GSC leaders fear governance system will die

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Two officers of the Graduate Student Council (GSC) said Tuesday a recent meeting with President David R. Derge left them with the feeling that the campus governance system will die unless someone does something to save it.

The opinion was expressed by Wayne Riley, vice-president of the GSC, and Chris Jensen, secretary of the GSC.

"We wanted him (Derge) to come to a definite position," Riley said. "He would not come out with a specific opinion. It is our opinion that he will use the campus governance system the way he wants to use it and that the system will die unless someone does something."

The meeting with Derge was held March 15. The GSC officers said they emphasized to the president that the GSC intends to present all future proposals to the University Senate Screening Committee whenever possible. The officers also emphasized that the GSC will conduct all its business according to the procedural rules defined by the Campus Governance Document.

Jensen said the officers asked Derge when he will begin to use the governance system. "He began by saying he has been using the governance system," Jensen said. "He gave some examples of how he has been using the various constituencies. We attempted to argue that issues which can be solved by the democratic process use the democratic process. We told him he should allow the screening committee to decide which constituency has jurisdiction over an issue."

The officers presented a list of three specific administrative decisions which led the officers to doubt that Derge intends to use the governance system: the establishment of an independent Intercollegiate Athletics Committee, the establishment of the Management Task Force and the denial of campus mail privileges to the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT).

"We asked him to cite a specific National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) rule concerning the formation of the athletics committee," Jensen said. "He didn't cite any NCAA rule; he just said that there is one."

Concerning the task force, the officers were concerned with the implication that the task force will not report to the University community but just to the president. The officers were also concerned that there is no indications that the University community will be allowed to share in the process of evaluating the findings of the task force.

The meeting with Derge followed a meeting of the GSC in which the council formally decided to support the governance system. According to the resolution which the council approved, the U-Senate's veto power and its power of initiative were classified "milestones in this University's history." The GSC expressed the opinion that it hoped that Derge was not going to change the governance system into a purely advisory role. The resolution also asks Derge to publicly announce his opinion on the governance system and present his reasons for his opinion. A copy of the resolution has been sent to David Kenney, president of the U-Senate.

Council agrees to close S. Illinois

The Carbondale City Council Tuesday night indicated tentative approval of a task force proposal to close an area of South Illinois Avenue on warm summer weekends but turned down a portion of the plan which would have allowed the consumption of alcohol in the street.

Harry Rubin, a representative of a task force appointed to study the problem of "street parties" on South

Illinois, presented a multi-faceted plan to the council.

He proposed that a two-block area be closed to traffic from 7 p.m. to 4 a.m. on all Friday and Saturdays from April 21 to late May. Northbound traffic on U.S. 51 would be channelled from Illinois Avenue to College Street, east to Washington Avenue, north to Walnut Street and west to South Illinois.

Eckert discusses his recent defeat

By David L. Mahsman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

What happened to Mayor Neal Eckert in the March 21 race for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor?

"I don't think I won," Eckert said with a smile this week.

Eckert was the running mate of Dan Walker, the independent Democrat who pulled an upset victory over Lt. Gov. Paul Simon to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Prior to the election, Eckert said he expected to win or lose with Walker. He was wrong.

Eckert said he sees two possible reasons for his defeat at the hands of Neil Hartigan, chief legal counsel for the Chicago Park District, a precinct committeeman in Chicago and Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's choice for the nomination.

First, Eckert said there was considerable ballot confusion in the primary. Although he was Walker's running mate, Eckert's name appeared alongside that of Simon. Eckert said this hurt him especially in downstate Illinois, as there was no mix-up in Cook County.

A second reason for his defeat was that he did not advertise extensively. Eckert said his name was not tied strongly enough to Walker's.

Eckert added that he did not campaign enough against Hartigan. Most of his campaign was aimed at supporting Walker rather than attacking Hartigan.

