and seek the presidency without being shot, then I tremble for the future of our nation.

He added, "We can only hope and pray for the speedy recovery of Gov. Wallace and we can only say a prayer for our country.

Committee takes fund applications

The SIU Lectures and Entertainment Committee is accepting applications for funds to support special meetings and speakers during the fiscal year starting July 1. It was announced by R.P. Hibbs, committee chairman.

Hibbs said limited funds are considered by the committee to petitioning departments and organizations for programs of special events. He said requests should be made only for events that go beyond regular prescribed activities of a department and be of wider, general interest to the University community.

Applications must reach Hibbs' office no later than the afternoon of May 16.

U-Senate seeks witnesses to Free Forum incident

The Free Forum committee of the University Senate is seeking witnesses to the incident which occurred at the Free Forum area late Sunday night and early Monday morning, according to Lyman Baker, chairman of the committee.

"All sorts of reports are circulating about what happened there from around 11:30 p.m. to 2:30 a.m.," Baker said. "We need access to first-hand reports from indi-ciduals who were present at the scene so we can review them at our meeting scheduled for noon Tuesday.

Baker was referring to an incident in which Dan Ovescan, executive assistant to President David Derge, reportedly harrassed a crowd of about 25 students gathered in front of Anthony Hall in an all-night vigil to protect the war.

Baker said witnesses should make their statements as detailed as possible about "the sorts of things the crowd was doing and the sorts of things other individuals were doing.

George Camille, student body president, said witnesses may bring the matter to the attention of the Student Government offices anytime before noon Tuesday.

City to consider animal ordinance

Final action on a proposed or-dance regulating dogs and cats in the city is expected at the 7 p.m. formal session of the Carbondale City Council Tuesday.

The council will also consider ordinances regulating traffic in the city, establishing more one-way streets and no parking zones.

Discussion of the sewage backup problem at Gastine Apartments is also on the agenda, along with a discussion of a request from the Buncombe Water District for water from the Carbonate system.

The meeting, to be held in the council chambers on the second floor at City Hall, is open to the public.
Report on tear-gas incident to be released this week

By Daryl Stephenson

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The results of an investigation into tear-gassing incidents in the Brush Towers-University Park area last weekend will be released later this week, Jefferson Humphrey, assistant dean of students for the area, said Monday.

Humphrey said that the investigating committee, which is composed of students and staff from the area, will make a full report of its findings to SIU President David R. Derge.

Derge directed that an investigation be conducted Friday, after two canisters of tear gas had been thrown into entranceways of Schneider Tower about 1:25 a.m. Friday.

One of the canisters was thrown into the main lobby of the building by what witnesses claim was either a Carbondale or state policeman.

Bob Simpson, a sophomore from Carbondale majoring in photography, was working behind the main desk in the lobby when the canister was thrown.

"I saw a student running into the east door of the lobby," said Simpson. "I ran to the door to see what was wrong, and that's when I saw the officer."

"I don't know what police force he came from," Simpson said, "but he was wearing a brown uniform and a brown helmet."

"The student ran all the way through the lobby and out the other door," said Simpson. "When the officer tried to enter, Simpson said he then noticed the canister."

"I told him not to throw it," Simpson said, "but he just laughed. When he threw the canister, I closed the door and the canister hit the glass. I tried to pull the officer inside, but someone yelled for me to get out of the way because the canister had not yet exploded."

At that point, Simpson said the canister exploded, and the officer disappeared through the other entrance, chasing the student in the direction of Mac Smith Tower.

Simpson described the officer as being about six feet tall, with a round face. Simpson also said the officer wore glasses with very dark frames, and appeared to be about 35-40 years old.

About the same time, a second tear gas canister was thrown into the "C" wing of Schneider.

Siedlecki, a sophomore from Chicago majoring in the administration of justice and a member of the area's Standards Board, was in the "A" wing of Mae Smith Tower, which is directly opposite the "C" wing of Schneider.

"I saw about 15 students standing around by the bicycle racks between the two buildings," Siedlecki said. At that point, he said, a white, unmarked police car pulled up next to the racks, and a police officer attempted to disperse the students.

"He chased them toward the door of the "C" wing," Siedlecki said. "I saw him enter the building through the "C" wing door. I told the resident counselor in Mae Smith to call Schneider and tell them there was a policeman in the building. Then I went over to Schneider.

