Student Government recommends Baier for Dean of Students

By Joann de Fiebre
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

John L. Baier, coordinator of student activities, has been recommended by Student Government to succeed George Mace as dean of students.

Mace has resigned effective Sept. 15 to resume full-time teaching and research. He has requested reassignment in the Department of Government.

Dan Zwicker, administrative assistant to Student Body President Mike Carr, said Baier was chosen because members of Student Government felt he could represent the student body.

"He has the experience in dealing with student activities," Zwicker said. "He is also concerned about student activities and we feel he would do a good job."

Zwicker said Baier, who was interviewed by five members of the Student Government staff, also expressed ideas on how the office of Student Affairs could be changed.

Baier said he was surprised by the recommendation and was also "flattered and honored by Student Government's confidence."

He added, however, his ideas on how student affairs could be changed were "preliminary thoughts" and said he would prefer not to discuss them at this time.

In a letter sent to President David Derge, Carr said Baier was chosen because he "demonstrates the quality of student life on campus."

Carr also said Student Government could not support a dean that was selected without the support of students.

Joel Blake, administrative assistant to Carr, said Student Government does not agree with the "no selection committee" policy President Derge is initiating.

Zwicker said Derge has "given us the impression that he would interview all people recommended and come up with a decision."

He said Student Government feels "representatives of the student body should have a direct input" in selection of the new dean.

"The administration shouldn't just force a dean on us," he said. "It's important to have a dean who is able to work with students."

Says nation's business urgent

Nixon urges end to Watergate obsession

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon appealed to the American people Wednesday night to end "a backward looking obsession" with the Watergate scandal and "get on with the urgent business of our nation."

Denying again advance knowledge of the bugging or participation in the subsequent cover-up of the Watergate break-in and bugging, Nixon made an emotionally worded plea "for your understanding" of the way he handled the scandal he said now saps confidence in his administration.

In a nationwide radio and television address from his Oval Office, and in an accompanying written statement, the President also:

—Said some of his subordinates misled him into believing that no one in the White House or re-election committee was involved. He said he did not learn of the depth of the scandal until last March 21 when he received new information from since-fired White House counsel John W. Dean III.

—Accepted full responsibility for events which "occurred under my administration, and in the campaign for my re-election," but criticized Senate Watergate hearings he said are trying to implicate "the President personally in the illegal activities that took place."

—Promised to be more vigilant in insuring that abuses are not repeated while declaring: "Let us not allow what a few over-zealous people did in Watergate to tar the reputations of the millions of Americans who fought hard and clean for the candidates of their choice in 1972."

—Contended that the attitude which led to the scandal was born in "the extremes of violence and discord in the 1960s." He added that "no individual, no group and no political party have a corner on the market on morality in America."

—Said again he would not release tape recordings of White House conversations which could resolve contradictory Watergate statements. To do so, he said, would shatter the confidentiality of presidential conversations and "set a precedent that would cripple all future presidents."

Appointment of zoology chairman causing controversy in departments

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Charges of procedural travesty are possibly forming around the appointment of Dean Stuck, assistant provost, to the interim chairmanship of the Department of Zoology.

Stuck, formerly with the College of Education, was named earlier this week to fill the position left by George Garoian, chairman. Garoian is presently on vacation and will be taking a six-month sabbatical leave afterward.

The situation would be similar if a chairman of agriculture was selected to serve as an English chairman, Robert Harrell, English professor, said Wednesday.

The appointment was brought to light at the Faculty Senate meeting Tuesday, when Harrell asked President David R. Derge to confirm a rumor that the appointment had been made. Harrell pointed out that Stuck was previously with the College of Education, and had no ties with the Dept. of Zoology.

Derge referred Harrell's question to Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs and provost, who confirmed the appointment. Leasure then said he would comment no further on the matter, in the interest of the Dept. of Zoology.

Harrell, president of the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), charged that faculty members had not had input into the selection of Stuck. Leasure countered that faculty had been represented through proceedings by off-campus consultants for the matter.

Wednesday Harrell deplored the selection of the chairman without any active faculty consultation. The action is in contravention with AAUP guidelines, he said, although he did not know offhand if AAUP rules had been violated in selecting a man from the field of education to fill a zoology post.

One zoology faculty member described the appointment as "an absurdity of the first rank, and an outrage." The anonymous person said the episode is an illustration of typical practices by the current SIU administration.