In spite of his loss, Eckert said he hopes to have some influence in Springfield should Walker defeat Gov. Richard Ogilvie in November. Eckert said he is especially concerned with representing the interests of Southern Illinois.

"A look at Illinois politics shows that Southern Illinois is not too well represented," Eckert said. "This is a sad thing."

The mayor added that he thinks it will be beneficial to the entire state if Southern Illinois is developed. He said he will do his best to have Southern Illinois' potential realized, but confessed that he has no guarantee that he will be effective.

Besides taking a political loss, Eckert also suffered financially. As of March 14, Eckert had spent $26,000 on his campaign. Of that amount, the mayor will have to spend $22,000 of his own money—he received only $4,000 in contributions. He added that the bills are "still rolling in," and he has no real idea how much it will all finally cost him. Eckert said his 1971 income was some $15,000.

"It's going to take awhile to pay it all back," Eckert said seriously. "It's about like buying a house."

But Eckert soon took on a more cheerful tone.

"It's hard to mortgage campaigns," he laughed. "If I could, I'd let them foreclose."

Eckert said he also realizes more than ever that Illinois government really leaves something to be desired.

"Somebody has to take risks to change things," Eckert commented. "I'm still young enough to recoup."

The mayor said he has not yet talked to Walker since the election, because the Deerfield Democrat left immediately after the election for a vacation in Florida. Eckert said he expects to talk to Walker next week.

Organist to present program

An organ concert by James Moerer, University of Kansas organist and musicologist, will be presented by the School of Music at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium.

Moerer was the first person at the University of Michigan to earn a doctoral degree in both performance and musicology.

In 1961 he held a Fulbright grant for study at the State Academy of Music in Berlin and also studied under the French master Marcel Dupre in Paris. At Michigan he held several scholarships and a teaching fellowship, and, most recently, a Kent Fellowship from the Danforth Foundation for advanced research in French baroque performance.

His program at SIU will include two Bach numbers and compositions by Francois Couperin, Jehan Alain, Charles Marie Widor and Cesar Franck.

Conduct Code Committee action on sanctions expected Wednesday

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Discussion and action is expected on sanctions when the Community Conduct Code Committee meets at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the University Senate conference room.

A list of sanctions were distributed to the committee at the March 15 meeting by Fred Hafferty, graduate student representative. Some discussion on the document took place. More discussion and a vote on the document is scheduled to take place Wednesday.

According to Hafferty's plan, a hearing officer or panel may issue a letter of warning. This letter would be entered on the individual's permanent record, but would not appear on official transcripts. This would serve as a written warning to the individual informing him that if found guilty of the charge, repetition of the same action or of a clearly related action may result in a more severe action.

Hafferty's document lists six sanctions: reprimand, probation, fine or loss of prospective benefits, campus restriction, suspension and dismissal.

Reprimand would be issued with or without a prior letter of warning. A copy of the letter would be kept on the individual's personal records, but not his permanent record.

Under probation, a member of the University community would not be permitted to represent the University in areas that are related to his offense. He would normally not be permitted to hold elective office or a committee position. Conditions concerning probation could also be made. If the conditions are violated, further disciplinary procedures could be taken. Probation would be entered on the permanent record, but not on any official transcripts.

Under fines or loss of prospective benefits, fines would be imposed on a graduated system in cases in which a fine is clearly related to the offense. Loss of prospective benefits could be used for any type of offense. The assessment of fines or loss of prospective benefits would be entered on the permanent record, but not on official transcripts.

An individual could also be restricted from certain areas of the University community or be restricted from participating in certain specified activities. Campus restriction would be entered on the permanent record but not on official transcripts. Conditions can also be added to campus restriction.

Suspension would be an involuntary separation of an individual from the University for a stated period of time after which readmission would be possible. Suspension would extend for a period of time or until any stated conditions are met. Suspension would be entered on the permanent record and would appear on official transcripts only during the suspension period.

Dismissal would be an involuntary and permanent separation of the individual from the University. Dismissal would be entered on the permanent record and on official transcripts.

