Pollution Control gets approval for recycling

By Brian Gross Staff Writer

SIU-C's Pollution Control has received approval from the vice president of campus services to begin a recycling program that will serve about 150 campus offices by the end of February.

"We're doing this knowing it's not going to be a money-making project," Patrick Glisson, the recy-cling manager at Pollution Control and a junior in geography, said. "You can't look at it from an economic viewpoint. You have to look at it from an environmental view point.

Pollution Control sent out memos about starting up the program to campus offices after receiving approval of the project from Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services.

The program will provide plastic bins for collecting both white paper, such as computer and ledger paper, and aluminum cans. The bins, when full, will be gathered and taken to Southern Recycling,

Bush seeks additional back door revenues

Scripps Howard News Service

WASHINGTON - President Bush's tax proposals to raise $15.8 billion in backdoor revenues and to prod Americans into saving more will tie up Congress for months.

Although Bush kept his vow not to raise the federal income tax, his proposed $1.23 trillion budget seeks to improve the flow of money to the Treasury in ways that will seem like higher taxes to those affected.

The largest source of new income for the government under Bush's bu get would be from a capital gains tax cut. Assets such as real estate or stocks (not col-lectibles such as stamps or antiques) held for at least three years would be taxed at 19.6 percent instead of 28 percent.

The Bush administration believes many people who had planned to hold onto those assets until death to avoid taxes would

Treasury officials say they have changed their original proposals to make sure a capital gains tax cut would have no "negative" revenue implications. Because a capital gains tax cut passed the House last year before being scrapped as part of a budget compromise it is thought to be likely to pass this year. But Democratic leaders now say it probably will pass only after a

Thompson suggested the legislature accept changes making the paraphernalia laws more severe. He also added provisions to allow wiretapping and prosecution in cases related to drugs and eliminat-ed an expiration date on the bill. It now goes back to the Legislature, where it faces an uncertain fate.

"The concept is good, but the bill - in its present form - ir like going after crime with a gun loaded with blanks," Thompson said. "I intend to put live ammunition in this bill, and I will fight in Springfield for support in my party for the changes I have made."

Thompson said the changes were made at the suggestion of several former prominent prosecutors in Illinois, including former U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas of Chicago.

The sponsor, Rep. Tom Homer, D-Canton, said last week that he had only a fragile coalition when the bill passed both houses by a narrow margin in November. He said Monday the amended legisla-tion faces a shaky future.

"The governor did what he believed was a clever thing by loading it down with such provi-sions that perhaps it could not sur-vive passage," Homer said. Homer said he would ask fellow

Sports Lawrence ices victory as Dawgs get by Bills

By Kevin Simpson Staff Writer

The Saluki men's basketball team was in the driver's seat before St. Louis University grabbed the steering wheel. Fortunately for the Salukis, sophomore guard Kelvan Lawrence delivered in the clutch and helped the Dawgs avoid a crash.

Lawrence sank seven of eight free throws down the stretch as the Salukis pulled out a hard-fought 82-79 victory over the Billikens at Kiel Auditorium Monday. Lawrence finished with 14 points. The Dawgs took a 17-point lead, 21.54 with 016 empiring on a

71-54, with 9:16 remaining on a three-point play by senior point guard Sterling Mahan. Mahan scored a career-high 27 points on the evening and sank six 3-point shots

Mahan's field goal would be the Salukis last in the game as St. Louis forced them to win the game at the line.

A free throw by Senior center Jerry Jones broke a string of 11 straight points by the Billikens that put the lead at 72-65, but St. Louis was not finished.

St. Louis' Jeff Lucchtefeld a junior forward, pulled the trigger on a three-point bomb and pulled the Billikens to within a point, 80-79, with less than a minute to play. Lawrence then sank two free throws for the final margin.

