Tenants protest 'standby' food situation

By Leanne Waxman
Staff Writer

Stevenson Arms residents protested Tuesday against their present food service arrangements, the result of a food services workers' strike that began Monday. Students also protested against current dorm living conditions.

Protesting residents crowded around a large linen sign in front of Stevenson Arms, at 600 W. Mill, Tuesday morning, and said they would continue to protest for the rest of the day. The sign read, "Let's be reasonable, Let's negotiate, Let's eat."

Residents of 600 W. Freeman and Stevenson Arms, the two dorms affected by the strike, are provided with temporary meal tickets, worth $2 for lunch and dinner and $1.25 for breakfast at the Student Center Cafeteria.

According to Stevenson Arms resident Kim Anderson, many students do not return to the dorm for lunch every day. Stevenson Arms, managed by the Old Main Limited Co., regularly provides students who are unable to eat lunch in the dorm with a sack lunch. Residents who do not have time to go to the Student Center to eat are going hungry, residents protested.

Protesting residents said the management is not providing residents with enough money to eat a substantial meal at the Student Center.

"It's a big inconvenience having to go to the Student Center to eat," said Anderson, a freshman in administration of justice.

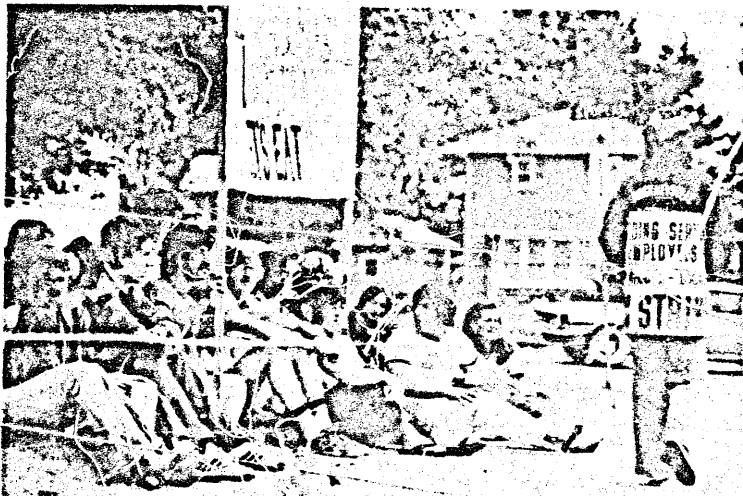

According to a petition prepared by Stevenson Arms residents, students were also protesting against "poor living conditions," and a lack of cleanliness in the dorm. The petition cites some grievances as inadequate telephone service, crumbling lounge area and room furniture, leaking toilets and other faulty plumbing fixtures, and the absence of cold running water in bathrooms. Stairwells, and hallways were cited as a protesting resident said.

"Everybody is afraid of walking down the hallway herefoot," John Stafford, a freshman in journalism said. Some students do not have mirrors, desk lamps and lounge chairs in their rooms, Stafford said.

The petition, which was signed by 114 Stevenson Arms residents, will be handed over to the Hall Council to be funneled through the proper administrative channels, according to Hall Council Co-President Doug Berger.

"We're not trying to be militant, we're trying to get some help," Berger said.

Although Freeman residents did not participate in the planning of the protest, they do support it, Anderson said. "We want what we paid for,"

she said. "We want to get our money's worth for living here."

Vending machines in both dormitories, which are owned by the Merri-Mac Co., have not been stocked since the strike began, according to Roy McClain, the owner of the Merri-Mac Co. McClain said Merri-Mac workers did go to Stevenson Arms and 600 Freeman Monday, but when they found out workers from Employees International Union Local 316 were striking, they did not re-stock the machines.

"My guys were embarrassed when they got in there," McClain said. "We don't cross any picket lines."

He said the company would not doubt suffer a considerable loss by not re-stocking the machines at Stevenson Arms and 600 Freeman.

According to residents, the clothes dryers at Stevenson Arms are in need of repair but

$130,500 grant to women's athletics aids coaches

By Paula D. Walter
Staff Writer

The contracts of 10 of the 11 women's athletics coaches have been extended from nine to 12 months, placing all women's coaches on 12-month appointments, according to Charlotte West, director of women's intercollegiate athletics.

In addition, six of the coaches whose salaries previously were taken out of local monies will now be paid out of state funds, she said.

The action came as a result of an appropriation signed over to women's athletics by Acting President Hiram Lesar and consists of about $130,500 in state funds, according to Jerry Lacey, assistant to the vice president for university relations.

Lesar said the action came as a result of a budget request from George Mace, vice president for university relations, and that the budget committee later recommended the monies be appropriated for the extensions of the coaches' appointments.

Before this action, women's coaches were being paid for nine of the 12 months they were working, while all the men's coaches were on 12-month appointments, West said. In addition, six coaches were being paid with monies from the operating budget, which added to the women's athletics financial difficulties, she said.

"There was not one coach in our program that wasn't here in the summer working—working for no pay," West said. "They were here for recruiting purposes, in addition to working on schedules and preparing for the coming year," she said.

West said news of the action was well received by the coaches and that it helped to boost the morale.

"It's a positive step, but even with this increase we are an extremely difficult position," she said.

Rising costs in areas such as travel has made it difficult for women's athletics to operate and have also hurt recruiting, West said.

"We've lost a couple of athletes to other institutions which offer more travel opportunities," she said.

In addition to this appropriation, West said women's athletics is planning some special fund-raising projects this year in order to make it easier to send women athletes to national championships.

West said she suspects the appropriation came as a result of increasing pressures on the University to comply with Title IX standards. Title IX is a 1972 law prohibiting sex-based discrimination in education, including athletics.

"I would suspect that President Lesar, with his legal expertise, would not want to jeopardize University funds as a result of a Health, Education and Welfare study of compliance," West said. "This is a starting effort toward compliance."

Lesar said the action was taken in order to equalize the athletics situation

Proposal for $10 athletic fee increase under way

By Ray Robinson
and Paula D. Walter
Staff Writers

A proposal is being prepared for a $10 increase in the student athletic fee, effective in January, according to Jerry Lacey, assistant to Vice President for University Relations George Mace.

Lacey said the proposal will probably be submitted at either the October or November meeting of the SIU Board of Trustees for approval.

However, Vice President for Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne said the proposal will probably come before the board at the October meeting because tuition and fees for the spring semester are calculated in late October.

According to a board rule, fee increases must be considered at two meetings. But twice previously this year, the board has voted to waive that rule on the recommendation of the SIU administration.

Swinburne indicated that the administration might again ask for a waiver of the rule, thus passing the proposal at one meeting.

"If (the fee increase) didn't pass in October, assessing of tuition might be delayed," he said.

Swinburne said he is working on an alternative to the fee increase, which he plans to propose to the administration in a meeting Wednesday. Swinburne declined to give details of his proposal.

Passage of the proposal would mean an increase in the athletic fee from $20 to $30 per semester. Lacey said the administration intends to equally distribute the fee between men's and women's athletic programs. However, he said the administration wants some flexibility in the distribution.

"If we set it 50-50 and the men happen to have an outstanding year, we'd like to be able to bump the women's programs to get some extra money for the men. The same holds for the women, too," he said.

