Board resolution asks veto override

The Board of Trustees voted Thursday to appeal to legislators to override Gov. Jim Edgar's veto of a $24 million reduction of the SIU budget.

At their regular monthly meeting, the board passed a resolution asking that the $24 million SIU budget approved by the Illinois General Assembly be granted in full.

If SIU gets the money, it will be used for construction of an elevator at the Hospital in Carbondale, construction of a student center in Carbondale, and additional operating funds for the university.

Admission standards get Board approval

By Joan Pearman

The proposed tightening of SIU's admission requirements was approved by the Board of Trustees Thursday, after the board amended to allow for a review of the special admissions program in two years.

The board voted 6 to 1 to approve the amended admission policy at its monthly meeting in East St. Louis. Margaret Blackshere of Madison was the only regular board member to vote against the proposal.

Blackshere said she felt the new policy would make the university seem "dictatorial." She said it would mean the University would be telling beginning freshmen what their chance of success is before they start attending classes.

Rod Seeley, student trustee, also voted against the policy, but his vote is only accepted on an advisory basis.

President Brandt suggested that the effects of the policy on beginning freshmen should be reviewed by the board in two years after board member William Norwood of Els Grove Village questioned whether forcing students to participate in academic assistance programs would improve their performance at the university.

The board decided that a report on the effects of the policy should be submitted to the board by July of 1978. After two years the board will decide if the effects of the policy requiring that beginning freshmen score in the upper two-thirds on their ACT examination and in the upper half of their graduating class or score in the upper 50 per cent on the ACT should be accepted as a permanent admission requirement.

The resolution of the policy requiring that transfer students have a cumulative C average in all schools previously attended before they would be admitted to SIU was approved by the board as a permanent admission requirement.

Norwood described the program as "theoretical" and asked what a commitment had been made to support the Basic Skills program if the University does not receive federal funding in the future.

Frank Horton, vice president for academic affairs and research, said a bill of the Illinois Board of Higher Education refused federal funds. The University's commitment would be "sorely tested." He said SIU would have to reallocate their funds if this happened.

Brandt said the proposed policy is "not theoretical" and has been used nationwide with "great success.

In answer to Norwood's concern that the special admissions programs should not force students to participate in the academic assistance programs, Brandt said some SIU tutors have "let students out of bed to make them go to classes." He said SIU was not able to get more federal funding for the Basic Skills programs in the past because not enough students use the services the programs offer.

John Huffman, University legal counsel, spoke to the board on the legal implications of enacting the policy.

Huffman said he and other University administrators spoke to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) in Chicago last week. He said HEW indicated there could be potential problem "and the burden of proof would lie on the University."

The HEW representatives said "to go ahead and try it" after they examined the academic reasoning behind the new policy and the long range positive impact, it would have on students, Huffman said.

Ford accuses Carter of slandering U.S.

By Dick Barnes
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford accused Democrat Jimmy Carter of slander on Thursday night of "slanding the good name of the United States" in his challenge of Ford administration policies following the second presidential debate.

Ford lashed out at Carter during a nationally broadcast news conference which he opened by declaring his pleasure that the special Watergate prosecutor had put to rest "once and for all" allegations that he misused government funds as a congressman.

The President called for a shift in the focus of the campaign to the serious differences between him and Carter.

"Gov. Carter and I have profound differences of opinion," Ford said. "I hope in the 30 days remaining in our campaign we can talk seriously and honestly about the serious differences."

Responding to questions about his role during the Watergate break-in, Ford said he was minority leader of the House of Representatives, his acceptance of golfing vacations and his use of campaign funds for personal clothing. Ford said all such allegations had been thoroughly investigated and no wrongdoing had been found.

Ford said he had been questioned fully during hearings on his confirmation as vice president about any involvement in trying to block the House Banking Committee from holding hearings on the Watergate break-in.

As for recent allegations by former White House Counsel John W. Dean III that he met six times with a White House aide to discuss strategy for blocking the probe, Ford said, "I'm not going to pass judgment on what Mr. Dean now alleges."

Ford already has said he accepted a number of golfing trips from William Whyte, a longtime personal friend and lobbyist for U.S. Steel Corp. Asked if there may have been other such trips not yet disclosed, Ford said, "There may be one or two more, but I can't recall the instances."

All the trips took place while he was a member of the House.

"I have not accepted any such trips since I have been vice president or President," he said.

Ford said campaign funds he used for traveling to Vail, Colo., for vacations were returned to his congressional election account.

When a reporter questioned whether Ford was diluting the campaign account Ford said the campaign account would have overdrawn his checking account, Ford smiled and said, "A few people have

Elbert Simon, president of the Coalitions of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Thursday he will file a complaint against an off-duty officer for physically abusing a woman at the police station.

Simon said the complaint will be filed on behalf of Christine Murphy, who accused Officer James Ealy of dragging her by the hair, threatening her life and calling her a "bitch.

"I believe Chief George Kennedy said Thursday neither he nor Maurizio would comment on the allegations until an investigation by the police department's internal affairs division completed.

Murphy said the incidence occurred Sunday night when she went to the police station where her 13-year-old son, Tony, and his cousin, Anthony Ealy, 18, were both held on suspicion of shoplifting.

She said that after the boys had been released, she asked for release of two bicycles owned by Tony and his brother Michael. She said she was not picked up the bicycles because they had no legal release.

Murphy said police would not release the bicycles even after they found record showing the bikes were registered.

The city of Charleston's three-year program should spend an expected $2.5 million federal grant on physical improvements, a group of citizens told the residents. Murphy said Wednesday night.

The residents, speaking at a public hearing called to gather citizen input on the spending, said the money should go toward improvements in the downtown area, the Poplar Street have.

The city may receive.

During the time she was dragged, Murphy said she went to Memorial Hospital for treatment of the station.

Landlord arrested for striking tenant

By Scott Singleton

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale landlord Paul Parrish was arrested on a charge of battery Thursday afternoon after he allegedly struck one of his tenants, an SIU student, in the mouth with a hammer.

Gregory McElroy, a 23-year-old junior in zoology, said the complaint allowing an argument which occurred during Parrish's efforts to evict McElroy from an apartment on New River Road. McElroy said he was being visited for having a dog on the premises in violation of the contract.

After being released on $100 bond, Parrish came back to the apartment and said: "You boys have now official nice to move. You've got 30 days."

That dog better not be here any longer. He also said the tenants would lose their damage deposits.

McElroy said Parrish came over to his apartment, said he had five minutes to remove the dog, and said McElroy argued that the dog had only been in the apartment once, so he could stay.

According to McElroy, Parrish then said "you're going to be here."

McElroy allegedly struck McElroy in the mouth with the butt of a hammer.

McElroy who was treated at the SIU Health Service for a bruised lip and arm, said he did not strike back at Parrish.

Before Parrish was arrested, he asked McElroy if he was sure he wanted to press charges. Parrish told McElroy that if he did not reconsider, all the tenants would have to move. Parrish then said "I signed the complaint because you hit me with the hammer. Parrish answered, 'I'm going to sign one (complaint) against you again.'

