Tax plan includes doubling exemption

By John Krukowski
Staff Writer

Illinois taxpayers could be spared about $1.6 billion annually in taxes if the personal exemption of the state income tax were doubled, says Illinois Attorney General Neil Hartigan.

Hartigan was at the Williamson County Airport in Marion Thursday to announce his "Illinois Tax Relief Proposal," which would increase the personal exemption for dependents from $1,000 to $2,000.

The attorney general was joined by State Senator Dawn Netsch, chairwoman of the Senate Revenue and Economic and Fiscal committees.

HARTIGAN SAID his plan is "based on fairness" because the $1,000 exemption has not changed since the state income tax was imposed in 1969, while the value of the dollar has shrunk to 35 cents because of the inflation rate.

"When you take a look at the way the income tax has progressed since 1969, the personal exemption required to be the fairest part of the tax has gradually been eaten away," Hartigan said.

Netsch said the exemption increase is one of the few things that can be done at this time to relieve the tax burden on middle income families. Hartigan estimated that over 1 million people would be affected by the proposal and described it as a "good first step" in cutting state taxes, although he didn't elaborate on what other steps he might consider taking.

"THEY ARE other things that can and should be done but we'll be addressing them as we go along," he said.

He said a doubling of the personal exemption could save the average family of four $100 a year.

Illinois can readily afford an increase because of the $76 million balance in its General Fund for fiscal year 1985, the highest in its history, Hartigan said. He said that fiscal experts estimate that $260 million is a more adequate balance to be maintained in the state treasury.

"The state was not designed to build up a large surplus of money," Hartigan said.

SEN. NETSCH, D-Chicago, said the proposal probably wouldn't require a cut in state services, although "it's possible that at some point you might have to reshuffle some priorities, but that's that part of government.

Hartigan said he hopes to gain bipartisan support in the General Assembly for the proposal and get it approved for the next tax year as quickly in the fall session as possible.

He said he waited until now to unveil the idea because the state legislature was busy with education issues and "Build Illinois" in the spring.

"We're just saying that before anything gets started again, enough is enough," he said.

Hartigan said he introduced the plan out of concern for the state's residents in his role as attorney general, not as a prelude to his run for the governorship in 1988. He said he would officially announce his candidacy after Labor Day.

HARTIGAN AFTER making his personal tax exemption presentation, said he is withholding filing lawsuits for the time being against county jails in Illinois which are not in compliance with his plan.

The tedious task of selecting a jury for a murder trial involving Murphyphyshoranto dentist Allan B. Azevedo concluded Thursday. Opening arguments will begin Friday morning.

Ninety-eight people were called as prospective jurors for the murder trial, which is taking place in Jackson County Circuit Court. Six men and six women were agreed by the attorneys in the case and Presiding Judge Richard E. Richmier to serve. All five men and one woman were chosen as alternate jurors.

"It's the most I've ever seen," said Jackson County States Attorney John Clemens about the number of people interviewed for the jury.

Azevedo is accused of contracting for the murder of his ex-wife, Marie Azevedo, on or around March 25, 1981. Clemens is seeing the death penalty for Azevedo if the jury finds him guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

Under Illinois law, the jury may also be required to decide whether Azevedo will be sentenced to death, provided he is found guilty. Several possible jurors interviewed said they could not vote for the death sentence under any circumstances and were subsequently excused from serving on the jury.

The third and final panel of four jurors, all men, was agreed to and sworn in on Friday morning.

Reagan condition ‘great’; solid-food diet resumed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, “feeling great” five days after cancer surgery, poked his head out from a hospital window Thursday and waved to photographers as he continued on what the White House termed an “unimpeded” road to recovery. Reagan ate his first solid food since doctors removed a cancerous growth from his intestines Saturday and met in the morning with chief of staff Donald Regan and national security adviser Robert McFarlane.

Congress blasted for stalled budget talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government said Thursday it plans to relax the federal fuel economy standard for 1986 car models to 26 miles per gallon to save jobs. Ford Motor Co. hailed the decision as a “common-sense victory for consumers” but consumer activist Ralph Nader said the move would destroy “the most effective energy conservation program in America today.”

Israel rejects PLO members on peace panel

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel rejected a list of Palestinians proposed for a joint Palestinian-Jordanian peace delegation because some people on it were active members of the Palestine Liberation Organization, sources said Thursday. Prime Minister Shimon Peres, who received a copy of the list Wednesday from the U.S. Embassy, said it was unacceptable to Israel. The list of Palestinians for the joint delegation had been transmitted to the State Department by Jordan after its approval by King Hussein and PLO leader Yasser Arafat.

