Vendor licensing to begin in fall 1979

By Nick Baltas

Any off-campus group planning to sell its materials on campus will need to buy a license from SIU by fall, 1979. Tom Busch, assistant to the vice president for student affairs, said the policy will not affect student clubs and fraternities, but only "all commercial vendors who operate on campus."

"We needed to find a way to protect the student customer from the minute, non-profit groups who operate on a campus, so we decided to let the solicitors bid on providing certain services," Busch said. "The details of the policy aren't completely worked out, but we all agree on the basic idea."

"The key issue in this thing is determining if there is a need for a particular service. If it's something we can't provide, then we'll seek outside help," Busch said.

Once need is determined, prospective businesses will bid for the chance to operate on campus. The University will take the highest bidder, after taking into account the differences in services offered.

"But if the service conflicts with one we already provide, we won't allow it on campus," Busch said. "That's because we have a legal obligation not to compete with other business at the University."

Different people will have the authority to determine if an outside business is needed, Busch said. Student Center Director John Carter will decide matters involving food sales on campus; S.A. Rinnella, housing director, is in charge of sales at dorms and Clarence Douglaherty, vice president for campus services, will handle all other operations.

The Mid-Sandwich trucks, which service east campus, may be offered a chance for license renewal because they had a service already provided by the University, Rinnella said.

Grendahl said the permit each night by 10:30 p.m. Mr. Sandwich trucks are open almost every night until 3 a.m.

Barrett Rockman, owner of the Mr. Sandwich trucks, said "The University has been more than fair with me, whether I come back next year or not. Rockman has operated his truck on campus for years. For the past ten years, he has been given license extensions through fall, 1979.

AAUP salary bill won't reappear in state assembly

By Ed Lempera

A bill which would deny salary increases to members of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) will not be reintroduced in the General Assembly, according to Rep. Gilbert F. Poulsen, R-4th District.

Deavers said the bill, which would cut off appropriation bills for all state university systems, was a "zero-jerk reaction" to a letter from Scott Emery, a member of the local chapter of the AAUP.

The letter stated that because Illinois has failed to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment, Emery and other members of the AAUP would hold their annual meeting outside of Illinois next year.

Deavers, also a resident of Normal, said he knew the amendment would not be passed.

But, he said, "we wanted to indicate to them that we could not allow them to pressure us, we could use our group to pressure them. We wanted to draw attention to the problem."

Marvin Kleiman, ex-president of the Carbondale chapter of the AAUP, said he was "absolutely shocked that a legislator would attempt to retaliate at the expense of a political issue."

Emery is one of a dozen AAUP members who sent a letter to lawmakers who meet annually to discuss the organization's current status. However, said Kleiman, the letter was not authorized by the AAUP.

In a statement issued last week, AAUP President Martha Friedman said the lack of formal authorization is "beneath the point."

"What is important is that it doesn't matter if he were multiplied by ten, 100, or a thousand, or by any amount if they are protesting and writing are protected," Friedman said.

According to Kleiman, AAUP is not planning any action to protest Deavers' amendment.

The Carbondale chapter of AAUP has about 150 dues-paying members, Kleiman said.

The SIU appropriation bill was passed by the House last Tuesday, and must now be reviewed by Gov. Thompson.

March may be rescheduled

Park district tries to block Nazi rally

CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago Park District moved Monday to prevent a group of Nazis from marching in Marquette Park, which, if successful, could result in the Nazis rescheduling a proposed rally in suburban Skokie.

Edward Kelly, park district superintendent, said the district will appeal a federal court order which would allow the National Socialist Party of America to demonstrate in Marquette Park on July 8 without posting a $50,000 property bond.

After Judge George L. Leighton of U.S. District Court signed the order last Thursday, Nazi leader, Frank Collin, postponed a widely publicized planned demonstration in heavily Jewish Skokie and instead held a rally in downtown Chicago.

