Study finds asbestos campuswide

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

A preliminary draft of a campuswide asbestos study shows that all but 12 campus buildings contain some asbestos insulation. Pollution Control director John Meister said Wednesday.

The highest concentrations of asbestos insulation are found in the buildings' maintenance and equipment rooms, which generally are not used by the public, Meister said. Morris Library is the only building that contains asbestos insulation in public areas, he said.

The ceilings of the library's basement and first and second floors contain asbestos insulation, Meister said. No asbestos insulation was found above the second floor.

Meister said that in some parts of the library, asbestos insulation is beginning to break away from ceilings and pipes. However, he said there was no evidence that any asbestos fibers were airborne in the library.

An air test conducted at the library in March revealed the presence of airborne fibers, none of which were found to be asbestos upon further analysis. Researchers have found that small asbestos fibers breathed into the lungs can cause cancer and other respiratory diseases.

The condition of the asbestos insulation in other campus buildings is much worse than in the library, Meister said. "In some of the mechanical rooms, the insulation is in bad condition and the exposure level is high."

However, he stressed that the amount of asbestos insulation varies from building to building.

"There are very few buildings that have high levels of asbestos insulation," Meister said.

Meister briefed Morris Library personnel on the preliminary report Wednesday. The final report on the campuswide study — conducted by industrial hygiene consultants at John A. Jurgiel and Associates of St. Louis — will be released next week, Meister said.

The next step will be to conduct air tests and start removing the asbestos insulation that poses the greatest threat of deteriorating, Meister said.

"Our general, unstated policy is that we want to get rid of asbestos in any areas that might be a danger," he said.

Because it is used by the public more than any other building on campus, air testing and asbestos removal will take

Overpass opening delayed by complicated rail design

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Complications in manufacturing the rails for the new overpass over Ho Chi Minh trail have delayed the overpass' opening by several months.

The overpass was to be completed before the beginning of fall semester, but has been delayed because some of the rails have not come in Dale Nobel, project engineer for railroad relocation, said.

The rail design was "a little more complicated than the manufacturer anticipated," he said, and caused the delay.

Because of the complicated design of the overpass, which includes flat areas every 30 feet to accommodate disabled people, the rails had to be specially made, Eldon Gosnell, director of Carbondale's Railroad Relocation Project, relocation, said.

The rails, which span about 3,700 feet, cost $45 per foot, Nobel said. They could be in by next week, but "that would really be pushing it" to get them up for the dedication.

Activist charges Sen. Simon with misrepresentation

By Deedra Lawhead
Staff Writer

Southern Illinois' Paul Simon is the latest Democratic presidential candidate to be charged with misrepresenting his background.

A local political observer says Simon distorted his campaign record when he claimed he had spent less than his opponents in major races. Federal records show Simon, U.S. senator from Makanda, spent eight times as much money as his opponents in his 1976 to 1980 campaigns to represent Southern Illinois in the U.S. House of Representatives.

David Sadler, a political activist from Pinkneyville, cited the Sept. 20 issue of the Southern Illinoisian, in which Simon was quoted as saying: "I've never been in a major race where I wasn't outspent by my opponent."

In four races for the U.S. House, Simon spent a total of $961,241, compared to his opponents' $115,877.

According to the Federal Elections Commission records of the 1976 to 1982 elections to the U.S. House of Representatives:

—In 1976, the earliest year for which the commission could provide figures, Simon spent $78,873; his Republican opponent, Peter G. Prineas, a Carbondale engineer, spent $13,109;

—In 1978, Simon spent $99,017; his Republican opponent, John T. Anderson, a Marion businessman, spent $13,998;

—In 1980, Simon spent $217,098; the Republican candidate, Anderson, spent $42,494; and Jim Barrett, of the Constitutional Party spent $18,759;

—In 1982, Simon spent $566,253, the Republican candidate, Prineas, spent $27,517.

Simon won the 24th District seat, which included Carbondale, in the 1976 to 1980 elections. In the 1982 election, Simon won in the 22nd District, which also included Carbondale.

The districts were renumbered when Illinois House districts were reapportioned after the 1980 census. Seats in the House of Representatives are determined by population.

Simon was flying between campaign stops in Iowa and could not be reached for comment. David Carle, Simon's press secretary, said the "major" races Simon was referring to when he said his opponents spent more, were those in which Simon had a strong opponent.

Simon's record strong opponents in his first campaign for the Illinois House in 1954 at the age of 25, during his campaign for lieutenant governor in 1968 and in his campaign for the U.S. senate in 1980, Carle said.

Simon was the first and only lieutenant governor of Illinois elected with a governor of another political party. The Illinois Constitution was changed in 1970 to provide for

Halloween lineup adds bands, booths

By Jacke Hampton
Staff Writer

Like the impromptu event it once was, much of this year's Halloween festival events have grown out of last-minute planning.

The Halloween Core Committee learned Wednesday there will be eight bands playing at an outdoor concert on Grand Avenue.

The Inter Greek Council also announced plans for a Phi Sigma Kappa Halloween Carnival for Carbondale elementary school children, Kris Fabian, a spokesman for the group, said.

Four firms have applied for six beer booths and all six will probably be spoken for by the Friday deadline, Jeff Doherty, assistant city manager, said. Plans for a UNICEF benefit Dance Marathon were announced in September.

"Welcome aboard, that's how it's always been," Jim Prowell, vice president of the committee said when Fabian told the group he realized the Greeks were getting a late start.

When fall semester began there was some concern over whether there would be any entertainment on Grand Avenue to help ease crowding on the South Illinois Avenue Strip. Although several firms put in bids to provide recorded or live music, the committee had no money to pay for it. Jim

Scott's cagers embark on season

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

When the nationally ranked Saluki women's basketball team hits the hardwoods at the Arena tonight, coach Cindy Scott will finally get a chance to see the team's first official practice of the season.

"I'm just glad it's finally here," Scott said Wednesday morning. "We have so much work to do, so much to accomplish. We really need to find out where we're at and what direction we need to take."

For most of the fall, Scott and assistant Julie Beck have been recruiting while the team worked out on its own. Despite not being allowed to watch or organize the team's early practices, Scott said the returning players knew enough about what to expect to make the preliminary practices productive.

Scott plans to spend the first week of official practice assessing the younger players to determine how much they can contribute to the program. Three sophomores and three freshmen, along with a new junior college transfer, are listed on SIU-C's 15-player roster.

"This will be the first chance I've had to see them all together on the floor at the same time," Scott said. "It's the first time I can instruct.

The real work begins now."

The Salukis, despite tremendous success in the past five seasons (75-11 in conference play), finally enjoyed their first-ever top-20 ranking at the season's end — building on that finish will be high on Scott's list of priorities.

"Making the top 10 is something I'd like to see our program achieve," Scott said. "It's something our kids could shoot for."

Scott has changed the team's offensive scheme to fit the personnel, and, as always, learning a new offense takes time. An advantage, however, will be the employment of the same basic defensive alignments as last year.

Eleven returning players will form the nucleus of Scott's 1987-88 squad. Senior forward Bridgett Bonds (14.2 points per game, 8.1 rebounds) is expected to step into the team's leadership role.

Other returning big guns are senior center Mary Berghuis (11.7, 7.4) and junior guard Dana Fitzpatrick (10.0, 5.5). Bonds, Berghuis and Fitzpatrick were all starters last season.

Seniors Regina Banks, a forward, and Anne Thouvenin, guard, also will see playing time along with juniors Cathy Kampwerth, Dearna Sanders and Tonda Seals.

Last season, the Salukis went 28-3 and finished the season ranked in most national polls after dropping out of the NCAA regional semifinals. The Salukis were one of eight teams with 28 or more wins. They upset four nationally ranked opponents, reeled off an 18-game winning streak and upped their Gateway Conference winning streak to 39 games.

Not returning from last year's squad are sharpshooters Ann Kattreh, Marialice Jenkins and Cozette Wallace, however Jenkins has returned as a graduate assistant.

The season begins Nov. 28-29 at the Amana Hawkeye Classic in Iowa City.

Redbirds triumph

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Jose Oquendo belted a three-run homer to send the St. Louis Cardinals to their 15th World Series Wednesday night, taking the music out of "Humm-Baby" with a 6-0 rout of the San Francisco Giants.

