Term appointee cuts indicate female majority

By Sue Roll
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The official figures of those tenured faculty affected by the Dec. 15 cut in term appointees have not yet been released. But rumblings around the campus indicate that termination notices were received by a lot of unhappy faculty—a majority of them women.

John Anderson, assistant to the president for public relations and services, said he did not want to release any information about the personnel reductions until complete data regarding all academic, staff and civil service cuts was in.

"We don't want to give the impression that any one area, either academic or any other, is being affected any more by this reduction than any other area," said Anderson.

Initially, information about term appointee cuts was held up because of a delay in compiling data from the College of Education and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Both these areas have been largely affected by the latest cut, Anderson said.

Data from these two colleges concerning academic personnel has been received already. But to release it, he said, would present a distorted view of the total picture without information about the other areas affected by personnel cuts.

Anderson said he expects to receive information from one group sometime today and information from another group by Wednesday.

Elleabeth Nall, coordinator of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT), said the CFUT had tried to get the numbers and names of those affected by the recent terminations, but so far had not been successful.

"I feel that all women who have protested have been effectively dispersed of," said Ms. Nall. "But, of course, I have no concrete evidence of this yet."

Jerry Lacey, director of the Affirmative Action Program, said his office is also preparing a report of how many men as compared to women, and how many blacks and other minorities as compared to the whites were affected by the cuts. He said that this report also has been held up because of a delay in information from the colleges of education and liberal arts.

He said Affirmative Action had not received any complaints about these latest notices yet. He pointed out that many women on campus don't think Affirmative Action can do anything for them. Lacey said that the new grievance procedures are available through the Affirmative Action Review Panel and the Affirmative Action Task Force.

The Faculty Council also has formed grievances procedures to handle complaints about the termination notices.

Concerning the speculation that a disproportionate amount of women may have been affected by the cuts, Anderson said that there were bound to be more women affected because in the past fewer women have received advanced degrees. Many have not taught as long as some men, he added, so they have not achieved tenure.

"It's a very complex situation and all these factors have to be considered before it can be evaluated," Anderson said.

SIU property theft rate increases

By Barry Cleveland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

University property is being stolen at a greater rate than ever before, but the University will not be able to replace as much of the equipment as in the past. A total of 728 items, worth $130,175, was reported missing during the prior fiscal year of 1970-71, Gladden said.

In a memorandum to academic heads, University President Robert G. Layer said he will not be able to replace all lost items in the future. The need to replace lost items in one area prevents needed expansion or normal replacement of worn equipment in other areas, Layer said.

Layet suggested that academic heads tighten internal security in their areas. He mentioned moving equipment to areas out of public view and locking some doors during operating hours as possible means of cutting down on loss. Gladden said audio-visual equipment and typewriters appeared to be the most-stolen after items by thieves.

"We're losing typewriters at a rate of about one a week," he said. In addition, tape recorders, slide projectors, cameras and office machinery rank among the more-desired equipment, he said.

Although all areas of the University are victimized by theft, Learning Resources Services and University housing are consistently the most hard-hit, Gladden said.

Learning Resources equipment is spread throughout the campus, making security difficult to maintain, he said. Chairs, telers and accountability of all types are regularly disappearing from

Muskie sets SIU speech for Tuesday

Sen. Edmund Muskie (D-Maine), a flourishing candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, will make a campus stop at SIU Tuesday.

Carbondale will be one of three Muskie campaign stops in Illinois on Tuesday, according to Muskie's Chicago campaign office. Besides Carbondale, the one-time vice presidential candidate will also visit East St. Louis, which the third stop has not yet been determined.

Scheduling details have not yet been finalized, according to John Jackson, government instructor and local spokesperson for Muskie's campaign.

He said, however, that a tentative schedule calls for Muskie to land at the Southern Illinois Airport and to make an appearance on campus around 3 p.m. Muskie's appearance may include a 10 to 15 minute speech, followed by a 30-minute question-and-answer period and a press conference, Jackson said.

If the undetermined third stop works out to be a night engagement, Muskie will be in Carbondale early Tuesday morning, according to his Chicago office.

Superman finds roots as local town's hero

By Pat Nussman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"...And who, disguised as Clark Kent, mild-mannered reporter for the Metropolis Daily Planet, fights a never ending battle for truth, justice...and the American way."

All avid Superman fans, of course, will recognize this soul-stirring description of the Man of Steel.

The mild-mannered reporter who was also reputed to be "faster than a speeding bullet" is to be adopted Friday as the patron saint of Metropolis, a town an hour's drive east of Carbondale, with ceremonies and give-aways of kryptonite and comic books.

Outsiders are not taking it seriously, despite the network coverage of the event, but the originators of the scheme do, according to Bob Westerfield, owner of a Metropolis cleaning firm.

