White House mission ends; SIU students return to campus

By Terry Peters
Staff Writer

SIU's goodwill mission to the White House returned late Thursday afternoon with expressions that read: "Mission accomplished."

William C. Holden of Elgin, Robert K. Lewelling of Park Forest and James M. Pratt III of Evanston arrived at Southern Illinois Airport around 5:30 p.m. Thursday, following their "bike hike" to the White House to promote the SIU Centennial celebration.

Pratt injured a muscle along the way and was forced to hitchhike from Hillsboro, Ohio, until the last day when unable to get a ride, he took a bus to Washington, D.C.

The trio presented the Student-SIU Centennial U.S. Presidential Plaque to Senator Charles Percy, R-Ill., who accepted it for President Nixon outside the White House. Two aides from Senator Everett Dirksen's office were also present at the ceremony.

Holden had high praise for Joseph N. Goodman, director of the SIU Information and Scheduling Center, who coordinated the project, and several members of the SIU Alumni Club in Washington, D.C., who held up the Washington end of the mission. Holden said the weather was fine until the 10th day, when he and Lewelling ran into rain and sleet in the mountains in West Virginia.

The only other snag during the trip, besides Pratt's muscle injury, also occurred in the mountains.

"I was hit by a truck," Holden said gingerly.

"I was going slow up a mountain, and some old guy in a green Dodge pickup truck knocked me into a ditch," he said.

"He didn't stop. I'm pretty

Bill would place state institutions under city codes

By John Durbin
Staff Writer

Repeated complaints for some time from private contractors and realtors in Carbondale prompted State Rep. Gale Williams, R-Murphysboro, to introduce into the House his bill calling for state institutions to comply with building and zoning regulations laid down by the city in which they are located.

Williams said the contractors he has talked with resent that they must conform to city building and zoning regulations, while SIU is not obligated to do so. "I met with the Real Estate Association in Carbondale some time ago and they felt this was most unfair."

Carbondale City Attorney George Fleerlage said that presently the City Council cannot pass an ordinance requiring SIU or any state institution to conform to its building and zoning regulations. "It is generally accepted legal principle that an inferior government body cannot regulate a superior government body," Fleerlage said. Fleerlage based his opinion on recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

Adhering to city regulations places an unfair economic burden on the private contractor in his efforts to compete with the University in providing housing units for students, Williams said.

Williams' bill was passed 20-7 Wednesday by the House Municipalities Committee and will be presented by the legislator on the House floor.

Charles Goss, realtor and officer of Cherry Home Sales Inc., said concerning the bill, "I think it is high-time that this is done. If the codes are right for the private builders then they are right for the public institutions."

Gandhi Committee gets $4,500

SIU's Gandhi Centennial Committee has received a contribution of $4,500 from Union Carbide India, Ltd., for the first prize of the Gandhi Centennial Playwriting competition. The gift was made through the SIU Foundation.

The competition, sponsored by the centennial committee and the Department of Theater at SIU, is part of a general program commemorating the 100th anniversary of the birth of Mahatma Gandhi. The University has received nearly 900 letters of inquiry from 11 countries. Deadline for the submission of scripts is August 1. Announcement of the winning play will be made on October 2, the 100th anniversary of Gandhi's birth.

The winning play is to be produced by the Department of Theater under the direction of Herbert Marshall, British producer-director and India scholar, now a visiting professor of theater at SIU.

Other features of the centennial program include the publication by the SIU Press of a Gandhi Centennial Volume, co-authored by Wayne A. R. Leys, SIU professor of philosophy, and P. S. S. Rama Rao of India, who holds a doctor of philosophy degree from SIU. Rama Rao is on the faculty of the Department of Philosophy of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. Several distinguished Indian personalities are being invited to give public lectures on the campus and a conference on India is being projected. The entire program will reach its climax in October when the book on Gandhi will be published and a model of a statue of Mahatma Gandhi by the noted sculptor, Freddie Brilliant, wife of Prof. Marshall, is expected to be unveiled on the Carbondale Campus.

The Bursar's Office relocated during the spring break to the lower level B-wing lounge of Woody Hall. It was formerly located in the barracks (T-35) north of the University Center.

Business hours are 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Saturday.

Al Schwegel, office supervisor, said the Bursar's Office will remain in Woody Hall until the proposed administration building is completed.

performing and instruction in the Broadway musical repertoire, he said. Students, both graduate and undergraduate, will receive full-load credit.

Tuition scholarships, graduate assistantships and student-work positions are available, he added.

The season opens June 8 and runs through Aug. 27. Productions will be "Bye Bye Birdie," "Unsinkable Molly Brown," "Gypsy" and "Kismet."

Auditioning will begin at 1 p.m. in Muckelroy Auditorium.

Cigarette ads

The Federal Communications Commission recently proposed a ban on all cigarette advertising on radio and television. They should not have done so.

In the first place, the regulation and restraint of trade is the province of the Federal Trade Commission, the FTC, not the FCC.

The Trade Commission is almost certain to move for much stricter controls of cigarette advertising if Congress lets the Cigarette Labeling Act of 1965 run out without renewal. That act prevented the FTC and all other state and federal agencies from regulating cigarette advertising for three years. The FTC had wanted a death warning printed on cigarette packages and included in all cigarette advertising, whether printed or broadcast. Given the chance, the FTC will put such a regulation into effect.

In the second place, there is no evidence that the banning of cigarette advertisements from radio and television would significantly reduce smoking, which would seem to be the purpose of the whole thing. In England only one age group, men from 35 to 39 years old, showed any reduction in smoking after a similar ban was imposed there. All other groups, including all women, showed an increase in cigarette consumption. It might be much more effective for cigarette advertisements to include a death warning than to ban them altogether.

There is no argument here that cigarettes have not sufficiently been proven hazardous to health to warrant much stricter regulation. However, the FCC has been complaining for years, and justly so, that it is understaffed and underfinanced. It has trouble trying to regulate community antenna television (CATV) and subscription television (pay TV). It constantly wades through a backlog of license renewals and applications for new licenses. It certainly has enough to do without subjecting itself to prolonged hearings and rehearings on a proposal to ban cigarette advertising from the airwaves.

The Federal Communications Commission will save itself much trouble if it sticks to the regulation of communications and lets the Federal Trade Commission regulate trade.

Let the welfare recipients eat tranquilizers

By Arthur Hoppe

Welfare recipients "do not feel good about themselves and larger payments would only make things worse by intensifying their guilt feelings"—Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chief White House adviser on domestic programs, as quoted in Newsweek.

The concern of the Nixon Administration about the mental health of welfare recipients was long overdue. Studies showed that one-tenth of the Nation was going to bed each night ill-clad, ill-housed, ill-fed and suffering from guilt feelings.

A bold White House program to attack the last of these afflictions was not long in forthcoming. And one can imagine the joy in Appalachia Corners when Jud and Maude Joad opened their monthly package of surplus commodities to find not only the usual pound of lard and sack of chick peas, but a certificate good for one free visit to the local psychiatrist of their choice.

At the time, Jud was busy fighting inflation. In keeping with the Administration's policy of fighting inflation by reducing employment, Jud had, as usual, been the first to lose his job. But it comforted him as he rocked back and forth on the porch of the Joad's little lean-to to know he was doing his part for his country's economy.

There was some discussion over who should use the certificate. Jud generously suggested Maude should. But Maude, always frightened by new and unknown experiences insisted that Jud go. "And try to get them to give us them gingham curtains I've long hankered after," she added in parting.

Jud promised. But when he returned he was wearing that grim and noble look that Maude dreaded.

"No curtains?" she asked hesitantly.

"Nope, but I got something far better, Maude," said Jud proudly. "Let me tell you about it. I go in and this doctor tells me to lie down on this couch and asks me what seems to be bothering me.

"Well, to tell the truth," I says, "I guess it's that I'm hungry most of the time, not that I'm complaining, mind, 'cause I know I'm doing my duty fighting inflation and us soldiers don't complain."

"So he asks me how I feel when I open our surplus commodities package. 'Hungry,' I says. And he says, 'No, what you feel is guilt.'

"And I says, 'I didn't know that.' And he says, 'Yep, there you are, nor doing a lick of work, living off the bounty of us generous taxpayers. It's no wonder those pangs you feel are those of guilt.'

"Can you cure me, Doc?" says I. "Well, first off," he says, "you got to quit eating between meals." "I don't never, Doc," I says, "less'n

I find me a wild crab apple or the like."

"Then," says he, "you got to cut down on your intake of surplus commodities at mealtime." "But," says I, "we only get a pound a lard and a sack of chick peas a month."

"Fine," says he, writing on his pad. "I'm prescribing you half a pound a lard and half a pound of chick peas instead. This'll cut your guilt feelings in half and you'll feel twice as good."

Maude sighed. "You mean we got to tighten our belts again, Jud?" she asked. "If'n we had a belt to tighten? I'd druther them gingham curtains."

Jud put his arm around her narrow shoulders. "Now, Maude, you know them terrible pangs you get along about bedtime?" he asked. "Well, now you're only going to get 'em half as bad."

He squeezed her gently. "And ain't it good to know," he said, "that we got a Government that cares about our welfare?"

