Clinton to have meeting with Bush

Los Angeles Times

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — President-elect Bill Clinton arrives in Washington today to begin an American political ritual as he meets face-to-face with President Bush, the defeated leader he will soon supplant in the White House.

In an hour-long meeting in the Oval Office, Clinton and Bush were expected to play roles as old as democracy—the outgoing president offering the successor his view about the state of a nation,

President-elect seeking assessment of nation whose helm he will soon relinquish.

As the two men try to swallow any lingering bitterness from a combative campaign, Clinton made clear on Tuesday that he intended to urge Bush to provide a candid assessment of the problems that he will face at home and abroad when he takes office in 63 days from now.

Elsewhere in the White House, top lieutenants to the two leaders were scheduled to conduct a parallel session to negotiate details of the delicate process that lies ahead as the Clinton team attempts to remake the government in its own image.

In a major step in that transition operation, Clinton on Tuesday named former South Carolina Gov. Richard Riley to oversee the vast task of filling out the new administration's team with as many as 4,000 appointees to high-level federal jobs.

At a news conference in Little Rock, the director of the transition team, Warren Christopher, said that Riley would work closely with as-yet-unappointed Cabinet members to fill the ranks beneath them with officials best equipped to carry out

Petition will not affect abortion benefit ruling

Guyon: Administration will not be influenced

Chris Davies
Administration Writer

SIUC President John C. Guyon said he would not be swayed by a petition signed by several hundred people opposing insurance coverage for student abortions.

Students in opposition of the abortion insurance coverage issued a petition against it Monday to Guyon.

Chi Alpha, a Christian registered student organization, backed the petition to discourage Guyon from allowing pregnancy termination as a health insurance benefit at SIUC.

But Guyon said the petition will not influence the administration.

"Students, staff and faculty signed the petition opposing the coverage and that is their right," he said. "I have to make a decision that is best for SIUC."

The issue first will be discussed with Chancellor James Brown and the SIU Board of Trustees before proceeding because of its sensitive nature, he said.

Students voted 733-441 in the student elections in May in favor of adding abortion coverage to student health insurance.

They pay $86 for fall and spring semester for insurance coverage. Students pay an additional $78 for on-campus services such as access to the Wellness Center, the Student Health Assessment Center and dental coverage, for a total health fee of $164.

Acordia Health Insurance, SIUC's student health insurance carrier, said no additional fees would be added to student health fees if the University approves abortion coverage.

Students against the coverage said they signed the petition because of their moral beliefs.

Catherine McCormack, a senior in psychology, said she began the petitioning because she felt students who oppose the coverage should be heard.

"I started this to show President Guyon that there are also people who do not want the coverage on campus," she said. "Not just people from religious groups on campus but faculty and citizens of Carbondale also signed in opposition."

McCormack said she will wait for a response from Guyon before taking any further action.

"Right now no further action is planned until we receive communication from president Guyon," she said.

Kelly Lawless, a junior in recreation and a member of Chi Alpha, said she feels strongly against paying for something that goes against her beliefs.

County buys computer equipment for system

By John McCadd
Politics Writer

The Jackson County 911 emergency phone system is expected to be operational by May 1993, officials said, after the 911 board received computer equipment for the system this week.

The board paid an installment of $81,900 to 911 systems Inc. at a meeting Monday, purchasing emergency address identification equipment.

Carolyn Moreschi, Jackson County 911 coordinator, said the board purchased computer equipment that would enable dispatchers to automatically pinpoint the phone number, address and aerial map location of a caller in an emergency.

Moreschi said installation is expected to be complete by Dec. 15.

The $81,900 payment, which is 30 percent of the total cost, was drawn from a $1.25 monthly surcharge levied on telephone bills of Jackson County residents, she said.

Moreschi said the system initially was planned to be operational by December, but it was delayed because of a law prohibiting the board to purchase street signs, and a dispute with General Telephone North Inc. concerning the price of a dispatching system.

"We're planning to go on line roughly by the end of May or the beginning of June next year," she said. "The County Board decided to buy the street signs, so we can begin putting them up by the end of this week."

William Crawshaw, 911 board vice chairman, said the board still has to complete assignment of rural

Dangerous computer virus detected on SIUC campus

University News Service

A new, highly destructive computer virus that can zap an entire personal computer hard drive into oblivion has made its way to SIUC.

Campus computer experts first detected the virus last month on a personal computer in the computing center in Faner Hall. A second case was discovered last week.

The bug, called V-SIGN, is especially dangerous because it is so new that many existing virus protection programs may not detect it, said William J.

MVC team put on athletic probation

By Jay Reed

Sports Writers

The University of Tulsa was placed on three-year athletic probation by the NCAA Tuesday after finding major violations in the men's and women's track and field programs that happened three to five years ago.

The sanctions prohibit post-

Tulsa restricted from 1992-93 post-season play season competition in all sports at the university during the 1992-93 academic year.

An NCAA committee determined that Tulsa was involved with a number of major violations that include institutional control, encouraging student-athletes to represent the institution under assumed names, allowing an ineligible student-athlete to compete and the falsification of participation lists.

The committee found that track coaches violated the principles of ethical conduct by submitting inaccurate participant lists to university administrators to achieve the minimum amount of athletes needed to remain a member of Division I-A.

SIUC men's track coach Bill Cornell said Tulsa has been a disgrace to the Missouri Valley Conference, and he would rather be without them.

