Gray, GOPs trade barbs

Ken Gray, Democratic candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives, called for pressuring for the ban on retirement of employees, "Joyner-Gus Bode past 20.

" event on Halloween."

StatfWrlt written by Joyner because he was in Washington, D.C., and unable to attend. Citing his record, Gray claimed he has brought $4 billion in 50,000 permanent jobs to the Southern Illinois area in the past 20 years. "We've had 32 years of a Democrat in Congress and we've still got 16 to 18 percent unemployment," Joyner said. He said Patchett wants to bring state industry to the area and not government jobs.

City to stop pressuring for rugby ban

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

"The city has tempered its stance on the All Blacks Rugby Tournament in acknowledging that it is probably too late to rescind the event."

City Council members, who were opposed to holding the event on Halloween weekend, indicated Monday that they would be satisfied if SIU-C officials informed rugby players that the dangers of beer can throwing at the street festival. The council approved a series of recommendations from City Manager Bill Dixon aimed at improving safety at this year's Halloween street festival, including a proposal that SIU-C officials be asked to do everything in their power to assure that a rugby tournament will not be held Halloween weekend.

But, the proposal adds, if it is too late to rescind the All Blues Tournament, SIU-C officials should do what they can to impress upon all tournament participants that can throwing is hazardous and should not occur. Dixon said after the meeting that it was indeed probably too late to rescind the tournament, and although he was still opposed to the idea, he was resigned to the fact that the tournament would probably be held Halloween weekend as scheduled.

Bart Durham, a former SIU rugby player and an SIU-C law student, called Dixon's charges that rugby players were involved in can throwing at last year's festival allegations that "would not hold up in a court of law." When asked by Councilman Keith Tuxhorn what evidence he was basing his charges on, Dixon replied they were based on "word of mouth from reliable sources." Durham criticized Dixon's "disingenuousness" and his "attitude of blame sharing that SIU-C officials do not want to see any of their students involved in can throwing at the festival.

Stevenson 'off-base,' mayor says

"Calling guberatorial candidate Asa Hutchinson Stevenson foolish for his stand against building a new prison."

David McDowell, mayor of Murphysboro said he will continue efforts to have a medium security prison built near his city. Stevenson, who spoke Sunday at a panel of Jackson County Democratic at the Murphyboro city park, condemned Gov. James Thompson's prison site selections as being politically motivated. Stevenson said he believes prisons should be built near large cities, which produce more criminals. He said other considerations should be economic and professional correctional standards.

Nic Howell, spokesman for the Illinois legislative delegation, said it is ideally better to build prisons near cities but, the state can't go that way because of the greater economic need in Murphyboro.

A prison site in Murphyboro was considered because the city has shown an interest, said Howell. McDowell, a Democrat, said Stevenson's remarks against rural areas relying on prisons for economic betterment were "off-base," and went on to say that Stevenson's arguments are "too extreme. There may have been some rugby players that were involved in the beer can throwing incident. However, not all of them were." Stevenson said in Jackson County, Democrats, statement against building prisons was a poor judgment," McDowell said.

Building a new prison in Murphysboro would provide up to 400 permanent jobs, McDowell said.

Terry Stephon, spokeswoman for Stevenson, said the Thompson has dangled prison site located in economically depressed areas without sufficient state funds to build them.

Recruit accused of murder had no previous record

GREAT LAKES (UPI) -- A Navy recruit charged with killing his instructor after flunking an electronics course had no previous misconduct record but apparently was upset at being separated from his family, the Navy said Tuesday. Seaman Arthur A. Ameen, 20, was charged with three counts of assault with a deadly weapon in the shooting death of chief electronic technician Glen Bull and the wounding of two counselors Monday, Navy spokesman Lt. Joseph Gradisher said.

Fairchild asks High Court for bail ruling

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) -- Mark Fairchild, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, has asked the Illinois Supreme Court to clear the way for him to become governor if he receives more votes than other gubernatorial ballots. Fairchild, a supporter of a right-wing extremist Lyndon LaRouche, in papers filed with the court Monday, asked the high court to require the state Board of Elections to count votes for the ballot listing of "no candidate" for governor and Fairchild for lieutenant governor.

Six-month term for hit-run called 'lucky' by recipient

The Lawrenceville woman who was sentenced to six months in jail for obstructing justice in an accident last July to which SIU student Christina Copland lost her left leg.

Stafford, 21, was sentenced to six months probation by Circuit Judge David Watt after pleading guilty to obstructing justice. The first six months of Stafford’s probation will be spent at Jackson County Jail. She has been in Williamson County Jail because of overcrowding at Jackson County Jail.

Debra Porter, the driver of the car at the time of the accident, is out of jail on bond awaiting a trial date for her case, according to the Jackson County State’s Attorney’s office.

