Reagan's blitz for rebel aid slowed by GOP moderates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's blitz to get Congress to release $4 million in aid to Nicaraguan rebels stumbled Tuesday over the concerns of GOP moderates who fear he is heading toward a showdown on Capitol Hill.

"I don't have to deal realistically with some people who share his objectives, but disagree with his methods," Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., said after meeting Reagan at the White House. "He shouldn't go out on this limb." Reagan's plan restricts the $4 million陛下 on allegations of a cover-up in the firing of the state's public health director until his review of the Department's largest salmonella outbreak is completed.

"I won't waste five minutes thinking about that right now," Margolis said in a Statehouse news conference of an in-house probe of the Illinois Department of Public Health. "I'm concerned about the public health, I'm concerned about why the salmonella outbreak cropped up. What can we do to stop it, and I'm concerned about seeing to it that no more people get sick and that it doesn't happen again here or in another state."

"I don't think we (the council) should be in the business of proving guilt or innocence," said Kelley. Most of the property along Illinois Avenue to Springer Street is zoned B-2.

"The council overruled her objections, voting unanimously for the repeal," said Kelley. "On Monday the new zoning district would promote great business for the city."

Shuttle crew makes unrehearsed spacewalk

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Two astronauts strapped makeshiftaranes to the end of Discovery's robot arm Tuesday in a flawlessly, unrehearsed spacewalk setting the stage for Wednesday's attempt to activate a 34-minute rocket fuse on the disabled Syncom satellite.

"Stand up and take a bow," said Rhea Seddon to spacewalkers Jeffery Hoffman and David Griggs just before they returned to the safety of the shuttle's cabin after spending three hours working in the ship's big open cargo bay.

They lashed a "fly swatter" and a "lanceen stick" to the 20-foot arm using straps that were on board to tie down the exterior of the conformance spacewalk was executed while 43 miles from Syncom. Both craft were more than 190 miles high.

Council considers zoning change

By Thomas Mangan

A moratorium on new liquor licenses in the Carbondale City Council voted to repeal a section of the zoning ordinance. The Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board pushed for eliminating the section of the ordinance, citing a business monopoly enjoyed by bar owners in the area.

The board said the ordinance was hurting attempts to discourage underage drinking because bar owners had no fear that their liquor licenses would be repealed or to discourage drinking violations.

The repeal actually affected only three separate Carbondale ordinances. The first, passed in July 1980, banned new Class A licenses on Illinois Avenue and prohibited new licenses for bars that went out to business.

Subsequent versions of the ordinance banned Class B licenses in the same area, but the 1983 ordinance made exceptions for restaurants and hotels with more than 100 rooms so that the proposed expansion of the center would not be affected.

Mayor Helen Westergaard considered her objections to the ordinance position of treating people differently who are asking for the same thing," said Kelley. "Very concerned about seeing to it that no more people get sick and that it doesn't happen again here or in another state."
Egyptian leader confident about summit with Israel

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) - President Hosni Mubarak and veteran Israeli envoy Ezer Weizman raised hopes Tuesday for the first Egyptian-Israeli summit meeting in four years, with Weizman saying he was "positive" the talks would take place. The two leaders met for two hours at the Kubbeh presidential palace after Weizman arrived from Jerusalem Monday on a diplomatic mission criticized by right-wingers in Israel's coalition government.

No progress reported in arms negotiations

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) - U.S. and Soviet arms negotiators met Tuesday on intermediate-range forces and defense and space systems but no progress was reported as the first round of the superpower arms talks neared completion. Although the negotiators continued to ruffle the feathers of Soviet officials on arms bluffs and refused to reveal the substance of Tuesday's talks, their superiors in Moscow and Washington have publicly indicated that little of any substance has been exchanged.

Goetz appeals to the public to help fund trial

NEW YORK (UPI) - Subway gunman Bernard Goetz, once flooded with "nickel and dime" offers of help from supporters, Tuesday appealed to the public for more money to help pay mounting legal bills. One of his attorneys said that while Goetz already has received hundreds of donations under $10 from people across the country who hated his actions, he still needs an estimated $100,000 to pay costs stemming from his upcoming criminal and civil court cases. In the criminal case, Goetz is charged with trying to kill four teenagers aboard a subway train Dec. 22.

Supreme Court sides with CIA on secrecy

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court Tuesday gave the CIA sweeping power to withhold documents from the public, even if the information does not deal with sensitive issues of national security. The justices, in an unanimous decision, said the intelligence agency legally denied a request for data about the experimental drug program known as MKULTRA conducted between 1953 and 1966.

Hostile takeover bid for CBS Inc. expected

NEW YORK (UPI) - Ted Turner, the Atlanta-based cable and broadcast entrepreneur, is expected to unveil a hostile takeover bid for CBS Inc. this week. The New York Times reported Tuesday, the Turner announcement will be timed to follow the CBS annual meeting in Chicago Wednesday, a source familiar with the plan told the newspaper. Reports have circulated for several weeks that Turner has been negotiating with his investment bankers to arrange financing to offer about $170 a share for CBS stock. CBS stock was up $8.25 to $117.50 a share for a 13-month high at mid-morning on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday.

Artificial heart recipient's bleeding controlled

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) - Jack Burchman's internal bleeding was under control Tuesday but doctors were "walking a tightrope" in giving him just enough blood thinners to avoid blood clots and yet not cause excessive bleeding, a spokesman said. The use of blood-thinning agents was resumed Tuesday after doctors at the Humana Heart Institute were satisfied Burchman's second operation in as many days at Humana Hospital Audubon had successfully stemmed the bleeding near his artificial heart.

Missouri highway sniping suspect captured, bid

TUSCUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) - A man suspected of using a high-powered rifle to fire shots at passing cars on a Missouri highway, killing one man, was arrested Tuesday afternoon, authorities said. Initial information on the arrest was sketchy, but a spokesman for the Highway Patrol in Jefferson City said the suspect was captured about 2:07 p.m. in the general area of where the highway snipings occurred. A witness told authorities the shooter was wearing camouflage clothing and had his face blackened, leading the patrol to believe the attack was well-planned.