"Getting ready for tomorrow," Westerfield said. "It's a full-color portrait of Superman, which Westerfield says can be seen all over town."

"When you come into town, just hit you like a ton of bricks," he boasted.

The event will start at 2:30 p.m. with a proclamation by the mayor declaring Superman a distinguished son of Metropolis, and statements from state dignitaries about how honored the state is to be the home of the famous superhero.

Carmin Infantino of New York, publisher of National Periodicals, Inc., owner of the Superman comics, will also be much in evidence—he will present the town with a copy of Superman's favorite drink, a box of Superman brand cigarettes, and a full-sized Superman suit worn by actor George Reeves, to the local man chosen to be the town's permanent Superman.

"I think it's fantastic that Superman finds his roots here," Infantino said. "We were a little surprised by the way this thing has exploded."

"After all," he said, "it's not every day that a town chooses to adopt one of the great superheroes."

She concluded her remarks by stating that the University should support black students and faculty, but she also acknowledged the challenges faced by students who are not black.

The audience was engaged throughout the talk, and many students took notes to share with friends and colleagues. Overall, the talk was well-received, and many students expressed their appreciation for Miss Meade's insights and perspectives.

The next day, the Black Student Union thanked Miss Meade for her talk and announced that they would be organizing a follow-up event to discuss the issues raised during the talk. They also encouraged other students to continue the conversation and to take action to create a more inclusive campus environment.

Tavern hours’ extension unwise

The Jackson County Board of Supervisors have started an unwise precedent by extending the hours of rural liquor dealers in Jackson County.

The difficulty, however, does not arise from the move—which has merit—but from the board’s reasoning. The board took the action because the extension plan would be “easier to enforce.”

W.L. Brandon, chairman of the board, said Sheriff John Hoffman has been aroused at unusual hours of the night to check on taverns. “Hoffman’s gotten out there and found they were closed tight,” Brandon said on WCIL radio.

Although the convenience of the sheriff might be of some concern to the board, enforcement of the law is considerably more important to the residents of Jackson County.

The hours change came when 17 of 19 Class A liquor dealers proposed an extension from 2 to 4 a.m.

The dealers cited economic reasons for the extension, while their attorney admitted that all of the taverns would not remain open until the proposed 4 a.m. time, and said some do not stay open until the current 2 a.m. limit.

State law requires that taverns be thoroughly cleaned. The new set up may provide an excuse for owners who don’t want to bother cleaning their operation. The extension will present a problem, according to health department chief Dr. John Amadio.

If the owners don’t think they’ll remain open the full time, and a period is needed to clean each place, why lift the time limit?

One reason was given by Carbondale Asst. Supervisor John Wright. He said a policy of no closing would prevent forcing late drinkers onto highways at the same time under a set closing hour.

A 4 a.m. closing would result in late drinkers creating a driving hazard for early morning workers, according to Robert Masters, Grand Tower supervisor.

Perhaps students have a right to complain about courses that in no way direct their lives toward increasing their knowledge in any particular subject. Maybe this is due to a lack of good courses and some poor and hasty excuses.

What is perhaps more important is that he is able to communicate his own sense of excitement and adventure to his students. From the man I received a feeling that is all too rare in the learning experience at this University.

However, learning involves more than feeling, it also involves a certain amount of knowledge received. Before I took GSC 306 I felt that I did not have any understanding of music at all. I am aware of how much I don’t know because I know more than when I started. The course gave me the basis I needed to move forward to increase my knowledge of music. Therefore my interest has been stimulated so that my learning about music will not cease.

Letters to the editor

SIU needs more Dr. Floyds

To the Daily Egyptian:

If one sits in the University Center for any length of time, one will be certain to hear a lot of criticism of General Studies courses at this University. Unfortunately one rarely hears any good comments about this subject. Although I do not want to be out of the mainstream of thought, although I also don’t want to be out of fashion, I would like to give some credit where credit is due. Perhaps a good portion of General Studies deserves the criticism it receives, but I would like to say that Dr. Samuel Floyd’s course, Foundations of Music (GSC 306), is one of the finest courses I have ever had in this University.

Dr. Floyd is a very fine teacher. He goes beyond a mere knowledge of his subject: he extends upward and outward until he reaches a love and enthusiasm for music. What is perhaps more important is that he is able to communicate his own sense of excitement and adventure to his students. From the man I received a feeling that is all too rare in the learning experience at this University.

To the Daily Egyptian:

At a meeting of the Department of Psychology on Tuesday, Jan. 18, 1972, the following resolution was made and approved unanimously by a closed ballot of the department faculty. It was further agreed unanimously that this resolution should be published as a letter to the Daily Egyptian.