Stafford said her sentencing took place exactly seven years after her grandfather was killed by a drunk driver as they were taking a walk. Stafford said her grandfather died in her lap. “I hate alcohol. It killed my grandfather and now I’ve hurt somebody because of it,” she said.

On the day of the sentencing, Stafford received a message from Copland saying there were “no hard feelings.”

“If it was up to me I’d give her my leg. I’m sorry she lost her leg but I’m glad she’s alive,” Stafford said.

Stafford was accused of lying to police after the accident last July. After the accident she admitted she was the driver of the car and alone at the time of the accident. Quigley was accused of destroying physical evidence of the accident because she had cleaned off blood and human tissue from the car.

Watt said Monday that different sentences were given on the same charge because different acts were involved.

Debra Porter, the driver of the car at the time of the accident, is out of jail on bond awaiting a trial date for her case, according to the Jackson County State’s Attorney’s office.

Porter was charged with felony driving under the influence, leaving the scene of a personal injury accident, failure to give information and render aid, and obstructing justice.

Public defender Bob Stafford said Tuesday that if Porter is convicted of the class four felony charges, she could face one to three years at a penitentiary or one to two years in prison during the trial and possibly a $10,000 fine.

The trial is set to be a jury trial. Stafford said the court date has not been set.

Porter posted the $500 required to be released on bond and is set at $5,000. Vanderhoff said.

The 10-hour vigil, Sept 3, organized by the Rev. Reid Christensen of the Metropolitan Community Church of Southern Illinois, was aimed at rallying concerned citizens to the plight of AIDS victims. It was one of several vigils taking place nationwide.

But there were far more empty chairs than people, and of the 98 letters Christensen sent to Carbondale clergy he received four negative replies.

He said: "I'm concerned about AIDS is not for those that are suffering from it and nor for those families that have been touched by that dreaded disease, but they're worried that they might get it themselves."

We'll have to define a term. People are scared to death of AIDS - Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome. It has a 100 percent mortality rate, exhibits symptoms similar to leukemia, is different in each person, and medical scientists are no closer to a cure than they were when the disease first was identified in the late 1970s.

Doctors DO know that the disease is transferred through intimate contact of the body, either by disease-tainted transfusions, dirty needle exchanges between drug addicts, or, potentially, by the sexual intercourse between homosexuals and heterosexuals. Informatin has laid the blame on such things as dirty doorbells and toilet seats.

The threat to the church has remained in the backround, conspicuously quiet, which has added to the fear. At one time, the church was the only comfort for persons with legacies of bubonic plague, two of history's greatest medical scourges.

Today, with AIDS, that historic compassion is missing.

The religious community must do what the scientists searching for an AIDS cure can do: present, restore faith in humanity and harness the compassion of society. Selfishness on a community-wide scale won't save places like Carbondale when the disease grows stronger.

Conquering fear is what people can do to combat AIDS. The churches must be willing to lead.

Lahr said Southern Illinois must have a good tax base and structure on the state level if federally mandated county functions are to be performed effectively. The area must compete for international business to find area jobs, Lahr said.

Incumbent Representative Jim Rea, D-Chnristopher, said his record was proof enough for his constituency and refused his opponent Doris Boynton's request for a debate.

Boynton, a Republican from Marion, promised to work to eradicate drug problems and child abuse. She also said she

Lock down continues at Menard

CHESTER (UPI) — Inmates remained locked in their cells Tuesday at the Menard Correctional Center in the wake of a series of suspected gang-related fights that left 20 prisoners injured, officials said.

No guards were hurt in Monday's melee that was broken up with tear gas and warning shots that were fired from guard towers, Department of Corrections spokesman Mike Howell said.

None of the inmates was seriously injured. Three suffered minor stab wounds with homemade knives and all were treated at the maximum security prison, Howell said.

The fights broke out almost simultaneously in the prison's communal area and three adjoining segregation yards, Howell said.

"It's possible (the fights were planned), although we don't really know that yet," Howell said.

The prison was placed on lockdown status Monday and a decision will be made Tuesday on whether to ease the restrictions on inmates, Howell said.

"All the indications were that it was a gang-related incident," Howell said, but he declined to speculate whether the fracas could have been related to the stabbing death Aug. 29 of a black inmate, Rickie V. Lowe, of Chicago.

A white inmate, Richard Kane of St. Clair County, has been charged with murder in Lowe's death, authorities said. The argument that ended in Lowe's death apparently started over a T-shirt, Howell said.

The fighting Monday apparently broke out between a black inmate and a white inmate in the prison community, officials said.

The prison is being spot checked for weapons, particularly in the areas where the fighting occurred, Howell said, and Menard officials and DOC investigators from Springfield have started an investigation.

Career Day participants get insight on future jobs

By Nola J. Cowser
Staff Writer

The Career Planning and Placement Center opened the employment recruiting season at SIU by sponsoring Technical Career Day. Career Day is a career awareness day, held annually and sponsored by the CPC. The center provides recruiting services for organizations to market themselves to students and faculty.