Spouses of AIDS victims can catch disease

ATLANTA (UPI) - Spouses of AIDS victims stand a good chance of catching the disease through sexual activity but not by casual household contact, according to a study presented Tuesday to 2,000 scientists at an international conference on AIDS. The HTLV-3 virus was identified last year as the cause of AIDS. Spread of AIDS infections to children in households of AIDS victims "appears to be related to perinatal (birth) transmission from infected mothers," the study said, adding, the virus "is not readily transmitted by contact with infected persons to other persons living in the same household."

Discipline problems discovered in S-Senate candidate's record

By Karen Wilberger

Larry Geiler — one of nine candidates running for eight positions as Undergraduate Student Organization West Side senator — has been involved in "disciplinary matters" at two Missouri state universities prior to transferring to SIUC this semester.

Geiler withdrew twice for disciplinary reasons from the last two state universities he attended, said officials at Central Missouri State University and Northwest Missouri State University. The officials said that under the Federal Privacy Act they could not disclose further information about disciplinary matters without permission from the student involved.

"I cannot go into the details or the reason why," said Phil Hayes, dean of students at NMSU. "Everything related to discipline is totally confidential."

Stephen Petersen, vice president for student affairs at CMSU, said that Geiler withdrew twice from CMSU. The second time, he said, Geiler withdrew for "alternative to other "disciplinary" action."

Southern Illinois Collegiate Club faculty adviser Roland Hawkins said little progress was made Tuesday at a meeting of representatives from the club and Crab Orchard Welfare manager Wayne Adams, concerning the possibility of the club relocating to one of the refuge's lakes.

Hawkins, club commodore Peter Hofswell and assistant physical education professor Peter Carroll met with Adams discussing relocating the club at either Little Grassy Lake or Crab Orchard Lake.

Hawkins said, however, that he was pleased with the attendance Adams gave concerning the club's problems. Adams expressed skepticism about letting the club relocate at Little Grassy, but said he would study a formal proposal and give the proposal to his regional director, Hawkins said.

Adams urged the club to try talking again with Ken and Susan Barnhart, the new managers of the Crab Orchard Lake sailboat basin. The basin was formerly managed by a non-profit club which let SISC house its 11 boats there.

The SISC was asked to leave the basin by the Barnharts, who said that the club would take money away from their rental sailboat concession.

Hawkins said the club will write a proposal for relocating at Little Grassy and try to negotiate with the Barnharts. He and Adams declined further comment on the possibility of the club striking a deal with the Barnharts until after SISC and the Barnharts talk again.

"I will try everything and anything to get us on a lake," said Hawkins. While he was pleased because of Adams' concern, Hawkins said he was also frustrated because it seems like "there's a long way to go" and the club's sailboats find a home.

Susan Barnhart said she doesn't know of the club's chance of getting back on Crab Orchard Lake's sailboat basin.

"I'm not saying it's gone in the program and I'm not saying it's not going to happen," she said. "I don't have any idea at this point."
A tip of the hat...

ARCHIE JONES SAYS HE WILL MISS spending his Monday nights at city hall after 16 years on the City Council. His fellow council members and the people of Carbondale will miss his steady, unassuming leadership.

Mary Jones, rising to the challenge of the public good. He was a principal and teacher for 45 years in Carbondale and Carrier Mills. Along with his years on the Carbondale City Council, Jones also served on various city boards and committees. He also served as and will continue to serve as a Jackson County jury commissioner. During his time in office, street sewer and water improvements have been made on the northeast side of the city where Jones lives — and the Eumra Hayes Center was built.

"My worth has always been in helping people," Jones has said. His past accomplishments and reputation bear that out. He says he will be available to serve on city committees if asked. It would be wise for the city to do so. The experience and wisdom that Jones has gained over his many years of public service can still benefit the city for years to come.

...A pat on the back

Joe Jones was one of the 40 volunteers picked up and taken away in this year's cleanup. The Illinois Senate and House of Representatives both passed resolutions commending the Undergraduate Student Organization, the sponsor of the cleanup, the Carbondale Cleanup Committee and all those who lent a hand.

The cleanup has become an annual success story for SIUC students. Students often are praised for their unselfish and unassuming transients in a college town, and not always unjustly so. Once a year they give a little back to the city. Recognized Student Organizations, fraternities and sororities, community organizations and individuals regularly participate. Not only is the cleanup a good way to make Carbondale a little nicer, but cleanup day gives a chance for a little good-natured competition with prizes being awarded to those who collect the most trash.

One of the most appreciated of the cleanup this year and in the past are to be commended. The cleanup is a good example of how students can cooperate for the benefit of both.

Pitch in and donate blood

As many students know, students, service organizations and other things at SIUC, or maybe more appropriately, the man. A Student government is supposed to be a general and representative group for all students. As a student, I can only say that the Undergraduate Student Organization has not fulfilled its potential. Until recently, I knew very little of the USO's existence.

I attended the debate and was, for the most part, at least with two of the candidates, Mr. DeFosse and Mr. Lowrey. Both have more informed than the other candidate. Both had excellent backgrounds of service to SIUC and to people in general. However, I feel that one of the two seems to have been more involved in different types of groups on campus and I think that's good for a president. I think Mr. Lowrey is the most qualified student representative and he is what I would consider a candidate. Mr. DeFosse and Mr. Lowrey have resigned, or are not participating in the campaign this year and in the past are to be commended. The cleanup is a good example of how students can cooperate for the benefit of both.

Donnesbury

I would like everyone to seriously consider writing in "nobody" for student trustee on Thursday. Although the position is a humdrum, the campaign is serious. ABAL (Anybody But Andy Leighton) is a small group of students concerned with the fact that Andy Leighton has no competition in the upcoming student trustee election.

I will admit that Mr. Leighton has done a few good things for the Undergraduate Student Organization, but his mistakes, in my opinion, outweigh them by far. He started out last year by printing a campaign flyer with his party's position on one side and support for the blood drive on the back. This led many students to believe that his party was affiliated with the blood drive, which was not true.

Then, in early November, he endorsed several political candidates, a blatant misuse of his position.