The Salukis were relentless on the boards and held a 51-38 margin

St. Louis started the game by hitting its first five shots for a 16-10 lead. But the Salukis fought back with an 11-0 run and took the lead on the strength of four 3-pointers, two by Mahan and two by junior forward Rick Shipley. The Dawgs kept the pressure on the Billikens by continuing the run and stretched it to 23-3 ar.d a 33-19 lead with 7:35 remaining in the

Men's track and field falters at unscored Redbird event

The men's track and field team experienced a let down this weekend after a superior showing the week before at home.

"I feel like our team was a little lackluster this weekend," Bill Cornell men's track coach, said.

Cornell expressed disappoint-ment with his teams' performance at Saturday's unscored Illinois State neet. He targeted his sprinters and jumpers as not playing to compete.

"Every time out Mark's gotten a little bit better. Actually, all my middle distance guys have been getting better," Cornell said. Cornell said one of the reasons for his team's flatness was the fact that they left eight athletes at home because of minor injuries and a flu bug that has the coach worried about a teamwide epidemic. "I think leaving some of our guys at home may have affected our morale," Cornell said.

Not everyone was flat. Erick Pegues ran his fastest 400-meter sprint of the year (48.55), but it wasn't good enough to take the blue ribbon. He finished in second Pegues was just using the 400 as a warm-up, though. He clocked in with a 47-flat, anchoring the

UMWA remains key to miners' livelihood

COAL MINING, one of the biggest industries in Southern Illinois, has come a long way, baby.

As Paul M. Angle recorded in Bloody Williamson, Henry Lee Myers, D-Mont., on June 24, 1922, read several newspaper accounts of the Williamson County killings and then declared, "German atrocities of the World War horrified this country from one end to the other; but I doubt if any German atrocities were perpetrated ... that were more horrible, more shocking, more inexcusable, than the atrocities of which I have just read ...

SOME OF THOSE 'atrocities' recounted in Angle's historical writings occurred in Jackson County as well. In fact, few counties in Southern Illinois went untouched by turn-of-the-century coal mining uprisings.

Problems stemming from terrible health and safety standards in coal mines often were ignored by mine superintendents. A century ago, men working in unsafe mines was not uncommon. Deaths and injuries also were commonplace.

But then, unions were in infant stages and change was inevitable.

THOSE MINERS who demanded better working conditions, better wages and acceptable safety standards and were willing to pay for it with their lives -- created the United Mine Workers of America July 25, 1890.

As negotiators, officials of the UMWA served as buffers between its members and company owners.

Not much in that way has changed during the past 100 years.

The UMWA was successful in changing other things, though. Where company owners refused to face up to minimal safety standards, UMWA stepped in.

AND WHERE miners were powerless to gain health and pension benefits, union officials went to bat.

Change again may be on the next doorstep. UMWA membership has declined since its peak in the 1940s at about 600,000. Today, fewer miners need the privileges the union has to offer, and membership has sunk to about 150,000

In Southern Illinois, union miners outnumber non-union by a wide margin. One coal company official said that while the persistence of unions has caused some companies to increase health and safety standards, many non-unior miners believe they fare better than union members because of the vast and sometimes inhibiting control unior officials enjoy.

BILL HAKE, division vice-president for Old Ben Coa Co., said the main differences between union and non union miners at Old Ben are beefier medical plans, health standards and vacation benefits.

Those miners who are union members believe they have the best deals. Then again, so do those who work nonunion. Hake said.

Apparently, although times have changed, the disagreements remain the same.

In commemoration of the UMWA's 100th anniversary, let's not forget those long-dead Southern Illinois miners who fought for better working conditions and died for advanced health and safety standards.

Battles to gain a national coal miners' union were hard won. Caution should be extended when considering the future of something that has done so much for so many.

England in quandry over racism issue

By B.J. Cutler

This spring a struggle will take place in the House of Commons over Britain's political soul. It will pit racism versus decency, and in today's world it may be a poor idea to bet against racism.