Leaders of two student constituency groups both expressed opposition to the increase.

"I'm surprised that the vice president for university relations has designed such a quick time frame in which constituency involvement is precluded," said Gary Brown, president of the Graduate Student Council. "I would have appreciated more lead time."

Pete Alexander, president of the Undergraduate Student Organization, said he is doing some research in anticipation of fighting the proposal.

"If we truly need an athletic fee increase this sizeable, the students shouldn't get soaked with all of it. We need to look for an alternative source," he said.

Richard Millman, assistant to the president, said the opinions of constituency leaders would be sought before the proposal goes to the board for its final reading.

Gus says the Salukis win a couple of football games and already somebody wants to jack up the athletics fee.

No accord reached at meeting of law students, GSC

By Charity Gould
Staff Writer

Despite several hours of discussion Tuesday, law students and the Graduate Student Council still could not resolve their differences about a possible split in the GSC constituency group.

At a meeting held in a Law School classroom, approximately 40 law students met with GSC President Gary Brown and three members of his executive council to voice their opinions on why the law students want out of the GSC and also to ask Brown questions about GSC policies.

Brown passed out a memo from the GSC executive board which outlined the board's position on the law students wanting to break away from the GSC and form an individual constituency group.

The memo stated: "We share a common campus. We all use the same Student Center, we surrender the same fees and ponder the same entertainment and lecture events."

In response, the law students said they had different needs than graduate students and wanted to be recognized as a different body.

Vice President of Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne, who was present at the meeting, said he believed that the constituency would be weakened if the law students pulled out of GSC.

"If you're basing the decision to leave on money, I believe you're making it on the wrong matter," Swinburne said to the law students.

Student fee disbursement is the main area where law students believe they have been unfairly represented. Jim Rodgers, Student Bar Association president, said if he wanted two fee boards instead of one fee board and two sets of guidelines as was proposed by Brown, to safeguard the system in the future.

Rodgers said, "How do we know, the council could change their minds in the future and convert back to the old board and then we'd be back where we started."

Brown said even though he personally was against it, if the law students could sell the two fee board idea to the council, then he sees no problem with it.

Brown said whether law students stay or not, the executive board has proposed a new budgetary system to eliminate "this unintentional favoritism." The new plan would divide the events budget into three areas: programming, special support, and student development.

"The student development area is the key option," Brown said. "Some portion of the student activity fee paid by the graduate students would be returned to the accredited organization. The group could use the money any way they wished as long as it falls within the State of Illinois and the University policies.

Also, to assure that this new system is maintained in the future, the executive board would consider appropriating a constitutional revision, Brown said.

Representatives of the law students feel they are paying money into the GSC but are not getting anything back.

After the meeting, Rodgers said he did not know what the law students will do or whether law school representatives will go to the GSC meeting Wednesday night.

Donow still pursues bargaining

By Shelley Davis
Staff Writer

It's a new semester but the struggle continues—a struggle that has lasted eight and a half years for Herbert Donow, president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers.

The struggle has been for the recognition of collective bargaining agents by the Board of Trustees.

"There is no law that obligates the board to hold a collective bargaining election and we've had no luck in getting them to agree to one," said Donow, an associate professor of English.

Donow said the last time the issue was before the board was in 1977. After 18 months of deliberation, the board decided that collective bargaining was "not in the best interest of the University," he said. "I'm still trying to figure out what that means," Donow said. Donow said the board's composition accounts for what he calls "disappointingly slow progress" concerning the collective bargaining issue.

"The people on the board are basically conservative—not likely to be receptive to unions," Donow explained. "So I'm not surprised by their resistance."

Besides the board's "active resistance," Donow has other obstacles to deal with.

"It's hard to organize college professors," Donow said. "We have to build membership to get people ready for a collective bargaining election. It oughtn't be relative, but unfortunately too much depends on too few people to do the work."

Donow said he is hoping the membership drive and the election of new officers for the CFUT will produce an "infusion of new and enthusiastic blood." He said he also hopes to make the CFUT more actively visible by meeting with the faculty.

The other stumbling block is the Illinois General Assembly. Donow said ultimately the question of whether the faculty is represented by collective bargaining depends on the passage of a law that would force the board to hold a collective bargaining election.

Donow says he sees two developments that might speed the passage of the bill. One is the election of a

Shaw neutral on bargaining

By Shelley Davis

Chancellor Kenneth Shaw says he does not support collective bargaining but he does support the right for the faculty to make a choice.

"That is an important nuance," Shaw said. "My position with the Board of Trustees is that certain employees are given the choice and certain are not—I think all employees should be given the choice."

Shaw was referring to the fact that civil service employees decided in a 1978 election to have collective bargaining.

Although Shaw believes that faculty members should be given the choice, he said he will not use his influence to help achieve that goal.

"At this time it is not an extremely high priority," Shaw said. "With just starting the job (of chancellor), there are probably things that are far more important."

Shaw said he doesn't think collective bargaining is necessary to have a good working relationship between faculty and administration.

"The question more appropriately is, is the administrative framework such that it deals with people openly and objectively resolves conflicts in that way. We can do it without (collective bargaining) and we can do it with it," he said.

City to continue public hearings for reaction to community plan

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

In order to get as much public reaction to the proposed Comprehensive Community Plan developed for Carbondale, the City Council Monday night decided to continue a public hearing first held July 23.

The council decided to reconvene the hearing, for the third time, at the formal City Council meeting at 7 p.m. Oct. 1 in the Council Chambers, 607 E. College St.

The Complan, which was first drafted in 1975, is designed to be a guide to help realize the physical, social and economic goals of the community.

Jay Zimmerman Jr., representing the Little Crab Orchard Neighborhood Association, asked the council to continue the hearing so that members of his group could prepare a presentation. Zimmerman was the only citizen to speak at the hearing.

At the first hearing in July, the council decided that since it was vacation time for many people, it would be better to reconvene the hearing when everyone in Carbondale had the opportunity to speak. Mayor Hans Fischer said at the council meeting Monday night.

In other action, the City Council voted to relocate the trailer-on-flat-car or "piggyback" facility, part of the railroad relocation project, on U.S. Highway 51, north of Willow Street.

An informational hearing was held last week to discuss the possibilities for relocating the facility, which allows the interchange of trailers between trucks and railroad flat cars.

The facility is currently located north of Oak Street along the west side of the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad's right-of-way. It must be relocated prior to the construction of the temporary trainway since the facility is located where the new tracks will be built, according to Edon Gosnell, project director of the Railroad Relocation Demonstration Project.

The site the council approved was one of five presented in a report by Clark, Dietz and Associates-Engineers, Inc. of Carbondale.

Councilwoman Helen Weatherg requested that the council express to the engineers and the railroad that:

—the construction have minimal impact on the surrounding area and residents;

—access to the facility be designed so that it does not upset the community;

—construction be feasible with no physical disruptions. City Manager Carroll Fry said, "The design of the piggyback is subject to the railroad's desires. It could cause a strained relationship with the railroad."

Fischer said, "Strained relationships work in strange ways. I think it's very appropriate for us, in a formal way, to give the council's opinion (on the issue)."

