Power Shift Raises Hob With Clocks

82 Teachers In 'Head Start' Train at SIU

Some 82 teachers are enrolled in the first of a series of six-day training schools at SIU for "Project Head Start." Before the series is over some 600 teachers will have received training on the Carbondale campus that will enable them to conduct classes for community volunteer workers who will "Project Head Start" centers. The training schools for preschool children will give underprivileged children training that will enable them to relate to the problems they will face when they finally enroll in regular schools.

The training schools at SIU at the direction of Thomas E. Jordan, professor of educational administration, SIU recently signed a $72,000 contract with the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity to conduct the schools. Jordan said the objective of this program is to "provide experiences for culturally and economically deprived children that would make the entry into school more pleasant and more unrestrictive." Mrs. Janice Yates, head teacher of the program and Mrs. Wanda Lackey, associate professor and director at University School, is director of the Head Start demonstration class. Jordan said the main objective of this program is to "provide experiences for culturally and economically deprived children that would make the entry into school more pleasant and more unrestrictive." The meetings at the Head Start School were photographed yesterday afternoon. Like most clocks on campus they didn't tell the same time. "More Sleeping Time"

Students Take Lack of Bells, New Class Hours In Stride

By Edward Rapetti

It seems old habits are hard to break. Miss Halter added that the June- minute classes would be made easier if the course was interesting, but otherwise she didn't like them. On the other hand, Conrad Kratz, a senior from Chicago, said that he liked the new "break from the old routine and the change makes things less monotonous. I like it." Susan Hayman, from Mount Vernon, said she didn't think the extended class time would make much difference, except that confusion would prevail. "This cut of more than $10 million from the teacher's request will mean the postponement of a number of projects at SIU. Among them were plans to renovate Shryock Auditorium and to construct a good classroom building at VT. These will now be postponed by the Board of Higher Education.

Among the four projects for which funds will be available is the construction of second phases of Life Science and Physical Science buildings and General Office and Service buildings at the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses. The meetings, at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., in Morris Library Auditorium, are planned to help students meet requirement for the fall quarter. The training schools at the University pool, a part of a supermarket, and checking out books from Morris Library. In addition to the 225 who are receiving training here, another 175 will be trained at SIU's Edwardsville campus.

Class Is 'Closed' In Close Quarters

Crowded classrooms at SIU are not unusual, but A. Frank Bridges, the associate dean of the college of education, really got a surprise when he showed up for his class in traffic safety (Health Education 443) this week.

He and 17 students dutifully reported to the assigned room — Room 122 in the SIU area. It's a men's room.

"I thought we would probably meet a class of 17 in there," Bridges said with a touch of humor in his voice. "I looked it over and there they were — only standing room for three or me and two for two."
SIU Student Is 1 of 5 Picked For Off-Campus Therapy Work

An SIU student is one of five selected to continue their coursework off-campus in Galesburg this summer. He is Robert N. Wildrick, formerly of Highland Park, whose home is now in North Caldwell, N.J.

Wildrick and the four other will work with the Activity Therapies Department of the Galesburg State Research Hospital this summer to gain in-service experience in occupational and recreational therapies. They will receive college credit for the work.

The program will get under way July 21 and all the students will live and work in the hospital under a program similar to internships at other hospitals.

Wildrick is majoring in recreation and outdoor education. He has been active in campus organizations including Sigma Pi social fraternity. Taking part in the program with Wildrick will be Randy Ahe, of Evansville College; Barbara Fox and Madelyn Levy, both from the University of Illinois; and Richard J. Davis, a student at Illinois Wesleyan.

Auto Regulations Apply for Summer

University motor vehicle regulations will remain in effect during the summer term, officials said Monday.

All student automobiles and motorized cycles kept on campus after next Sunday must be registered with the University and display a parking decal. Students in possession of unregistered motor vehicles face $50 assessments.

During the first three quarters of the school year over 160 students paid the fine, officials said. About half that number were assessed during the spring quarter alone.

Parking regulations also will remain in force.

Instructional Leadership Clinic Opens on SIU Campus Today

Registration for the Leadership Clinic for Instructional Development will begin in the Seminar Room of the Agriculture Building at 9 a.m. today.

Child and Family Specialist Rejoins Southern Faculty

Michael Zunich, child development and family relations specialist, has rejoined the faculty of the School of Home Economics this summer after a two-year absence.