Gus says Student Government doesn't want to get Stuck with the wrong dean of students.

AAUP says administration neglectful

By David C. Miller Jr.,
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Robert Harrell, president of the SIU chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), Wednesday charged the administration with ignoring the SIU faculty.

Harrell's statement followed a Faculty Senate resolution Tuesday to launch an AAUP investigation into the tenure case of Edwin Pearson, former physics professor. The senate felt that procedural irregularities in the handling of Pearson's two-year-long case may have caused injustice for Pearson.

SIU's present blackball from the AAUP came because of the way the Doug Allen case was handled. The senate report cited a premature and prejudicial handling of the denial of tenure for Allen, a former philosophy professor.

The Derge administration did not meet its obligation to Allen for further review or appropriate due process of his case, prior to the Board of Trustee decision to deny Allen's tenure, the report said. The same dereliction of responsibility was recognized by the Faculty Senate in the Pearson case, Harrell said.

Harrell said the senate vote to adopt the strongly-worded resolution was a thermometer of feelings of faculty members recognizing their total lack of power within the University.

The Allen and Pearson cases are identical, Harrell said, in that they both reflect neglect and ill-considered moves by administration officials. He said the Pearson case represented a simple continuation of the same policies which brought about SIU's censure by the AAUP this spring.

He said this lack of change in administrative attitudes suggested to him and the national AAUP office that the administration is not really concerned with removing the AAUP blackball.

Harrell said the onus of removing the blackball lies with the administration demonstrating specific changes in procedures and policies for grievance procedures. Administrative platitudes to the contrary, no substantial changes in the attitudes or policies have been made, he said.

AAUP sent a letter to Derge after the blackball, Harrell said, indicating a willingness to talk and negotiate matters relating to the censure. This invitation for administrative participation in the censure matter has been ignored, he said.

As of one week ago, Harrell said, no contact had been made with either the national office or local chapter of the AAUP. There has been no initiative from either Derge or the Board of Trustees, to even begin trying to settle the censure, he said.

Consequently, with the posture of the administration remaining the same as it was for the Allen case, Harrell said there was no course available to faculty members other than to demand another AAUP investigation of the SIU administration.

Bicyclists asked to join St. Louis moonlight ride

Carbondale bicycle freaks can join an expected 4,000 bicyclists from all over the United States in a Moonlight Ramble through St. Louis Aug. 26.

Billed as the nation's biggest bike ride, the ramble starts at 2 a.m., in front of the Kiener Memorial Fountain Plaza, 6th and Market-St. The invitational ride lasts about four hours and covers about 17 miles through the St. Louis area.

The Ozark Area Council of the American Youth Hostels is sponsoring the ride through the sleeping city. Previous rides have been reported as peaceful and socially enjoyable, with people of different ages and backgrounds riding virtually every make and model bicycle built in the last 50 years.

Participants must show up for registration no later than 1 a.m. There is a 50 cent charge for registration and insurance for the ride. A limited supply of "Moonlight Ramble" patches will be sold to early arrivals.

Arrangements for police escort, exclusive use of streets by bikers and a sag wagon (for repairs and first aid) have been made.

New law profs to meet faculty

John K. Leasure, academic vice president and provost, has invited the faculty from the School of Law for a meet-the-faculty luncheon noon Friday, in the Wabash Room of the Student Center.

Law School faculty members will teach the school's first classes starting Sept. 5.

ILEC awards grant to area police units

A $122,500 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission (ILEC) has been awarded to the Carbondale and Murphysboro police departments and the Jackson County Sheriff's Department.

The grant, to be used to expand Carbondale's Special Crime Prevention and Deterrence Program.

The program, in its second year, has helped to reduce crime in Carbondale drastically. Tom McNamara, administrative assistant to the chief of police, said at a press conference Wednesday.

McNamara said the new grant will allow the program to develop so that crime can be reduced considerably on the county level as well as in the city.

The grant is not effective until Sept. 26. However, the ILEC said in its announcement that cash advances are available if it considers early funding necessary.

McNamara said some of the grant money will be used to expand and improve special patrols designed to combat burglaries.

"We are quite fortunate to get this grant," McNamara said. "I am very hopeful that this effort will help the City of Carbondale."