"They have had no talent at all, and it appeared that they had been taking runners out of physical education class," he said. "They have been a joke."

In a press release from Tulsa, President Dr. Robert H. Donaldson stated that the university is compelled to respond with a strong statement reflecting what it sees as a failure of justice.

Donaldson stated that while the university acknowledged wrongdoing in its track program, it

Michigan ranked No. 1 in preseason poll

Zapnews

NEW YORK — Michigan, the first team to ever reach the NCAA Tournament championship game with five freshman starters, is the number one team in the Associated Press preseason college basketball poll released Monday night.

Kansas, which was second in the final regular-season poll last year before losing in the second round of the NCAA tournament, was second and two-time defending national champion Duke is ranked third. Five teams received first-place votes.

Michigan received 23 of a possible 50 first-place votes and 1,536 points in the nationwide poll.

Michigan's freshman class, nicknamed the "Fab Five", spearheaded their way to the national championship game. The storied season ended with a 71-51 loss to Duke last April in the title game.

Michigan, coached by Steve Fisher, is scheduled to begin the season December 1st against Rice and will play Duke December 5th at Durham, North Carolina.

Kansas picked up 19 first-place votes and 1,513 overall points. The Jayhawks return four starters from a team that won 27 games a year ago. Kansas has perhaps the best backcourt in the country in Adonis Jordan and Rex Walters.

Duke became college basketball's first repeat champion since UCLA won seven

Anaheim Arena likely to remain cold, lonely

Los Angeles Times

ANAHEIM, Calif.—The NHL's deadline for franchises to file notice of their intent to change markets passed Sunday without a team giving notice, making it increasingly unlikely the Anaheim Arena will have an NHL tenant for its inaugural season.

Arena officials have said that they hoped to lure an NHL team. The arena is scheduled to open next summer.

According to NHL bylaws, teams requesting permission to move must notify the league by Nov. 15. Those bylaws can be circumvented, but NHL President Gil Stein said Monday he did not anticipate such an attempt would be made by a team interested in shifting to Anaheim.

"I don't have any reason to believe anyone's planning to try to move there," Stein said.

Stein also said he was aware the Hartford Whalers and Minnesota North Stars had expressed interest in Anaheim. However, since then, he has met with Connecticut Gov. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. to discuss moves that would keep the Whalers in Connecticut and the North Stars have said they would stay in Minnesota.

Injuries disrupt Redskins' sync

The Baltimore Sun

ASHBURN, Va.—On the last play of the Washington Redskins' 35-16 loss to the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday, quarterback Mark Rypien lined up behind left guard Raleigh McKenzie.

"It wasn't because I got hit (and was woozy). It's just that I'm used to him (at center). It was an embarrassing moment. He was kicking me one over. At least, I didn't start calling the cadence," Rypien said Monday.

That was just one more example of how the Redskins are out of sync because of all the injuries they have suffered this season.

McKenzie had started at center since the fifth game of the season when Jeff Bostic went out, but was forced to switch to left guard when Joe Jacoby was sidelined with a back injury. Rookie center Matt Elliott came in to replace McKenzie.

As the Redskins plan for next Monday night's game against the New Orleans Saints, they have decided to rest Jacoby this week and give Elliott his first start.

"We're going to hang our hat on some guys we're hoping and praying can make it through the week," Rypien said.

They're hoping the same five offensive linemen—Elliott, McKenzie, Ed Simmons, Mark Schlereth and Ray Brown—who finished last week's game can go the whole game so they don't have to switch during the game the way they've been forced to the past two weeks when Mo Elewtonbi and Jacoby were hurt.

That's not the end of the team's injury problems, though.

They will be missing both their starting cornerbacks against the Saints. Martin Mayhew broke his forearm against the Chiefs and Darrell Green, who broke his forearm in the second game of the season, isn't likely to be ready. Meanwhile, A. J. Johnson has a sore knee, so his status is uncertain for the Saints.

Alvoid Mays will start for Mayhew, and Johnny Thomas will go if Johnson can't start.

The Redskins also plan to bring in some free-agent cornerbacks for tryouts this week. They also may activate safety David Gullede from the practice squad. If they make that move, linebacker Johnny Meads will likely be cut.

Meanwhile, the Redskins are uncertain about the status of linebacker Kurt Gouveia and safety Danny Copeland, who sprained their necks in a helmet-to-helmet collision two weeks ago and aggravated the injuries against the Chiefs.

The other players hurting are defensive lineman Fred Stokes (knee), running back Earnest Byner (neck) and cornerback Sidney Johnson (knee).

Pitcher commits to SIUC softball

By Karyn Viverito
Sports Writer

The SIUC softball team has received a boost in the bullpen for next season. University High hurler Buffy Blust from Normal signed a letter-of-intent to play for the Salukis.

Throughout her career, Blust has compiled a record of 37-11 with 413 strikeouts and 257 career no-hitters.

She also struck out a school-record 257 batters in 1991 as she led U-High to the Class A state tournament where her team took third place.

Head coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said the signing of Blust will help fill the void in the Salukis' pitching staff next season.

"She will look to replace Angie Mick who will graduate after the spring season and join Tania Meier on the pitching staff," she said.

Blust also spends some time in the outfield at U-High and may see some action there with the Salukis, Brechtelsbauer said.

"She can provide some help for us in the outfield as well when we lose left-fielder Karrie Irvin and right-fielder Colleen Holloway," she said. "We feel very fortunate to have signed such a talented student-athlete."