Finally, there is last week's debate. Mr. Leighton spent several minutes denouncing one of the USO presidential candidates as such a mockery. I question the integrity of Mr. DeFosse because of his fake accusations, and the motives of Independent Party member Nicki Glaser, whose sarcastic letter to the editor in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian speaks for itself.

Mr. DeFosse, what is dirty politics? It certainly is not dirty politics to promote dishonesty on the campaign trails.

How to reach the students — not the University of Southern Illinois. It seems that DeFosse has been the primary concern of the Phoenix Party, and not of the other candidates for the Undergraduate Student Organization.

Go to the dorms and look in the windows, in the halls of the Student Center, at hall council meetings. At the Phoenix Party, meetings, at various RSO meetings. What is it you see? It is the Phoenix Party's mislead and discourage students concerned enough to affect the strength of the student body government.

By voting, students can show concern and awareness. This is the campaign of the Phoenix Party. If the other candidates would spend half as much time on their campaigns instead of attacking others out of their own insecurities, student would not look up to the elections as such a mockery.

Next month, I will question the integrity of Mr. DeFosse because of his false accusations, and the motives of Independent Party member Nicki Glaser, whose sarcastic letter to the editor in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian speaks for itself.

Mr. DeFosse, what is dirty politics? It certainly is not dirty politics to promote dishonesty on the campaign trails.

Phoenix Party above mudslinging

Don't be scared to get involved with the Undergraduate Student Organization. Very "philippine, "as a result of this they tend to shy away from becoming involved.

I think the Phoenix Party is trying to change that attitude. I have recently joined the Phoenix Party and have since realized that there are a lot of new people being involved all the time. The Phoenix Party wants interested people to become involved with USO. Tony Appleman and Tracy Stone are two people who will represent all the students at SIUC.

I hope students have not been misled and discouraged from voting and participating in interest on Thursday, April 18 election. If you want to see awareness created on our campus next year, vote for me, Mr. Lowrey, for USO presidential candidate, the Phoenix Party.

Party seeks involvement

I think the Phoenix Party is trying to change that attitude. I have recently joined the Phoenix Party and have since realized that there are a lot of new people being involved all the time. The Phoenix Party wants interested people to become involved with USO. Tony Appleman and Tracy Stone are two people who will represent all the students at SIUC.

The first thing a person wants to get involved with USO is to vote in the April 18 election. — Dan Cullen, West Side Senior candidate.

Guerrillas blame army bombing for death of Salvadoran civilians

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) - Intense combat between leftist guerrillas and the army in two hamlets to the north of San Salvador, capital left six people dead, including four civilians, a guerrilla said Tuesday.

Following the combat, rebels accused the U.S.-backed military of bombing the civilian areas and killing the four civilians during their counterattack in one of the two towns.

The fighting began late Monday when guerrilla forces assaulted the local guard posts in the hamlets of San Jose Guayabal and Las Animas.

RECORD: Discipline problems found

Geller, a junior in journalism and public relations, said Tuesday that official charges were brought against him at the two universities and that he left midway through the semesters. But he said he left with the understanding that the reasons and the other for family and financial reasons.

Another charge brought by a student editor at NMSU, claims that Geller took materials that did not belong to him from the editor's office, said Geller and Rayfield said that Geller had not been notified of a student trustee election.

University records show that Geller had not attended CSMU for about three academic years, as well as attending Southeast Missouri State University and Three Rivers Community College.

University records don't show that Geller attended NMSU last summer and last semester.

Geller entered the student trustee race against USO President Andy Lighthorn early last week, but was never certified as a candidate by the student trustee election commission.

Geller was ineligible under student trustee election laws, which require candidates to complete one semester at SIU-C prior to the election, Geller transferred to SIU-C this semester.

In an earlier interview, Geller said he attended CSMU for two years before SIU-C and lobbed professionally for the last three years with national and state organizations, including the United States Student Association.

When asked Tuesday, Geller said he had professionally lobbied for only one year with the USSA three years ago and that the Missouri Collegiate Student Association's Government Association for one semester, Greg Moore, president of the USSA for two years, had no recollection of Geller. The other association had no last semester.

"There may have been some inconsistencies," Geller said about information he provided on an earlier article concerning his qualifications to be student trustee. What was included, he said, was what he believed to be legitimate items.

"I consider this suddenness about my background just another political maneuver," Geller said. "If I'm under review, why shouldn't any of the other candidates?"

COUNCIL: Zoning change considered discussed and zoning procedures for businesses to operate in the city.

But Planning Commission Director John Rayfield said the city already has 26 zoning classifications, and that the West Main Street area would upset residents, he said, "I just can't leave sleeping dogs lie." Rayfield said that Planning Commission members expressed interest in examining a new zoning district and asked the Planning Commission to prepare a report outlining the options for such a district.

Senior planner allowed for the R-2 property include hospitals, schools, funeral homes and professional offices. The council recently approved changes in the special uses allowed for proper zoned R-2. The definition of professional offices was amended to include real estate, insurance and financial businesses.

Prior to the change in the definition, these businesses had the property zoning changed by the council to commercial and administrative (PA) status. The PA classification does not give the city as much control over the uses of the property as the R-2 classification. Because many of the buildings in the West Main Street area are houses that have been converted to offices, the Planning Commission considered changing the area to a professional and administrative zoning district.

Play has touching message

By Sarah Robers
Staff Writer

"Touch," in an entertaining and informative way, helps children realize the difference between good touch and touch that is exploitive. It was performed at the Marion Civic Center Monday night for a crowd of about 250 people.

The play was created for grade-school-age children to help them learn who to turn to for help if they are, or if they become, the victims of sexual child abuse.

THE ILLUSION Theater, from Minneapolis, Minn., consists of professional actors, but is also a child abuse prevention program, said Sherry Andi, who is a public health play and a moderator for the play.

The troupe travels throughout the country, sometimes performing up to ten performances a week, giving the play at schools and community centers and helping agencies set up their own child sexual abuse prevention programs, she said.

That was the purpose of bringing the Illusion Theater to Southern Illinois, said Susan Smith, a graduate student in Health Administration.