U.S. denounced at U.N. women’s conference

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The U.N. Women’s Decade conference Thursday turned into a free-for-all of political attacks on the United States as “Nazi-like,” “perverted” and “pinko.” African delegates blasted American policy and drew loud applause. U.S. delegate Maureen Reagan, the daughter of the president, said that the United States would not stand for a major politicization of the conference.

Poison victims defrauded, suit against Jewel alleges

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jewel Companies deliberately misrepresented facts to salmonella victims to avoid being sued, a class action suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court contends. The lawsuit, filed Wednesday, claims General Adjustment Bureau, a firm hired by Jewel, fraudulently obtained releases from about 3,000 victims of a salmonella outbreak in March and April caused by tainted milk from Jewel’s Hillfarm Dairy in Melrose Park.

Illinois colleges get 17-percent budget boost

CHARLESTON (UPI) — The Board of Governors Thursday approved a fiscal 1987 budget request of more than $196 million for operating the system’s five universities — Chicago State, Eastern Illinois, Western Illinois, Governors State and Northeastern Illinois — a 17.8 percent increase over this fiscal year. The board also approved immediate 8 percent salary hikes for the board’s executive director and each of the five university presidents.

Sugar substitute called safe for most people

CHICAGO (UPI) — Aspartame, the artificial sweetener rapidly replacing saccharin as a low-calorie sugar substitute, is safe for use by most people, the American Medical Association reported Friday. Only those who are sensitive to the amino acid phenylalanine, one of aspartame’s components, need to regulate their intake of the popular sugar substitute, concluded a report by the AMA’s Council on Scientific Affairs.

Prof says U.S. needs to understand Islam

By Justus Weatherby Jr.  Staff Writer

With tension mounting around the world over religious wars and conflicts in Third World countries, an SIU- C professor said building a better understanding of Islam, the highest religion, could help provide some understanding of the way of life of Muslims, followers of Islam.

RIAZ ZOBAIRI, lecturer in the Religious Studies department, taught "Islamic Religion and Culture" during the fall semester. He said the 45-member class was the largest class he remembers since it was first offered at SIU-C 12 years ago.

City energy code needs change to reflect new needs, panel told

By Art Maton  Staff Writer

Changes in energy-saving technology, a better-informed consumer public and economic factors may make revision of the current Carbondale's commercial and residential energy code necessary.

The Carbondale Energy Advisory Commission discussed Wednesday the possibility of advising the City Council on revising the code, which were adopted in 1980. Robert Pauls, city energy coordinator, said the commission was the "driving force" behind adoption of the codes. But at the time of adoption, Pauls said, a member of the commission said the codes were expected to be returned to the council with revisions in six months.

Pauls, who is the commission's liaison to the city administration, said that in the last five years "technology has changed, people's understanding of the way buildings behave has changed, and energy prices have changed as well."

"As an energy coordinator, I am preparing a draft code for consideration by the commission, the city staff, and the city council," he said.

A specific code revision concerns mobile homes. "Because Edgewater Park has codes exclude coverage of mobile homes," Pauls said. He told the commission that he would send them a set of code revisions prepared by city staff for their next meeting on Aug. 14.

Pauls said he thinks he can have a full draft of code revisions prepared next month. Following review and recommendations by the commission, the revisions could be presented to the City Council as early as September or October. He said that his "target date" for enactment of the revisions is Jan. 1, 1990.

Commission member John Menter said whether, by getting word of the revisions out now, concerned interests would feel they were getting sufficient input on the matter.

Pauls said that people might react negatively to "unfinished work." He suggested that a public meeting before the commission's letter to the council requesting the proposal is slated for the July 22 council meeting. The letter calls for a workshop of concerned interests, including realtors, contractors, builders, homeowners, and other citizens, after the revisions have been drafted.

Commission member Harry Schulz said that code enforcement is questionable. While a builder's plans at a specific location are approved for code compliance before a construction permit is issued, he said, the city lacks manpower to effectively enforce the codes.

The commission agreed to invite a representative of the City's code enforcement division to the next meeting to provide background information on the code enforcement process.

The commission's appearance before the City Council to promote a proposed merger of the city's housing and energy divisions appears will not occur until next month.

While discussion of the commission's letter to the council requesting the proposal is slated for the July 22 council meeting. The letter calls for a workshop of concerned interests, including realtors, contractors, builders, homeowners, and other citizens, after the revisions have been drafted.

The commission agreed to invite a representative of the City's code enforcement division to the next meeting to provide background information on the code enforcement process.

Under the relief reform package that focuses on teacher quality and sets higher standards for Illinois elementary and high schools was signed Thursday by Governor James R. Thompson.