Water pollution

Variety of forces contribute poisons

By Paul Povse
(Second of two articles)

It is evident there are a variety of forces at work that are all contributing to the poisoning plot aimed at a most precious natural resource. But what are the effects of this poisoning plot? How harmful is water pollution?

"Industrial pollution kills fish and produces permanently hard water," William M. Lewis, professor of biology explained. "Even where strip mine drainage doesn't kill fish, it causes a reduction in water quality."

Bob Gates of the Department of Public Health is directly concerned with the after effects of water contamination.

"Contamination sickens aquatic life and makes the quality of the stream unsatisfactory for agricultural, domestic, industrial and recreational use," Gates said. "Polluted water is destructive to wildlife, especially the water containing sulfuric acid. It can be destructive to steel structures like dams, bridges, barges and boats. The water mixed with sulfuric acid is highly mineralized and has a bad odor to it."

Lewis is particularly alarmed at the deadly effects of water pollution by sewage waste.

"Sewage pollution may include the problem of human pathogenic organisms," he said. "Typhoid, ameboid dysentery and hepatitis can be caused by these pathogens. Certain types of sewage pollution can be particularly harmful to children and livestock. In the Carbondale community too, there are household detergents which contain a great deal of phosphorus. This mixed in our water supply can cause problems."

For many years the public and federal government have been apathetic about the water pollution situation. The most commonly expressed sentiment has been "science should be able to take care of these things for us."

But this solution is not necessarily so, and after years of pleading by concerned, informed conservationists, the federal government has stepped into the picture.

The Water Quality Act of 1965 was passed to help set up uniform state standards for water. A more recent intervention by the federal government came in the form of a technical bulletin which ordered that states must meet specific water qualifications by certain deadlines. If these qualifying standards are not met, the government has the right to penalize the city and state with a law suit.

Since this government intervention, cities have acted in various ways to improve their water situation. What are some of these manners of improvement?

"The sewage problem has been pretty bad, but is improving rapidly thanks to the government's intervention and financial offer," Lewis said. "Each state has to meet specific standards for each stream in it. I think the answer lies in the use of good sewage treatment plants. The decayed material in water can be greatly reduced by primary treatment—this separates out the solid material and holds the liquid in fermentation pools to allow it to stabilize."

Jacob Verduin, professor of botany, believes the construction of effective treatment plants is the best solution for pollution but has another personal innovation in mind.

"The standard practice of building good sewage treatment plants is the wisest thing to do," he said. "But you have to practically slap an injunction on people to get them to act upon the problems. Bond issues are generally voted down."

"One solution may be to filter water through perforated tiles beneath a city park or farmland," Verduin continued.

"In this procedure, the sub-ground roots could clear out the excess sewage, and this would return fertilizer the ground and vegetation. No cities have tried this, but it has worked on an experimental basis at some universities. I feel we ought to try to restore land that has been stripped from mining. It would cost more, sure, but it would be a return on an investment. Land is too precious to leave lying stripped."

William Schwegman's Public Works Office is particularly frustrated in its attempt to improve water conditions because his office has a $2,000,000 federal grant to build a new water treatment plant. However, the city of Carbondale must produce $2,000,000 of its own to back up the federal aid before production can begin.

"We need our own $2,000,000 to go along with the federal government money, but we haven't sold the public on the idea that they can get a $4,000,000 water plant for $2,000,000," Schwegman said. "A city ordinance has been passed to sell $3,300,000 worth of bonds to pay for residue bonds to take care of the local share of the project—a new plant and four and one-half miles of new sewers."

"But the law provides that if within 21 days, 15 per cent of the registered voters who voted in the last election sign a petition, a referendum has to be called," Schwegman continued. "Well, this is what happened. Out of about 1,000 signers, 750 were legitimate and this number is enough to force the referendum. Some lawyers are saying the petition is illegal because no signatures were dated, but nobody has challenged the validity of the petition."

On Tuesday, April 8, a referendum will be held in Carbondale in which citizens will be asked to give the city permission to sell $2,300,000 worth of bonds. The bonds would go to any company or financial institution interested in dealing in midwestern municipalities.

Schwegman is unsure what the voters' verdict will be because of past difficulties in passing bond issues.

"Whenever you talk bond issue, people think you're going to raise their taxes," he said. "Many people think the bond issue will raise their water and sewage rates, but that has already been done and will not be changed. I'm sure that if we could explain to everyone the issue, the outcome would be favorable. But the problem is in reaching all the people."

"I've yet to explain the situation to anyone for five minutes who did not agree to support the referendum," Schwegman continued. "The sad thing about it is that we've been arguing for four years now, and construction costs are rising. I once estimated it's costing us $800 for every day we sit around and debate the project."

What then is the future of water in Southern Illinois? Will the supply of good, clean and fresh water be eventually exhausted? Or will new government stipulations, appropriated funds and civic concern save the area's water?

"Naturally, there has been quite a bit of heated discussion about water standards during the initial stages of the new acts," Gates said. "But many of the strip mining companies and others involved have been working to improve conditions. There are areas now that have been rehabilitated where there had been no fish for 15 years."

"It's too early to say whether the new government standards will be successful," Verduin offered. "It will be several years before we can determine if we're doing the job. Right now things are working too slowly to suit me, but I guess you can't make regulations overnight."

"When you talk about plant nutrients, you'll find 80 per cent of Illinois' river mileage is seriously polluted. When you're looking at more obvious pollution, I'd say 20 per cent of our river mileage is polluted. So the job is an immense one. We may have to revamp many of our present treatment policies. To do it would cost quite a bit of money, but I hesitate to look at it from a dollars and cents standpoint."

"There are real returns on projects like the city park idea. To do it for all cities in Illinois would go into billions of dollars, but it would be an investment worth making."

"I'm pretty well pleased with the progress that's being made," Lewis said. "I feel considerable progress is being made in the strip mine waste field. The big problem has been in poor planning in the first place."

"I feel the trend today is moving toward a very conscious concern for our environment for the first time. I really do think it's possible to live in our environment without making a sewer of it."

SIU reading institute set for educators

Public school administrators, supervisors and curriculum consultants in Southern Illinois are invited to participate in a six-week Institute for Advanced Study in Reading and Language Development to be held at SIU June 23-Aug. 1.

The program will be conducted by the Reading Center, SIU College of Education, under an $80,000 grant from the Educational Professions Development Act of the U.S. Office of Education.

The Institute carries 12 quarter hours of graduate level credit. Participants will receive a stipend of $75 per week plus $15 per week for each dependent.

Attendance is limited to 20 persons, and priority will be given applicants in school districts from which multiple applications are received, according to Danfel T. Fishco, Institute director. It is felt that this will result in a greater impact for change, Fishco said.

In addition to a staff drawn from various departments at the University, the Institute will present a number of outstanding guest lecturers. Among them are H. Alan Robitson, professor of reading at Hofstra University, Hempstead, N.Y., and past president of the International Reading Association; Ira Aaron, director of the Reading Center at the University of Georgia; A. Sterl Artley, professor of education, University of Missouri; Robert B. Ruddell, associate professor of education, University of California; and George D. Spache, head of the Reading Laboratory and Clinic, University of Florida.

Applications, which must be completed and returned by April 6, may be obtained by writing: Danfel T. Fishco, Director, EPDA Advanced Institute in Reading, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, 62901.

Teaching method described

A social studies series developed by the Southern Illinois Instructional Association in conjunction with the SIU Broadcasting Service is described in an education magazine.

Richard Qualls, educational television coordinator in the SIU Broadcasting Services, wrote the article which appears in the March issue of Illinois Education, monthly periodical of the Illinois Education Association. Qualls wrote that the 60-lesson series titled "Wonder Why?" is designed to help students understand their lives in a rapidly changing world. The children are taught how to relate, infer and draw conclusions by the problem-solving or discovery method.

Qualls said the first part of the series consists of basic earth-sun relationships that set the stage for some understanding of the earth's physical features and geographical characteristics.

The next part deals with forces that vitally affect lives, such as resources, markets, transportation, communication, morality and choice, conflict, interdependence, scarcity and conservation.

Other lessons tell how man has made a living down through the ages, and provide discussions on social problems.

Alumni telefund drive to be held in Jackson

The ninth annual Telefund Campaign of the SIU Alumni Association will be conducted throughout Jackson County on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 7-9.

During the three days, volunteer workers will call alumni in the area to solicit contributions for various projects, including scholarships, student loans, research projects and Association's annual great teacher award.

Department of Music plans 58 programs spring quarter

Fifty-eight musical programs, ranging from visiting artist concerts to seminar-demonstrations on Indian music, from opera to jazz, are scheduled for the spring quarter by the SIU Department of Music.

Five visiting artist recitals are on the calendar: April 3—Linda Otson, soprano, Frank Pullano, baritone; April 12—Susan Heald, piano; April 22—Illinois State University Treble Choir; April 28—Drake University Fine Arts Trio; May 11—University of Wisconsin Fine Arts String Quartet.

A series of six programs on the music of India will be conducted by Antisher Lobo, Bombay musicologist and artist-in-residence at SIU. Dates are April 2, April 16, April 28, April 29 (repeat), May 1, May 15 and May 29.