Oquendo, a singles hitter playing in the absence of injured slugger Jack Clark, slammed his homer in the second inning to help the injury-wracked Cardinals win the seventh and deciding game of the National League playoffs.

Danny Cox pitched his second clincher within two weeks, to place the Cardinals opposite the American League champion Minnesota Twins in the World Series opener Saturday night at the Metrodome.

Although his team is off to its best start since 1979, Western Illinois football coach Bruce Craddock said there is no chance of his team taking the Salukis too lightly in Saturday's homecoming game.

"Despite their 2-4 record, Southern is a dynamite football team with great players. Lack of execution and turnovers have hurt them more than anything else," Craddock said.

Craddock cites Saluki efforts against Illinois State, Kansas and the first half of the Fresno State as examples of how good Southern can be when playing up its potential.

"Byron Mitchell and Paul Patterson are probably the best pair of running backs we will face this season. Mitchell is a bona fide blue chipper," Craddock said.

Linebacker's impact shows in tackle stats

By Bill West
Staff Writer

Saluki inside linebacker Ezell Shelton's impact on the on the football field can be as quiet as his demeanor off the field.

"You don't feel him during the game so we (the coaches) don't realize how many tackles Shelton was involved with until we see game film," defensive line coach Rod Sherrill said.

Shelton, a muscular 6-foot, 220-pounder, is on the small side for an inside linebacker, but that hasn't limited his effectiveness.

With 69 tackles, including 41 solo tackles, he is the team's second-leading tackler after six games.

"He's smart, diagnoses the plays well and has the knack of getting to the ball," Sherrill said.

Men cagers sport new look; sanctioned practice begins

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's basketball team begins practice today with four returning starters and a whole new cast of characters.

The Salukis, 12-17 last year, have 11 new players and two new assistant coaches to go along with seven returning players. Gone is starting forward and three-point specialist Doug Novsek (14.4 points per game) and forward Billy Ross (6.6 ppg), who is academically ineligible. Also missing are guards Brian Weich and Wayne Harre.

The new squad has its work cut out.

Bradley and Wichita State are expected to vie for the Missouri Valley Conference title while Illinois State and Tulsa are expected to finish in the top half of the conference. SIU-C, Drake, Creighton, and Indiana State are predicted to finish in the bottom half, Saluki coach Rich Herrin said.

"There's four outstanding teams in the Valley and then there's four other teams," Herrin said. "Bradley is the team to beat."

Senior guard Steve Middleton, an All-Missouri Conference selection last season, again will carry the scoring burden. Last season, Middleton was the second leading scorer in the conference with a 19.1 average, finishing behind Bradley's Hersey Hawkins (27.2 ppg).

"Middleton is going to be our leading scorer," Herrin said. "Steve's not the greatest shooter but he's a great scorer because he has great instincts."

Junior Kai Nurnberger will direct the Saluki's offensive attack. The point guard averaged 4.2 assists and 10.1 points per game last season.

Tim Richardson will start at center for the second year in a row. A junior college transfer from Coffeyville, Kan., the 6-foot 9-inch senior grabbed 6.8 rebounds a game while averaging 9.6 points.

Junior Randy House returns at forward. House, 6-feet 5-inches tall, averaged 8.7 points and 3.6 rebounds a game while playing consistently against taller forwards.

Rich Herrin has penciled in 6-foot 8-inch Todd Krueger, a junior, at the other forward spot. Krueger is expected to split time with Rick Shipley, a freshman from Centralia.

Another new face Herrin said will see action is red-shirt freshman guard Sterling Mahan. Mahan, from St. Joseph's in Westchester, sat out last season because of Proposition 48. Herrin expects Mahan to back up Middleton and Nurnberger.

"I really think Sterling will get a lot of playing time," Herrin said. "I would say probably 20 plus minutes and to me that's a lot of time."

Freshman Anthony Lee from Memphis, Tenn. will also back up Nurnberger.

Herrin hired assistant coaches Bobby McCullum, formerly an assistant at South Alabama, and Scott Howard, a volunteer assistant at Iowa, to bolster recruiting efforts. They replace Herman Williams and Steve Carroll, who were fired in May after two unsuccessful recruiting seasons.

Novsek will join the staff as a graduate assistant.

The players have been working out together and playing pick-up games since school began, but today marks the first day that the NCAA allows practice to officially start with coaches present.

Iraq mourns 32 victims killed by Iranian missile

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Thousands of Iraqis, calling for revenge, marched through Baghdad Wednesday mourning 32 victims of an Iranian missile attack on a school, and Iran shelled the southern city of Basra, killing 11, Iraq said. On Wednesday, the Iraqi News Agency said hundreds of thousands of people chanting "revenge for Iraq's children" joined a funeral procession for 29 children and three adults killed in an Iranian missile attack that also left more than 200 people wounded.

Indian troops break rebel lines, enter Jaffna

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — Indian troops late Wednesday punched through rebel lines and entered the Tamil guerrilla's Jaffna stronghold, the objective of a bloody five-day battle in which hundreds have died, a senior military official said. The high-ranking official reported Indian troops in armored vehicles hammered through well-fortified positions of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam at about 9 p.m. after approaching Jaffna from the east through the town of Navatkuli.

American, French chemists win Nobel prize

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Two Americans and a Frenchman Wednesday shared the 1987 Nobel Chemistry Prize for their work on molecules that mimic natural processes, and a West German and a Swiss received the physics prize for research making resistance-free electricity more practical. The chemistry prize went to UCLA Professor Donald J. Cram, Professor Jean-Marie Lehn of the Universite Louis Pasteur in Strasbourg, France, and former Du Pont research chemist Charles J. Pedersen of Salem, N.J.

Ten die in Oman, Yemen 'misunderstanding'

MUSCAT, Oman (UPI) — At least 10 people died in a clash between border patrols of pro-Western Oman and Marxist South Yemen on the southern tip of the Arabian Peninsula, diplomatic sources said Wednesday. An Omani source blamed the encounter on a "misunderstanding." The fighting in Oman's southwestern province of Dhofar started Sunday but was reported only Wednesday in a Kuwaiti newspaper account.

Reagan's speech 'too political' for networks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, holding out frail hope that the Senate will change its mind and confirm Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork, charged Wednesday that his all-but-certain defeat would "permanently diminish the sum total of American democracy." In an Oval Office speech rejected for live coverage by the three major television networks on grounds it was too political, Reagan repeated his and Bork's assertion that opponents used "high-pressure" political tactics to derail the nomination and cripple the judiciary's independence.

Suit seeks injunction against AIDS committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A coalition filed suit Wednesday against President Reagan charging that his AIDS advisory panel violates federal law because its membership excludes AIDS experts and victims. In papers filed in U.S. District Court, the five organizations and one individual who has AIDS asked for a preliminary injunction halting the commission's work until Reagan appoints a more balanced membership. The suit says the panel has members representing those with extremist points of view outside the mainstream of public health and science, but no members with countervailing views.

Dow Jones average plunges to record low

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average plunged a record 95.46 points Wednesday, as stocks tumbled on news of a wider-than-expected August U.S. trade deficit. The trade gap revived inflation and interest rate fears and left the widely followed blue-chip average at 2412.70. The plunge exceeded the Dow's previous record loss of 91.55 points on Oct. 7.

House proposes charging escorted tankers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House panel voted Wednesday to charge reflagged Kuwaiti tankers $500,000 for a round trip through the war-torn Persian Gulf under the protection of U.S. warships. The proposal, approved 32-7 by the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, faces several legislative hurdles before it could become law. It was included in a budget-balancing package and allowed the panel to avoid the politically unpopular move of boosting Coast Guard user fees for recreational boaters in the United States by about $50 million.

Halloween campaign unveiled

By Jacke Hampton
Staff Writer

The Public Relations Student Society's Join Our Team for a Safe Halloween campaign got a public showing at a press conference Wednesday in the Student Center.

The campaign includes a number of safety-related advertisements and announcements, including a rap song by Rick Johnson, a Carbondale resident. The song, which has a safety theme, also will be performed from the festival stage on East

Grand Avenue during intermissions in live and recorded music. The club is considering producing a music video of the song to air on the local cable channel. Area businesses are being asked for marquee space to carry a safe Halloween messages

The club also is coordinating a number of activities on the festival site.