Academic Intelligence

If ever the dam of academic intelligence broke, allowing the flood of blunder, it was the creation of a short-term quarter or the mini-courses.

What this condensed form of class if you haven't guessed yet, is allow a student to take a 13-week (one quarter) course in eight weeks.

How can anything so, on the surface, ingenious meet anything but approval from a concerned triangle?

For the student who wants to complete four years of college work quickly, he can, through the mini-quarter system, attain a bachelor's degree, if not taking a summer break, in a little more than half the time.

The teacher who wishes to teach the entire year can, if he or she teaches either eight or 11 weeks, pick up a little extra cash under the mini system.

The University, of course, has shown by summer 1973 that it will not lessen tuition rates for the mini-quarters.

Although the student's total college tuition is insignificantly higher under the mini-quarter road, the University can run through a greater number of students in three years than the traditional four; therefore, the University takes in more money incorporating this mass transit system.

To test this theory, all one needs is a piece of paper or a table cloth, a pen, pencil or crayon and the knowledge that 2 and 2 are 4.

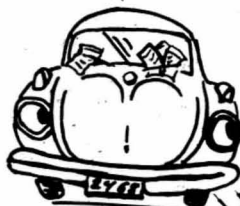

One of the greatest problems "good" students have with the 13-week quarter is lack of time to probe into the course. If one was honest with himself and sat down after each quarter to evaluate what was learned, the finding may be surprising. If 13 weeks is not enough to probe, what about the eight-week way?

The University and its many departments, of course, came up with a well thought out solution to increase the amount learned in eight weeks. "Each teacher will cover the exact material in eight weeks as 13 weeks, including the same number of tests, papers projects and a final." Nifty?

Unless an individual experiences the load and the short time to carry it, no words can explain the frustration a student faces. What can be recorded is what two teachers one in Cinema and Photography (C&P) and the other a journalism instructor (both asked to be unidentified), were forced to do because their students could not produce on the assembly line.

The journalism instructor was forced to cut four stories from the required ten and the C&P instructor cut six photo assignments from the originally required 26. These may only be two instructors, they may be the only two, but they are two. As a side thought, the students are still complaining that, even with this reduction, the required amount of work is too great. But students always feel a little work is too much.

If the administration's decision to increase the amount learned in eight weeks and the load students must carry, even with a slight reduction, were amplified to one year, two three and four, the amount learned and difficulty a student faces fulfilling

"NO, NO, NO, NOT A MATING DANCE, HIS FEET HURT!"

T. M. REE

13 weeks of requirements in eight is self-evident.

The amount of hours-per-quarter could be reduced, but this brings about other problems. First, the student will have to attend more quarters, increasing his or her total tuition; secondly, it may not take four years to graduate, but count on at least an even three and, finally, the degree of student will be lowered. With a little time, more problems can be added.

To the teacher who wants the extra money, all one can say is, "Your salary is fixed by the state. It will not increase unless the time increases." What will pile up is the amount of grading and a shorter time to create a report with each student—a complaint many instructors face because of large classes and not enough time to devote to the individual student.

For the teacher who enjoys his or her summer vacation, this question cannot be discussed unless a specific program is available for examination. Instead of three quarters being the normal academic year, it could be four or even five. If four weeks, the teacher will receive six weeks less salary. If five, the teacher will take home one-week extra pay but lose one-week vacation. The teacher will have to evaluate what he values most—money or leisure. One week less vacation may not be all that bad.

If the University believes it can gain more revenue—only feasible if credit-hour per quarter requirements are lowered—it is possible unless too many are in protest.

The problem at its root is, if the University should compact 13 weeks of work in eight and not alter the 12-hour, full-time, student (which in itself is difficult to complete college in the required four years) requirements, it will find a lot of problems filling the seats in each classroom.

Although only speculation at present, and can be proven when enrollment figures are calculated next year, the cease-fire in Viet Nam, the trend toward vocational training and student apathy tend to show that college enrollment throughout the country will decline.

Like many things in our society, if a University attempted the mini-quarter system and a positive response resulted, the new system could spread like wildfire.

Yet, looking at all this, the frightening point is, with all the students graduating from college, what will business, seeking college graduates, think about hiring more non-prepared professionals than the educational system now feeds society?