There's a possibility that a local theater group will create a sexual abuse prevention play, Smith said. A local child sexual abuse prevention program may also be enacted, she said.

Smith said that sexual child abuse in Southern Illinois is two or three times above the national average.

PEOPLE WHO Want help or know 'of a child' who needs help can make anonymous phone calls to the Department of Children and Family Services in Marion, she said.

In "Touch," Arndt asks questions and six actors give answers that children in the audience can relate to about touching and situations where it is involved.

The actors are all adults, but they beautifully act out children's innocence and trust and show how pain, conclusion and guilt sets in in reaction to bad and forced touch.

JOYCE FRY, a mother of two children, an 11-year-old girl and 9-year-old boy who attend Carterville Grade School, wanted to see the play after reading in the newspapers about the Carbondale dentist charged with child pornography.

"I wanted to know how I could give them information, especially about the sexual parts. The scary part is knowing it might be happening out of the home, without me being aware of it," she said.

Arndt also asks questions of children in the audience and gradually brings out their own knowledge of good and bad touch.

ARDNT SAID, in a separate interview, that children can play a big part in preventing sexual child abuse by learning how to say 'No' in a forceful way, even to their parents.

"In working with offenders, we know that if they approached a child and that child said 'No,' they wouldn't have sexually abused him or her," she said.

During the play, she makes a point of dispelling the myth that most sexual child abuse offenders are strangers. In a separate interview she said that 80 percent of all offenders are people the child knows and loves.

"VICTIMS CAN be anybody, boys or girls; it's important to know that," she tells the children in the audience.

"Lots of people think that it's the victims fault. It isn't.

Sexual abuse where there is forced touching against someone's will that makes person feel uncomfortable is never the fault of the victim," she said.

The children are also given the chance to say who they would talk to about sexual child abuse. Children said they would talk to a teacher, a school counselor, a nurse, the police or their parent's friends.

Arndt also said that rape crisis centers or other crisis centers can be contacted.

"CHILDREN must keep on telling until someone believes them," Arndt said.

The play's goal is to raise awareness. Hugging, snuggling, tickling and greeting people with kisses and hugs is contrasted with forced touch or touch that makes children feel uncomfortable.

Children are made to understand that it is wrong to blame children for forced touch or for adults to use plays like saying that "It's our secret."

SUSAN SMITH said child abuse is a crime of large proportions. One out of ten girls and one out of nine boys will be sexually abused before they are 18 years old, although the figures may be higher since the crime is often under-reported.

It is difficult for children to talk about the abuse because they feel guilty, ashamed and dirty and don't want anyone to know about it.

Children are very intuitive, she said, they may not know sexual abuse is sexual, like adults would, but they know what's happening to them is bad.
Police simulation training could be part of curriculum

By Pete Rhodes

A radio dispatcher alerts all police units that a grocery store was robbed and the proprietor of the store was killed by four armed men who escaped in a car.

A police officer in a patrol car sees four occupants in a car matching the description of the vehicle used by the killers, calls for backup help on the radio and prepares to stop the suspects.

The officer, who does not know if the vehicle contains innocent or dangerous felons, follows procedures taught in the Illinois police academy.

James Ness, assistant professor of law enforcement at the SIU School of Technical Careers, recently simulated the above demonstration, which he labeled "a high-risk felony stop," for about 28 students in the SIU-C Arena parking lot.

Ness hopes the training, similar to that received at the police academies, will become a part of a regular curriculum that will be available to SIU-C law enforcement students.

Ness said a proposal was presented recently to the Illinois Local Government Law Enforcement Training Board by SIU-C that may establish a new 400-hour minimum training course like the other police academies, at SIU-C.

"This would give the SIU-C law enforcement students the opportunity to attend police academy training while they are still students," Ness said. "This would be the only academy training program in the state that will accept students without a law enforcement sponsorship."

Currently, all potential police recruits must be employed by a law enforcement department in Illinois and must attend a police academy within six months after being hired, Ness said.

"The opportunity to take pre-service academy training while still at SIU-C would really give our students an advantage to gain employment if the proposal is adopted."

Ness said the law enforcement classes now taught at SIU-C give students an edge in education and training, but "don't ensure that a graduate will receive a job, nor will it eliminate the requirement for a police candidate, who intends to work in Illinois, from having to attend an Illinois police academy."

Ness used officers from the Illinois State Police, SIU-C Police and the Chief of Police from DeSoto, to help demonstrate the police tactics to the SIU-C students in the Arena parking lot.

"Whenever we can, we train our students in practical applications of police work by using experienced police officers in real-life situations," Ness said.

Brent Nausley, chief of police for the Village of DeSoto, shows Earl Banister, second-year law enforcement student how it feels to be a felon.

Student Senate to make decision about RSO fee allocation bills

By Cynthia Weis

Staff Writer

The Student Senate will decide whether to authorize 284,999 to 17 Registered Student Organizations at its second consecutive meeting devoted largely to fee allocation bills.

Seventeen of 22 bills and resolutions to be considered Wednesday are fee allocation bills.

At its last meeting, the senate approved by omnibus the allocation of $185,570.66 to 28 Recognized Student Organizations. The omnibus procedure is used by the senate to consider and vote on several pieces of legislation at once.

If the senate passes all the submitted fee allocation bills this week, it will bring fee allocations for the 1985-1986 school year to a total of $221,469.

Funding is from the fee allocations comes from a student activity fee each semester. The fee was $5.50 per semester during the 1984-1985 school year and will remain so next year, said Lawrence Julin, assistant to the vice president for student affairs.

All Registered Student Organizations are eligible to request funds.

Aside from the 17 fee allocation bills, the senate will consider a resolution to oppose the fall mid-semester break proposed by the Faculty Senate.

WCIL-FM radio station (101.3 on the dial) will broadcast the eight annual radiothon in support of St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital from 6 a.m. to midnight at the University Mall in Carbondale.

This is a fun event, but it is a very important event also. St. Jude's Hospital does many great things for people, the children and their families. It has no government support, just donations from people. This is our way of helping the hospital continue to do the job it is intended to do," Tony Waitekus, station program director, said.