"I don't think it is unreasonable for us to ask this, considering we had to approve a train station we didn't live," Fischer said.

Gas rationing plan agreed on WASHINGTON (AP) — House-Senate negotiators reached agreement Tuesday night on a compromise formula to give the president authority to ration gasoline during a severe shortage.

Under the agreement, Congress would have two shots at rejecting a rationing plan — first when the president proposes it and then again when he attempts to invoke it.

The compromise came on the sixth day of negotiations and broke a stalemate over the degree of congressional involvement in the rationing process.

House and Senate leaders of the conference committee said they thought they could win final approval in their respective chambers of the measure. An administration official attending the session said the White House could accept the compromise.

House conferees abandoned their earlier insistence that the president be given a free hand in drafting details of the rationing program.

The president has said he does not intend to invoke rationing, but wants the power to do so in an emergency and has made standby rationing legislation a key part of his overall energy program.

Thompson OKs penny sales tax cut

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Gov. James R. Thompson, in a surprise move, announced Tuesday that he will propose slashing by one cent the five cents-per-dollar state sales tax on grocery food and drugs as an alternative to a bill completely eliminating the tax by mid-1983.

News Roundup

Thompson said at a news conference that he would call the Legislature into special session on Oct. 3, the same day it returns for its regular fall session, to consider his proposal.

"I've become convinced over the last few days that it is not an all-or-nothing proposition, that there is a middle ground," said Thompson.

Thompson, a Republican, said he wants to reduce the 5 percent state sales tax on food and drugs to 4 percent beginning Jan. 1.

Racial segregation cited in Chicago

WASHINGTON (AP) — All students in Chicago schools will be non-white within five years unless the federal government "adopts a more positive position towards" the city's desegregation plans, Rep.

Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., said Tuesday.

Annunzio said in a letter to Patricia Roberts Harris, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, that Chicago "should have an integrated school system ... but I ask with deep concern, what will be achieved towards creating a better educational system in Chicago when no white children participate in that system."

Harris said Saturday that Chicago has practiced deliberate racial segregation in its schools for 40 years. She turned down the city's application for $2 million to $4 million in emergency aid, a move that had been expected.

The HEW secretary also said, though, that she would give the city 30 days to show that it was willing to integrate its schools or she would send a letter about the matter to the Justice Department. That could lead to a civil suit.

Harris noted that the school board has offered plans to remedy various types of racial segregation.

Death facts revised

In the interest of fairness, some facts need to be clarified regarding the tragic death of Phil Drost on Saturday, Sept. 11. I was present and saw what happened.

1. It should be pointed out that Superintendent Kristoff may have exaggerated the significance of Drost's drinking.

2. The top of the crevice between Devil's Stand Table and the cliff face, which Drost attempted to jump, is about 8 feet wide, not 2.5 feet as Kristoff asserts.

3. The rescue effort took much longer than one hour, 35 minutes—in fact, more like three-four hours. It was dark when Drost was finally placed in the ambulance.

4. Neither of two ambulances was equipped with trained paramedics. Neither carried vitally needed IV's. A trauma nurse was summoned but never arrived, due to difficulties securing transportation.

I suggest that the width of the crevice was minimized, and Drost's drinking emphasized, in order to place the burden of guilt on Drost and his companions. The anguish and sense of helplessness felt by myself and my fiancée must have been shared by everyone involved—directly or indirectly—in the rescue effort. Everyone did their best, given the circumstances. But to rationalize this tragedy in terms of "crazy student drunkenness" is, I think, a dangerous self-deception. Such tragedies can, and should, be prevented. Improved paramedical-rescue services with trained EMS technicians—at least on a standby basis—are desperately needed in Southern Illinois. Education of park visitors as to the real existence of danger—via warning signs or memorial plaques at sites of past fatalities or injuries—is essential, to avert future accidents.

Slum enforcement

Just to inform the student population, (and any other citizen to whom this applies), I would like to point out that those persons violating the Carbondale Code by such acts as leaving garbage cans permanently at the curbside, parking motor vehicles in front yards, across sidewalks, and blocking the right-of-way, and incurring other violations that are unsightly, inconveniencing, or otherwise out of harmony with the neighborhood, is not really "getting away" with anything when the City Code Enforcement fails to issue citations.

In reality, these violations benefit the city by adding weight to the city's claim that certain areas are "slums" and should be "redeveloped"—with your tax money.

In case you are a long-term violator of neighborhood harmony and have not been penalized, now you know why: the city does not operate against its own interests. The Department of Housing and Urban Development, which provides the funding for these projects as well as for code enforcement, is all too willing to spend your money in justification of its own existence.

As long as you—or any citizen—remains ignorant of the mechanizations of government, you will be used as dupes to that government's ends. You can help to change an obnoxious system; I encourage you to try.

Save the humpback

On Thursday, September 20, in the main area of the Student Center, there will be a "Save the Whale" table with copies of petitions. The petitions ask for a breeding sanctuary for the Humpback Whale. They read as follows:

We, the undersigned friends of whales, are concerned for the well being of the small population of humpback: (250-500) that seasonally mate and bear their young in the waters surrounding the Hawaiian Islands. We believe that increasing human activity in the humpback's Hawaiian coastal habitat poses a significant threat to the recovery of their severely depleted population.

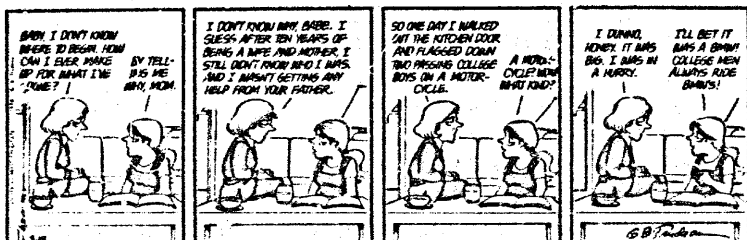

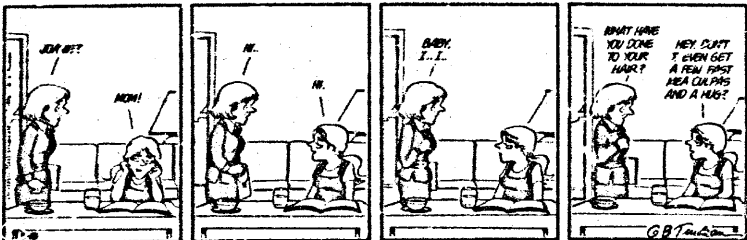

We petition for the establishment of a marine sanctuary in Hawaii to provide strong, enforceable regulations for the protection of whales from disruptive whale watchers, commercial shipping, hydrofoil traffic, off-shore mining, power plants and industrial or agricultural pollution.

These petitions will be available for signatures from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. Please come by and help in this attempt to save the whale.

'Choice' not at issue

WASHINGTON—America's most triumphant political activists in the 1970s have been those who have produced sweeping changes in abortion laws, changes that have contributed much to the current rate of a million abortions a year. Yet the people who have produced this effect, and who are still working for policy changes that would increase the number of abortions, are interestingly anxious to avoid being called "pro-abortion." They prefer the label "pro-choice."

