Committee reduces student parking

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

The SIUC Traffic and Parking Committee has given a green light to proposals reducing student parking spaces and requiring students living near campus to walk.

The committee will reduce red decal parking for students by about 232 spaces, require all full-time faculty, and staff to purchase blue decals and require all students living within a jagged one-mile perimeter of campus to walk or park only in Lot 56 past the Arena.

The changes will be implemented Aug. 1 if approved by the president and the chancellor. Clarence G. Dougherty, chairman of the parking committee, said if people believe the constituency approach to student government is fair, the approach to the new parking changes also is fair.

"(The decision) is an attempt to alleviate the parking difficulties on campus," he said. "(The changes) are some steps toward eliminating part of the problem—certainly it doesn't satisfy everyone."

But student leaders are protesting the unfair advantage faculty and staff had over students in the committee. Faculty and staff had five voting members and the students had three.

Rick Fasano, the Graduate and Professional Student Council representative to the committee, said the perimeter and decrease in red parking spaces passed because the faculty outnumbered the students.

"Are (faculty and staff) in a better position to judge what students want than students themselves?" he asked. "This concerns me greatly because I see a trend of student constituencies not being listened to."

The new changes are another way to emphasize that students are paying more for

Group: Pay attention where tax dollars go

By Christy Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

Members of the Southern Illinois Peace Coalition greeted last-minute tax filers Wednesday at the main Carbondale Post Office, urging them to pay attention to where their tax dollars were going.

The post office stayed open after hours Wednesday to accommodate last-minute tax filers, who had until midnight to postmark their returns.

The Southern Illinois Peace Coalition took advantage of the increase in customer activity by organizing outside the local post office and handing out fliers to inform residents where their federal taxes were being spent, said Margie Parker, spokeswoman for the group.

"The government spends so much on military spending that the areas of domestic and human needs have been neglected," she said.

Since 1980, more than $200 billion was cut from economic development and other community programs as military spending was increased by $923 billion by the government, according to an analysis of more than 100 state, local and national studies compiled by the National Priorities Project.

Current military spending accounts for 30 percent of Illinois resident income tax money. An additional 24 percent of income tax money is put toward past military spending and interest on the national debt, the analysis reported.

Money spent on domestic needs has decreased 18 percent in the last 12 years, Parker said.

"We now have problems with the infrastructure, education, health care and housing," she said.

The portion included in domestic needs for low income families also was cut 55 percent since 1980.

"The money that goes to help the neediest people was cut the most," she said. "They're the ones who need the brake."

"Changes in tax policy has benefited the rich," she said.

"There is something upside down when we're letting the wealthy get wealthier and everyone

SIUC to determine destiny of student lobbying group

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

The state's largest student lobbying organization is one step closer to receiving a death sentence—the gavel now is in the hands of SIUC students.

The University of Illinois Board of Trustees dealt the Illinois Student Association an unexpected blow last week by voting to discontinue membership with ISA next year.

The U of I Urbana-Champaign and Chicago campuses contribute half of ISA's $120,000 annual budget, leaving the organization with only $60,000 to work with next year.

ISA now has two weeks to revamp its image and fight for survival at SIUC. A question concerning ISA membership will appear on a referendum April 29, and the ultimate fate of the organization hangs on the outcome of this election, said ISA Executive Director Phil Lyons.

"We can improve our image unless one thing happens," he said. "If Carbondale votes not to support us, we cannot exist."

SIUC contributes $24,000 to ISA.

The board members' decision not to allocate fees to ISA creates a new meaning for

USG announces committee to focus on improving future

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

Undergraduate Student Government will begin an ongoing investigation to help prevent important issues from being overlooked.

USG President Jack Sullivan announced Wednesday the convening of the USG Innovation Team that will review and recommend changes to USG.

USG has been bombarded with many important issues facing students today and some of the smaller issues have gotten shuffled to the back burner, Sullivan said.

"A lot of people are very forceful in telling student government where we're going wrong," he said. "We can't focus on everything when we have many issues at hand."

Sullivan said the USG I-Team is structured similar to Carbondale's I-Team. Its duties will focus on improving the future of USG.

"We sit around in the office and discuss (USG's future), but there's no formal structure for it," he said.

"This semester, the committee will basically create an apparatus to be used next year by goal setting what its priorities will be and the committee's function in writing."

The committee will be chaired this semester by USG Chief of Staff Brad Cole, and will consist of senators, USG adviser Jean Paratore and volunteers.

"We want students who are not satisfied to be included too," Sullivan said. "I found out as president that you need someone to keep kick-starting you."

Sullivan wants the I-Team to study and make recommendations on how to improve USG's relations with the student body, administration, city, state and federal government and peer organizations from other schools.

Tony Svach, USG vice president, said the I-Team will act as a public relations device for USG while improving the organization.

The image of USG gets somewhat tarnished by rumors, and this committee will help alleviate the problem, he said.

"Students will find out more about what we're doing and then our record will speak for itself," Svach said. "All the rumors will disappear."

Two recruits sign to play men's hoops

By Scott Wuerz
Sports Writer

The SIUC basketball program rebounded from being left home during the NCAA's big dance by recruiting a pair of big-name high-schoolers to bolster the staff next season.

Benton High School's all-time leading scorer JoJo Johnson and Arcadia Valley High (Ironton, Mo.) standout Chris Carr signed national letters of intent Wednesday to play for the Dawgs in the fall of 1992.

Johnson, a 6-3, 180-pound guard was named the Chicago Sun Times Player of the Year in 1992 after averaging 29.7 points a game in his senior year and leading the Rangers to a third-place finish in the class A state tournament.

He shot 45 percent from the floor, while averaging .690 from the free throw line.

Benton High School coach Rod Schurtz said he is glad Johnson chose to play close to home at SIUC.

"It's exciting for me to see him sign with SIUC," he said. "I'm particularly happy for him and his fans who will have an opportunity to see him play for the next four years in college ball. He's a hard-nosed competitor who proved in his senior year that he is one of the all-time best players at Benton High School."

Johnson scored 2,575 career points at Benton. He also set the school's single season scoring mark with 950 points in his senior year. He also scored 47-point games twice last season, also a school record.

Billikens walk past Dawgs

SLU scores early, defeats SIUC 6-1

By Tony Mancuso

Control problems on the mound cost the baseball Salukis four runs in the early innings and led to a 6-1 loss to St. Louis University Wednesday afternoon at Abe Martin Field.

Freshman starting pitcher Mike Blang, 0-2, managed to record just one out in his second start of the season as the Dawgs gave up three runs in the top of the first.