"Any business, school, fraternity or any other organization who wants to be part of this event should get in touch with me as soon as possible," Waitekus said.

Telephone pledges will be taken, in addition to having a fishbowl at the mall for cash donations.

Violence erupts at anti-apartheid demonstration

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Police arrested 161 anti-apartheid demonstrators at the University of California Berkeley campus Tuesday touching off a violent scuffle and stopping a call from onetime student firebrand Mario Savio for internationalism.

The mass arrests were the largest on the campus since 1968, when about 600 free speech demonstrators led by then-student Savio were dragged out of Sproul Hall, an administration building.

Dream factory grants dreams of ill children

By John Dyslin
Staff Writer

Helping seriously chronically and terminally ill children fulfill their fantasies is the goal of The Dream Factory, a non-profit organization that began about five years ago.

The Southern Illinois chapter has granted more than 10 dreams since it was restarted in October 1983, said Louchas Brown, area coordinator for The Dream Factory.

Brown has been area coordinator since October 1984 and has been with the organization since it was restarted in the area. The Dream Factory members are all volunteers. The Southern Illinois chapter currently has 10 members.

THE DREAM Factory was created by Charlie Henault, of Hopkinsville, Ky., who wanted to grant the dream of a dying child. Since then, Brown said The Dream Factory has begun chapters throughout Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky.

There are also chapters in Dallas, Detroit and it has expanded overseas to London. The national headquarters is located in Hopkinsville.

The idea is helping sick children, Brown said, is to give the family and child a break from hospital treatments and pain. She said The Dream Factory basically pays for all of the expenses of the request.

"We consider inexpensive dreams to be less than $900. The most expensive dream we had was about $1,000," Brown said. "The average cost of a dream is about $1,200."

DREAMS GRANTED include giving a boy a color TV, an Atari set and money to buy cartridages; sending a girl and her family to Disney World, sending a boy and his mother to Hawaii to see his dad, and giving a teen-age girl a queen-sized waveless water bed with a remote control television.

The Dream Factory has never turned down a request, Brown said.

Referrals about a child's sickness usually come from the Carbondale clinic or from family friends. Many times, she said, family friends follow up to find out the progress of the dream grant.

The Dream Factory screens families to see if they qualify and to get a doctor's verification of the child's illness. Children must also be between 3 and 13 years old to qualify. However, Brown said the maximum age "isn't etched in stone."

"We never really turn down anyone. Sometimes a family doesn't want to work with us because they don't always come to terms with the child's illness or they're unsure about the situation," Brown said.

Brown said there is an incredulous amount of work in granting a dream and it that can be very complicated.

She said that sometimes people get irate if the dream can't be granted right away.

Brown said the dream grant is never turned down, Brown said. "Sometimes people get irate if the dream can't be granted right away. The Dream Factory does all that it can, but can use all the help it can get," she added.

"IT DOES EAT into everybody's time and it can be a royal pain, but it's also a rewarding experience," Brown said. "We've granted a lot of dreams and our chapter has always had the money for dreams."

As The Dream Factory continues to grow and becomes better known, more businesses are providing assistance. For example, Brown said that National Rent-a-Car donates cars and that Disney World donates a hotel room if the group stays at the hotel complex at Disney World.

Last weekend two fundraising events were held Friday night was the annual Southern Illinois Bowling Tournament which netted over $6,000 and Sunday there was a five kilometer run which brought in $146.

Consumer aggressiveness needed to eat nutritionally

By Sarah Minor

A commercial now airing on television asks mothers of America, "to keep them home for breakfast, serve Hostess doughnuts.

The Campbell's soup slogan, "Soup is good food," was taken out of context in some areas of the country when government agencies found that the soup is high in sodium.

Commercial and mass market foods in fields may be the biggest factors in why people should eat nutritionally bad food with harmful additives, said Chris Berkowitz, coordinator of the Student Health Association at the Student Center.

"The most common word in marketing right now is 'natural.' This is very misleading," she said.

Berkowitz gives examples of products that claim to have natural lemon flavor or natural orange flavor, even though these flavors have never been seen a lemon or an orange.

People are also willing to pay more for a product they think is natural, Berkowitz said.

Berkowitz spoke Wednesday at a consumer assertiveness workshop April 3 with Gwen Drury, administrative assistant at Women's Services and Mary O'Hara, re-entry coordinator and counselor at Women's Services.

People concerned about getting nutritionally sound food in restaurants and grocery stores can use assertiveness skills, Drury said.

One common technique is to ask for milk to pour into coffee, rather than the artificial whitener that is on the table, she said.

"Having respect for yourself is part of assertiveness and that ties directly into consumerism," she said.

The essence of assertiveness is for both parties to have a mutual respect, because consumers usually deal with people who don't challenge the structural situations which promote additives, she said.

Rather than getting angry, people should persuade each other to use healthier products.

IN A RESTAURANT, for example, a person shouldn't get angry with the waiter for using artificialwhitener, but should persuade him and the restaurant manager that people would benefit from milk.

Assertiveness can also be used to alert people to the fact that rain forests are being destroyed so that fast food multinational corporations can convert them into cattle grazing land for hamburgers to be eaten in the United States, O'Hara said.

AMERICANS also eat an average of one in three meals outside of the home, usually in fast food restaurants, said Berkowitz. She said Berkowitz suggested that people should carry salt with them while away from home, and avoid questionable-looking foods.

"The closer it is to its mutual respect, the more likely it is to be of value," she said.

Americans eat products that are too fat and sugar in them, she said.

Rather than getting angry, people should persuade each other to use healthier products.

Plans for China exchange explored by COBA faculty

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

The College of Business Administration has plans for broadening its faculty's international horizons.

The dean of the college, Thomas Gutteridge, and John Schermerhorn, professor of management and chairman of the Faculty International Business Interest Group visited China for a few days last year and Schermerhorn plans to return for two weeks this August.

Schermerhorn said the first trip was an "exploratory visit." They went to Liaoning University in China to "explore, with the Chinese, possible areas of cooperation that would help them develop a counterpart to our college of business."