The faculty of the Department of Psychology at Carbondale wishes to express to the SIU Board of Trustees its grave concern and disapproval with the lack of any clear statement of the basis for the board’s decision to deny tenure to Dr. Douglas Allen, particularly in view of its disagreement with the recommendation of the president of the University. We believe, on the basis of the statements made at the board’s meeting of Dec. 11, 1971, that this decision seriously violates the principles of academic freedom to which the University subscribes. We wholeheartedly endorse that resolution of the Executive Committee of the Carbondale chapter of the American Association of University Professors which strongly urges the board to reconsider its decision.

Promoting global understanding

By Elias K. Zain
Special to The Daily Egyptian

Do you believe in world understanding? "Yes, of course," you might answer.
But, have you done anything to build and promote it? "Well, perhaps not much as I should!"
In case you haven't done anything, as you should, in building and promoting better global understanding, you are not alone, everyone in this respect. Research and experience have clearly shown that concerning global understanding, like the weather, everybody talks about it, but very few really do something about it. Students in general are not receptive to international programs and activities. Taking this and other factors into consideration, the International Services Division at SIU is conducting a new experiment in building and promoting international understanding. Next week is designed as an all-University International Week, providing cultural, educational and social activities and programs aimed at developing global understanding in depth. It is different from any past activities. Also, during the week, contemporary international issues and problems will be examined and discussed by scholars who have national and international reputation.

The ultimate end of all this is "to create a concern and an interest among students as well as broaden their perspective that what they are studying in their fields has an international relevance."

As the world enters another new year in the seventies, some of the contemporary issues and problems so doubt raise in many thoughtful persons questions of this nature: Where are we? Why are we not understanding one another? What people in other countries really need? How other peoples live and how they feel and think? Where are we going as a human race today, etc.

Answers to these questions and similar would be found in the speeches, talks, meetings seminars, discussions and other activities of International Week.

Come and listen to Fulbright scholars speak on contemporary issues and their experiences in international affairs. Also, come and meet natives of other countries (SIU international students), your classmates or neighbors, who will perform different dances, sing and play musical instruments. Then stop by and have a look at the exhibits of native objects and articles, representing many different countries of the world.

Know what's expected

To the Daily Egyptian:

It seems appropriate for me to remind students that in 10 weeks they will be receiving a grade for their academic endeavor.

Their success in this endeavor is very much depended upon a clear understanding of all aspects of instructors' expectations. Make certain that the following are clearly understood:

1. The instructional objectives of all courses.

Film worth seeing

To the Daily Egyptian:

At his trial, Albert Speer said that Hitler's dictatorship was one which "made complete use of all technological means of domination."

One of the technological devices Hitler used was the cinema. In Leni Riefenstahl's Triumph of the Will, ostensibly a documentary film of the 1934 Nazi Party rally in Nuremberg, Miss Riefenstahl's craftsmanship and creativity combined to make a picture which is at once hypnotic and frightening. It is a film which helped Hitler deprive 80 million people of independent thought and it helped to bring true the nightmare that nations could be dominated by technological means.

From the point of view of the film's artistry as well as the moral-political implications involved in its presentation, Triumph of the Will should probably be seen by most college students.

Community education program needs locale

By University News Service

WANTED: A locale interested in getting a community education program off the ground. Contact the School Services Bureau of the College of Education or the executive director of the Educational Council of 100, Inc.

Donald Cruce, assistant professor of educational administration and foundations attached to the School Services Bureau, told Council board members that steps are being taken to start a program designed to take community education into municipalities and counties throughout Southern Illinois. A pilot center at some location not yet determined would be an integral part of the project.

Cruce spoke at the January board meeting at Carbondale, at which Ogve Ellis of Mt. Vernon, Leslie Buechsen of Venevity in Washington County, and Merle Holsten of St. Francisville were to Council membership.

Cruce said the long range goal of SIU and the College of Education is to train educators and directors for such a program, which could provide and upgrade services to a community and could benefit persons from the preschool child to the senior citizen.

Community education programs would be flexible, he said, and could consist of such things as formal education classes, recreation and youth programs, arts and crafts development, community health projects and vocational training. Questionnaires will be sent out to local educators to determine just what resources communities already have and to learn the special interests in different areas. Results will be analyzed this summer.

"We would like to start a community education center to work with Southern Illinois University in a pilot program, and are right now looking for such a place," Cruce said. "We at SIU would pool our resources with those of the community or school district, if planning develops as we hope."
Human nature is a sometime thing. Mothers, like everybody else, sometimes don't treat their children as reasonably as they know they should. Or, to put it another way, mothers, as everybody else, know better than they act. This aphorism has been substantiated in a research study conducted by an SIU child-development specialist with a group of 40 mothers from low-income brackets and their children.

Michael Zunich, chairman of the Department of Child and Family in the School of Home Economics, set up a controlled experiment with the mother-child pairs. In 374 recorded situations, covering 17 specific maternal behavior categories, only eight times did the 40 mothers' responses to the children's behavior show a significant relationship to her previously-expressed attitude. Zunich said an earlier study he made with medium-income mothers and children showed substantially the same pattern. An analysis of his study with low-income mothers was published in a recent issue of the journal, Psychological Reports.