Letter

Trailer court battle continues

To the Daily Egyptian:

"Those who do not learn from the past are condemned to relive it." Historical parallels are interesting exercises, but sometimes have a real world impact that elevates them above the level of mere games. Remember the 1968 Columbia University Student Strike that shut down that University? Remember what caused it? The University wanted to evict some poor people to use the land they lived on to build a gymnasium for the University Community. If one believes the folks who say that the Midwest is 5 years behind either coast in what happens, then we ought probably look around and see what's happening here in good old Southern Illinois. Southern Illinois University has bought (for $5,000 per acre) land that was acquired by Urban Renewal, with the folks who lived on it being relocated. What is to be built there? A Gymnasium! But the evictions haven't ceased yet. University Trailer Court is the next strategic hamlet to fall to the Rome plows. You see, first we spent 1.8 million to renovate the stadium which took the Womens P.E. playfields which must be replaced next to the $10 million Co-Rec building which has to be built on the dormitory overnight parking lots which have to be moved to University Trailer Court because, Southern Illinois University says, nobody wants to live in the dormitories unless they can park their car under their window. The catalog of tragedy-comedy continues. Columbia was to let the community folks use the gym's back door several hours per week. Southern Illinois University will require a current fee statement, even though the students of the past decade bought the place, and the community be handed.

The students at Columbia fought in the style of that time and place. We who live in University Trailer Court have learned from the past and won't try to imitate the style of the late 60's. We are in the "system". The Illinois Board of Higher Education, The Illinois State Legislature, the Governor of the State of Illinois and the people of the State of Illinois all have an interest in what happens at Southern Illinois University. We who live in University Trailer Court will appeal to any audience the impending eviction from our homes. We will be vindicated by (Governor Walker's phrase) a "full and fair investigation of the issue." In short, We Have Not Yet Begun To Fight!!

Leaky roof puts journalism types in "imminent danger"

By Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The leaky roof over the journalism wing of the Communications Building creates an "imminent danger" to the building's inhabitants, Oliver K. Halderson, co-ordinator of safety, said Monday.

After inspecting water damaged ceilings in various Daily Egyptian departments and touring two similarly damaged classrooms, Halderson reported his findings to Rino Bianchi, director of facilities planning.

Bianchi said he agrees with Halderson that the present soggy condition in the journalism wing is "very dangerous."

The biggest danger resulting from rain entering the building, Halderson said, is that water puddles near electric outlets and equipment.

The Daily Egyptian composing rooms and darkrooms are equipped with electric machines, some of which are located directly under leaky sections of ceiling.

Water and electricity, when mixed, can have serious shocking—if not fatal—results, Halderson said. Certain sections of the ceiling are leaking around and through light fixtures and this could cause a wiring short he added.

Also, Halderson said, a person handling electric equipment while standing in a pool of water might encounter serious injury.

The danger of slipping in a pool of water, although secondary, also must be considered, Halderson said. The safety co-ordinator discounted the seriousness of being struck by a falling piece of ceiling tile. The tile is lightweight and while "it might raise a knot on your head," he said, it probably could not cause a serious injury.

Ideally, Halderson said, the safety hazards in the journalism wing should be corrected or the Daily Egyptian and other damaged areas should be shut down.

A crew will be sent out to patch up the roof, Bianchi said, although "We've already done it a dozen times." After the patch job, Bianchi said, one can only hope temperature variations won't "tear apart" the roof again.

Maintenance personnel from the physical plant have instructions to contain the occasional floods as best as possible, Bianchi said. "We'll keep on it," he promised.

Continually mopping up the rain-water is not an adequate solution, Halderson said. Maintenance men can't be everywhere all the time, he noted. Patching the roof will not correct the condition either, Halderson said, as the basic problem is the inadequate design of the Communications Building roof.

The University's lack of funds to modify the roof can be overcome, Halderson said, if SIU could secure an emergency grant of money from the state. Bianchi has estimated the cost of repairing the roof at $25,000.

An emergency appropriation must come from the General Assembly, Bianchi said. "We can try in fall," he added, noting that the legislature will not reconvene until then.

Halderson's position as safety co-ordinator requires him to advise the University on its degree of compliance with federal safety standards, specifically under the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA).

The OSHA inspectors are tough on institutions not meeting standards. Halderson pointed to an article from a recent issue of the National Safety

Council newsletter describing an OSHA inspection of an unnamed "major university."