Blang walked the first two batters he faced before a bunt single by Billiken left fielder Pat Conreux loaded the bases. First baseman Jason Boehlow followed with an RBI single, and Conreux was thrown out by Saluki right fielder Scott Foster after he rounded second too far.

After Blang walked another batter, he was relieved by senior lefty John Ettel, who promptly gave up two RBI on a single by Bills' shortstop Scott Mueth.

Ettel walked two more batters in 1 2/3 innings of work and gave up another run in the second.

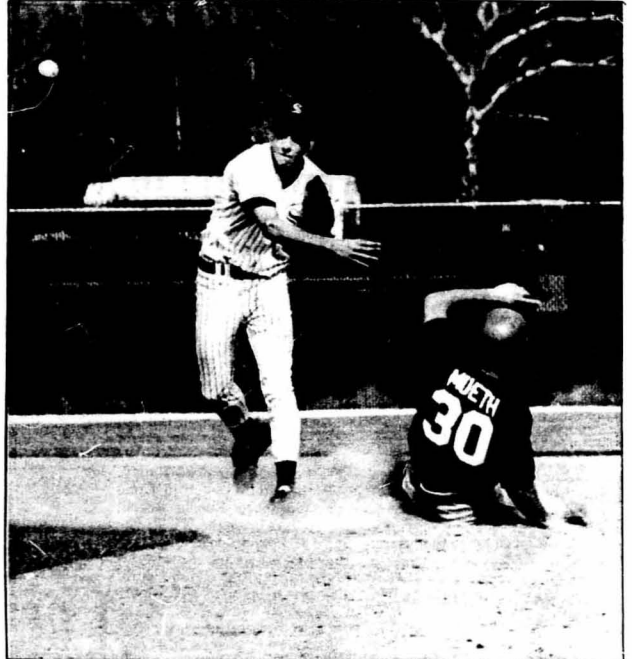

On the day, Saluki pitchers yielded seven free passes and ran their two-day total to 17. Five pitchers combined to walk 10 in a 24-11 loss to Kentucky Tuesday.

Head coach Sam Riggleman said the game was a perfect example of the importance of throwing strikes.

"It was a great day to pitch in our park because the wind was blowing in," Riggleman said. "If you get ahead in the count and make them hit, the wind will hold a lot of balls up."

"We are constantly spotting runs early, and it's tough to make up for that."

Billiken pitcher Marcus Jones, on the other hand, walked no one as he went the distance in his first start of the season. Jones, who improved to 4-1, allowed a tally in the first but scattered three hits and struck out five through the final eight innings.

Saluki freshman second baseman Pete Schlosser forces out St. Louis shortstop Scott Mueth and pivots for a throw to complete a double play. The Dawgs lost 6-1 to the Billikens Wednesday at Abe Martin Field.

Riggleman said the Dawgs' hitters had trouble with Jones because he got ahead in the count.

"He threw a nice game," Riggleman said. "He kept us honest and was effective on the outside part of the plate."

The Salukis' lone run in the first was unearned. Sophomore shortstop Clint Smothers reached on an error by Mueth, stole second and moved to third on a hit by freshman second baseman Pete Schlosser. He scored

Saluki sprinter worked hard to qualify for NCAA

By Scott Wuerz
Sports Writer

The SIUC men's track team is taking the fast track to the top of the NCAA, following the example of senior sprinter Ed Williams.

Saluki coach Bill Cornell said Williams' work ethic not only has put him in a position to accomplish his individual goals, but has set an example for the entire team.

"Ed has always been dedicated to the team," Cornell said. "But this season he has worked even harder and it has paid dividends with a trip to the NCAA championship meet."

Williams qualified provisionally for the NCAA meet with a 13.67 effort in the 110-meter high hurdles at the Tyson Invitational April 2. The time bested the SIUC record set by Andy Roberts in 1978 by one hundredth of a second. Williams has won the event in three of the Salukis' four meets this season, losing only to Arkansas' Chris Phillips on his home track.

Williams also holds the third fastest time in the 100-meter dash at SIUC with a 10.34 personal best.

Williams' efforts have helped inspire the Salukis to become one of the best track and field teams in the nation in 1992. SIUC took on a field including national track powers Arkansas, Alabama, Iowa State and Georgia and raced to victory despite being without four top runners. The Dawgs won the meet with 102 points, besting second-place Alabama by 7 1/2 and Iowa State by 10.

Still, Williams said he sees his role as only one of several ingredients necessary for team success.

"Everybody on the team wants to be a winner," he said. "So we all work hard to accomplish our individual and team goals. We know this is a tough conference and we have to take everyone seriously and we all have to meet our individual responsibilities."

Williams credits work ethic for his success away from the SIUC track team.

"I enjoy school and track," he said. "So I try to be successful at

'Tark the Shark' to test NBA waters: San Antonio hires new head coach

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Jerry Tarkanian, who resigned under pressure at Nevada-Las Vegas, will return to coaching in the NBA with the San Antonio Spurs next season.

Bob Bass, the interim head coach as well as the team's vice president of basketball operations, will remain the coach through the playoffs this season, the club announced Wednesday. Bass has been the coach since Larry Brown was fired Jan. 21.

Tarkanian received a multi-year contract, with the financial terms not revealed. He was making just over $200,000 a year in base salary at UNLV, plus significant perks and lucrative outside endorsement deals.

Tarkanian said he will bring some of his 'Runnin' Rebels philosophy to the Spurs.

"We hope to come in here and get our running game going," he said. "Maybe make the Spurs the 'Runnin' Spurs.'"

Although Tarkanian won't be coaching until next season, he will have a role in the upcoming college draft. He was scheduled to head to Orlando Wednesday night, where many of the nation's top college players are taking part in the All-Star Classic.

Spurs' owner Red McCombs said he got a great coach.

"He is a great human being, the kind of guy that understands what our community is about," said McCombs. "We think that is equally significant."

While no one would mistake San Antonio for the glitz and glitter of Las Vegas, Tarkanian said he sees a similarity.

"I'm excited about the fact that this is the big thing in

Saluki trackers hope to upset Illinois, OSU

By Karyn Viverito

The women's track team is hoping to make a winning dash to the finish as they participate in the competitive Illinois Invitational in Champaign.

The field will include host team Illinois, defending Big Ten champion, Ohio State, Eastern Illinois, Western Illinois, and Bradley.

Coach Don DeNoon said he is looking for the meet to be very competitive.

"The talent present from the Big Ten teams will be outstanding," he said. "Many of the athletes I heavily recruited are walk-ons at Illinois."

DeNoon said the Big Ten teams are good in short distance events. "Illinois and Ohio State have excellent sprinters and hurdlers," he said. "We are going to have to focus on doing well in those events."

