Five families cross racial line with kids

By Dave Stearns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Three or four years ago there were many black infant orphans in need of homes. A few white couples wanted children—hard-to-place ones—and adopted black infants.

Five Carbondale families who have done so feel that transracial adoptions will help ease racial differences. But they express some varying views on how the children should be raised and the problems they may encounter.

Transracial adoption--I

"Differences among people, whether ethnic, racial or religious, are good—differences enhance a community. These differences should be appreciated—they should not divide society," said Robert Trager, Trager, assistant professor of journalism, and his wife adopted a black girl.

Cliff and Nancy Callahan have similar feelings. "Why sit around for two years waiting for a white baby when black babies don't have a home?"

Callahan said. "I would like to adopt children of all different races—I think that's the best possible way to raise kids, because racial discrimination will just go out the window. The idea of a little United Nations is appealing to me."

Compassion was the motive of George and Grace Hussey. "My wife grew up in an orphanage, and she realizes the importance of giving these children a home," said Hussey. The couple has adopted a boy of American Indian descent and a mulatto girl.

These children, who have been adopted at infancy, are not yet at the age when they realize the skin differences between them and their parents.

Kindergarten age is approaching, and parents who have transracially adopted are preparing their children for the world and its racist elements.

Callahan said, "If Darby (his son) has a good understanding and appreciation for people around him in society—if those things are right—then it will resolve almost any problem he might encounter. If a child lives with a family of his own race, he could easily grow up with a concept of racism and interrelated pressures."

10 of cut faculty fail to sign pacts

By Jeff Jouett
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Ten faculty and staff members who are among the terminated personnel being offered out-of-court settlements by SIU had not reached an agreement by Monday, according to Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs and provost.

"Deadline" for arriving at cash settlements is Friday, the last business day in fiscal year 1974, according to Interim President Hiram Lesar. Rehiring of fired faculty and staff in other jobs at SIU "will still be open after July 1—at least until school starts," Lesar added. "Sometime next week," Lesar said, he and his staff would decide whether to continue SIU's suit to establish "financial exigency," necessary to fire tenured faculty against the individuals who have not settled.

A ruling on a motion by SIU's attorney in that suit, John Feirich of Carbondale, is expected at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in Jackson County Circuit Court in Murphysboro. The motion asks that SIU's class action suit against the 104 be dropped to individual action suits against the 19 faculty and staff who had not signed settlements on June 4, when the motion was filed.

Since then, according to Leasure, nine other terminated personnel have reached agreements with SIU and signed releases forfeiting their right to representation in the 104 suit and individual grievances.

Lesar said Monday he "wants to see how many still want to argue with us" before deciding whether to continue the litigation on individual basis or "drop the suit and let them sue us."

Of the 10 currently unsettled, Leasure said Monday he expects "three or four" may still have not signed releases by July 1, Lesar said "possibly not that many."

Of tenured terminated faculty Leasure said "there's one I don't know about and one I'm not going to worry about any more." Leasure said he was "not going to worry about" a tenured faculty member who had turned down a job offer but still had the option of a cash settlement.

Of the other six tenured faculty who haven't settled Leasure said "I really think four will accept jobs" and "I sincerely believe we will settle with two for cash."

Leasure described one of the tenured terminated faculty as "in the process of settling." "The settlement check is in my office now," he said Monday. "It just won't be picked up until tomorrow."

Gov. Dan Walker raps with students at Merlin's.

Governor sips a draft and boogies before student crowd at Merlin's

By Bill Layne
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Gov. Dan Walker boogied, drank a draft, puffed his pipe and fielded questions from SIU students and Southern Illinois residents at Merlin's Sunday night.

Walker assured the audience he was maintaining his independence from Chicago politics.

"I learned a lot about geography during my walk around the state. I found out that Illinois is bounded on the east by Indiana, on the south by Kentucky, on the west by Missouri and Iowa, and on the north by Chicago Mayor Richard Daley," Walker told about 250 people.

Shaking hands as he waded through the crowd, the governor entered the dance section of the bar to the tune of Frank Sinatra's "Chicago." As the spotlight focused on the governor, Bill "Hard Guy" Anderson presented Walker two mementoes of his visit to Southern Illinois—a book titled "Quotations from Mayor Daley" and a record of Pat Paulsen's presidential speeches.

Walker danced with SIU student Sharon Cascio. Her reaction to "boogeying" with the governor—"He does all right for an older man."

SIU Student Body Vice President Robert Seely asked Walker what students could do to obtain more funding for SIU from the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

"There's nothing I can do because I can't justify to the people of Illinois an increase in funds to SIU with the enrollment going down. The best thing to do is lobby," Walker responded.

Earlier in the day Walker attended two Democratic Party fund-raising benefits in Southern Illinois. A reception at Bonaparte's Retreat was followed by a $100-per-plate dinner at Tony's Steak House in Marion.

The proposed $106 million SIU budget was another item which kept surfacing during the hour and fifteen minute impromptu session at Merlin's.

"I'll take a look at the budget and make a decision on it when it gets to my desk," Walker said.

The dancing wasn't limited to students Sunday night as several Southern Illinois residents picked up the beat of Hard Guy's music. One of the dancers carried a "Walker for President" sign as she danced.

With aides always at his elbow, the governor said he is planning some changes in the SIU Board of Trustees. Walker wouldn't disclose, however, who he will appoint to fill the position vacated by former board member W. Victor Rouse.

One student asked him if he supported the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

"I'm for the ERA unequivocally. I'm all out for it."

Walker added he hoped the courts would decide in favor of a simple majority for passage of the measure. Supporters of the amendment are waging a court battle to repeal the three-fifths majority needed for passage.

"It seems that the votes are there if the procedure is changed," Walker said.

As Walker worked his way to the door, he told one Southern Illinois resident that he's not turning his back on Southern Illinois, and he hopes to return "real soon."

Adoption helps eliminate racial barriers

"When my daughter gets into the lower grades, and especially during adolescence," explained Trager, "she'll feel the physical and social difference. We're realistic—she'll have to make a decision to deal with black or white people. We hope she won't have to make this choice."

Both Margaret Katranides, whose adopted black son Peter recently completed the first grade, and Hussey, whose Indian-blooded son is 12, say that their children have not been forced into any polarization, and have both black and white friends.

How much a black child in a white family should be taught about the black culture is another question that the families have to face.