The article reports the inspection turned up a "major violation related to a water leak on the floor of the student union" close to electrical equipment.

In this case, the article continues, the leak was recent and the university promised to remedy the situation immediately. Still, the OSHA considered closing the union entirely. After negotiation, the OSHA inspector settled for levying a $500 fine against the university.

The case reported in the newsletter, Halderson said, may serve as a parallel to the situation in the north wing of the Communications Building.

Last U.S. bombs fall on Cambodia

SETBO, Cambodia (AP)—They wheeled high in the blue sky like two silver birds of prey. Then one peeled off and dropped its nose in an ear-piercing dive.

It was 10:35 in the morning, Wednesday, Cambodian time. The U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bombers were making their last strikes in Cambodia and the United States was ending 10 years of bombing in Indochina.

This last target for the two planes was an appropriate one: Route 30, near the district town of Saang, about 30 miles south of Phnom Penh. Saang was the scene of the first Cambodian battle in April 1970, after Prince Norodom Sihanouk was overthrown as chief of state and his country plunged into war.

The scene Wednesday had not changed much since then. Fishermen were gliding across the Bassac River in their sampans. Naked children flopped in the muddy river waters. The jungle was thick and green.

And Saang was still deep in trouble.

Three weeks ago it had again fallen to the Communist-led insurgents, a repeat of the April 1970 action. That is why the U.S. fighter-bombers were roaring in the sky above until shortly before the mid-night Tuesday EDT bombing cutoff.

A Cambodian soldier standing idly at the riverside told newsmen, "The road from here to Saang is in Communist hands. We need this bombing."

The first silver jet was by now at the end of its dive. Two black darts dropped from below, 500-pound bombs. The jet raced back into the sky and the thump of the explosion reached watching reporters' ears.

A black billow of smoke curled above the distant trees. The other jet began carving its own deadly parabola.

And high above like a mother hen was a U.S. Air Force spotter plane, guiding the bombers.

The crump of the explosives and the rising smoke seemed not to perturb the fishermen. They just fished on.

They have had time to get used to war. Just the previous night Communist-led insurgents had sneaked up the highway and burned down a dozen homes. The buildings still smoldered.

Government troops were holding the road for 10 miles south from Phnom Penh. Beyond that was a no man's land to Saang.

What about the end of the bombing, newsmen asked one of the soldiers.

"We are not happy about it," he said. "My friends think the Communists will try to take Phnom Penh now, maybe today; maybe tomorrow. Someday."

By this time the two jets were finishing their runs. A thousand yards of jungle was billowing black smoke. The final cut off hour.

The last bomb fell. The silver jets barrel-rolled high in the sky. They joined their mother hen, the spotter plane.

All three linked up in a V formation, then lazily headed west toward Thailand and home base.

Cambodians think they can survive without U.S. air cover

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—The Cambodian command expressed confidence Wednesday it could repel attacks of Phnom Penh without U.S. air support.

There were no immediate attacks on the capital by Communist-led insurgents after the end of U.S. air operations because of a cutoff imposed on the Nixon administration by Congress.

In Washington, a statement prepared for and approved by President Nixon warned North Vietnam that he would "take appropriate action" if Hanoi mounts and offensive in Indochina.

Phnom Penh is surrounded by an estimated 30,000 Communist-led troops fighting to topple the U.S.-backed government of President Lon Nol.

"We have enlarged the zone of defense and are in good position to withstand the enemy's attacks," said the chief spokesman for the Cambodian command, Col. Am Rong.

Cambodian government soldiers were without American air support Wednesday for the first time since U.S. warplanes began an intense campaign of bombing Communist-led insurgents in Cambodia 6½ months ago.

In Washington, the Pentagon reported that the situation around Phnom Penh and throughout Cambodia was "very quiet" in the hours immediately following the bombing halt.

The last group of three B52s dropped their 48 tons of bombs just before dawn. Fighter-bombers attacked right up to the deadline set by the White House - 10:45 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

The Cambodian air force has about 50 propeller-driven T 28 aircraft, but the total bomb load of all of them barely equals that of one U.S. B52 bomber-about 16 tons.

Casebeer became acquainted with Islam while exploring the possibility of educational exchange programs with the new nation of Bangladesh. He had gone to India as a senior Fulbright lecturer on student services, with his work centered at Calicut University in Kerala.