The two-time Corn Belt all-conference also carries a strong bat in the box as the lefty has eight homers and 67 RBI in the last two seasons. Her six home runs last season set a school record.

Blust turned down offers from Michigan State, Bradley, Western Illinois and Northern Illinois to attend SIUC. Illinois State and Florida State also showed interest in Blust.

EUROPEANS PREPARE PACKAGE — The European Community is preparing a massive public investment package of new roads, rail lines and communications networks that could provide a burst of economic growth and transform the continent's landscape by bringing East and West closer together. The ambitious plans are designed to revive public interest in the flagging crusade for European unity with "big bang" infrastructure projects that would provide tangible benefits for the public.

JAPAN POLITICIANS DEBATE TOXIC CARGO — While a Japanese freighter steams ahead with a one-ton cargo of highly toxic plutonium, Japanese bureaucrats are engaged in a running argument over the policy that launched the shipment in the first place. With international environmental groups on the attack, officials at Japan's Science and Technology Agency said there would be no change in a long-term program to ship the plutonium from Europe to Japan.

GERMANY CUTS OFF IMMIGRANTS — Germany moved early Tuesday to choke off the growing influx of foreigners from the world's poorer countries, as the main opposition Social Democrats voted to restrict the country's open-door policy to those claiming political asylum. The decision came shortly after midnight after a special party conference. It followed a sharp debate that unfolded against xenophobic, right-wing extremist violence in Germany.

NRA DROPS CONSTITUTIONAL CHALLENGE — The National Rifle Association has dropped its constitutional challenge to California's first-in-the-nation ban on military-style assault weapons, shifting its attack instead to the state's courts, an NRA official said Tuesday. The change in tactics came after NRA attorneys concluded the Supreme Court was unlikely to agree to review a U.S. Court of Appeals decision upholding the 3-year-old statute.

BISHOPS DEBATE WOMAN'S ROLE IN CHURCH — U.S. Roman Catholic bishops, wrestling with the highly charged issue of what roles women play in the church, Tuesday moved into territory the Vatican has declared off-limits, debating whether it is permissible to discuss the ordination of women as priests. The debate came as the bishops, at their semiannual meeting, opened discussion on their controversial pastoral letter on women in the church.

U OF MISSOURI CENTER OF LEGAL BATTLE — After a threatened shutdown black students sued the state, seeking increased funding for its three historically black public colleges. This summer the Supreme Court agreed that the state's higher-education system was separate and unequal. But it returned the case to a lower court to seek a remedy, which for blacks seems to be turning victory into defeat. The proposed remedy involves all of the state's eight public colleges.

SCIENTISTS STILL PURSUE COLD FUSION — Despite adversity, ridicule and fading funding, enthusiasts pursuing the dream of cold fusion keep plugging away, running experiments and reporting success — while most of the world's physicists continue to argue that the whole idea is absurd. At a recent meeting in Japan, for example, researchers from the United States, Japan, India and elsewhere reported getting excess energy from experimental fusion cells.

WORM MAY GIVE LIFE SECRET — Molecular biologist Thomas Johnson is studying a translucent worm no bigger than a printed comma. In this animal composed of just 959 cells, Johnson believes that he may find the answers to questions that have eluded scientists for centuries: What makes us grow old? By breeding tens of thousands of these nematodes, Johnson has created a strain that can live for about five weeks — about 70 percent longer than the worm's average three-week life span.

Bronx Zoo drummer shot to death; Band deals with loss after success

By Dave Kazak
Entertainment Writer

Angelo Torres was a drummer on the verge of great success.

But last Friday morning, before the band he played with could surprise its fans with plans to record a new EP, Torres was shot and killed in Centreville.

In 1988 Torres helped form Bronx Zoo, a band from the Belleville-St. Louis area and a Carbondale favorite, said band manager Randy Forker.

The shining future of the band is clouded over with uncertainty because of the tragedy of Torres death, Forker said.

Centreville Police Chief Mark O'Donnell could not be reached for comment, but he said to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch Monday the man arrested and charged with first degree murder is Alphonso "Capone" Fuller.

According to the article, Fuller, who is from Centreville, has a criminal record, including two felony convictions.

Fuller ran into Torres at a house in Centreville described as a "well-known crack house," police said in the article. It was there Torres got into an argument with Fuller's girlfriend and some of the other people who were there.

After the argument, Torres went to a liquor store in East St. Louis where Fuller, along with others from the house, allegedly abducted Torres, placed him in the trunk and drove back to the house, police said in the article.

Police said Fuller obtained a gun and then drove around some more, stopping about 3:30 a.m. They left Torres out of the trunk and shot him twice, the article said.

Forker said he had no idea why Torres would be at a crack house.

"I really only knew the guys in the band on a business level," he said. "If Angelo had a problem with drugs, I never knew about it."

"(Torres) was extremely popular," Forker said. "He knew all types of people, from doctors and lawyers to bikers. He would go up to the lonely girl standing by herself and say something to make her feel welcome and wanted."

Forker said lead vocalist Bruce Morrison and guitarist Kevin Duckworth were not talking to the press because "they are trying to deal with Angelo's loss."

Forker said Torres and the rest of the band considered Carbondale their home away from home. Whenever Bronx Zoo toured, Carbondale was always on the list of stops, he said.

Forker also said the band was, and hopefully still is, close to doing something successful in the national music scene.