"We think our insurance requirement in legal and fair requirement and we do not believe that an exception should be made for the Nazis," Kelly said at a news conference Tuesday.

"We have a definite legal and moral obligation to preserve and protect the property and the lives which are entrusted to us," Kelly said. "If our property, which after all is the property of the taxpayers of Chicago, is damaged, who will pay for it?"

Kelly said he has asked attorneys to file the appeal, requesting a stay of 180 days on the order, on Tuesday. He said the district expects the request for stay to be heard Wednesday.

"In our capacity for public service but James Karl, a local lawyer for the Nazis, said the city would refile the Skokie rally if it does not have the right to demonstrate in Chicago parks."

"If we do anything we can, we will take away the First Amendment right again," said Karl. "But if they abuse their rights, we'll go right back to Skokie."

Koiiy said the park district respects the First Amendment rights of the Nazis, but also feels the public is entitled to its rights.

"Our parks are designed for the benefit of all people of Chicago," said Kelly. "The general public has a right to use the parks for the purposes for which they were designed without fear of violence resulting from political demonstrations and counter-demonstrations."

"As long as I am superintendent, I will resist these groups who do not likewise represent a potential danger to the public because of the violence that could occur in the park, but who are also costing taxpayers monies."

The news conference was attended by about 100 people from the west, north and northwestern suburban area. A community group based in the Marquette Park area. A spokesman for the group appeared to "show that responsible citizens of the community don't want the Nazis destroying our neighborhoods."

"We cannot stand by, we will not stand by and allow Marquette Park to be used as a battleground," Linda Villalobos, secretary for the group, said. "The stability and integrity of our community is at stake and we will make sure to fight these Nazis."

"You saw what happened at the federal building plaza, she said. "All the mounted police, tear gas, thrown. We don't want that in 1979!"

The rally was announced and was authorized by a state law signed by Illinois Governor Edmund G. "Pat" Brown.

Addressing the members of the southwest side neighborhood group, Kelly said, "We live in a free country, that we'll do everything we can, to stop the proposed Nazi rally in Marquette Park."

Kelly told the rally if the appeal fails and the Nazis are allowed to hold the demonstration, any counter-demonstrations would also have to obtain a park district permit. "The rules are the same for everyone," he said.

Life Styling workshop: 'Heal thyself'

By Deb Brewster

Health is a way of life that is more than being physically fit and could change your life forever. It is about being well, which, if you're ready to make and keep agreements with yourself toward improving your health.

SIU's Life Styling program is conducting a workshop Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Mississippi Room, fax and copy center. People will be asked to realize and evaluate unhealthy activities and realistic commitments to changing the environment. Miles Kilip, assistant professor in psychology, said the students involved in the project actually made more visits to the health service than the control group. Miles said, "The important thing is finding a regular activity that is healthy and good tasting." Miles said.

Miles will also direct participants toward clarifying habits of what will lead to the healthiest lifestyle for individuals involved in naturally reinforcing activities, one of which is dancing. "The least he could have done for Millie was to take her to the dance workshop," said Miles. "This is probably the most healthy, well-rounded activity. It's fun to do, so it's not a chore to you to care about what you look like." Miles said. More than a thousand participants attended the Life Styling classes last semester, he said.

Participants will be asked to keep track of their progress on a day basis, moving toward specific goals and learning how to go about improving their health or to get more physical activity. "Dancing is the only answer," Miles said. "When a person has a feeling that feels right for them, it could be running with 12th Roadrunner's club and for some, a new hobby. The important thing is to find a regular activity that is healthy and good tasting." Miles said.

"We are, to a large extent, products of our environment, and we're in a competitive age; the media is into getting you to be a consumer," Miles said. "In Carbondale you do what the lady in the store tells you to eat or drink or buy," said Miles, who has lived in Carbondale for 18 years and attained bachelor's degrees from SIU in visual design.

"If a person is ever going to get on top of himself he's got to eat healthy and be discriminating as a consumer," Miles said.