Political movements always try to justify their programs in terms of the society's fundamental values, and the pretense of a liberal society is that the fundamental value is "freedom of choice." But now a suit challenging one small part of the pro-abortion revolution is also challenging the idea that the revolution is just "pro-choice."

George F. Will

Two Catholic organizations have filed suit challenging the constitutionality of the Pregnancy Discrimination Act. The Act requires employers to pay for time taken off by employees to obtain abortions, including abortions that are strictly non-therapeutic. The Act also requires employers to pay all medical and hospitalization costs of abortions "where the life of the mother (sic) would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

The plaintiffs contend that this violates First Amendment rights. It compels employers to treat abortion as a mere fringe benefit, whereas their religious convictions may be that abortion is grave and abhorrent. It compels employers "to participate in the trivialization" of abortion, and to facilitate it by providing economic incentive for it.

Under the First Amendment's protection of the free "exercise" of religion, the freedom to act on religious beliefs is accorded broad protection. The plaintiffs contend that the new law requires employers "to make public acquiescence in a valuation of human life offensive to their religious convictions." And the law does not settle for passive acquiescence but requires "continuing and active participation in an abhorred practice." This in spite of the fact that the Supreme Court has held: "Official compulsion to affirm what is contrary to one's religious beliefs is the antithesis of freedom to worship."

The Court has held that First Amendment rights were violated when children of Jehovah's Witnesses were compelled to salute the flag in school. And when employees were compelled to finance political advertisements they opposed. And even when New Hampshire compelled a dissenting citizen to display the license-plate slogan "Live Free or Die."

Surely the compulsion to facilitate abortions abridges many American's First Amendment rights more seriously than did the law requiring display of New Hampshire's slogan.

The plaintiffs argue that the abortion-funding requirement is even worse than a "passive restraint" on free exercise of religion. A law that threatens a person if he speaks his mind can at least be avoided by not speaking. But the Pregnancy Discrimination Act imposes an affirmative duty that compels employers to act. For those wishing to preserve their integrity, and act in conformity with their religious convictions, not even passivity is an option.

Refusal to comply with the funding requirement would trigger sanctions against employers, including denial of federal and state contracts. This in spite of the Court's ruling that "to condition the availability of benefits" upon a person's willingness to violate a cardinal principle of religious faith "effectively penalizes" the free exercise of constitutional liberties.

Those who oppose, for example, public funding of abortions have been accused of trying to "make their morality compulsory." But this suit demonstrates that where the freedom of many Americans to choose to act in conformity with their religious convictions conflicts with the goal of making it financially easier for women to choose to have abortions, the law is not just "pro-choice," it is "pro-abortion."

The idea that "freedom of choice" is necessarily neutral as regards social outcomes is the characteristic pretense of liberal societies. But liberal societies do not provide "freedom of choice" without having certain expectations about which choices will be made. And they try to shape choices by shaping attitudes. All societies do this. Only liberal societies pretend to be neutral.

It is a goal, not a collateral effect, of the pro-abortion movement to force people to act upon the assumption that abortion is a triviality. A million abortions a year proves that the movement has achieved its primary goal, which is to transform attitudes. Obviously many people already regard abortion as the birth-control method of first resort, like taking a pill—in short, as a triviality.

Cuban study shows friendly attitude for Americans and U.S. products developments, and were invited into some Cuban homes. The Cubans Auerbach talked with were very open and spoke frankly about the government. Housing is a top Cuban government priority.

"Excluding government, Cubans are still a Caribbean people. They are warm, and there was a lot of touching going on," Auerbach said. "They like to dance and there was music every night."

Arnold J. Auerbach, professor emeritus of social welfare, was a member of a group of economists and social planners from the United States who were invited by the Cuban government to visit the country. The group was assigned a guide from "Cubator," the only tourist agency in Cuba. Cubator is government regulated.

But traveling from the U.S. to Cuba is not as easy as going to your local tourist agency and booking a flight. Only a handful of tourist agencies in Canada and the U.S. are authorized to book American trips to Cuba. Commercial U.S. airlines are not authorized by either government to fly to Cuba. Once Americans cut the red tape of both governments, they must charter a flight in order to visit the island, which is encircled by some of the finest tourist beaches in the Caribbean, Auerbach said.

Although Russian is taught in Cuban schools, English is the most popular foreign language, Auerbach said. Even though it is difficult for Americans to visit Cuba, tourism is growing rapidly. Cubans who left the country when the revolution occurred used to be looked upon by those who stayed as traitors. Cubans who remained in the country during the revolution used to refer to those who fled in 1959 as "worms," Auerbach said.

Many Cubans who fled the country were business and professional people, doctors and lawyers for example. Cuban attitudes toward ex-patriots have changed in recent years, however, and Cubans who fled when Castro came into power are now welcomed back into the country to visit relatives or to enjoy the resort hotels and beaches, according to Auerbach. "Most of the Cubans that left have made it big in the United States. Those who stayed hear of friends and relatives who made it big in the U.S. and they want to go too," he said.

Many Cubans expressed wishes to go to America and many Cuban university students Auerbach talked with said they would like to continue their education in America as soon as the U.S. recognizes Cuba. Currently, there is no cultural exchange program between the U.S. and Cuba.

Cuba has a population of 10,000,000 people, 60 percent of which lives in large cities such as Havana or Santiago. The other 40 percent are scattered around the countryside, according to Auerbach.

Office of the Chancellor

AN OPEN LETTER TO SIUC COMMUNITY

As I'm sure you are aware, the past several months have marked a period of considerable change for SIU. Last Saturday my service as Chancellor of the SIU System began. The major challenge that I now face as Chancellor is providing leadership to a System comprised of two strong, free-standing Universities. The continued growth of our Universities depends in large measure on the selection of strong Presidents who have both the authority and the responsibility of leadership. Therefore, probably the most important task that together we face in the months immediately ahead is the selection of a permanent President of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

During the past several weeks representatives of the various constituency groups and I have met to develop search and selection procedures for the Presidency of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. The "Structure and Guidelines for the Presidential Search Committee, SIUC" which are set out below are the result of these meetings. These procedures will allow for significant involvement by students, faculty, and staff in the search process and will, I believe, lead to the selection of a highly qualified President.

I ask that each of you support the constituency groups in the selection of members of the Search Committee and that you cooperate with and support the Search Committee, once constituted. In order to answer any questions that you might have regarding the search, I will attend an open forum to be held tomorrow, Thursday, September 20, 1979, from 10:00-11:00 a.m. in Ballroom D of the SIUC Student Center.

Thank you in advance for your cooperation and assistance as we undertake this very important process.