"We have now moved to the head of the class in the United States in educational reforms," Thompson said.

The package reforms teacher education, teacher quality, systems of grading and accountability, and other issues. It also provides for grants to school districts for educational resources and jobs to local school districts.

Thompson said this is the first time in 33 years that a new bill I have acted upon in my years as governor.

Illinois school reform mandated by Thompson

The HISTORY of Islam is made up of events that should not be missed by every student of religion, civilization and culture, Zobairi said.

The sheer pressure of economics and political realities in the modern world is making it difficult for the West and the Islamic world must make serious and sustained efforts to reach each other in order to enter into a meaningful dialogue," Zobairi said.

Zobairi said his study of Islam began here in 1968 during the completion of his doctoral dissertation on noted Indian scholar Syed Ahmad Khan who founded the Muslim University in Northern India.

Star Wars defense sounds too good to be true, since it is PRESIDENT REAGAN'S STAR WARS plan is a new idea. His dream is to build a protective shield over the United States making it impenetrable to nuclear attack. Unfortunately, the plan cannot be tested accurately according to traditional testing methods, he said, meaning its only test would be a real nuclear attack on the U.S. system which would be worthless at the time of nuclear attack. "Most of the money spent will be wasted," he said.

PARNAS IS NOT THE ONLY scientist who has studied the development. In his article, it is pointed out that for reasons of technical infeasibility, The Union of Concerned Scientists, an independent organization concerned about the impact of advanced technology on society, published a 350-page book titled "The Folly of Star Wars." The book's title speaks for itself. It doesn't plan to build an anti-ballistic defense, and spells out why it is impossible to achieve. Ronald Reagan's dream of technology to rescue the threat of nuclear holocaust is so far fetched, it's silly.

Even if one ignores the technical unfeasibility of the system and assumes that it was a military technology, it will not progress at lightning speed and fulfill Ronald Reagan's and defense contractors' dreams. Star Wars could not protect America. One of the most obvious flaws in the system is that it is only intended to destroy intercontinental ballistic missiles in mid-flight. ICBMs are only a fraction of the threat to the United States.

Star Wars is not intended to protect America from nuclear ballistic weaponry, such as atomic artillery rounds, nor will it defend America from intermediate-range theater weaponry, such as the low-flying cruise missile, and short-range weapons that run into the thousands. Nuclear terrorism, which may be the ultimate defense weapon in the future, is also completely infeasible to the trillion-dollar Star Wars system.

A FURTHER FACTOR that would make Star Wars the biggest waste of money and time in human history is the Soviet response. The Soviets will certainly force the Soviets, who lack America's technological edge, to merely deploy missiles and even destroy missiles to overcome the defense capabilities of the system. The Soviets would have the advantage here because missiles are cheaper to produce than the Star Wars components. The Soviets would also have a lot less economic resources to their military while the United States pumps trillions into the Soviets. The Soviets would also be less able to build anti-satellite weapons that would fraggle floating battle stations into orbiting scrap metal.

The Soviets are sure to perceive Star Wars as a threat, destabilizing the precarious U.S.-Soviet balance more. It would increase the probability of a Soviet first-strike out of their fear of the system and their strategic need to overcome the Star Wars defenses. For Star Wars to be effective in protecting America from annihilation by a first strike by tens of thousands of ICBM Soviet warheads, the system would have to be 99.99 percent effective even if one overlooks other complicating factors.

The overpowering arguments against spending trillions of dollars at the expense of social programs to build a politically and technically unfeasible dream in outer space makes Star Wars control systems more phony than the illusory Space Shuttle. The reality of safety from nuclear holocaust is not found in a continuously escalating nuclear fantasy. It is to be found in the reduction of superpower relations and, if not elimination, of the need for nuclear weapons.

Daily Egyptian editorial staff is out of touch with University

So, the Daily Egyptian editorial staff has stooped to name-calling. July 17. That does not surprise me. Considering the quality of this rag, the principle of democratic government that the editors violated and promulgated my resignation obviously for exceeds the comprehensive capability of such an unprincipled editorial staff. What this city has done to this University, both presently and in the past, is to regulate and to alienate the students, I know of past indiscretions such as regulating students without their knowledge or input. How many indiscretions must one endure before allowed to say "enough" without appearing childish. For myself, one is sufficient.

If it were within my power, I would break off all ties with the City of Carbondale and encourage all students to do the same. Because the Daily Egyptian is such a threat to the university that a Daily Egyptian editorial staff would take the time to decry the students, I know of past indiscretions such as regulating students without their knowledge or input. How many indiscretions must one endure before allowed to say "enough" without appearing childish. For myself, one is sufficient.