"We were a lot closer than everybody knew," he said. "We wanted it to be a surprise to our fans. Bronx Zoo has been working with Sylvia Masey, a producer who has worked with Prince and Paula Abdul."

"The band was supposed to go to LA and work on a six-song EP very soon at Cherokee Studios," he said.

Getting to record at Cherokee Studios is a tough thing to do, and because of a write up in the west-coast trade magazine "Hits," some record companies have turned their ears toward the music of Bronx Zoo.

"We have had A&R people from a couple different record labels calling and discussing music contracts with the band," Forker said.

Forker said he does not know how Torres' death is going to affect the plans, but he wants the band to continue with their careers.

"We will never be able to replace Torres," he said. "He is irreplaceable. But we have to find a new drummer."

Robbie Stokes, owner of Robco Audio, a local production company that works with Bronx Zoo, said Torres was the heart of the band.

"He was a dynamic and powerful drummer," Stokes said. "The band is like a train without an engine."

Stokes, who also works booking bands for Gatsby's, described Torres personality as polite and straight-forward. He expressed concern at the possible implications of Torres' reasons for being at the house that led to his death, and he said Torres and the other members of the band never gave him trouble.

"By trouble, I mean the band never gave me any problems," he said. "Some bands think they are God's gift to music, and they don't have a leg to stand on musically. They say they're so great, and they maybe draw 30 people.

Annual food drive

Boy Scouts gather food for local needy

By John Rezanaka
General Assignment Writer

Food bins have been placed in strategic places across campus this week as part of the Egyptian Council of the Boy Scouts of America's annual food drive.

Michael Haywood, faculty adviser for Blacks Interested in Business, said the registered student organization is helping the Boy Scouts gather food at the University.

"We have drop off boxes at the Daily Egyptian (Room 1247 in the Communications Building), at the College of Business and Administration in Rehn Hall 122 and at Placement Services in Woody Hall B213," Haywood said. "At other locations across the campus all people have to do is make a phone call and we will pick up the food."

The group's goal is to collect 10,000 cans of food, he said. Group members will deliver bags to people who want to donate food items and pick up the items when the drive is over.

The food collected during the drive will be donated to the Carbondale Food Bank at University Baptist Church and the Good Samaritan food pantry, he said. Local residents will benefit most from the food drive.

The week long food drive will end Friday. People who want to donate food can use the drop off boxes or call Haywood at 453-7498 to arrange for a pickup time.

Center to interest students

In her mind, Linda Herrold can see children's inquisitive faces and hands swarming over exhibits that do not yet exist. At 6:30 tonight, Southern Illinoisans are invited to go to the Science Center open house to share her image.

"We wanted to have the open house so we could show people the space we've acquired from the city, the renovation we've done so far and the exhibits we plan to have," Herrold, an SIUC med prep instructor said. "We hope people will get excited about the science center so they will be able to visualize what we visualize."

Herrold said she and a few others began planning the Science Center, which will be at 611 East College, about a year ago. They expect to have it ready by September or October 1993.

"I thought a science center would be a neat thing to have in Southern Illinois," she said. "Many people will never take their kids to a science center because it's just too far away. I think this could be a real benefit to the people of Southern Illinois."

Jolynn Smith, another med prep instructor, said the program could help local teachers interest students in science.

"There are a lot of teachers in the area who do a good job, but their resources are limited," Smith said. "The science center is a way for kids to get more experience."

"They learn theory at school," she

Possibility of casino suffering lottery fate

GAMBLE THERE. Build schools here.

About eight months ago, in a city far, far away, three private developers approached Chicago Mayor Richard Daley with the idea of a mega-casino and entertainment center. Liking the idea, Daley is sponsoring legislation to authorize gambling so Chicago could build this theme park.

Daley plans to sell bonds to finance school construction and equipment, with the idea that the casino would pay for the bonds with the taxes generated from gambling. Pay by play. The money is to go toward building schools and buying supplies. Will this augment funding school projects or replace them like the lottery replaced education funds?

THE LOTTERY WAS ESTABLISHED to generate funds for education. But as the years rolled on, state funding for schools lowered as the lottery funds took its place. The public believed that the funds were going to help education funding by adding to it, not replacing it. So the schools are no better off than before.

Daley has in mind that the revenues generated from the casino will go into a $1 billion plan to give statewide assistance to schools trying to build additions, other schools and add equipment. The bill he is sponsoring is intended to propose "Classroom 2000," an Illinois School Building Fund.

The private investors, Circus Circus, Hilton Hotels and Caesars' World, want to build in Chicago because of the great potential for business. Knowing they will have to pay taxes, the developers needed little convincing from Daley.

THE WELL-INTENTIONED PLAN is much like the lottery intentions: Allow people to gamble in hopes of some personal return while monies are collected for schools and education. Keep in mind that the money from the lottery is earmarked for education, money from the casino is planned for building, not education itself.

Neutral on the issue is Rep. E.J. "Zeke" Giorgi, who still backs the lottery. "Casinos are not going to be a solution for the state's need for dollars and the state's need for education dollars. I don't want the people hiding behind casinos to think they're going to solve all the problems of education funding in this state."

Riverboats pay 20 percent tax to the state and horse tracks pay between 2 and 6 percent. Some legislators feel that, if the bill passes, the tax should be around 20 percent.