Lobbying story upset House GOPs

By Bob Springer

Assisted by John Wright

SPRINGFIELD (AP) -- Republican Gov. James R. Thompson was naive in allowing House Speaker Michael Madigan to successfully lobby the House on a proposed Equal Rights Amendment, the GOP leader of the Illinois House says.

"When the Speaker of the House goes to the governor on a question and says, 'The Speaker of the House wants you to do something,' I think the governor's action after the Speaker's request is probably the most healthy, well-rounded activity. It's fun to do, so it's not a chore to you to care about what you look like." Miles said. More than a thousand participants attended the Life Styling classes last semester, he said.

STS grant applications due Friday

By Jill Mitchell

Staff Writer

It's not long Monday for the applications for the Student in Student (SI) Grant Program being offered this summer.

Students who applied for the grants Thursday, including Elizabeth Short, Staff Writer, will be Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance before Friday to be eligible for the grants.

Students may receive up to $1,500 towards their expenses. All applications have been reviewed.

Miles Kilip, financial aid advisor, said that a new way of handling the applications is being put into effect this year. Last year applications were distributed 40 or more a time, and the most popular was the "the office of student work and financial assistance before Friday to be eligible for the grants. The students may receive up to $1,500 towards their expenses. All applications have been reviewed.

Police look for clues in Versailles bombing

VERSAILLES, France (AP) - Police picked up the stoned and bloodied body of a 40-year-old man at an off-road room at the Palace of Versailles on Thursday, searching for clues to the bombing of the historic building in what one official said was a case of terrorism or assault on France's national heritage.

Three underground organizations - the National Front, the Communist Breton separatists and the separatists' claimed responsibility for the early morning explosion in the Mid Wing of the Palace, where the heir to the former premier of France's Golden Age.

But authorities, discounting those claims, said they had no solid leads. The police have searched for clues in three green boxes "Empire Salon" Monday, two of which were watched over by police, including a 12-by-foot hole through the floor of the Gallery of Bat- tlements, the site of a pre-Christian palace, said Miles Kilip, financial aid advisor, said that a new way of handling the applications is being put into effect this year. Student trustee will have to try harder

Kevin Wright was elected the student representative to the SIU Board of Trustees in April on a pledge of increased accessibility.

What does count for the present is that he attends board meetings. Wright does seem a bit naive about the board's role during the summer. He said that since the board always gets input from student sources affecting them, nothing was presented for student reaction in the spring will come up this summer.

He said this is due to the fact that fewer students are enrolled for the summer semester. Nothing new can be brought up because effective student input is impossible with the smaller number of students on campus, according to Wright.

He claimed he will be familiar with all issues affecting students because he was involved in student government in the spring. He should be aware enough that if the board is to act on something during the summer just because there aren't many students around, it won't be the first time.

Summer time should be a good time for students to be extra-cautious of board action.

Another consideration is that Wright has never been to a board meeting. He said he has been briefed on board procedure by immediate past student trustee Barry Byrnes, and has also served on other boards. That is all fine and good, and should give Wright a general feel of how board will operate.

The fact is, however, that Wright will be going into his first board meeting cold. Having a general idea of how something operates and taking some role in it, can be two different things. That is another reason it is so important that Wright attend board meetings, so he can have sufficient knowledge to assume an active role by fall at the latest.

The July board meeting will be in Chicago and Wright should be making plans to attend. He can still be a good student trustee. His campaign promises are still within reach. If he were he won't be able to fulfill them, however, he should promptly step down and allow someone else a chance at doing the job-right.

With a little extra work by Wright, that won't have to come about.

Ballet appears as the latest 'spectator sport'

By Bob Greer

This makes four times I have tried, and I am giving up. I went to see performances at the International Dance Festival of Stars, which is a ballet show. Having seen it four times, I must now admit that I feel guilty. I have come to the firm conclusion that ballet offers absolutely nothing to the spectator. It is a good, moneymaking operation. If he had known he was going to be done during the summer, and hadn't mentioned that during the campaign, he might have been deviating. He didn't know of the summer that awaited him, however, so his absence is excusable.