If there ever was a newspaper breaking story, this must be it. President Reagan in the hospital. No, wait a minute. Soviets agree to arms talks. Hold on, I know. Build 'Illinois' program gets approved. No? Well, then it's got to be the seven hostages still held captive in Lebanon. That's not it either? Oh well, I give up.

How stupid of me to be so narrow-minded and insensitive to see the real "news" when it's right before my eyes. I'm sorry. I know my priorities are disoriented and the most important news to hit the presses failed to provoke my minimal concern.

People who lack insight into current events are probably too busy with school or work to keep up on the major issue affecting our world today. By the way, do you prefer the old Coke or the new? — Keith Koub, senior, Accounting.

Real newsworthy events are hard to spot

If there ever was a newspaper breaking story, this must be it. President Reagan in the hospital. No, wait a minute. Soviets agree to arms talks. Hold on, I know. Build 'Illinois' program gets approved. No? Well, then it's got to be the seven hostages still held captive in Lebanon.
Tennessee prison riots dramatize problems caused by housing men in inhumane conditions

A PRISON RIOT is usually nature's way of letting the authorities know they're doing something wrong. So it was with the recent riots at four state prisons in Tennessee. That state's experience, though hardly unique, dramatizes a national problem.

The spark that set off the riots was the introduction of uniforms for inmates, both for the inmates and the state put the real blame on breeders. These are the same people who have become familiar in prisons elsewhere: overcrowding, violence, poor sanitation, insufficient work and educational programs.

The four institutions at which incidents occurred were designed to house one inmate per cell, but at three of them, doubling up is the norm. That means locking up two demonstrate against one social group. In a small, comfortable space that serves as both bedroom and bathroom for most of everyday. The result is predictable. Last year, eight Tennessee inmates were killed by other inmates. The Turney Center in only, a peaceful prison until its newly introduced double-celling, has had three riots in the last two years, including this latest one.

SANITATION is poor. A Minnesota prison evaluated the Turney Center and called it "the filthiest, the worst maintained and most neglected" prison he had ever seen. Inmates at another prison once found maggots in their mashed potatoes.

Condensing these defects is perpetual idleness. The state admits it cannot provide work or education for a lot of its prisoners, thus diverting inmate energies into destructive activities.

In 1962, a federal court ruled unconstitutional various conditions at various Tennessee prisons, but progress in correcting them has been slow. Prisoners have seen their rights affirmed by a judge but not yet acknowledged by the chance and incentive to prepare themselves for it. At the least, prisons shouldn't make it worse, but most of them do.

PALLIATIVES aren't enough. What's needed in Tennessee and other states is a commitment to making prisons work, not just warehouses. Says the University of Chicago School of Law's Norval Morris, an influential thinker on prison reform, the technical skills run short, almost escape-proof prisons are the order of the day.

A crucial change is reducing the size of prisons. The bigger the prison, the better it is for authorities to control inmates. "There are no good 1,000-person prisons," says Morris, who recommends 500 as the maximum population. Each of the Tennessee prisons that suffered riots holds at least 850. But three small prisons cost more than one large one, and taxpayers resist any move beyond those absolutely necessary to isolate the criminal.

Educational programs also require money, besides creating the popular impression that convicts are being coddled. Efforts to put inmates to useful work, which can defuse violence as well as release the demands of the real world, are run into the sand by businesses and labor unions. It's no costless way to improve prisons.

But ignoring their problems isn't free, either. Pradesh and local government officials use high rates of recidivism are another. The persistent belief that to exercise the most basic forms of control over the jailed is yet another.

Inhumane prisons might be tolerable if they were effective in protecting society from its criminals. But they have failed utterly at that objective. It's worth finding out if changes that would be intolerable in standard prisons can even be tolerated in a setting of society.

Reagan should practice his feminist preachings

BEFORE MAUREEN went off to Nairobi, she went out to lunch with dad and got some good advice. Don't let the needs of women gel sidetracked by the vagaries of international politics.

In Papa Reagan's words, "The business of the conference is women, not propaganda." He then marked the areas she and the others should address at the U.N. international conference on women. One of the top four was domestic violence.

At least two women in the Nairobi contingent would have been exasperated by the President's luncheon palaver: Sharon Parker and Ann Herring. These women, one a government consultant and one an inside, have become experts on just how easily propaganda can drain the "business of women" right here in the U.S.

Parker is the new executive director of the National Coalition Against Domestic Violence (NCADV), a group described by "TIME" as the "most battered women's group in the country." NACADV includes nearly 720 of the nearly 2,000 shelters for battered women and children.