Last year, 65 business, industry, and governmental agencies and other sectors of the business world gathered in the Student Center Ballrooms Tuesday to inform students of what they are looking for in prospective employees and what they can offer those employees.

About 4,000 students were expected to attend Career Day. Some students who attended were looking for internships and possible jobs; others were just interested in what kind of job opportunities might be available to them in the "real world."

JIM BUTTERFIELD, junior in business management, said, "I'm looking around right now for some of the companies I didn't know about."

"I'm looking in the management field right now, so I'll see what comes up. I'm just looking for a career," he said.

Butterfield said he was most impressed with the Chubb Group of Insurance Companies.

Arts groups to get $73,773

By Debra Keen-Cooper
Staff Writer

Grants totaling $73,773 have been awarded to 11 Carbondale arts organizations by The Illinois Arts Council for fiscal year 1987, and beside the list of recipients are Southern Illinois Arts and the SIU Office of Research.

The IAC provides grants and technical assistance to community arts agencies, individual creative artists and nonprofit organizations throughout Illinois.

The grants were awarded to SIA, $22,310 for operational and salary support and $11,790 for their regrant program.

David Thomas, Executive Director of SIA, said that under the regrant program, SIA is required to match 50 percent of the dollar amount awarded by the IAC.

"That means we are committed to raise $6,000 over the next year through local fund-raising projects to meet the requirements of the regrant program," he said.

The SIA regrant program takes additional funds available to member organizations to aid in these arts projects throughout the year. Thirty-six groups received a grant of $350 to $510. In addition, he said, "With a $2,000 increase in funds for the regrant program over last year, we expect to award grants to about 40 organizations during 1986-87." Thomas said.

A total of $25,625 in grants have been awarded by the IAC to several SIU programs through the office of Research.

The awards include $2,652 for the "Pieces of Southern Illinois" exhibit; $2,500 for the "Visiting Artist Program," $19,150 for the Sheryn Auditorium "Celebrity Series," $1,315 for the "Photograph as Narrative" lectures and $3,253 for the "Opera on Wheels" programs.

The IAC has awarded a $5,158 grant to the Ninis Annual Big Muddy Film Festival, $1,775 to Horizon Films Inc. for production of a film on Carl Sandburg, $3,796 to the Illinois Printers Network for support of their annual conference, and $3,145 to the Jackson County Stage Company.

Film series features work of modern women directors

By Mary Wisniewski

"Current Women Directors," a film series featuring work by women directors, will begin at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center Auditorium with Euzhan Palae's "Sugar Cane Alley."

Film critic and editor of "Jump Cut" magazine Julia Lesage will lead a discussion following the film. Lesage will also show "Las Nicas y Home Life," her videotapes about women and daily life in Nicaragua, at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Kaskaskia-Missouri Room in the Student Center.

The "Current Women Directors" series, sponsored by the University Honors Program and International Film Series, will follow "Sugar Cane Alley" with "Marianne and Julian" on September 25, "Sanzibana on October 9, "Diary For My Children" on October 16, and "Boat People" on October 23.

EXCEPT FOR "Sugar Cane Alley," which will be followed by a discussion at 8 p.m., all films will be shown both at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

Daniel Kiefer, assistant professor of English and coordinator of "Current Women Directors," called the film series "very political."

It's political in that each one of these movies are about people who have been put down," Kiefer said. "All these people learn to understand themselves and learn to communicate.

Kiefer said the six films chosen for the series represent nearly every different type of female relationship:

"THERE'S A MOTHER-CHILD relationship in "Sugar Cane Alley," and "Diary For My Children," Kiefer said. "There are sisters in "Marianne and Julian," women loving women in "Desert Hearts," and a woman and her husband in "Sanzibana."

"SUGAR CANE ALLEY," which opens the series, is the winner of the 1981 Silver Lion award and the Cesar award for Best First Feature. Based on the novel "Las Nicas y Home Life," the film is set in 1930 Martinique and tells the story of an intelligent young boy and his grandmother who wants to rise above his sugar-cane cutter status. "Marianne and Julian," the second film in the series, is a 1980 West German film by Margarethe Von Trotta. Winner of the Gold Hugo award, "Marianne and Julian" is about two women committed to radical political change and their fierce conflict over the means to that end.

THE FIRST film, "Desert Hearts," which is currently playing at University 4 Theater at University Mall is a 1986 American film by Donna Deitch. "Desert Hearts" is about an English professor who learns to accept the love of a Nevada schoolteacher. It stars Phyllis Somerville and Susan Tyrrell.

Kiefer said that "Sanzibana," the fourth film in "Current Women Directors," is the "most vehemently political" offering of the series. Filmed in 1972 by Angolan director Sarah Maldoror, "Sanzibana" is about a young black woman whose husband is a political prisoner in Portugal in 1961. "Diary For My Children," a 1984 Hungarian film by Marta Menczarsworths, tells the story of a teenager who rebels against the stern rule of her aunt.