McElroy admitted he had had the dog on the premises since the beginning of the semester, but he said the dog had been living in his van. He said the only time the dog had been in the apartment was for 15 minutes Tuesday morning.

McElroy said Parrish came over Tuesday morning, saw the dog and said everybody living in the apartment would have to move out that day.

Kurt Farantz, one of McElroy's roommates, said Parrish's son-in-law, Christopher Bonham, came over later that day to talk to Farantz. Bonham said Parrish had called him saying the tenants could stay if they got rid of the dog. Farantz said there was no time limit set on how long they would have to keep the dog in.

After he was released on bond, Parrish said he had asked that the dog be repeatedly removed from the apartment and said that the dog had been hidden from him. "If I can't keep the thing, bring it here," Parrish said. "I might as well go out of business."

McElroy said he intends to file suit against Parrish for personal injury and civil damage.

Parrish's arraignment is tentatively scheduled for Oct. 20.

Liquor board would keep dealer-member

By Scott Singleton

The Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board voted Wednesday night to retain the deck of the City Council that a liquor dealer be retained as nonvoting member.

The board voted to support the City Council that a liquor dealer be retained as a nonvoting member.

The board was to be limited to a one-year term.

During its Oct. 4 informal meeting, the City Council presented with a proposed amendment to the ordinance high established the board. The amendment said in part that "the best interests of the citizens of the City of Carbondale could be served if the Liquor Advisory Board of the City of Carbondale contain 7 ex officio members, and no members who are involved in the liquor business."

The City Council proposed would have in effect force W. Stephen Hoffmann, winner with his brother Thomas, of astigate Liquor Mart, and the board's ex officio member, off of the card. Before the board voted Hoffmann said, "should the council see fit to pass at will motion, I would be glad to resign."

In July, W. Stephen and Thomas Hoffmann were found guilty of inflating their liquor application forms and received a 30-day liquor license suspension. The suspension was stayed down by the Carbondale Liquor commission and is currently being appealed to the Illinois Liquor Commission.

In pushing for retention of liquor dealer membership on the board, Hoffmann said he did not feel he had exerted "inordinate influence" on the board. He said of the ex officio membership, "They don't vote, for God's sake, they just talk."

Hoffmann questioned the wisdom of eliminating liquor license holders from the board while there is a student representative who has voting power.

Jean Sternberg, recently appointed to the board, said students "don't have the same dollars and cents interest in the board" that the liquor dealers do. She said--since the students are not concerned about the license holders' profit margins, they should be represented on the board.

Leilani Weiss, secretary of the board, said if the decision is made to exclude ex officio membership from the board, there should be a concerted effort to get the board's agenda to all liquor license holders.

Hoffmann said he distributes information about the board's meetings to the license holders "as it affects individuals."

Weiss said something must be done to inform the interested parties of the board's business because, "I am not going to get back to sending 20 agendas out.

Stenberg said Hoffmann apparently was not representative of the majority of license holders nor did he have his support. She said, "I am a license holder would have been there to back him up. The sole license holder at the meeting, aside from Hoffmann, was John Karagiannis. Karagiannis said the other license holders "did not get involved because it's a fight between Hoffmann and the majority." In other action, the board voted to approve the application of the Reed Corp. for license to open a package liquor store at 1225 W. Main St. The application will go to the State Liquor Commission and is a subsequent to the company's lease being filed.

The Ion's fact board reported on proposed liquor ordinance revisions and a response to the General Services Administration's new statement of the state liquor agency. The board's action would make quarterly inspections of the bars "in the very near future." It presently makes two inspections per year.

Thompson learning art of vote hustling

By Robert Wren
Associate Editorial Page Editor

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson has painted himself throughout his campaign as a man of integrity untouched by the influences of the Daley machine and this has worked quite well for him. As a novice politician, voters seem to be impressed by the lack of corruption and cynicism in his background. Indeed, he prosecuted those very things while he was U.S. Attorney for Northern Illinois.

But Thompson has learned fast. In another step toward mastering the political art of hustling votes, he has endorsed both collective bargaining for Illinois teachers along with the right to strike. Note well that the candidate made the pledge to support teacher strikes while he was ranked by top officials of the Chicago Teacher's Union President Robert Healey had to scramble to explain what jobs already existed, let alone quibble over salary.

Endorsing the right to strike will give teacher's unions a powerful axe to hold over the head of school districts every year.

If Mr. Thompson is against striking affecting the public health, he obviously considers it healthy if I have school children looking for something to do every September rather than attending school.

Collaborating for teachers coupled well binding arbitration is reasonable; a strike is not. I am unable to state that everyone loses in a strike, but it's true especially where teacher strikes are concerned.

If Thompson won't make a definite statement regarding taxes for Illinois, what he favors publicly should be kept clear of scrutiny in an attempt to determine what it will cost us. If he won't tell us anything directly regarding state finances, we'll just have to figure it out for ourselves.

SIU police should focus on crime, not bikes

I would like to commend the SIU campus police for their concerted efforts to wipe out the rash of motor vehicle and campus facility violations that occur on this campus.

Vehicular registration is an excellent idea and we do not object to complying with this regulation. However, it is high time we received security services commensurate with the fees we are assessed each year for the privilege of parking our vehicles on campus.

Now, for all the paltry fines that are levied, there are felonious crimes committed here weekly. Our car batteries and eight-track tapes may occasionally disappear (if we have the money to replace them), but that's a small price to pay for security services that virtually guarantee a tax increase by kowtowing to the campus police.

Big Jim then proceeded to flip-flop on the strike issue by saying he couldn't possibly make himself "as a public official, on strike, but he thinks that collective bargaining for teachers "is a concept whose time has come." What about the right to strike, Mr. Thompson?

The Republican who doesn't make promises then turned around by stating he opposes strikes by public officials that would affect public health and safety.

The beginning of this school year featured teacher strikes all over the state. The predilection of the strikers was primarily over salary demands which the school districts simply couldn't satisfy. So dire was the plight of the Chicago Teacher's Union President Robert Healey had to scramble to explain what jobs already existed, let alone quibble over salary.

Endorsing the right to strike will give teacher's unions a powerful axe to hold over the head of school districts every year.

I have been annoyed by the recent rash of articles concerning former Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

I did not know that a student paper had such a conservative attitude toward national news. In the article printed by the Daily Egyptian, Butz was talked about as if he were a saint. The American people and the stupider students of this university are going to end up sympathizing with Butz even though he has been turned off for the weekens---«Jr

"Racial slur" was hardly the words to use in describing Butz's statement. Earl Butz should be called what he is---a racist. For a man in his position to make such a statement is beyond moral or ethical values. Deeper still for him to say such things shows how the whole Ford administration is truly colored black. For any black to vote for Ford would be beyond my comprehension.

"Why is it that this paper did not print the statement made by Butz?" What ever happened to the public's right to know? For those of you who don't know, Butz said "I'll tell you why you can't attract coloreds. Because coloreds only want three things: first, a tight pussy; second, loose shoes; and third, a warm place to shit. That's all." When I first read this statement, I laughed. Then I looked at the thoughts behind such a statement.