Hafferty's proposal lists involuntary withdrawal as an alternative measure. After consultation with professional, medical or psychological personnel, an individual could be expelled from the University if such action is judged to be in the best interests of the community. Expulsion could contain additional conditions. Expulsion would be kept on the permanent record and official transcripts.

Hafferty also lists some possible conditions which could be used. These range from compensation to rehabilitation.

According to the proposal, no academic penalties would be assessed for violation of non-academic offenses. No sanction would be used to violation of any federal, state or Midwestern Conference regulations concerning participation in activities.

The committee is scheduled to consider a motion made by Hafferty to remove the violation concerning illegal possession or delivery of narcotic drugs, depressant or stimulant substances and hallucinogens.

A motion by William Hardenbergh, graduate faculty representative, to change and decrease the size of the Community Conduct Review Board (CCRB) is also expected. Currently, a panel of the CCRB which would hear an appeal would consist of two undergraduate students, one graduate student, two general faculty, one graduate faculty, one administrator, one nonacademic employee and one professional staff.

With only five of the committee's nine members at the March 15 meeting, the committee finished its work on a procedures document.

FDA foolishness must end

Americans are running scared and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration is partly responsible.

First it was cigarette smoking and glutamates in baby food, then cyclamates and charcoled broiled meats and food sprayed with pesticides. More recently there is concern over hexachlorophene and saccharin. Everything that Americans have been consuming for decades is now suddenly harmful.

The problem lies behind the now outdated Delaney Clause, drafted in 1956 as part of the Food Additives Amendment of the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. The clause states, "no additive shall be deemed to be safe if it is found to induce cancer when ingested by man or animal or if it is found, after tests which are appropriate for the evaluation of the safety of food additives, to induce cancer in man or animal."

Literal interpretation of the law would permit outlawing of any food substance found to induce cancer in animal and experimenters and scientists and the FDA are overworking and over generalizing such an interpretation. Through the use of limited and pointless experiments they have frightened Americans to the point of nonconsumption.

Consider the experiments used in the testing of cyclamates and cigarette smoking. Nicotine experiments at the University of Michigan involved the use of monkeys who were given, in nicotine dosage, the equivalent of 2000 cigarettes (100 packs) per day. The test which destroyed the cyclamate industry involved 12 rats, six of which developed bladder cancer after receiving daily dosages of cyclamates. According to one New York medical specialist, a human being would have to drink a bottle of cola every minute for eight hours to achieve the same daily dosage.

But other questions arise after a look at the cyclamates experiment. Is 12 an appropriate number of test animals for a study of such far-reaching consequences? Is six out of 12 a result that can be translated as 50 per cent? Would the results have been the same if the same tests had been done on 1,200 rats instead of 12?

The Delaney Clause ignores the possibility that cancer may be species specific. In any valid experiment an experiment would be tested on lab mice, rats or similar test animals and then repeated on other animal species. The results hopefully would be carefully evaluated and then projected in human terms as the final step. That six out of 12 rats showed signs of bladder cancer after receiving ridiculous amounts of cyclamates is certainly not enough to report that cyclamates cause cancer in human beings.

In the past six months the FDA has turned on saccharin which replaced cyclamates in soft drinks after cyclamates were deemed harmful. Tests were done on 20 rats by the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation. The rats were fed a diet of five per cent saccharin for two years after which three rats showed signs of bladder cancer. According to a Wisconsin physician, if humans were to ingest the same proportionate amount of saccharin as did the rats, each would have to drink 875 bottles of diet soft drink per day.

The FDA has reached the point of ridiculousness. How much longer will it continue to endorse pointless, costly experiments on animals while the same chemicals could have an entirely different effect in humans.

If one looks long enough and hard enough, one can find some sort of effect that people regard as hazardous in almost anything. The point is, the FDA is wasting time and money and Americans are paying the penalty.