The president has, in the assistant attorney general who shepherds the Justice Department's task force on family violence. Under her guidance, the task force has taken a very strong law enforcement stance against family abuse.

THIS SPRING, Washington supported, and the coalition was able to negotiate a $25,000 grant of $25,000 to fund a few programs recommended by the task force's report. The NCADV was going to announce the grant on June 12 at a screening of the television special "Battered Women, Shattered Lives." To give you an idea of how "radical" this is, the grant was written by Mark Silberman (R.Mich.) that published the profile. The NCADV people were now a "pro-leb, pro-abortion, anti-Reagan, radical feminist" group.

ALL THIS, understandably, depressed the NCADV folk. At the last minute, the money was yanked and their image distorted. In fact, the coalition is such a small group that the people involved had come up with the idea of upping the ante in the political spectrum who are dead set against us. But liberal-hating was only the beginning. It was the mass media's emphasis of the attack on the grant-making the money itself was involved in a public awareness campaign, a national telephone in a program to train police officers. Indeed, the subject of this attack was much more important: the familiar charge that NCADV was subversive creation by the women who are really out to control the family. Shaken by the noise on the phone, the folks of NCADV gave the week to "review" the grant.

LOIS HERRING, the Assistant A.G., is fighting for its survival. Instead of siding when she chose to write a reply to the letter. Instead of siding with the claim shelters are anti-family, she penned before taking off for Nairobi. "This is not so. Abuse is anti-family...a shelter may only assure that in this destructive home, it doesn't dissolve rather than explodes. The blame-sheltered for the failure of marriages is like blaming firemen for arson. When Maureen entered her own farewell address for the NCADV, she had been in the years, "refer to shelters for battered women as R&R centers or white houses." She said, "There are people in every country and the world who take the idea that domestic violence can be done away with. The license. The fact of the matter is this is a very serious problem with domestic violence.

Family violence isn't a left-wing or a right-wing matter. It's a human business. There's no other, uh, the needs of women who are getting battered, the vagaries of national politics. The "propaganda" the "radical feminists" are the "business of women." Maybe, rather than one group, should save some of his advice for the home front.

No more Madonna, please!

Her nickname "Boy Toy" says it all: Madonna is nothing more than an oversexed, overtuned, overappropriate, overblurzy, overcelebrity whose "music" is overplayed. She is exactly what market herself to be: a sex object.

But her tour is streamlining the continent she is leaving in her wake a trail of Warner's teenage girls who wanna beat the hell out of Madonna. Wasn't that what Madonna's and her image as a revolting sign of the decadence of our society and will destroy everything in their power to end existence and change the country that spawned her. An accurate portrayal of woman's personal only be found in the song the material that is a disgustedly unembarrassed person and a highly educated person, Madonna's attempt at a ballad, "Crazy for You," is overplayed, if possible, even more than USA For Africa. Worst of all is a song characteristic of all of Madonna's songs. With no tune, meaningless lyrics, emotional sexual promiscuity and sung with no voice control whatsoever, the Wanna Bees cringe at even the opening strophe of "Lucky Star."

The Wanna Bees have not only criticized Madonna's but also the singer herself. Madonna is a symbol, and her take-it-or-leave it personality, her arrogant nature and, most of all, her bony manner. When asked to respond to a group of Chicago soda pop, Madonna vehemently rejected the suggestion that she设计es the idea the way the way she make mistakes or a sex symbol because she have a typically voluptuous body.

There is reason to believe, however, that whatever for the Wanna Bees' cause. Madonna is almost time for her to make another career change. Madonna told "Time" magazine several weeks ago that she would do another tour if her manager, Freddy DeMann puts a gun to my mouth, Freddy DeMann puts a gun to my mouth, and I have one waking desire that is, perhaps, Freddie will pull the trigger. —

House approves $5 million for local railroad relocation

By John Krukowksi
Staff Writer

A House of Representatives panel approved $5 million in funds for the Carbondale Railroad Relocation Project Thursday.

Gray, a West Frankfort Democrat, expects the House to pass the measure later this session.

Public Works and Transportation Committee Chair J. Fred Hardin said the funds in the House Public Works Committee would be re-appropriated to the project in the fiscal year 1986.

Gray expects "clear sailing" for the bill before the full House, McCaffrey said.

The funds would be made available beginning of the fiscal year in September and would be used for building new jail facilities.

Gray said the expected approval of the funds is in line with the decision to return federal monies to the construction of the jail.