Sincerely yours,
Kenneth A. Shaw
Kenneth A. Shaw

STRUCTURE AND GUIDELINES FOR THE PRESIDENTIAL SEARCH COMMITTEE, SIUC

1. A Presidential Search Committee to serve in a screening and advisory capacity to the Chancellor in the process of selection of a President for Southern Illinois University at Carbondale will be established as follows:
 - a. The Committee will be composed of twelve persons, one of whom will be the chairperson.
 - b. The committee shall be composed of representatives of the following groups:

Administrative and Professional Staff Council	1 representative
Alumni Association	1 representative
Civil Service Employees Council	1 representative
Council of Deans	1 representative
Faculty Senate	3 representatives
Graduate Council	2 representatives
Graduate Student Council	1 representative
Undergraduate Student Organization	2 representatives
 - c. The Chancellor shall name the representatives from each of the groups mentioned above, after having received these recommendations. Each group will provide double the number of names which are required to complete its complement on the Committee, although each group is permitted to indicate its preferences. The Chancellor will attempt to honor these preferences when possible but will also be attentive to overall composition of the Committee—particularly to the needs of adequate diversity.
 - d. The Chairperson will be selected by the Committee from the Committee membership to serve on a full-time basis for the life of the Committee.
 - e. Vacancies will be filled by the Chancellor as needed after consultation with representatives of the appropriate constituency groups.
2. Funds to support the work of the Presidential Search Committee shall be provided by SIUC. The Chairperson will serve as fiscal officer of the account.
3. The Presidential Search Committee is to carry out its assignment subject at present to the following guidelines:
 - a. The Committee will establish its own internal procedures subject to the ratification of the Chancellor.
 - b. The Committee will observe affirmative action and equal opportunity regulations in the process of searching for and screening candidates for the position.
 - c. In the interest of institutional welfare, the search for a President should proceed with all dispatch consistent with a careful and thorough review of all candidates.
 - d. The Chairperson of the Committee is designated as the official liaison officer with the Chancellor.
 - e. The Committee will prepare a position description including information on the scope and responsibilities as well as qualifications sought in applications for the position. This prospectus will be submitted to the Chancellor for approval.
 - f. The Committee will submit the names of at least three candidates, in alphabetical order, to the Chancellor not later than June 1, 1980, and earlier if possible. The Committee will also submit to the Chancellor data concerning the qualifications of recommended candidates and the results of its investigation.
 - g. The Chancellor will recommend a single person to the Board of Trustees for appointment as President of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.
 - h. Members of the Committee will be entrusted with the names, professional histories, and personal references of many individuals. Discretion, both during and after the search process, is necessary and appropriate.

Shakespeare lecture will be 'fun, informal'

If someone told you that an associate professor of English at the University of Illinois in Urbana was going to give a lecture on Shakespeare, you'd probably think it would be a pretty dry way to spend an evening, right?

Wrong. Michael Mullin, a man with the aforementioned credentials, is going to give a lecture on Shakespeare. But it won't be dull, dry and boring. In fact, the purpose of Mullin's work, according to Robert Griffin, associate professor of English at SIU-C, is "to put the fun back into" Shakespeare's works.

The lecture will be at 8 p.m. Thursday in Morris Library Auditorium. It is being sponsored by the English Department.

Mullin thinks that Shakespeare has been idolized too much and therefore not enjoyed, according to Griffin, who added that people think of Shakespeare's works "as high culture, but not much fun."

Mullin's speech is titled "Shakespeare Today: Teaching, Television and Theater." The lecture will be accompanied by slides from performances of Shakespeare's work in films, on television and in the theater. Mullin is "interested in how acting companies explore the meaning of the text through performing it," according to Griffin.

Mullin is the founder and director of the Shakespeare Film Cooperative.

ahead of the circus to promote it and will perform when it comes to the SIU Arena Sept. 25 and 26.

"Clowning to me is a bridge to communicate with people," said the 29-year-old who plans to continue clowning for at least a few more years.

Carlyon says his clown image is an extension of himself. "Zachary's sense of humor is Dave's sense of humor. My make-up is not a mask, it's an exaggeration. It is worn to make my face more distinct to the audience seated far from the stage," Carlyon said.

In 1977, a young couple with a leukemia-stricken daughter traveled from Maine to Boston to see the circus Carlyon travels with. Carlyon was singled out by the couple and introduced to the young girl.

After Carlyon entertained the youngster with his antics, her parents whispered to him the significance of the occasion.

Six months later, the child died and the couple visited Carlyon to thank him for the joy and laughter he passed on to their daughter.

"It shook me up," Carlyon recalled.

Lecture views 'Soviet States'

Herbert Marshall, the founder of the SIU-C Center for Soviet and East European Studies in the Performing Arts, will speak at 3 p.m. Sept. 19 in the Illinois Room of the Student Center. His lecture is titled "United Soviet States of America."

Marshall studied under Sergei Eisenstein at the Higher State Institute of Cinematography in Moscow. He has done many translations from Russian to English, primarily English poems for the Soviet foreign press. Marshall also won a prize for the best English translation of the new Soviet National Anthem.

Marshall also founded the Film Guild of London and won two awards at the 1929 National Convention of Amateur Cinematographers. Throughout the late 1930s, he formed two theater groups in England.

During World War II, Marshall, being an expert on the Soviet Union, worked for the Ministry of Information in England. There he was in charge of translating Soviet films into English so that they could be presented to Churchill's cabinet, Eisenhower's headquarters and the Soviet Embassy.

Through an invitation from Prime Minister Nehru of India, Marshall also produced the official film of the life and death of Mahatma Gandhi, "The Voice of India."

After returning to England, Marshall became a professor at the Royal College of Art, lecturing on the history of the Russian cinema and cinema theory.

At the Center for Soviet and East European Studies in the Performing Arts, Marshall is specifically concerned with translating and editing the Selected Works of Eisenstein, but is involved with others.

Clown's antics and tricks treat kids

By Jenell Olson
Staff Writer

Do you know any lawyers who like to clown around with the judicial system?

Dave Carlyon is a lawyer, but he prefers to clown around with children. Carlyon, whose clown name is Zachary, juggled and danced his way into the hearts of the 2- to 5-year-olds at the Rainbow's End Preschool Monday morning.

"I saw you on television!" screamed one of the little girls. "Yes, I was on television, but they made me get off because I was too heavy," answered Carlyon.

Wearing multicolored baggy pants, oversized shoes and a large, flowered tie, Carlyon incited laughter from the preschoolers and their teachers as he made funny faces and performed magic tricks.

After being accepted to the California Bar Association in 1976, Carlyon decided he wanted to clown first and enter the courtroom later, so he enrolled in the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus' Clown College.

Carlyon, who is the circus' Advance Clown Ambassador, has been traveling with The Greatest Show on Earth for the past three years. He travels (Continued on Page 6)

College re-entry, troubles of women
topic of workshop

By Jacqui Koszrzk
Staff Writer

The practical and emotional problems that an older woman faces when she decides to return to school will be the subject of a two-hour workshop sponsored by Women's Services on Thursday.

Women's Services staff member Bobbie Majka said her office created the workshop after "we found that there are a lot of women in the community who would like to come back to college, but who are overwhelmed with figuring out what major to take, or what the job market looks like for them."

Some of the women who consider returning to school have gone through a divorce or the death of a husband, Majka said.

"So for the first time in many years they have to be self-supporting and they're looking for something that is more of a challenge than secretarial or clerical positions."

"Other women have planned to go back for quite awhile, but were just waiting until their kids finished school or until the family's financial situation was stable," said Majka, 33, who returned to school in 1978 to study rehabilitation counseling.

She said the workshop will help women with practical problems of reentry such as "learning to work with the financial aid office, or getting through registration the first time, which can be pretty hairy if you're not used to it."