Then I looked at the position of the man who said it. The press tried to force the public into believing that the statement didn't mean anything.

But it had to mean something since a man lost his job over it. The statement sums up the majority of the thinking of the middle and upper class whites in America. For the time being, SIU's Daily Egyptian is expressing its own opinion. It has rightly chosen to express its opinion.

Because coloreds only want three things: first, a tight pussy; second, loose shoes; and third, a warm place to shit. That's all." When I first read this statement, I laughed. Then I looked at the thoughts behind such a statement.

Then I looked at the position of the man who said it. The press tried to force the public into believing that the statement didn't mean anything.

But it had to mean something since a man lost his job over it. The statement sums up the majority of the thinking of the middle and upper class whites in America. For the time being, SIU's Daily Egyptian is expressing its own opinion. It has rightly chosen to express its opinion.

Editor's Note: An Associated Press representative in the Chicago bureau said Wednesday the unbridled quote was included in stories transmitted at 8:55 p.m. on Oct. 1 and at 7:50 a.m. on Oct. 2. The Daily Egyptian's AP teletype had been turned off for the weekend---our normal procedure because we try to go to press earlier on Fridays---before the first story was transmitted Saturday. Letter's stories transmitted by the AP, the Daily Egyptian's main source of world and national news, did not repeat the quote verbatim.

Good music

I was very proud of our Marching Salukis last Sunday when they represented SIU at the University of St. Louis Cardinals-Philadelphia Eagles game in St. Louis.

Their famous rendition of our national anthem was outstanding. Their program reflected excellence through long hours of preparation. Thank you all, we need you.

Eugene McCarthy: Out to beat the system and win an election

By Jim Santori, Editorial Page Editor

Running for the presidency for the third time in eight years, 60-year-old Eugene McCarthy, an independent candidate, is attacking the two party system which he considers "an infringement of our political rights."

McCarthy, former Democratic Senator from Minnesota, anti-war candidate in the 1968 presidential race and the also-ran of the 1972 elections, is now running against what he says is the "stagnated, office-clutching two-party system" in America.

"The two-party system," says McCarthy, "is like having only two established religions. You can belong to one or the other. That's religious freedom."

McCarthy has been stumping state by state trying to get on the ballot by challenging elections laws, laws which he says were made to stifle third party challengers. For the most part, he has been successful overturning the laws in 14 states and being placed on the ballots of more than 30, including Illinois.

In McCarthy's view, these state laws and the 1974 Federal election law are favor incumbents and party institutions at the expense of challengers. Attacking the campaign-finance laws, McCarthy says "The American taxpayer is not financed with matching funds from the Crown."

Because he has not been financed, McCarthy says, people are not voting. In 1974, 60 per cent of all eligible voters stayed home. That 60 per cent, says McCarthy, is his natural constituency interest of inter-departmental understanding, we are printing the text verbatim in the spirit in which it was presented.

Wanderings, Ruminations, Rumblings and Joy

Since reporting to you last, I have maintained my credibility—no free lunches or aeroplane rides. Also, thank you all for your cards, letters and kind comments concerning my last report. Since no one sent me a single correction, let us assume the data were correct. Most of the problems cited are being extinguished by those in authority.

The Daily Egyptian has printed a few reports with the headline "Senate Veep Reports—A View from the Top." I appreciate the ego satisfying headline and the information. However, the point of these reports is the opposite—I hope they prove me right. The reason? It is just a report on what our colleagues are saying, thinking and sometimes rumbling about.

Some Good News

House Administration recently learned that people in Southern Illinois are generally pleased with SIU and our students. The research conducted by the Social Science Research Bureau was a good shot in the arm. Two senate members were instrumental in that research, professors McGlynn and Jackson. Also, congratulations to the Saluki football team for getting a winning style going again. There seems to be an evolving positive enthusiasm concerning the football Salukis. Frequently I am told that faculty morale is going down. I am not ready to make such a pronouncement. If the Salukis can keep winning a few and our students can keep impressing the local populace, perhaps faculty morale will increase.

Before turning to the bad news, there is a wondering. In November we will have the annual faculty meeting. Do you recall the horror story we heard at last year's meeting? One faculty member reported on her horrendous weekly teaching load. We, as Senate members, sat, listened and forgot. Wonder what horror stories we are going to hear this year and I wonder if we-will-again react—"Oh, that poor sucker. Now before you call me a McCarthyist, let me challenge you..." In this sealed envelope I have an accurate figure that represents the number of direct teaching hours one faculty member spends per week. If you, Senate members, were to talk to your colleagues, I wonder if you can better my number? Let's compare figures at our next meeting.

The Bad News

Last month I reported on the obnoxious salary increases at the Board Staff. Looking over the salary increase data, the faculty are making a discovery. The faculty use to think that the purposes of the University were represented in the key words "Teaching, Research, and Service." The faculty now discovers that the new key words, when it comes to merit salary increases are, "Administration, Publication and Administration."

And, the worst news of all is again attributable to the million dollar boondoggle gang, the Board Staff and their chief, James Brown. This fall semester some faculty attempted to collect their thoughts for the academic year. The faculty retreated—and generally those retreats were held in their unglamorous individual offices, their spartan conference rooms and perhaps the Student Center. One College spent an evening at the Touch of Nature and the central administration retreated to Logan College. Nothing against these places, but the Michelin Guide gives no stars to faculty offices, dual conference rooms, the Touch of Nature or Logan College.

In this sealed envelope I have an accurate figure that represents the number of direct teaching hours one faculty member spends per week. If you, Senate members, were to talk to your colleagues, I wonder if you can better my number? Let's compare figures at our next meeting.

Speechwriter might be ‘Deep Throat’

NEW YORK (AP) — Former White House counsel John Dean concluded while in prison that “Deep Throat,” the mysterious informer in the Washington Post’s coverage of the Watergate scandal, was Nixon speechwriter David Gergen, the New York Post said Wednesday.

The Post said Dean arrived at his conclusion after talking with former White House friends and long personal deliberation. But the Post said Dean declined to name Gergen as the figure in his just-published book, “Blind Ambition—The White House Years,” because he was not absolutely sure.

The 34-year-old Gergen, now director of President Ford’s White House Office of Communications, said, “there is not one scintilla of evidence that I had, or was in a position to have,” the material Deep Throat gave to Washington Post reporter Bob Woodward.

Since Woodward and fellow reporter Carl Bernstein wrote about the cover-up scandal, guessing the identity of “Deep Throat” has been a favorite parlor game around Washington with names such as former CIA Director Richard Helms, former FBI Director L. Patrick Gray, former Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, former FBI official W. Mark Felt and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, often cropping up.

Taylor Branch, who edited Dean’s book, said Dean thought long and hard about his “Deep Throat” conclusion. Taylor said it was only Dean’s penchant for accuracy that prevented the former White House counsel from naming Gergen in the book.