"Many of the people we're talking about want to do the job if they only had a few million dollars," Hardin said.

with Illinois Department of Corrections standards. He said he has asked the DOC to explore other avenues of bringing the jails up to snuff because he considers it unfair to expect the financially-strapped counties, such as Jackson County, to be acting any differently.

The DOC last month asked Hartigan to sue Jackson County to make it move faster in building new jail facilities.

"Most of the people we're talking about really want to do the job if they only had a few million dollars," Hardin said.

The amount of information that jurors had heard or read about the case was also explored by the attorneys and Richman.

Stringent security measures have been taken for the trial. Richman has declared the second floor of the courthouse to be part of the courtroom.

Cameras, therefore, will be prohibited even outside the actual courtroom.

All people entering into the courtroom will be required to pass through metal detectors.

Seating for the public in the courtroom will be limited to 25 to 30 people. No standing will be allowed.

TRIAL: Jurors chosen in murder case

Thurmond. Attorneys expect the trial to take about three weeks.

Mrs. Azevedo was found dead on April 1, 1985. Her body was found in her car, which was parked in a field near the northeast boundary of Carbondale. She had been shot in the upper torso.

She was reported missing on March 25, 1985, when she did not show up at the St. John's Division of Social and Community Services, where she worked as a secretary. She had been divorced from Azevedo since January 1980, and had custody of their four children.

Police arrested Azevedo on March 8, 1985. Clemens said the arrest was the result of an ongoing investigation by the Jackson County Major Case Squad.

Questioning of jurors by the attorneys revealed that a government plans to bring in prison inmates to testify.

Azevedo worked part time as a dentist at the Menard Correctional Center in Chester when he was arrested.

Azevedo's attorney Brocton Lockwood, of Marion, asked possible jurors if they would be upset by pictures presented in court of Mrs. Azevedo that were taken after she was slain. Azevedo then was arrested.

‘McLeod’ means theater to Southern Illinoisans

By Martin Foan
Entertainment Editor

One name best explains theater to Southern Illinois — McLeod. Archibald McLeod, the former dean of the SIUC Theater Department for whom McLeod Theater is named, is associated with more than 100 theater productions, roles in musicals and plays, the initiation of the Summer Theater Program and more.

"When I came here in 1947, the College of Communications was the Department of Speech," McLeod recalls. "I was broke down into radio, theater and speech pathology. Then in 1954, or so, they decided to establish the College of Communications."

"A guy teaching radio became department chairman. I became department chairman of theater, I taught courses, directed plays — you know the usual thing."

From 1955 to 1965, theater performances were staged at Southern Playhouse, located where Fayer Hall stands now. SIU President Delbyte Morris asked McLeod if the theater department would like Shryock Auditorium remodeled and made suitable for theater productions. McLeod said yes.

McLeod’s reply to Morris was no, because “we didn’t want to share with the music department.”

Instead, Theater Department productions were moved into University Theater, renamed McLeod Theater in 1965 because of his leadership and involvement in the Theater Department.

Along with his directing and acting performances, McLeod has also applied his theatrical talents to stage setting, his favorite area of work.

"I think I like designing scenery the best, partly because I find it less stressful," he said.

College names assistant dean

Patricia D. Arey has been named assistant dean for external affairs in the College of Communication and Fine Arts. Arey will handle public relations, coordinate special events and assist in college development activities. Arey has served as a public information specialist in the College.

O’Connor leads British Open

SANDWICH, England (UPI) — Christy O’Connor Jr., carrying on the tradition of a proud family name, set a record seven successive birdies Thursday en route to a record round score of 64 and a four-shot lead after the opening round of the British Open.

Playing in the morning on the Old Course that helped wash away the chances of defending champion Seve Ballesteros and Jack Nicklaus. O’Connor had 18 birdies for the round — believed to be the Open record.

There were five men, representing five countries, tied for second at 68. O’Connor of Scotland. Along with them were Philip Parkins of Wales and Tony Johnstone of Zimbabwe, both qualifiers, and Robert Lee of England, playing in his first Open.

The 64 tied Craig Stadler’s record for the first round in the Open, and the four-shot margin equals the championship 18-hole record, last achieved by Henry Cotton in 1934 at Royal St. George’s. In that same year, Cotton set the course mark of 65 which O’Connor broke Thursday. Cotton, now 78, was one of the first to congratulate the Irishman Thursday as he jokingly asked him, “Do you play all 18?”

Fuzzy Zoeller, the 1984 U.S. Open champion who had never seen this difficult, 6,817-yard course until Tuesday, came in with a 69, where he was tied with D.A. Weibring, David Whelan, Bill McColl and Gordon Brand Jr.