In addition to the workshop, Majka said, Women's Services, a division of Student Services, invites women to drop by the office if they need help with registration or any other practical aspect of reentry.

Joan Durrett, 43, sophomore in public relations and a staff member, said, "Many of us have been in the same position ourselves not too long ago."

Frequently, reentering students are concerned about whether they still remember how to study and prepare for exams, Durrett said.

"During the workshop, some peer assistance may help them feel more confident of their abilities," she said.

She said the group will also discuss learning to assign priorities. "Many women are adding school to other responsibilities, such as raising a family or holding down a job," Durrett said.

When a mother returns to school, it can be very disruptive to family members "who are accustomed to mom having dinner ready by six, or mom playing family chauffeur," Majka added.

The workshop will also center on some emotional aspects of returning to school, Majka said.

"Reentering students often wonder how the younger students will accept them. It may help to meet other women who are feeling the same way," she said.

No registration is required for the workshop, which will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. at Woody Hall, B Wing, Room 142.

Public view of Congress low

NEW YORK (AP)—Although public judgment of President Carter's work stands at a historic low, Americans say Congress is doing an even poorer job, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.

Only one out of eight Americans — 13 percent — now give Congress a good or excellent rating, the lowest such figure found in the last three years.

That compares to the 19 percent approval mark for Carter found by the poll, which was taken Sept. 10-11. Carter's rating was the lowest for a president since this question was asked nearly three decades ago.

While 13 percent gave Congress' work overall top marks, 47 percent said its work has been "only fair." Thirty-six percent called congressional work poor.

LEARNING FOR THE SAKE OF LEARNING

Each semester a number of classes are offered by the SIU Free School. It is free because there is no registration fee and the teachers are not paid. The purpose is to expose people in the community to skills and learning outside their regular curriculum. There is no prerequisite to teach, other than the desire to share your time and some expertise that you have acquired in your life. New teachers and class ideas are always welcome!

Art activities for handicapped kids will be topic of workshop Thursday

By Shelley Davis
Staff Writer

A workshop to introduce basic concepts and developments in art activity used with handicapped children will be held from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center.

Although the workshop is designed for teachers and parents, anyone who is interested in various art activities is welcome to attend, said Pam Miller, graduate assistant in special education.

According to Miller, the workshop will center around the various skills and knowledge needed to work with the handicapped child. Two outside persons and five members of the University staff will act as consultants, she said.

James Sanders, an educational consultant from Murray, Ky. will discuss creative writing involving emotionally disturbed students, and David Pavelonis, instructor of television production coordination for the Missouri Department of Mental Health will demonstrate how to make "muppet-like puppets" and the use of audio-visual techniques, Miller said.

University participants are: Catherine McHugh and Robert Weiss, department of music; Roy Abrahamson and Michael Youngblood, department of art education; and Kaarin Johnston, department of speech communications.

On Oct. 10, a "very special arts festival" will be held for students, teachers and parents in the Student Center, Miller said. Intended to be a continuation of the workshop, the all-day festival will feature art work by the students and also enable the participants to go the work themselves, Miller said.

"Parents, teachers and students will go through a sequence of art activities," she said. "It will be a hands-on experience. They will be actually participating—not just watching but doing."

"It is important that these two (workshop and festival) go together," she said.

PARENT DAY '79

Parents of the Day Nomination Form

Parents Day at SIUC has long been a tradition of honoring the Moms and Dads with programs and activities including a Sakuki football game. The Parents Day Committee helps select one set of parents who represent all parents throughout these events.

This year the chosen Parents of the Day will be honored in many ways: radio interviews; selected seating with the SIUC President at the football game; guests of honor at the Saturday luncheon and buffet dinner and Sunday brunch; complimentary use of an automobile; student hosts; complimentary hotel accommodations; football half-time honors; and much, much more!

If you would like to see your mom and dad honored as Parents of the Day, please submit a 250-word (or less) essay explaining why your parents should be Parents of the Day. All essays must be submitted to the Office of Student Development, 3rd floor of the Student Center, before 12 Noon on Friday, September 21, 1979.

Mall to add 21 stores next fall

By Jacqui Koszczuk
Staff Writer

The addition of 20 new specialty stores and another department store to the University Mall should be completed by next fall, said mall manager Phil Favreau.

Construction work on the addition of a south wing to the mall began in mid-August. The new wing will house a 50,000 square-foot Meis Department Store and 100,000 square feet of smaller specialty stores, Favreau said. The smaller stores will include ladies' and men's apparel shops, he added.

Favreau said he could not specify the stores that will be added because contracts for leasing the mall space will not be finalized until the beginning of November. He did say that mall owner David Hocker and Associates, of Owensboro, Ky., was negotiating with some local businesses, as well as with some "small regional and national chain stores."

He said the expansion will not include a restaurant, but that it could possibly include small food shops.

Favreau said the Meis store will be "more like J.C. Penny's than Sears." But he said the quality of the merchandise "more closely resembles the Famous Barr department store chain or the Six chain in St. Louis."

The Meis chain sells "all soft good lines", such as clothing, linens, and cosmetics, but does not deal in "hard goods" such as bicycles or automobile parts, he said.

The store will be located at the south end of the new wing. The 20 small stores will line the east and west portions of the wing.

The additions will mean a 45 percent increase in the existing mall space. Favreau said the expansion plan also includes the addition of about 1,000 parking spaces. Presently, the mall has about 1,930 spaces.

Also included in the plan is the construction of two access roads, one on Old Route 13 and one that will eventually connect Giant City Blacktop with the mall.

F.R. Hoar and Sons, Inc. is the general contractor for the project.

JUSTICE HAS STROKE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan Jr. has "suffered as small stroke" that "has impaired the use of his right hand," court and medical sources said.

Brennan, 73, was hospitalized for four days following the Sept. 4 stroke, his doctor and court spokesman Barrett McGurn said.

Tenants protest temporary food conditions

workers who usually fix them also refused to cross the picket line.
"We payed for these services so it is management that is breaking their contract," Stafford said.
Anderson said, "There is a lot of support for this protest.

Everybody wants action quick."
According to Local 316 Union Representative Elmer Brandhorst, some of the worker's demands have been met and have been incorporated into a contract. Prior to the strike, food services workers for the Old Main Limited Co., were not working under a written union-approved contract. The wording of the contract on holiday pay to workers has not been agreed on by management and the union, he said.

But wage increases and seniority contract stipulations have already been agreed upon by management and workers and has been incorporated into a contract, he said.

Brandhorst said contract negotiations for the workers have been going on since last spring.
Dorm management would not comment on contract negotiations.

CFUT continues push for collective bargaining

Byrne as Chicago mayor, who often is a strong supporter of collective bargaining. He said this may produce a change in the Chicago leadership in the Senate, the stonewall for collective bargaining legislation the past 10 years.
The other development is the tabling of a bill by the House in April. Donow said the Senate requested that the House revise the bill into "something they can buy." The bill will come before the legislature in 1980, a year usually reserved for emergency and monetary legislation.
"It probably will not quite be the bill we would have hoped for, but it will be a bill," Donow said. He believes the voting could go either way on the issue.