Commentary

The issue that will bitterly divide Parliament is Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's plan to offer refuge in Britain to 50,000 leading residents of Hong Kong before th Chinese Communists take control of the colony in 1997.

Mrs. Thatcher is right on humane and practical grounds. Her opponents — many of them in her own Conservative Party — are motivated by political ambition and dislike of foreigners, especially non-whites. In 1984, bowing to the reality of China's regional military superiori-ty, Britain agreed to end its 140year rule over Hong Kong. In return, Beijing pledged to let the territory keep its free enterprise system and democratic ways for 50 years after the takeover.

However, after last June's Tiananmen Square massacre and anti-democracy crackdown, virtu-ally none of Hong Kong's 5.7 million citizens expect China to keep its promises.

Those fears have been deepened

Scripps Howard News Service

by Beijing's demand that only 18 of Hong Kong's 60 legislators be directly elected before 1997. The communists intend to appoint the remaining lawmakers and to gov-em through them em through them. Most Hong Kong residents are of Chinese origin and know their of Chinese origin and know their masters-to-be well. Rather than live under Beijing's regime, many are emigrating — 42,000 last year, an expected 55,000 this year. To keep the colony functioning, Mrs. Thatcher wishes to offer the right to abode in Britain to 50,000 husiness and professional prophe business and professional people and their families, 225,000 in all. She believes that with this "life-line" they will dare to stay in Hong Kong and make it work.

She failed to count on prejudice. Britain essentially was lily-white before World War II. With the end of empire, non-whites arrived and now number 2.4 million - 4.5 percent of the population of 57.1 million.

Though a minority population of 4.5 percent is about one-fourth the level in the United States, it is too high for many British whites. Hence the howls over the prime minister's proposal, which requires changes in the immigration law. While the "Iron Lady" usually has her way, she could lose this time. The opposition Labor Party says her invitation to only 50,000 is elitist, which is sheer hypocrisy. If Mrs. Thatcher asked to take in more, Labor would be apoplectic. The anti-Thatcher revolt in Commons is led by Norman Tebbit, a former Conservative Party chairman who hopes to succeed to her office.

Amid this demogoguery lies a wonderful opportunity for the United States. Among Hong Kong's millions, Britain has carefully identified the best educated and most productive with extremely promising children. Washington should amend its own immigration law and offer these people asylum here. They would be an asset to American society and an impetus to the economy, more than repaying this country's hospitality.

And, of course, Britain might, wise up, notice that America was attempting a "brain drain" and let Mrs. Thatcher's plan take effect. Wherever the 50,000 went, a democratic nation — Britain or the United States — would win. The only losers would be the old wrante in Religno tyrants in Beijing.

Super Bowl generates campaign contributions and a reception, as well as the tick-

Politicians are using Super Bowl tickets as a lure to snag big campaign contributions.

For example, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., turned $125 tickets to Sunday's football extrav-aganza into $2,500 donations. That handsome sum paid for a package that included transportation, four nights' lodging, a lunch, a brunch et. The profits from about 50 such packages went to Cranston's personal political action committee. ¹⁴Housing⁽⁰⁾ and Urban Development Secretary Jack Kemp is said to have collected more than $500,000 that way in 1987 and 1988 for his race for the Republican presidential nomination. Democratic congressional campaign committees also use the tickets to raise money.

People can get arrested in most places for scalping tickets to sport-ing events, but apparently it's OK for politicians to use them as bait for large campaign contributions. And isn't it interesting that politi-cians apparently have little trouble getting dozens of Super Bowl tick-ets while ordinary citizens usually can't buy them for love or money?

Student struggles with the meaning of 'co-ed'

Ah, a man and his car. What a great combination isn't it, Mr. Albano? I read your letter waxing egregiously on crosswalks first with bewilderment then with sadness

The sidewalk satori you experi-enced was, I am afraid, an illusion of the mundane world, perhaps even fueled by a testosterone overdose. Crossing the street "ala horseblinders" can be excused far more readily than going through life "ala horseblinders.