Although Pat and Larry Phillips and the Tragers feel inclined to tell their children about black culture, Callahan believes, "If we gave Darby a specific preparation or indoctrination, it would make an issue out of the whole thing."

Said Mrs. Katranides, "Most of us in this country are a mixture of different nationalities. I try to provide Peter with cultural raw material so he can choose his own way of adopting to society. I let him know about black culture, but I'm also proud of my Anglo Saxon and Greek background."

Most of the parents feel inclined to cultivate black friends as a source of identification for their children. In Hussey's case, to help his son with problems he might have with his dark skinned identity, (and to give another child a home) he adopted a mulatto girl.

"You know, you even lose sight of color and feature differences when you have children of another race. When you blot out your prejudices and take a good look at a non-Caucasian, they're beautiful people," Hussey said.

But what about social problems of the parents. "I've gotten plenty of dirty looks in the supermarket and such," Mrs. Callahan said. "But I just smile and act affectionate toward Darby. Black men are far more accepting than black women. The women seem to get uptight because they think Darby is biologically mine."

"Once in the grocery store," related Mrs. Phillips, "an elderly white woman came up to me and asked in a very negative way, 'Where did you get him from?' Because of the fact that we have a black child, I've become a lot more sensitive to racial discrimination—but not in a paranoid way. I know how black people are treated in restaurants."

"It's been magnificently rewarding having a black child," Callahan said. "We were told we'd have problems being accepted by our friends and parents, but these are myths—we haven't had any problems of this sort. Most people have been delighted by Darby. Negative surface reactions toward a black baby and a white family disappear after a brief exposure to us. You can just see it dissolve."

Nobel Prize winning author Pearl Buck wrote, "Adopting a black child into my white family has taught me much I could not otherwise have known. Although I have many black friends and read many books by black writers, I rejoice that I had the deep experience of being mother to a black child.

"In short...love is color blind."

agreements with administrators and "I don't see any settlements in the offing," Leasure continued.

SIU began offering monetary settlements April 24 to tenured faculty and faculty and staff on continuing appointment who were terminated. Settlements were offered in lieu of one year notice of job termination.

Cash settlements have been negotiated individually and range up to a full academic year's pay. Funds for settlements must be committed by June 30 and spent by Sept. 30 because the money comes from this year's budget, Lesar has said.

"I lose the authority to offer cash after Friday," Leasure said Monday. Leasure reported that 29 of the original 104 named in the class action suit have accepted cash settlements. Eighteen have been rehired in other positions at SIU, he added.

Several terminated faculty and staff members found employment outside of SIU and some qualified for early retirement and disability benefits, he explained.

Of the original 104, tenured faculty numbered 29, there were 28 faculty and staff on continuing appointments and 57 held term appointments. Some fired term employees have been rehired in new positions, Leasure explained.

Senate OK's 1 Memorial Day; House undecided

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The Illinois Senate voted Monday to give the state a single Memorial Day in 1975 but the final decision rests with House members.

A similar bill to make Illinois' Memorial day coincide with the federal observance of the holiday was shelved earlier by a House committee.

House members also blocked an attempt last week to bring the bill out of committee. Opponents contended that Memorial Day should be observed on its traditional date, May 30, rather than on the last Monday in May under the Federal Uniform Holiday Act.

The measure's supporters in the Senate, however, argued that chaos resulted this year when some persons celebrated Memorial Day on May 27 and others on May 30.

An aborted attempt to pass the Senate measure Sunday fell several votes short of the required majority and a final recorded vote was postponed.

Meanwhile, the House made major changes in a tax-relief bill proposed by Gov. Daniel Walker. But they postponed a final vote on the measure.

As originally introduced by the governor's supporters, the bill eliminated the sales tax on drugs.

But the House approved an amendment proposed by Rep. James Washburn, R-Morris, to exempt only nonprescription drugs. Washburn contended that pharmacists would not pass the tax savings on prescription drugs to consumers.

The House also approved an amendment to reduce the state sales tax on food by 1 per cent.

The state sales tax is 4 per cent, and local governments are allowed to add an additional 1 per cent. The reduction would come from the state's share of the tax revenue.

The amendment's sponsor, Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, estimated the tax would cost the state a total of about $50 million a year. Walker's original proposal to eliminate the tax on drugs would have cost the state an estimated $20 million a year in revenue.

In other action:—The Senate approved and sent to the House legislation making part-time and graduate students eligible for grants from the State Scholarship Commission.

Crab Orchard asks for incorporation

by Charlotte Jones
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council was asked Monday night to allow the Crab Orchard Estates subdivision to incorporate into a village.

Dwain Murphy, representing the Crab Orchard Home Owners Association, said the 461 residents of the estates need a sewerage system and fire and police protection.

The council decided to meet with representatives of the Home Owners Association to discuss possible annexation, incorporation, contracting for city services and other possible solutions to the problems. A date for the meeting was not set.

The council decided to delay action on two recommendations by the Cedar Lake Planning Commission until members of the Forest Service and Pomona township are present.

The Cedar Lake Planning Commission has recommended closing a portion of Dutch Ridge road off of Route 127 near the lake. The commission has recommended denial of a boat launch requested citizens of the Pomona township.

At a town meeting held before the council meeting, Barbara McCall Lorek of South Wall Street recommended the University City complex be developed into a recreational center for families and senior citizens in the southeast section of the city.

McCall Lorek, mother of three children, said the council had a lack of concern for recreational opportunities in the southeast section.

She also proposed setting up bike trails and establishing a YMCA bus stop to transport children in the southeast section to the day care center at Giant City.

Southern Illinois has been caught in an unseasonably low temperature trap for the past few days, with cooler weather still to come.

SIU going under statewide payroll

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU and 10 other state funded schools will become part of a statewide payroll system starting July 1, James D. Hamilton, payroll director, said Monday.

Some 41,000 state workers in the 11 schools will join about 75,000 other state employees now being paid out of the State Comptroller's Office in Springfield, Hamilton said.

An employe paid entirely from state funds for work completed after July 1 will be issued a State of Illinois warrant from the Comptroller's Office.

If an employe was being paid from non-state funds he or she will continue to receive his or her checks from the University.

Some of the areas to be paid by state warrants include all instructional units, information processing, student affairs, accounting, purchasing and bursar.

Non-state accounts include physical plant, auxiliary enterprises, food services and housing.