"The officer immediately ran back out the door." Siedlecki said. "I didn't see him throw the canister, but when I got back to Schneider I found out that "C" wing had just been gassed."

Siedlecki also was unable to identify the officer, but said he was wearing a blue uniform.

Both Carbondale Police Chief Joe Dabin and SIU Security Chief Thomas Letfer denied Monday that their officers had anything to do with the tear gas incidents.

Dakin said Carbondale police had responded to a call for assistance from the security police, but added that his officers had said that when they arrived at Brush Towers the tear gas was already present in the buildings. He said that his officers had used tear gas on two occasions, but it was used outside to disperse crowds that were throwing rocks.

No tear gas was thrown inside the buildings by Carbondale police, Dakin said.

Letfer said that there were no men from his force in the area at the time the tear gas was thrown.

Arrangements have been made to have the concert in McAndrew Stadium from noon to midnight.

SIU senior sets record bouncing ball

Armie Liss, president of the SIU chapter of Sigma Alpha Mu, recaptured the world record Saturday for bouncing a basketball for 34 consecutive hours.

Liss, a senior majoring in biology, bounced a basketball during a "Bounce for Beats" service project for the Jackson County Heart Association.

In 1971, Liss set the world record when he dribbled a ball 30 hours straight for the project, which is an annual event for Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity. Later in the year Terry Durr of the University of Missouri, also a member of Sigma Alpha Mu, dribbled a ball for 31 consecutive hours.

The "Bounce for Beats" started at the Student Center at 8:30 a.m. Friday and later moved into the downtown Carbondale area. As Liss bounced the ball, members of the fraternity collected money for the American Heart Association for the duration of the project.

"Bounce for Beats" collected $100 last year.

South Viets use helicopters to recapture Hue fire base

Saigon (AP)—South Vietnamese infantrymen using helicopter assault tactics recaptured an important fire base southwest of Hue on Monday in the second phase of an effort to prevent North Vietnamese plans to attack the former imperial capital.

The surprise reconquest of Fire Base Bastogne, which had been abandoned under enemy attack 18 days ago, came as renewed fighting was reported in the central highlands. Communist command troops are thought to be seeking high ground for AA gun emplacements.

The U.S. Command disclosed the loss of three more planes in raids over North Vietnam with all six crewmen listed as missing. This raised to 142 Americans reported killed or missing in Indochina air losses since Harris's general offensive began March 30.

At Bastogne, field reports said, a platoon of volunteers riding six South Vietnamese helicopters assaulted the base in mid-afternoon. They quickly secured it for ground forces which drove westward along Route 347 behind a shield of U.S. air strikes.

The attackers encountered only light resistance, the reports said, including North Vietnamese forces around Bastogne possibly wiped out by the bold attack.

At nightfall the South Vietnamese 1st Division was reported to have full control of the base.

The 17-week siege of An Loc con tinued as enemy forces hurled another 2,500 rounds of artillery, rocket and mortar fire into the ravaged town, killing at least 90 miles north of Saigon.

The 3rd Division has a mobile force and will take over quickly, the command said. But some troops still were repor ted trying to recapture a nearby mounting outpost called Checkmate, which also fell to the enemy on April 28.

Like the Vietnamese marine raid over the weekend into enemy-held territory just northwest of Hue, the Bastogne operation indicated a determination to South Vietnamese commanders to seize the initiative from enemy forces threatening Hue.

Military sources said more such forces must be expected to forces under Lt. Gen. Ngo Quang Trung, who assumed command of the region two weeks ago following the loss of Quang Tri Province.

Rogers asks support of Nixon war policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers urged Congress Monday not to pass any enemy aid bill that would undercut President Nixon's policy in Vietnam.

In an appearance before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee Rogers called for an end to criticism of the President's military program that would undermine the war effort.

First Lady says Moscow trip 'on'

WASHINGTON (AP) — First Lady Pat Nixon said Monday "It's no secret" about the Moscow summit trip. "It's on!"

She gave this firm word from the White House about the presiden tial summit meeting and further said she and the President would be departing Saturday morning for half a year in Austria, the first step on a four-county, two-week journey.

There had been some doubt about the meeting being called off, in view of Russian opposition to President Nixon's recent Vietnam moves, including the mining of harbors.

She spoke with reporters who were flown there from the newly refurbished Blue Room in the White House.

Constituency heads fail to decide fate of governance system funds

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

No definite recommendation concerning the funding of the governance system was the result of a hour-long meeting Monday of various constituency heads.