The "co-ed" whom you repeatedly belittle and hold responsible for getting in the way of your plea-s are of the road is non-existent.

ategorizing college women as cois connotes that women do not rightly belong in a university envi-ronment. This term desperately needs to be dropped from our vocabulary. I am not labeled a coed even though I study beside women. Why should women be labeled co-ed because they study beside me? fake the blinders off. buddy!

As to your statistical perceptions, I assure you that men, too, cross streets. Not all of us drive all the time you know. I, for one, occasionally find that I have crossed without looking - wear-ing a leather jacket and Recboks, no less! It is a mistake that I shan't repeat. I would hate to get in your way as you drive your car around campus. — Tom McCarthy, graduate student, art.

expanded by the market." Glisson has gathered information from programs run by other cities and universities to design the SIU-C program. He said his program can be tailored to meet the needs of each office, such as providing smaller or larger bins.

The success of the program will depend on the interest of the peo-ple in the program, John Meister, director of Pollution Control, said.

"It will be a money-loser," Meister said, "but the administration is willing to make a commit-ment to get started. We're going out on a limb to start this program.

The University's program will be similar to the one recently started by the city of Carbondale. The city, which started its paper-recycling program Jan. 1, also is recycling for environmental reasons rather than economic ones.

"The city didn't get into this to make money," Tom Redmond, city planner, said. "There's some money available, but that's not the main reason we got into it. It's a lot more environmentally sensible to have (paper) recycled than for it to wind up in a landfill."

Redmond said fewer trees are cut down and less pollution is cre-ated when paper is recycled.

"In the long term, it's going to have some positive effects," he said

Carbondale's Clean and Green talked with both the city and the University in advising the groups how to start their programs.

"People are beginning to show an awareness," Jean Foster, coordi-nator for Clean and Green, said. "(The University) is an important place to start. A tremendous amount of recyclables are generat-ed by the University. It's a terrible waste to have it all go into a land-

Clean and Green also will be advertising the University's program to help it get started.

The new argument is that it is not right to lower a tax to benefit the wealthiest taxpayers when all wage earners are paying higher Social Security taxes that are being used to offset the budget deficit. A proposal to cut the Social Security tax offered by Sen. Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., muddies the water on capital gains.

The administration counters that everyone benefits from a healthy economy and says a capital gains tax cut will spur investment and create jobs. However, neither the White House, the Council of Economic Advisers nor Treasury

Monday could say how many jobs would be created.

Of the rest of the $15.8 billion Bush seeks to raise, $1.1 billion would come from higher user fees for government services such as national parks, boating passes and fees on securities market transactions. A total of $2.5 billion would come from extending the 3 percent telephone excise tax set to expire in December.

Improving tax collection efforts by the IRS is to raise $3 billion and a one-day speedup in the collection of payroll taxes from employers is to raise $900 million. Raising the airport departure tax from 8 per-cent to 10 percent is to raise $500 million.

Also, for the first time, state and local government workers would pay $3.8 billion to be included in the Social Security system. A pay raise for federal employees would be delayed three months. Balanced against the revenue hikes, the Bush administration pro-poses a $1.8 billion package of sweeteners to, show Bush's "kinder, gentler" nation. For example, people who adopt "spe-cial needs" children would get a $3,000 one-time tax deduction.

The Legislature could accept the governor's proposed changes with a simple majority in each house. A three-fifths majority would be required in each house to override the veto and make the original bill law

Thompson said Homer and other legislators should rise above politics and support his vetoes.

"The choice is very simple," the governor said. "Fiere's a good, tough bill that strikes at multi-county drug dealers. That shouldn't be so hard to vote for if people are sincere about fighting drug offenses, which the people of Illinois and the people of America have consistently said is their No. The original bill was backed by Democratic Attorney General Neil Hartigan, who said he will look at Thompson's vetoes before deciding what action to take. Some observers felt Thompson's signature on the original bill would have been a strong campaign issue for Hartigan in his gubernatorial

"I proposed a strong, statewide then we'll make the judgment at that time." Hartigan has said the grand juries could raise $20 million annually by seizing drug profits.