THE LAST film in the series, "Boat People," is a 1983 work by Hong Xing director Ann Hui. "Boat People" is about a Japa!nese newspaper journalist who witnesses the rebuilding of Vietnam after its liberation. Admission for all films in the "Current Women Directors" series is $2.
GPSC to vote on funding for graduate student travel

By Brett Yelas
Staff Writer

A proposal to change the Graduate and Professional Student Council guidelines for funding graduate students to attend seminars and similar activities will be decided by the council at its next meeting.

GPSC will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

The proposal, drafted by the GPSC Professional Development Funding Committee, regards the status of the council’s Professional Development Fund, which is used to fund graduate students to attend seminars, exhibits, shows, recitals or other events.

Among the proposal recommendations are that students must have paid student activity fees for the semester they wish to attend a particular event, and that a maximum of $60 be allocated for each funding request.

The proposal, if approved, would also allow graduate students to be reimbursed for lodging and meals. The new proposal did not define different levels of funding for students who give presentations and those who do not.

Paul A. C. Roane, member of the Professional Development Funding Committee, said there is no current plan to raise the Professional Development fund which is now $5,900.

Current GPSC guidelines define separate ranges of funding for graduate students who give presentations at events and for those who do not.

A student who presents a paper at a seminar might get a first request for funding receive $5 for registration costs and $5 for travel expenses if the distance traveled was up to 1,000 miles.

A student attending a seminar without presenting a paper might receive $10 for registration and $10 for travel expenses for distances up to 1,000 miles.

The present guidelines also define different levels of funding for the second request and for traveling distances between 2,000 and 3,000 miles.

For second funding requests, a graduate student traveling up to 1,000 miles to present a paper at a seminar might receive a maximum of $15 for registration and $15 for travel expenses. A graduate student attending the same seminar without presenting a paper might receive a maximum of $5 for registration and $5 for travel expenses.

Funding for graduate students traveling distances between 2,000 and 3,000 miles to give a presentation reaches a maximum of $25 for registration and $50 for travel expenses on the first request.

Featured were jazzy graphics and a joke weather map showing a glacier creeping over the United States.

“Word we told USA Today was that to be parodied, the Lampoon will make them an American institution,” said Princess Diana.

It also featured a story depicting the United States retaliating against Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi by ordering 250,000 anchovy pizzas delivered to his home.

Advance copies, at a cost of $2.50 an issue, went on sale Monday in Harvard Square, with 750,000 copies due on the stands nationwide Tuesday.

To enhance authenticity, the publication hired Garnett Newspapers, the company that publishers the Arlington, Va.-based USA Today, to produce the replica.

Good Samaritans Ministries needs $25,000 to make a down payment on a new shelter, but the City Council said it can only afford $4,000 of the $25,000 the group requested.

Linda Shanks, chair of the board of Good Samaritans Ministries, said the shelter would be used as a down payment on a new shelter as part of the Grace United Methodist Church. The purchase price is $81,000.

The City Council is expected to vote on the $4,000 grant Monday.

The city asked the group to move from its current city-owned shelter because of conflicts between offices in the same building.

Shanks said the group already has $16,000 and she hopes the additional funds can be provided through grants and donations.

Shanks said the council said it wants to keep the shelter.

Shanks said the city said the group cannot involve itself with fundraising campaigns because that conflicts with United Way guidelines, which provide it with some money.

United Way declined to say how the times for organizations to have funding are different as well.

Councillor Neil Dillard was the only one who opposed the grant at Monday's meeting, saying other "very, very good and needed services" would soon be requesting money if the $4,000 is approved.

Mayor Helen Weathers said she did not see any way the full $25,000 request could be awarded. "When it comes to specifics of the request — the $25,000 — I have a bit of a jolt. Perhaps I should be flattered to think that we have that kind of money."

She said the city made some difficult decisions when it composed the last budget and had to reduce funding to some social service programs.

But, Westberg said she would approve the $4,000 because it is a one-time request.

The mayor, councillors, Patrick Kelley and John Yow, said they wished the full request could be awarded.

Dillard maintained strong opposition to the grant. He said his objection was not based on moral grounds but rather on the fear that future councils would receive similar requests.

Shanks said, "We're perfectly happy where we are. It's the city who came to us and asked us to move and we are attempting to do that.

Shanks said the current location of the offices has some disadvantages because of noise and cooking odors from the shelter.

She said she thinks the city is being very deceptive by providing time to find a new shelter.

The city charges $500 a month to lease the current shelter, which includes utilities, she said. She expects the monthly payment on the new shelter to be about $900.

"It is certainly going to be right and we're going to need all the help we can get. But I don't think it's an issue we can handle," Shanks said.