John J. Paterson, associate professor of agricultural industries, left Saturday for a two-year assignment in Brazil. He will join SIU's agricultural development team at the University of Santa Maria in southern Brazil. He will serve as a farm mechanization specialist. The project at the University of Santa Maria is United Nations funded and is being carried on through the SIU School of Agriculture under a contract with the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization. This is the first time the agency has turned to university help in carrying on its work to improve agriculture in underdeveloped regions. The work at the University of Santa Maria is a four-year program to help the institution improve its teaching, research and rural extension service work for agriculture. The arrival of Paterson will bring the SIU team at Santa Maria to 11 specialists in various phases of agriculture. As the program approaches two years of operation, SIU's first arrivals in Brazil will complete their assignments and start returning to the Carbondale campus to be replaced by other agriculture staff members later in 1972.

Five SIU students including Student Body President George Camille and Student Body Vice-President Jim Peters, are seeking positions as delegates to the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach in July.

All have filed petitions in Springfield and their names will appear on the ballot in the March 31 primary election.

Camille, a senior majoring in government, is running for the seat as a representative of the 26th congressional district which includes Carbondale. He will run committed to George McGovern.

Camille, who has been actively campaigning for McGovern, said his decision to run will not interfere with his duties as student body president.

“This is not the type of position that requires a full-time campaign,” he said, “I plan to run an active campaign, but only when the situation presents itself.”

Peters, a junior majoring in government, will seek the position as a representative of the 20th district which includes his hometown of Quincy.

He will run uncommitted. Other students seeking positions as delegates include student senators Jeanie Cochran and Mitch Hadler.

Dave Mahan, a Daily Egyptian staff writer from Quincy, will run committed to McGovern. He seeks the position as a representative of the 20th district.
Student hurt Wednesday in automobile-bike wreck

Rodney Patterson, 23, of 311 W. College, was slightly injured Wednesday afternoon when his bicycle collided with a car just north of Pulliam Hall.

According to police, Patterson collided with a car driven by Robbie McArthur, 21, of 200 E. College, when his bicycle emerged onto Campus Drive from a sidewalk into the path of the McArthur vehicle.

Patterson was taken to the Health Service for x-rays and released. McArthur was not injured. Both are SIU students.

Police issued no tickets.

Pneumonia, flu cause death of SIU student

James Demmert, the SIU student found dead Wednesday morning, apparently was a victim of influenza and pneumonia.

County Coroner Harry Flynn said Thursday that results of an autopsy revealed that death was caused to complications involving influenza and pneumonia.

Demmert was found dead shortly after midnight Wednesday morning in his room at 510 S. Hays in Carbondale.

Funeral services will be Friday in Mt. Prospect, with burial in Des Plaines.

Lib group sponsors film, dance

The Women's Liberation Front will be showing some "women's films" Friday at 7 p.m. and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Student Center Ballroom A.

A donation of 75 cents will be collected from anyone who can afford it, a representative from the organization said.

Women's liberation literature and posters will be offered and a discussion session will follow the film showings.

The film festival is open to everyone.

Also, Women's Liberation will be having a free dance Saturday at 8 p.m. in Student Center Ballrooms A and B.

Earth Shine, a rock group, will play in the dance.

Colorado has highest peaks

DENVER (AP) — The Continental Divide through Colorado is marked by 53 Rocky Mountain peaks 14,000 feet high or higher, ranging from 14,001-foot Sunshine Peak in the Uncompahgre National Forest in the southwestern part of the state to 14,438-foot Mt. Elbert.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon summoned a Democratic Congress Thursday to join him in election-year partnership intended to withstand the pressures of a White House campaign and ensure that vital programs do not "become hostage to the political interest of any party or any person."

Nixon urged the House and Senate to act on more than 90 administration proposals already before the 91st Congress, to approve a bigger defense budget this year, and to enact a "new technology program" designed to spur research and create jobs.

In a State of the Union message keynoting his fourth year in the White House and, in a sense, his own campaign for re-election, Nixon said 1972 "holds precious time" that must not be wasted despite the pressure of politics.

"Let us have our debates," the Republican President said. "Let us have our honest differences. But let us join in keeping the national interest first."

Nixon's message concentrated on the unfinished agenda before Congress, but included the promise of a major new program later in the year, a measure designed to ease the burden of local property taxes in the public schools.

"These recommendations will be revolutionary," Nixon said. "But they will be rooted in one fundamental principle with which there can be no compromise: local school boards must have control over local schools."

Speculation in that area has centered on a value-added tax, a form of national sales tax imposed at each stage of production and delivery, as the most likely proposal for a new tax source to lighten the load on property owners.