On May 10 a Percussion Clinic will be held, with Donald Caneby as clinician. Caneby was formerly director of the Marching Salukis, SIU field band.

On May 3 Mu Phi Epsilon Sinfonia, men's honorary music fraternity, will stage

"Encore '69," and on May 18 the Opera Workshop will present an evening of opera excerpts. A two-part Bach Festival will be offered May 24 and 25 by the Chamber Orchestra, assisted the first evening by the Collegium Musicum.

A series of four electronic music demonstrations will be held April 4, April 23, May 13 and May 20.

A Mixed Media Concert will be given May 10 as part of the spring Fine Arts Festival.

Ensemble performances will be given by the Chamber Symphony April 2, the Illinois String Quartet April 11 and May 23, the Southern Illinois Symphony April 13, a children's concert by the University Orchestra April 16, the Faculty Brass Quintet April 20, the Men's Glee Club April 24, the Brass and Percussion Ensemble May 4, the Collegium Musicum May 7, the Percussion Ensemble May 8, the University Orchestra May 14, the Symphonic Band May 22, the Wind Ensemble May 25, Concerto Concert May 28, Combined University Choirs May 31 and June 1.

Solo and joint recitals by music department faculty members also are scheduled for the spring quarter: Marianne Webb, organ, May 30; Wesley Morgan, harpsichord, Herbert Levinson, violin, and George Hussey, oboe, April 16; Myron Kartman, violin, May 24; Myron Kartman, violin, Joseph Baber, viola, David Cowley, violoncello, and Lawrence Dennis, piano, May 9; Joseph Baber, viola, and Lawrence Dennis, piano, May 21.

Numerous graduate and undergraduate student recitals also are to be given.

Grants for research announced

Two SIU geographers have received grants for special summer research projects, according to Frank Thomas, SIU Department of Geography chairman.

Prof. T. J. D. Fair, a regional planning specialist, has been awarded $3,500 from the Social Science Research Council for economic development studies in Southern Africa during the summer. Sam B. Hilliard, SIU assistant professor of geography, has received an award from the National Endowment for the Humanities to study land tenure problems on Montana Indian reservations.

Fair, a native of South Africa with a Ph.D. from the University of Natal in South Africa in 1954, was appointed to the SIU faculty in 1964. He was a visiting professor in geography at SIU in 1962-63. He will make a spatial analysis of the economic development in Southern Africa this summer. He received a similar grant in 1968 for summer research on regional development in Swaziland.

Hilliard, who received his doctorate from the University of Wisconsin, joined the SIU geography faculty in 1967 as an agricultural and historical specialist. He will spend some time during the summer on the Fort Peck, Blackfeet and Crow Indian Reservations in Montana checking land records, ownership, and land use in trying to reach conclusions on how to relieve poverty conditions of the Indians in the areas. His interest in American Indian geography started in the summer of 1967 when he studied the Blackfeet, Sioux and Crow tribes in Wisconsin.

Appointments set for advisement

Advisement appointments for the summer and fall quarters will be issued in Ballroom B of the University Center. This is a change from earlier announcements.

Students may obtain appointments with the academic adviser of their choice from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Wednesday through Friday, April 2, 3 and 4.

Two U. of I. vocalists in concert here April 3

A visiting artist recital by two young vocalists from the University of Illinois will be presented by SIU's Department of Music at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 3, in Davis Auditorium. The public is invited to attend without charge.

Singers are Linda Folsom Otson, soprano, former "Miss Alabama," who is currently a graduate student in music at the University of Illinois, and Frank Pullano, member of the music faculty at New York State College at Fredonia. Their accompanist will be Alan Thomas, composer and pianist on the U. of I. music faculty.

Pullano will sing "Five Mystical Songs" by Ralph Vaughn Williams. Mrs. Otson will perform six segments of Francis Poulenc's "Fiancailles Pour Rire." The two artists will join in the recitative and duet, Scene No. 8, "Pura siccome un angelo" from Verdi's opera "La Traviata."

Mrs. Otson won the "Miss Alabama" title in 1965 and was in the top 10 and talent winner in the 1965 Miss American Pageant. She was a finalist in regional Metropolitan Opera auditions and in WGN Opera Auditions of the Air.

The following year she won the Southeast Regional Singer of the Year award. She has sung with the Birmingham

Grad student takes part in unusual project

By Ross Ann Peters

Does $2,000 and 12 quarter hours of SIU graduate credit sound nice?

One SIU graduate student thought so and spent fall quarter teaching basic American government at Meramec Junior College in St. Louis.

These are two benefits reaped from the Ford Occupational Instructor Project, a joint effort of SIU and the St. Louis Junior College District.

The program is designed to prepare people to teach in the junior college in either specialized occupational courses or general education subjects, Donald J. Tolle said. Tolle is the associate director of the Ford Project for SIU.

Tolle said interns selected for the program receive $2,000 for one semester of teaching in the St. Louis Junior College District and 12 quarter hours of credit applied toward a master's degree.

Another benefit of the project, Tolle said, is the intern will also be eligible for a graduate teaching assistantship from the department of his major subject area. A monthly stipend is paid at the same rate as for other teaching assistants in the same department.

Joyce Pigge, a graduate student in the Department of Government, taught two classes during the fall semester at Meramec. One class was team taught with Miss Pigge's supervising master teacher, who was an Episcopalian minister, and the other class was her own responsibility.

Miss Pigge, an alumna of a junior college, plans to teach on the junior college level after completion of her master's degree this spring. She is a native of Mt. Vernon.

"In the community college the emphasis and main consideration are the students," she said.

"The atmosphere is more open—students can sit with the instructors and talk about other things beside class work."

Miss Pigge described the Ford Project as "like student teaching, but it's not. You are treated as a peer by the other teachers."

Summing up her experiences in St. Louis, she said, "It's a beneficial program and the experience is invaluable."

Tolle said, "A prime need in the country is teacher preparation geared to the needs of the junior college."

In response to its growing needs, the St. Louis Junior College District initiated the program, Tolle said.

"It is the only one of this kind, where the junior college is in one state and the university is in another."

The project began in 1966 when the Ford Foundation granted $500,000 for a period of five years. Tolle said the Ford money has been used as "seed money" to get the Project started.

Since the beginning, 35 students have taken part. The plan called for 100 students to go through the program in the first five years, Tolle said.

He said the project is not limited only to graduate students, Those admitted to the program before receiving either an associate or a bachelor's degree are expected to follow programs which will result in a master's degree.

Those admitted with less than a bachelor's degree must complete their undergraduate requirements before the financial benefits of the project are available to them, Tolle said.

Rifle range hours announced

The SIU Rifle Range, top floor of Old Main, is open for Rifle Club and recreational shooting.

Fifles and targets will be provided by the range supervisor at no charge. No personal weapons are allowed for recreation shooting.

Ammunition will be supplied by the supervisor for a fee.

Shooting hours for the Rifle Club are:

1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Monday;
6:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.,
Wednesday and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Thursday.

Recreation Shooting Hours are:

6:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.,
Tuesday; 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.,
Thursday and 6:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. on Friday.

Organ recital set Sunday

First professional recital on the new pipe organ at the Lutheran Chapel affiliated with SIU will be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday by Marianne Webb, concert organist and assistant professor of organ at the University.

Miss Webb will be assisted in two of her numbers, an early 17th century work by Gabrieli and the Marius Monnikendam concerto for organ and brass, by the Faculty Brass Quartet, and in the Handel "Concerto in G Minor" by George Hussey, faculty oboist.

She will give a premiere performance of a new composition, "Fugue on WEBB," written for her and presented to her as a birthday present by one of her organ students, an SIU senior, Richard P. Bauch of Richton Park. Bauch is majoring in mathematics rather than in music.

Two of the concertos she will play—that by the contemporary Dutch composer Monnikendam and one by the contemporary German composer Hans Friedrich Micheelsen—will be first performances in Carbondale.

Horse reproduction subject of seminar

A Colorado State University graduate student and horseman will discuss "Reproduction in Horses" at 7:30 p.m., Friday in the Agriculture Seminar room of the Agriculture Building.

James Cranwell, a Colorado State University graduate student in reproductive physiology, will discuss the procedures involved in estimating the fertility of breeding stallions and methods to improve the reproductive efficiency of horses.

The program is sponsored by the Illinois Breeding Co-op, Hampshire, Ill., in conjunction with a series of studies being conducted at Colorado State University.

Clergy ask racial investigation in Cairo

CAIRO, Ill. (AP)—Leaders of a clergymen's group set up meetings with Cairo authorities Thursday and urged the officials to investigate racial conditions in this Southern Illinois Community.

The Rev. Stanley Roth of East St. Louis, spokesman for the group called "The Concerned Clergy," said he hopes that conferences with Cairo officials will lead to "unified action to be undertaken in an atmosphere of tolerance and displayed concern."

Father Roth, a Roman Catholic priest, said the number of priests and other clergymen would be increased to 35 or 40 with the arrival of 15 more from the East St. Louis area.