The change in paraphernalia laws in Thompson's veto would increase the penalty from a maxi-mum fine of $10,000 to a possible fine of $1,000 per item of paraphernalia.

The provision Thompson added to allow wiretapping was opposed by Republicans during debate on the bill in the House, and the idea of an expiration date — which Thompson vetoed — was support-ed by GOP members.

These four organizations were joined by the Good Samaritan Ministries, New Opportunities, Inc. and the Carbondale chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, in making funding requests for fis-cal year '91.

Elsie Speck of the Good Samaritan Ministries said the $10,000 requested would go toward funding for the emergency shelter and staffing for transitional housing at 701 S. Marion and women's housing at 306 N. University.

We hope the city will show recognition for what we are doing for people without homes. The city said it wants to show a commitment to this and this (funding) will be a way of showing they mean it (if funding is given)," Speck said.

In addition to recycling the old directories, the state will also use recycled paper to print 37,000 of the 1990 edition telephone directories and 5.8 million 1989 state er instruction booklets. "Coupled with the directo-

Thompson also said conservation experts estimate these recycling efforts will save 2,670 trees, conserve 1 million gallons of water, keep 9,420 pounds of vollutants from entering the environment and extend available space in Illinois landfills by 471 cubic yards.

Future mine engineers targeted by $9,500 grant from Amax coal

By Peter Zalewski Staff Writer

Qualified coal mine engineers

while in short supply, are direly, while in short supply, are direly needed by the industry. There is a steady demand each year for 300 mining engineers, but the nation only produces about 100 qualified graduates and five of last year's graduates came from SIU-C. Yoginder P. Chugh, professor and chairman of the Department of Mining Engineering, said. . Amax Coal Co. of Marion is trying to attract students into the occupation through a $9,500 grant to the University's mine engineering and research program

It's very important to Amax that new technology and research continue to look for something something better for the e. It could come from here, new and wouldn't it be grand if it did?' Mike Mitchell, a spokesman for Amax said

"Amax Coal Co. has donated every year, but this year is the most ve've ever gotten. Chugh said Every year, money for undergraduates is offered to students who have the need and grade point average.

The mining engineering committee seeks applications for indus-try scholarships because of the lack of students Chugh speculated the grant would be broken into four, $1,000 scholarships. Of the remaining $5,500, $3,000 would go for coal research and $2,500 to the mining engineering program.

There is a significant shortage of mining engineers right now; the money will go a long way," Chugh said.

"The research will try to optimize mining systems in all operat-ing mines. This may require ing mines. This may require instrumentation in the mine, data gathering and data analysis. The ultimate goal is to mine all coal at a cheaper cost in Southern Illinois," Chugh said.

"The mining engineering pro-gram will look at new ways to uti-lize the disposal of coal mining. SIU-C was chosen because it has a quality mining program that may be able to turn out the manpower for the needs of the company, Chugh added.

"Anyone who deserves a scholarship has a scholarship in the department. There is a steady demand each year for 300 mining engineers, but the nation only pro-duces about 100 qualified graduates; and five of last year's gradu-ates came from SIU-C, Chugh said

"The shortage will become worse before it gets any better. There is a significant shortage of students," Chugh said.

Asian-American lifestyles focus of 12th annual Big Muddy Festival

By Stephanie Steirer Staff Writer

The 12th annual Big Muddy Film Festival offers students and the Carbondale community a cultural insight into the Asian-American lifestyle.

This year's festival, which runs Feb. 5 through Feb. 11, focuses on Asian-American films and filmmakers, featuring over 100 film entries and over 20 feature films by professional independent filmmakers.