There will be a designated driver program that offers free soft drinks to a person who agrees to stay sober and drive friends who will be drinking home.

A combination safety, information and first aid center will be located north of the Blue Barracks and also will serve as a meeting place for visitors who become lost at the festival site. There will be pay phones near the center.

There will be first aid stations along the Strip between the 710 Book Store and Bleyer's Sportsmart and in the parking lot south of Gusto's on East College Street.

The Yellow Cab Company and Ike Honda will offer rides to those who have had too much to drink and are unable to drive their own cars.

There are also "safe areas" located at Synergy on South Illinois Avenue and the Women's Center, 408 W. Freeman, where festival-goers can escape the crowds.

Panel urges awareness of date rape

By Tom Trotter
Staff Writer

At least one out of 10 female students have been raped and every woman is a potential victim, Beth Firestein, coordinator for Women's Services said Wednesday. But the rapist is not always a stranger, she said.

"Acquaintance rape is an act of hostility done out of a need for dominance," Firestein said. "It is not an act of lust, but of violence."

Firestein was one of a three-member panel that spoke at a discussion entitled "Date Rape." The discussion took place at noon, Wednesday in the Student Center as part of Women's Safety Week.

The two other speakers were Juli Claussen, coordinator for the Rape Action Committee and Cass Vandermeer, a legal advocate for rape victims.

She said that in a survey of heterosexual males, 68 percent said they had continued sexual conduct with their dates after the dates had said no.

She said 46 percent admitted they had tried to get their dates drunk or high on drugs before attempting sexual behavior, while 66 percent of the men had told their dates "I love you" to persuade their dates to perform sexual acts.

"Coercion is not like rape, it is rape," Firestein said. However, men often don't realize they are using coercion, she said.

Nonetheless, Vandermeer

said, "Men say women are 'hung up' if women don't want to have sex."

A study of reported and attempted rapes at SIU-C from 1980 to 1986 shows that 54 percent of rapes in 1984 were acquaintances of the victims. "It is estimated that for every reported rape, there are from three to ten that are not reported," according to the study.

The study used information from the Carbondale Police Department and other campus and community sources.

Firestein said that part of the rape problem is the misconception that women are to blame for men's actions if the women dress in sexually attractive clothing. "This (statement!) is made by men who won't accept responsibility for their actions," she said.

"There is a double standard in our society that says men are supposed to sexually explore, while women are to be reserved, chaste, and not be sexually active," Firestein said.

She said that many adults have been sexually abused as children and are afraid to talk about sex to their children. This adds to the absence of sexual education in society.

As one solution, she said adults need to encourage young people to seek information and be unafraid to ask questions about sex.

Regional meet to test skill of Flying Salukis

By Robert York
Staff Writer
and Tracy Semmler
Student Writer

The Flying Salukis Flight Team begins competition today in the Region Eight Intercollegiate Flying Association Airmeet at Parks College of St. Louis University in Cahokia.

The team has a new challenge this year because 15 of its 16 members are new. Returning member and team captain Alec Blume doesn't see this as a problem. He said the enthusiasm and positive attitude of this year's team will make up for any lack of experience.

"Because they are all new, they stick together," Blume said. "We've got a real team this year. Last year it was every man for himself, but this team's attitude is much, much better and the school spirit is, too."

Before competing at the regionals, team members had to compete against each other in different events. In addition to regular evening practices, team members showed up last week at 6:15 a.m. to give coaches James Crehan and Ted Hupp the chance to judge the team and put members in the events for which they are best qualified.

Crehan said he believes the Flying Salukis is one of three top contenders for victory at the meet. The teams from University of Illinois and Purdue also look good, he said.

"The team is working great together," Crehan said. "We will be one of the top teams at the competition."

The team, which has been practicing at the competitor site since Monday, will be competing in eight events, Crehan said. The events include:

—the power-off landing, which tests landing accuracy while the plane idles;

- a short field landing;
- the message drop, in which flyers drop a small container from the plane and aim for a designated target;
- a cross-country mission;
- an aircraft recognition test, in which slides of international planes are shown and flyers have to identify them;
- a pre-flight contest, in which a plane is inspected for deficiencies.

The Flying Salukis won spots at the National Intercollegiate Flying Association Airmeet by placing first or second in regionals every year they have competed.

JoJo show demise hurts R-T students

JOJO AND HIS friends at the "JoJo and Friends Club" died an untimely death this semester at the hands of University budget cuts.

JoJo, Wally and their friends, furry and otherwise, will exist only in re-run heaven, as no new episodes will be produced by WSIU-TV. Eventually the show may be dropped all together. This is unfortunate. While mourning for the children's show may not be extensive for many SIU-C students, those at the Department of Radio-Television are grieving a different tune.

The merits of watching a 6-foot koala bear learning lessons and cavorting about with other animals in a backyard clubhouse may be debatable to anyone over the age of eight, the drop-off point of the show's audience. There is no doubt, however, as to the merit of taking part in the creation of the show, an experience that has proved invaluable for SIU-C students who have been involved in the show since its creation.

THE "JOJO AND Friends Club," which began in 1984 as the "JoJo and Joyce Club," employed students in every aspect of its creation: as actors, technicians, designers, writers, producers and directors, as well students working for the SIU-C broadcasting service. By providing a living forum in which to practice their craft, the show gave radio-television students an experience that would prove invaluable after graduation.

There are other live-television formats that exist through WSIU-TV that radio-television students can take part in and learn from. But "JoJo and Friends" was the only show that gave students the opportunity to work with a flexible, entertainment format, a very different animal from the news and talk shows that most often WSIU-TV produces. As many radio-television students are planning a career in television entertainment, rather than television news, the loss of "JoJo and Friends" is a crucial one.

The show itself was not dying. It proved very successful in its first year, and expanded in 1985 from 10-minute segments to a half-hour show. The "club," formed of children watching the show, grew from a handful to 800 in 1985, and even more in later years. All of this was because of student effort, students who obviously were learning their lessons well. Student effort could have carried the show even farther, had financial difficulties not brought the axe down this semester.

LAST YEAR, THE show focused on a central theme — helping children learn about themselves and the world around them. That was its on-camera aspect. Off-camera, the show accomplished the same thing for students taking part in its creation by helping them learn about the world of television first hand.

The children forced to watch JoJo in repeat episodes won't be the only ones unhappy about his unfortunate death.

Quotable Quotes

"I think that there's an awful lot of fiction about a man who was unable to communicate at all, and is now being quoted as if he was doing nothing but talk his head off." — President Reagan, on reporter Bob Woodward's account of a deathbed conversation with former CIA chief William Casey.

Fibs by presidential candidates are giving hypocrisy a bad name

SO NOW it's Pat Robertson's turn.

The televangelist-turned-presidential-candidate has been forced to admit that he lied about his marriage date in order to disguise the fact that his wife was pregnant at the time of the wedding. He also has been accused of improving his educational attainments on his resume and, while he denies having told outright lies, it does look as though he killed things a bit.

And there's more fun to come. Last week Jesse Jackson, the other preacher in the presidential field, officially announced his candidacy and immediately rumors of scandals to come began surfacing.

I think it's shameful the way our presidential candidates keep letting us down. It used to be that when a politician went belly up it was because he was stealing public money or bribing juries, something wrong doing. This bunch keeps tripping over the merest gossamer, deceptions almost invisible to the naked eye. They're giving hypocrisy a bad name.

WHEN I was a young man I was very hard on hypocrisy. I thought it was the eighth deadly sin. "Give me an honest rogue any day," I'd say. "I prefer him to a sanctimonious, Psalm-singing hypocrite."

I am older now, and more forgiving of the little lies that it takes to get one through the day. Imagine living in a world where everyone told the truth all of the time. ("Well Dad, I'm ready to go out on my first date. How do I look?" "Fat and ugly.") Total honesty is a form of mental illness.

So a man lies about his wedding date in order to save his wife and his first-born public embarrassment. Why shouldn't he? I would have done the same for my family and I hope my parents would have done the same for me. (For all I know, they did. I'm not going to check.)

IN ANY case, it's nothing to hyperventilate about, particularly since Robertson's moral lapse took place 31 years ago, before he had a religious experience that changed his life and the course of a hurricane.