OUT OF THAT initial visit came a visit from the Dean of Liaoning University to Southern Illinois in March and Schermerhorn's plans to return to China for a few weeks in August to serve as a visiting professor at the College of Economic Administration at Liaoning University.

He will be teaching a week-long faculty seminar on management and organizational behavior "with a focus on current developments in the field and new instructional techniques."

Schermerhorn will also be giving lectures to students on special topics in management and organizational behavior.

He will also be working to initiate a research program with Chinese scholars to examine productivity improvement in Chinese industry.

THE COBA VISITS are part of an official link between SIU-C and Liaoning University in China. He said COBA's work with the University may help the state of Illinois in its efforts to promote trade with China.

The state of Illinois has a kind of "sister state agreement" with Liaoning Province just as SIU-C has a "sister university" agreement with Liaoning University.

Two other SIU-C professors, Herb Fink from the Art Department and Robert Lehr from the SIU School of Medicine, are planning visits to Liaoning.

Rhona Vinson, director of International Admissions Development at SIU-C, set up educational links between the two universities.

SHE TRAVELED with Schermerhorn last fall to meet with Chinese and American government officials in Hong Kong, Beijing and Shenyang.

Her job is to get support for the exchanges and to arrange other cooperative efforts between the two universities.

While in this "area she talked to people in the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs' Hong Kong office and talked with people at the U.S. Embassy to make "cooperative arrangements with their educational attaches."

She also talked with people at the Chinese Ministry of Education and with the administration at Liaoning University. She said they worked to "set up possible programs and set up plans to make joint proposals."

SHE SAID SHE is trying to find funding to take most of the burden for faculty and student exchanges off the University.

She said on her next visit she will "continue to build on relationships with the Ministry of Education" and will be discussing new plans.

Schermerhorn said a junior faculty member from Illinois will be entering SIU-C's master's of business administration program next fall and in the future COBA hopes to arrange for more student exchanges with Liaoning.

He said the college is "hoping someday to establish summer internships in Hong Kong or China."

SCHERMERHORN said American students should also benefit indirectly from these exchanges with China. "Our students would benefit by working with faculty who have broadened their international horizons," he said.

Another Southern Illinoisan, Paul Trescott, who was able to spend a year teaching in China because of a Fulbright Award, gave a presentation with his wife, Kathleen, on his experiences in China Wednesday night.

His job was to teach world economics at Peking University.

Frey claims Smith is baseball’s top reliever

If Chicago Cubs’ manager Jim Frey could have his choice of any relief pitcher in the major leagues, he would stay with his own fireman, Lee Smith.

“I wouldn’t want any other pitcher in the majors over Lee Smith,” Frey says. “He goes out there every day, no matter what hesar has trouble getting it up.”

Smith has gotten off to a fast start, just like the Cubs this season. Smith has earned two saves and mowed down three straight Philadelphia Phillies with strikeouts in Monday’s 2-1 win.

“I used to think about getting the ‘K’s’ but I’m not as concerned about that now,” Smith said of his ninth-inning performance. “I’m getting my confidence back and I’m going into situations where I don’t always have to go to the fastball.

“It’s difficult to talk about a pitcher making a comeback after registering 33 saves and helping to lead his club to the Eastern Division flag in the National League.

But there was talk last year that Smith had lost something off of his blazing fastball. Where Smith may have been invincible in the past, teams were able to get to him more as reflected in a higher earned run average, 3.65, than he had in the previous (1.65).

“There is a guy that was a great reliever and he pitched on one leg last year,” Frey said, pointing to Smith’s knee trouble in 1984. “That’s the kind of guy you want on your team. He would go out there . . . for four, five days in a row and he had only 10 games and never approached the success he had in the previous year.

“Not that anyone would be asking for advice, but I know that when you have a great second half, you want the momentum to carry over into the next season,” Bannister says.

After the brilliant 1983 campaign, Bannister fell on hard times in 1984. His performance mirrored the problems the Sox had all year long for his fastball in game situations.

“I know that I can use it as a pitch. It’s no secret that the guys like those on the Phillies are going up there looking for my fastball,” Smith said.

“Now, I don’t have to just use the curve to set up the hitters. I can get them out with it.”

Sox’ Bannister gives Sutcliffe fair warning

CHICAGO (UPI) — Floyd Bannister has some friendly advice for his crosstown pitching rival, Rick Sutcliffe: “don’t get a second half of the season fool you.

In 1953, Bannister caught fire in the second half of the season, winning 14 decisions and helping guide the Sox to their first flag of any kind since 1959.

Sutcliffe came aboard with the Cubs and won 16 of 17 decisions in 1984 to lead the Cubs to their first flag of any kind since 1945.

“As quickly as thing go right, they can go wrong,” Bannister says. “Believe me, I know it can.”

After the brilliant 1983 campaign, Bannister fell on hard times in 1984. His performance mirrored the problems the Sox had all year long for his fastball in game situations.

“I’m not the guy that was a great reliever and he pitched on one leg last year,” Frey said, pointing to Smith’s knee trouble in 1984. “That’s the kind of guy you want on your team. “Now, I don’t have to just use the curve to set up the hitters. I can get them out with it.”

Not that Frey has any benevolence for the rest of the league, but he does feel sorry for opposing hitters that come up against Smith in the late-summer shadow of utilit Wrigley Field.
Phoenix cycling team stays busy past few weeks

The SIU-C Phoenix cycling team held a time trial Saturday in Carbondale and Clinuton easily won the category three race with a time of 17:33.

The race was much tighter in category four, as Dave Conroy and Kevin Gerlauth tied for first with a time of 18:18. Art Bickers finished second with a time of 19:33 and Mike Wendenson was third with a time of 19:13.

John Martinko won the veteran’s division with a time of 19:39. Tom and Vince Jover took first in the unlicensed division with a time of 19:12.

The Phoenix team also competed in the Carbondale Park Series in St. Louis March 17-31. The series consisted of three 20-mile criterium races for category four and women riders.

Connat was SIU-C’s highest finisher in the criterium four division, as he placed second. Steve Wishart finished fifth overall.