The President guaranteed a major fight in the Senate with his proposal for increased defense spending. He said it will be required by rising research and development costs, pay increases and a need to proceed with new weapons systems.

He did not say how big the increase will be, but did detail $3.7 billion in additional defense spending to be included in his budget next Monday.

Ticket sales start Tuesday

Tickets for the Roberta Flack and the Friends of Distinction concert will go on sale at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 25, at the Central Office in the Student Center.

Faculty members to testify at revitalization hearings

By David L. Mahan
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Two SIU faculty members are among a score of witnesses slated to testify Monday and Tuesday before rural revitalization hearings to be conducted by the U.S. Senate Government Operations Committee.

Ernest Simon, dean emeritus of Technical and Adult Education, and Walter Wills, professor in the Department of Agricultural Industries, are slated to testify at Tuesday's hearings. The hearings will be co-chaired by Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) and Sen. John McDill (D-Ark.).

During the two days of hearings, the senators will hear six panels of witnesses testifying on various aspects of rural revitalization. The panels will discuss state government programs, industrial development, regional development, local government officials, human resources and natural resources and agriculture. Ernst is slated to be on the human resources panel and Wills will testify on natural resources and agriculture.

All of the witnesses will be from among the 54 Southern Illinois Counties on which the hearings will focus. Other witnesses from Carbondale include Robert Henderson, consultant with H.H. Henderson and Associates; A.F. Ramsey, economic development representative for the U.S. Department of Commerce and a former Carbondale city councilman; and Frank Morena, executive director of the Greater Illinois Regional Planning and Development Commission.

The subject of the two days of hearings will be Senate Bill 16, a rural revitalization plan sponsored by McClellan, co-sponsored by Percy and 40 other senators. Wills said Thursday that he generally favors the bill, but added that it is weak in that it has no provision for funding. He said, however, that money bills often follow approval of the bills that need funding.

Wills said that his primary concern is that a variety of bills have already been passed, but no one has been willing to put up the leadership necessary for rural development to become a reality. He cited a 65 percent under-employment figure for America's rural population as evidence that something must be done. Wills said he expects favorable action from the Senate committee on the problem.

Fanelli hopes group will organize in area

Ralph Fanelli of Cairo is trying to organize Carbondale groups to form a branch of the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice, a national multi-issue coalition. Fanelli said that the group is a coalition of such groups as the Welfare Rights Organization, the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, Women's Strike for Peace, the American Friends Service Committee and other organizations.

Fanelli, who is the Midwest regional director, said that the coalition has not made much headway yet in Carbondale. A spokesman for the Southern Illinois Peace Committee said that Fanelli had spoken to the group, but that no action had been taken.

Fanelli said the object of the coalition is to end war, racism and repression. He said the coalition activities include running peace candidates for public office. One such candidate is Lucille Berrien, a black woman running for mayor. Fanelli said the coalition is also sending a delegation of 70 people to an international peace conference in Paris.

U.S. Grant's failure refuted

In republished old interview

By University News Service

A federal newspaper clipping of 64 years ago refutes the canard that General (and President) Ulysses S. Grant was a failure as a farmer and as a businessman— in the newspaper clipping, Grant planned to spend his retirement months in the Florida Keys. The clipping was published in the 'Evening Post,' a weekly newspaper that was published in the Grant's time.

The clipping reads:

"The Esquire," presumably the Cincinnati Enquirer, interviewed Grant, the future president, with a counselor, set up a real estate and real estate business, but his son pointed out that the country had just come through a commercial panic, and my father couldn't be Harner at heart, turn people back in their own homes and into the street.

"At the time of the interview, General Grant was in command of the Eastern Department of the U.S. Army, at the time of the Governor's Island. He told the reporter that his father resigned his early commission in the army and returned to St. Louis, the family home, to be near the farm about a hundred acres, I suppose.

"I have heard it said that my father was a dashing, stirring man, built a barn and a windmill, and was doing every thing himself," he said. "Now that I have read his letters, I find that he had graduated from West Point, had served in the Mexican War and had been an officer in the United States army, yet he sacrificed his career, as he thought, and took up his work in the wilderness, that he might have a home of his own and not be under obligations to Mr. Dent, his father-in-law.

"I have been told that he boarded cordwood to St. Louis and sold it in the streets. Yes, both cordwood and short timbers for use in the coal mines. But farming was his principal occupation, and his crops were larger and better than were his neighbors," Frederick Grant said.

"After moving to St. Louis, he both his years in the U.S. Army, and scuba diving, according to state reports revenue receipts for the fiscal year, a $115 million increase over the previous year. His attention was to the commercial panic, and my father couldn't be harner at heart, turn people back in their own homes and into the street."
Judge to rule on Carbondale parade law

By Pat Nasman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Associate Judge Robert Schwartz will rule next week on the constitutionality of the Carbondale parade ordinance in the cases involving 14 persons arrested in October for engaging in a parade without a permit and disobeying a police officer.