THE FUNDS GENERATED from the casino have the potential to aid state schools dramatically. But the fear of the lottery pattern, where the capital funds become a replacement for state funds, is real. In the case of the lottery, the state was able to shift the responsibility of providing monies to school systems away from itself. The funds have been reallocated toward other projects and the school is no better off than before.

The state should not rely on the casino tax to be the sole support for school capital. If the casino busts, and the state has rested that fund responsibility upon it, education will be worse off than before.

Letters to the Editor

Drug-free partnership ad produces misinformation

On 11/5/92, the D.E. chose to run an ad from the Partnership for a Drug Free America identifying the most clueless person on Earth as a "drug user." What then does the P.D.F.A. consider cigarettes (R.J. Reynolds), alcohol (Anheiser-Busch), medication (Procter and Gamble/Vicks), and pharmaceuticals (Eli Lilly)? For you see, all of the aforementioned are drugs manufactured and sold by sponsors of the P.D.F.A. Fact is, the economic interests of these companies moves under the guise of "caring for the community." This has also been in the ad.

Abusers, not users should be the focus of our efforts. Further, these individuals do not need to be labeled "clueless," they need our help and support, not derision. But the P.D.F.A. is not about support—it is about fear. Already the F.C.C. has pulled some of their ads in California as misleading. This organization persists in misinforming the public about drug use.

Certainly we need to educate our children to make responsible decisions about their life; fears, lies and intimidation are ineffective. Children who realize they have been lied to cease to trust that adult as a reliable source of information; this crippling lack of communication among many families today is responsible for many breakdowns. This tragedy is a direct result of the propaganda from the P.D.F.A.

It has come time to be honest with ourselves and our children, and to reexamine our failed "War on Drugs." I would suggest a dismantling of the P.D.F.A. would be an excellent first step. — Jason Catlin, senior, cinema photography / sociology.

Bible encourages animosity; truth must be decided by self

I have been reading the editorials over then last two weeks going back and forth about homosexual rights.

I find it ironic that all these different beliefs are based on the Bible.

How can the Bible both condemn and condone the homosexuality at the same time? The answer is that it cannot.

It is obvious that the Bible has been interpreted many different ways on this issue alone. However, you'll find that there are any number of issues to which people differ in opinion and base their argument on the Bible.

Both sides of the issue believe their interpretation is correct and any other belief is grounds for an afterlife spent in hell.

I am amazed at how much hatred was displayed by both parties. The Bible seems to only encourage hatred, not promote peace and togetherness.

I will not base my beliefs on a book that promotes this type of attitude.

Instead of looking to a book written thousands of years ago for your own personal morals and beliefs, look inside yourself. Decide for yourself what you believe and what you value, don't just blindly follow an old book.

If someone disagrees with you, its okay to let them know, but that doesn't mean you have to wish upon them eternal agony and pain. Quit fighting over what someone meant when they wrote the Bible and realize that the Bible cannot be taken as THE WORD any longer.

Follow your own personal bible, the one you write for yourself. — Greg Sellek, freshmen, microbiology.

Playboy's visit will not destroy opportunities

I am writing in response to Andrew Ensor's letter (10/27) protesting the visit of Playboy magazine.

Mr. Ensor, you claim your letter was not about freedom of choice, expression, etc. but about respect.

If anyone should be enlightened on the meaning of respect, it's you.

Just who are you to pass judgement on women whom you know nothing about?

Some of the so-called "selfish, self-centered, self-serving" hopefuls for "slut of the month" happen to be very hardworking, intelligent individuals who are merely taking advantage of a wonderful opportunity.

Playboy happens to be a very distinguished magazine.

The photographs are not distasteful nor are its models required to appear nude.

Furthermore, SIU continues to produce very successful graduates. Many of its departments have ranked top in the nation, regardless of its "party school image."

Mr. Ensor wake up. The visit of Playboy magazine is not going to destroy your chances of being successful. Do yourself a favor, continue to pursue your dream and let others continue to pursue theirs. If you work as hard as you say you do ... your academic credentials should stand on their own. — Michelle Santana, senior, radio/television

Police Blotter

SIU Police arrested a university employee Monday afternoon.

Dorothy M. Frank, 39, of rural Carbondale, was arrested at 4:56 p.m. following a traffic stop at the corner of Pleasant Hill and Springer Ridge Roads, police said.

Frank, an office systems assistant in the SIU Crime and Corrections Center, was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, driving with a revoked license, illegal transportation of alcohol, and unlawful possession of cannabis, police said.

Frank posted a $300 bond and was released, police said. A Jackson County court date has been set for Dec. 2.

Baron, who oversees SIUC's computing learning centers, V-SIGN works silently so users do not know it is on a machine or disk, he said. It affects only IBM personal computers and IBM compatible models.

He said campus computer users can zap the virus back with some free ammunition from Computing Affairs.

Students, faculty and staff can stop by the computer learning center in Famer Hall and pick up a free diskette containing F-PROT 2.06A, a software program that can detect more than 97 percent of known viruses.

The diskette and an accompanying handout will show users how to search for and destroy V-SIGN, Baron said. The software also will protect their hard drives against future viral invasions.

"Your machine could get this virus if it is part of a local area network that is infected or if you use a 'dirty' diskette on your computer," Baron said. "We advise anyone who wants to practice safe computing to do this, and the sooner, the better."

For more information, one may call the Computing Information Center at 453-5155.

Melissa Cook, a freshmen pre-major who signed the petition, said she signed because of her strong

Clinton's agenda.