Hamilton said pay dates and places would remain the same. He added that pay checks issued in July will be issued by the University since work completed for the July checks was done in June.

The low reported on Sunday and Monday was 50 degrees, and the Southern Illinois Airport weather station predicted nighttime temperatures will drop to the mid-40's before the cool spell is expected to break on Thursday.

This spring's cold, wet weather has taken its toll on area agricultural output, particularly on corn and soybeans.

Bob Frank, the agricultural extension advisor for Jackson County, said the cold spell may slow down the drying process for a number of crops in the area.

Cooler temperatures have not presented severe problems for farmers. Frank said, but the wet weather has put many corn and soybean farmers a month to a month and a half behind schedule.

"Every time farmers get out in the field and work it rains," Frank said. The harvesting of crops may be further delayed, he said, because of the continuing wet weather.

Farmers are usually able to harvest corn at 13 1/2 per cent moisture content, he said, but the moisture content at this time is 15 per cent.

Frank said corn growers have already missed the cut-off point for a good crop yield, but soybean farmers may still have a chance.

Cooler temperatures may also have had some effect on electrical consumption in the area, according to figures from Central Illinois Public Service Co. (CIPS).

Bill Bowly, public affairs supervisor of the CIPS Marion office, said the normal growth rate of residential electrical consumption has fallen off by 1 1/2 per cent in the past few months.

This fall-off in average home usage may be due to the decreased use of air conditioners, he said, "but there are so many variables involved that it's almost impossible to determine" exact cause of the decline.

Walker approves money for airport

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
MARION—Gov. Dan Walker announced Monday the approval of $144,250 in state funds for improvements at Southern Illinois Airport.

Speaking to about 120 people at Jefferson Elementary School, Walker said a $137,275 project was also approved for Centralia Municipal Airport. The two projects will include runway resurfacing, reimbursement for land purchases and extensive safety improvements, Walker said.

At Southern Illinois Airport, which serves Carbondale and Murphysboro, the project will include the installation of directional light boxes and tower lighting controls, erecting safety fencing and demolishing two buildings for a more accessible runway clearance.

"The project will mean two things," Walker said. "First, the airports will get the repairs and safety improvements they need and secondly the jobs will provide work for Southern Illinoisians."

Walker said his approval of the funds means the state can now apply for federal money to match state and local funds at a three-to-one ratio.

The funds have been released on a preliminary basis, Walker's aide Mark Clark said after the announcement. Local governments must match the state funds, and together that sum would equal 25 per cent of the total. The federal government will pay 75 per cent of the total $2,221,000 in funds for both projects, Clark said. When the federal government accepts the state application, the state funds will be released, he said.

Walker handed a $725,000 check to Eileen Parker, Williamson County director of special education, for the construction of a new wing on Jefferson Elementary School as a facility for the education of deaf children.

The new facility will serve approximately 50 children from 22 Southern Illinois counties. It will include 11 classrooms, two speech therapy clinics, a deaf education library, and other offices.

Walker said he is hopeful the new school will be ready to receive students for the 1975-76 school year. He credited Gene Johns, D-Marion, for keeping up the fight for the facility over the past few years.

Walker announced that two information centers will be opened July 1 in Union and Will counties. A Southern Illinois Information Center will be located inside the Department of Transportation rest facility adjoining Route 1-57, about eight miles north of Anna.

Walker said his office would "take every step we can, big and small, to encourage people from all over Illinois to visit Southern Illinois."

A plan to "enhance attendance" at the DuQuoin Hambletonian was announced by Walker. The plan includes moving the race from Wednesday to Saturday, seeking a television network contract for live coverage, establishing pari-mutuel betting and launching a promotional campaign for the race.

The opening of a new coal mine near Albers, about 30 miles east of St. Louis, was praised by Walker. "I am very optimistic that there will be many more mines opening up to make mining and mine support industries major industries of the state," Walker said.

When asked about the proposed Southern Illinois coal gasification plant, Walker said he is pleased with the approval of $50 million for the project by the Illinois Senate.

Pollution controls eased

In passing its emergency energy legislation, the 93rd Congress has given the American public an ineffectual and unrealistic program for dealing with a dangerously growing dilemma: automobile pollution. The bill's auto emission amendments were passed on the premise of three major contentions by the auto industry. The provisions of the Clean Air Act of 1970, which called for a 90 per cent reduction in the emissions of hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxide by 1975, were said to be unrealistic and unattainable. Alternative devices to the internal combustion engine were said to be economically unfeasible. And lastly, because of the "energy crisis," manufacturer's costs for pollution control devices with a proportionate decrease in efficiency of fuel consumption were said to be unwarranted. Congress bowed its muddled head to these claims and gave the car-makers an extension, until 1977, of the Clean Air Act provisions, with modifications.

Detroit has already placed devices on its cars which have reduced the hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions by as much as 75 per cent, and EPA-tested catalytic converters have been shown to be capable of reducing those pollutants by as much as 98 per cent. The cost to the manufacturer?—an average of $314, which is promptly placed on the retail price of the vehicle. Because nitrogen oxides are a direct result of the heat produced in an internal combustion engine, their reduction is somewhat more difficult and expensive. However, the Wankel rotary engine produces 25-75 per cent less nitrogen oxides than the common internal combustion engine.

The auto industry has repeatedly claimed that an alternative to the internal combustion engine is presently unfeasible. The car makers, though, have not said that the cost of an automobile is directly related to the combined weight of all its parts, and the Mazda rotary engine (185 horsepower) has only 154 moving parts as compared to the average V-8 (195 horsepower) engine with its 388 oil-soaked mechanisms. And because of its smaller, size, the Wankel engine would utilize a much smaller chassis than the ordinary American gas-guzzling monster. Another alternative, the Rankine cycle steam engine, in tests conducted by the EPA, has met all the emission level requirements of the Clean Air Act; and in testing by Thermo-Electron Corp., has proven to be a more efficient fuel consumer than either the Wankel or the internal combustion engines.

The last argument that the auto companies use, that costs and decreased miles per gallon do not warrant such stringent provisions as the Clean Air Act demand, is pure poppycock. General Motors, in the early 1960's took out five patents on an air-injection system which they could produce at a cheaper cost than the exhaust devices they are now employing on their models, but failed to implement them—giving no explanations.

Some doubt has been raised as to the legitimacy of the oil crisis altogether, and it seems Detroit is trying to squeeze the lemon for everything it's worth.