DeNoon said he doesn't think the Salukis will have trouble keeping up with the competition.

"We are as capable as any other team of getting the job done," he said. "I am very confident that our kids will do well."

The College of Education honored 60 students at Honors Day Sunday, giving away more than $25,000 of awards to deserving future educators.

Chief academic adviser Jackie Bailey said the College of Education makes a special effort to let students know what awards are available. The school prints booklets detailing eligibility requirements and the way to apply for scholarships.

"Honors Day is something we look forward to all year," Bailey said. "It shows we acknowledge and recognize the students we work with."

Although SIUC remains precariously placed on the jaws of a budget crunch, the College of Education is still able to provide monetary awards for needy students through donations and fundraisers.

Andrea Durr, a senior from Carbondale, received $1,000 for the Leo J. Brown teacher education scholarship award, which is based on need and given to a student with a minimum grade point average of 3.0.

Several students received multiple awards. Susan Shepherd received both the Allen Endowed Scholarship and the Treece Elementary Education Scholarship.

Chevelle Biles-Thompson, a senior from Chicago and Jacquelyne Thames, a senior from Joliet, split $400 of an African-American award, given to black undergraduates who provide documentation of leadership in student professional and community organizations.

The Undergraduate Academic Services honored students Sunday who may be uncertain about their majors but certain about their ability to achieve.

The honors program for outstanding undergraduates includes those deciding on majors and pre-nursing students, said Virginia Rinella, director of pre-

Students with a 3.5 grade point average received a certificate and students with a 4.0 were awarded a plaque.

Four scholarships were given to sophomores based on outstanding grade point averages and rigorous class schedules, Rinella said.

Russell L. Williams, a sophomore from Brookfield, received $160 from the Leah M. Reef Memorial Scholarship, which was established in 1954. Williams received the scholarship for demonstrating academic performance.

The Carrie M. Bunn memorial scholarship was awarded to Michael J.

Smith, a sophomore from Taylorville. Smith received $100 for his academic performance.

Coop said the award came as a shock when she received a letter in the mail telling her that she had won.

"I was very honored and surprised," Coop said. "I study pretty hard, though, because I am trying to get into nursing school."

Campaign funding falls under scrutiny

Congressman Glenn Poshard makes a noble effort in his proposed bill that would eliminate political action committees and limit personal campaign contributions, and brings to light an issue that has snuck through the political world seemingly undisturbed.

PACs have become the financial backbone for many campaigns and in some instances the issues are ignored in favor of money. Anyone can put together a PAC to voice collectively their concerns and offer funds for candidates with the same opinions, but the opportunity for representation has been abused and PACs are now considered easy ways for powerful corporations to shovel money into the candidate of their choice, thereby tipping the scales. Running a high-profile campaign costs millions of dollars that most politicians do not have. Increasing their visibility is key come election time and the greater the amount of money in the campaign chest, the more commercial time they can buy.

In co-sponsoring the House bill, U.S. Rep. Poshard, D-Marion, seeks to set a new standard in honest campaigning. Money talks loudly in Washington, D.C., but hopefully his fellow legislators will take notice of the proposal.

Although Poshard's bill offers a much needed investigation of PAC money, his subsequent elimination of the committees could hinder public lobbying for issues of concern. Representation, however, cannot be expressed by a dollar amount. PACs are a failure if politicians vote in order to avoid losing money. PAC money abuse resembles an auction where politicians offer their vote to the highest bidder. With the financial atrocities publicized about the government, the system is in dire need of a cleanup. Congress has suffered too many financial controversies and should prove the role of PAC money before it too gets out of hand.

Before politicians jump to the support of PACs, they should examine the examples being set in the primary elections. In Illinois the campaigns of Poshard and U.S. Senate hopeful Carol Mosely Braun present instances where opponents' PAC money could not sway votes, and funding lost out to issues. When elections continue in November, more candidates might be willing to investigate PAC money and limit its financial influence that has taken root in Congress.

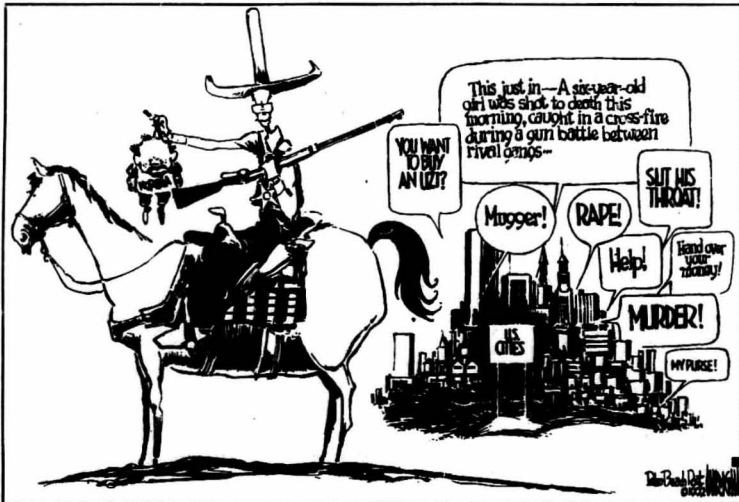

Political insidership is not a coveted quality among today's politicians. The PAC fad may soon die on its own doing, but the political leadership must take a long overdue look at how the system works. Those who think the public outcry will pass and ole' buddy perks will not fall under scrutiny will soon find themselves at home fishing along side Alan Dixon.

Argument about sex crimes missing key issues, says victim

Lately I have been following the editorial page in the DE with great surprise. Especially the various contributions debating the relation . . . ip between pornography and sexual assaults. Ironically, on the side other AIDS issue is raised and concerns are being voiced over the well being of teenagers and their experiments with sex.

It is very distressing for individuals who have encountered a sexual violation of their privacy in one form or another to see the issue being addressed in this way. Being one of them, I have the urge to tell scholars and laymen that the issue is not whether pornography and sexual assault are (casually) related.

That issue is one of moral standards, which apparently seem to be so vague as to need to be debated. The real question is how to stop sexual assault of every kind and how to help the victims of those assaults instead of assuming the socially acceptable response of blaming them. Most people do not seem to realize that the vast majority of sexual assaults occur within the protected environments of family and relationships. Any occurrence leaves a scar that is always visible.

My suggestion is not that the pornography question be shoved aside, but that it be addressed differently, untied to the question of how to conquer sexual assault.

It should be addressed along with the AIDS question and the concerns how to teach teenagers to be responsible individuals. It should be clear that sex is not a game, and that others can be seriously hurt both physiologically and psychologically if the rules are overturned.