Schwartz also will rule on the cases of two defendants, Kenneth Zucker and Jonathan Lerner, whose cases were heard Monday. Schwartz has acquitted defense attorney Michael Deutsch on two counts of disorderly conduct and criminal damage to property in the October incident.

The remaining 11 cases have been continued until the constitutionality of the statute has been decided.

The 14 were arrested after they were seen marching in a group in the area of Sixth Illinois Avenue on the night of Oct. 23. Police said that the 14 also blocked traffic on the street, which is a federal highway.

Arnold Jochums, defense attorney, said that the defense is challenging the parade ordinance on the grounds that the statute is vague and fails to define a parade or illegal assembly.

"The ordinance states that when one or more persons are gathered together, constitutes an illegal assembly," Deutsch said in his opening statement. "This is not anything here today in the courtroom could be considered an illegal assembly. These people going out for dinner could be considered an illegal assembly according to this ordinance."

"There is no ordinance that says the group has to be destructive," Jochums said that the defense also is arguing that requiring an application for a parade permit ten days before the parade is unconstitutional.

Similar laws have been struck down recently in courts in Wisconsin and Mississippi as constituting prior restraint. In Mississippi a one-hour waiting period was declared unconstitutional, Jochums said.

If the ordinance is declared unconstitutional by Judge Schwartz, the remaining cases will be dismissed. If not, a new trial date will be set, Jochums said.

Brockton Lockwood, city attorney, attempted to prove that the demonstration was planned. Patrolman Ronald Littlehale testified on the night before the demonstration, several of the defendants had been seen in or around Deutsch's house, at 1315 W. Sycamore St.

Deutsch replied that "even if the defendants were seen at the house on Sycamore Street, you have no way of knowing the purpose of their visit. Maybe they were there seeking legal advice."

Littlehale also testified that members of the group engaged in a musical skit and dance in downtown Carbondale on the night they were arrested. According to Deutsch, they were members of the Rapid Transit Guerrilla Theatrical Group from Chicago.

Deutsch also said that at no time were the defendants told that they were violating the law and would be arrested if they did not cease the action.

When people shop for a small car, they look for some very simple basic values. Dependability, Economy of money and style. Good mileage and long life.

These basics are our birthplace. The Model T, the Model A, the first mass produced station wagon - name a basic idea, and chances are Ford built it.

Now to Ford Pinto. Pinto is as simple and solid a small car as there is in the world. And it's priced lower than the three leading imports, lower than its major U.S. competitor yet it has every basic modern necessity. A gutsy little engine that gets the same economical kind of gas mileage as the little import. A solid, easy-riding four speed transmission. Sports car steering. A welded steel body with six coats of paint. Roll pan for suspension, and a wide stable stance on the road. Pinto is a small car that doesn't have to lead a superhighway. And finally, Pinto gives you comfortable interior leg and shoulder room - yet it's only 79 inches longer than the leading little import.

See the Pinto at your Ford dealer's. It's 40 years newer than the Model A - but it's still the same basic idea.

When you get back to basics, you get back to Ford.
Women’s Ensemble to sing songs of Leap Year and its fantasies

“Leap Year” will be the theme of the Women’s Ensemble program, tentatively scheduled March 10 in Home Ec Auditorium.

Charles C. Taylor, director of the group, said Wednesday, “We will bring about a variety in our musical selections. Earlier in the year we used the theme of ‘Love Mary, Let It Be,’ and for Christmas, ‘ceremony of Carols’.”

The ensemble is the counterpart of the Male Glee Club and has performed at SUI for the last six years. There are presently 18 members in the group, but according to Taylor, there is no ceiling on the number of members accepted.

Clarifying this, Taylor said, “An impression might exist among interested students that the group is open to music majors only. It’s open to any woman interested in singing. Many students on campus have musical experience from high school. We attempt to provide an outlet for continuation.”

Taylor said women often confided in the music used by the group and in the final selection of the songs presented.

String quartet to play Mozart

The Illinois String Quartet, in residence at SUI, will present a program at 8 p.m. Friday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel. Members of the quartet are Richard Straw, Helen Paulin, violin, Clye Barrus, viola, and James Stroud, cello.

Works to be presented are Mozart’s “Adagio and Fugue, K. 546,” the Samuel Barber “String Quartet, Op. 11,” and Ravel’s “Quartet in F Major.”

Motions concerning appeals ok’d

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Community Conduct Code Committee Wednesday approved four motions giving an individual the right to appeal.

An individual charged with a violation of the code would have the right to appeal the decision of the hearing officer or panel to the Community Conduct Review Board. A written request for an appeal would have to be made to the chairman of the CCRB within a certain number of days after a decision was made by the hearing officer or panel. The request would include the complete grounds for the appeal. No time period was established.