A better way

There's a song that goes "your graduation means goodbye." For some, graduation is a very important if not symbolic moment in their lives. With June graduation still fresh in mind this would be a good time to examine the process a bit more closely to see if it is really satisfying the wishes of a student's realized goal.

Close opinion taking would probably reveal that many graduating seniors are trying to find ways to avoid a ceremony that at the present does not appeal to them. This could be reflective of new behavior and attitudes that arose from the commencement ceremonies during the Viet Nam War that made a socially conscious individual feel uneasy about "graduating" into the status quo. With the war over, the traditional cap and gown rite remains but to many it is representative of the old school that many would like to disassociate from. Many traditions have fallen to make foundation for a more relevant form.

At SIU the time has arrived to remove the guise of authority and reveal a concerned individual about his world and meet that need with a different respect.

SIU is a large university with a tremendous enrollment. It does not boast a small school atmosphere where everyone becomes friends. At best one hopes to become acquainted with those in the department of their study and the strata one lives in. Anything outside that realm within the context of the university becomes impersonal. It is a familiar confrontation.

"WELL OUR SPACIOUS SKIES GOT DIRTY WHEN WE CUT BACK ON CLEAN AIR STANDARDS AND WE SOLD THE AMBER WAVES OF GRAIN TO OTHER COUNTRIES. ## Clap, if you believe in the Dairy Fairy

By Arthur Hoppe

Herewith is another familiar story from that beloved classic, "Unbelievable Fairy Tales for Innocent Grow-Ups." This one concerns The Dairy Fairy and The Pot of Gold at either end of Pennsylvania Avenue.

Once upon a time, there was a cow named Bossie. She ate lush green grass and sweet yellow buttercups under a big blue sky with puffy white clouds. And she gave creamy-rich milk which everybody, except a few crotchety cardiologists, said was good for you.

But Bossie was not a Contented Cow. Bossie was a Discontented Cow. "Why do people keep milking me," she said discontentedly. "All they think about is money—m-o-n-e-y, money!"

Well, Bossie had just said the magic word and—Shazam!—there stood The Dairy Fairy.

"Don't worry, Bossie," said The Dairy Fairy. "I will solve your problems. Remember my magic slogan, 'Every Body Needs Milk'—particularly every governmental body."

So The Dairy Fairy went to The Big White House where the Prince lived. At the door he found a note "Please leave three quarts of homogenized, two pints of cottage cheese and one pot of gold."

Inside, the Prince was talking to a television camera. "Hi, there," said the Prince. "Golly, I guess I've always liked milk ever since my Mom gave it to me with her cherry pie while Dad booted the Dodgers. At the end of a hard day, I always say, 'Rosemary, bring me a shot of milk over ice,' because I believe in milk. It may sound childish but, to be perfectly candid, I also believe in honesty, integrity and The Dairy Fairy."

Well, The Dairy Fairy was so pleased he filled the Prince's order. And they had a nice, long, two-hour chat about milk and how good for you it was, especially if you were running for re-election.

The very next day, just by coincidence—would you believe it?—the Prince raised the price of milk three hundred million dollars.

Naturally, this caused talk. In fact, some of the Prince's evil enemies went so far as to whisper that he had raised the price of milk in return for the pot of gold—and there wasn't really a kindly Dairy Fairy at all!

My! What consternation this caused! An investigation was demanded by the people. A couple of dozen of the sternest judges on Capitol Hill met in solemn splendor to determine whether there was, or was not, a kindly Dairy Fairy.

But, my goodness, the clever Dairy Fairy had already visited 16 of them to remind them how good milk was for you, especially if you were running for re-election—and to give them little pots of gold as mementoes of his unselfish generosity.

Well, now, the judges certainly agreed that the pots of gold had nothing whatsoever to do with the price of milk as far as they were concerned. What's more, they said, they had always believed in honesty, integrity and The Dairy Fairy.

So everybody lived happily ever after, including The Dairy Fairy. He quit his job and became an Oil Lobbyist. "There's even more magic," he said, rubbing his hands, "in oil."

But thanks to the wonders performed by The Dairy Fairy, Bossie was a Contented Cow. For instead of the people milking the cows, the cows now milked the people.

+ + +

Moral: Support your needy political leaders—drink more milk.

Letter Seeks monsters

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would be interested in establishing some contacts in Southern Illinois that are engaged in research or would follow up local accounts of monster sightings similar to those mentioned in my article in the July 74 issue of FATE or in the Daily Egyptian of 11 Dec. 68.

'Vacation, Learn' program offering non-credit courses

Vacationing SIU alumni and their families can enrich their learning this summer by attending a non-credit "Vacation and Learn" education program sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education.

Persons may select from three sessions—July 8-13, July 15-20, or July 22-27. Aside from regular class sessions, vacationers will have a schedule of fishing, boating, hiking, golfing, or horseback-riding.

"Vacation and Learn" programs include: The Christian Concept of Revolution—the criteria of a revolution will be examined along with what Christianity has to say about it, 9-11:30 a.m., July 8-13 only; Did You Hear What I Thought

I Said?—discusses problems in communicating with others, 1:30-4 p.m.; Art of Illustrating, 9-11:30 a.m.; Getting Along with Others, 1:30-4 p.m.; Vacation with a Click—camera instruction, $10 fee for film processing, 9-11:30 a.m.; Getting to Know the Mississippi Valley and Southern Illinois through its Writers, 9-11:30 a.m.

Other subjects will be: Coping with Death, 1:30-4 p.m., July 8-13 or July 15-20 only; Sociology and Everyday Experiences, 1:30-4 p.m.; Black Gold of Our Own—about mineral resources beneath southern Illinois, 1:30-4 p.m., July 8-13 only; Cultivating Your Green Thumb, 9-11:30 a.m.; Dealing with Behavior and Learning Problems in Children, 1:30-4 p.m.; Mathematics in Contemporary Society; Getting to Know Southern Illinois, 1:30-4 p.m.

Sensible Eating Makes Sense After 65, Too, 1:30-4 p.m.; The Vacation Saver, 1:30-4 p.m.; Apples and Oranges and Modern Math, 9-11:30 a.m.; Understanding Radio and Television Programs, 9-11:30 a.m.; Fitness for Living, 1:30-4 p.m.