It is a responsible attitude that can prevent not only STDs, but future sexual assaults from recurring.

For now though, attention not only has to be turned toward prevention, but also towards cures and care.—Desiree Sodaar, senior, speech communication.

Wrong assumption presented

In response to Monday's "Opinion from Elsewhere," I would like to address the author's tacit assumption about sexual offenders—that they are diseased. I vehemently disagree with this position.

Just what is it at the root of the American belief that all behavioral excesses or deviant actions (such as addictions, sexual offenses, compulsive gambling, etc.) are the result of a disease process?

The perpetuation of this belief does four major things: 1) Places a stigma on the addicted or offending person which will last for life; 2) Assumes the person is somehow "out of control" thus allowing an evasion of responsibility for one's own actions. This even provides an excuse for the action ("I can't help it, I'm diseased."); 3) Assumes that the deviant or excessive behavior is controlled by a mysterious disease which modern science does not understand and cannot treat; 4) Makes a great topic for Oprah or Maury.

I agree wholeheartedly that castration is no answer to the problem of sexual assault, but for very different reasons than Monday's commentator.

Removal of the drive is not the answer—we all have drives and whether or not we act on them is a choice for which we are solely responsible.

When an offender commits a crime, it is because of a choice that person made, not because of some disease process.

Perhaps that choice is made because of learned behavior, or because the person knows of no other way to deal with those drives.

People can learn new ways to deal with those urges, or learn to use other ways already in their repertoire to deal with them. Ultimately, everyone is responsible and accountable for their own actions.

As Stanton Peele says, "The real you is who you declare yourself to be, a matter wholly under your own control."—Robert W. Deuel, graduate student, rehabilitation counseling.

Replacement angers former Rufus drummer

This is a letter to you the readers body about a situation regarding a band called Rufus that is currently signed to play at the Student Store during Springfest.

As I write this I have just learned that the "former" drummer for Rufus have been replaced for the Springfest Gig by a yet unnamed drummer. I have been a professional drummer for almost 12 years and I have played for many bands throughout Southern and central Illinois and southern Wisconsin.

Never in this time have I been used to this extent. To explain this I must point out some facts:

- 1) Since it was my drumming on the demo tape which got the band the gig I feel as if breach of contract has occurred;
- 2) A storage building which all members of Rufus agreed to pay 25 percent on, which I the "former" drummer of Rufus have paid nearly $300 for four months rent, to date I have received $24 from the other members;
- 3) I feel my time and effort in helping to produce "their" songs is worth at least some credit as I created all percussion parts;
- 4) An open statement to the new drummer who better have totally new rhythm patterns for the songs written by Rufus which included me at the time they were written.

I have played for 20 years and I know my own rhythm patterns and style. Any musician's name who gets played on a stage will result in legal action taken against all members of Rufus and myself. I have signed this band to the Student Store, and I will not be replaced.

Carbondale resident Melvin Brooks, who participated in the demonstration, said it is important to strengthen the economy, increase the value of the dollar and bring down the national deficit.
"I suggest we transfer a great deal of money from the military, which is there only to kill people, to do constructive things such as invest in education, health care and for construction of our infrastructure such as buildings, roads," Brooks said.
Those who stopped to pick up information were asked by the group to write to their legislators to make changes.

less, Fasano said.
"The tuition and fees are going up and up, and the services are getting cut and cut," he said. "I see this as another way of pushing students farther away from the center of campus and having faculty and staff close to the buildings."
Jack Sullivan, Undergraduate Student Government president, said the most disturbing change is the perimeter.
"What we're focusing on is the perimeter and the way it's being gerrymandered to affect the larger apartment complexes," he said.
The changes have come at a time when students are getting financial aid cut and the cost for housing and tuition is going up, and they will not stand for it anymore, Sullivan said.
"It's added insult to injury," he said. "This overall hostility toward students has gotten to a boiling point, and we're not going to lose our momentum in carrying our message to the administration."
Sullivan said he believes the changes will curtail in the president's office because of simple logic.
"The impact this will have on students is plain, and we're not going to play dead," Sullivan said. "We're going to be vocal about it, and I will stand behind my prediction that this will not happen. I think logic is going to prevail here."
Fasano said students must express their opinions on these changes now if they do not want to see them implemented.
"I think it's time students take an active participatory role in expressing their opinions," he said. "The only hope of getting this reversed is getting (President) Guyon bombarded by community citizens of SIU."

Other proposals passed in the Traffic and Parking Committee include:
■ proof of residence must be supplied to purchase a parking decal,
■ a vehicle with an E and W overnight decal must leave the vehicle in an east or west side parking lot, respectively, from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.,
■ green storage permits will cost $45, instead of the current $10,
■ 104 overnight parking spaces will be removed from Lot 4, South of the Communications Building,
■ Lot 106 on South Wall Street will require a green storage permit, red overnight decal or guest permit—red commuter decals will be valid in this area from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. only,
■ the drive in front of the law school will change to a two-way street with no parking on the south side of the drive,
■ motorcycles shall park only in a designated area with the appropriate color decal,
■ fifteen-minute parking meters will be installed in front of the Student Center,
■ Lot 24 near Campus Beach will change from yellow spaces to red,
■ vehicles with red overnight and yellow parking decals shall not use parking meters from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Lots 13, 13A, 5, University Street and places prohibited by signs,
■ students, staff and faculty employed at the Stone Alumni House will be required to have a yellow, red or blue parking decal,
■ Lot 59 will be expanded to 620 red parking spaces and
■ lighting will be upgraded on Douglas Drive.

their needs have been neglected during the last decade, she said.
This is the fourth year the peace coalition has organized a demonstration to inform people of government spending.
"All we're doing is sharing information," said Kathleen Shaffner, who also handed out fliers.
"I've chosen to be nonviolent in my life," she said. "Hopefully, that will set an example for my immediate family and friends in a small way."
The Southern Illinois Peace Coalition does not, as a group, support any political candidate, but its members individually endorse candidates who support the policies in which they believe.
The group also took the opportunity to tell people more jobs could be generated in health care, education, housing and mass transit than in military procurement for each billion dollars expended by the government.