The Post said that Gergen has acknowledged that he acted as a contact between Woodward and the White House from the spring of 1973 through the Watergate period but he insists that during 1972, when the break-in and cover-up took place, he had “zero contact” with Woodward.

Eboney not just a pretty face

Twelve SIU. coeds will vie for the University's Miss Eboney crown Oct. 25 in a pageant that is not a beauty contest.

Put on by Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, the pageant is "totally different" from run-of-the-mill beauty pageants, said Darrell Tucker, Black Affairs Council coordinator and member of the fraternity.

Tucker said the affair is a "cultural event that highlights the contestants' scholastic abilities, personality, talent and involvement in community life." Miss Eboney will represent all SIU black students at various events throughout the year, he said.

Aretha Blake's, the reigning Miss Eboney from Altoa, has appeared on television talk shows, taken part in radio programs and made guest appearances at various campus activities. She is scheduled to appear on "Black Dimension," a WSIU-TV talk show this Tuesday.

Judges for the fifth annual Miss Eboney pageant, with the theme "Vision of an Ethiopian Dream," are Harvey Wells, all-dean of student life; Clifford Harper, dean of general academic programs; Gayle Brown, Black Affairs Council advisor; Lynn Connely, University librarian's staff assistant; and Karla Bell, general studies advisor.

Contestants include Brenda L. Leonard from Alton, Miss Eboney from Chicago; Linda J. Anderson, senior in elementary education; Linda Bell, senior in social welfare; Lynstra Jackson, senior in special education; Karen Jones, sophomore in nursing; Grettie Lee, sophomore in business education; Glendora Marshall, second-year theater major; Diane Smith, a freshman in elementary education, and Donna M. Williams, a first-year psychology student.

Contestants from other cities include: Erma Dot Coutler from East St. Louis, a senior in administration of justice; Carolyn Clark from Elgin, a third-year administration of justice student; Vivian L. Cobb from Maywood, a freshman in psychology and social welfare; and Joan L. Fuller from Alton, a freshman journalist major.

Opera to be staged

One of the all-time favorite Grimm's fairy tales, "Hansel and Gretel," will be presented by the Marjorie Lawrence Opera Theatre Sunday at 3 p.m.

Along with the opera, the set music more than 1,000 years ago by Engelbert Humperdink, the opera theater will also be performing "Opera. Opera." "Hansel and Gretel" tells the story of two children, who lose their way in the woods while picking berries and are captured by a wicked witch who bakes children into gingerbread.

She puts Hansel, played by Brenda L. Leonard, in a cage and sets Gretel, performed by Leslie Comerly, to work. The children outfit her and break her spell. In the end, everyone joins in a hymn of thanksgiving.

"Hansel and Gretel" will be preceded by Martin Kalmus's "Opera. Opera." It is a well-meaning spoof of the old school of opera in the grand style exemplified by a description of opera as "anything that happens anywhere, at any time, for any reason."

The opera is full of action, with the audience included on stage.

Both operas are staged by Marajean Marvin, associate opera director. Ms. Marvin also adapted and translated Hansel and Gretel for the opera theater. Costumes are designed by Richard Van. There is no admission charge for either opera.
Two male vocalists release pleasing albums

It seems that sometimes a man just has to strike out on his own, and, in this instance, what has resulted is a couple of very satisfying albums from two consistently pleasing performers.

Ferry’s third solo outing is the better of these two, being a super-slick blend of country, aggressive rockers and elegant ballads. Perhaps he could not keep up with enough new material, or perhaps he has a big backlog of tunes already taped, but for whatever reason, the Harp orchestra will give concert

The Mimura Harp Orchestra of Tokyo will perform a free concert at Shryock Auditorium Monday at 8 p.m.

The members of the orchestra are eighteen Japanese girls ranging in age from 15 to 25. The requirements for acceptance into the Harp Ensemble are extremely strict. Works from composers like Vivaldi, Handel, Mozart, Schubert and Saint Saens will be performed along with Japanese folk and contemporary music arranged for the harp.

The program is being sponsored jointly by the Cultural Affairs of the Student Government Activities Council and the Graduate Student Council of SIU.

Library computer helps cope with 33,000 books a month

By Joe Campbell
Student Writer

Have you ever wondered what happens to a book before it reaches the shelves of Morris Library? The people on the seventh floor may, and they know it well.

The librarians…Civil Service employees and student workers in the Cataloging Department on the seventh floor of the library process more than 33,000 books a month. And that is only books. The Serials Department processes all the newspapers, magazines and books written in series that the library receives.

The Cataloging Department, headed by Lilly Crane, is staffed by 13 librarians, 17 civil service employees, and 15 student workers. They work in three sections of the department: computer, marking and originals.

A book is first introduced to the Cataloging Department by the Ordering Department on the first floor. The department decides which books to order and then purchases them, Crane said.

Once a book has reached the Cataloging Department, it has to be identified with the help of a computer known as the Ohio College Library Data Bank. The computer has a listing of Dewey decimal numbers and other information for many books in circulation.

The computer section is then notified through its terminals by the data bank of the designated Dewey call numbers and other characteristics of the book.

Crate said that 80 per cent of the books the Cataloging Department receives are on record in Ohio. If they are not on record, the original section takes over. Original work without the help of the computer is necessary.

From there, the book leaves the seventh floor and is eventually transferred to the waiting arms of students and faculty.

The story is not finished, however. In a week the data bank prints the necessary cards for the various catalog cards subject, author, title to keep a record of where the book is located. Crate explained that it takes from seven to 10 days to receive the cards and file them.

"The people at Ohio College charge $2 for the initial request for book information," Crane said. "Plus four cents for every catalogue card, bringing the total cost of the average book to $2.10."

Rats given marijuana show less sex growth

CHICAGO (AP) — The active ingredient in marijuana affects sexual development of rats and could prove to have the same effect on boys and girls, researchers at the University of Massachusetts Medical School at Worcester, and Dr. John M. MacIndoe of Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D.C. have reported.

The marijuana researchers found young rats exposed to a part of pot developed female-like breasts and lowered sexual development.

"Whether these phenomena occur in humans has major implications for human users is also unclear," said Dr. John W. Harmon, a surgeon at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D.C.

Harmon presented a report at the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons. He said Delta Nine Tetrahydrocannabinol (THC): the part of the marijuana plant that is called hash, caused experimental rats to develop smaller testicles.

He conducted his experiment with a doctor, Menzies A. Alagaus, professor of surgery at the University of Massachusetts Medical School at Worcester, and Dr. John M. MacIndoe of Walter Reed.

Sixteen rats were given THC for their adolescent period and compared with two similar groups which had not received the marijuana ingredient. The THC rats had smaller testicles after they were killed, although the weight of their bodies and livers was the same, Harmone said.

PRIZE NO USE
WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Patrick Curley, an 89-year-old retired subway motorman, won a car in a fund-raising raffle at a high school here, but he had no use for it.

During 45 years of driving subway trains in New York City, Curley never learned how to drive an automobile. The data bank terminals are open weekdays from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Saturdays from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Crane added that response time is better after 4 p.m. and on Saturdays because the computer is less taxed during those hours.