The clerics came to Cairo to support the Rev. Gerald Montroy, a Roman Catholic priest who has been working with Negroes in Cairo for seven months and is at odds with part of the white community.

State's Atty. Peyton Berbling called the situation "a temper in a teapot."

Berbling denied charges by Father Montroy and Negro spokesmen that an organization known as the "White Hats" was formed to intimidate Negroes.

Some members of the organization, officially called the Cairo Committee of 10 Million, said it was set up after firebombing incidents in 1967 to protect their homes and aid in emergencies.

They said the "White Hats," some of whom carry weapons, had not been called out in more than a year and that the organization had almost become defunct.

Father Montroy, 29, told newsmen Thursday it would be "fruitless" for him to join with Father Roth's group in meetings with Cairo officials.

"It's been impossible for me to make any inroads with the white community," he said.

Father Roth said his group had been in touch with Lt. Gov. Paul Simon and sent telegrams to other state officials requesting an investigation.

Unofficial estimates placed the Negro population at 40 percent in a city of approximately 8,400 residents.

Preston Ewing, president of the NAACP Cairo chapter, described the "White Hats" as "terrorizing the black people to keep them in their place."

"There have been instances of them acting in small groups but not collectively," he told newsmen.

"Their objectives are illegal but the state's attorney continues to lend his support."

Jordan hits Israel for village raids

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Jordan accused Israel before the U.N. Security Council Thursday of staging an air raid on a Jordanian village to head off a Big Four meeting aimed at settling the Middle East conflict.

Israel denied it and counter-charges that Arab terror warfare was what "undermines peacemaking efforts."

Israel said the village, Ein Hazar near the town of Salt, was hit Wednesday because it was headquarters for terror forays, and warned that if the Arab governments did not stop such terrorism, Israel would stop it for them.

The 15-nation council met urgently by request of both sides as Soviet, U.S., British and French delegates prepared for a private four-power meeting probably next week on how to get a general settlement.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser told a congress of his Arab Socialist Union that the Big Four must act quickly to defuse the situation in the Middle East because it was nearing the explosion point.

"The crisis cannot wait any more than it has," he said in a broadcast speech monitored in Beirut. "It is a miracle that it has remained so long without exploding."

Amman claims that 18 civilians were killed and 25 wounded when four Israeli jets bombed and rocketed the area around Salt, about halfway between that capital and the Jordan River crossing to Israel-occupied territory.

Nasser claimed that U.S. policy on the Middle East has not changed under President Nixon.

He said he received an American working paper on the Middle East crisis a few days ago and asserted that it "expressed full support for the Israeli position." He warned of reprisals for Israeli raids against Egyptian soil.

"The day will come," Nasser declared, "when the bombing and shelling of Egyptian civilians will be answered by the bombing and shelling of Israeli civilians."

In the Security Council, Ambassador Muhammad H. El-Farra of Jordan and Yosef Tekoah gave sharply contrasting pictures of the Israeli raid.

El-Farra said the raid hit a civilian area and killed taxicab drivers and travelers pausing for refreshment.

Israelis "resorted to the bombing of civilians in Jordan," El-Farra said. He called for "adequate action under Chapter Seven" of the U.N. charter, authorizing sanctions and even use of military force, as the only things that could stop Israeli attacks.

Peace bid a trick: enemy

PARIS (AP)—North Vietnam and the Viet Cong Thursday denounced as tricky the efforts of Washington and Saigon to get private talks started on a Vietnam settlement. But they left the door ajar.

They did not reject the concept of private talks as such but the conditions attached, particularly those laid down by President Nguyen Van Thieu in news conference Tuesday.

Their statements at the 10th full-scale session of the peace talks hinted that they expected President Nixon's administration to run short of time and feel a heavy weight of public pressure to end the war in a hurry. One source said the Communist side might be overestimating that pressure.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, in a brief exchange following the formal statements, expressed surprise that the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front delegation had not accepted the Thieu proposal. But a Front spokesman characterized the Saigon offer as "insolently" demanding that the Front proceed to its own dissolution.

As for the formal session of 5 1/4 hours, there was no visible sign of progress. Asked about this, Lodge replied: "You'll have to read the record of what transpired and draw your own conclusions. I'd rather not characterize it."

That record was pretty much the same as the record of nine previous meetings: Repetitions of positions and exchanges of accusations. The four delegations meet again next Thursday.

From what North Vietnam's Ambassador Xuan Thuy said in his formal statement and what a Front spokesman said after the meeting, Thieu's terms for private talks are utterly unacceptable.

Thuy and the NLF delegate, Tran Buu Kiem, denounced the proposal as having been ordered by Nixon as a "deceitful trick to calm public opinion."

Said a Front spokesman: "Thieu insolently demanded the National Liberation Front should proceed to its own dissolution and the population should end its fight against American aggression. At the same time he opposed a coalition government as well as [withdrawal] of American troops."

Was the Front prepared to enter private talks with Saigon? He parried the question. The problem, he said, was not the form of the meeting. It was that the delegations "should have the good will to seek a correct political solution" on the basis of Hanoi's four points and the NLF's five points. These are maximum demands including a complete withdrawal of U.S. troops. The Americans say this would be tantamount to surrender.

Thuy also declared the Saigon bid was unacceptable. Thieu, he said, was demanding the dissolution of the Front, refusing a coalition government and opposing withdrawal of U.S. forces. He called this a "stubborn and insolent attitude."

What sounded like a rejection of private talks did not preclude such contacts at a future date, nor did it exclude the possibility of direct American talks with North Vietnam.

In Washington, Secretary of State William P. Rogers told Congress the United States is seeking an agreement with North Vietnam on mutual withdrawal. The logical way to seek this is through private contacts.

While the Front might be willing under some circumstances to talk with Saigon, it is clearly unwilling to do so on conditions calling for its own dismemberment.

Just as clearly, Hanoi and the Front want to maneuver the United States into a position where it will talk directly with the Front and thus extend recognition to it as a political entity. These points are bedrock issues on the Communist side.

A U.S. spokesman made the American viewpoint just as plain. The spokesman, Harold Kaplan, said Thieu's proposal for secret talks with the Front did not affect the United States.

The American stand is that political matters should be discussed by the South Vietnamese themselves, he said. He added that he could not visualize conditions under which the United States would engage in secret talks with the Front.

Bill seeks to require that state institutions comply with city codes

Goss said such a double-standard that exists "economically puts the private builder on an unfair competitive basis.

Carbondale officials said that some private contractors have complained for some time about the double-standard.

The ramifications of such a law would be great, according to City Manager C. William Norman and George Everingham, code enforcement director. Everingham cited the University and city's electrical systems as one specific point where an inconsistency exists.

Everingham said that a present city ordinance requires all contractors of commercial buildings and three or more family-dwelling units to use conduit in its wiring installations.

Evergreen Terrace, a University low-rent housing complex located within the city limits, has romex wiring installed inside all of its 25 units, according to Cody Russell, chief engineering craftsman in the Campus Architect's office.

Russell said that conduit is safer than romex. But he believes that with the regular inspections which are made by University officials the use of romex is not dangerous.

Everingham said that private contractors are disgruntled because conduit wiring which is required by ordinance for their housing apartment buildings is more expensive than the romex type used at Evergreen Terrace.

Goss said he does not believe that conduit is a necessary requirement for public safety reasons. But, if it is the regulations, it should be followed by the University as well, he said.

The ordinance requiring conduit was adopted March 18, 1964, prior to the present city administration.

Norman said he would "welcome any further advice as to whether this regulation requiring the use of conduit is justified."

Noted personalities to appear on convo

Al Capp, Attorney Mark Lane, and ghetto authority Gerald Schaflander are noted personalities who will appear on free convocation programs at SIU at 1 p.m. Thursdays during the spring quarter of classes.

Capp, one of America's favorite cartoonists and creator of Li'l Abner, will speak April 10 about today's Great Society, its problems and foibles. Capp, besides being a cartoonist, is a humorist who appears frequently on television.

Schaflander has a new book coming out titled "Ghetto Crisis." Lane is author of "Rush to Judgment," book about the Warren Report.

The spring program schedule:

April 3: Paul Winter Contemporary Consort, well-known jazz combo.

April 10: Al Capp.

April 17: Richard Schickel, Life Magazine film critic whose talk is titled "Movie-Makers and Movie Moguls."

April 24: Gerald Schaflander of Boston University.

May 1: Southern Dancers.

May 8: Spring Festival program.

May 15: Ruth Sienczynski, pianist virtuoso, faculty member in the Department of Music on SIU's Edwardsville Campus.

May 22: Angel Flight's singing Angelaires.

May 29: Attorney Mark Lane.

Paul Hibbs, coordinator of special programs, invites people throughout the area to attend these free programs. He reported that Attorney Melvin Belli, who was scheduled, then rescheduled, to speak during the Convocation Series, will be unable to appear.

Bill in House proposes big increases in tuition

A bill providing for increases in tuition at state-supported colleges and universities was introduced Wednesday into the General Assembly.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Richard A. Walsh, R-Oak Park, would establish minimum tuition rates for all schools except junior colleges.

Rates would increase annually over a five-year period and would vary with class rank.