The other faculty organization on campus, the American Association of University Professors, also supports the idea of collective bargaining.
Donow said he regrets that the CFUT has not been involved with more "militant activities."
"Good manners and good taste are fine but not when someone is treating you without that kind of consideration," he said.
"I've been doing this for eight years and individual energy begins to lag. You run out of ideas on how to get people to respond," he said.

NAVY OFFICERS GET RESPONSIBILITY FAST.

Spikers' new offense keys victory

By Mark Pahlich
Staff Writer

Defeating the University of Tennessee-Martin three straight games wasn't the easiest thing for the women's volleyball team Tuesday evening, although scores of 15-2, 15-9, and 15-8, usually mean a victory without many errors.

It wasn't that Tennessee was that good. They were not aggressive and didn't sto-m the net. The trouble the Salukis had with the match was team communication, according to Coach Debbie Hunter.

"The team was having a difficult time relating to one another," Hunter said. "Part of the problem however, is that we're playing with a new offensive system."

Hunter said that the new offensive attack will use only a single setter instead of two. "Having the players get used to one setter will be a problem at the beginning. During the week in practice, everyone will get a chance to become more use to a sole setter," she said.

In the first game against Tennessee, SIU served first and took command. Robin Deterding and Leslie Lee combined for 11 service points behind an impressive display of spikes from Dinah Devers and Sonya Locke.

"I was very pleased with our play in the first game," Hunter said. "In the second and third games though, we did not look as sharp as we should."

At one point in game two, the Salukis were down 7-3, largely because of numerous net calls. Sophomore Ann Cronin came off the bench and tied the score at 7-7. SIU regained the lead and never relinquished it, finishing off UTM, 15-9.

"There were just too many points scored off us in the second game," Hunter said. "We came back all right, in control, but we had too many timing and mental errors."

The third and final game featured the same kind of play from both teams. UTM scraped for their points and scored mostly on SIU miscues.

Despite a few mistakes, a new face sparked the Salukis in the second and third games. Bonnie Norrenberns, a freshman from Mascoutah slammed a few spikes that UTM players never saw. "Bonnie is just oozing with talent," Hunter said. "Her spikes are like cannon balls. She needs some refinement, but she'll really be a valuable asset to our squad."

Overall, Hunter said she was pleased with the team's performance despite the mistakes.

Auld says SIU-E net team strong

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

Although the women's tennis team has not played their Wednesday (3 p.m. at the University tennis courts) opponent, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, for several years, Coach Judy Auld said she has a fairly good idea of the Cougars' strength.

"We beat them when we played them in a dual meet a few years ago," Auld said. "But now they are a much stronger team. They have strong people at the top of their line-up, and they also have good depth."

Auld said SIU-E's top player, Lillian Almeida of Brazil, has a great deal of international experience.

"I heard they also recruited another girl from Brazil, although she is not quite as good as Lillian," Auld said. "They also brought a few other new people in, and they have several players returning from last year."

To beat SIU-E Auld said the Salukis "must pick up points from everybody." She said the Salukis' singles teams must play well.

"If we come out of singles play in good shape, we should win," she said. "Our doubles teams have been carrying us lately."

Auld said the Salukis' usual No. 1 doubles player, Lisa Warren, may miss the match due to illness. In that case, Auld said Jeannie Jones would again play at that position, as she did against the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle last Thursday.

"She lost on Thursday, but Jeannie played an inter-team match Monday and looked more aggressive than she did against the Chicago girl."

Auld said Jones would probably play doubles with senior Mauri Kohler, another Saluki who had to sit out Thursday's match because of illness.

Official shocked by coach's blast

"You had two from the Valley." Whitmon said officials are assigned to TSU games by the Midwest Association, which he said is accredited by the NCAA. He said TSU, an independent school, does not hire the officials. He added that ill feelings concerning judgment calls are bound to rise when a game is close.

The power failure, which occurred with 2:33 left in the game, is another source of agitation. Dempsey is quoted in the Southern Illinoisian as saying, "They (the officials) asked me if I'd play like that (with half the lights out) and I said 'no.'"

Sayers is also recorded as saying that the light failure was "questionable."

Whitmon disputes the claim. "The energy failure was from Nashville Electric," Whitmon said. "We have that documented."

Both Dempsey and Sayers are reported to be upset at the performance of the TSU band, which they said played louder when the Salukis had the ball. The performance made it hard for the team to hear the quarterback's signals.

"We're not bitter, just really shocked," Whitmon said. "We'd never let our coach talk about other programs like that."

The strong feelings most likely will continue for a long time. Whitmon said he would like to continue playing SIU. He added he has received no notice of cancellation of the 1981 contract, and said Tennessee State is planning to bring both its team and the band to Carbondale.

Whether the Salukis will allow the series to continue is another question. An even greater question is what effect this whole episode will have on TSU football, and its ability to schedule other Valley teams.

Though the gun brought an end to the SIU TSU fiasco, the long-range effects of the game remain.

petition would help Muenz at the meet. "Just the fact that Dan is in excellent shape and health should be a big plus for him. He is also in good mental shape. Dan is concerned about growing as a gymnast, not with just attaining a spot on the team."

Muenz hopes that his growth blossoms into a spot on the Olympic team next year. "If I can keep moving forward, I'll have a good chance to earn a spot for the 1980 team," Muenz said. "I've got a lot of time and needs to go before then, however."

Mozde agrees with the senior about the road to Moscow. "Dan has what it takes to be one of the best gymnasts around. He doesn't feel any pressure about the competition he's facing now or in the future."

"The meet in Colorado will be fun," Muenz said. "All the judges, coaches and gymnasts know one another. We're like one big family, there's no pressure. We'll all pull for each other and the best man will win."

SIU ruggers win in opening match against Western

By Dave Haneth
Student Writer

The SIU rugby club opened its fall season at Macomb Saturday with a match against the Leathernecks of Western Illinois University.

In the opening contest, the Saluki "A" squad was impressive in a 13-6 victory. Bobby Morgan's four-point try, Jimmy Wilson's point-after and a three-point penalty kick were all the Salukis needed, as they surged to a 9-0 halftime lead. Wing-forward Al Brosmith's second-half try rounded out the scoring for the Salukis.

"For our first game, we looked exceptionally good," Keith Wilcox, starting fly half and one of two Saluki coaches, said. "Offensively, we moved the ball smoothly. Our scrum continually won the ball and our defensive kicking enabled us to stop Western's offensive thrusts."

Although Wilcox was pleased with the team's overall performance, he expressed concern with the club's next opponent. Saturday, the Saluki rugger's will face Louisville, who won the prestigious St. Louis Ruggerfest last year. Louisville is considered one of the best teams in the Midwest.

In a game following the "A" contest, the Saluki "B" club lost a tough 6-4 decision to Western. Eight-man Lou Christakos scored the lone Saluki try.

a 53 on the back stretch to shoot a 41 Saturday. Dohrmann shaved off a total of 13 strokes from scores she shot on the back nine. Lemon trimmed 10 strokes off her back-nine total Saturday.

"Realistically, this best we could have finished was fifth or sixth," McGirr said. "A couple of them didn't play that much during the summer, and I was a week late arriving. I think we're still two weeks away from coming around."

Hopefully, Mother Nature has had her last say in the matter.