Zunich had been teaching at San Jose State College, San Jose, Calif., for the past two years, will resume his post as associate professor in the Department of Home and Family.

One of his summer responsibilities will be to conduct a workshop on the operation and maintenance of nursery schools, according to Betty Jane Johnson, department chairman.

Zunich, a graduate of Ohio University and holder of master’s and doctor’s degrees from Akron University, has had three additional years in specialized study and research in child development and family relations at Florida State University. He has published numerous research articles in these fields in professional and scientific journals.

Before coming to SIU in the fall of 1962, he had directed preschool laboratories at Texas Woman’s College, directed graduate studies in child development and family relations, engaged in research, and served as a child consultant.

Students interested in signing up for the course should go to the choir office, R-5A, at Altgeld Hall, before Friday, or call 3-2570.
Students returning to SIU next fall will most likely find University Park completed. On the southwest corner of the campus will stand the pride of SIU, a rambling brick and steel. The dormitory, women's dorm, surrounded by a cluster of "little" six-story dorms which were to be the model for the new dorm, officially known as the "cardboard jumble," were old army barracks which served as temporary housing units for the University, nearly 10 years longer than they were originally intended to be inhabited, but the cardboard fire traps have given way to structures of brick and steel.

Oh, we should all be happy beyond expression, however, many of those students who inhabited the cardboard jumble are not happy about the loss of what, to them, will be a true home institution representing a lost way of life at SIU.

At Dowdell a student had real freedom in altering his environment, something that is impossible in current residence halls. Where Thompson Point residents craved for bulletin boards in their rooms, at Dowdell the entire dorm was devoid of it, a bulletin board (not men­tioned in the prospectus). To Learning Success

As the extended-day alternative for classes, the Soviet government views the family unit as a productive and wishes to diminish its influence. Any totalitarian regime, one that has been able to shape the pattern of a traditional society, must take the primary responsibility of the family. This is one of the reasons why some developing countries in the Communist camp are setting up boarding schools as fast as they can afford them.

The countries taking the child out of the home as soon as possible are not moved by political considerations alone, but the the Soviet Union is. These countries are also worried about the fate of those children who are now called "culturally deprived."

The implementation of the first six years on children development is persuasive, its effects may perhaps be diminished as life goes on, it seems unlikely that they can be erased. As education has become one of the major preoccupations of the Communist camp, they have all become concerned with the conditions of early life.

The United States is showing the same concern, but even more and more since that a bad home can ruin a child, the only way to do that is to take children out of such homes.

There is an alternative, and that is to make the homes better. Hence the state must abolish poverty and eliminate shams.

But the state is limited to improving the material conditions within which the family operates. The success of the family as an institution of moral and intellectual development must depend upon its adult members.

The American family of the future must become a more unit—and the family as we have known it is not necessarily for that purpose—or it will be impossible for the family to survive.

The new leisure that automatically comes with the high income may provide the chance to achieve this high ambition for the family.

GOP Senators Will Oppose Gas Tax Hike Asked by Kerner

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Republican Senators, deciding Wednesday to oppose a widely-supported hike in the state gasoline tax, were put at odds Monday by an appeal for a one-cent boost in the state sales tax, which Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago said would throw Kerner's bill out of line and require a scale down in the governor's two-year budget sharply out of appropriations.

The Republicans said they were waiting for action from the Senate's Ways and Means Committee before making any recommendations as to the budget. They also said they expected a one-cent state gasoline tax to eight cents, with one cent of the increase going for roads and the other two for school grants.

Sen. W. Ronald Arrington of Evanston, GOP majority leader, told newsmen the overall tax programs upon which the caucus would yield 22.5 million in general revenue during the 1963-65 fiscal period.

He contended the budget can be balanced and that a surplus will be left at the end of the bimennium.

In an aide to Kerner, who was in Burlington, Iowa, for a speech, said the governor would have no comment until he determines "how serious the Republicans are."".

Kerner proposed the two-cent hike in gasoline taxes to produce an additional 312 million for school aid. He also counted on a four-cent per package hike in cigarettes to supply an extra 513 million for the bimennium.