They say we are subjecting our political candidates to closer scrutiny than we used to and that we shall all be better for it. Perhaps, but imagine the result if the current rules had been in effect when Thomas Jefferson was running for president. I can see him campaigning in the New Hampshire primary.

"Mr. Jefferson," the crack reporter of the Philadelphia Daily Screech shouts, "The Wall Street Jugular today reported that the bulk of the Declaration of Independence, for which you claim authorship, was written by Ben Franklin. Do you have any comment on that?"

"THAT IS a falsehood. I did give a first draft to Mr.

Franklin for comment and he made a couple of suggestions, but most of the phrases in the final version were mine."

"Then how do you account for the fact that you, a slaveholder, were able to write that all men are created equal? Are you saying that you do not consider slaves human?"

"No, that's not it at all. I was speaking in a broader, rhetorical sense. As a matter of fact, some of my best friends are slaves."

"Does that mean you're admitting that those rumors about you having a slave for a mistress are true?"

"No, not at all, I mean..."

"THEN YOU'RE denying that you have a slave mistress, is that right sir?"

Jefferson wouldn't have lasted two weeks into the campaign. Our third president would have been Aaron Burr.

Mr. Robertson has called the latest stories about his private life "outrageous." I expect the Rev. Jackson to do the same when his turn comes.

Their defensiveness is understandable, but wrong. The press is doing its job. Once the press starts deciding which flaws of a candidate it's going to let the public in on and which it isn't, it has left journalism for the slippery slope of moralization. I only wish there were some way to treat the information less hysterically. The problem is, when you have 140 reporters on the scene, pointing microphones at a candidate, shouting questions at him, hysteria follows.

I have one question, though: If what we're doing is holding candidates to ever higher standards, why do we keep getting candidates who are ever lower?

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editors, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a School of Journalism faculty member.

Letters to the editor may be submitted by mail or directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247 Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten, double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters of less than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters submitted by mail should include the author's address and telephone number. Letters for which verification and authorship cannot be made will not be published.

Letters

Non-frat supporter draws response from yet more disgruntled Greeks

We are writing in response to the letter on Oct. 5 entitled "Accomplishments of the non-frat system enhance development of those involved." Perhaps, Mr. Broad, you do not understand the scope nor purpose of Greek-letter organizations.

Your stereotypes are common, but erroneous nonetheless. The fascism you imply is a gross insult to a system you obviously know little about.

Mr. Broad, you refer to yourself as the "self-appointed vice-president of Alpha Mega Alpha." Speaking from our own experience, we Greeks find democratic election by secret ballot much more suited to the civilized world.

We even use it for more mundane tasks such as deciding on a calendar of events. After all, if you don't, someone might get the misguided notion that a minority within your association unfairly influences the activities or associates of your other members.

But then, your system of self-appointments must draw on the legacy of your more colorful alumni, notably Attila the Hun, Judas Iscariot, Napoleon Bonaparte, Adolf Hitler, Josef Stalin and Colonel George Custer.

You seem to think our structure is a detriment. The structure we provide is, in many ways, a safeguard against accidents. As a case in point, now many of your members carry insurance of any magnitude? Our fraternity is insured with a $2 million umbrella policy. Can you say the same? Have you ever thought what would happen if someone slipped on an icy sidewalk in front of your house?

Fraternities and sororities depend on careful planning and foresight to avoid innumerable unforeseen tragedies. We realize that accidents happen, and we plan for that, yet you imply that we are not "thoughtful and sensitive" to our environment.

After reading your letter, Mr. Broad, we are shocked at the shallowness you display while looking at Greeks. Granted, the Greek system is not for everyone, but, let us ask you, Mr. Broad, how often have you volunteered your time at a blood drive? How much money have you raised for the United Way? How many campus landmarks have you restored? How many of your members regularly see one another over the summer? How many of your members will know each other in twenty years? Does your organization offer scholarships and loans to members in need? Does your organization provide inexpensive, alternative housing? Does your organization provide any sort of academic counseling?

As a philosophy major, you should know better than to allow yourself enter the quagmires of ad hominem, stereotype and prejudice. How can you even think to infer that fraternities are composed of masses of mindless hulks, devoid of character or personality?

No, this is sheer foolishness, and we digress. Greeks come from the same background you did. We all went to high school. We are students, like you. Our situations are as varied as any group's are. In fact, maybe even more so.

Greek letter societies, especially the social ones, require a great number of stimulating, creative people from all backgrounds. Our vitality rests with the currents of individuals that comprise our ranks.

Seeing all that Greeks do, not only for themselves, but also for the community, we question your implication that students are stunted from becoming responsible, mature individuals through the time they spend in a Greek organization.

Mr. Broad, can you think of any other organized subset of the student body that gives so much, so freely, while still providing a plethora of activities to its membership? In closing, we have one last question, Mr. Broad, just what do you and your organization do, other than provide absolutely nothing? —Tom Goulding and Jeff Maaks, Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Views aired by Bork supporter in opposition to freedom of speech

On Oct. 1, a letter from Peter Schmid, a law student at the SIU School of Law, appeared in the Southern Illinoisian about the Bork nomination. Although that nomination appears doomed, the letter posed some ideas that we believe deserve an answer.

Mr. Schmid stated that the National Lawyers Guild (referred to by Mr. Schmid as "The Lawyers Guild"), which is opposed to the Bork nomination, is "perverting the process," and that the expression of legitimate opposition to the Bork nomination "represents reverse McCarthyism."

These statements show a frightening attitude toward the democratic process. Simply because a viable student and community organization, joined by many respected scholars and elected officials, has carefully studied the issues relative to this nomination and has determined that Mr. Bork would present serious problems in the Supreme Court, Mr. Schmid would like all such opinions quashed.

In fact, Mr. Schmid refers to this exercise of free speech as "demonic nonsense." It appears that Mr. Schmid would prefer to have a governmental system in which there is but one voice allowed.

In fact, under his system, his opinion may not ever be allowed to be voiced. The seriousness of this view, especially from a law student, has caused us to be very concerned.

The democratic process, in which all voices are allowed to be heard, is a process that must be respected and used. Otherwise, the erosion of that process will result in people like Mr. Schmid deciding who we must vote for, who we must like, who we must criticize. It is our hope that Mr. Schmid will do some soul searching and research to discover the tragedy that would ensue if the plurality of voices and opinions are hushed. John Chism, Jeanne Arterburn, Amy Clark, Katherine Black and Paul Matalonis, Steering Committee of the National Lawyers Guild, Southern Illinois branch.

Politics, religious views don't mix

I refer to Mr. Abou-Jabal's letter in the Daily Egyptian on Oct. 8. He obviously was infuriated with the Daily Egyptian for the cartoon that ran in the Oct. 2 issue. It is my opinion that there was nothing blasphemous about it. The cartoon only proposes the evil that can arise when fanaticism creeps into any religion, in this case Islam.

It seems to me that Islam is going through a phase in history where power corrupts through too close an association with politics, as was the case of Christianity during the Middle Ages. This intimate fusion of religion and politics has all through history proven disastrous.

By the way, Mr. Abou-Jabal, both "Koran" and "Qur'an" are acceptable spellings of the holy book. Such quibbles are typical of fanatical and fundamentalist approaches. The Holy Prophet, I am sure, is not offended by the use of either form; neither is Allah. It behooves the true believer to not cause such division against the brotherhood preached by Islam.

The Daily Egyptian has on a number of occasions run cartoons that similarly poked fun at fundamentalist approaches to the Bible of some Christian denominations. I propose that we be willing to learn from our mistakes and abide by more religious and universal principles of peace, love and justice. Let there be an end to all forms of religious fanaticism. place first at Morris Library, Meister said.

However, the University must give Pollution Control a hefty sum of money before any clean up can begin. Meister said he would request $600,000 for the removal of asbestos insulation from mechanical rooms in Morris Library and Pulliam Hall during 1988 and 1989.

The mechanical rooms must take priority in any clean up for several reasons, Meister said, including:

—The danger that airborne asbestos fibers will enter air circulation systems. Air conditioning and heating systems may suck up loose asbestos fibers during routine operation or when the systems are being repaired or replaced. Morris Library's air system is scheduled for repair in the near future, Meister said.