Since the Cataloging Department started using the data bank system two years ago, the time it takes to process a book has been reduced from several months to a matter of three weeks.

Crate said more than 800 libraries across the nation use the data bank system.

Rockin' out in C'dale: from stone to jewelry

By Mike Ervin
Student Writer

Robinson, our night supervisor, who Cincinnati is leaving to take last square mom types, because we were all partying sometimes aren't offfice, along.

Jewelry is a personal item," says Cieand. "It is not like a refrigerator. Jewelry shows a part of a person's personality." Because of this pride in their craft, they say they will sell only what they think is the best

How does one start his own rock shop?

Cieand, a native of Mascoutah, was studying geology at SIU in June. 1979 when he decided to make some extra money by opening the shop. He admits that at the time he knew nothing about running a business, but learned as he went along.

"I wanted to start small," he said, "when you operate small, your mistakes are small.

Almost a year later Melichar was on his way to Phoenix from Chicago when he stopped in Carbondale. He sold some rocks in Carbondale for gas money to continue his trip. After another year of traveling, Melichar returned to Carbondale to join Cieand in the business. Melichar had spent four years traveling, supporting himself largely by selling the Indian jewelry. he said. Cieand, the Rock Shop's wares come as far away as Australia and Brazil. There are also hundreds of domestic suppliers.

Running a rock shop isn't always paradise. Like other businesses, a rock shop contends with rising costs.

Two years ago Tager Five sold for one dollar a pound. Now if you can find it, it sells for eight dollars a pound, Cieand said.

Cieand added that the Indian bloodstone and the Persian turquoise, once common rocks, are rarely available to American dealers now. Cieand said it is more profitable for the foreign suppliers to make their own jewelry so they keep the stones for themselves.

Both Cieand and Melichar plan to continue rock dealing, but Cieand says he would like to relocate the shop. He would also like to take some time off and head for California to do some prospecting.

Melichar said he is content to remain in Carbondale and at the shop.

This is the first time since 1972 that I have settled in one place for more than three months," he said.

I can learn more here than from traveling.

Goodbye Steve, hello Steve

If you're used to if today's paper looks a little shabbier than usual, it's because we were all up partying last night saying good bye to Steve Robinson, our night supervisor, who is leaving to take a job in Cincinnati.

If the stories are even more inaccurate than usual, if there's more noise, if some of the lines aren't exactly horizontal, if the pictures are a little fuzzy, and if there are ink smears all over the place, it's because our eyes are still bloodshot.

Steve was a hard guy, but he was square with us and always went to bat for the back shop with the front office.

As long as we've already sabotaged the machine, we'd like to take a moment longer to say welcome to Steves Trex, who will be taking over the job of getting this damn paper out everyday. And now back to the usual hoop hum.

Goodbye Steve, hello Steve

Golf Clubs, brand new, never used, still in plastic covers—full set $45.00.

Barrett Rockman, of Route 6, Carbondale, first started running this classified advertisement in June of 1966. The ad has been run regularly in the Daily Egyptian ever since and Rockman is still trying to sell his golf clubs.

The former SIU graduate student is not just trying to sell one set of clubs but at one time has had as many as 400 sets to sell. "I'm finally down to just a few sets and that will be it," said Rockman. "My ad should be cancelled very soon now.

Rockman started his enterprise when he first got 80 sets of clubs from his father, who formerly owned a sporting goods store. With his success in selling the first load of clubs, Rockman started buying up close-out sales of golf clubs. "We used to keep them in the attic and for a while even in the living room," said Marilyn Rockman, Rockman's wife.

A few years after the ad started running, Rockman began getting calls from people who thought the ad was a front for a drug dealer. "Apparently a rumor got started that my golf club ad was a front for the sale of drugs," said Rockman. "People would call me at all hours of the night wanting to buy drugs. I kept telling them and telling them that all I was selling was golf clubs.

"Sometimes it was sort of funny, but when people where calling in the middle of the night it would be a bit aggravating," said Mrs. Rockman. In an attempt to discourage such late night calls, Rockman and his wife would give the callers the number of a place where they could buy drugs.

"We gave them the number of the SIU Security Police," said Rockman.

After the drug calls died down, people who thought he was running a call girl service began calling. "Really, all I'm trying to sell is golf clubs," says Rockman.

Attention to debates falls, survey shows

By Deborah Starbuck

A political survey being taken by SIU researchers in Cape Girardeau, Mo., has found a decline of voter interest in the presidential debates. Fewer people watched the second presidential debate than the first and more people didn't watch the entire debate, according to the preliminary findings of the survey.

SPANISH PAINTING

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A major work by Spanish painter Bartolome Esteban Murillo has been acquired by the Toledo Museum of Art. Otto Wittmann, museum director, described the 6-by-5-foot "Adoration of the Magi" as "the most important Spanish painting to be acquired by the Museum in almost two decades."

The painting is said to have been painted around 1650 in Seville.

A random selection of registered voters in Cape Girardeau is being interviewed from a standardized questionnaire compiled by Alwood and Sanders.

Students from SIU and Southeast Missouri State University are participating in the survey, which Sanders says is a good teaching tool in survey research. Students participate in the interviewing and coding of information fed into a computer.

Alwood and Sanders plan to use the information obtained by the survey to write a series of articles for publications.

Funds have been applied for at the Office of Research and Projects at SIU.

Student blood drive to begin, keg of beer used as incentive

By Lydia Gabriel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Registration will begin Monday, for students who wish to donate blood to the American Red Cross. The student blood drive is scheduled for Nov. 2 through 5 in Ballroom D of the Student Center. Registration for the drive will be held at seven campus locations from Monday through Oct. 29. The times and locations are: Monday and Tuesday, 4:30-6:30 at Grinnell Hall; Tuesday and Wednesday; the Home Economics Building; Tuesday through Thursday, 10:00-2:00 at Morris Library; Wednesday and Thursday, 4:30-6:30 at Truthblood Hall; Oct. 25 and 26, 10:00-2:00 at Woody Hall and Oct. 26-29, 10:00-2:00 at the Student Center.

To donate a pint of blood in Illinois, a person must be between the ages of 18 and 65 and weigh more than 110 pounds. Blood cannot be donated by persons with epilepsy, a history of heart disease, very high or low blood pressure, chronic kidney disease, and a history of cancer, except minor skin cancer.

Also excluded are students who have had dental work performed in the last 72 hours, those who have had diabetes and are using insulin, those who have received blood, plasma, serum, skin grafts from other persons or have been tattooed in the past six months and women who are pregnant or who have had a child in the past six months.

Kathy Wilson, coordinator of MOVE, Mobilization or Volunteer Effort, campus organization which coordinates student volunteer efforts, said, that as an incentive for campus organizations to donate blood, a competition will be held for a keg of beer.

The winning club or organization will be judged on the basis of number of people in the organization and the percentage of those who donate a pint of blood, she said.

A blood drive for Carbondale residents will be held Monday, Nov. 1, at the First United Methodist Church, 214 W. Main.