Deadline set for trade ban on S. Africa

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — European Community foreign ministers approved a scaled-down package of economic sanctions against South Africa Tuesday, breaking a deadlock after two days of negotiations.

The compromise package aimed at forcing Pretoria to ease its policy of racial discrimination known as apartheid — imposed one-third of the trade embargoes proposed by the European Community, or Common Market, and left other measures open for continued negotiations.

"The signal is a clear case that if we had failed to reach agreement at all," British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe said.

The 12 ministers agreed to ban imports of South African iron and steel effective Sept. 27.

A deadline set three months ago by Community heads of government at a summit meeting in The Hague. They also agreed to ban imports of South African gold coins and make no new investments in the country. The 12 failed to agree on whether implementation of these two moves should rest with the Community or each member state.

In South Africa, Foreign Minister Roelf "Pik" Botha denounced the sanctions and asked if the Common Market is "prepared to accept responsibility for the suffering and hardship that sanctions still undoubtedly cause."

Rose rates umpire zones; looks for consistent calls

CHICAGO (UPI) - Pete Rose, the all-time major league baseball hit king, has made a mark in statistics during his quarter century of playing major league baseball and it is quite possible that some of those stats aren't likely to be found in the record books.

For Rose, after all, has seen a lot of umpires in his time. Some are big men. Some are small. Some are "slow". Some are "fast". Some are "strict". Some are "loose".

"If a man has played for a long time, he has to know how many arbiters. And Rose, who is an avid student of the game, has his own opinions on the subject of umpiring.

"For the record, Rose never had the reputation as being a grumpier, even in his current role as a player-manager. He will pick and choose his spots to get into "bathroom" because, as a long time "veteran", he knows the ability of trying to show up an umpire.

"I've played that the's the one major thing you are looking for," Rose said. "If he calls it a strike here, a strike there, stay with it. Some umpires have different strike zones. The main thing is consistency.

"Rose has a theory about the variations of the strike zone which he says depends on the size of the umpire.

"Some guys are much taller and they don't bend over as much so they may see a little lower pitch better than a higher pitch," Rose notes. "In the American League, they called the higher pitch because they stood up with the outside shoulder and looked over it. It was common sense if you understand that straight you'll see higher pitches better than the lower pitches.

"Rose can only speak with authority on the National League but he thinks the strike zone has stayed constant.

"Sure, because a lot of the umpires have been around a long time," he says.

"Strike zones varied, there are some umpires you know you can have your say with and you won't get thumbed out of a game, according to the Rose. At a game in Chicago in late May, Rose had a heated argument with veteran Bruce Froemming. But Rose says even the most of time you can argue with each umpire.

"Okay, so have your say, you can be bent with. After you have your say, go take a hike. You can talk to a guy like Froemming for five minutes and have your say, but don't go back to the dugout and start screaming at him again," Rose says.

Regarding retired umpires, several stand out in the future Hall-of-Famer's mind as both fair and consistent.

"I always liked Al Barlick. He works very hard. He always did. Slug Crawford, Ange Donatelli, they were good," he says. "Joko Conlan. He used to give me a lot of slack.

"What kind of staging voice did Conlan have?"

"You figure a B-plus after A," he says.

Rose concedes the umpire when he broke in back in the early 1960s did not have the same type of pressures that the umpires of the mid-1980s face. There wasn't the mental pressure back in 1960 as there is today and the sophisticated electronic replays were just in their infancy when Rose broke into the major leagues with the Cincinnati Reds.

"I don't think the umpires back in them days were under the microscope that we are today," Rose says. "You know you didn't have as many instant replays and there wasn't as much television.

"Rose believes umpires are wary of the eye of the camera in baseball today.

"I think they are aware of it. There is a lot of pressure on them. I think if you just bare out what you do they will realize they do a good job.

Since adding the title of manager, Rose has discovered his perception of the umpires has changed somewhat from the days when he was strictly a player.

"It's the hardest part of my job," Rose said. "I'm arguing with the umpires, especially in Cincinnati where we have so close to first base," he says.

Cubs lose to Montreal 4-1

MONTREAL (UP) - Tony Galiarraga slammed a bases-loaded three-run double in the sixth inning Tuesday night, lifting the Montreal Expo to a 4-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs behind the four hit pitching of Jay Tibbs.

With one out in the Montreal sixth, Mitch Webster drew a walk of Joe Tikc Sutcliffe, 4-14, and moved on to second on a wild pitch, and after Sutcliffe struck out Tim Raines, Andre Dawson walked and stole second. Wayne Krenchicki was walked intentionally and Galiarraga then hit a double to left field that cleared the bases and put the Expo ahead 4-1.

Tibbs, 7-5, struck out three and walked two in completing his third game.

Sutcliffe retired eight batters in a row before Raines, celebrating his 27th birthday, hit a one-out single in the fourth. Raines stole second base of the game and 60th of the season and then advanced to third loved on a single by Krenchicki hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Raines to tie the score at 1-1.