THE SMALL size of most mechanical rooms increases the danger that workers will damage asbestos insulation during routine chores.

Meister said he would request $950,000 in 1990 for asbestos removal. Most of that money would go toward insulation removal at Morris Library.

However, Meister stressed that the cost figures he cited are tentative. The actual cost of asbestos removal may be far higher. A chunk of asbestos insulation fell from the ceiling of one room in the library in March, he said. The asbestos was cleaned up and the rest of the insulation removed from the room — at a cost of $65,000.

"That was a small room," Meister said.

FOR THE time being, Pollution Control will concentrate on air testing at Morris Library. Meister hopes to conduct tests every three months, beginning in December.

"We feel that our awareness of it is the first form of defense," Meister said. "We're going to keep our eye on it."

He said library users and employees face no danger at this time since air tests have revealed no airborne asbestos fibers.

"Anytime you've got it (asbestos) there is a potential for danger," Meister said. "But there's a big difference between the potential and actual danger. We've always got to be aware of the potential, but that's all it is at this time — a potential."

HOWEVER, LIBRARY employee William Byrnes took strong exception to Meister's estimation of the danger posed by the asbestos.

"We still contend that any level of asbestos is dangerous," he said. "Any danger, no matter how far in the future, is too great, especially when you're dealing with people's lives."

Still, Byrnes said he noticed a marked difference in Meister's attitude toward the workers' concerns.

"It's a real positive time," Byrnes said. "We had an impression in the past that we were not going to get a lot of cooperation from him (Meister) and that now seems to be changing."

OTHER MORRIS Library workers who attended the meeting with Meister also seemed pleased with Meister's approach to the problem.

"It sounded pretty encouraging," said Vernon Cornell. "It sounds like we're going in the right direction. Generally speaking, he had an I'm-on-your-side approach."

"He seemed more cooperative than he used to be," said Barbara Youther.

Donation to SIU-C to be announced

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

A major monetary donation to the University will be announced at a news conference today in the Fourth Floor Video Lounge of the Student Center.

The contributor will be present at the news conference. The contributor's name has not yet been released. The contribution could be one of the largest in SIU-C's history.

The news conference comes on the heels of a Daily Egyptian report that the largest donation ever made to the University will be announced at a reception Saturday at Stone House.

According to the Alumnus Too, an annual publication of the SIU Alumni Association, SIU-C alumnus Ralph E. Becker will make a donation, which could yield up to $3 million over a 15-year period.

Clarification

Muriel Bunch's birthday will be celebrated from 2 to 6 p.m. on Oct. 25. This was not made clear in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian.

Education not high priority on state funding list—Pettit

By Robert York
Staff Writer

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said Wednesday the University's problem in maintaining a reliable state-funded budget stems from the low ranking of the state's investment in higher education.

Pettit and Vice Chancellor James M. Brown, speaking at the Graduate and Professional Student Council meeting, answered questions from GPSC representatives and spoke of the University's relationship with the Illinois legislature.

"I don't think there is anyone in the legislative or executive branches that is opposed to funding higher education," Pettit said. "The problem is that the legislators do not want to vote for a tax increase. The only way we can affect the legislature is to persuade voters that the future of this state depends on the adequacy of higher education."

Pettit listed the steps taken by the chancellor's office and his statewide counterparts to deal with the governor's proposed tax increase. The strategy included meeting with legislators statewide, and giving testimonies before a House appropriation committee.

"When the appropriations to the University were cut by 4 percent, the tuition increase was the result," Pettit said.

"We were like a team of surgeons operating on a patient, and we ended up losing the patient," he said.

Brown, who is in charge of public and government relations for the chancellor's office, said he has tracked legislative actions and categorized bills according to their relevance to the University.

"When committee hearings concern fundamental developments of bills that influence us, we will go as far as to understand them," Brown said. "Sometimes, though, a legislator gets on a hobby horse, gets going too fast, and runs you over." Brown said actions such as the budget cuts have rendered the University helpless as far as reappropriating the lost funds.

Pettit also said the increase of students and the decrease of allocations made for the worst possible combination for the University's financial state.

He said it was unfortunate that the increase was going into effect next semester, but it was necessary to take action before January to give the legislature a chance to review the matter after its recess.

Prowell, the vice president of the committee, solicited $2,750, enough to pay for four bands.

Gary Gibula, a radio reporter and member of one of the bands that will play, first proposed a two-band slate backed by recorded music between bands. Gibula then arranged for two more bands to be added. Gibula began soliciting more money last week and told the committee Wednesday he has reached a tentative agreement with four bands who are willing to play for a reduced rate, some for as little as $100. If more money is raised, those bands will receive more money, he said.

Four on the Floor, October's Child, Modern Day Saints, Lucky Mary Blonde, Almost Blue, Tremor, Tin Pan Alley and Johnny and the Scratch will perform at the festival, but the order of appearances has not been scheduled. Entertainment will begin at 7 p.m. both Friday and Saturday and end at 1:30 a.m. with recorded music featured between each of the four bands that will play each night.

Fabian said although planning for the children's carnival got a late start, it appears to be going smoothly. The committee agreed the carnival was a good idea but withheld approval until a formal proposal is made next week.

If the proposal is approved, the carnival will be publicized in the committee's advertisements, announcements and flyers.

The Inter Greek Council will present details of the proposal at the next meeting, Wednesday at El Greco's restaurant.

ceremony, he said. "Everything else is pretty well wrapped up," he said.

"Naturally we can't open it without those (the rails) because it's too dangerous," Gosnell said.

The Ho Chi Minh trail, a shortcut across the railroad tracks, is still in use because of the delay.

The dedication ceremony will be held on the overpass, which spans the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad and U.S.

Route 51 adjacent to the SIU-C campus, at 10:30 a.m. Oct. 30.

There is a "very slim chance" that the rails will be up before the ribbon-cutting ceremony, Gosnell said.

"We were committed to the date before we knew the extent of the problem with the rails," Gosnell said. The ceremony will go ahead because more than 100 invitations have been sent and the event has taken a lot of coordination to put together, he said.

The $2.3 million cost of the overpass is funded mainly by the federal government; however, 5 percent of the cost is divided by the city, SIU-C, the Illinois Department of Transportation and the ICG Railroad.

The overpass is part of Carbondale's Railroad Relocation Project, which is a safety-oriented program designed to reduce conflict between trains, cars and pedestrians.

Constitution's anniversary to be honored at Shryock

"We The Children," a concert celebrating the U.S. Constitution's 200th anniversary, will be presented at 8 p.m. Monday in Shryock Auditorium.

The concert will feature patriotic music performed by the Chicago Symphony String Quartet, the SIU-C Wind Ensemble and a chorus of 100 school children from Carbondale with members of the SIU-C Choral Union. State senators Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, and Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, will represent the government under which the Constitution upholds.

Music to be performed includes a string quartet written by Benjamin Franklin, performed by the Chicago Symphony String Quartet, Aaron Copland's "Lincoln Portrait" with Senator Poshard narrating, and "Fanfare for the Common Man."

The concert also will be presented at 1 p.m. Monday in Shryock Auditorium for the benefit of school children.

Admission to the evening concert is $2 for general public and $1 for students. Tickets will be available at the door that evening.

Profs to lecture on films at conference in St. Louis

By Richard Nunez
Staff Writer

Two assistant professors from the Cinema and Photography Department will present lectures Friday at the Midwest Popular Culture Association Conference at St. Louis Community College at Meramec.

Lilly Boruszkowski and Anthony Williams will present lectures during the conference's first session titled "Film One: Transformations

In Time and Genre."

Boruszkowski's lecture, "Early Film Directors from Alice Guy Blache to Maya Deren," will discuss the backgrounds and importance of early women film directors.

Boruszkowski said that most of the women discussed will be those who worked prior to director D.W. Griffith, who directed the masterpieces "Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance."

"Most of them were direc-ling and owned their own film production companies," Boruszkowski said.

The conference, to be held Friday through Sunday, will explore subjects of popular culture including literature, architecture, music, cartoons, computers and sports.

The conference is sponsored by Webster University, the Midwest Popular Culture Association and St. Louis Community College, 11333 Big Bend Blvd.