Letters to the editor

Editor's plea

The editors of the Daily Egyptian feel it necessary to remind readers and potential letter writers that the essence of an open forum editorial page is the widest possible range of opinions. Extremely long letters deprive others of the opportunity to speak out.

Too often letters submitted for publication winter quarter were well beyond the published limit of 250 words. The blame for the publication of long letters lies squarely with the editors, as does the responsibility for correcting the situation. We urge letter writers to keep their letters brief and make certain they focus on issues rather than personalities. It is too much of a temptation for an editor to lay a long letter aside rather than edit it down to acceptable length.

We will attempt to publish every letter received and verified as long as it is brief, issue oriented and in good taste. We will also strive to publish the opinions of as many people as space and time will allow. By following these simple guidelines, we hope to both stimulate the flow of letters to the Daily Egyptian and preserve these pages as an open forum.

Lone Ranger

To the Daily Egyptian:

Mr. Dreher's interpretation of student representation on the Law School Dean's Search Committee (Daily Egyptian, March 14) leaves something to be desired.

Of course, there is a student on the Law School Dean's Search Committee, he stands out like the Lone Ranger. Of 13 members of the search committee, only one is a student.

To be absolutely correct, I must mention that our student representative is not actually on the search committee but is on the advisory committee. As students have learned, advisory is merely a euphemism for legitimizing. Our one student representative wasn't meant to advise but only to legitimize the actions of the 13 member search committee. If Mr. Dreher is serious about student representation then he shouldn't insult our integrity by offering us one token advisor.

I commend Mr. Roeser for calling this to the attention of the campus.

Why take chance on rape ?

To the Daily Egyptian:

In regards to Ms. Borsellino's letter on March 14, I agree that Carbondale and SIU could use more police patrols. However, as long as a girl is willing to hitchhike, especially at a time when at least two rapists are on the loose, these rapes will continue.

Friday night, March 10, two other male students and I picked up 15 female hitchhikers, all but five being alone. It seems incredible to me that so many girls are willing to take the risk, in view of the recent rapes. Since increasing the size of the police force is costly, it probably will not be done. The easiest way to prevent most of these rapes is simply not to hitchhike. The last few rapes are thought to have been committed by the same person picking up hitchhiking coeds. It is possible that the rapist might start attacking girls on foot, but as long as he can pick up female hitchhikers, why should he take the extra risk?

I wonder how many of those 15 hitchhikers I picked up really care about preventing these rapes?

Clean it up

Will we bury ourselves in trash and junk? We toss out 48 billion cans a year, it may possibly be so. Each of us leaves to our country a daily legacy of five pounds or more of trash and garbage or nearly a ton a year apiece.

Paper and cans lead the way to roadside litter with paper accounting for 57 per cent and cans 36 per cent of litter items on streets and highways. Disposable packaging of all types account for 71 per cent of roadside litter.

We waste money. Those "free" no-deposit bottles that we throw away, along with the gum wrappers, Sunday papers, junked automobiles, and the rest of our trash and garbage load, cost the taxpayer an estimated $4.5 billion a year for collection and disposal.

The part that hurts the worst is that there's even deliberate waste; bottlers say a principal reason they have been phasing out the returnable bottle is that the public just won't cooperate. Pepsi-Cola reports it recently marketed 600,000 cases of returnable bottles in the New York City area, and within six months the bottles were gone; the people of New York had forfeited $720,000 in deposits.

There's one easy place where we can fight this battle: the supermarket and the other food shops. Patronize the stores and the brands that will take bottles and cans back.

Two supermarkets in Denver, Colo., Albertson's Market and King Soopers, have announced their intention to use biodegradable meat and produce trays that can be disposed of with minimal pollution.

What's to be done about all this? We must put an end to the throw-away economy. We must reuse or recycle the materials we are now handing to the garbage man—return and refill the bottles or grind them up into something useful; melt down the old cans and reuse the metal.

Another practical solution is the building of solid waste disposal plants—not the old style incinerators. Backyard burning is unsound. Old-fashioned incinerator disposal plants pollute the air and are expensive to operate.