Student charged with burglary, theft

Glenn R. Amato, senior majoring in journalism, was released on $2,000 bond Wednesday after he was charged with burglary and theft over $150, Jackson County authorities reported.

Amato, 21, of 104 Robinson Trailer Court in Carbondale, was arrested by Security Police about noon Tuesday Police said they found four electric typewriters belonging to SIU in his trailer.

When questioned at the Security Office, police said Amato, a Daily Egyptian staff writer, admitted taking four typewriters and one adding machine.

Amato was charged at a public hearing Wednesday with breaking into the University Personnel Office at 805 S. Elizabeth and taking three electric typewriters and one electric adding machine.

Police said they have recovered seven typewriters and an adding machine. They said an eighth typewriter is believed to be in Chicago.

One typewriter was taken from the Daily Egyptian Business Office sometime in February, police said.

Three typewriters were taken from the SIU Law School offices at 1003 S. Oakland during the weekend of July 13. One typewriter was taken from the Business Research Office at 908 S. Elizabeth about the same time, police said.

Three typewriters and one adding machine were taken from the University Personnel Office at 805 S. Elizabeth during the weekend of Aug. 10, police said.

Value of the nine machines was estimated at more than $3,000.

Governor signs bills to help handicapped in activities

CHICAGO (AP)—Handicapped persons will be benefitted by bills that Gov. Daniel Walker announced Wednesday he has signed.

Benefits affect activities ranging from voting to automobile driving. Unless otherwise stated, the bills are effective Oct. 1.

Voter identification cards good for five years are provided under one bill for permanently disabled voters. Until now, they needed a doctor's affidavit each time they wished to vote absentee ballot. Rep. John Merlo, D-Chicago, sponsored the law.

Special, easily recognized license plates are provided for autos of handicapped drivers under legislation sponsored by Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview.

He also sponsored legislation providing that new or reconstructed corner curbs in business, commercial or industrial areas must have wheelchair ramps at street crossings.

State grants to buy or build transportation facilities for handicapped persons are authorized under a bill, effective July 18, sponsored by Rep. Arthur Telser, R-Chicago.

Equal housing opportunities are guaranteed blind persons. They may not be charged extra rent for having a guide dog. Rep. E. J. "Zeke" Giorgi, D-Rockford, was the sponsor.

Municipalities and park districts may levy a tax to pay for the local share of intercommunity recreation programs for the handicapped. A referendum is required for the tax of up to two cents on a $100 property valuation. Sen. Harris Fawell, R-Naperville, was sponsor of the bills which are effective immediately.

The governor also signed a bill by Rep. William Mahar, R-Homewood, effective Oct. 1, to allow a $10,000 benefit to a family of a volunteer fireman killed in the line of duty.

Retarded child camp to stage Indian powwow

Some 60 mentally retarded children and their counselors will ring down the curtain on SIU's annual Little Grassy Lake summer camping program with their jointly-produced Indian PowWow at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

The public event, a yearly feature, will be staged at the swimming beach of Little Grassy Lake. Outdoor Laboratory Little Giant Camp.

Mrs. Eleanor Howe, Little Grassy Laboratory field representative, said campers and public guests and spectators will meet first at the camp's dining hall, then go to the beachside Pow Wow. One of the features will be a procession of torch-bearing canoeists from the eastern side of the lake to the PowWow Site.

Guests and participants will be served refreshments afterwards in the dining hall.

The 21st annual camp sessions for mentally retarded youngsters, and adults have been underway since June 24.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian that John Loneragan has been appointed by the SIU Board of Trustees as campus planner in the Office of Facilities Planning, effective Sept. 1.

Actually, the board retroactively approved Loneragan as campus planner for the period July 1 to Sept. 1.

After Sept. 1, Loneragan will serve as assistant professor of design on fiscal year basis.

Wheat export rein being considered

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Nixon administration is studying whether to clamp export controls on wheat and other grains, a move that would preserve domestic supplies and hold down many food prices.

A decision could go either way and might be made within a week, high administration sources said Wednesday.

"The way wheat prices are going, it's obvious that there is renewed interest" in export controls, said Edgar Fielder, the Treasury Department's assistant secretary for economic policy.