Economic studies by the Congressional Budget Office and the Joint Economic Committee of Congress have shown spending in the civilian sector creates more jobs than does spending on the military.
"For a billion dollars, you can either finance 25,000 jobs in military procurement or 47,000 jobs in health care, 41,000 in education or 36,000 in housing," Parker said.
Parker said the group does believe a defense is necessary, but it does not believe the government should spend in such an excessive amount.
"About half of our military spending goes toward deterring Europe and Japan," Parker said. "That's not necessary anymore."

retain membership by 98 votes, with 4,478 students voting.
Between the U of I at Urbana-Champaign referendum in February and the Chicago referendum this week, the administration recommended to the Board of Trustees it repeal the fees to ISA.
Craig Bazzani, vice president of business and finance at U of I at Urbana-Champaign, said membership with ISA was an experiment, and mixed student views alarmed administrators.
"Going into ISA was viewed, certainly by the University, as an experiment that would be reviewed periodically," he said. "On the heels of that, over the past year we've seen mixed views not necessarily reflective of the student vote."
The administration also was concerned about the $1 membership fee because it was the only fee over which the University could exercise no control, Bazzani said.
Lyons said U of I administrators failed to note the number of students who voted to stay in ISA.

"They looked at the referendum as 2,000 students voted against ISA membership, not 2,000 students voted to remain a member," he said. "They took it as an opportune time to decide not to collect the refundable $1 fee."
Susan Hall, the SIUC graduate student director on the ISA Board of Directors, said the U of I decision is not as fatal as it might seem.
"The U of I Board of Trustees has voted to no longer allow the students to collect ISA dues through a mandatory refundable fee," she said. "But what they have not done is voted against the students of U of I to remain members of ISA—I don't want it to sound like the death knell of ISA because I don't think it is."
The SIUC Board of Trustees failed to approve a request for a mandatory refundable fee for ISA dues in 1988, so the students voted to increase the student activity fee. The student governments currently allocate the dues to ISA.

jumping out of the frying pan into the fryer, Lyons said. ISA has been swarmed with allegations of incompetency on the U of I at Urbana-Champaign campus during the past year.
The latest decision from board members comes 1 1/2 months after U of I students rejected a recommendation to terminate membership with ISA by voting to retain the $1 mandatory but refundable fee toward the organization.
The U of I Student Government Association created a special task force last September to investigate and research the student fee to ISA after concern was voiced regarding inadequate representation in Springfield.
The task force presented a final report to SGA in January recommending withdrawal of its membership from the organization, charging ISA with a general lack of competency and no sense of commitment.
Despite the recommendation, students passed the referendum to

SIUC to award honorary degree to researcher

By Christine Leninger
Administration Writer

A nationally known researcher and lecturer on the physics of quantum liquids and solids will receive an honorary doctor of science degree from SIUC.

The SIUC Board of Trustees voted this month to award the honorary degree to Walter E. Massey, director of the National Science Foundation.

As director of the NSF, Massey is responsible for an agency charged with strengthening national scientific and engineering research potential and with improving science and engineering education at all levels.

With an annual budget of $3 billion, the NSF awards 13,000 to 17,000 grants a year for research in all fields of natural and social sciences and engineering.

Honorary degrees are given to people whose contributions to their field go beyond the call of duty.

Massey was unavailable for comment, but Carl Bretscher, spokesman for the NSF, said Massey is delighted to be named for this award.

"He is honored by the recognition he is receiving from SIUC and is excited about meeting the faculty and students of the University," Bretscher said.

Prior to his appointment to the NSF, he served as director of Argonne National Laboratory and professor of physics at the University of Chicago from 1979 to 1982.

Massey's research, lecturing and writing has been on the many body theories of quantum liquids and solids, the teaching of science and mathematics, and the role of science and technology in a democratic society.

Rongjia Tao, assistant professor in the department of physics, said Massey is a pioneer of his field.

"Most of his research was done in the 1970s, so he is a pioneer of the field of quantum liquids and solids," Tao said. "I am familiar with his work on the Wou-Tan-Massey theory that concentrates on binary boson solutions."

Binary boson solutions are used to study the interactions of subatomic particles in solid and liquid states.

In naming him for the honorary degree, members of the SIUC

Department of Physics recognized his contributions to the field of science, education, social and corporate lives.

"He has worked closely to improve the education of the deprived community," members of the department of physics said in recommending him. "Under his leadership, Argonne National Laboratory has become a focus of major research activities in the world. He has been instrumental in attracting federal funds and creating outstanding research facilities in Illinois."

"SIUC is likely to benefit from his advice, being experienced in advising federal bodies responsible for formulating national research policies. Finally, he serves as a role model to many Afro-Americans who are aspiring scientists," they wrote.

Throughout his career, Massey has received many awards including the Distinguished Service Citation of the American Association of Physics Teachers in 1975.

Change magazine has cited him as "one of the 100 most important educators in America."

Bretscher said Massey currently is not doing any research, but is supporting the research of others and science education.

Massey has been a member of the National Science Board, the President's Council of Advisers on Science and Technology, the Board of Trustees of the Rand Corporation, and the Board of Directors of the MacArthur Foundation, among other organizations.

Several weeks ago, the "Star Trek" series broadcast an episode involving a love relationship between a main character and a single-episode bisexual female character.

"That is very good," he said. "We were all very happy to see it, and I know the girls in GLBF appreciated it."

The producers of "Star Trek" have said they will introduce a homosexual main character in the coming season, Keller said.

Fox Television has been a leader in working with homosexual themes in their shows, including episodes of the animated program, "The Simpsons."

"Fox and Paramount pictures are both very supportive of the gay community," Keller said. "Whereas Columbia Pictures is typically homophobic and very apprehensive about looking into gay issues."

Keller also praised the NBC TV series "Quantum Leap" for taking an entire episode to delve into the many problems faced by homosexuals. The show, however, lost advertising dollars as a result of airing that episode.

On a local level, this week 651 people attended a Student Programming Council showing of "My Private Idaho," a film about two young street hustlers which tackles some major homosexual issues.

sophomore from Evansville. The $180 award was contributed by retired and continuing advisers in pre-major.

"We are really proud of our students," Rinella said. "The program was held to communicate to the students how pleased we are with them."

Kyle Perkins, acting associate vice president for academic affairs and research, said students should take part in everything the University has to offer.

"I also told them to never give up and go ahead and take the difficult courses and do their best," he said, "and I said that learning does not stop after college."

Perkins said there is nothing ordinary about students that have not decided on a major.

"I see nothing wrong with students being uncertain about their majors," Perkins said. "The honors day is absolutely a good idea, a lot of students are undecided on what they want to do especially in their first two years."

Portrayals of homosexuals must change—gay activists

By Ronn Byrd and Sherri Wilcox
Special Assignment Writers

Local gay rights groups say the entertainment industry must go beyond basic portrayals of homosexuals in film and television, moving away from roles that instinctively cast gays as negative characters.

The box-office hit, "Basic Instinct," has sparked a surge of protests from gays, lesbians, and bisexuals who say the entertainment industry is off target.