"He didn't stop. I'm pretty sure he knew he hit me. My legs hurt for a while, but the bike and I were okay," Holden said.

"The first week we pedaled until we dropped," Lewelling said, "even at night. We averaged about 75 miles a day."

"The first four days, we traveled over 100 miles a day," Lewelling said. He said they stayed the sixth day in Athens, Ohio, and rested.

"The University of Ohio is located there," Lewelling said, "but they were on quarter break, too, so there weren't any girls around."

rates proposed for 1970-71 are $360 for freshmen and sophomores, $420 for juniors and seniors and $480 for graduate students. These rates more than double those planned for '70-'71 by some state universities.

SIU tuition rates for that biennium are expected to be $201.

By 1974-75 minimum annual tuitions at all schools would be $600 for freshmen and sophomores, $900 for juniors and seniors and $1,200 for graduate students, if the Walsh bill is approved.

The rates would apply to resident and nonresident students.

The increases are being requested, Walsh said, because of the vast increase in the cost of higher education in recent years.

British faced with nationwide unrest

Student rebellion, racial unrest, and organized crime on a nationwide scale—problems which Americans know well—now are becoming problems to the British.

This was pointed out by a member of England's Parliament on a visit to SIU, March 21.

Richard Sharples, who is vice chairman of the Conservative Party in the House of Commons and the party's designated spokesman on prisons, law enforcement and race relations, came to the area during a three-week tour of the United States to confer with officials of the SIU Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections and to inspect facilities of the U.S. penitentiary at Marion, Ill., a few miles away.

"Ten years ago," Sharples said, "we didn't have any organized crime in Britain. Today it is a strongly developing problem."

On racial disorders and strife on the campus, he pointed to recent examples of these in English life, saying: "Such problems always tend to come to us three or four years later."

Referring to his visit to the Marion penitentiary, he commented: "It is quite the most efficiently run of any prison in any country of the world I have visited. It is extremely secure and I was impressed with the humane outlook there and the steps which have been taken to fully occupy prisoners."

Comparing British and American legal machinery, Sharples said: "One thing which struck me is the difficulty you have owing to the proliferation of law enforcement agencies. Your problems are complicated by this and by the very long, drawn out criminal proceedings."

Sharples said his stay in the United States has provided him with much valuable information. "I would like to see many more exchanges between us, not only political but at the professional level," he said.

His visit to this country was arranged by the Governmental Affairs Institute under the International Visitor Program of the U.S. State Department.

British lawmaker

Richard Sharples, center, vice chairman of the Conservative Party in England's House of Commons, recently visited SIU. Seated with him are C. E. Harris, left, warden of the U. S. Penitentiary at Marion, Ill., and George M. Camp, associate warden. Standing is Robert H. Dreher, professor of government on the staff of the SIU Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections.

Van Der Slik paper published

An SIU faculty member had a paper published in a special issue of the Social Science Quarterly devoted to studies dealing with black America.

Jack Van Der Slik, researcher in the Public Affairs Research Bureau at SIU, wrote "Constituency Characteristics and Roll Call Voting on Negro Rights in the 88th Congress."

In the study, Van Der Slik noted some correlation between a legislator's stand on Negro rights and the characteristics of his district. However, voting on Negro rights questions seemed to be regional, rather than by party or constituency characteristics. Outside of the South, there was very little difference between Republican and Democratic voting on these issues.

Van Der Slik's paper, along with others in the special issue of the quarterly, will be collected in an anthology by Chandler Publishers.

Jo Ann Gunter schedules recital

Jo Ann Gunter of Carbondale, music student at SIU, will present her senior recital at 8 p.m. Monday in Davis Auditorium.

A flutist, Miss Gunter will play the first movement from Prokofiev's "Sonata in D Major" and "Synchronisms" by Mario Davidovsky.

Carolina prof lauds black studies

"Black studies programs may bring together campus communities and the communities in which they are located."

This was one of the points made by Darwin T. Turner, dean of the graduate school at North Carolina A. & T. University, in an interview on the campus of SIU Monday, March 10. Turner was at SIU to visit the English Department and Black American Studies Program.

Turner said that in many communities there is a "wall" between the campus and the local community. He feels that black studies programs will have a "vitalizing effect" on the whole community.

Turner said that before black studies programs are instituted, efforts to break down the "walls" which isolate the campus community have been limited to individual faculty members and their classes.

Black studies programs, however, he said, may serve to encourage the whole university community to make an effort to become involved with the local community.

Turner said that before black studies programs are instituted, efforts to break down the "walls" which isolate the campus community have been limited to individual faculty members and their classes.

Black studies programs, however, he said, may serve to encourage the whole university community to make an effort to become involved with the local community.

Turner said that attention to black literature is long overdue. He pointed out that many universities have long had such programs as Irish Studies or Asian Studies. He feels that black writers have been neglected.

"Too many college instructors and graduate students simply are not familiar with black literature at all," he said.

Turner went on to say that for much of present black literature, an oral and visual presentation is important.

"A quiet reading in the silence of one's study simply does not give the right impression of what these writers are trying to say," he said.

"But, after all, most of the important contributions of black America to American culture have been oral or visual—such as spirituals, dance, and song," Turner said.

Turner is currently a visiting professor at the University of Wisconsin. He is the author of "Katharsis," a volume of poems, and the forthcoming book, "Negro American Writers." He was co-editor of "Images of the Negro in America."

SIU Choir ends tour today

SIU's 56-voice Choir was on tour March 19 through today giving performances in Kentucky, Florida and Mississippi, according to Robert Kingsbury, director of choirs.

Organized in the early 1940's, the University Choir is the "parent" body of several choral organizations, including the Chamber Choir, the Male Glee Club, the Women's Ensemble and the Oratorio Choir.

The spring tour will have taken the choir to Louisville, Ky., Panama City, Fla., and Senatobia, Miss., where it performs today. The choir also visited New Orleans and Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge.

SIU deans attend meeting during break

More than 60 junior college administrators and agriculture officials of four-year universities attended a two day conference sponsored by Illinois State University at the Holiday Inn, Bloomington, Thursday and Friday.

SIU officials attending were Gene Wood, assistant dean, W.D. Keepper, dean,

The session was the first in a vocational series planned by Dean Charles Porter of the ISU College of Applied Science and Technology.

A basic purpose was the preparation of a common two-year curriculum for junior college students who later wish to transfer to a four-year university and major in agriculture.

Why does a perfect size 7 look perfect only 21 days every month?

It has nothing to do with calories. It's a special female weight gain caused by temporary water-weight build-up. Oh, you know that uncomfortable full feeling that sneaks up on you the week before your menstrual period. This fluid retention not only plays havoc with your looks but now you feel as well. (It puts pressure on delicate nerves and tissues, which can lead to pre-menstrual cramps and headaches, leaves emotions on edge.)

That's why so many women take PAMPRIN. It gently relieves water-weight gain to help prevent pre-menstrual puffiness, tension, and pressure-caused cramps. PAMPRIN makes size a perfect size 7 never looks less than perfect. Nor feels less than perfect, either.

Microbiology grads in good posts

In the seven years since the Department of Microbiology at SIU awarded its first Ph.D. degree, all its doctoral graduates have attained responsible positions in teaching or research, Maurice Ogur, department chairman, reports.

Two are in government research, three in industrial research.

David Pittman of Carbondale, who won the first doctoral degree in microbiology in 1962, is a geneticist in the biology branch, Division of Biology and Medicine, Atomic Energy Commission, Bethesda, Md.

Godalas Parikh of Bombay, India, 1963, is associate professor of bacteriology at South Dakota State University, Brookings, S.D.

Lowell Coker of Patterson, 1964, is a member of the Staley Company Research Center, Decatur.

Mrs. Fern Probstmeyer Lucero of Columbia, 1965, teaches in the University of California Medical School and is bacteriology consultant at two hospitals in the San Francisco Bay Area. Her address is San Bruno, Calif.

J.K. Bhattacharjee of Sylhet, East Pakistan, 1966, is assistant professor of microbiology at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

Yuh Lin Huang from Hong Kong, is assistant professor of life sciences at Sacramento State College.

Wilbert Bowers, Jr., of Carbondale, 1967, is doing research with the U.S. Army Research Institute of Environmental Medicine, Natick, Mass.

Harry Betterton of DeMotte, Ind., 1968, is assistant professor of biology at Ball State University, Muncie, Ind.

Al Roshanameeh of Tehran, Iran, 1968, is employed by Mead Johnson Pharmaceutical Laboratories, Evansville, Ind.

Ralph St. John of Stonefort, 1968, is doing industrial research with Affiliated Laboratories Corp., White Hall, Ill.

Joe Streckfus, formerly of Shirley and Elsberry, Mo.,

1968, is an assistant member of the Dental Science Research Institute, University of Texas, Houston, Texas.

The Department of Microbiology currently has 26 graduate students enrolled and 41 undergraduates, Ogur said, making it the second largest department among the life sciences at the University.

Ogur papers to be published

Maurice Ogur, professor of microbiology and director of the Biological Research Laboratory at SIU, is the author or co-author of several papers recently accepted for publication in scientific journals.