For two of the more illustrious names in the field of 153, this was a day of disaster. Ballesteros bogeyed five of six holes from the 8th to 13th for a 75. Nicklaus, after missing the U.S. Open cut last month, found himself in similar jeopardy here following a 77.

Ballesteros, who pointed out that he won his first Open in 1979 also after an opening round of 75, was disturbed after waiting 25 minutes for a referee to arrive at the fourth hole and make a ruling on awarding him a drop. The 28-year-old Spaniard said this delay cost him a putting touch.

“It was just a bad day,” he said.

Phillips to lead MVC officials

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) - Missouri Valley Conference officials named Dave Phillips supervisor of basketball officials for the conference this fall.

Phillips, 41, has served as supervisor of officials for the Midwestern Conference since 1980. He is a 37-year veteran of college officiating and is in his 38th year as an American League baseball umpire. Phillips lives in St. Louis, where the MVC will move its league office to this fall. He worked in the 1976 World Series, the 1977 All-Star game and the American League playoffs in 1978 and 1980.

Sax’ James put on disabled list

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox Thursday placed relief pitcher Bob James on the 15-day disabled list due to a bruised right knee.

The move is retroactive to July 13.

James, the White Sox’ bulpen ace this season, has appeared in 35 of the team’s 51 games. He is 4-2 with a 1.90 ERA and 17 saves. Right-hander Bill Long will be recalled from the Buffalo Bisons of the American Association to replace James on the roster.

Doctors Thursday morning flushed softened cartilage from James’ right knee during arthroscopic surgery.

Leonard’s hit edges Cubs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mike Krukow tossed his first shutout of the season. It almost wasn’t good enough.

The San Francisco right-hander preserved the victory over Chicago Thursday until Jeff Leonard doubled in the fourth of the third inning to score Chili Davis and give the Cubs a 1-0 lead over the Chicago Cubs, who had preserved a 14-game triumphs over San Francisco at Candlestick Park this season.

"I don’t care if we are in last place," said Leonard. "The team is out there and doing everything we can have done."

He said that he was "scout" in recent starts, but that pitch strategies had been done by someone else because we have been losing.

"I’ll always keep it," Dorr said, "but I believe in the men’s basketball department.

Leonard said, "What I believe is that the men’s basketball department has been hurt by the fact that we have been losing.

Through the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee, a question directed to Lew Hartzog concerning the men’s sports information department was tactfully evaded. When asked why the budget for the men’s sports information department was to receive an increase of $19,300 (from $14,900 to $34,200) for fiscal 1986, Hartzog practically jumped up from the throne of the person who asked the question. Stuck and Hartzog, both of whom will leave the SICS athletics departments in the near future, should be aware of this situation where tact and cooperation are essential. They just can’t have for bickering between the different departments now involving the controversy.

By working together, the administrative administrators of both departments, along with President Smit and Stuck, could formulate a policy which would be to the long-range benefit of both departments.

Stuck should forget that he has been dubbed "hard nosed" and should try to be a little softer and more understandring.

the dictionary — stickability or quitability. I can always see the purpose, as there is a sense of responsibility.

"I got involved with it because I believe in the information of a child getting an education," Dorr said. "I encourage them to read and to get involved with activities, whether it be athletics or not. This helps them gain a sense of responsibility.”

Dorr said he will maintain his philosophy for the rest of his life because it will continue to enable him to help people.

"Before you can give somebody something you’ve got to have it," Dorr said. "So all I will do is keep my enthusiasm and motivation.”

Football Cards sign draft picks

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals Thursday announced the signing of second-round draft choice Scott Bergold, a lineman from Wisconsin, and third-round selection Dennis Williams, a linebacker from Florida.

Bergold, 6-foot-7 and 261 pounds, was the second overall defensive tackle in college. He is projected as an offensive tackle by St. Louis as a possible replacement for Louis Sharpe.

Burns, Sox cruise past Indians 10-0

CHICAGO (UPI) — Britt Burns hurled a five-hitter and the first seven White Sox reached safely in six runs first inning Thursday, sending Chicago to a 10-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

The White Sox had a season-high 16 hits as Reid Nichols was 4-for-5 with three RBI and rookie Ozzie Guillen and Tim Hullett both went 3-for-4.

It was the third straight victory for the Cubs in Chicago and the third loss in a row for the Indians.

Burns, 10-6, extended his scoreless streak against the Indians this season to 32 innings. The left-hander six and walked four in pitching his third shutout and sixth complete game of the season. Vern Ruhle, 2-5, allowed six singles and a walk to the first seven White Sox batters before being relieved.

Nichols singled to open the first and went to third on Bryan Littles’s single. Harold Baines singled home Nichols and Greg Waller walked to load the bases. Carlton Fisk then singled to left to make it 9-0.