Arrington estimated the Senate already has cut 62 million from six departments and will slash some other offices including the secretary of state and attorney general.
ON-THE-JOB TRAINING—These student dietitians from SIU have secured jobs in the dietary department of hospitals for the summer to meet the requirements for degrees in home economics, specializing in dietetics. They are (left to right, standing) Janet Rosley of Jonesboro, at Anna Belleville; and Kim Wolters of Chicago, at St. Luke’s Presbyterian Hospital, Chicago.

When Students Tangle With Laudromat, Disaster Might Well Come Out in Wash

Pink may be a favorite color for lingerie but not for men’s underwear—that is except for the novice’s first trip to the do-it-yourself laundry. At the start of every term we always have a handful of guys who’ll show up, throw everything in the same machine—including red socks and sweatshirts—and go home with the loveliest passion-pink underwear in town,” one Carbondale laundry operator said.

And he recalled one poor guy who made that mistake. “When he put the clothes in the machine and started it, he had the lid closed. Instead of water going into the tub, it started to agitate. He then took his clothes out and put them in another machine. After he deposited the money, he found that the machine didn’t work. The third time he put in his laundry, soap and money, the machine worked—for a while, that is. When it was spinning after a rinse cycle, it got off balance. He opened the lid, started to rearrange his clothes and for some reason, it started up again, throwing clothes around the room. He hasn’t tried since to do his own laundry.

One student had the temperature gauge set too high on his dryer. When he took the clothes out, he had two beautifully scorched sheets along with his other clothing.

Another student washed his briefs with a load of clothes. Everything was ruined but the money he had in it. To him, that was the only important thing anyway.

Many students make the mistake of putting too much soap in their machines. One laundry operator exclaimed that too much soap hinders a clean wash, and aren’t good for the machine, either.

One student found that after he had his clothes washed, the coin changer in the laundry was empty and he couldn’t get any more coins to wash his clothes. It was 1:30 a.m. and there was no other business establishment open. He ended up drying them in his apartment over chairs, the bath tub, the shower curtain rod and a makeshift clothes line.

When one girl washed her clothes, instead of clear water coming in during the rinse cycle, the water contained globs of rust and mud. The next three hours was spent scrubbing each piece by hand until the load was done.

Most of the trouble, the owners insist, is because students just don’t follow the instructions on the machines or the printed signs on the walls.

“Just as long as they know how to do it better and end up doing it better,” one said.

They try to use the machines for everything imaginable: instead of just washing clothes.

“I even found one guys trying to sleep in one of the big dryers one night,” an owner said, “he insisted that it was cold and he couldn’t put any sleep on his feet. The nearest warm spot—of my dryer—and curled up for the night.”

U.S. Forest Council Meets at Southern

The North Central Forest Service Advisory Council is holding its summer meeting at SIU at the invitation of President Delcut W. Morris, member of the organization. The meeting opened today with an inspection trip through the Shawnee National Forest. President Morris was host at a dinner Wednesday evening at Giant City Lodge.

Today, the group will inspect Forest Service research facilities and hear reports on the boundary waters canoe area and public relations in forestry. The two-day meeting will end this afternoon.

Prof. Shute Gives Paper in Georgia

Milton Shute, assistant professor of agricultural industries, will present a paper at the annual meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, this week in Athens, Ga. The paper, “Appraisal of Latent Heat Loss from Chickens from Hatch through 24 Days of Age,” is based on Shute’s doctoral studies.

Shute came to SIU in 1965 as a farm structures specialist in agricultural engineering.
A High Adventure

Rich Jones to Coach Summer Baseball

A new head coach will be at the reins Friday when Southern's baseball team starts play in the newly formed Mid-Western Collegiate Summer Baseball League.

Rich "Itchy" Jones, who for the past two seasons was the head basketball coach at Jacksonville High School, will take over the head coaching duties from Abe Martin, who will devote his time this summer to the men's intramural program.

Jones, who graduated from Southern in 1960, played three years of varsity ball for Martin.

After graduation Jones played briefly in the minor leagues in the Baltimore Orioles farm chain. He was used as both an infielder and outfielder.

Coach 'Itching' for Strong, Accurate Thrower

Any student who possesses a strong, accurate throwing arm is urged to inform Southern's new head baseball coach, "Itchy" Jones.

Southern will start play in the Mid-Western Collegiate Summer Baseball League against St. Louis University at 9 a.m. Friday, and if Jones can discover anyone who faintly resembles a pitcher, his team doesn't lack for managerial depth. A success will be greatly improved.