One, on "Localization of the Homocitrate Pathway," appeared in the international journal Biochimica et Biophysica, published in Holland, in its December issue.

Another article, "A Brief Proposal for an Experimental Attack on the Treatment of Certain Varieties of Genetic Disease," has been accepted by Perspectives in Biology and Medicine for summer publication.

A third, entitled, "Separation and Specificity of the Yeast Glutamate-a-Ketoadipate Transaminase," prepared by Makoto Matsuda and Ogur, has been accepted by the Journal of Biological Chemistry. Matsuda, from Tokyo, Japan, where he is a staff member of Jikei University School of Medicine, was a research associate in the SIU Biological Research Laboratory last year.

Bulletin cites legislative art

Short-cuts in the passing of bills in the Illinois legislature are the topic of the current Public Affairs Bulletin, published by the SIU Public Affairs Research Bureau.

"Without Reference to Committee," by Frederic H. Guild, senior researcher on the PARB staff, analyzes the tendency to skip the committee stage in the consideration of bills. Of the factors which would lead to this, Guild suggests that the time saved might be a major one.

The committee stage is most often left out when a bill comes from either house of the legislature, and is often skipped as the legislature approaches the June logjam of bills.

There was a tendency in the 1967 session to reduce the number of bills bypassing the committee stage, according to Guild. This partly came about when an interim committee recommended that the committees be bypassed only in "demonstrable emergencies," and that each bill receive full committee consideration.

SIU prof is Army consultant

Bruce B. MacLachlan, assistant to the chancellor at SIU at Carbondale, is a member of the consulting faculty of the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

MacLachlan consults with the students and faculty of social sciences research courses and advises on course content and assists in evaluating students' work.

MacLachlan is a captain in the U.S. Army Reserve and has been in the reserve for almost 12 years. If called to active duty, he would be assigned as civil affairs officer with the Civil Affairs School at Fort Gordon, Ga.

At SIU, MacLachlan is also director of the President's Scholars Program for superior undergraduates and on the staff of the Office of Academic Affairs, as well as an assistant professor of anthropology.

SIU unit to tour region

SIU will have a Mobile Museum to tour area communities during the SIU Centennial period, beginning with Charter Day ceremonies March 9 and extending to the 100th anniversary of the first classes, July 2, 1974.

Basil Hedrick, assistant director of the Museum, said the Illinois Central Railroad has agreed to lend one of its "piggy-back" trailers to house the exhibit. It will be pulled by a University tractor.

Each community visited will be encouraged to plan an evening program at the Mobile unit, following afternoon "open house" for school children, Hedrick said. The University plans to provide an audio-visual show as an evening attraction.

Hedrick said the Museum committee will welcome suggestions for the development of appropriate exhibits representative of the various stages of the Centennial Period celebration: 1969, teacher training; 1970, business and agriculture; 1971, science and technology; 1972, behavioral and social sciences; 1973, expression and communications; and 1974, higher education.

Hedrick said the exhibits should not show just a number of antiques and specimens, but should work toward a concept of interpretation of Illinois history and development, using movement, sound, color, lighting effects, art, photography, slides and motion pictures, "do-it-yourself" displays, puzzles and other techniques.

"It is the feeling of the centennial committee that there is no other single way in which the University can present itself to more persons than by taking such a series of exhibits directly to the people in their own home communities," he said.

The entire project will be geared to the theme of the centennial. "The University as a Creative or Innovative Force in Society," he said.

Hedrick said it would require at least three months to get the "piggy-back" museum ready to roll.

Facilities at Lake-on-Campus to be available on April 5

April 5 marks the opening date for use of some of the Lake-on-the-Campus facilities at SIU.

The boat house and dock facilities at the lake will open on Saturday, April 5. The facilities may be used from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 1 p.m. until 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Campus Lake Beach will open May 5. Beach facilities may be used from 1 p.m. until 7 p.m. through the week (weather permitting.)

Swimming is not permitted until the beach is officially open and then only when authorized life guards are on duty, according to information from the Office of Student Activities.

University identification is required for all persons using the lake facilities.

Rental information for boat house and dock equipment is as follows:

Boats and canoes, 50 cents per hour, bicycles, 20 cents hourly, $1 daily and $5 weekly.

and tandem bikes, 30 cents per hour.

Other recreational equipment as bats and balls may be checked out at the boat-house office at no charge.

Walsh gets museum award for bronze 'dream' sculpture

Thomas Walsh, assistant professor in the Department of Art, has received an award from the Speed Museum, Louisville, Ky., for his bronze sculpture, Hectorina's Dream.

The 38-inch-tall piece will be shown in the museum's First Regional Biennial Exhibition of Painting and Sculpture Monday through April 28. Walsh was given the Louise Taylor Harrison Memorial Award.

Walsh recently received two purchase awards for graphic drawings; one in the National Print and Drawing Exhibition at Olivet College in Michigan, the other in the Tippecanoe Regional Exhibition of Prints and Drawings at the Lafayette Art Center, Lafayette, Ind. The first work was entitled Sorrows of Priapus XI, the second The Superlative Mr. May.

Integrated TV appeals to black students

By Rob Wilson

"I think it's good," says Grant Henry. "They're very untypical," frowns Lucille Younger. "My kids take more interest," laughs Harold Bardo. "This should have begun a long time ago," insists Bob Hudspeth.

These are campus blacks giving their personal reactions to recent television network attempts to "integrate" various programs and commercials. Their comments seem to reflect the views of many black students and faculty at SIU.

"The country's starting to notice black people," continued Grant Henry, graduate assistant in the Department of Athletics. "They ought to be in ads. There are some 22 million blacks and their spending power must be worth chasing."

"My children find the shows a little more appealing," says Harold Bardo, academic advisor in the Athletic Department. "They watch 'The Outcast,' 'Julia' and 'The Mod Squad' every week. I don't care for 'Julia.' The situation is: too untypical. 'The Mod Squad' is unreal, too, but I do enjoy it. 'The Outcast' I dig because a man meets another on an equal basis."

Lucille Younger, senior in broadcast journalism, was adamant. "All of them (integrated TV shows) are very untypical of America's racist society. Most programs are phony, unrealistic and a mockery of black people in America."

Asked about specific programs, Miss Younger replied, "'Julia' in particular is unrealistic. She's not playing a black person; she's playing a white, bourgeois widow. "Integrated ads are good," says Bob Hudspeth, senior in industrial mathematics, "because Negroes do buy a lot of products and things probably sell better with blacks in the ads."

Hudspeth likes the regular programs as well.

"The TV shows are also good. You know, there really were black cowboys. Showing this on TV helps to educate people in black history. We do contribute something to this country, and we like to be known for it."

A fairly common misgiving was expressed by Shirley Jones, senior in Merchandising.

"All of a sudden it seems that they're trying to satisfy us, to get something they can point to and say here is a change.

"Part of the problem, too, is qualifications. Before, there weren't many qualified black actors. Now they can play the leading roles."

Miss Jones expressed the most common sentiment in her own conclusion. She sat down, and sighed.

"I guess it's the best way for right now."

Music workshops, seminars planned

A series of summer workshops, seminars, private study and special programs on "Today's Music" will be offered at SIU June 9-Aug. 2, the Department of Music has announced.

An Electronic Synthesis of Music workshop is scheduled for June 9-21. Seminars will be held on Contemporary Compositional Techniques, June 23-July 5; American Music Since 1945, July 7-19; and Contemporary Music in the Schools, July 21-Aug. 2.

Gandhi group planning for 'India Night'

"India Night" is scheduled for April 27 at SIU's Carbondale Campus.

The event, sponsored by the Indian Association and the Gandhi Centennial Committee at SIU, will be held in the Woody Hall Cafeteria, starting at 6 p.m.

It will include a "Pucca" Indian dinner prepared by the members of the Indian Association with the supervision and assistance of the University Food Service. Raja Ram, minister of cultural affairs of the Indian Embassy in Washington, is expected to be the guest of honor.

The dinner will be followed by a panel discussion on India, featuring William Hardenburgh, associate professor of government at SIU; John Napper, visiting professor of fine arts from England; Jnan Bhattacharya, instructor in the Community Development Service at SIU; C. Kumaramaratnam, Ravindra Bhatra and Ranjit Singh, all graduate students from India.

Tickets for the dinner will be available at the International Center in Woody Hall at $2 each. Reservations may be made by calling 453-5774.

electronic workshop will have opportunity for private composition at the Electronic Music Studio and for individual computer-composing projects. Composition students may hear their compositions read and rehearsed by a small mixed chamber ensemble.

Staff for "Today's Music" will include Will Gay Bottje, SIU electronic music composer; Gordon Chadwick, consultant in the electronic studio; Hubert Howe, from Queens College, New York, guest lecturer in computer programming, composition and analysis; and Robert Mueller, SIU musicologist, composer and pianist.

Fees will be $50 for the electronic workshop, $25 for each of the other seminars. Students who are regularly enrolled in the University's summer session, however, will pay no special fee for "Today's Music" courses.

Registration requests should be sent by May 25 to Will Gay Bottje at the Department of Music.