The Cubs got their run of the game in the fifth inning. Chico Walker, who went 4 for 5 in Monday's game, singled, stole second, moved 3rd, was walked on a single by Ryne Sandberg and scored on an infield out.

Why would anyone desire to be a pro quarterback?

By United Press International

Those seeking gainful employment for a chance to be cheered by the fact that there are plenty of openings for dynamic truck drivers. Branches positions are available for you in the buildings of 50 stores and higher and, with the proper qualification, you are likely to land a nose-taming assignment.

So with all of these swell opportunities awaiting a bright, talented individual, why do so many people insist on landing professional football quarterbacking jobs?

Let's see now. Jim McMahon is currently sitting on the sidelines with a damaged body. A surgeon sliced open Joe Montana's back Monday to tidy up his spine and Gary Hogeboom has an arm sling, where it will remain for the foreseeable future.

And the season is only two weeks old.

There appeared on television the other evening one of those nostalgic items which are made up of bits taken from various NFL games. This one dealt with quarterbacks and showed Otto Graham, Joe Namath, Roger Staubach and some of their colleagues throwing touchdown passes and celebrating wonderful victories.

Out of those depicted was Fran Tarkenton.

"To play quarterback," Tarkenton said, "you have to be very thin, skin not care what and you have to be able to scramble on your face. The coach will criticize you. You never will criticize you if the face will criticize you."

But if you think you are doing the best you can and have the talent to begin with, you have to ignore it and go out and do your job."

He did not go into any detail about why anyone would want the job in the first place.

In New Orleans Sunday, Green Bay quarterback Randy Wright threw some interceptions then left the game. Vince Ferragamo replaced him and threw two more. Wright came back in and threw a couple of more for a total personal of five and a team total of seven. Luckily for them, they were in New Orleans when it happened. That sort of performance is a hanging offense in Green Bay.

Marc Wilson of the Los Angeles Raiders found himself dodging the Washington Redskins all day with little success. He escaped a trip to the hospital, but he did find himself at the bottom of a heap five times and threw three interceptions as well.

Jim Kelly, who is expected to lead Buffalo out of the quagmire, now had his team in overtime against Cincinnati Sunday, but his first pass in the extra period was intercepted to set up a game-winning field goal.

Even when a quarterback comes close to doing something right, it doesn't mean things will turn out peachy. Tampa Bay's Steve DeBerg threw a pass to James Wilder against Minnesota, then saw it glance off Wilder's hands and into those of an opposing linebacker - who happily returned it 59 yards for a score.

Warren Moon seems to have made great strides as Houston's quarterback, but two of his 10 interceptions against Cleveland left him field goals for Houston leading three points.

"You can't give the ball away and win," grumbled Houston coach Jerry Glanville afterwards. "I think that was written down in 1304 or whenever football was invented.

Dan Fouts, as dangerous a passer as can be found in the NHL, threw five interceptions against the New York Giants. In Detroit, Eric Hoke was taken out of the game because of his bad performance and Joe Ferguson came in. The fans cheered. One series later those same fans were chanting: "We Want Long."

 Rookie Chuck Long, standing on the sidelines, had a bemused smile on his face as he listened to the fans.

What have I got myself into?" his smile seemed to say.

Neil Lomax at St. Louis was thought of in glowing terms two years ago. Now he is in the midst of a struggling team and has lost its first two games of the season. Phil Simms of the New York Giants takes a tremendous amount of heat whenever his team loses.

Dieter Brock, a has-been who was the Los Angeles Rams, Joe Theismann was dispatched to the television booth because his leg snapped like a pike under the weight of Lawrence Taylor last year, and New Orleans' Bobby Hebert heard so much booing on opening day he may have suffered ear damage.

And then there is Mark Malone, who heard the wrath of the Pittsburgh fans Monday night. It took his team 100 minutes to score some points this year, and on the sidelines coach Chuck Noll looked as if he couldn't make up his mind between pass or punting off a cliff.

For some reason, however, there will always be those who like a challenge. And if lunatic privatization in your spare feet is not challenge enough, the NFL has just the job for you.

Tightener security for '88 Olympics

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) - Organizers of the Seoul Olympics have pledged to tighten security for the 1988 Summer Games in the wake of Saturday's airport explosion in which five people were killed and 19 seriously injured.

Park Se-Jik, president of the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee, Tuesday stressed his concern over the incident at Incheon airport when he presented the SLOOC's progress report to the executive board of the international Olympic Committee.

"It was very unfortunate but the situation was quickly normalized," he said.

The South Korean government has charged the explosion was an attempt to disrupt the 15-day Asian Games. The event was an important showcase for the 1988 Olympics and was attended by 5,300 athletes and officials from more than 25 nations.