"Basic Instinct" centers around a bisexual novelist played by Sharon Stone who is suspected of murder when her lover is killed using a method described in her book. Michael Douglas plays the detective investigating the case who becomes involved with her.

Michelle Malkin, co-director of the SUC gay rights group, Gays/Lesbians/Bisexuals and Friends, said the fact the criminal characters in the movie also were bisexual or lesbian had little impact on the feature as a whole.

"The fact that they are bisexual is not really a big deal, but there are not enough movies out there with a positive view," she said. "If 'Basic Instinct' could have had another gay or bisexual character, or just a line that tells that not every gay person acts like that, it would have balanced out."

But "Basic Instinct" is not the only film to come under fire by gay rights groups. A string of films have drawn protest for the portrayal of homosexual themes.

"Fried Green Tomatoes" and "Thelma and Louise" both involved close relationships between two women, and drew protest for allegedly sidestepping lesbian issues. In the novel, upon which "Fried Green Tomatoes" was based, a lesbian relationship between the two women was insinuated, while the screenplay adaptation cut out references entirely.

Gay rights groups also protested "Thelma and Louise" for insinuating a lesbian relationship and then failing to follow through.

In the oscar-winning film, "The Silence of the Lambs" as well as "Basic Instinct," homosexual characters were portrayed as psychopathic killers.

Jan Roddy, assistant professor of cinema and photography, said there is a complex pattern of homosexual presentation in entertainment.

"I think that there is a long-standing pattern in media imagery of homosexuality being seen as a psychotic illness," she said. "People who are homosexual or lesbian have been either portrayed as pathetic victims or destructive."

The patterns films present are of lesbians being portrayed as cold, calculating, dangerous and willing to kill men for no particular reason, Roddy said.

Rodney Keller, public relations representative for GLBF, said while adults can look at movies and television realize they are only fictional, negative portrayal of any specific cultural group can be dangerous.

"Film is just a character, it is not real, but it does leave an impression on younger and more impressionable viewers," he said.

"Basic Instinct" has received the most attention by far for its openly bisexual lead female character. The criticism is based on complaints the characters are one-dimensional.

"The characters were completely about sex and there were no other parts of them explored," she said. "Basic Instinct" was more an analysis of the heterosexual male reaction to Catherine's bisexuality than anything else," Roddy said.

But Queer Nation, a gay activist group, made efforts before the movie was filmed to expand the homosexual issue in the film more completely. Leader from Queer Nation met with "Basic Instinct's" director Paul Verhoven and producer Alan Marshall and asked for script revisions. They also suggested Michael Douglas's police character might be better portrayed by a woman.

Marshall and Verhoven said the changes would undermine the strength of the original material and said in a 1991 Time magazine interview, "censorship by street action would not be tolerated."

The protests came to a head upon the film's release this spring. Queer Nation staged protest outside of theaters and attempted to ruin the movie's opening by giving away the ending.

"Hollywood portrays gays and lesbians as violent and psychotic when in reality it's more likely for gays and lesbians to receive the violence," said Anne Keating, a member of Queer Nation/San Francisco in a Daily Egyptian interview March 30.

"Some producers have taken that responsibility, and have had success with it," Keller said. "Thousands of pieces of mail were dropped on the front lawn of the producers of 'Star Trek' from members of the gay community requesting a homosexual character, and paramount responded."

SIUC employee groups: Lawsuit may force proper pension funding

By Brandi Tipps
Administration Writer

The heads of SIUC employee groups say a lawsuit brought by two retirement systems against the state may force the governor to provide proper pension funding, even though the suit does not provide immediate relief to University employees.

The State Universities Retirement System has joined the State Teachers Retirement System in bringing a lawsuit against the state for not adhering to an Illinois law requiring the state to fund properly the pension fund.

Dennis Spice, executive director of the State Universities Retirement System, said the SURS Board of Trustees is responsible as fiduciaries to make sure the pension fund can pay benefits.

SURS Trustee William R. Norwood, said it was either join the lawsuit or "look like we were fighting it."

SURS has no other recourse because the situation is only getting worse, Spice said.

But one argument against the lawsuit is that the Illinois Constitution guarantees benefits will be paid when a person retires, Spice said.

The problem is the money comes from the general revenue fund, which reverts the cost to taxpayers, he said.

"My fear is how our kids will be able to pay for such a tax," Spice said.

Donald Paige, president of the SIUC faculty senate, said the lawsuit does not help individual faculty members.

Rather, "the lawsuit may keep the taxation of our children and grandchildren from being so high," he said.

Paige said the lawsuit will not benefit the retirement system because of the constitutional guarantee that retirees will be paid benefits entitled to them.

What the lawsuit can do, though, is stop congressional leaders from putting off the payment of bills into future generations, he said.

"My grandkids will have to finance my retirement at this rate," Paige said.

And the number of recipients is growing each year.

This year 20,000 people receive benefits, but by the year 2038 more than 60,000 people are expected to get benefits, Spice said.

If no improvements are made because of the lawsuit, the State Universities Retirement System is projected to be bankrupt by the year 2017, and if an early retirement bill is passed, it will push the bankruptcy date closer to the year 2000, he said.

Norwood, also an SIU trustee, said the suit was brought against the state to force it to fund the retirement system to the maximum of the law.

The law states the General Assembly must appropriate the amount of money the retirement system will need to sustain system now and in the future.

This year SURS was supposed to receive $146 million. Instead it received $91 million, Spice said.

But 3 percent, which was cut in January because of the rescission, amounted to about $2.6 million.

The money to fund the retirement system is taken from an employee's paycheck and the remaining money is funded by the employer, which is the state.

Employee contributions have been fine but employer contributions are short, Norwood said.

If the retirement system is not funded properly in accordance with the law, money may not be available to pay benefits to retiring state university and community college retirees as well as to retirees who receive benefits from other state funded pension systems.

Muriel Narve, president of the SIUC Civil Service Council, said the council supports the lawsuit.

If the funds are not put into the retirement system, then the government is taking a chance that the system will run out of money, Narve said.

"I hope legislators will consider this and the consequences the system will suffer if it is not properly funded," she said.

Spice said the state employees, judges and Illinois General Assembly retirement systems did not join in the suit because their boards of trustees are controlled by the governor, and it is the governor and the General Assembly which are not adhering to the law.

The legislature's and judge's retirement system also is faltering and is expected to be bankrupt by 2008, Spice said.

But the number of legislators and judges are not growing, rather they remain fairly stable so the problem is not as difficult for them to solve, he said.

The system has not been funded properly since its development in 1941, Spice said, although the General Assembly paid 100 percent of what was given out in annuities in the early 1980s.