Alex Baird, the director of this year's festival, said, "Big Muddy caters to the independent filmmaker getting started in the business of low budget filmmaking."

The Big Muddy Film Festival, which is internationally known, accepts films from all over the United States and for the first time this year's festival will include a film entry from Canada. The films focus on Asian-American problems and lifestyles as seen through the eyes of the filmmakers. A series of feature film shorts

A series of feature film shorts will be shown 7 p.m. Feb. 5 in the Student Center Auditorium.

The first three shorts, "Reflector," "Sideview" and "Beyond the Z-Quao," demonstrate the off-beat animation and humor of animator Tom Yasumi.

Also scheduled for the opening night of the festi. al is "To the Ones I Love," a film short on the brief historical and personal account of a Chinese family's immigration by Chester Wong.

The documentary film, "Surname Viet, Given Name Nam," by Trinh 7. Minh-ha, will be shown at 7 p.m. Feb. 7. In making this film, Minh-ha used intervicews with Vietnamese women, archival footage and folk poetry to show the history of women's resistance in Vietnam. A videotaped panel discussion with Trinh T, Minh-ha will be shown after the documentary.

Bowl-a-thon to raise money for immigrating Soviet Jews

By Dale Walker Staff Writer

Now that restrictions on immi-gration have eased up in the Soviet Union, Jews are exiting in record numbers. The B'nai B'rith Hillel foundation is sponsoring a bowl-athon Sunday to raise money to aid Jews immigrating to Israel. In 1989, more than 60,000

Soviet Jews left the Soviet Union, the highest number to leave there since record-keeping began in 1968, Robin Gross, interim direc-tor of the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, said.

Almost 300,000 Soviet Jews have initiated the immigration pro-cess by requesting sponsors from abroad, Gross said.

"The lightening up of restric-tions is a result of the new reforms in the Soviet Union and the vast amount of pressure from demon-strators there," she said. In addition, Gross sold that there are various reasons that Soviet Jews want to immigrate.

"Basically, as these nationalist uprisings occur there are certain groups scapegoated, and, historically, Jews have been one of those she said.

groups. Anti-Semitism is rife in the Soviet Asian republics region where there have been reports of ethnic violence, anti-Semitic outbursts and ethnic strife caused by the growing influence of Islamic fundamentalists, Simcha Dinitz, chairman of the World Zionist Organization said in a Dec. 20, 1989 article in the Palm Beach Jewish Journal. "Now that the door is open, Soviet Jews want to take advantage of it," Gross said. The United States and Israel are the nations that the majority of Soviet Jews immigrate to, Gross said

"There has been some clamp-down in U.S. immigration policy, so now Israel is absorbing so many more," she said. Since Oct. 1, 1989, Jews leaving the Soviet Union on Israeli visas have not been eligible to come to the United States as refugees. Those who wish to settle in the United States now must apply for American visas at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, Gross said.

Up to 1,000 immigrants per day could be flown to Israel from the Soviet Union, as soon as the two countries ratify an agreement just reached between their respective reached between their respective airlines, Uri Gordon, head of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency's Immigration and Absorption Department, said in the Palm Beach Jewish 'ournal article.

Funds are needed for resettlement of these immigrants, Gross said

The second annual bowling party will be hosted by the Hillel Foundation to raise money for Jewish immigrants who need housing, medical care, job training and other basic resources, Gross said. The bowl-a-thon will be held from 2 to 5 p.m.

The bowl-a-thon is part of a United Jewish Appeal fund-raising campaign called "Exodus II," which is devoted to the absorption of Soviet Jews in Israel, Gross said.

Human rights attorney to discuss Nicaraguan slayings investigation

Opening of golden arches in Red Square first sign of perestroika to Soviet citizens

MOSCOW (UPI) -- The fading Cold War literally will leap from the fire into the frying pan — or at least the griddle — with the open-ing Wednesday of the world's biggest McDonald's, East or West.