Dempsey's blast shocks TSU official

By David Gafrick
Sports Editor

There is a lot of talk in Nashville about Saturday's SIU-Tennessee State football game. The people there are shocked. It isn't because their Tigers lost (18-16) their first home game in five years, or that they had lost two games in a row for the first time in 27 years. Sooner or later, it was bound to happen.

The shock resulted from quotes attributed to Saluki Head Coach Rey Dempsey in Sunday's Nashville Tennessean. The quotes, given after the first meeting between the two teams, could be very damaging to Tennessee State, according to Athletics Director Samuel Whitmon.

"They are very damaging," Whitmon said. "Like SIU, we are trying to upgrade our football program. We certainly can't use this publicity."

Dempsey, who was very upset when the game was over, is quoted as saying the following in the game story written by

David Climer in Sunday's paper:

"They've won so many games by cheating that it isn't even funny," said the Salukis' Dempsey, sounding far more like a losing coach than the winner he was.

"I don't think they know how to play a game without pulling every trick in the book. It was pitiful, and I'll tell everybody about it. I will never play them in this stadium again, and I'll do everything I can to discourage anybody else from coming in here.

"You've got to have a helluva ball club to win in this place, and believe me, brother, we've got a helluva team."

The story said Dempsey would break the contract for the 1981 game between the Salukis and the Tigers, scheduled to be played in Carbondale.

It's pretty damning stuff. Dempsey refused to comment on the validity of the quotes, although his statement about breaking the contract was repeated in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian. Dempsey's secretary said the fourth-year head coach wanted to concentrate on this week's Arkansas State game.

"I hope Coach Dempsey was overreacting following the game," Whitmon said. "Some of the statements he made were unprofessional. We've been bombarded with calls from our alumni. I hope he was misquoted."

Whitmon may be overreacting, too, but such may be understandable. Dempsey's comments, as appeared in the Tennessean, add more weight to the sinking reputation of TSU. The Tigers' game at Jackson State was delayed 90 minutes because TSU brought their home jerseys to the contest.

There had been rumors about partisan officiating and all sorts of other "strange" happenings at TSU games. Each occurrence supposedly coincided with a Tiger win. Merge these beliefs with what happened at Jackson State and the disputed judgment calls by officials in Saturday's game, and the atmosphere was conducive for Dempsey's tirade — if he was quoted accurately in the Tennessean.

Tennessee State, a predominantly black school, took a bold step in jumping to Division I-A status three years ago. The move upward from Division I-AA meant that the Tigers must play bigger and better schools such as those in the Valley.

SIU was to be the test project. A TSU official, unidentified in a story in Saturday's Tennessean, said the school could not afford to have anything go wrong. After this game, TSU officials hoped to lure other Missouri Valley Conference schools into playing dates. Now, the dream, if not punctured, is certainly clouded.

"We tried to make very wholesome our relations (with SIU)," Whitmon said. "Our booster club sponsored a luncheon for Gale Sayers."

Whatever good feelings the two groups had seems to be gone. Sayers was quoted in Tuesday's Southern Illinoisan as saying, "They had the red carpet out for Fred Huff (assistant athletics director) and myself, but not for the team. I have nothing but praise for Sam (Whitmon). He treated Fred and me royally. But it's still his responsibility to make sure the game runs smoothly."

Dempsey's ire was raised by the officiating, the power failure and the performance of the TSU band.

Dempsey was visibly upset when a TSU kickoff was given to the Tigers after it apparently went out of bounds. Another judgment call involved a safety. Oyd Craddock blocked a punt, and the officials said the ball passed out of the end zone. The ball appeared to sail out of bounds at the two.

"It was a mixed crew," Whitmon said of the officials.

Muenz to try for World Games berth

BALANCING ACT — Saluki senior Dan Muenz performs his routine on the pommel weekend, and hopes to use the meet as a horse. Muenz will be trying for a spot on the World Games Gymnastics team this weekend, and hopes to use the meet as a springboard to the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

By Mark Pabich
Staff Writer

Fort Collins, Colorado could easily turn into a pressure cooker this weekend when America's top 16 male gymnasts compete for seven spots on the U.S. World Games team.

The Salukis' Dan Muenz will be there, along with other gymnastics fixtures Kurt Thomas and Bart Connor, to name a few.

But with all of the competition, importance and prestige surrounding the two-day meet, Muenz doesn't feel any pressure about making the squad.

"I'm not worried about being one of the seven people to make the World Games," Muenz said. "I just want to put in a good performance. Most of the judges and other gymnasts have seen me before. I just want to show improvement."

Saluki gymnastics Coach Bill Meade, who will accompany Muenz to Colorado, said that as long as his top performer progressed, he wouldn't be concerned about the pressure of his making the team.

"If Dan can finish in ninth place, I would be happy,"

Meade said. "There will be some people there who might have a better day than Dan, which might keep him off the team. As long as he shows improvement however, we'll consider the meet a success."

The top seven competitors will compete in the World Games in Texas later this year. The other gymnasts who fail to make the World Games team will compete in a special meet with Norway sometime during the next six months according to Meade.

Muenz is no newcomer to competing with top performers. The 5-2, 130-pounder competed for the United States in the Pan Am Games this summer. Muenz also placed 14th at the United States Gymnastics Federation meet in Dayton, Ohio, making him a member of the national squad.

"The international experience should help me in the competition," Muenz said. "But almost everyone there has had some kind of national experience."

Meade said that other factors beside international com-

Wind hampers golfers at ISU; Salukis finish eighth in meet

By David Gafrick
Sports Editor

It always seems to go this way. A team in need of a few more weeks of practice must open its season right away. Mother Nature, a never needed adversary, then compounds the problem.

She welcomed Coach Mary Beth McGirr and the women's golf team to the Illinois State Tournament with gusts of wind causing problems for all but senior Sandy Lemon. Lemon tied for third in the field of 86 players, while the team finished eighth in a field of 14.

"It was like hitting into a hurricane," McGirr said. "The first day, there were only three scores in the 70s."

Those three players were in the top three positions when the 36-hole, two-day tournament ended Saturday. Iowa State's Barb Thomas put together rounds of 77 and 75 to win the tourney medal with a 152 score. Thomas' score helped Iowa State edge Michigan State by four strokes, 651-655, for the team trophy. SIU finished with a 708.

Nancy Spatzfora of Michigan State was second, shooting rounds of 79 and 74 for a 153. Teammate Chris Rudnechi shot two rounds of 79 for a 158 to tie Lemon, who had scores of 80 and 78.

"Sandy played as expected, very consistent," McGirr said. "I was a little disappointed with the rest. All the scores were higher because of the wind."

Fenny Porter finished second among Saluki golfers, with a 181. Sue Fazio shot a 182, followed by Lori Sackman, 189. Judy Dohrmann, 193, and Jeannie Sackman, 195.

As expected, the team had problems with the greens. The putting surfaces were fast, meaning the ball would roll farther than anticipated. Before the Salukis could worry about calculating the roll of a putt on a green, they first had to reach it.

"You could hit two super shots and still not make it to the greens," McGirr said. "It was a little disheartening."

So, too, were the pairings, which had SIU playing the back