Responding to reports that the nation's wheat supply this year will be extremely tight, the futures price of the grain has topped $5 a bushel for the first time in history, presaging higher bread and cereal prices for consumers.

President Nixon's economic advisers are firmly opposed to export controls in principle. But, based on interviews with several officials, there is a growing feeling that export controls may be the only way out of the situation now.

What worries the administration are alarming statistics gathered in the past several weeks by the Commerce Department. They show the real possibility that nearly all the nation's wheat supply will be gone before the 1974 crop comes in because of heavy foreign orders and domestic demand. The figures show there will be a very small carryover of supplies to the next crop.

Fielder said the figures may not be totally reliable, although they are based on export commitments of U.S. companies.

Astronauts ask for more work to end boredom

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—The Skylab 2 astronauts, bored with free time in their orbiting laboratory, asked for more work. They got it Wednesday.

Commander Alan L. Bean told Mission Control that he and his crewmates had become so well acclimated to their space life that they were completing their work far ahead of schedule. "I'm all finished and I certainly don't feel like going to bed," Bean said Tuesday evening.

He said he, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma wouldn't mind missing some rest time because "you just can't sleep eight hours up here."

That supported an observation of the earlier Skylab crewmen who said they found they could manage well on five or six hours sleep in orbit.

250 miles at McAndrew

SIU's Road Runners seek 24 hour mark

By Mark Tupper
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An attempt to break the national 24 hour 7-man relay record will be made this weekend at McAndrew Stadium. Seven members of the SIU Road Runners Cross Country Club will begin circling the track Saturday at 9 a.m. and by the same time Sunday they hope to have accumulated more than the record 245 miles.

The runners will take turns running single miles, passing a baton on to the next man. If the record is to be broken, each man will have dashed over 35 miles come Sunday morning. Al Stanczak, Rick Bracy and Steve Spector, all of SIU's regular season cross country team, will be among those competing.

According to Stanczak, the chances of setting a new record are excellent.

"We have the best distance runners in the area involved with this," Stanczak said. "I think we can average close to 5:30 per mile, which would be all we'd need. Our goal is to total at least 250 miles."

No substitutions will be allowed, so if one of the runners drops out the other will just have to run a little further. Food and drink will be consumed at the runners option. Sleep will hopefully not occur. "Sleep is the toughest thing to fight," Stanczak said. He was a member of an unsuccessful team attempt at the record last year in Chicago where the need for sleep took its toll.

Ian Beattie, associate professor of elementary education, will serve as the club's faculty sponsor during the run.

The stadium will be open for those who wish to see the word "endurance" defined. And if all goes well, seven exhausted bodies will limp from McAndrew Stadium Sunday morning with a good day's work under their belts, and 250 miles worth of blisters on their record breaking feet.

Cubs crushed by Atlanta's 19-hit offensive assault

CHICAGO (AP)—Darrell Evans, hitting his 34th home run, and Ralph Garr each drove in three runs in an 19-hit Atlanta attack Wednesday as the Atlanta Braves beat Chicago 15-1 and sent the Cubs reeling to their 10th straight loss.

Evans, tying Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell for the major-league home run lead, belted a two-run shot off loser Rich Reuschel, 19-11, in the first inning, and Atlanta's Dave Johnson hit a two-run homer, his 32nd, off reliever Dave Laroche in the sixth.

Phil Niekro, 13-5, lost a shutout in the fourth on a single by Rico Carty and Ron Santo's triple.

Atlanta scored three runs in the second, third, sixth and seventh innings, with Garr singling across two in the third and driving in another with a single in the second.

Hank Aaron singled and hit a two-run double for Atlanta before leaving for a pinch-runner in the seventh.

Garr collected four singles in six trips, while Marty Perez contributed a double and two singles to the Brave rout of five Cub pitchers.

It was Chicago's 13th defeat in 14 games and the club's 32nd loss in 42 games.

After his two-hit yield in the fourth for the only Chicago run, Niekro, who pitched a no-hitter against San Diego Aug. 5, gave up two harmless singles—by Don Kessinger in the fifth and pinch-hitter Pat Bourque in the eighth—and a wasted triple in the ninth by Rick Monday.

The only hitless Atlanta inning was the ninth when the No. 5 Cub hurler, Jack Aker, retired the Braves in order.