There are solutions which may keep us from becoming mired in our own refuse. A few are already working; many more are in the experimental stage. To lick the problem will require new approaches, individual concern and money.

Like any problem developments are on the verge of being perfected and are largely for the future. For now, we can best help by reviewing how you dispose of trash and how your city or hometown does the job.

This, in fact, is the priority the courts have followed. Busing has been ordered only when responsible school officials have failed to come forward with any effective alternative, most often because the schemes the President cites are inapplicable, or are so expensive the school district is unwilling, or unable, to bear the cost.

The $2.5 billion project Mr. Nixon characterizes as a "uniform national program to achieve desegregation" is no more than a limited extension of the "compensatory education" scheme begun in 1965 under Lyndon Johnson. It provides a cash bonus to improve the education of children trapped in inferior ghetto schools, and after five years' experience professional educators have serious doubts as to its efficacy. Nobody in Sacramento could identify the rosy achievement figures the President attributed to a California compensatory experiment, but a report was available from an independent Palo Alto evaluation agency which rated as successful only 3.1 per cent of the California projects it had been retained to examine.

Some of these facts were cited at a White House briefing by reporters who asked for evidence to sustain the President's assumption of crisis, noting that nobody in the Administration had been able even to provide figures as to the number of children presently affected by busing orders. The President's personal chief of staff, John D. Ehrlichman, offered a noteworthy reply:

"You'd have to come from some other planet not to be able to answer that. This is the front-burner issue in most local communities...it's so preponderant that it just can't be swept under the rug by some statistical evasion."

Perhaps not. But statistical evasion appears to be precisely the method the President is employing to turn up the heat under the front burner on which George Wallace is cooking up a mess of trouble for the Democrats—and for the nation's schoolchildren.

George Wallace, who ran up a substantial plurality in the Florida presidential primary by using the race-tainted school busing issue to exploit public confusion and mistrust of government, has been confirmed in his prophecy that "the message from Florida will get to Washington pretty quick."

Two days later President Nixon was on prime-time television proclaiming that he is opposed both to racial segregation in the public schools and to court-ordered busing of pupils "to achieve racial balance."

This moral straddle, intended to deny Wallace's purpose while endorsing his ends and co-opting his political appeal, has been translated into a presidential proposal of dubious constitutionality to limit the authority of the federal courts to order school busing. As a sop to the blacks who would be robbed of a prime instrument in their quest for equality, Mr. Nixon also calls for federal expenditures to improve the quality of education available to children thus consigned to inferior ghetto schools.

The presidential pronouncement gives high official sanction to the mythology that has been employed to blur the remarkable progress toward school desegregation under the impetus provided by the courts, particularly in the South. Thus Mr. Nixon opens openly with George Wallace and the others who are willing to serve their political fortunes at the expense of reviving racist opposition in districts where local leaders have been steadily gaining community support for comprehensive desegregation programs.

Mr. Nixon says his proposal would make busing a "last resort," to be undertaken only when there are no other means available to guarantee desegregation. As preferred alternatives he cited redrawn school districts, liberal transfers, construction of new schools and educational parks and "any other plan which is educationally sound and administratively feasible."

The innocent bystander

Cat and mouse with the narcs

By Arthur Hoppe
Chronicle Features

Hats off today to the President's Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse.

Taking a forthright, clear-cut stand, the Commission said that smoking marijuana in the privacy of your home should be perfectly legal—as long as no one gave it to you, sold it to you and you didn't grow it yourself.

Now this is the kind of legislation that enables the Government to do for us what it does for us best: tax our ingenuity.

Look at our building codes, our draft laws, our income tax regulations. Look at the inspired search that goes on day and night for variations, dodges and loopholes. Probably at no time in history have the citizens of a nation devoted more waking hours to trying to outwit their own government.