Cabin by number

Toy idea aids handicapped children

Combining a couple of ideas from the toymaker's catalogue, day-camp planners at SIU have come up with a do-it-yourself log cabin that retarded children can build.

They've been doing it this winter in a series of camping programs at SIU's Outdoor Laboratory on Little Grassy Lake. Mentally handicapped children from the region—most in special education classes at area schools—have built the half-scale cabin time after time. Each job has taken about an hour.

Steve Frattini, a resident counselor at the Laboratory, is credited with the idea, a combination of "paint by numbers" and a model log cabin kit.

Frattini's crew built a small model and coded the ends of the logs in a sequential numbering arrangement. Then they cut building-size sassafras logs and numbered them correspondingly. Different colors matched up with different sides of the structure.

For the cabin-building exercise in the camp's daily activities schedule, the logs are scattered in outlying wooded areas around the Laboratory dining hall. The campers have to find the piles, tote them to the dining hall, and then start building by the numbers.

Counselors who've worked with the cabin project say it affords several kinds of mental discipline for campers and provides a "terrific sense of accomplishment" when they stand back and look at the finished product.

Here's an oddity that happened once in the NCAA championship basketball tournament — and what are the chances of it ever occurring again? EACH of the teams that finished 1st, 2nd and 3rd in the NCAA tournament of 1939 ALL had names starting with the SAME letter — "O". Oregon finished 1st that year, Ohio State 2nd and Oklahoma 3rd. That's never happened in the 30 years since then. Do you think it will ever happen again?

And here's another oddity. It has been discovered that when catcher Johnny Bench of the Reds was voted "Rookie of the Year" in the National League last season he became oddity enough, the first catcher EVER voted "Rookie of the Year" in either the National or American Leagues. You'd think there would have been other years when a catcher would have been chosen, but there never was.

Do you have any idea in which major sport the home team wins most often? Answer is basketball. Figures revealed recently show that the home team wins more than 64 out of 100 games. In other major sports, it's much closer to 50-50.

Did you know that the average life expectancy of a human is 70 years and are living five years longer on the average. I mean, how college men? The average death rate of college men makes noticeable broader benefits and greater cash values in todays life policies. This new policy makes good sense, doesn't it?

Curtis W. Dodd, assistant professor of SIU's School of Technology, is among 20 faculty members of universities and colleges who will participate in a Stanford University-Ames Research Center Engineering Systems Design Program this summer.

The program's purpose is to give participants experience and training in techniques that will allow them to organize multi-disciplinary engineering design courses in their own institutions.

The educators will be in-

Besides engineering factors, all implications of such a system will have to be considered, including human and sociological factors.

A KENNEDY LANDSLIDE

That's what we need in 1972.

If then Senator Kennedy will have served ten years in the United States Senate. His growth has been phenomenal in knowledge, in stature in his search for excellence as his brothers searched before him. He would bring to the Presidency youth, vitality, a forward look and the important ability to attract unusually capable men to his administration.

Richard Nixon began his campaign immediately after Johnson was elected. We have no desire to undermine the new Administration, but like President Nixon, we believe in the principle of loyal opposition.

We hope Ted will become a candidate. We believe that there is no finer leadership in the country. If you agree and want your opinion heard, help to win a great mandate for Ted.

Vocino cites efforts on personnel problems

An SIU researcher, speaking to the Illinois Municipal Finance Officer's Association in Springfield last week, reported efforts to help solve personnel problems.

Thomas Vocino, research associate with the Public Affairs Research Bureau at SIU, explained to finance officers the project he is running for the Illinois Board of Higher Education, with all municipalities in the state being surveyed in anticipation of needs for trained manpower to be provided by the colleges and universities of the state.

What becomes of student radicals?

By Jorge Alberto Navarro

After student radicals become graduates, do they go on protesting and organizing, or do they settle down and join middle-class America?

Michael L. Harty has been active in radical student politics for most of his undergraduate years. He will obtain his degree in June, and although he admits that his involvement in active radical politics will be lessened, he declares that there will be no change in his political beliefs and his fundamental conception of society.

Harty, a senior from Danville majoring in English, has been going to school off and on since 1960. During that time he has been a member of a variety of groups and organizations, all of them related to the problems of peace and social reform: The SIU Student Peace Union, SIU Socialist Discussion Club, SIU Students for a Democratic Society, Chicago Peace Council, Chicago 48th Ward Committee for New Politics, and the Southern Illinois Peace Committee.

He has been chairman of SDS and Student Peace Union. He also was a delegate to the National Conference for New Politics, Chicago, 1967.

Harty has been arrested only one time, in Jackson, Tenn., 1963. The charges against him were dropped. The arrest took place during a demonstration of the Civil Rights Movement.

In October 1967, Harty mailed his draft card to the Department of Defense, although he was granted conscientious objector status, which made his chances of ever being called into the armed forces improbable. Mailing back his draft card made Harty subject to prosecution by the federal government under a 1965 act of Congress that made it unlawful for any citizen not to have his draft card readily available. Harty said he has not heard from the government and added that with the rising opposition to the continuation of the Vietnam war, it is not likely that the Nixon administration will prosecute draft resisters.

Morris named by foresters

SIU President Delyte W. Morris has been named an honorary vice president of The American Forestry Association for 1969.

Announcement was made by William E. Towell, AFA executive vice president, that Morris had been given this honorary position by the association's board of directors because of his broad interest in forests, soil, water, wildlife and recreation. His name will appear on the masthead of American Forests magazine.

The SIU president may attend the annual meeting of the association, Sept. 21-24, in Colorado Springs.

Morris has served as a member of state and national commissions and agencies related to his special interests in forestry, conservation and water resources.

When questioned about his immediate plans for the future, Harty said that he is planning to attend graduate school. He said his interests are mainly in research and study of English literature. After graduate school, he plans to teach at the university level.

Harty, who married the former Cathy Anger in 1968, said that for a radical the problem of marriage could be a difficult one. "Marriage made me think a good deal more of security," he said. "I am more worried about money and position than I would be if I had remained single. But I am very happy I married the woman I am married to, and I have no regrets for doing so." He said that for the more active and committed student radicals, marriage is almost an impossibility.

Asked about his opinions on American society and possibilities of change in the near future, Harty said, "I am a leftist and I think that radical change is imperative in our society. I hope it could be achieved peacefully and for the benefit of all members of society and not of one particular class. But peaceful protest has severe limitations, and unless the government becomes more responsive to our needs, some of the groups in the movement will be forced to escalate the intensity of their protests. "Movement" is the term used by radicals to refer to the different anti-war, pro-socialism and black power organizations.

When asked about his plans as part of those organizations in the future, Harty said, "The role of the individual in society is very narrow. Individual influence in society is very limited. As an individual there is not much I can do to the war machine. I try to do as much as I can by refusing to cooperate, but the machine is so large that sometimes one does not know what to do."

Does this mean he feels frustrated? "Yes, certainly I do," he said. "But I have placed my hopes in the people becoming aware. Once they are aware they will make the changes necessary to stop the military-industrial complex. It is in the people's self-interest to do it."

Need No. 1 man

Golfers impressive—Holder

Still looking for their number one golfer, the SIU team will take a record of 2-2 into their first home match on April 3 when they meet Washington University of St. Louis and Southeast Missouri.

According to Coach Lynn Holder the overall strength of the team became evident on their recently completed spring trip.

"I'm really gratified with our performances," he said. "You know, all of the teams we met had already played eight or nine matches. It's something when you can meet the calibre of team we did and still split with them."

"The whole trip was indicative of our strength, and now I'm hoping that one of the boys will take over the number one spot. The type of competition we're going to face this year demands a good man in that spot—one who is able to win 75-80 per cent of his matches."

"We've got probably the hardest schedule we've ever had this year. We'll meet eight Big Ten teams, Notre Dame and Missouri, among others," he said.

Although Holder had six matches scheduled for the spring outing, two were rained out. In individual match play in two triangular meets, the Salukis took Southern Alabama and Tulane 13-5 and 13.5-4.5, and dropped matches to Spring Hill University and the University of Southern Mississippi 10.5-7.5 and 9.5-8.5, respectively.

Individual averages and won-lost records for team members are:

Harvey Ott—71 with three wins and one loss; David Wargo—74.5 (2-2); Terry Rohlfing—74.5 (4-0); Steve Heckel—76 (3-1); Mike Beckman—75 (3-1) and Terry Tessary—76 (1-3).

A seventh man, trying to move into one of the top six spots, is Fred Hinkle with a 73 average for the trip.

"But with one of the best schedules I've ever had in my 23 years here, we've got to get one man who can consistently win for us if we are going to do well. I think Steve Heckel will be able to do it for us again this year."

In 1968, the team compiled an overall record of 24-8.

Gymnastics squad weakened by Ciolkosz' foot injury

Even though Coach Bill Meade's gymnastics squad came out on top in the NCAA Eastern Regional Saturday at Terre Haute, the SIU team was weakened for the national championships due to the injury of Larry Ciolkosz.

Ciolkosz ruptured the Achilles tendon in his right foot.

This injury forces Meade to designate Mark Davis as the second all-around man and use him in five of the six events, and Southern will be going with three men in only the side horse.