Other workshops this summer include Youth World (July 7-12); School District Financial Accounting Workshop (July 22-26); School of Advanced Cosmetology (Aug. 11-17); and the Illinois Bankers School (Aug. 12-23).

Further information and registration forms can be obtained from Andrew Marcec at the division or call (618) 453-2395.

Activities

Recreation and Intramurals: Pullian pool, gym, weight room and activity room 7 to 10 p.m.; boat dock 1 to 6 p.m.; beach 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.; tennis courts 6 p.m. to midnight.

Education for the Patient: Meeting, 9:30 a.m., Student Center Auditorium.

Men's Intramural Softball Team Manager's meeting: 5:15 p.m. Sharp, SIU Arena 121.

Campus Crusade for Christ: Leadership Training Classes, Introductory meeting, "Learn How to Communicate Your Faith," 7:30 p.m., Student Activities Room A and B.

Ananda Marga Yoga Society: Meeting, 7 to 10 p.m., Home Ec. Lounge.

Institute will discuss patient education

A two-day institute designed to help health professionals develop model patient education programs will open Tuesday in the Student Center Auditorium.

The concept is that a doctor who prescribes medication for a patient can also prescribe education so he can overcome sensitivities that may result from an ailment or disability.

Among those to attend the institute are physicians, health educators, hospital administrators and others in the medical field.

The institute is the first in a series of three to be sponsored by the University's Department of Health Education, the College of Education, the Division of Continuing Education and the School of Medicine.

Other sponsors are the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Bi-State Regional Medical Program and the Southern Illinois Health Manpower Consortium.

17 students attend SIU Language Institute

Seventeen students from nine campuses are attending SIU's Fifth Summer Institute of Language program.

Students of Vietnamese include Miss Tan Sok Joo, a librarian from Singapore. One of the members of the Cambodian class is Dr. Garret Conner of Carbondale, who is preparing to serve with the Christian and Missionary Alliance in Cambodia.

The eight-week summer session includes three levels of language courses, plus a grammar course and a reading course in Linguistics. The program is made possible through the 211d grant from the Agency for International Development (AID).

A course in the Culture of Laos and Cambodia is being taught by Prof. Ester Maring in the Department of Anthropology, and the Khmer language course by Thach Sarunh, a native of Cambodia.

Students come from such institutions as University of Montana, the University of Illinois, Northern Illinois University, the University of Kansas, Georgetown University and the University of Michigan. Ten of them receive a fellowship of $400 plus the waiver of fees.

Two of the students are graduate students from Korea. The American students are majoring in Southeast Asian history, politics or linguistics. Coordinator of the program is Prof. D.H. Nguyen, director of the Center for Vietnamese Studies.

Again this year, SIU is the only institution in North America that offers courses in Vietnamese and Cambodian.

'Cost of Defense' to be aired live on WSIU-FM

"How much is too much for our country's defense?"

This question will be the subject of the second in a series of National Town Meetings broadcasted live from the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

Senators John Tower and Thomas McIntyre will speak on the subject.

After the senators' speeches, newsmen and members of the audience will have an opportunity to comment on the issue, in keeping with the spirit of town meetings. WSIU-FM will bring the National Town Meeting concerning the "Cost of Defense" at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday on WSIU-FM 91.9.

Training class to benefit women begins July 3

The first session of an assertive training group for women will meet from 7:30 to 9 p.m. July 3 in Life Science II 226.

The course, to be held on five consecutive Wednesday evenings until July 31, will be geared toward women in educational and professional settings. The course will deal with problems such as asserting individual rights, being assertive without being passive or aggressive, and effective ways of handling specific problem situations.

Led by psychology graduate students Nancy Gulanic and Nechama Liss-Levinson, all university-related women—students, student spouses, faculty and faculty spouses—are invited to attend.

All women interested in participating should call 549-2266 in the evenings by Friday.

"I Do! I Do!" pleasing despite problems

By Michael Hawley
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

When taken into consideration that this is only the Market Street Dinner Theatre's second production, and that the show presented is not one of the most enthralling musicals ever written, the efforts of "I Do! I Do!" should please anyone wanting to spend an evening of dining and theatre.

"I Do! I Do!" has been traditionally defined as a musical about marriage. The narrative follows the sometimes shaky nuptials between a certain Agnes and Michael, from their wedding night through to their daughter's marriage.

Needless to say, a show with only two performers acting in the solitary setting of a bedroom over a period of 20 years is difficult to pull off. When the play first opened on Broadway in 1966, the drivers of this saccharine vehicle were Mary Martin and Robert Preston. Currently carrying on about "the remarkable things that happen when you say 'I Do! I Do!" at the Market Street Theatre are SIU graduate students Cindy Rose and Thomas Shepard.

If any single element was responsible for holding the entire production together from a spectator's point of view, it was Rose's portrayal of Agnes. From the beginning becomes a middle-aged femme fatale after learning her husband is seeing a younger woman. Rose bumps and grinds around the bedroom in the musical number "Flaming Agnes," proclaiming that "if I'm going to pot, this pot is going to be hot."

In the show's more serious moments, Rose also handles herself well. She possesses a gentle, though occasionally inaudible singing voice that quickly overcame some pitch difficulties she encountered in the show's opening number. Ms. Rose even manages to rescue a song with embarrassingly sexist lyrics, "What Is A Woman?" ("a woman is only alive when in love") with her well intended sincerity.

Unfortunately, Shepard's portrayal of Michael rarely compliments. Rose's Agnes, which creates a vacuum in many scenes where important interpersonal exchanges are supposed to take place. The problem is that Rose permits her character to mature, whereas Shepard's Michael doesn't until the final scene.

In a musical number where Michael lectures Agnes about how "men of 40 go to town and women go to pot," Shepard performs the number with the same newlywed immaturity of several scenes previous, rather than with an air of a distinguished middle-aged sophisticate.

Occasionally, however, the best efforts of both performers manage to fuse into one mass of talented energy. When this happens, as it does in the "Nobody's Perfect" number, the audience has a ball. In this scene Michael responds to Agnes' sarcasm by complaining about her nightly ritual of cold cream application. He retorts, "Every night between the sheets, must you look like 'trick or treat!'"

As a singer Shepard has a striking baritone voice which usually sounds more mature and professional than Ms. Rose's. Shepard must also be complimented for his work as the show's musical director.

The Market Street Dinner Theatre in Marion has shown for the second time that they are capable of providing a much needed entertainment function in Southern Illinois. We will most likely see future improvements.