But as Clinton prepared to fly to Washington aboard a charter jet and to remain overnight there in a private hotel, his aides said that they would need to solicit private contributions to supplement the $3.5 million set aside by the government for transition expenses.

As previous presidents-elect have found, taxpayer funds have proven insufficient to meet the enormous costs of organizing a new government.

Clinton chose not to travel aboard an Air Force jet or stay in the government's Blair House, in part because of the high costs involved, the aides said.

"We're trying to cut corners wherever we can," said Dee Dee Myers, Clinton's transition press secretary, describing the new fund-raising effort as "a bare necessity."

The lower-frills travel seemed likely to inject a somewhat informal air to the incoming president's visit to his new home, as did a planned afternoon walk down a main avenue of the capital's depressed black neighborhoods.

In nearly two hours of informal chats with businessmen along the city's Georgia Avenue, Clinton hoped to demonstrate his commitment to urban renewal and "see a different part of Washington" from the prosperous streets near the White House, his chief spokesman said.

The two-day trip to Washington, Clinton's first since winning election, also promised to offer a taste of the capital's fast-changing rhythms as the president-elect attends a pair of dinner parties hosted by leading figures among the Democratic social elite.

The gatherings at the homes of Vernon Jordan, chairman of Clinton's transition board, and Pamela Harriman, a doyen of the party's financial and social circles, were to include senators, members of congress, media figures and others.

The affairs will place the Clintons in Washington salons rarely frequented by recent presidents, who preferred to entertain at the White House.

At a Tuesday afternoon photo session, the 46-year-old Clinton struck a deferential tone as he looked ahead to his meeting with Bush, a man 21 years his senior.

While he intended to ask the president about "one or two things," Clinton said that he would be "pretty much at his disposal."

Former Morris librarian dies

Charles Holliday worked with library for more than 30 years

By Joe Littrell
General Assignment Writer

Charles L. Holliday was born here, educated here, and was Southern Illinois all the way.

That's how a friend described Holliday, formerly an assistant social studies librarian at Morris Library, who died at age 68 of natural causes at his home Sunday.

Holliday was born and grew up in Murphysboro, then began studying at Southern Illinois Normal University.

However, he felt very strongly about the school when it became Southern Illinois University, said Jim Fox, assistant professor of library services, who worked with Holliday from 1975 until his retirement.

"I remember he told me that he held back from graduating for a year, just so he could be one of the first graduating class of SIU," Fox said.

Holliday attended Washington

University in St. Louis, receiving his master's degree in history, then returned to SIU in 1958 to work as a library clerk in Morris Library. He worked at the library for thirty years, attending the University of Illinois in the summer to achieve a degree in library science.

After his retirement, Holliday continued to involve himself in libraries and books, amassing thousands of books in his private collection and serving on the board of Murphysboro's Sally Logan Public Library.

Holliday was a member of the SIUC and University of Illinois Alumni Associations.

Visitation for Holliday will be held from 5 to 9 p.m. Thursday at the Crawshaw Funeral Home in Murphysboro.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Friday in the First Baptist Church in Murphysboro. Memorials to Holliday can be left to the First Baptist Church.

In 1987, Carbondale had total reported retail sales of $478, 496.

By 1991, sales had reached $593, 731, a jump of more than 20 percent.

Murphy said Carbondale's University Mall has played a crucial role in the booming Christmas economy.

"The changes at the University Mall have definitely contributed to the success of holiday sales," Murphy said.

Christmas season promising for mall vendors

Recent expansion expected to attract more customers

By Vincent S. Boyd
Business Writer

Expectations of a busy Christmas shopping season are promising for merchants at the University Mall, a mall executive said.

Richard Murphy, manager of the mall, said he expects to see a boost in sales for this season's shopping.

"There will definitely be a boost in sales because of what we have to offer," Murphy said.

He said more people should be going to the mall because of what it has to offer to its patrons.

"We have more to offer our customers than we did one year ago," Murphy said.

A year ago, the University Mall celebrated the grand opening of a 151,663-square-foot expansion.

He said the expansion has added interest to the property.

"With all the new additions, people have been eager to see the changes being made," he said.

Craig Downing, a senior in mechanical engineering from Chicago, agreed.

He said the new look at the mall has made him more apt to shop there than in the past.

"University Mall used to be one of the most dreaded places in the world to shop," Downing said. "Since they have added the new stores, it makes shopping in Carbondale much easier."

"They finally have stores that are appealing to young people," he said. "The mall has become more in tune with the needs of the young shoppers."

Although Murphy said he knows the new look of the mall is attracting customers, he said the mall is offering a variety of activities for its patrons,

Stores that have opened or will open at Carbondale's University Mall in '92

- All For One: All merchandise priced at $1.
- Afterthoughts: Ladies accessories, costume jewelry, scarves and handbags.
- Stuart's Kids: Fashions and accessories for children and infants.
- American Fish and Chicken: In the food court.
- Garfield's Restaurant and Pub.
- Great American Cookie Co.
- Northern Reflections: Ladies, men's and children active and casual clothing.

- Monfried Optical.
- Wilson Leather: Apparel and accessories.
- Babbages: Computer software.
- Fannie May candy shop.
- Boardwalk Fries: In the food court.

including:

■ On Nov. 20 the mall will have the preview opening of the Enchanted Forest. Sponsored by Memorial Hospital, it is a display of 30 Christmas trees;

■ on Nov. 21, the Arthritis

Foundation is sponsoring the Jingle Bell Run. Proceeds will benefit the foundation;

■ on Nov. 29, Lunch with Santa will be in the in the food court area. It gives children the opportunity to have lunch with St. Nick;

■ Beginning Dec. 13, groups from in and around the Carbondale area will be caroling throughout the mall;

■ and beginning Dec. 17, the mall will be offering free gift wrap.