His accessibility to students will suffer, of course. A moneymaking operation can't replace one-to-one contact. For the student body's sake, it is hoped he can make up for that come fall.

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Baring down for a final four days of work before a midnight Friday deadline for action, the Illinois General Assembly will spend billions of your dollars this week — at a atmosphere described by some lawmakers as everything from a circus to a pre-wake.

"People in cities generally are more likely to see, and the rural hospitals don't see why they should share that risk," the executive said.

"This is a rapidly growing business," a banking official, who is concerned, said.

Hospitals are finding that the trusts are providing some benefits that they didn't originally expect.

Night animals topic of show

When references are made to the "strange creatures of the night," it’s usually not with the Carbondale bar crowd in mind.

The National Geographic Special "Strange Creatures of the Night" presents bats, owls, bowerbirds and nighttime camouflaged wildlife in a film made in part with sophisticated night-vision camera devices. The program will be broadcast at 7 p.m. Thursday on Channels 6 and 16.

The film explores the behavior and environments of nocturnal animals, and illustrates the various ways in which they are adapted for life in the dark.

"Strange Creatures of the Night" received national acclaim when it aired on commercial television. It was awarded the Atlantic Film Festival’s Special Jury Gold Medal as well as a Chris Stansberry from the Columbia Film Festival.

Lack of riders may kill women's transit service

By Nile Tamer

Women's Transit Authority director Kingsbury said she is concerned that women may die unless more women use it, saying few women use the service.

The WTA has a safe service for women. It functions in providing safe and night time transportation for women who must travel alone or as girls or with children. The Women of the Carbondale WTA is for the benefit of all women in the Carbondale area, not just for SIU students.

"To justify the expense of WTA we need to transport at least 15 women a night. Since warm weather fewer women have been riding with us. We average seven a night," Kingsbury said. "Women don't start using WTA, it might die."

Women are encouraged to use WTA every night, Kingsbury said. Women who walk regularly are the most vulnerable to attack. According to the Women's Center Rape Action Committee a group to assist rape victims about two-thirds of sexual assaults occur while women are walking on city streets or entering their homes.

WTA evolved as the result of a new expression by many women at two public forums on rape held in the fall of 1977. Taxis are too expensive for many and the women feel too dangerous, said Kingsbury. WTA is an alternative.

The service became available to women on March 10. It operates five hours a night, seven nights a week. A regular route with designated stops is followed. Drivers are urged to offer any woman who seems a risk WTA will deviate from the route to protect her safely.

Dollar hits new low in Japan

The American dollar, which was a record low Monday, has declined 25 percent in value against the Japanese yen in less than 9 months, as it is worth only a grain of rice in Tokyo's fashionable Ginza shopping district. It won't even buy a cup of coffee or a cheap snack.

The fall of the dollar and other foreign currencies in recent times is due to the strong yen, however, has not helped Japanese consumers who expected lower prices. Largely because distributors want to keep the prices high.

The import of U.S. manufactured goods has said he would like to bring down the price of his goods but his Japanese distributors will not let him.

"The distributors fight to maintain high prices because they claim they want to give large backcharges to their retailers," said the American importer, who asked not to be named. Backcharges to retailers are traditional, and illegal, in Japan. Consumer groups occasionally have protested that backcharges make it unprofitable for retailers to push lower priced items.

The dollar hit record lows on the Tokyo foreign exchange market Monday, dropping to 295.3 yen and closing at 296.3 yen. Traders and economists blame the slide of Japan's huge trade surpluses, increasing U.S. trade deficit and American inflation. Another factor in the expectation that the dollar will fall is that Tokyo will increase its 20 percent export tax to 30 percent by the end of the month.