The meeting was called by David Kenney, president of the University Senate, and Tony Carasone, University vice president. The meeting was in response to a memorandum sent by President David R. Derge.

In the memorandum, Derge said he had received a letter from Lee Hester, then president of the Nonacademic Employees Council, concerning funds for the council. Hester’s letter raised the question of providing funds for his council and for the whole governance system.

Kenney said the campus governance system received about $3,000 this past year. This money is allocated by the president through University funds. As president of the U-Senate, Kenney is fiscal officer for the money.

Hester’s letter suggested instead of providing funds for a governance system, the individual councils receive the money with the option of diverting funds for the governance system.

Chris Jensen, Graduate Student Council secretary, and Catanese suggested that if the nonacademic council needs help, some of the governance system funds and facilities could be used instead of having a governance system funded by the council.

Kenney said Hester’s proposal did not bother him provided people realize two things: 1) the funds go to the governance system and not the U-Senate and 2) if a council decides to withhold funds it means that the council does not want to participate in the governance system.

Some tentative agreement was reached on the idea of having the leaders of the U-Senate and the nonacademic council meet with Derge on the funding problem.

Institute opens grant program to grad artists

By University News Service

The Institute of International Education has announced opening of the 1973-74 competition for grants for graduate research or study abroad and for professional training in the creative and performing arts. Approximately $300 awards to 37 countries will be granted to qualified applicants, preferably between 30 and 35 years of age, and with no previous experience in extended study or residence abroad.

Awards will be available under the Fulbright-Hays program, foreign governments, universities and private donors. Applicants must be U.S. citizens at the time of application, who will hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent before the beginning date of the grant and, in most cases, be proficient in the language of the host country. Except for certain fields, candidates may not hold the Ph.D. at the time of application.

Application forms and information are available from Frank Semnet, campus Fulbright adviser, at the International Student Services, Woody Hall. Semnet urges interested persons to apply early so that they can make use of advice and consultation from the Campus Fulbright Committee.

SHCC to decide fate of health plan today

By Sue Milian
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

There will be a Student Health Council (SHCC) meeting to decide if the DuBois Health Plan, the latest proposal for the comprehensive health service should be adopted, rejected or amended, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Activity Room A or B of the Student Center.

Donald Dubois, consultant for the comprehensive health service, submitted a proposal to the Health Advisory Board in which he outlined various benefits and costs for student comprehensive health care.

"We're going to try and wrap up all our questions at this time in order to get HAB to review our amendments and to present the entire issue to Student Government," Gary D photograph, SHCC chairman, said.

Dickerson said that it may be too late for a student referendum. "The Board of Trustees will be making a decision this summer on whether to go through with the plan or not. Students must make their feelings known to the SHCC or Student Government," he added.

Several amendments are already being discussed including providing additional services, restructuring of fees and determining whether or not the proposal is a representative of graduate students.

Role of women is topic for luncheon

Four luncheon seminars concerning the role of women will be held from noon to 1 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in the Student Christian Foundation.

The subject will be "Children's Mysteries: Sex Role Typing in Children's Books," presented by Barbara Frank, "What Couples Love Doing to Women or Guismeres Meet Simone de Beauvoir," will be the Wednesday luncheon topic led by Jane Sarssehore.

"Today's Women and the Church," will be presented Thursday by Florence Foote and "How Women Relate to Each Other," will be discussed Friday by Jo Anne Broboli and Pat Males.

Lunch will be 50 cents or interested persons may attend just the discussion.

SIU chemistry professor to direct seminar here

James Cox, professor of chemistry and biochemistry at SIU, will direct a seminar on the "Effect of Pyridate on the Mechanism of Electrophilic Oxidation of Fe(II)," at 4 p.m. Friday in Neckas 208.

Daley celebrates 70th birthday

CHICAGO (AP) -- Chaucers of "Happy Birthday" resonated through City Hall for Mayor Richard J. Daley who was 70 years old Monday.

The mayor was serenaded in English and Spanish by some 400 of his admirers.

A group of City Council singers threw in a chorus of "When Irish Eyes are Smiling."

J-V squad boosts mark to 10-1

The Saluki junior-varsity baseball team continued its mastery over 1972 opponents Sunday by whipping Lewis and Clark Junior College twice, 12-4 and 14-3.