Conference urges students to enter proposal contest

The 2nd annual International Student Conference of the Chicago World Trade Conference is holding a nationwide student competition. Both graduate and undergraduate students are requested to submit proposals for papers in the area of international business, with focus on controversial issues encouraged.

Proposal papers are limited to two typewritten pages, and should include personal info, work experience, purpose and methodology of the topic chosen. Deadline for submission of proposals is December 1.

By December 15, 6-10 student finalists will be chosen. Each will receive a $50 honorarium to be used in developing the preliminary proposal into a final paper by Feb. 1, 1977.

Candidates agree on major issues

By Lisa Durro

The candidates for the Jackson County Board District 6 seat agree on such issues as the proposed administrative assistant to the County Board and county financing, but their motivating philosophies are quite different.

The Republican candidate, incumbent stalkings of 1974, is a second-year law student at SIU. He received a bachelor's degree in political science from SIU in 1976. Her interest in county government began through her work with the League of Women Voters. She was elected to the County Board in 1972.

"Getting people to start thinking about county government and realizing it's there" is a basic premise which pays off through public awareness and support, Stallings says.

The Democratic candidate, Edward McGlynn is an assistant professor of sociology at Roman Catholic University.

Craney Ward McGlynn is an assistant professor of sociology at SIU. She received his Ph.D. from Cornell University in 1975. Her interest in county government originated through her work with the League of Women Voters. She was elected to the County Board in 1972.

legislation to deal with and other future problems to face. The board as a policy-making body then will be able to do just that — make policy.

Stallings said that while she is basically in favor of the creation of the position because the board needs some kind of staff, there are disadvantages that must be considered.

One big minus is that there will be abuse of that position. "As a legislative body, the board could completely relinquish its curiosity and learning and doing process. If the assistant supplies just the necessary information and not conclusions she could keep it on an even keel."

The assistant is going to take over unless every one of the board members is keenly aware of this basic flaw," Stallings added.

The financing of county offices is an ever-present concern, McGlynn said. The County Board has to take a long look at budgetary requests," he said. "The problem is not whether the requests are worthwhile, but whether there is enough money for them."

"The board just hasn't had the capabilities of meeting the demands," he added.

Roman Art, topic for art lecture

Dr. Barnes is a chairperson of the art history department at Oakland University, Rochester, Mich., but he lectures on "Roman Art as Imperial Propaganda" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Davis Auditorium.

Len Shelley, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said Barnes is a noted medieval architectural historian and archaeologist. He added that Barnes also has a background in classical art and architecture.

Barnes has been director of archaeological work in France and Italy, Shelley said.

Barnes' visit and lectures are sponsored by the College of Liberal Arts and the College of Communication and Fine Arts.

Edward McGlynn

The financing problems are closely related to the County Board's lack of leadership over other county offices, McGlynn said. He said budgeting is the only form of control the board legally has.

"I don't know where the county sees itself going or where board members think it should be going. I don't see anyone asking that the County Board do anything other than pay bills," McGlynn said.

Stallings did not feel the consolidation would have to be done by referendum.

"County unit roads would eliminate township highway superintendents and decrease township supervisor's salaries but would make better county roads and save money through better, more efficient use of equipment," she said.

McGlynn said, "When you look at a problem in a higher level of government and don't at the same time kick the money up, nothing is solved."

"Consolidation would be more if the county had the funds to take over all township roads," McGlynn said, "but division of powers makes this difficult. I'd have to see a specific proposal for incorporation, which would have to eliminate provisions for 'sending money up to the county level.'"

Stallings said a certain amount of "game-playing" has been involved with budget requests.

Township road maintenance presents another problem. Often townships do not have adequate funds to build and maintain roads and bridges. Consolidation of township roads with county roads has been suggested as a solution.

Dorm residents’ grades compared with off-campus students in project

By Steve Lambert

Do students who live on campus tend to be more consistent academic achievers than those who live off campus?

This question is the basis of a study being conducted by the Student Affairs Research and Evaluation Center, according to Tom Busch an assistant to the vice president of student affairs.

Busch said, the study will focus "members of the freshman class of 1975 who resided in on-campus dorms, sophomore approved facilities or with their parents during their entire first year at SIU."

According to a proposal submitted earlier this year by John Pohlmann, former coordinator for the evaluation center, the academic records of those students from their Freshman year will be compared to their academic records from the fall 1976 semester of their Sophomore year.

According to the proposal, the students’ performance in the American College Test (ACT) taken before admission to SIU will be taken into consideration during the evaluation.

The proposal states that academic ability before being admitted to college, not necessarily where a student lives, is probably the most important single factor in predicting persistence and academic performance.

"Last year, because of the overpopulation, University Housing made an exception for some freshmen and allowed them to live off campus in sophomore approved facilities," Busch said.

"What we want to find out from the study is if it is detrimental for freshmen to live off campus," he said.

Currently, housing regulations require freshmen to live on campus if facilities are available or with their parents if they live within commuting distance.

According to Sam Rinella, housing director, this is because a student’s freshman year is usually “a transition period.” He said by living in on-campus dorms, freshmen can become better acquainted with the University as well as with fellow students.

Results from the study will be available sometime next semester, according to Busch, “because we have to wait until the surveyed students complete the fall semester of their second year.”

Medical prep program assists troubled students

By Chris Maesich
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In 1972, the SIU School of Medicine created a medical preparatory program designed to assist minority and disadvantaged students prepare for entrance and success in medical school.

When a Special Health Careers Opportunity Grant was received from the U.S. Public Health Service in 1972, the program grew and added a dental preparatory program to offer the same assistance to pre-dental students.

The program, called the Medical Education Preparatory Program or MEDPREP, was created in an effort to alleviate the shortage of physicians in Southern Illinois. Currently it offers assistance to students with minority and disadvantaged backgrounds.

Tina Pappelis, graduate assistant for MEDPREP, said the entire program is designed to meet the specific academic and preparatory needs of each student through individualized advisement and instruction.

She added that in small classes oriented and excluding lecture and orientation seminars class size is kept to a minimum of ten or fewer students.

MEDPREP is not a degree granting program but the students are given credit for each course taken. Pappelis said credits from the program may be applied to SIU graduation, but they cannot replace the School of Medicine prerequisite courses or SIU requirements.

Mary Pohlmann, coordinator of the MEDPREP curriculum in basic skills, said, "MEDPREP is not an open door to any medical or dental school. It is a developmental program for the student who is lacking the competitive edge for admission because of an educationally deficient background."

She added that the faculty at MEDPREP spend a considerable amount of time locating the deficiencies of each student with admission tests and interviews. After the weaknesses are diagnosed, the said assistance is concentrated in that area.

There is a current enrollment of black students, white rural males, veterans, white females, and Spanish-speaking Americans. There are eight MEDPREP faculty members and four others who have cross appointments from MEDPREP and the SIU School of Medicine now teaching the undergraduates and graduate students.