The higher value of the yen makes Japanese goods more expensive in the United States and other foreign markets, but as yet there has been no sign of a reduction in Japan's trade surplus.
Horticulture day shows hybrid plants

The first southern Illinois showing at the 12 All-American plant selections for 1979 will be a major feature of the Plant and Soil Science Department's 14th annual Horticulture Field Day on July 8.

Earlier this year, the SIU Horticulture Station was named as All-American Display Garden, and was allowed to display award-winning hybrid flower and vegetable varieties prior to public sale.

The 12 All-American Award winners for a total of two varieties of squash, zinnias and peppers. Also developed were new varieties of cucumbers, rutabaga, snap peas, panaces, melon, and marigolds. These new varieties will be available for public purchase in October 1979.

The open house will also include tours of turfgrass research plots, vegetable gardens and displays of All-American selections from previous years.

This year's open house will begin at 1 p.m. and will last until 6 p.m. at the horticulture station, located one mile west of Carbondale on Chautauqua Road.

Rehab experts to discuss new SIU program

Experts in the field of rehabilitation will discuss and give their opinions on the proposed curriculum of SIU's new masters' degree program on job development and placement in a two-day workshop.

The SIU Rehabilitation Institute will sponsor the National Workshop in Job Development on July 13 and 14 at the O'Hare Travel Lodge in Chicago.

The purpose of the workshop is to have national input from known experts in the field on the new program which will start in fall, said A. Andrew McDonald Jr., workshop coordinator and assistant professor in the Rehabilitation Institute.

The featured guest will be Hal Shar, director of the Division of Manpower Development of the Illinois Department of Education and Rehabilitation Services. He will discuss the criteria for administering the federal Job Development Program.

The 17 participants come from Kansas, Iowa, Washington D.C., Michigan, New York, Oregon, and Minnesota. They all have experience in the fields of counseling, rehabilitation and job placement.

Schleppe wins IM tennis title

Roger Schleppe came from behind to defeat James Budd 6-1, 6-3 for the intramural men's tennis tournament advanced division singles championship.

The senior in math from Altus totaled five wins in the tournament, including his final victory last Friday. "Thank God it wasn't as hot during the match as it has been the past few days or I would never have made it," said Schleppe.

Although you can't tell it by the score, the final game was very close, the Said, "All the games were very close. The difference was some key points I won in the third set."

Schleppe said that his game consists mainly of trying to stay on the baseline and trying to keep the ball in play. "If you make the other guy earn the point rather than forcing it myself. Luckily I didn't make any stupid errors."

On the whole Schleppe rated the competition in the tournament as pretty good especially after he got past the first couple of rounds.

In the service division final of the men's tournament, Pete Wolfe beat Mike Cashen 6-1, 6-3 final Thursday to take the crown. Wolfe, a junior from Collierville defeated four opponents en route to his championship.

Susan Eichhoff beat Kathy Boyce in the women intramural singles championship final Thursday. Eichhoff took her final 6-0, 6-0.

TENNIS NOTES

Sakhi women's tennis coach Judy Auld and her partner Barbara Ames won the women's doubles division of the Men's-Guest Tennis Tournament held June 17-18 at the Wimbledon Racquet Club in Memphis, Tenn. Winning the tournament for the second consecutive year, Auld and Ames took the final 7-4, 6-1.

Indians claim Paul Reuschel

CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago Cubs announced Monday that the Cleveland Indians have claimed right-handed pitcher Paul Reuschel off waivers.

Reuschel, a 6-foot-4, 218-pound righthander, appeared in 16 games for the Cubs, compiling a 2-4 record and a 4.54 earned run average. He allowed 28 hits in 36 2/3 innings, while striking out 13 and issuing 11 walks.

Reuschel, 31, had been with the Chicago organization since he was signed by the Cubs in 1969. He is the older brother of the ace of the Cubs pitching staff, Rick Reuschel.

Rick, who has been plagued by arm problems, had only two outings in the Cubs' 2-1 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals last year. The Cubs are now in second place as the Phils have built a two-game lead following a four-game sweep.