Along with the new look and activities, the conclusion of the presidential election should lead to increased sales, a mall store manager said.

John Linehan, store manager of JC Penney's, said since the election has been resolved, people can now focus their attention on other issues.

"People can now focus on other things rather than the election," Linehan said. "Families can now concentrate on having a nice Christmas."

John Neal Walker of Carbondale said he is eager to begin shopping for his family.

"In late August and early September I was not looking forward to this time of the year," Walker said. "But as the election neared, the economy appeared to be on the rebound."

"I can't wait to start shopping now," he said.

Linehan said that although the shopping season is too early to call, there is reason to be optimistic.

"We'll see a significant interest in shopping this Christmas," he said.

Another reason for the optimistic outlook is the history of Carbondale's retail sales during the holiday shopping season for the past five years.

According to figures released by the Carbondale Finance department, the city has had an

Carbondale teacher wins Illinois award

By Melissa Willis
Entertainment Writer

A Carbondale teacher said she is shocked at being named one of six recipients of the fifth annual Illinois Distinguished Educator Awards.

Anna B. Jackson is a ninth grade English teacher at Carbondale Community High School.

"The whole thing doesn't seem real to me yet," Jackson said. "The idea of being recognized for my job is exhilarating."

Jackson and the other IDEA winners will be honored tomorrow at a reception luncheon and awards program at the Sheraton Chicago Hotel and Towers. Each winner receives a commemorative award and a check for $25,000 to use as he or she wishes.

"It's like that dream of winning the lottery but never buying a ticket," she said. "I usually don't fill out applications for awards, but the one time I did, it paid off."

Jackson said she occasionally gets discouraged in her work.

"You know in your heart that you are doing a good job and that you are shaping the lives of others, and anything along that line is definitely worth the effort," she said.

Cosponsored by the Illinois Board of Education and the Milken Family Foundation of Santa Monica, Calif., IDEA publicly and financially rewards outstanding educators for their efforts and commitment to the public and private schools of Illinois.

Illinois is one of 20 states to participate in the Milken National Educator Awards Program.

State Superintendent of Education Robert Leininger said these winners exemplify the best in education in Illinois.

"They and the other outstanding individuals in the profession deserve our gratitude and respect," Leininger said. "Programs like IDEA let us not only express our thanks to these people, but allow us to tangibly reward their efforts on behalf of our children."

"Citizens and parents in all Illinois communities should feel as proud of their outstanding teachers and principals as the State Board of Education feels about these six who represent them," he said.

The IDEA selection committee included local school administrators, SIUC College of Education Dean Donald Beggs, and teachers and principals who were past winners. The committee's recommendations were submitted to Leininger who selected the winners. The selection criteria includes instructional skills, leadership and educational and professional development.

Lowell Milken, president of the foundation board, said the winners and others like them are the key to tapping the potential in children.

"In the quest to tap human potential, education, through the dedication of intelligent and creative educators like these six individuals possesses the greatest promise," Milken said.

The Milken Family Foundation is a private philanthropic institution dedicated to discovering and advancing inventive ways to build human resources. They create and operate their own programs and provide financial support to other non-profit organizations involving primarily education, community services, health care, medical research and human welfare, Milken said.

Dawg bytes

Welcome to Dawg Bytes, a weekly column which will appear in the Daily Egyptian on Wednesdays. Stay tuned this semester to learn how to make computer connections on campus work for you. Computers can seem a bit overwhelming at times, but don't worry. The Dawg will lead you through it.

Local Area Networks (LANs)

Q. I heard that Computing Affairs is part of a local area computing network, and the office next to ours is making plans to become one, too. Do they know something I should know? What is a local area network?

A. It is a work group of computer users with common or interrelated software and hardware needs whose work stations are linked so they can share resources, applications and information. Often these are employees in the same office or department, but they can also be people with workstations far across campus from each other.

Q. Can you give me an example of how it works?

A. Sure. Suppose you have a regular need to build spreadsheets using Lotus 1-2-3, an application not on your hard drive. It will use information someone else compiles on another computer. Furthermore, you want several people in other buildings on campus to see the completed spreadsheet without having to mail it or carry it over. If you are part of a local area network involving these other people, you would be able to do this.

Q. How?

A. A local area network is comprised of several workstations connected together by telephone cable. This cluster of workstations is linked to a device (usually another computer) called a server, which works as an extension of each individual hard drive in the LAN. It will store applications, data or other information in a central location. That will give everyone in the network access, and it will save precious memory space. This way everyone can share a program rather than having their own copy installed on their hard drive.

A local area network may have access to several types of servers. Most are named to indicate their function, such as applications servers and database servers. There are also print servers, which contain all the necessary applications and software to control the printing needs of multiple users of one printer. File servers store data, documents or programs to be shared among members of the LAN.

Q. I see. So in the case of your spreadsheet example, I would be able to access a copy of Lotus 1-2-3 from an applications server and the data from a database server. Then I could create a spreadsheet that other people in my LAN could look at by accessing it through that same database server.