The dinner theatre is becoming an increasingly popular way to spend a nice evening in a congenial atmosphere such as that provided by the Market Street Theatre. "I Do! I Do!" will be performed every Friday and Saturday night through July 13.

A Review

she had a firm grasp on the role of the anxious yet hesitant newlywed. She guided the part with convincing ease to a place of middle age wisdom and old age charm.

Rose consistently demonstrated her capability for the kind of sarcastic 'sneer' comedy which Carol Burnett has become noted for, particularly in the "Nobody's Perfect" sequence where the couple point out each other's faults with half-playful contempt.

The show's most entertaining moment occurs when Agnes dives into a fantasy trip in which she

"once the higher board approves, it should take about a month to finalize plans and let out bids for a contractor."

He does not expect the plumbing conversion to interfere with the routines of Neely residents. The plumbing system is located in a chase system of shafts with feeder vents onto each floor. Plumbers will be able to install the new piping while the old plumbing is still in use. "Except for a spot in the lounge area (on each of the 17 floors), no walls will be torn apart," Bianchi said.

The five-year proposal approved by the board finances the replacement of existing galvanized piping in the Neely plumbing system with copper tubing. The change-over is necessitated by the heavy mineral content of the Carbondale water supply, which causes the galvanized piping to corrode and lime-up, according to the proposal.

The corrosion and lime-up in turn causes the piping, valves and joints to clog, which has resulted in serious water stoppage and leakage.

"As corroded pipe becomes fully clogged," the board proposal continues, "it sometimes explodes. While these kinds of emergencies have been treated on a piecemeal basis, the piecemealing itself causes further problems. As work is done in one area, other difficulties to be anticipated are clogged pipes, joints and valves caused by corrosion and mineral deposits breaking loose and being carried along by the stream of water until they lodge at another destination."

Copper tubing is less susceptible to liming-up and is normally good for 25 to 35 years of use in an area with water containing heavy mineral content like Carbondale. Normally, the University uses copper tubing in its water distribution systems. However, since Neely was constructed during the Vietnam War, a federal restriction was in effect on use of copper.

Approximately four miles of piping and 9,500 various fittings will be required for the Neely conversion. Other buildings in U-Park and those in the Brush Towers area were constructed with copper plumbing.

Originally, Thompson Point, constructed during the Korean War, utilized galvanized plumbing also. Buildings in that area experienced heavy maintenance problems until conversion to copper plumbing was completed two years ago, according to Willard C. Hart, University architect.

A separate project is underway to replace the galvanized plumbing in Life Science I, also constructed during the Vietnam War, according to Hart.

field course will be devoted to regional field studies in Kansas, Colorado, Utah and Wyoming en route to the headquarters camp at Red Lodge for the remainder of the course.

Robertson says the botany group will go directly to the Red Lodge headquarters for field studies on four major types of vegetation: western grasslands, salt desert shrubs, Alpine tundra, and western forests of four major classifications. Ecology will receive major emphasis in their studies. Activities also will include regional field trips to parks and special developments, including Glacier National Park.

30 students enrolled in summer field studies

Thirty SIU students have enrolled for summer field studies courses centered at the Yellowstone-Bighorn Research Association (YBR) camp at Red Lodge, Mont.

Twenty are signed up for Field Geology Studies (Geology 454), intended primarily for junior and senior students in geology and providing nine quarter hours of college credit. The geology field studies will be for six weeks, from July 6 to Aug. 18, under the direction of John Utgaard and Russell Dutcher, geology department chairman.

Ten students from a variety of study areas have signed up for the Botany Department field course, Botanical Field Studies in the Rocky Mountains. It runs from July 7 to Aug. 10 under the direction of Philip Robertson, assistant professor of botany, and Carl Taylor, doctoral student and teaching assistant. The botany group includes students majoring in biology, botany, forestry and geography.

Utgaard said the geology students will be studying and mapping a wide variety of geological features in the mountains of Montana and Wyoming. The first eight days of the

$400,000 for Neely renovation

Plumbing project to drain funds

By Carl Courtner
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The $400,000 approved June 13 by the SIU Board of Trustees to replace plumbing in Neely Hall completely cleans out existing repair and replacement monies available for the University Park residence area, according to Rino Bianchi, director of construction and facilities planning.

The plumbing conversion will also utilize all the repair and replacement funds, generated by U-Park resident rents, for three of the next four years the project is scheduled to take, Bianchi said Monday.

Specifically, the project will be funded out of the repair and replacement reserve account of the U-Park Dormitory Revenue Fund, established by the board in the 1963 bond covenant to finance construction of the living area. The covenant required by bond indenture that $50,000 be set aside each year from rent funds, after U-Park opened in 1965.

During the coming fiscal year, the $235,000 presently available in the repair and replacement fund will be utilized to start the project, according to the board proposal. The normal accretion allowance of $50,000 will be used in the three following years to continue the conversion. Finally, the project will be finished in February 1978 with $15,000 of that year's accretion allowance.

"We'll be completing the replacement a little bit at a time," Bianchi said, "so if, for example, a wind storm breaks out all the windows in Neely, we'll have to stop work on the plumbing until more money is available."

The proposal has yet to be approved by the Illinois Board of Higher Education, Bianchi said. "It's hard to say when the actual work will be started," he added.

"Colloquial Vietnamese," an intermediate textbook for second-year students, has been published by the SIU Press. The revised edition is available in hardbound and paperback copies.

The author is Prof. D.H. Nguyen, director of the Center for Vietnamese Studies. The textbook is a continuation of "Speak Vietnamese," designed for beginning students.

SIU Press also published "Nguyen's Vietnamese-English Student Dictionary" in 1971.

Here's an amazing fact from baseball: As you know, it's extremely rare for a player to bat over 400 for a season, but did you know there was once a major leaguer who actually averaged over 400 for five straight years? Who was it? Answer is Rogers Hornsby: in 1917 he hit .297 in 1922, .401 in 1923, .364 in 1924, .424 and in 1925, .403. That figures out to a 5 year average of .402!

'Dirty Mary' chases, catches --and passes--tastelessness

By Michael Hawley
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

If the director of "Dirty Mary Crazy Larry" had the sense to snip Susan George's and Peter Fonda's vocal cords, it would have been a palatable film. Not good, just palatable.