One Russian described the newest American fast-food franchise Monday as "the first dove of perestroika.

Residents of 51 other countries feasted on Big Macs before they became a symbol in the heart of the communist world, and to some of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's program of economic and political restructuring - perestroika

It took 14 years of planning and bargaining for the golden arches to vie with the colored cupolas of St. Basil's Cathedral in Red Square as the country's chief landmark.

"It will be like a pilgrimage here," Tolya Nikitin said. "There will be a line from the opening hour (10 a.m.) until closing (10 p.m.). People will hear what a clean restaurant it is. It will never be empty."

But another, more cynical Russian, who said her mame was Sonya, said, "I hope we will not be getting just another line in Moscow." The reference was to lose lines of escents who escent long lines of people who sometimes wait hours to buy scarce consumer goods.

George Kohon, who has shep herded the project for all of its 14 years of gestation, said he and his staff of Russians, trained at McDonald's schools abroad, will do their best to ensure they are not adding to the problem with lines in the Soviet capital. "When the Russians get to the front of the line, they will find food, piping hot, smiling faces to wait on them, to thank them and tell them to come back," he said. Welcoming the expected lines that might snake down Gorky

Street to the Kremlin, Kohon said McDonald's Moscow-style hopes to break the McDonald's opening day record of 9,100 transactions set in Budapest and, possibly, the all-time record for any single day, 14,000 in Hong Kong.

Unlike nearly all foreign food ventures in the Soviet Union, McDonald's will be selling Big Macs with fries and milkshakes for rubles, not dollars, breaking what Russians cynically call perestroi-ka's "ruble apartheid." Those dollars-only establishments keep most Russians out while foreigners or privileged Soviets with dollars cat cr load their cars with groceries. Kohon, 52, president of McDonald's-Canada, sat in the spanking clean restaurant of leaming metal counters and formica tables and described the decision to sell for rubles as most gratifying.

Realignment of conferences becoming a hot issue again

Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Conference realignment, driven by football and basketball interests, has again become a hot issue. Independents increasingly are warning up to the idea of joining conferences and some conference schools are just getting restless.

TALK IN recent years of Arkansas, Texas and Texas A&M leaving the Southwest Conference to join a Southeastern Superconference has died down, although the possibility still exists. Another realignment idca affecting the SWC is that — as has long been speculated — Arkansas could leave to join the Big Eight, which in turn would lose Nebraska to the Big Elen, which is already the Big Eleven with the addition of Penn State.

PENN STATE'S move from independent status in football could be the first of many falling dominoes. There has been talk of Pittsburgh being the next school to sign up. This might even mean that the Pac-10 Conference — the Big Ten's partner in a current ABC-TV deal — might want to follow suit. Don't laugh.

"A couple members of our staff ... kicked it around informally as to whether the Pac-10 would want to n said.

Big Ten deal) will cause some general interest in rethinking conference alignments. But I don't have any notions about predicting what the outcome might be."

respond to the Big Ten's move," UCLA chancellor Charles Young

Penn State's move does have other independents scratching their heads and stepping up in-house discussions about conference affiliation. Even Akron .s ringing conference doorbells, hoping to get invited in.

"WE NEED A conference to survive," Akron assistant athl/tic director Rob Fournier said, "We're certainly not at a level like Notre Dame or Miami, where schools go to them for schedu'ing. One reason for joining a conference would be to get some of that TV money from basketball, even if we don't win. Two years ago, we won like 21 or 22 games and didn't have a chance at a post-season tournament."

AT STAKE for these independents are future football and basketball schedules. As schools such as Penn State join or form conferences, the more the remaining independents are left holding the bag. "The Big Ten move has precipitated some degree of urgency in conferences and independents ... to re-evaluate their positions individually and collectively," Syracuse athletic director Jake Crouthamel said. "If the Big Ten can pluck Penn State out, there could be some other conferences ready to do that. Everybody is now saying, 'How do we position ourselves so that our strengths are preserved?""