Spring Clean Up Day offers chance to rid city of garbage

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

They will come Saturday by the hundreds, armed with trash bags, gloves and litter sticks to rid Carbondale of its garbage.

Volunteers will take part in the annual Spring Clean Up Day sponsored by Carbondale Clean and Green this weekend.

They will seek out litter on streets, rights-of-way, parks and other public areas around the city.

Last year 425 volunteers cooperated to rid the city of 8,240 pounds of accumulated trash.

The Delta Chi fraternity placed second last year in the category for large University groups. Mike McGuigan, philanthropy chair, said the fraternity has participated every year in the event.

"Because we're a fraternity, most people think all we do is drink and party," he said. "This is a way for us to show that's not true—we like to help out the community and make it look nice."

Between 20 to 30 Delta Chi members will work for Spring Clean Up Day this year, McGuigan said.

"It's a good time to get out there," he said. "We usually kid around with each other then go to something else afterward."

This year registration for Spring Clean Up Day starts at 8 a.m. at Tarley Park at the intersection of Glenview and West Main streets in Carbondale.

Groups or individuals will be given trash bags and assigned certain locations in Carbondale to clean. Trash collection will be until 1 p.m., when volunteers from the National Guard will transport the bags of trash back to Tarley Park.

Capt. Geoffrey Campbell, commander of the Combat Support Company in Carbondale, was one of the drivers for Spring Clean Up last year.

"About four or six of us provide vehicles for picking up trash around Carbondale," he said. "This year we'll have three 2 1/2 ton trucks and another truck to pick up trash."

Closing ceremonies for the event will be from 1 to 1:30 p.m. at Tarley Park. The trash accumulated will be weighed, and the individual or group with the most trash will win prizes donated by local businesses.

A group of Papa John's Pizza employees also will hit the streets of Carbondale to clean up.

Bob Dover, supervisor for the business, said taking part in the activities is important.

"I believe we're environmentally oriented, and being that way we can help our community," she said. "We try to keep our area clean, and this way we can help in the process of keeping other parts of Carbondale clean also."

Papa John's is trying to set an example, Dover said.

"An individual can always go clean up, but you make a stand when a business goes to clean up," she said.

Simon to discuss health care plan, answer questions

By Todd Welvaert
Politics Writer

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, will discuss his plan for a rational health care system at 9:30 a.m. today in the SIU law school library.

Simon will address faculty and students on various national health care plans currently before congress and will review the long-term health care insurance plan he submitted.

He will open the meeting up to questions after his review.

"The Long-Term Care Family Insurance Act will defend families against the catastrophic costs of chronic illness for seniors; working-age Americans and children," Simon said in a press release.

"The plan recognizes that long-term care costs are not simply a problem for the elderly but also for young families crushed over by debt in caring for parents or other family members," he said.

Simon's plan would create a long-term management agency in each state that would determine eligibility and monitor the quality of the health care offered.

Under Simon's plan, nursing facilities would be available for all individuals who needed assistance with three or more daily activities, such as dressing, bathing, eating or using a bathroom.

Those who need help with two daily functions would be able to receive home community care.

Children with chronic illness or dependency on medical equipment would be eligible for long-term home care and individuals with disabilities would be able to buy in to Medicare and receive long-term care services.

Education Academic Leadership award of $250.
Batchelor attributes her academic success to her parents and community activities, including volunteering for the Special Olympics and working as treasurer for the Council for Exceptional Children.
"(CEC) helped me get in touch with other people in the program and bounce ideas off them," she said. "We talk about field experiences and compare our work. It helps to get more than one perspective."

Tara Kash, a senior from Ina, won the Military Order of the Purple Heart award. The award is given to a junior or senior with a double major of elementary and special education with a GPA of 3.5 or higher. She split the cash award of $1,000 with student Lisa Link.

Kash said she studied hard to attain her high grade point average, and her parents had a great deal to do with her success.
"I take my studies very seriously, but without my parents I wouldn't be anything," Kash said.
The program also awarded the military students who take weekend classes at their bases.

Five students came from Scott Air Force Base in Belleville to attend the ceremony. Sidney A. Klessinger, from Coronado, Calif., flew from San Diego to receive the George A. Williams CES military scholarship.
Mary B. Hutcheson, a senior from Fairfield, won highest honors for vocational education studies in the military program.

Roberts' RBI lead Reds to victory over Braves

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Bip Roberts drove in two runs and scored the other and Chris Hammond allowed only four hits over eight innings Wednesday, leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves and a sweep of their three-game series.

Hammond allowed a first-inning leadoff homer by Deion Sanders.

But Roberts crossed the plate with the tying run in the bottom of the first on a wild pitch by Braves' starter Charlie Leibrandt.

Roberts then drove home Joe Oliver with a sacrifice fly in the second inning and singled home Freddie Benavides in the fourth.

It was Cincinnati's first three-game sweep of the Braves since April 1990.

It also was the Reds' first three-game sweep of the Braves at Riverfront Stadium since the 1978 season.

Hammond, 1-1, struck out five before giving way to Norm Charlton. The lefthander pitched a scoreless ninth to notch his major-league leading fifth save. Leibrandt fell to 1-1.

Sanders was 2 for 4 with a triple to hike his batting average to a National League-leading .447.

His eighth-inning triple, his league-leading fifth of the season, caused a collision between All-Star shortstop Barry Larkin and center fielder Reggie Sanders.

Red Sox slip by Orioles with two runs in eighth

BOSTON (UPI) — Jody Reed delivered a two-run, two-out single in the eighth inning to snap a 4-4 tie, and the Boston Red Sox held on to defeat the Baltimore Orioles 6-5.

The Red Sox loaded the bases off Oriole reliever Storm Davis on singles by Tom Brunansky and Mo Vaughn and an intentional walk to Wade Boggs. Mark Williamson ended the game for the Orioles and Reed hit a two-strike pitch over the second baseman's head to knock in Brunansky and Vaughn with the go-ahead runs.

Jeff Reardon came on to close it out for Boston but surrendered a solo homer to Chris Hoiles before nailing down the save.

The Red Sox took a 1-0 lead in the third on a rare error by Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken Jr., but the Orioles tied the score in the fifth on a run-scoring triple by Brady Anderson.

Boston scored three times in the sixth on a sacrifice fly by Brunansky and Vaughn's two-run double.

Baltimore came right back with three runs in the top of the seventh to even the score.

Greg Harris picked up the victory in relief for Boston, and Davis took the loss.

Ripken, who made only 11 errors in 806 total chances last season, made two errors in a game for the first time since May 24, 1991.