But as Lady Luck would have it, the vocal cords remain intact and consequently the duo is permitted to run around loose and act. "Dirty Mary Crazy Larry" is a 1½-hour car chase in which Larry continuously calls Mary a 'dingleberry' and Mary continuously gets upset over being called a 'dingleberry.' And so it goes.

A Review

The reason why Mary, Larry and his mechanic are being chased is because they have just ripped off a discount store. Of course, they first have to hold the manager's wife and kid hostage for a while, in order to make their escape like bats out of hell in their super machine seem more dramatic.

The director of "Dirty Mary Crazy Larry" boasts that his film contains a crash, smash and a bang every five minutes. I wasn't keeping an eye on the clock at the Varsity, but I'll take his word for it. Yes indeed, Crazy Larry manages to drive over open draw bridges, causes a police car to drive into a lake, and in the film's comic relief ending, even drives into a moving locomotive (all the while laughing like a hyena to prove to us he's really crazy.)

In the James Bond flick "Diamonds Are Forever," there is a good sequence where Bond manages to destroy a squadron of police cars in the confines of a parking lot. "Dirty Mary Crazy Larry" is more of the same thing, only stretched beyond reasonable proportions. The spaces are filled in with several infantile subplots.

Even though many of the action sequences are somewhat exciting, they too are often ruined by a redundant comment or two from Fonda. It is hard to believe that Fonda and George could do something so bad, considering their past achievements. In the first place, Susan George is a very British actress (she played opposite Dustin Hoffman in "Straw Dogs"), so why she would even attempt to portray a snotty American groupie is beyond explanation. If they wanted an empty-headed country girl they could have at least hired a professional like Karen Black.

All the actors in "Dirty Mary Crazy Larry" sound as though they are auditioning for a 1940's radio drama. Peter Fonda tries very hard to act obnoxious, and he succeeds, but perhaps not for reasons he intends. Fonda spouts plenty of swear words which are followed by a

What is attempted in "Dirty Mary Crazy Larry," both in terms of action and psychological implications, has already been accomplished with much more style in films such as

"Two Lane Blacktop," "Vanishing Point" and "The Last American Hero." "Dirty Mary Crazy Larry" is like a hole in your gas tank, it's wasteful and it won't get you anywhere.

Petition will ask city council to enforce family zoning laws

Residents in a northwest section of Carbondale zoned for single family residences plan to present a petition to the City Council Tuesday night calling for the present city zoning ordinance to be enforced. The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at the University City cafeteria.

Stephanie Baker, 905 W. Linden, said Monday six petitions with about 150 names would be presented to the council at the continued hearing on a proposed new ordinance.

The boundaries of the single family residence zone in question run roughly from Pecan Street north to the railroad tracks and from Walnut Street on the West to University Avenue on the East.

Baker said the petition is a plea to the council to enforce the city zoning ordinance which prohibits more than two unrelated persons to share a dwelling in a single family zone.

in my neighborhood," Baker said, "but in some houses on our street there are as many as five or six students living together."

At the public hearing on the zoning map last Thursday Baker testified that students living near her made excess noise, which kept her family awake at night, parked on her lawn, let their dogs run loose, didn't keep their lawns mowed and left excess garbage in front of the house.

The proposed ordinance now before the council would prohibit further cooperatives in the northwest section. Forest "Rusty" Lightle of the Student Tenant Union said he will urge the council to check housing available in a price range students can afford before they pass the proposed ordinance. "There is a lot of both substandard and upper income level housing but the middle range housing which most students prefer and can afford is very limited," Lightle said.

Prohibiting further cooperatives may have the effect of forcing students into substandard housing which eventually will become a student ghetto, he added.

Russian dissident appeals for pact

MOSCOW (AP)—Dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov appealed Monday to President Nixon and Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev to work for agreements on freedom of emigration for Russians and for the release of Soviet political prisoners.

The appeal came in an open letter three days before the two leaders were scheduled to open summit talks in Moscow and just after a leading Soviet newspaper repeated a Communist offer to limit underground nuclear testing.

The newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya said Russia would be an honest and active partner with the U.S. in limiting strategic nuclear arms. It quoted a recent statement by Brezhnev saying the Soviet Union was ready to reach agreement on underground testing.

The appeal from Sakharov, known as the father of the Soviet H-bomb, came in an open letter to the two leaders, a copy of which was made available to Western newsmen.

Sakharov also urged Brezhnev and Nixon to promote freedom of religion and exchange of information between the two countries and halt persecution for opinion contrary to the Soviet regime and for wanting to leave the country.

The scientist's letter came in the midst of a nationwide roundup of Jewish activists by authorities, apparently to block protests during Nixon's visit over their inability to emigrate. More than 40 Jews have reportedly been detained in the last few days.

Four nominated for world games

Squids roll to national records

By Ellyn Boyd
Student Writer

The SIU Squids wheelchair track and field team set three national records and took six first place trophies at the National Wheelchair Games held recently in Cheney, Wash. The Squids also had four athletes nominated for the Stoke Mandeville Games to be held in July in England.

The Squids left Carbondale aboard a University DC 3 plane and joined approximately 350 athletes from all over the U.S. at the 18th annual National Wheelchair Games. For the past 17 years, the games have been held in Woodside, New York.

"This is the largest wheelchair team to have ever represented SIU at the nationals, and especially, the largest female contingency," said Rich De Angelis, advisor for the Squids.

Several of the Squids said it was nice to go to the nationals and see many SIU alumni who are still very active in wheelchair sports. Dave Williamson and Gene Geisinger were two former SIU students who competed against the Squids.

"Dave and Gene were very helpful to the newer Squids and also very proud of the continued support SIU has given in wheelchair programs," said De Angelis.

Ray Clark broke the national record in the discus for Class V men with a toss of 126' 10 $\frac{3}{4}$ ". The previous record was 126'. Clark also set a new pentathlon record, took second in javelin with a throw of 96' 2", third in freestyle swimming, fourth in the team relay and a fifth in the 100 yard dash.

Ellyn Boyd set a national record for Class III women in the 60-yard dash with a time of 15.7. The old record was 15.9. She also took first place in the slalom, the 440-yard dash with a time of 2:01.8 and the hurdles.

The hurdles consisted of nine 2' x 4' boards laid approximately 10 yards apart over a 100 yard course.

Leon Sturtz won the Novice Archery round with a score of 604 and took a fourth in the team relay.