By sweeping the doubleheader at Abe Martin Field, SIU boosted its season mark to 10-1. The first game is set for noon Saturday when the squad travels to Menard Pemiscot-tuary for a single contest.

Pitching was the name of the game Sunday as Lewis and Clark could muster only one infield hit during the two seven-inning contests.

Freshman Kevin O'Boyle one-hit Lewis and Clark in the first game as a fourth-inning safety and an error led to the visitor’s only tally.

SIU Series hopes fade over weekend

"I learned one thing about conference play," Coach Warren said. "Don't ever second guess yourself or you get clobbered."

SIU breezed 1:54.5 to take home the team mahogany tray. Coach Warren brought to light the biking off, 4.781. Joe Lweis handled third after the camera and apparently scored.

But on an appeal play at third, home plate umpire John Lewis ruled Wallis out. "I waited 'til I saw the ball," said Coach Warren. "I didn't know whether he caught it or not, but I didn't move until it hit his glove."

Wallis said SIU right fielder Kissell, and left fielder Black in the same game win, a three-run eighth inning, SIU hopes in getting back in the national tournament. But behind the scenes in the untrained Wallis had caught the first hit of the day. He trapped the sinking fly to left-center. Joe Lweis handled third after the camera and apparently scored.

Fischer pitched eight and two-thirds innings for his seventh win against the deck. Derry and Brockman finished the ninth when a walk put Bear and Mitchell put two men on base.

WRA golfers, softballers do so-oso in weekend action

Two Women Recreational Association (WRA) sports didn't fare too well in competition last weekend.

The golf team placed sixth in the Illinois State Invitational Friday and Saturday in Bloomington. Illinois State's two women's teams also had the top individual medalist in Linda Krueger who shot 167 in the 36-hole meet.

Sandy Blish had the best score for the WRA team with a 210. But it was too high to qualify in the final standings.

The golfers travel to the Midwest Tournament in Columbus, Ohio, Saturday. The WRA team, under the number will participate for Southern-M. Illinois, Western Michigan, Karen Xoongen, Debbie Cummins, Pam Thorpe.

The season is over for the WRA softball team. In our 2-week mark in the westerns at the Rogers at Northern Illinois wasn't good enough for advancement in the national tourney. The WRA defeated the University of Chicago Collegiate but lost to Illinois State and Eastern Illinois.

Western Illinois defeated Illinois State, 14-6, in the finals. Both schools will advance.

In other sports, the WRA track squad will host the Southern Illinois Invitational at 3:00 p.m. Saturday at McAndrew Stadium.

M hockey set

Floor hockey is the only activity listed on the official intramural schedule this winter. The Rangers will face off with Las Cruces Saturday, March 11, at 11 a.m. at the Puckette sporting the Black Hawks in the second contest at 4:35. Both games will be played in Ulham Gymnasium.

Lathers capture gimmick rally

Steve and Marianne Lathers won the vote for Two Gimmick Rally held by the Grand Touring Auto Club of Illinois. Another rally will be held next weekend with a $30 cash prize going to the winner, according to Chuck White, rally master.

World Series hopes fade after NIU debacle

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Perhaps this won't be the Year of the Salukis after all.

It's evident now. Southern Illinois' baseball faithful will wait until 1979—or later—before another chance at the College World Series.

Oh, sure. It's not hopeless yet, despite two weekend losses to Northern Illinois that left SIU at 17-8.

But even coach Richard Raibley admitted, "On the basis of the last four or five games, definitely no."

When asked if he'd select the Salukis to a post-season NCAA berth, Raibley commented, "We've got an outside chance, a little one, but a chance."

Jones acknowledges an NCAA District Four playoff bid with guarded optimism. Certainly not as enthusiastically as three weeks ago. Almost as if he feels the Salukis no longer warrant a chance at slotting down the big boys.

His team has slumped miserably and unexpectedly—these past two weekends. They've played just 560 ball, 4-4, and lost all four in Midwestern Conference play.

"If we lose those games over a period of three weeks," Jones said Monday, "no one could say we'd given it our best effort."

"Take away those two games," he continued, "and we've had a great season."

The Salukis approached last weekend knowing they must win their next three games to 1) Overhaul the league-leading Huskies, and 2) Maintain post-season hopes.

But they lost Friday, 4-0, as Bob Masteck silenced Saluki bats. Scott Wallemate pitched well enough to win, but absorbed the loss.

A past-game chewing out came from Jones. He was sick of beer drinking bragging, sick of their concern for individual statistics, sick of their back talk and not sure they had the guts to battle from behind. And he told them so.