For years, those who've succeeded in outwitting the Government have gone on to fame, fortune and positions of leadership in the community. Those who've failed have gone to jail. It's like using a complex maze to weed out the stupider rats.

Consequently, thanks to this process of natural selection, American today are the sharpest-witted, most creative and downright ingenious people (with the possible exception of the French) on earth.

It's what's made America great. But there is some question that the Commission's proposed new marijuana legislation may have gone too far.

There you are, sitting in your easy chair, puffing contentedly on a joint of Acapulco Gold, when, thanks to the new No-Knock Law, your front door falls off its hinges. It's the narcs!

"Okay, Mac," says the Chief Narc. "what do you think you're doing?"

"I am legally smoking less than an ounce of marijuana in the privacy of my own home," you say, thus passing easily through the first door of the maze.

"Where," he says, turning the screw, "did you get it?"

Now here's where the paths start getting complex. Saying you grew it, bought it or received it as a birthday present are all, of course, dead ends.

"I found it!" you cry triumphantly. For, through some oversight, there is absolutely nothing in the proposed legislation that forbids you from finding marijuana. But, actually, that's a trap.

"Where did you find it?" says the narc with a sly smile.

"On the corner of, say Third and Elm? In broad daylight?"

"Ahh! The moment you picked it up, you were guilty of possessing marijuana in public. Hand it over, Mac!"

"Come to think of it," you say, perspiring a little, "I found it behind the couch. I guess the previous owner left it there."

"When you bought the house, you bought the pot. Now if you'll just come quietly..."

"Wait, I remember!" you cry, as the walls close in. "It rained. Only last Tuesday it rained pot. As my wife said at the time, it sure was unusual, but..."

"Where," says the narc, looking grimly, "is the hole in your roof?"

So because you forgot to cut a hole in your roof, the Government's got you again.

Thus this legislation may be going too far. You know what happens to rats in an insoluble maze: the frustration drives them batty.

What frustrates me is thinking about the level of intelligence of those who propose our laws. How come it's so difficult to outwit our Government?

Pictures talk. Some little boys don't.

Some inner-city ghettos have special schools. For little boys who don't talk.

Not mute little boys. But children so withdrawn, so afraid of failure, they cannot make the slightest attempt to do anything at which they might fail.

Some don't talk. Some don't listen. Most don't behave. And all of them don't learn.

One day someone asked us to help.

Through Kodak, cameras and film were distributed to teachers. The teachers gave the cameras to the kids and told them to take pictures.

And then the miracle. Little boys who had never said anything, looked at the pictures and began to talk. They said "This is my house." "This is my dog." "This is where I like to hide." They began to explain, to describe, to communicate. And once the channels of communication had been opened, they began to learn.

We're helping the children of the inner-city. And we're also helping the adults. We're involved in inner-city job programs. To train unskilled people in useful jobs.

What does Kodak stand to gain from this? Well, we're showing how our products can help a teacher—and maybe creating a whole new market. And we're also cultivating young customers who will someday buy their own cameras and film. But more than that, we're cultivating alert, educated citizens. Who will someday be responsible for our society.

After all, our business depends on our society. So we care what happens to it.

More than a business.

Temporary help

This and four similar signs were erected on campus Sunday afternoon for the benefit of new students. Jennie Lucas, a member of the new student orientation steering committee, said Monday. The plywood signs, printed by Artcraft Sign Service of Murphysboro, are intended primarily to help new students locate classrooms and other vital buildings. Signs are located west of the U.S. 51 overpass, north of Morris Library, south of the Wham Building, south of the Home Economics Building and near Life Science I. The signs were removed Tuesday evening in compliance with University requirements.

Columnist Anderson to address journalists

By Richard Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Controversial newspaper columnist Jack Anderson will appear at 8 p.m. April 12 at the Student Center Ballrooms.

Anderson, whose syndicated column "Washington Merry-Go-Round" appears in more than 600 papers, will deliver the Elijah P. Lovejoy Memorial Lecture to kick off the annual Journalism Week.