Additionally in an appeal case which would involve separation from the University, the person making the appeal would be allowed to remain at the University pending the completion of the appeal.

There would be one exception to this rule. If the president, after consulting with the hearing officer or panel, other University officials and still qualified personnel, finds there is evidence of a threat to the physical or emotional well-being of the individual or for reasons of a fair and present danger to the University and well-being of the members and property of the University, the person making the appeal would be removed.

The CCRB would decide on whether or not to hear the appeal and give reasons for its decision. The review board would then notify the individual of the acceptance or denial of his request. Both of these would be done within a specific time limit which has not yet been determined. If the request for an appeal is denied, the action of the previous decision would go into effect.

So far, the University has not given the right to appeal a decision made by the hearing officer or panel.

The committee also approved a set of internal hearing procedures. The approved procedures came from a chairman’s agenda for student conduct cases which was sent to the committee by Richard Magar, legal counsel.

The hearing consists of four sections: the opening statement, the presentation of the evidence, cross-examination of the evidence, and rebuttal by both sides. Cross-examination would be allowed. Following the hearing, the panel or officer hearing the case would go into executive session. Out of this session would come the finding of facts and any discipline.

Copies of the procedure would be mailed with notice letter. The question of affidavits, the matter of open and closed hearings and the role of the sub-judicial systems were tabulated until next week’s meeting.

Concerning affidavits, some discussion has already taken place. Magar had said that he is not in favor of trial by affidavit, except for those offered for character reference. It has also been generally agreed that both sides would be allowed to inspect the affidavits prior to the hearing. The committee has asked Magar to prepare some proposals concerning the affidavit problem.

About one minute before the lights go down on the last scene of "The Siamese Twins," the Southern Players of the American Institute will present the Academy Award-winning film "Straw Dogs" at 8 p.m. in the Laboratory Theater, our hearts finally go out to Larry, the play's indifferent antibers.

Larry, a heel par excellence, breaks down at his brother's grave and realizes how he exploited their relationship. It is a telling and touching moment that redefines playwright Gristle Gambaro's belief that all men must be mutually dependent upon each other if their relationships are to have any basis in human emotion.

This particular moment, however, is a long time in coming—the play runs ninety minutes without intermission—and when it finally arrives, Ms. Gambardo's point doesn't strike one as particularly profound. The only reason it is significant is because the scene, as written, and the play, as performed, finally engage themselves fully on an emotional level.

The same cannot be said for the rest of the play: it's simply too cold. While it's true the onstage characters aren't operating with compassion—one really can't give a damn about them—the play presents a problem in that this emotional displacement is allowed to appropriate our responses. In another way, the play is part of the problem it wants to solve, and it makes the problem worse.

One has to be pretty literal in describing the story: since it is one of those treatments more concerned with point-making than cogent action. "Home" is another example. I think—but the genre is understandably popular, since it encourages audiences to draw their own conclusions. Sometimes, the text above the literal text; but in "The Siamese Twins," that "something else" is, at heart, pretty mundane. At any rate the play, which is set somewhat, now, and is therefore meant to be universal in scope, concerns Larry and Iggy: Iggy is apparently on the lam, and it is up to Larry to decide whether he should commit the ultimate corruption of murder by escaping or staying, which is what he eventually does. Larry is the kind of creep Edward Albee would probably love, a bitching and taunting emotional neurotic who passes his life indulging in hervate relationships, and as played by John Fugiel with a theatrical skill that paces the hunch and wide-eyed hysterics that slightlly out-of-it, the circle is complete. Given his calculating character and forced to strike it again and

Ohio State will host swimmers in rematch

By Ernie Schweb

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

It was last Jan. 22 when SIU swimming coach Ray Essick stood in the Saluki locker room address- ing a tired but capable bunch of swimmers.

Essick was dripping wet from a dunking given to him by the swimming Columbus. The Buckeyes won.

Ohio State at Pullman Pool. It was a victory the swimmers had worked hard for and the relief of getting it could be felt throughout the arena.

As Essick leaned against the wall he was issued a warning. "Just remember," he said, "it’s always harder to win the first time, and you can bet that they’ll be waiting for us next year up at Columbus." Well, next year has arrived and the Salukis will find out just how much weight is on their shoulders when they travel to Columbus Saturday for a dual meet.

Southern Illinois will come into the meet with a 1-1 record. The Buckeyes are in a rut, a 3-10 mark at Arbor and Beat Wisconsin in the Pullman Pool, 58-54. They also finished second in the Southern Invitational to Southern Methodist last weekend in Stillwater, Okla., after taking first in the Illinois State Pool Dec. 4.

Ohio State is 3-4 on the year with its only loss to Indiana. The Buckeyes have beaten Kent State, Indiana, and Northern Illinois.

The results between SIU and Ohio State stands at 1-1 with the Buckeyes taking a 60-44 victory two years ago.