The curriculum is composed of two categories of courses: basic skills and science courses. Science courses related to medicine or dentistry. Basic skills courses include remedial quantitative skills tutoring, science process skills for problem solving, interpersonal skills for developing effective communication, and a course in interpreting scientific reading.

Pohlmann, who received her Ph.D. in secondary education from SIU in 1965, said the science courses are courses the students may select for strengthening their own science knowledge and competency.

One anatomy class, which uses School of Medicine cadavers, is taught in Life Science I. The remaining courses, of which there are over 30, are taught in Wheeler Hall. Students also travel to other campus buildings for regular pre-professional courses offered by the University.

Maximum time with MEDPREP for each student is two years. Pappelis, who has been teaching with the program for two years, said, "MEDPREP stays with the student until the student begins coursework in the medical or dental school."

She added that most medical preparatory programs in the U.S. are not as extensive as MEDPREP.

Pappelis, who refuses to sit behind a desk during any class she is teaching, said, "I'm learning as much from the students as they are learning from me. We both assist and continually challenge one another."

Last year, 24 students from MEDPREP who applied to dental and medical schools were accepted. Pohlmann said that other universities have contacted MEDPREP about their program.

One program helps me to develop and focus more attention on myself," Larry Hervey, who is in his second year of MEDPREP, took the MCAT exams in Oct. 2 and is applying to 10 medical schools.

Hervey, who received his bachelor's degree in biology from Lane College in Jackson, Tenn. in 1974, said, "I came to SIU for strengthening my background through MEDPREP. I definitely recommend the program to any student who wishes to do the same."

Boilers use more coal to cool, less energy needed in winter

By Joe Campbell
Student Writer

More coal is used at the Physical Plant's Generating Station in summer than in the winter, according to the Generating Plant's Chief Plant Operating Engineer, Eric B. McKee. This is because the plant uses coal both for heating and air conditioning. The system operates entirely on the use of steam as a power source for warm and cool air, McKee explained. The air conditioning system works on a turbine system run by steam.

The plant uses 80 to 165 tons of coal a day, depending on the severity of the weather. The plant is maintained by three shifts of employers working 24 hours a day every day of the year. Firemen and their helpers number 11 during the day and three to six at night.

A computer console in the plant is monitored by two office workers. This console keeps tabs on temperatures of all the buildings on campus.

McKee said all the main campus buildings and forms are serviced by the Generating Station's Small Group. Heating uses some of the steam produced in the boilers. Southern Illinois has its own heating and cooling system.

According to McKee, the plant is in continual operation and has not ceased in his 14 years of service as chief engineer. He said that because of this, some portions of the plant cannot be inspected.

The scrubber is no longer in operation. McKee said, because it was a pilot project, and research funds are gone. He commented that satisfactory results were obtained from tests.

Funds from the Illinois General Assembly for anti-pollution measures at the plant have not been appropriated. McKee said he doesn't expect them to be available until 1980.

A unique system of temperature control is used in maintaining the buildings serviced by the Generating Plant. In all the buildings and rooms where thermostats are located, there are ducts leading in cold decks, hot decks.

McKee explained that when the desired temperature is reached in a room it is maintained by the opening and closing of these decks. When a room seems too cold or warm it is not the Generating Plant's fault but rather a faulty or dirty thermostat, or an improper setting on the thermostat.
Mall presenting flags, exhibits as part of UN Week festivities

By Chris De Salvo Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The need for interdependence among nations will be the theme of displays and exhibits at Carbondale's University Mall during UN Week which begins Sunday.

UN Week, first observed in 1945, will be nationally celebrated by the 200 chapters of the United Nations Association of the United States America (UNA-USA) ending with UN Day on Oct. 24. More than 1,000 cities across the United States will be celebrating UN Week.

"We will be one of the more ambitious chapters," said Beverly Goodiel, president of the Southern Illinois chapter and retired member of the SIU speech faculty.

Approximately 130 flags from the 144 nations in the UN will be displayed at the Mall. The flag of the UN and of the Bicentennial Commission will fly over the Mall's fountain.

SIU women netter lose to SIU-E, 3-4

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

The SIU women's tennis team lost a match to SIU-E-Edwardsville Wednesday, and going into its final match of the season Friday against Northern Illinois, the Salukis have a 3-4 record.

Playing without their No. 1 singles champion Sue Briggs who had class conflicts, the team lost 6-4, in what Coach Judy Auld called a "terrible day." Martha Bladel, who finished fourth in the state tournament last weekend, had to play No. 1 for SIU and lost 6-4, 6-2. It was the first loss for Bladel in a team match this year. She now is 12-5.

Deem played No. 2 for the first time since last spring, lost 6-4 to lower her record to 6-6.

By Doug Dorris
Assistant Sports Editor

Carbondale came from behind with two fourth quarter touchdowns to beat Marion 18-7 Friday night, but equally important was the Ten Boys' 7-4 upset of conference-leader Herrin the same night.

Herrin's loss throws the South Seven Conference race into chaos, with five of the six teams within comfortable striking distance at first place.

Harrissburg, perennially the conference doormat, is the only team within comfortable striking distance of first place.

Meanwhile, Carbondale takes on Lawrenceville for the conference record to West Frankfort, 1-1, if Carbondale doesn't have to play them up there," O'Boyle said.

'Salukis' first loss

Meanwhile, Carbondale takes on Lawrenceville for the conference record to West Frankfort, 1-1, if Carbondale doesn't have to play them up there. O'Boyle said.

'Frankfort's got one very good running back in Greg Smith. and another good back in Scott Giles," said O'Boyle. "And their quarterback (Paul Dial) is one of the better throwers in the conference. I'm not overlooking them. But I still think we can beat them," O'Boyle said.

Both West Frankfort and Carbondale have quickness in the back field, though Frankfort can hope to match the speed-of Carbondale seniors Jim Andrews, the South Seven sprint champion in track as a freshman.

Andrew rushed for 120 yards in only 13 carries against Marion last Friday night. "Andrew is just a fantastic runner," O'Boyle said. "But we've got to remember that he's only 15 years old. During his junior and senior years, he's going to be too fast to be stopped." Maron was beating Carbondale 7-0 going into the fourth quarter, when the announcement that Brent Herrin had come over the public address system.

'That announcement really picked us up," O'Boyle said. "Carbondale reeled off two quick touchdown s to stagger Marion. Carbondal e quarterback Tim Hawkins, who was five for one passing, hit end Jack Steele with a 20-yard scoring pass on the first play of the fourth quarter. Then with 9:46 to go the omnipresent Andrews darted 14 yards for his second TD.

SIU swim coach calls for restructure of Olympics

By Dave Parks
Student Writer

Bob Steele, SIU swimming coach, participated in the 1976 Olympic Games as a swimmer for the swimming team from Ecuador and witnessed the economic and political controversies surrounding the Montreal games. Now he feels that the game structure should be changed to improve the system.

"I think if you spread each Olympic game out over six countries, then more people would watch it. The information would still be pooled and disseminated by the mass media. "Montreal spent $1.5 billion on the games in 1976 and now Canada is saddled with the debt," Steele said. Canadians are upset that their politicians carried away with the architacts. "He feels that it is detrimental for each hosting country to feel obligated financially to override the previous host."