Everett in San Francisco?
Oilers ready to negotiate

By United Press International

The San Francisco 49ers are finding how difficult it is to acquire a quarterback when the entire NFL knows you are looking for one.

The 49ers are one of at least six teams in enured to gaining the rights to Jim Everett from the Houston Oilers. Everett was Houston's first-round draft choice from Purdue but has not signed with the Oilers.

San Francisco is searching for a quarterback because backing surgery has sidelined Joe Montana for the season, and they may end his career.

"They (Oilers) told us what they wanted," San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh said. "But my guess is we're not going to consider it. (A) no one guard Michael Carter, who we're not going to consider trading...and (b) multiple high picks." Everett is seeking $2.7 million per year. He is not ready to trade him. Not that they won't. But I think they're going to spend considerable time looking for options from other teams.

Everett is seeking $2.7 million per year. He and the Oilers are at least $600,000 apart and have not talked since Aug. 26.

Houston's position is strengthened by the fact that so many teams are looking for passers, and the Oilers appeared set with Warren Moon.

Indianapolis owner Robert Irsay spoke with Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzeg less than two weeks ago. The Colts lost quarter

Gary Hogeboom for the season Sunday. Green Bay Coach Forrest Gregg is also thought to be interested in Everett and the Los Angeles Raiders. Seattle Seahawks and Los Angeles Rams have all reportedly inquired about Everett.

Several teams have inquired about Everett's availability the past week or so." Herzeg said. "If we can substantially improve our football team, we'd take it."

Jim Plunkett, the Raiders' backup quarterback, Tuesday took a look start toward developing a career after football when he was awarded a major over their distribution in the Oakland, Calif., area. Plunkett's new business venture is part of a plan by the Adolph Coors Co. of Colorado to award more distributors to minority minorities, particularly Hispanics. Coors awarded Raiders Coach Tom Flores a distributorship in June, making him the first Hispanic distributor after the brewery signed a 1984 agreement to end a nationwide boycott by black and Hispanic organizations.

Plunkett will be majority stockholder in the brewery, but partner Bob Garibaldi, a former pitcher for the San Francisco Giants, will oversee the day-to-day operation.

Plunkett will be involved in the beer business during the off-season.

According to a story in the Denver Post, Bronco's Coach Dan Reeves owes his quarterback John Elway $100. The Post said Elway earned the bonus for a fake he made to running back Sammy Winder on his 34-yard touchdown pass to Steve Sewell Monday night in Denver's 31-10 victory over Pittsburgh.

When the Broncos were practicing the play last week, Reeves joked that he would fine his quarterback if he didn't make a convincing fake. "OK," Elway said, "but if I make a good fake, you have to pay me 100 bucks.

"Cash," Elway replied.

Jim Kelly may have once balked at playing in cold Buffalo, but he has received a warm financial reception in that city.

The new Bills quarterback will supplement his $1.6 million per year salary with $2,200 per week, for a 30-minute call-in show on radio station WGR and has signed a one-year contract worth about $40,000 with Goldome, a Buffalo-based savings bank, to appear in advertisements promoting real estate and electronic banking.

LAST SEASON against SIU-C, Banks was shut out for the first time in his career. "He'll remember getting shut out last year," Dorr said. "I guess he'll want to make up for that this weekend."

The two form a deadly duo that will provide the ultimate test for Saluki defense - pass rushers as well as pass defenders.

DUWAYNE PIT'S, the Gateway's play of the week for Sept. 6 '58 yards in Eastern's 41-31 win over Newberry (Missouri), was Pytson's leading target last season. He caught 63 passes from the backfield for 458 yards and one touchdown. Pits also has the ability to run (68 yards and five rushing touchdowns in '85), which will keep the Saluki defense honest in playing the pass.

"Pits gives them an added dimension," Dorr said. "We can't commit as many people back to defend passes, and we'll have to control the running lanes."

SENIOR CALVIN PIERCE was the second-leading receiver last season for the Panthers, with 60 catches for 904 yard and four touchdowns.

"We haven't faced receivers with this kind of speed or quality," Dorr said. They'll really test our ability to cover them.

Dorr said a further factor that could play into Eastern's hands is the Gateway race, where the Panthers are off to a 0-1 start.

"It's still awfully early in the season to worry about conference championships," Eastern has already been backed up against the wall by losing their first conference game," Dorr said. "It'll be tough to win the conference with two losses, so they'll be fired up and ready to play."

DORR SAID that winning the Gateway opener would be equally important for the Salukis.

"If we go out and lose to Eastern, then we'll be up against the wall," Dorr said. "Winning that first conference game is very, very important."

Everett happy anywhere but Houston

HOUSTON (UPI) - Quarterback Jim Everett said he is happy to play for any NFL team except the one that drafted him.

"I wouldn't have any problems playing with any of the 27 teams besides Houston," he said Monday. "If something happens, I'm going to be very excited about it."