The biggest problem the swimmers in this area to overcome was the cold weather, cold wind. According to Essick, Pat States and Bob McKinley were ill while Rob Dickson and Dale Korner were recovering.

Although Ohio State coach John Bruce is one of the finest in the country, SIU coach Dickson feel the Buckeyes are strong where SIU and Ohio State are rated.

He rates the meet as a toss-up.

Following the Ohio State contest, the Salukis will return home to face the MSU team led by returning letterman Tenie Carpenter Jan. 28.

On Jan. 29 the Salukis will be in Champaign to take on Illinois and Minnesota in a triangular meet.

Judo club elects officers for year

The SIU Judo Club recently elected officers for the remainder of the year. The include: Scott Davy, president; Ed Kaifer, vice-president; Laura Purman, secretary; and Jay Wavering, treasurer. Essick is the club advisor.

Meetings are held Monday through Friday from 7:30 p.m. to 8:45 p.m. on the east concourse of the SIU Arena. All university students are invited to join.

Old gym with basketball

By Ken Stewart

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Intercollagiate basketball action left the old gymnasium for good in 1974 when the Sabios moved to the SIU Arena, right? Wrong.

The game is still there, now with a woman's touch.

Not only that but the old cracker-box facility--now known as the Women's Gym—will host the state collegiate coed basketball tournament in March. Pulliam Gym and the Arena will also be used.

The "other" SIU basketball team--the one that won the Midwest Conference basketball title in 1975--now knows that San Diego would be the championship finals.

The matches are sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association, beginning in 1973. The first women's tourney was played on Sunday afternoon and Monday night. And Saturday afternoon, rather than a Thursday night, rather than a Friday night.

The tourney's final round will be played in Pulliam Gym and the old gymnasium for good in March.

So what happened to the old gym? Well, when we went to the state tournament, the one man, assistant coach. Said "We have done quite well with basketball action."

Old gym with basketball

Intercollagiate basketball action left the old gymnasium for good in 1974 when the Sabios moved to the SIU Arena, right? Wrong.

The game is still there, now with a woman's touch.

Not only that but the old cracker-box facility--now known as the Women's Gym—will host the state collegiate coed basketball tournament in March. Pulliam Gym and the Arena will also be used.

The "other" SIU basketball team--the one that won the Midwest Conference basketball title in 1975--now knows that San Diego would be the championship finals.

The matches are sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association, beginning in 1973. The first women's tourney was played on Sunday afternoon and Monday night. And Saturday afternoon, rather than a Thursday night, rather than a Friday night.

The tourney's final round will be played in Pulliam Gym and the old gymnasium for good in March.

So what happened to the old gym? Well, when we went to the state tournament, the one man, assistant coach. Said "We have done quite well with basketball action."

Salukis join conference race against Regenold, Ball State

Southern Illinois should move into a first place Midwestern Conference tie this weekend, as the Salukis defeated 1-0 on Wednesday night in Evanston, Ill., this time with the Texas Tech game.

Excluding the first half at Wisconsin-Milwaukee, Southern hasn’t had an entire half short since losing to Texas Tech in the SIU Arena. 11 days ago.

The Red Raiders’ loss is now favored in the Midwest Conference.

Despite their recently improved play, the Salukis now just one victory against three losses during that period.

The victory was last Saturday’s 98-83 overtime win from Creggton, snapping a three-game losing streak.

After losing at home versus Texas Tech, the Salukis were in last place starting at Wisconsin-Milwaukee, 80-71, because of the poor half first. Three nights later, a Saturday’s Ball State contest begins the second game of Southern’s 26-game schedule. SIU has rematches with the first two teams who lost at home against Central Missouri and one week from Saturday at St. Louis University.

Ball State will bring a 7-3 record into the arena after losing Wednesday night, 70-60 to Western Michigan.

“We had hoped to bring an above 1000 record into Carbondale but shot just terrible all night,” said coach Lorry "Bud" Getchell who announced his im­ western Conference cellar if they can finish last winter. He insists Ball State must win on the road.

“We’ve been beaten by supposedly the best team in the conference (Northern Illinois, 105-82) and playing pretty close to Illinois State (98-92) on their home court,” Getchell said.

“Normally we were in the ballgame right until the end when they pulled away and we lost a little ground.”

That’s because the streak captured a scoring stand-off between Illinois State’s Doug Collins and Ball State guard Jim Regenold.

Collins scored 55 points in the hometown win, Regenold, 6-3, tallied 39.

Regenold, for the second consecutive year, leads the Cardinals scoring with a 23.5 average. Just behind are 6-3 guard Larry Brown (21.4) and 6-7 forward Chris Collins (15.8).

The absence of Lindner in Saturday’s meet will hurt Southern’s ability to score in the 160’s. Meade said. But he optimism that the team would score in the 150-160 range point.