Ciolkosz closed out his junior year with two firsts on the long horse and one in the floor exercise, a second on the long horse and three third place finishes in the floor exercise and one on the long horse.

He had 8.895 and 8.70 average scores on the long horse and in the floor exercise respectively.

Since the loss of all-around man Pete Hemmerling the first of February, Meade has been lining up with only three men in four of the events. With this line up, the all-around men were Stu Smith and Homer Sardina.

Also injured in the regional meet was Mark Randall who suffered a sprained ankle during warm-ups. However, Meade expects Randall to be ready for the nationals.

Spring football begins April 7

The first official day of SIU spring football practice will be April 7 with about 100 players expected to turn out for the session, Coach Dick Towers said.

Students who want to play ball next fall have been working out since winter quarter.

Among the most important aspects of this off-season program has already been the running. By April 7 all the backs must be able to run the half mile in at least two minutes and 20 seconds. And all the linemen have to break the two-minute and 35-second barrier.

The coaching staff has looked at everyone and evaluated them on the basis of this off-season program," Towers said. "We have concentrated on conditioning, strength and looking at the freshmen prospects."

Towers expressed confidence in the spring program and also in next season. He has a right to be confident because this past season's defensive unit will be back practically intact.

The offensive unit isn't this blessed with returnees. Replacing seniors John Quillen and Doug Hollinger will be a chore for Towers. This is why Towers says that the tailback and split end positions are open.

Towers stated that the full-back spot may be troublesome because the competition isn't as keen at that position as it is at the others.

Quarterbacking duties will be contested by Barclay Allen, Tom Wisz and Jim McKay. Towers commented that Allen has the edge because he finished the past season at the position.

Pinson, Cardinals blank

New York Mets, 4-0

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Vada Pinson, hitting a blazing .450 this spring, singled to set up one run, batted in another with a base hit and then contributed two good catches Thursday as the St. Louis Cardinals shut out the New York Mets 4-0 in an exhibition baseball game.

Steve Carlton scattered seven hits and blanked the Mets for seven innings.

Ex-Brave Joe Torre tripled and singled as the Cards made the Mets their 11th victim in 17 games. However, it was Pinson who was the most outstanding as the Redbirds defeated the Mets' Tom Seaver.

Pinson singled with two out in the first, raced to third on outfielder Tommie Agee's error and scored on Torre's triple.

In the third inning, after Curt Flood walked with two out, Pinson singled to center and when Agee again fumbled, Flood scored.

Women eaglers lose in NIT

Even though the SIU women's basketball team did not capture the National Invitational for women, they did place one team member on the all-tournament team.

Virginia Gordon was one of 10 individuals selected from 180 participants for the honor. Miss Gordon had games of 25 and 16 points in the tournament.

SIU entered the tournament seeded as number two but after an easy win over Towson College of Baltimore, Md. 57-37, they were downed by Western North Carolina 44-42.

Cheerleading practice

Practice sessions will begin Monday for the April 13 SIU cheerleader tryouts, according to Sally Cotton, cheerleader advisor.

The practice sessions will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Room 207 of the Women's Gym on March 31, April 1, 3, 7 and 8. At the sessions, the cheerleaders will teach cheers and stunts required for the April 13 tryouts.

Persons interested in trying out for the cheerleader squad must have reached sophomore status, must be in good standing with the University, and must have attended at least three of the five practice sessions. Both boys and girls are eligible.

Volleyball tournament set

The intramural volleyball tournament will begin on April 2, according to the Intramural Office, and there will be a meeting of all team managers or representatives at 6:30 p.m. April 1 in the Arena.

Teams not represented at this meeting will begin the round-robin tournament with one loss. Rosters and team entry fees of $2 will be due at the meeting.

Managers may arrange for practice sessions on April 1 and pick up rules of the tournament in the Intramural Office—Arena 128.

Place kicker tryout set

All would-be place kickers will have a chance to show their stuff for the SIU football coaching staff on Tuesday at 4 p.m., according to Coach Dick Towers.

All persons, freshmen through those with junior academic standing, are invited to try out for this position on the 1969 SIU football squad. However, all must be in good academic standing and eligible to compete in intercollegiate athletics.

The site of tryouts will be the football practice field behind the Arena, and all participants must bring their own equipment.

Baseball team drops second game to Arizona State 4-3

Saluki baseballers dropped their second game of the season Wednesday to Arizona State University 4-3. Faculty-Alumni advance in tourney

Paced by a 48-point performance by ex-Saluki basketballer Roger Bechtold, the SIU faculty-alumni team made it into the quarter finals of the Tri-State Independent Basketball Tournament with a 102-87 win over the Claybrook Transfer Company team.

The team will now meet the Ft. Campbell Eagles in quarter final action on Friday.

Bechtold's total is a tournament high for the year. Other scoring was: Bill Healey-11, Larry Bell-13, Ed Zastrow-23, Charlie Goss-three and Wally Hoffman and Carl Jennings, two points each.

Arizona State is ranked fourth nationally compared with SIU's third place mark.

The Saluki record is now 7-2-1, with the tie coming against Wyoming because of darkness. Arizona is 17-4.

Jerry Paetzhold, relieving in the ninth inning, was credited with the loss. Starting pitcher Bob Ash worked seven innings, gave up two unearned runs, five hits, a base-on-balls and scored with nine strikeouts.

Lee Pitlock relieved for one inning, the eighth, and gave up one run on a base-on-balls and two hits.

Playing before approximately 3,000 fans, the Salukis got off to a slow start but tied the game in the top of the ninth 3-3. Arizona came back in the last inning to win.

The Salukis open at home Saturday against Monmouth College. Game time is 3 p.m.

Wrestlers are impressive in NCAA

By Barb Leebens

PROVO, Utah—The SIU wrestling squad wracked up six points Thursday during first day action in the NCAA National Wrestling Tournament in the Brigham Young University Field House before approximately 5,000 spectators.

The Salukis were in eighth place after the second preliminary round. Iowa State surged to lead scoring 14 points and qualifying 10 wrestlers for third round action.

The six points exceeds the total of four earned by the Salukis last season which put them in 35th place.

ABC reveals football slate

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Broadcasting Co. will televise 37 college football games this fall—two more than last year—and will retain its "wild card" game.

The schedule, announced Wednesday by Roone Arledge, ABC-TV president and executive producer of ABC Sports, also includes four night games. They are Air Force-Southern Methodist Sept. 13, Mississippi-Alabama Oct. 4, Notre Dame-Georgia Tech Nov. 15 and UCI A-southern California Nov. 22.

In all 46 different teams are scheduled to appear, with Texas and Arkansas making the most appearances, three each.

In addition to the published schedule, the network also had the option of picking one extra game, the so-called "wild card" game, for telecast sometime during the season. The game or games scheduled for that date still will be televised.

Physical education career day set

The women's physical Department of Education at SIU will sponsor Career Day Saturday.

Invitations have been issued to high school girls in the area to attend the event which will take place from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the women's gymnasium.

Purpose of the celebration is to introduce prospective SIU students to the department faculty and to present demonstrations of activities such as modern dance, fencing, basketball and swimming.

During the day the guests will see films of women's sports at SIU and will participate in discussions of the career opportunities in physical education.

A highlight of the day will be performances by the SIU cheerleaders and Pom Pom Girls.

Earning points for the Salukis were: Jim Cook (130), Tom Duke (152), Rich Casey (160), Bob Underwood (167), and Ben Cooper (177).

Cook decisioned Don Silbaugh, of Wyoming, 7-2 in an overtime period, after being deadlocked after regulation time good enough to earn the Salukis first point. In second round competition Cook lost a 9-0 decision to Mike Riley, of Oklahoma State.

The Salukis second point came when Duke decisioned Scott Tennis, of Utah, 2-0. In second round preliminaries Duke was eliminated by a 5-2 decision at the hands of Gary Richards, of Kansas State.

Casey picked up two of SIU's points by pinning Tom Cooper, of Montana, in 3:38. One point was for advancing to second round action scheduled for Thursday night at 7:30 p.m.

Conigliaro sparkles

The the Associated Press

Tony Conigliaro slugged a homer and a single, driving in two runs and leading the Boston Red Sox to a 4-3 exhibition baseball victory over Cincinnati Thursday.

The homer, a solo clout in the third inning, was Conigliaro's first since Aug. 8, 1967 for the former American League home run king. Tony is attempting a comeback after missing all of last season when hit on the head by a pitched ball in 1967.

Former St. Louis Cardinal Orlando Cepeda cracked his second homer with Atlanta and the Braves swept past Baltimore 7-1 on the combined two-hit pitching of Cecil Upshaw and Gary Neibauer. It was only the Orioles third loss in 17 spring games.

The New York Yankees got a two-run homer from Tom Tresh in the fourth inning and nipped Minnesota, 2-1. Mel Stottlemyre went seven innings, giving up his first earned run in 20 innings this spring.

Rookie pitcher Tom Griffin, apparently clinching the Astros' fourth starting spot, led Houston to a 5-1 victory over Kansas City. Griffin allowed only three hits and one run—his first in 17 innings.