Kuhn prefers no involvement in interleague issue

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Wednesday he would prefer that American and National League officials resolve the question of interleague play among themselves, rather than inject his influence to settle the question.

The annual major league summer meetings opened Wednesday and bogged down in joint league discussion of player relations matters and a proposed central scouting system.

However, speculation persisted that a vote on interleague play, the issue of highest interest here, may come at a formal joint session scheduled Thursday.

Kuhn, reporting on developments as owners and other top officials broke for lunch, indicated he would not want to have to cast a tie-breaking vote in case one were needed to resolve the interleague play question.

Vacancy

Although summer intramurals have ended for the quarter, the SIU Arena and Pulliam Gym facilities will remain open for those wishing to use them.

Battle for medals begins in Russia

By Will Grimsley

MOSCOW (AP)—America's young, unbeaten basketball team makes its debut and the U.S.-Soviet longtime track and field rivalry flares anew Thursday in the first full-scale competition of the World University Games.

Some 4,200 athletes from 76 nations—scholars and post-graduates of the last year with a 28-year age limit—compete in eight sports over the next 10 days.

As in the Olympics, the battle for medals is expected to be largely a tug of war between the United States and Russia. The Russians outscored the Americans, 26 gold medals to 22, three years ago in Turin, Italy.

Lenin Stadium, a huge concrete arena seating 120,000, serves as the center of a sprawling sports complex in the heart of Moscow.

The U.S. basketball team, hoping ultimately to redeem America's bitter defeat at Russia's hands in the Munich Olympics last year, launches its title bid against Great Britain in one of eight sub-group round robin eliminations.

The American team, boasting a 13-0 record in a recent tour, are in a group with Britain, Sweden and Senegal, playing Sweden Friday. The favored Soviet Union is in another group and tough Cuba is still a third.

The top two teams from each section will advance to a 16-team championship bracket.

Meanwhile, gold medals Thursday will be decided in three track events—the men's 10,000-meter run, the men's shot putt and women's javelin and in men's foil in fencing. The U.S. women's basketball team plays the Soviet Union Thursday in the first round of a similar four-group round robin.

Other events on the day's program include gymnastics, volleyball, Greece-Roman wrestling and tennis.

A Russian of Lithuanian extraction, Pyatras Shimelis, is favored in the men's 10,000-meters. Charles Maguire of Penn State and Richard Bowerman of Indiana University, who clock 27:57 for six miles, are the chief U.S. threats.

The U.S. men's basketball team is unlikely to get a shot at the Soviet's tough, experienced combine until late in the competition—perhaps the finals—next week.

The squad, averaging 19 years of age, won two exhibition games in the states over professional all-star squads before invading Europe. The team is lead by Dave Tompson of North Carolina State.

White Sox pick up Jim Kaat on waivers from Minnesota

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP)—Veteran pitcher Jim Kaat, the winningest active left-hander in baseball, was sold to the Chicago White Sox Wednesday in a straight cash deal, the club announced through Calvin Griffith.

Griffith, team president, made the deal while attending the major league summer meetings in Milwaukee.

Kaat, 34, had an 11-12 record this season for a career log of 190-159.

Kaat, who has the prerogative of refusing to report to the White Sox because of his veteran status, has 72 hours to join the Chicago team.

However, Kaat long has admired White Sox pitching Coach Johnny Sain, who was with the Twins when the 6-foot-4, 225-pound lefty won 25 games and lost 13 in his best season in 1966. That was the only year he reached 20 or more victories. He won 18 games in 1962 and again in 1965.

Chicago was one of three teams that had claimed Kaat on waivers Tuesday. Griffith had said he would not let Kaat go for the $25,000 waiver price without getting players in return.

Kaat had allowed 40 hits and 27 earned runs in his last six starts.

The sale leaves Harmon Killebrew as the last member of the original Twins team in 1961 when Griffith moved his organization from Washington.

Kaat, a native of Zeeland, Mich. who is considered one of the best fielding pitchers in the major leagues, broke in with the old Washington Senators in 1959. He pitched in the 1966 All-Star game and had a 1-2 record when the Twins lost to the Los Angeles Dodgers in seven games in the 1965 World Series.

Kaat posted a 10-2 record in 1972, getting off to the best start of his career before he suffered a broken bone in his left hand against Chicago in July as was out for the rest of the season.