100-meter dash, and junior Nacolia Moore finished first in the 200-meter dash, both achieving career-best times.

Assistant coach Kathleen Raske said she feels they will continue that momentum.

"Our sprinters and hurdlers are coming off some great performances and their confidence is high," she said.

"They are ready to go out there and run fast."

Where distance runners dread the hot weather, it plays a major role for the spring group and their performances, Raske said.

"Their muscles are loose, and we are getting quality, high-intensity workouts," she said.

"We are hoping for good weather this weekend, and if we get it, we should see some fast times."

If our kids set goals and then go out and achieve them, we will have a successful meet, DeNoon said.

"I am expecting the meet to be a duel between Illinois and Ohio State, since they are the only two Big Ten teams competing," he said.

"All we can do is focus on our goals and try to make a good showing."

town," he said, "just like the Runnin' Rebels were in Las Vegas. There is a lot of interest and it is something I think can really be a lot of fun and I think the potential there is to really, really have an outstanding team."

Tarkanian, 61, had a major-college record of 625-122 in his 19 years at Nevada-Las Vegas and five seasons with Long Beach State. His .837 winning percentage is the highest in college history.

Tarkanian has been a coach for 31 years overall. Including stints with the Riverside and Pasadena City Colleges, he has a record of 837-148, a percentage of .850.

It was at Nevada-Las Vegas that Tarkanian gained his prominence. His teams won at least 20 games in 18 of his 19 seasons, and four times had at least 33 wins, including tournament games. Nevada-Las Vegas won the national title in 1989-90, and was 31-0 the following year until losing to eventual champion Duke, 79-77, in the NCAA tourney semifinals.

UNLV was 26-2 this past season, which was expected to be a rebuilding year.

The Runnin' Rebels closed the season with a 23-game winning streak, the longest in the nation. Because of an agreement with the NCAA, Nevada-Las Vegas was ineligible for post-season tournaments.

Tarkanian's success at UNLV came despite nearly constant feuds with the NCAA the past 14 seasons. In recent years he had also been at odds with the school administration.

Tarkanian announced June 7, 1991 he would coach just one more year for the Runnin' Rebels, but 10 days before he was to step down he rescinded that resignation. However, school president Robert Maxson said he would hold Tarkanian to his original decision.

Tarkanian left UNLV with the basketball program on NCAA probation and the target of 29 new NCAA infraction allegations. The coaching job was turned over to long-time Villanova head coach Rollie Massimino on April 1.

on a ground out by senior first baseman Darrin Barton.

After Schlosser's hit, Jones retired 17 of the next 18 batters he faced before yielding a two-out, sixth-inning single to senior third baseman Brian Heather.

Barton and senior DH Ed Janke collected singles later in the game, but the Dawgs could not put a rally together.

St. Louis, which also scored single runs in the fifth and sixth off senior right-hander Tony Giese, was led offensively by Boehlow. The senior went three-for-five with a run scored and three RBI. Muehl finished two-for-four with two Riggleman said Giese was a bright spot for the beleaguered Saluki pitching staff. He pitched six innings and allowed just one earned run on eight hits and two walks.

"He did his job," Riggleman said. "He kept us close in his longest stint of the season."

Prior to the game, Giese had a 4.26 ERA in 12 2/3 innings of work.

The Salukis, 13-20 on the season, will not return to Abe Martin until May 5. They begin a 13-game road trip today, when they play SIUE at 1 p.m. in Busch Stadium, St. Louis.

both. I'm a student first. If I want to be successful on the track I have to keep my grades up.

"That's how it is with everything: If you want to be successful you have to work hard for it."

Despite the possibility the Dawgs may receive an NCAA Top 20 ranking, Williams said he is concerned more with the Salukis' repeating as MVC outdoor track champions.

As an individual, he said he would like to earn a spot on the US Olympic team.

"My main goal is keeping the outdoor track title," he said. "We worked hard to win the (MVC) crown last year and we don't want anyone to take it away from us. As far as my long term goals are concerned, I'd like to make the Olympic team—if not this year in '96, but if I don't I'll probably continue to compete with a running club.

"I'll probably keep going until my legs fall off."

Heavyweight Tyson to serve term for rape in Indiana Youth Center

PLAINFIELD, Ind. (UPI) — Convicted rapist Mike Tyson has been assigned to the Indiana Youth Center although he may later be transferred to a lower-security prison, Department of Correction officials announced Wednesday.

The former heavyweight boxing champion was assigned, they said, based on the results of testing and psychiatric evaluations he underwent since his March 26 sentencing.

Tyson, 25, was convicted Feb. 10 of raping 19-year-old Desiree Washington while she was participating in a beauty pageant in Indianapolis last summer. The Youth Center he is in is designated a "Level 3, high-medium security" prison, although he qualified for a Level 2, low-medium setting, the announcement said, adding that space was unavailable now in a lower-security prison.

Crowding of Indiana's prisons in recent years has made "youth center" a misnomer. It contains many adult criminals.

DOC spokesman Kevin Moore said it is common for offenders to be placed in security levels higher than indicated by tests if no space exists to assign them appropriately. As space becomes available, Tyson may transfer from IYC if his needs can be met at lower security, Moore said.

Initially, Tyson will be housed in the 28-cell administrative and orientation unit at IYC for an orientation that normally takes about one week. His permanent housing and program arrangements will be determined after that.

Housing at IYC primarily involves double-occupancy cells and dormitories. The prison houses 1,419 offenders, but can accommodate as many as 1,400 convicts.

IYC offers classes in literacy, Graduate Education Diploma, and vocational training.

Inmates are assigned to work in one of several areas including the kitchen, laundry, recreation and maintenance, earning from 60 cents to $1.25 a day for their work.

Carr is a 6-5, 190-pounder who averaged 26 points a contest for a 26-2 Arcadia squad last season.

Carr averaged 66 percent of his field goal attempts over three varsity seasons, including a 75-percent pace in his senior season.

Carr also averaged 11.6 rebounds and 2.7 steals a game as a senior.

Arcadia Valley coach Dave Bone said Carr has the ability to be an impact player at SIUC during his college career.

"Chris is the kind of player who some day will be an outstanding college player. He's a good ball handler and shoots well within 16-18 feet of the basket.

"He could've easily averaged 30 points for us last season, but we had a couple of other guys who were capable of scoring.

Saluki coach Rich Herrin said he is excited to add the prep stars to the Salukis roster next season.

"JoJo is an outstanding player," he said. "He's just a winner, that's all I can say about him. He comes to play every day and he is a great competitor with burning desire to excel.

"Chris is a complete player who can go coast to coast with the ball. He's a class individual who has great potential as a college basketball player."