If there is one of these teams in the new summer league and the only one that doesn't have one player from the varsity team on it, St. Louis University, Parsons College and the University of Illinois are the three other teams.

"We need help everywhere, but especially pitching," the young coach said. "The catchers are adequate and the infield and the outfield aren't real bad either."

"Itching" to compensate for Southern's lack of effective pitching, is the fact that the team will play only seven innings this summer.

PENNANT RACE IS CLOSE
In the American League

By Joe Rechler

NEW YORK (AP) — The popping of buttons you just heard were off Joe Cronin's vest.

There isn't a happier man in Boston, or anywhere else, for that matter, than the president of the American League. His baseball circuit is hosting a pennant race the kind league presidents dream of.

Only three games separated the fifth place Detroit Tigers from the first place Minnesota Twins after Tuesday's games.

The teams never have been this closely bunched near the top after 10 weeks of the campaign in any of Cronin's six previous years in the helm. That's why he's proud.

"The closest we had to this was during my first year as league president," recalled Cronin. "That was in 1959. Meanwhile, the year Chicago won the pennant. That was the last time a team won other than the New York Yankees.

New York won a squeaker last year, defeating Chicago by one game and Baltimore by two. But never, once the race got well under way, we re there more than three teams in con-competition.

Now there are five—with the Yankees for, but, Dick

Cronin think the Yankees' column, at least up to the present time, was good or bad for the league?"

"Well," he said cautiously. "I don't feel it's good for one club to keep on winning year after year.

"But I am not yet ready to count the Yankees out, I feel confident they will make a move soon. They've been hit by crippling injuries. It if weren't for that, I'm sure they'd be up among the contenders,"

Cronin voiced confidence that the close race would return to the tumults before long.

While the Yankees continue to be the biggest disappointment, the biggest surprise in Cleveland. The rampaging Indians, on a 10-game winning streak, are tied with the White Sox for second place, only a half game behind the twins. Baltimore's Orioles are third, two games off the pace and one game ahead of the fifth place Tigers.

Talking Books Project

Tape Recorded Texts Help Blind Students

Mohammed El-Khalafawy holds five degrees from colleges and universities, but it was not until he came to Southern Illinois University last winter that he found textbooks he could "read."

El-Khalafawy is blind. Here, thanks to a group of Carbondale Jewish women, Mohammed has textbooks on tape, so he can play them on a tape recorder and study for a master's degree in rehabilitation at hours of his own choosing.

El-Khalafawy, whose home is in Cairo, Egypt, is one of 19 students at Southern who are sightless or have limited eyesight and who are finding their educational road eased by a tape recording project sponsored by the Congregation Beth Jacob Temple Sisterhood.

Mrs. Irving Howards of Carbondale heads the program, which was inspired by other Church readers for the blind student, tape-records it, and brings the recording back on her next visit.

Tape read aloud the second book for the group, and the privilege of recording for the blind is used as a reward for good behavior, Mrs. Howards said.

"I thought it would be just my personal project," she said, "but I soon found myself reading for tape day and night."

Mrs. W. Baldwin, who is interested in the Jewish sisterhood in the project, and before long eight members were reading. They sometimes read at the university library, at other times would take the books home with them to record on their personal tape recorders. Sometimes one reader would start a book, while another would finish it.

The project began attracting other interested people. This year readers have included a Catholic priest, wives of University members, members of other churches in Carbondale and area towns.

One of the most faithful readers has been Mrs. W. Baldwin, whose husband is a University English professor. Mrs. Louis Widens of Maysville, president of the sisterhood, is another.

So far, the project has produced about 50 textbooks on tape, Mrs. Howards said. The most difficult to read are those in scientific fields, such as physics and chemistry.

"The symbols must be described in words so that the student who has never seen them can grasp them," she said. "Students who have been blind since birth have never seen colors, so some phrases must be conveyed in different color words."

When the books are recorded, Mrs. Howards said, Mrs. Alberta O'Shaughnessy, wife of a blind student, makes braille cards for the tape, which are incorporated in the University library card catalogue of materials for the blind.

It may be a man's world, but the coeds at SIU haven't been convinced. No longer are the traditional men's fields safe from feminine invasion.

According to a recent study, there is not a single academic unit without at least a few women enrolled.

Business, once a field reserved almost entirely for men, can no longer claim that distinction at Southern. The 957 male business students on the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses now have the company of 61 women.