Biden backers join Simon

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Calling it the most significant development since the day he announced his candidacy for president, Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., Wednesday welcomed to his campaign staff most of the former Iowa campaign staff of Sen. Joe Biden.

The backers included 1986 Iowa Democratic gubernatorial candidate Lowell

Junkins, who estimated up to 90 percent of Biden's staff was joining the Simon camp.

Neutral observers said the move will provide guidance for supporters of Biden, D-Del., who dropped out of the race last month amid accusations he quoted other politicians without attribution and misrepresented his college academic record.

"It is more or less an organizational shot in the arm," said Phil Roeder, the Iowa Democratic Party's communications director.

"It will serve as an arrow. It shows the two candidates are compatible," he said.

Simon, who appeared at three news conferences across Iowa with Junkins and four other key former Biden staffers, said the new workers will help in Iowa.

the joint election of governor and lieutenant governor.

Sadler said a congressional race is a major campaign — more so than a state senate race.

Sadler, who owns a small business in Pinkneyville, worked about three years as steering committee coordinator for Common Cause, a citizens lobby group that lobbied for campaign finance reform laws. He said he began to collect data on campaign finances while working for Common Cause and has continued.

On Sept. 23, Joseph Biden, a U.S. Senator from Delaware, dropped out of the Democratic race for president after he exaggerated his law school record, admitted plagiarizing a term paper in his first year at Syracuse University Law School in 1965 and used the words of other politicians in his speeches.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael

Dukakis, also a Democratic presidential contender, has been hampered by the actions of his campaign manager who supplied the media with the video that led to Biden's downfall.

John Sasso, Dukakis' campaign manager, resigned after supplying the video, which showed Biden borrowing part of a speech by British Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock.

Police Blotter

Stabbing victim Alen J. Copper, 29, of 617 Oakland Ave. was released from Memorial Hospital of Carbondale Wednesday, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Murphysboro Police said Debrah McGhee, 28, of 230 South Main St., Murphysboro, allegedly stabbed Copper near the center of his chest Monday.

When police responded at 2:03 p.m. Monday, police found Copper, already injured, trying to force his way into McGhee's residence.

Formal charges are pending on the investigation, police said.

Murphysboro woman was in critical condition in St. Joseph's Hospital in Murphysboro Wednesday following a fire in her Murphysboro home Tuesday, a spokeswoman from St. Joseph's Hospital said.

Police rescued the two residents at 217 South Eighth St. at 12:05 a.m. from the fire Tuesday.

Firefighters said Pearlina Travis, 81, of 217 South Eighth St. was pronounced dead upon arrival at St. Joseph's. Collene Travis, 26, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. Police officer Mike Ryan was treated and released from St. Joseph's, according to reports.

A joint investigation by the fire department, police department and the State Fire Marshal's Office found no evidence of arson, according to reports.

A Carbondale man was arrested and charged with theft Tuesday over an incident which occurred at Oriental Foods in Murdale Shopping Center at 10:31 a.m., Tuesday, according to Le Carbondale Police Department.

Police said 23-year-old Jerry L. Johnson allegedly took a wallet out of a purse in the office area of Oriental Foods.

An employee identified Johnson, who fled when approached by police, according to reports.

Police said Johnson was found hiding in a garage in the 17th block of West Sycamore Street, but that he tossed the wallet on a roof in Murdale Shopping Center.

Johnson was in Jackson County Jail Wednesday on $2,000 bond, according to a spokesperson at the Circuit Clerk's.

Series announcers: local fans are hard to please

CHICAGO (UPI) — ABC broadcasters Al Michaels, Tim McCarver and Jim Palmer please take note: trying to please fans of the teams in the World Series isn't easy.

National broadcasters of major sporting events like the World Series or Super Bowl are excellent targets for fans who are used to hearing their own local announcers during the season. What may seem like an innocent remark on an innocent play in a game could wind up stirring up a hornet's nest of protest to rabid fans of one, or both, of the teams involved in the Fall Classic.

"Doing the national telecasts, well, it is difficult to please everyone so you don't worry about it," McCarver said. "I've been in the business long enough to know no matter what you say someone is going to get upset about it."

"We'll do the telecast and we'll be fair, accurate and impartial. We don't get in to worrying about the loyalties of the fans," says Curt Gowdy Jr., producer of the ABC World Series telecast.

NBC's Vin Scully, a veteran of this type of criticism, once noted he received angry letters from fans of both sides in a World Series he covered.

"They both thought I was favoring their team," Scully said. "Got letters from both sides, too. I thought I was being impartial but I guess there is no such thing in this case."

Scully got a reminder last week in his coverage of the National League Championship Series between St. Louis and San Francisco. In the first game, he made a seemingly innocent reference to a ground-rule double in the eighth inning of a game.

"You'd have thought Vin said something really obscene. The reaction from the St. Louis fans was unbelievable," said NBC spokesman Kevin Monaghan. "We were getting calls all day."

St. Louis talk shows were filled with callers more upset about Scully's alleged bias than the results of the games.

In Detroit, angry commentators on local radio stations complained that NBC was picking on Kirk Gibson by showing so many close-ups of the Tiger outfielder after a strikeout or a bad play.

Western shoots for share of title, Salukis need win to stay alive

In this weekend's most important Gateway Conference football game, and in a reversed replay from a year ago, Western Illinois will try to spoil SIU-C's homecoming and eliminate the Salukis from the conference title chase.

Western, 4-0 in league play and No. 9 in this week's NCAA poll, could drive a nail in SIU-C's coffin by handing the Salukis a second loss in league play.

With a win, the Leathernecks would clinch no worse than a tie for the league crown.

Last year the two teams met with reversed roles. SIU-C needed only a win to gain an at large berth to the NCAA's I-AA playoffs but Western upset the then-nationally ranked Salukis, 24-21.

Last week, Western dumped Eastern Illinois 21-12 while SIU-C suffered a 35-0 thrashing at the hands of Fresno State.

In the only other conference game this weekend, Eastern Illinois plays host to Indiana State. At 1-1, EIU can ill afford another league loss while the Sycamores will be looking for their first conference win in nine tries.

Last week, the Sycamores were shut out 38-0 by Georgia Tech.

In nonconference action, Southwest Missouri takes on Northern Illinois in De Kalb while Illinois State plays at Eastern Washington. Northern Iowa, the only other team without a league loss, has the week off.

Sale of Twins' tickets drives fans into frenzy

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Many lined up but few were chosen.

Some 15,000 World Series tickets were sold in about eight hours at Dayton's stores in Minnesota Tuesday. Trouble was 45,000 to 55,000 showed up, hoping to be among those at the Metrodome Saturday when the Minnesota Twins play in their first World Series in 22 years.

"I don't believe this," said Erin Dooley, 22, Minneapolis, when the tickets ran out just in front of her.

"It's not right," said Lutye Lyght of Burnsville, a registered nurse who failed to get tickets. "I'm real fired up about this."

For the most part, those who waited for hours overnight behaved. But scuffles occurred when a desperate few tried to cut into line. Police were called to several stores but no arrests were reported.

"We did a lot to prepare and communicate to all our stores but it fell down at some point and we apologize to all our customers," said Cyndy Schlosser, a Dayton's spokeswoman. "Every attempt will be made to correct it next time around."

She said at the St. Paul store there were "some unruly people and there seemed to be a lot of confusion about the numbering system." Similar problems occurred at Rosedale and Brookdale, where a small fight broke out.

Numbers were handed out at some stores. Herb Morgenthaler, in charge of tickets at the Minneapolis store, said his company will review its policy if Dayton's sells tickets for Games 6 and 7. Dayton's served coffee and hot chocolate at most of the stores.

In Rochester, Mayor Chuck Hazama visited hundreds of fans in line. In Edina, police said they saw a man choking a woman in a car.

"The guy had bought four tickets," said Sgt. Syl Schwartz. "A girlfriend picked him up and she was informed that the tickets were for his family, and they got into a fight."

Meanwhile, "Homer Hanky" mania surged to the point where newborn babies at Methodist Hospital in suburban St. Louis Park were wrapped in them.

"These are future Twins and future fans," said Rosemary Nally, a nurse at the hospital. "What could be more exciting than a Homer Hanky in a baby book?"