In the women’s division, Peggy Argueson placed fifth overall despite competing in only two of the three races.

On Saturday, the Phoenix team will host another time trial. It is open to all interested riders, but a rider must wear a helmet to participate. The race will begin at 9 a.m. at the steps of Shryock Auditorium.

On Sunday, a 25-mile criterium race for all categories will be held at 8:30 a.m. Prizes for winners will be donned by Phoenix Cycles.

Kings prepare to move, but Bucks and Jazz will stay put, Sterns says

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Kansas City Kings have a new home, but NBA commissioner David Stern said Tuesday the Milwaukee Bucks and Utah Jazz will stay put.

The Kings transfer to Sacramento, Calif., for the upcoming season, moved along by the Board of Governors with one abstention.

However, the transfer is contingent on a building of a permanent stadium in two years.

Until a new arena is built, the Kings will play their home games in a temporary stadium being constructed that will seat 12,000.

The Bucks will remain in Milwaukee after the transfer of the franchise to Herb Kohl was approved by the Board of Governors.

The purchase by Larry Miller of half the Jazz was approved by the advisory finance committee, but details of the transaction still must be worked out.

Stern said that he expects approval to take place within a week to 10 days.

“They are delighted to have the Kings in Sacramento,” said Stern.

The only reservation the board, comprised of one member of each of the three leagues, had was lack of an adequate playing facility.

Stern said that if the Kings do not have a new stadium in two years, ownership could revert to the league.

Kansas City will remain in the Midwest Division of the Western Conference for the 1985-86 season.

Gregg Luckenbill, principal owner of the Kings, said a site for the new stadium, estimated to seat 16,000, had been selected and financing was in place.

Stern said the new owners for Milwaukee and Utah met the main criteria the league had set: to keep the franchises where they were.

Sixers brace for NBA playoffs

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — There is some whispering going around the Sixers that the Philadelphia 76ers are ripe to be dealt their second straight first-round NBA playoff knockout.

All in all, the Sixers finished 74 in their last 15 games to fall to third in the Eastern Conference.

One of those defeats was a 118-106 decision to the Washington Bullets, their opponent Wednesday night in the opening game of the best-of-five opening round.

The Sixers have baffled coach Billy Cunningham with their inconsistent play, and there are reports of dissatisfaction with his demanding coaching style. Injuries also hurt the club down the stretch.

But none of the Sixers seems to be concerned about the possible repeat of last year’s shocking first-round elimination by the New Jersey Nets.

“I feel we have something to prove after last year,” Cunningham said. “We had a bad experience down the stretch last year, but this is a new season. We will have to finish have a young team but this is a veteran team that knows what it takes in the playoffs.”

“This is the same team that won 13 in a row (earlier in the season) and started out 41-10,” added captain Julius Erving.

“We had a good season, 56 wins. I have confidence in the people who have been here and I have confidence in the people who haven’t been there and made a contribution to our team, like Charles Barkley and Mike Gminski,” Cunningham said.

“I don’t think they (the Bullets) are going to beat us. If they do, it wouldn’t be an upset. But we’ve had our fill of upsets, so we’re not going to lose.”

The SIU-C men’s gymnastics may have finished a disappointing 10th at last weekend’s NCAA Championships, but Salukis Lawrence Williamson and Brendan Price came away with All-America honors.

Williamson, a senior walk-on from Chicago, placed fifth in the floor exercise, while Price, a junior from San Antonio, Texas, finished fourth in vaulting. The top six gymnasts in each of the six events earned All-America status.

“They did the job all year long and I was glad they had the opportunity to do it at the National Championships,” SIU-C coach Bill Meade said.

Williamson scored a 9.75 on his floor routine Friday night to qualify for the finals on Saturday, where he scored a 9.65 to finish fifth in the country. Wes Sutter of third-place Nebraska, who won the all-around championship, captured the floor exercise title with a score of 9.80.

“I was very pleased with Lawrence,” Meade said. “He came here as a walk-on, and he’s leaving as an All-American. It shows a great deal of determination on his part.”

Price, who was SIU-C’s top all-around with 55.55 points, scored 9.65 on the vault and 9.45 on the parallel bars on Friday, and then scored a 9.70 on his vault Saturday to tie PETE State’s Mike Ambrony for fourth. Penn State, which entered the meet as the top team, came up short in its attempt for a 10th national title, finishing second to Ohio State.

“Brendan’s really come on for us,” Meade said. “He’s improved each year, and he was very pleased to make All-America this year.”

Price also led the Salukis with a 9.60 on the pommel horse, while Gregg Upperman won SIU-C’s top still ring performer with a 9.50. David Litterman, second to Price in the all-around for the Salukis with a 53.10, scored a 9.65 on the horizontal bar to pace the team.

With Williamson the lone senior on this year’s squad, the Salukis look strong going into next season.

“Look’s like we’ll be solid next year,” Meade said. “We’ve signed our number one recruit, we’ve worked hard all year with red-shirts, and we should be stronger next year.”

Rozelle to decide Kosar’s future

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle met Tuesday with representatives from the four teams involved in the complicated bidding for quarterback Bernie Kosar, but no decision was reached.

The meeting in the league’s New York offices involved the Minnesota Vikings, Cleve., nd Browns, Houston Oilers and Buffalo Bills.

Kosar, the 21-year-old quarterback who led the University of Miami to a 1983 national championship with a 31-20 Orange Bowl victory over Nebraska, has said he will accelerate his course work to graduate this summer — even though he still has another year of college eligibility — and enter the NFL draft.

The meeting lasted 3.5 hours and broke up without a decision from Rozelle.

“As was announced when the meeting was called, the commissioner told the clubs he would make a decision no later than April 23,” an NFL spokesman said.

The commissioner is faced with two competing claims.

Women golfers place 2nd at Purdue tourney

The Saluki women’s golf team captured fourth place in the Lady Boiler Spring Classic hosted by Purdue University at Lafayette, Ind., April 14 and 15.