Jones also told the Salukis they'd need to win twice on Saturday. But Southern Illinois failed in that quest.

They handled the Huskies more than adequately the second game, despite bus-league-upping that deprived Danny Radison of a school record 90th-run-batted-in.

Southern Illinois dropped one notch, to third, in the Midwestern Conference standings. Southern retains first place with Illinois State, who didn't play a league game, moved past the Salukis into second.

Southern's first game downfall resulted from Northern hitting, a questionable substitution by Jones and some dumb umpiring

In the visitors' sixth, Bob Jackson was awarded a single on his pop to right. The Salukis, and some smart people, contended the ball fell foul. But Jackson stayed at first and Saluki pitcher Wittum slugged a Rick Ware offering over the left field fence.

The Salukis are leading only 5-4. Jones pinch-hit Mike Eden for pits and Wittum, who had effectively relieved Ware.

Southern Illinois loaded the bases after two out for a questionable score. John Railey bounced into an inning-ending fielder's choice.

Freshman southpaw Robin Derry, losing pitcher, replaced Broek and got into almost immediate hot water.

After striking out Ralph Radliss, Derry yielded three consecutive singles, two of them scratch hits.

The third single, by Jim Yagen, sent home Brian Moore, tying the score at 5-5. Derry was replaced by Steve Randall who walked Jackson to load the bases. Then he walked Wittum and Richard Radrke.

Trackmen take Illinois Intercollegiates by storm

By Ken Stewart
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

All season long Lew Hartzog has claimed his Salukis were the best track team in the state. Such a boast drew snickers from Champaign.

Monday, Champaign was silent.

Last weekend Southern Illinois won the outdoor Illinois Intercollegiates at Normal while grabbing 185 points to run-upriver Illinois' 166.5.

"There were no excuses this time," Hartzog said. The Salukis won the indoor Intercollegiates earlier, but run-upriver and defending champ Illinois claimed it wasn't at full strength with many of its top performers competing in another relay. "This time it was all out or nothing," Hartzog said. "They doubled, tripled and got every point they could possibly get," he added. "This proves we're the better track team."

The Salukis have now beaten the Illini five times in a row including the indoor Intercollegiates (this marks the first time a team has swept both meets in the same year), two dual meets and the outdoor Intercollegiates last year in Carbondale.

The Illini wanted it bad this weekend and Southern Illinois didn't have it. The Salukis, especially in the middle distance areas. But it was a day of an old reliable and unsung heroes for Southern.

-Ivy Crockett, the reliable, won the 100-yard dash in 9.3 and the 220 in 21.5. His 220 time set a school record, was the fastest time in the nation this year and came within five-tenths of a second from touching the world record.

-Eight Salukis had personal bests, including Tom Lint's 300-2 feet javelin throw (27 feet better than he's ever thrown before), Bill Barrett's hammer throw which broke a fresh record, Phil Robbins' triple jump, Kent Kasik's discus throw and Bill Hancock's long jump. SIU won eight first places to Illinois' five and the Salukis had 21 people to score points.

Hartzog called the win a team effort. "This track team has jelled," he added. "You could see 20 points full of energy, from Jerry but I didn't expect eight points from some of the others."

Midway through the meet, Illinois was leading SIU, 94-55, and "it looked like they were going to beat the tar out of us," said Hartzog. "But unexpected points began to come in for Southern such as Lino Brugmeci's and Lonnie Brown's third and fourth-place finishes in the intermediate hurdles. Hartzog had expected his team to go pointless."

The Salukis could have accumulated 281 points, but the mile relay team was disqualified for running on the line. It had finished second.

Five new Intercollegiate records were set and three were tied, three of the marks and the tie were by Southern.

With the Salukis firmly atop the Illinois collegiate track world, Hartzog doesn't expect a big threat from Illinois for some time to come.

The Salukis lose only one man—Ken Naldor—to graduation, while Illinois will lose 12 including most of their "top horses" as Hartzog puts it.

Golfers falter early

Things aren't so rosy for the SIU golf team.

Halfway through the Midwestern Conference meet at Silver Lake Country Club Southern is 25 strokes behind co-leaders Ball State and Illinois State.

Team scores after 36 holes had been played Monday show the Cardinals and Bears each at 30 strokes behind Southern in five strokes behind co-leaders Ball State and Illinois State.