The Star Tribune in Minneapolis, sponsor of the hankies, has ordered 400,000 of the red-and-white souvenirs but the demand may not be met. Hundreds of people waited outside the newspaper's offices Tuesday to buy one.

"We can't afford the tickets, but we can afford the hankies," said Barb Tesch of St. Paul. "We're going to a local pub Saturday to wave our hankies."

World Series tickets went for $20 and $30. Homer hankies were 50 cents with a newspaper coupon, $1 without.

The first two games of the World Series are expected to pump up to $25 million into the Twin Cities economy. State officials base the projection on 37,000 out-of-town fans spending $180 a day.

"Most of the hotels have some rooms," said Roger Toussaint, an official with the Greater Minneapolis Convention and Visitors Bureau. "But, even as we speak, that can be dropping drastically."

When inside linebacker Ezell Shelton isn't hammering opposing teams' running backs, he spends time at the School of Technical Careers studying mechanical engineering.

Shelton says the Saluki defensive scheme is designed for linebackers to make the plays.

"They're running interference for us to keep the linemen off us. By the time they reach me, I can out-quick them," Shelton said.

Shelton, or "EZ" as he's known to his teammates, has played football since fourth grade.

"In Americus, (Ga.) football was the sport to play when I was growing up," Shelton said.

Shelton's Americus High School team finished with a 12-1 record after losing the state championship game to Mitchell-Baker High School 22-10.

Although Shelton had a great high school career, college recruiters weren't pounding on his door handing out football scholarships.

Shelton's grades were good enough to be accepted at Georgia Tech, but a football scholarship was nowhere to be found.

"I wasn't recruited by any college but a junior college, so that was pretty much my only option. Looking at it now, I should've been recruited by somebody," Shelton said.

Shelton went to Northeast Oklahoma junior college, a school that ranks 8th nationally in this week's National Junior College Athletic Association football poll.

Shelton, a senior in mechanical engineering, isn't the stereotypical jock whose major falls somewhere between weaving and window gazing.

"I got into engineering because I was always pretty good at math and science in high school," Shelton said.

Shelton earned Gateway player-of-the-week honors for his performance against Northern Iowa in last year's homecoming game. Shelton had 14 tackles and a pass interception in SIU-C's 27-24 win.

Homecoming's top 10 vie for king, queen titles

By Amy Gaubatz
Staff Writer

Ten students are vying for the chance to represent SIU-C as this year's Homecoming King and Queen.

The new king and queen will be crowned by the retiring king, Dave Palmisano, and queen, Melanie Corolis, during halftime Saturday at the Homecoming football game against Western Illinois.

The candidates were selected during the preliminaries from five different areas: Brush Towers, Greek System, Off-Campus, Thompson Point, and University Park.

Brush Towers is represented by queen candidate Kelley Ahrens and king candidate Ernest Tellez.

Ahrens is from Springfield and is a junior in marketing. "In Brush Towers we had individual elections in each building, then area-wide." Becoming queen "would be a big honor. I enjoy getting involved in things like that," she said.

Tellez, a sophomore in law enforcement, is from Chicago. "Our floor resident assistant was asking around who would like to be nominated. I was sitting in the hub lounge and said I would," he said. "I like weightlifting. I'm an open person." Becoming king "would be a great honor. I'd love to represent Brush Towers and SIU. It would fulfill dreams I'd never thought of," he said.

Representing the Greeks are queen candidate Lisa Wilson and king candidate Larry Caldieraro.

Wilson is a junior from Lombard, who is majoring in radio-television and public relations, with a minor in journalism. She belonged to Vocal Jazz, and was a Shaker last year. "I think the queen should be a well rounded person, who supports SIU," she said.

Caldieraro is from Staunton, and is a senior in education, with a minor in construction technology. He was nominated through a chapter meeting at his house, Alpha Tau Omega. "I like to hunt, fish, and play football. I played one year down here. I like sports," he said.

Off-Campus is represented by queen candidate Dawn Bohlen and king candidate Derya Sumer.

Bohlen, who is from Macon, is a senior in speech communications. She said she was nominated by the American Marketing Association. "I am outgoing, and work a lot. I like to keep myself busy. I like sports and I like to dance," she said. "I feel I would be a good representative of this school. It's become a part of me. In the four years I've been here, I've learned a lot."

Sumer, from Peoria, is a senior in biological sciences-economics, with a minor in chemistry, said he has never done anything like this before. "A friend talked to me about running, so I did," he said. "I'm easy going. I'm the only one in my family who doesn't have a temper. I like things that keep me active, and I enjoy meeting people from all walks of life."

Representing Thompson Point are queen candidate Tara Munday and king candidate Andrew Bieschke.

Munday, from Benton, is a sophomore in accounting.

She said, "I feel I would be an exemplary candidate just as much as anyone else."

Bieschke, who is from Wilmette, is a senior in sociology, with a minor in theater. "I ran at Thompson Point. I started myself, was nominated that way," he said.

University Park is represented by queen candidate Jena Fumarolo and king candidate Jacques Johnson.

Fumarolo, from Chicago, is a sophomore in pre-nursing. "I saw the signs, so I figured I would run."

Johnson, from Decatur, Ga., is a senior in psychology. "A few friends asked me, so I went ahead and stuck my neck out," he said. "I'm a basketball and football fanatic."

Marching Salukis ready to throw down a variety of tunes for halftime

By Curtis Winston
Entertainment Editor

While the football team has been on the road, the Marching Salukis have planned a powerful homecoming halftime show that will feature music ranging from rhythm and blues to big band and a special appearance by band alumni.

The homberg-hatted, tuxedo-clad marching band will step off the line for the halftime show with the flashy drum-corps style piece, "Throwdown."

The first song features intricate computer-charted moves programmed by band graduate assistant Guy Kammerer and a rocking bass-line fronted by the Saluki Sousaphone section.

Next in the halftime lineup is "Drum Machine," which features the "Rhythm on Wheels" percussion section and the Saluki Twirlers with the band playing some basic rock 'n' roll licks.

The Marching Salukis will then delve into the rhythm and blues archives with the popular James Brown song "Night Train." In keeping with the homecoming theme of "Dancin' in the Streets," the song will feature dancing by the Saluki Shakers.

The band also will play "Tribute to Glenn Miller," a medley which features such favorites as "Little Brown Jug," "Moonlight Serenade" and "String of Pearls." These favorites helped make Glenn Miller's band and the top dance band of the 1930s and 1940s.

Highlighting the halftime show will be an appearance of Marching Saluki alumni for a rendition of "Go Southern Go." The Glee Club alumni, which made an appearance at the Robert Kingsbery tribute concert this summer, also will be on hand to sing the "Alma Mater."

Marching Saluki band director Mike Hanes says he looks forward to seeing the alumni every year. He asks any alumni to show up at the arena practice field at 12:15 p.m. Saturday with or without an instrument.

"It's always fun for me to see the alumni get together and see how much hair they've lost or how much weight they've gained," Hanes said.

The Marching Salukis also will provide background music for the homecoming king and queen crowning ceremony and will be featured in the homecoming parade that morning.

Homecoming visitors pack Carbondale hotel

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

Homecoming is enjoyable not only to the people who come to enjoy the festivities, but often to businesses who bring in more money than usual because of souvenir-seeking out-of-towners.

Although the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce has not done a study specifically on Homecoming to determine how much extra revenue is brought to the city, they have some figures that generally hold for any event.

A person who lives more than 100 miles away who comes to Carbondale for a weekend will spend about $75 per day for expenses and souvenirs.

This year Homecoming has been especially successful for local hotels and motels.

Clay Moon, director of sales for Holiday Inn of Carbondale, 800 E.

Main, said this is the first Homecoming weekend in at least two years for which the hotel is booked solid with reservations.

"Homecoming never has been much for us in the past," he said.

"Usually on Homecoming weekend, we don't fill. This year we did."

He said the added business might be attributable to intensified promotional efforts this year by the Student Programming Council.

The chamber estimates that the average attendance at a football game is 11,000. They estimate that when more than 11,000 people attend a football game, which usually occurs on Homecoming, about 85 percent of the additional people are from out of town.

The Chamber of Commerce estimates that $17.6 million, from 288,000 people, is spent annually in the five-county region around Carbondale because of the University.