Everett, the Oilers' first draft pick out of Purdue, is the NFL's only unsigned top draft choice. Several teams have expressed interest in him, particularly San Francisco. He's in a quandary - uncertainty at quarterback following the season-ending back injury to Joe Montana.

However, the price tag on Everett may be too high.

"They told us what they wanted," San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh said. "But my gosh, we couldn't even consider it. (a nose guard) Michael Cartier, which we're not about to ... and maybe high picks."

"It don't think, honestly, Houston is ready to trade him. Not if they don't want to. But I think they're going to spend considerable time looking for options from other teams."

Everett is seeking $2.7 million over four years from the Oilers. The two sides are at least $500,000 apart and have not talked since Aug. 26.

Quarterback Warren Moon has played well in the Oilers' opening two games. Houston drafted Everett, hoping he would eventually be their quarterback of the future.

Head coach Robert Irvis spoke with Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzeg less than two weeks ago. Cola quarterback Gary Hogeboom likely will miss the season because of last weekend's shoulder separation.

Green Bay Coach Forrest Gregg would not confirm or deny reports the Packers are interested in Everett.

Tampa Bay, Rams and Seattle have all reportedly inquired about Everett. The trading deadline is Oct. 14, but Herzeg denies any sense of urgency.

"Several teams have inquired about Everett's availability the past week or so," Herzeg said. "If we can substantially improve our football team, we'd take it."

Everett's agent, Marvin Demoff, said he expects trade offers to heat up."

"We can keep their momentum from getting too far ahead, then we have a chance of beating them," he said. "If our defense stays together and doesn't let Taylor get those 60-yard runs and 20-yard runs and the 60-yard touchdown passes, then we have the capability of beating them."

Coach Mike White said he finds no fault in the offensive or defensive systems he's using this year, but criticized the players for lacking intensity. Finch agreed and said, "If we can upgrade our team unit, we can upgrade our team intensity."

"We have to pull together as a team. We have to put our arms around each other and let each other know that, 'Hey, I'm in this with you,'" he said.

With Taylor in the backfield is tailback Keith Jones, who is listed as the fastest Nebraska player ever - running a 40-yard dash in 4.2 seconds.

"We have to attack them. We're just going to have to come at them (and) not let them get their momentum going," said Finch, a 7'-3"-bound, 6-foot-3 senior from Indianapolis.

"When the quarterback ... (the blase of scrimmage on an option play) we have to have somebody on him and have somebody already on the pitch man, ready to attack them," he said.

The Illinois offense also needs some intensity. The Illini have had trouble scoring touchdowns after getting the ball inside the 20-yard line, although field goal kicker Chris Siamvokas has been perfect on all six attempts.

"We had UNC in our hands and we let them go," Finch said of the 31-16 loss Saturday. 'I think now the team understands when Coach White says that we are a powerhouse."

Dorf, Field will speak at luncheon

Salukis hope to ground Panthers

All-American Payton to pilot EIU attack

By Sten E. Merrill

The arm of Eastern Illinois quarterback Sean Payton is one of the most feared in the nation, and creating a scoring threat in the Gateway Conference, says Saluki coach Ray Dorr.

"With a weapon like that in the hands of an offense, the Saluki defense will have to be at its best to keep the game close," Dorr said. "Payton is always dangerous with the ball, and they thrive on big plays -- there's no doubt in my mind that running and controlling the ball will be important."

DORR SAID that while playing a strong Eastern defense, the Saluki defense will have to be "the best in the country." Dorr said Payton will "hurt us with his running ability" and that "there's no doubt in my mind that the Panthers' schedule, Payton has a very realistic chance of passing the 10,000-yard mark. At his current rate, Payton would end up with 10,176 career passing yards in the season. These statistics make Payton the Gateway's leading passer and offensive player of the season. His talents also have led to an upset of the top of the Gateway in the passing offense, scoring offense, and total offense."

With eight games remaining on the Panthers' schedule, Payton has a very realistic chance of passing the 10,000-yard mark. At his current rate, Payton would end up with 10,176 career passing yards.

Wounded rotate in depth lineup

By Steve Merrill

If defending against a strong opponent is a dangerous game, then playing a strong offensive team is even more difficult. The Saluki offense is no different, as they are looking to contain a power team in the Gateway Conference.

"It's not easy to play against a strong offense," Coach Ray Dorr said. "We have to be prepared for anything."

The defensive line is one of the most important groups on the field, with their ability to stop the run and pressure the quarterback. The Saluki defensive line has been playing well, and they will look to continue that trend against Eastern Illinois.

Great Saluki Tailgate entries close Friday

By Steve Merrill

The Great Saluki Tailgate, in its second year of existence, is drawing strong interest, and the group is looking forward to this year's edition before the game against Eastern Illinois.

"The Tailgate is one of the best ways to support the Saluki team," a Tailgater said. "We are looking forward to a great tailgate experience this Friday.