A. Exactly.

Q. I get it. It reminds me of the Apple computer network we have in our office.

A. Yes. Macintosh machines come with something called AppleTalk which allows you to interchange data and other information among all of the Mac users in your office just like any LAN.

Q. Is it expensive to set up an LAN?

A. The cost varies depending on what is required to create your network. Factors include the number of work stations in the network, the amount of software you need to make the connections and whether or not your machines must be upgraded. The benefits may outweigh the cost, however, if those in your office share a lot of data or equipment such as printers, faxes and plotters.

Our goal at Computing Affairs is to get the University computer system to the point where people wanting to be part of a LAN won't have to establish Vanity Computer IDs are here!

How would you like to be known to your computer friends as MATHWIZ, TOPDAWG, HANDSOME TOUGH1 or 2COOL?

Beginning Monday, Nov. 30, Computing Affairs will offer vanity computer IDs to students, faculty and staff. People opening new mainframe accounts and those who already have one can invent their own "vanity IDs" of up to eight characters—numbers from one to nine, letters from A to Z or a combination of both. Anything qualifies, even a foreign word, as long as it's not "offensive" (as defined by Computing Affairs).

New users who don't want to design their own ID will automatically get a personalized one comprised of the first initial of their first name and up to seven characters of their last name.

If you are a current mainframe account holder who wants a "vanity ID," you need to decide if you want to transfer your existing files from your old ID to the new one. If you do this, your old ID will remain operative until June 30, 1993, but your stored files will be under your new ID. In fact, the old ID will only be useful for query tasks such as skimming through the bulletin board. You can also choose to keep storage space under the old ID and obtain new storage space under a new vanity ID. But you will be charged $36 for the additional storage space.

Also, if you have access to University databases such as the Student Information System (SIS) with your current ID, you will have to re-establish this access with your new user id. If you use INTERNET or BITNET, you will have to alert people in those networks to your new user id, too.

To order a "vanity ID," students should fill out a Request for Computer Access form at Computer Learning Center II. Faculty and staff should see Bob Roy at the Computing Information Center. (Both facilities are in the basement of the Communications Building.) List three user id alternatives on the form in case your first or second choices are taken. Include your current ID if you are replacing it with a new one, and indicate if you want your storage space transferred.

Your request should be processed right away. (Bring a photo ID.) You can mail the form to the Business Office of Computing Affairs to be processed. It will take three to four days.

their own network. They will simply be connected to one that already exists.

Q. I'd like to explore the idea of setting up a local area network for my office. What should I do?

A. Contact Charlie Campbell at Computing Affairs, 453-6282. You can sit down with him and discuss what your needs are and how a network might help make your office more efficient and productive. Computing Affairs can give you an estimate of the cost of the project, which will enable you to determine whether or not you really need to make this investment.

Q. Are there many LANs on campus?

A. Yes. About 35 to 40 LANs involving approximately 3,000 work stations are set up in 14 major University buildings such as Faner Hall, Morris Library and the Wham Building. These LANs are further linked up to form a campus area network that gives LAN members even more information and resource-sharing capabilities.

In addition to these three dozen or so LANs, there are a number on campus that aren't hooked into the campus area network. These free-standing LANs are located in buildings that haven't been connected to the campus area network yet. In the future, the University hopes to expand the campus area network to include all buildings, even student residence halls.

Stay tuned for the next Dawg Bytes column when we explore the value of a campus area computer network.

believes that the penalties are disproportionate to the findings. It finds that the committee appears to set a precedent that infractions in one sport can result in a finding of university-wide, non-compliance.

MVC commissioner Doug Elgin said the penalties will have a serious impact on the Tulsa athletic program and the MVC.

"I have tremendous empathy for the current student-athletes who are going to be impacted by these sanctions, but who were not even enrolled when the violations took place," Elgin said. "They are unquestionably the innocent victims in this situation."

SIUC athletic director Jim Hart said it could be argued that it was not an issue that involved all sports.

"Tulsa has issued a pretty strong statement, and I anticipate that there might be legal action," he said.

Elgin said the Tulsa administration has every right to appeal this decision, and that right will be supported and respected.

The committee has stated they took into consideration the fact that Tulsa cooperated fully with the investigation and noted the measures taken to improve its procedures by replacing the coaches involved with the allegations. They are calling the ruling they gave Tulsa less than the minimum penalties.

Donaldson stated that it was an unfathomable twist of logic to not penalize the track program but all of the athletic programs, and he cannot find the penalties less than the minimum required.

SIUC head basketball coach Rich Herrin said he is disappointed with the extension of the probation.

"It is too bad that it had to happen to the young men and women athletes at Tulsa who all have to suffer with the NCAA punishment," he said.

Tulsa's Golden Hurricanes ousted Herrin's Salukis in the MVC championship tournament last season and were picked to finish within the top three this season.

Herrin said it is also disappointing to see the probation affect Tulsa basketball.

It is not clarified as to whether or not Tulsa will be able to compete in the MVC championship tourney this season, but if they do, Hart said it could raise some concerns.

"If they were allowed to participate in the MVC tournament, I would have to make sure that the runner-up was allowed to go to the NCAA tournament in the event that Tulsa wins it," he said.

consecutive titles from 1967 to 1973. The Blue Devils, coached by Mike Krzyzewski, received 15 first-place votes and 1,504 points in the poll.

The Final Four team from a year ago, is number four in the poll. The Hoosiers, who had six first-place votes, feature one of the best forward tandems in the country.