“We were very happy with our total score of 873,” SIU-C coach Sonya Stalberger said. The Salukis held third after the initial 36 holes, but again Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference rival Illinois State edged ahead. The Redbirds had to overcome the fatigue of 108 holes but their experience or the Salukis’ lack of experience showed on the final day. Also, the Salukis positioned themselves with the calibre golfers from the tourney winner Ohio State and second place Michigan State.

“They were a bit intimidated by the golfers they played with,” Stalberger said. “They were also intimidated by the position — they were trying to protect it instead of trying to improve it. And that didn’t surprise me because we’re a young team and we’re still learning.”

The Redbirds finished 12 strokes ahead of the Salukis. Magnuson was disappointed with her 78-79-88, 237 total.

Pat Futman fired two excellent rounds of 79 and 86, but tallied an 87 on the last day. Tina Kozlowski shot the Salukis lowest round of 78, while a two bad 9-holes led her to a pair of 84.

Jill Bertram is shooting consistent scores in the 80s although Stalberger would prefer to see her use her talents to ‘back into the 70s.

Lisa Kartheiser did not recover from a poor showing at the Illini Invitational, and Stalberger said this, “not at all typical of Lisa. Her head was not in golf this weekend.”

Weaver considered Seattle job

SEATTLE (UPI) — It is no secret that the Seattle Mariners talked to former Baltimore manager Earl Weaver last fall when they were looking for a new manager.

By all accounts Weaver is still happy in his retirement from baseball and withdrew his name from contention before the Mariners re-hired Chuck Armstrong, who led the club during the last month of the 1988 season.

What wasn’t reported at the time is that Weaver, one of the most successful managers in the history of the game, apparently had some misgivings about whether he was the right man for the Mariners job.

Mariners club president Chuck Armstrong, who said he learned a lot from his discussions with Weaver, recently disclosed some of Weaver’s comments.

Armstrong reported: “At the end, when he withdrew his name from consideration, Earl said, ‘You know, I don’t think I’d be the best manager for your team. When I managed Baltimore, my style was not really to communicate with the players.”

“I don’t think in all the years I managed them I ever spoke more than 30 words to Frank or Brooks Robinson. They knew what I wanted. They knew what the job was. They were veterans. They would go out and perform. ’If you’re your team, you need a manager that’s going to put them on the back, get them up, cajole them. Somebody they think they can go talk to, that’s program and sàn, person. ’I’d be the best manager as well as their manager. You have a lot of young players who have that fragility.”

Men netters defeat Southeast Missouri State

The SIU-C men's tennis team moved a step closer to the .500 mark Tuesday when it defeated Southeast Missouri State 7-2 in a match at the Arena tennis courts.

The Salukis have now won three straight matches and are 11-12 on the season. SIUC would have to win three of its remaining five matches to finish at the break-even mark.

The Salukis dominated the singles play against SEMO, winning all six matches. Per Wadmark defeated Tony Fogerty 6-4, 66 at No. 1 singles; Gabriel Coach defeated Simon Call 6-4, 62 at No. 2 singles; Chris Visconti beat Chris Cappa 6-2, 66 at No. 4 singles; Reidle Olguino defeated Mike Boone 6-4, 66 at No. 3 singles; and Sirkka Koivisto won his first match against Mike Kowar 6-0, 6-1 at No. 6 singles.

The victory for Wadmark improved his singles record to 13-9, the best on the team.

The Salukis forfeited two doubles matches because two players had to attend class.

Hunagte takes job at Louisiana Tech

RUSTON, La. (UPI) — Mary Kay Hungate, who in seven years coached the Feziora Richwoods girls basketball team to six state tournament berths, one title and a state-record winning streak, has accepted a job as an assistant at Louisiana Tech, the school announced Tuesday.

Per Wadmark returned a shot during the men netters' match Thursday at the Arena tennis courts for his team because it gives it a realistic opportunity of finishing at .500 or above, a goal the Salukis set for themselves at the beginning of the year.

"It really makes a difference," LeFevre said. "I think we can certainly finish 14-14, and we could go 15-13 if we win a couple of tough matches."

The Salukis will return to action this weekend when they play a pair of crucial Missouri Valley Conference matches in a triangular meet at Wichita, Kansas.

Softball Salukis host conference foe EIU

By Steve Mervitt  Staff Writer

Having dropped two of its last three games, the Saluki softball team will try to rebound and improve on a 4-3 conference record on Wednesday when it squares off against Eastern Illinois in a double-header at 2 p.m. at the IAW Fields.

The Salukis split with Wichita State last weekend. They are 14-11 on the season. The Salukis are third in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference, following Illinois State (16-1, 10-1), second in first and Illinois State (5-1, 7-2), and third overall. Last year, the Panthers finished in fifth place in the GCAA conference and 14-21 overall. Journalist and writer Angela Beutler led the Salukis with 10 home runs.

Illinois State, Eastern and Western Illinois fill out the bottom of the pack: all have losing conference records.

Drake, the surprise team of the season, was picked in aweak section coaches poll to repeat their 1984 cellar performance. But the Bulldogs are holding their own with a 3-3 conference record and a 10-11 overall. The second game of this weekend will be just the second year the Bulldogs have competed at the Division II level.

Eastern is currently 2-6 in Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference play after losing five straight games. The Salukis have won the first two games of their four-game series.

The Salukis added two wins in both the third and fifth innings, before four runs in the bottom of the fourth and eight more in the sixth gave them a 16-0 lead and ended the contest.

Robert Jones started the Salukis with a single and one out in the second inning. He was then safe at third with a single and scored as Mike Gugliellmi doubled down the left field line. Jay Hammel then delivered a two-run double and Jones scored on the sacrifice.

Tartaglia took a fastball from Daniel Barker (3-2) and drove it into right field. Barker got the lead when he struck out 10 Salukis and early in the season, is limited to hitting for the time being because of a sore arm, so SIU-C coach Richard Scott. The catcher, who finished the day with three hits and an earned run, was greeted with five runs in the opening game victory for SIU-C.

Kating, who won the Salukis' No. 1catcher spot early in the season, is limited to hitting for the time being because of a sore arm, so SIU-C coach Richard Scott. The catcher, who finished the day with three hits and an earned run, was greeted with five runs in the opening game victory for SIU-C.