Oscar Gamble singled off the glove of shortstop Julio Franco to drive in Waller and Huletts single to center to score Fisk for a 9-0 advantage.

Neal Heaton relieved and got Luis Salazar to hit into a double play but Guillen singled to complete the eighth.

The White Sox added a run in the sixth of Heaton on a triple by Huletts double by Nichols. They made it 10-0 in the eighth on an RBI double by Guillen and a single by Nichols off reliever Rich Thompson.

DORR: Coach thinks positive

Benefit tournament to help men golfers

By Anita J. Stoner

A couple of opportunities to support the Salukis await players in search of tax-deductible benefit scrambles. A special project approved a year ago by SIU-C, which is a result of the encouragement from the Saluki Men’s Golf Team Coordinator, Dorr, believes positive thinking can alleviate any problem — even failure.

In Dorr’s estimation, it is possible to fall. Failure is just an obstacle that sometimes gets in the way of the path to success, he says.

“Basically, you can’t be afraid to fail,” Dorr said. “Failure doesn’t mean you have failed, it just means you have found the wrong avenue toward success. The key is finding the right avenue.”

Dorr applied this theory in explaining the Salukis’ 1984 season, his first as the SIU-C coach. The team finished with a disappointing 3:4 record, but Dorr does not think SIU-C had a poor year.

“We never lost a game last year.” he said. “Time just ran out on us.”

Over the past several months, Dorr has been preaching his belief in positive thinking on many occasions. Since April, he has spoken at 46 engagements. The basic message at every engagement has been the same — through positive thinking, motivation and hard work, any task, large or small, can be accomplished.

“All my talks are directed at getting people motivated,” Dorr said. “My goal is to have a little Fort Worth Little League baseball team, home of the football Salukis, is an example of his positive outlook toward difficult tasks.

McAndrew Stadium has a seating capacity of 12,324, but it has never been sold out. The attendance record for McAndrew is 16,600, set Nov, 5, 1983, when the Salukis edged Illinois State 28-26. “I always set lofty goals because you have to think bigger,” Dorr said. “It takes a lot of time and dedication but this is the way to succeed.”

The primary reason he is able to maintain such a positive outlook is because of his desire to help people, he said.

“I think it’s important to have a good attitude about yourself and I get this through helping people,” he said. “As the football coach, I feel there is an opportunity to help people.

“I like to solve problems but I don’t give people answers for their problems. I try to help find short solutions for their problems.”

Dorr is an extremely busy man. He has virtually no room left on his appointment calendar because he has scheduled in hundreds of engagements, assignments and appointments for virtually every day of the year.

During “off-season,” he routinely works 20 hours a day. This leaves little time for anything else, including sleep. He catches naps on the couch during these times.

He maintains his composure during these in part through keeping three words in mind— preparation, organization and dedication.

“The bottom line is results. Whatever we do on this team, we are going to try to get them through preparation, organization and dedication,” Dorr said. “We all have ability but this ability can develop into two words that aren’t in

Athletics shuffle shouldn’t be rushed

By Steve Merritt

WhenDean Stuck was hired as special assistant for intercollegiate athletics, he was referred to ‘as a “hard nosed mediator” by men’s athletics director Lew Hartung.

University President Albert Sommit hired March 25 to “reassess and redirect” the athletics programs at SIU-C. Stuck’s original objectives were to begin the search for a new director for men’s athletics and to evaluate the men’s basketball program.

Two weeks later, the scandal involving Saluki basketball center Kenny Perry surfaced, turning Good Friday into Black Friday and putting Stuck in a very difficult position.

Stuck’s position, described by some as “temporary,” will run through Aug 31, effectively placing a time limit on any and all decisions that are to be made.

It could seem that a decision of such importance, a decision which involves all of the athletics budget totaling $3,375,785 would not be subjected to a time limit. The problem is that “haste makes waste” would seem equally applicable in this situation.

Stuck should be asked why and when such a hurry was necessary on the issue of far-reaching and women. Would not it be better to take the time to thoroughly examine the long term ramifications? Are the administrators of SIU-C not smart enough to make decisions without the supervision of Stuck?

Another question that should be directed to Stuck concerns why SIU-C students have in the intercollegiate athletics programs of the $3,375,785 that comes in the budget for fiscal year 1984-85.

SiU-C students are entitled to the individual student some type of direct input into the athletics systems. It is a fact that men's collegiate sports such as basketball and football generate the greatest revenues, which will go back into the athletics budget. It would be safe to assume that some of this money trickles into the operating funds of the