CROUTHAMEL IS pumping some diplomatic iron. Syracuse is among a group of independents discussing formation of an Eastern Seaboard all-sports conference. If it goes through, the list of major independents in focti-all and basketball would be cut almost in half.

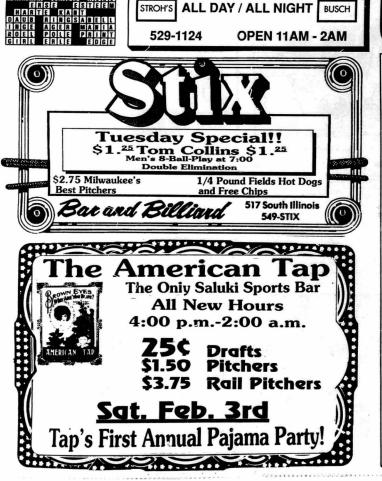

pendents in fecti-saff and basketball would be cut almost in half. Other schools — all football independents — involved in this discussion are Miami, Florida State, West Virginia, Pitt, Boston College, Temple, Rutgers, South Carolina and Virginia Tech.

FORMATION OF such an allsports conference would be difficult. Those 10 schools are spread among the Big East, Metro and Atlantic 10 conferences. Slicing up three leagues to build a fourth could weaken those conferences or even lead to the formation of a new basketball-only conference of "leftovers."

Appeals court upholds ruling on photographs of Bambino

NEW YORK (UPI) --- A federal appeals court Monday upheld a lower court's ruling that Babe Ruth's heirs have no claim to

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled against claims by Keth's heirs that Macmillian Inc. is guilty of copyright infringement for using the baseball great's pic-tures and name in "The 1988 Macmillan Baseball Engagement Calendar

The 1987 calendar included three photos of Ruth.

Ruth's heirs, Dorothy Ruth Pirone and Julia Ruth Stevens, had filed suit in U.S. District Court in Manhattan claiming the publisher's unauthorized use of the pho-tographs violated their trademark rights to the Ruth name.

In an 18-page decision, Appeals Court Judge Irving Kaufman said Ruth's heirs have trademark rights solely to the words "Babe Ruth He said the baseball legend's heirs were arguing their trademark rights include "every photograph of Ruth ever taken."

"Ruth was one of the most pho-tographed men of his generation, a larger than life hero to millions and an historical figure in whom inter-est still runs high," Kaufman wrote in his decision.

The ruling upheld a decision by Judge Pierre Leval in U.S. District Court in Manhattan who found there was no violation of the family's trademark rights.

Bulls to raise $1 million in 5 years to fix decrepit city basketball courts

CHICAGO (UPI) - Chicago Bulls Monday executives announced they will raise $1 million during the next five years to help the city repair its decrepit public basketball courts.

Park District officials called the offer the first of its kind in the Bulls' charity arm, The CharitaBulls, will raise the money through three-on-three basketball tournaments, slam-dunk contests and other events involving Bulls' players, CharitaBulls president Steve Schanwald said.

He said Bulls' officials, coming off 110-straight sold-out games going into this season, thought the offer "was a way we could give something back" to Chicago.

He said the $1 million is guaranteed to the Park District whether or not the fund-raising events raise that much money.

Parks Commissioner Jesse Madison said the money will be used to rehabilitate the courts most in need of work. Work will begin in April, Madison said, and will include such things as resurfacing and repairing hoops.

"This is just the beginning," Madison said at a news conference. "We will be looking at other teams and corporations" for simiteams and corporations' lar contributions.

The way San Francisco so quickly put the Broncos' weak-nesses on public display would have been considered indecent exposure in any other town except New Orleans

It was 13-3 at the end of the first quarter and 27-3 at halftime.

While John Elway was strug-gling to complete a shovel pass, Joe Montana was burying the