D. Wenado Howard received a first place trophy for freestyle swimming with a time of 25.6, a first in the hurdles, fourth in the team relay and seventh in Columbian Round archery.

Beverly Bowdy received a third place medal for the Class V women in the 60-yard dash with a time of 16.6.

Andy Adam placed fifth in Columbian Round archery and teamed up with Jan Dugan to take a seventh place in Dartchery. In addition to this, Ms. Dugan received a fourth in Columbian Round archery. Jim Covino took a fourth in novice archery with a score of 562.

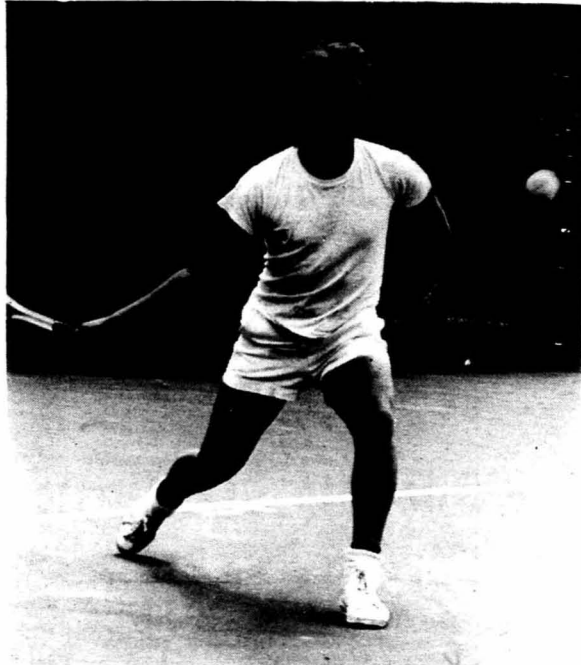

The Squid relay team (Clark, Sturtz, Howard, and Jakobson) took a fourth place finish with a time of 1:33.6.

Clark, Howard, Sturtz and Miss Boyd were nominated to represent the United States in international competition at the Stoke Mandeville Games.

"If these people are selected, it will be the largest number of wheelchair athletes that SIU has ever sent to the world games. We have never had more than one or two representatives, but this year we've broken our own records," De Angelis said.

Of all the teams present at the nationals who had athletes nominated for overseas competition, SIU had the largest number of participants nominated. All but Clark would be newcomers to overseas competition.

Coach Clark feels, "The reason SIU had four persons nominated to the U.S. team is because of the large team SIU sent to the nationals, and the fact that we did so well there."

Although the muggy heat moved out of Carbondale Monday, Frank Adamczyk, a senior in cinema and photography, found the weather suitable enough to take a few swats on the University Tennis Courts. (Staff photo by Steve Sumner)

Assistant basketball coach named

Herman Williams, a highly-regarded basketball coach and recruiter, has been named as an assistant basketball coach at SIU.

Williams, 29, has been an assistant coach at South Alabama the past three years. He will join the Saluki staff in August following completion of work toward a master's degree in physical education.

"Coach Williams is a great addition to our staff," said Saluki Coach Paul Lambert. "He has a great deal of experience for a young man in coaching, both on the collegiate and the high school level.

"Herman impressed both our players and coaching staff when he visited. We're looking forward to when he joins us," Lambert said.

Before joining the South Alabama program in 1971, Williams was one of the most successful coaches in Alabama high school history. He coached Birmingham's A.L. Parker High to two state championships and one third place finish in the state tournament in three years as head coach.

Williams' overall record at Parker was 96-8 including the 1967-68 season as junior varsity coach when his team posted a 19-1 mark.

Among the players coached by Williams were Wendell Hudson, the first black basketball player at Alabama and Alan Murphy, an all-Missouri Valley Conference player at Louisville.

Williams was named Alabama's high school coach of the year in 1969 and 1971 by the Birmingham Post-Herald and the Birmingham News as well as the state's coaches. He coached in the Alabama High School All-Star game in both 1969 and 1971.

"I'm happy to be joining a school like SIU which has such a good overall athletic program," Williams said. "This is a big step for me."

Williams was an all-country football star at Birmingham Parker High and was recruited by Dillard University of New Orleans on a football and basketball scholarship. He never played basketball in college, but was an all-Gulf Coast Conference linebacker and guard on the gridiron. Williams earned a bachelor's degree from Dillard in 1966.

Cubs blow lead in ninth, fumble 4-2 to Mets

CHICAGO (AP)—Ninth-inning errors by Dave Rosello and Jose Cardenal gave New York a pair of runs and the Mets went on to beat the Chicago Cubs 4-2 Monday.

With the Mets trailing 2-1, Jerry Grote drew a leadoff walk from Chicago starter Jim Todd, then Cleon Jones singled off reliever Oscar Zamora, 0-1.

After Rusty Staub flied out, Ed Kranepool grounded to Rosello. But the second baseman let the ball go through his legs, permitting pinch-runner Dave Schneck to score. And when right fielder Jose Cardenal's throw sailed past Bill Madlock at third, Jones also scored. Don Hahn capped the inning with a double that scored Kranepool.

The Cubs had taken a 2-1 lead in the fourth inning when Rick Monday and Cardenal both scored on Madlock's infield out. Monday and Cardenal each singled and Andre Thornton drew a walk to load the bases.

Madlock then bounced up the middle and, by the time second baseman Ken Boswell fielded the ball and made a diving tag to force Thornton at second, two runners had crossed the plate.

Todd, making his second major league start, had a two-hit shutout going until the sixth when the Mets scored a run on singles by Ted Martinez and Wayne Garrett and a sacrifice fly by Grote.

Erickson earns spot on U.S. team

Terry Erickson earned a spot on the U.S. track team which will meet the USSR, July 4-5, in a dual meet at Duke University in Durham, N.C.

Erickson ran a 45.7 in the 440-yard run at the National AAU meet in Los Angeles Saturday, placing him on the mile relay team which will run against the Russians.

Erickson is expected to run the lead-off position for the U.S. The Saluki All-American finished third to make him the first alternative in the 400-meter run, along with his participation in the mile relay.

Erickson finished fourth in the NCAA 440 to gain All-American honors.

Former Saluki Ivory Crockett failed to qualify in the 100 meters Saturday, as Steve Williams won in record tying time. Crockett is the world record holder in the 100-yard-dash.