Bands, floats to compete for prizes

By Laura Milbrath
Staff Writer

The Homecoming Parade will add to the weekend of celebration beginning at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday with bands providing music and floats competing for prizes.

This year's Homecoming theme, "Dancing in the Street," will be displayed in the parade as the builders of the floats try to defeat their competition by creating the most original images that refer to the theme.

First place winners will receive $125 and a traveling trophy which is passed on each year. The builders of the second place float will receive $75 and a plaque, while the third place finishers receive $50 and a certificate.

Jason Hinton, SPC Special Events

homecoming chairman, said he created this year's theme in the hope that it would "get people in a party mood and celebrating."

Hinton estimated that nearly 25 high school bands would appear in the parade and be judged in three classes based on the size of the schools.

Participants in the parade will line up on Grand Avenue. The parade will turn north on Illinois Avenue then west on Elm Street and south on University Avenue ending at the Physical Plant.

Lou Talbot, assistant University program coordinator at SPC, is the adviser for homecoming. "We want homecoming to have a feel of celebration, a festival-type atmosphere," she said. "We're welcoming back a lot of alumni."

Alumni Association aims toward 'second generation'

By Catherine Simpson
Staff Writer

The SIU-C Alumni Association is co-sponsoring several reunions and events for Homecoming Weekend.

The association is co-sponsoring receptions for the colleges and dinners for alumni clubs, including the Half Century Club and the Quarter Century Club.

"The idea about homecoming is one to rekindle the feeling of the warm experiences the alumni once had about the institution," said Pat McNeil, assistant director of the association. The association earns no revenues from the weekend, McNeil said.

The theme for this year's homecoming is "Dancing in the Street." The purpose of the weekend for the alumni association is to gather more members. "We're hoping that we're going to be attracting the second generation," McNeil said.

At homecoming Saturday, the association will have a tent for central registration and face painting for the children. The Obelisk II will sell previous editions of the yearbook and WSU-radio will broadcast live. Entertainment will be provided by the Dixie Jazz Cats.

"Our primary purpose is to assist groups in trying to establish activities on campus to reunite alumni," McNeil said.

Groups are gathering from several departments on campus. The Radio-Television department and the School of Business Administration will be holding capital development campaigns, McNeil said.

The SIU Foundation will not hold a fund-raiser for the weekend. "The Foundation Board of Directors is holding its fall annual meeting so the members can enjoy the activities," said Sharon Stewart, administrative assistant to the president of the foundation.

Colleges plan tent events

By Tom Trotter
Staff Writer

SIU-C colleges will sponsor tents with free food, exhibits and entertainment for alumni visiting the University for Homecoming on Saturday, Patricia McNeil, director for Alumni Services, said. The tents will open at 9 a.m. next to McAndrew Stadium.

The College of Business and Administration will celebrate its 30th anniversary with a 10-foot inflated Spuds McKenzie next to their homecoming tent, Rebecca Fines, an assistant dean for the college, said.

The Colleges of Communications and Fine Arts, Technical Careers, Education, and Human Resources will share three tents to provide the refreshments, while providing their own tents for alumni to meet, Patricia Arey, assistant dean for the College of Communications and Fine Arts, said.

The College of Human Resources will offer free demonstrations of the polygraph test at its tent, Susan Fraley, public relations coordinator for the college, said.

The College of Technical Careers will provide a free drawing for two telephones at its tent and also will give balloons to alumni, Barbara Peterson, a secretary for the college said.

The College of Education will provide exhibits and a drawing for prints of Pulliam Hall, John Allen, a spokesperson for the college said.

The colleges of Agriculture, Liberal Arts, Science, and Engineering and Technology will provide refreshments at their tents.

SPC plans Oktoberfest, videos, 'phenomenal' show

The Student Programming Council is sponsoring a variety of events for this year's celebration of Homecoming, with a theme of "Dancing in the Street."

Today:

Mr. and Ms. Saluki Coronation Dance will begin at 8 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom D with music by Mixmaster.

A video entitled "Bedtime for Bonzo" will be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. in the Students Center's 4th floor video lounge.

Friday:

Mentalist Ronny Romm will perform "Expect Something Phenomenal" at 8 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom D.

A double feature video showing will be presented, with "Breakfast Club" at 5 and 9 p.m. and "Sixteen Candles" at 7 and 11 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium.

Saturday:

The first Homecoming 10-K Race, co-sponsored by the Society for the Advancement of Management, will begin at 7:30 a.m. in front of the Lesar Law Building. Runners also will compete in a two-mile race that morning. Those who enter the 10-K race before Friday pay $5. The charge is $8 the day of the race. Rates for the two-mile run are $4 in advance of $5 the day of the race. For details, call 453-2527.

The Homecoming Parade will kick off at 9:30 a.m. at the intersection of Grand and South Illinois avenues. Marchers will proceed north on Illinois to Elm Street, move west to University Avenue, and then go back south on University and Route 51 to the Physical Plant.

The tailgate "Oktoberfest" and Band will begin at 10:30 a.m. in the Free Forum Area.

Student Programming Council Reunion is set for 4 p.m. in the Student Center Old Main Room, and the Glee Club Sing and Reception is set for 4 p.m. in the Student Center Renaissance Room.

A double feature video showing will be presented, with "Breakfast Club" at 5 and 9 p.m. and "Sixteen Candles" at 7 and 11 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium.

Eboness Pageant to be Saturday

Eight contestants will compete for a $400 scholarship in this year's Miss Eboness Pageant, to be Saturday night at Shryock Auditorium.

The pageant is sponsored by the Beta Eta Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc. All seats for the 16th annual pageant are $5, Paul Cunningham, member of the Black Affairs Council and Alpha Phi Alpha, said. Tickets are available at the Student Center ticket office.

This pageant is different from a beauty contest, Cunningham said, because "contestants aren't judged for their exterior looks."

Judges are appointed in advance so that they can interview contestants before the pageant, he said. Contestants also are judged on evening wear and a stage performance, which could range from modern dance to classical piano.

Four semi-finalists are then selected to answer questions from the judges.

About 750 people attended last year's pageant, Cunningham said. "Because of all the publicity we're getting this year, we expect that to increase to 850 to 900."

The pageant may be taped and aired on WSIU as it was last year, he said.

Salukis face must-win game against Western

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

One of the main attractions of the homecoming weekend is the Saluki-Western Illinois football game at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at McAndrew Stadium.

The 2-4 Salukis face a must-win situation against the Leathernecks, a team that Saluki coach Ray Dorr rates as having a good shot at the Gateway title, along with Northern Iowa.

"Right now, every game we play is a critical one," Dorr said of the struggling Saluki gridders.

The Salukis have not lived up to their pre-season rankings and stay alive largely with defensive action. The defense, led by linebackers Mike Carbonaro and Ezell Shelton, has carried the team all season. Dorr said the two linebackers are probably the best tandem in the conference.

On the other hand, Western Illinois has surpassed pre-season expectations and now contends for the Gateway title on the arm of quarterback Paul Singer.

Singer, one of the best offensive players in the conference, has turned the Leathernecks into a scoring machine. Named Gateway Offensive Player of the Week three consecutive times this season, Singer completed a conference-record 32 passes in 42 attempts for 331 yards and two touchdowns in WIU's 20-19 squeaker over Southwest Missouri State.

SIU-C will try to avenge a 24-21 loss to WIU incurred during the final game the Salukis played last season. During that match the Salukis blew a 21-7 fourth-quarter lead. Singer threw for 244 yards and three touchdowns against the Saluki defense. SIU-C had one last chance to win the game with a minute left to play. On a fourth-and-one situation quarterback Kevin Brown rolled out but slipped, falling short of the first down. The loss knocked SIU-C out of a tie for the conference championship and a playoff berth.

Last homecoming, the Salukis beat Northern Iowa 27-24. Northern Iowa jumped to a 14-0 lead before the Saluki defense took over the game. It recorded 18 of the team's 27 points as Ira Davis returned an interception for a touchdown. Ron Kirk and Anthony Woods both added safeties.

The Salukis may need a similar effort from the defense this year to beat Western Illinois.

Western has won three consecutive games against the Salukis and leads the series 18-10-4.