Steele, who is currently on a two-week sports lecture tour in Brazil, said that spreading Olympics out would ease the financial burden of hosting the games by spreading it out over several countries. The rest of the world could remain well informed by television and less wealthy countries would have a chance to host an Olympic event.

Steele termed the office of the Games bureaucracy that is currently existing in the games as "unbelievable." As an example he said that no one had called the SIU tennis team and seven officials at the Montreal games. He said that the States is also guilty of paying the way for several officials who don't have to be there.

Steele commented on other problems by saying the most serious dilemma facing the Olympics was how to cope with countries that use the games as a method for dealing with international political problems.
Herrera seventh in nation; leads Valley

By Lee Fritschog
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Despite carrying only 79 yards in last week's game against East Carolina, Andre Herrera ranks seventh in the nation in NCAA Division I rushing. The Saluki running back's 613 yards in five games make him the leading rusher in The Valley. Herrera has carried the ball 125 times for 4.3 yards per carry.

Head coach Steve Mick is third in The Valley with a 4.20 yard average, and kicker Ken Solaran ranks fourth in kicking scoring with 21 points.

Herrera is also third in total offense and tied for fourth in scoring with 24 points on four touchdowns. Also Kevin House is fourth in kickoff returns with a 19.8 yard average.

The Salukis are fifth in four team defensive categories in The Valley. They are allowing 261.6 yards per game on the ground and 113.2 in the air, which adds up to 374.8 yards per game overall. Scoring-wise, the defense has allowed 25.2 points per game.

Following a strong showing against a good University of Kansas team on Saturday, the Southern Illinois cross country Salukis will run at home for the fifth time in 1976 when they meet Murray State University at 4 p.m. Friday at Midland Hills Golf Course.

The Salukis lost to Kansas last Saturday to lower their season record to 1-4 but for the first time all season they were able to field a completely healthy team. They will again be at full strength Friday.

Murray State's Head Coach Bill Corbin is a former SIU distance runner who was All-American in the early 1960's. Cornell was coached by Lew Hartung, who is still SIU's cross country coach.

"They have two really outstanding runners in Brian Hutter and Marty Brewer," said Hartung. "I personally think the battle between Hutter and Brewer and our men (Mike Sawyer and Paul Craig) will be nip and tuck."

"Murray has a good team," continued Hartung. "and will provide a severe test for us, but I think that we can win it."

For Hartung, the Murray State dual will give him a chance to observe his runners in competition for a final time, before having to select seven-man teams to join the Illinois Intercollegiate Championships at Edwardsville on Oct. 23.

In other games, Duke will play at Wichita State, Indiana State is at Central Michigan, and West Texas State hosts North Texas State.

Salukis host weakened Arkansas State

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

When one of the only two undefeated teams in the nation last year comes to Carbondale, one would almost be ready to mark up another loss on SIU's record column. So it was the case Saturday when the Salukis host Arkansas State.

The Indians finished 11-4 last year, which placed them in the Top 20 in Division I football. But things have changed this year for Coach Bill Davidson's team, and upon arrival in Carbondale, the team will be carrying a 2-4 record.

"The number of graduates from last year's team was heavy," Davidson said Thursday. "And the thing about playing a lot of young people this year."

About 15 freshmen are playing on the team, although about a dozen are starting," Davidson admitted. His whole kicking team is almost all freshman however.

Arkansas State wasn't expected to have its current record, but injuries also have taken their toll on the team.

"Everything's kind of playing up to the expectations this year," Davidson said. "We're starting two freshmen on defense and one freshman on linebacker," said the sixth-year coach. He also said he didn't expect to have a 2-4 record at this time of the season.

ASU started off winning its first game, which increased its winning streak to 15 games. But then the downturn hit, and three straight games were dropped.

ASU got back on the right path Oct. 2 with a win, and were beating Eastern Michigan 24-0 in the third quarter last week, only to lose 32-30.

"The team is down after that loss, but I hope they'll be ready this week," Davidson remarked.

The Indians have averaged about 25 points per game, and are led by sophomore quarterback Bucky Layne, who is completing about 50 per cent of his passes.

Roy Reed was expected to start this year for ASU, but a torn Achilles tendon has sidelined him indefinitely according to Davidson. Reed has also been seen some time at the starting quarterback position.

"If Layne stays well" if Bradley sees any time, Davidson said.

"We throw depending on the situation, but we average 15 to 18 passes per game," he said. "Our philosophy is similar to SIU's."

"Running is the main area of the Indians. Last year, they ran through, under and over the SU defense for 505 yards in the 35-12 win."

Senior tailback Jim Bolden leads the team with 530 yards, a 5.6 average, although he doesn't start.

"He's better coming off the bench," Davidson said. "And his throwing abilities on the field, he hasn't had a good year at quarterback."

"He's just beginning to get over it."

Fullback Leroy Harris and tailback Tom Foulks are main ingredients to the SU running attack. Foulks average about 4 yards per carry, along with three touchdowns.

In last year's game, Arkansas State knocked off a Saluki team that had a tough time. At the end of the third period, the Salukis were leading 7-0, and only four points in the final period to win.

"That was one of our toughest games last year," Nelson said. "We lost it because we made the big plays, the clutch points and got the winning team, and we're going to have our hands full.

Goldan Glover defends SIU Boxing Club

The recent formation of the SIU Boxing Club has been received with mixed emotions by students who have opinions on the subject.

The club had its first meeting recently and at least 40 interested students were present.

A letter to the editor in the Daily Egyptian by a student who is against boxing, triggered a response by a former Golden Gloves competitor.

The anti-boxing letter claimed that boxing was a throwback to the days of Roman gladiators and it should not be reinstated as a collegiate sport. It also raised the question of injury and death in the ring.

The Golden Glover answered this letter by stating how boxing was an "art," and not a dangerous, brutal sport.

These are the kind of arguments received when talking about the sport of boxing.

Guy Nelson, junior in engineering, and a former Golden Gloves champ added "Chicago Park District boxing is no art." He said there is an art.

"Boxing is an art," it's not a savage sport where you just run in like a mad man and try to beat the flll out of someone," said Nelson, who is getting involved in SIU's boxing program.

The 24-year-old native of Chicago won the 1971 Chicago Golden Gloves competition in the novice category.

"People get the wrong idea about boxers," said Nelson. "They picture the boxer as big and clumsy, but actually the fighter has to have his head together at all times in the ring. It's all a game of strategy.

Nelson, who hasn't boxed in three years, said he was excited when he heard SIU was going to start the club.

Nelson last donned the gloves when he lost the Chicago Park District Heavyweight Championship in 1973.

On the topic of injuries, Nelson again defended the sport he loves. "Injuries in football or basketball are worse than injuries in boxing," said Nelson, who played football at Lane Tech High in Chicago. "You can get hit on the blind side in football, and that hurts a lot more than anything you get in the boxing ring.""