A protege of the late Drew Pearson, Anderson has been a reporter of the national political scene for 25 years. He first became associated with Pearson in 1947 and became his journalistic heir at Pearson's death a few years ago. Anderson was Washington editor of Parade Magazine from 1954 to 1968 and since that time has been Parade's bureau chief in the nation's capital.

Anderson is the co-author of four books: "McCarthy, the Man, the Senator, the Ism" in 1952, "The Kefauver Story" 1956, "USA—Second Class Power?" in 1958 and "The Case Against Congress" in 1968.

Anderson has recently been making his own headlines. Following the Indian-Pakistani War, Anderson wrote a series of columns which were highly critical of the U.S. position during the war. He was particularly critical of Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's national security advisor.

It was Anderson who broke the story of the alleged International Telephone and Telegraph (ITT) memorandum. Anderson has tied Richard G. Kleindienst, Nixon's candidate for attorney general, with the memorandum. Kleindienst, currently the acting attorney general, supposedly allowed an antitrust suit against ITT to drop after the firm agreed to underwrite some of the costs of the Republican National Convention.

Journalism Week is sponsored by the School of Journalism. The Lovejoy lecture honors the pre-Civil War editor of Alton who was murdered in 1837 because of his anti-slavery editorials.

Bond market allows $6 million rent saving

An unusually favorable bond market has handed SIU and Illinois taxpayers a $6 million rent saving on two SIU buildings now under construction.

SIU Treasurer Robert Gallegly said the rent cut was effected when the Illinois Building Authority was able to sell bonds on a package of state projects at an interest rate slightly below five per cent. Included in the package was the $10,850,000 Humanities-Social Sciences Building on the campus of SIU at Carbondale and a $1,895,000 instructional building on SIU's Springfield medical campus.

The IBA had set a yearly rental of $955,235 on the Carbondale building and $166,835 for the Springfield project.

Because bonds sold at such a low interest rate, the state authority asked for amended leases that will chop the rents sharply.

SIU's Board of Trustees March 17 happily approved the revised leases. Over a 24-year period, the Humanities-Social Sciences annual rent dropped to $814,610 a year, while the Springfield building tab slid to $142,290 a year.

The IBA was created to finance state building projects by issuing tax exempt bonds. Public institutions such as SIU then lease the buildings from the IBA, with rentals going to retire construction bonds.

Indian movies scheduled

Three top-rated Indian movies—"Jony Mere Nam," "Purau Aur Paschim," and "Anand"—are scheduled to be shown on campus during the spring quarter.

Each individual ticket will cost $2, or a ticket for the series will be $4.

The first of the series, "Jony

HE HAD THE VISION... WE HAVE THE WAY.

When the Paulists were founded in 1858 by Isaac Hecker, they were the first religious Community of priests established in North America by an American and for Americans.

Father Hecker, who was a century ahead of his time, wanted Paulists to be free of compulsory activities so they could be flexible enough to meet the needs of the Church in every age as they arose.

Today's Paulist can be as involved as he wants to be. He is given the freedom to use his own talents to do his own thing. He may be a parish priest, an educator or a press, radio or television personality.

Father Hecker discovered the value of communications early. With his monthly publications and pamphlets, he laid the foundation for the Paulist/Newman Press, the country's largest publisher and distributor of Catholic literature.

Today, Father Hecker's vision and foresight have led to the establishment of Paulist radio, television and film centers on a scale that perhaps, not even he dreamed of.

But then, he had the vision. He showed us the way.

Monorail may be a solution to traffic problem

By Randy Thomas
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A proposed parking plan, which includes a monorail system, may be the best and most economical solution to the parking and traffic problems on campus and in Carbondale according to John F. Lonergran, SIU campus planner.

The plan, devised by Lonergran three years ago, calls for the construction of several large off-campus parking lots with a total capacity of 14,000 cars. Commuters would be transported from the parking areas to the campus on a monorail.

Lonergran recently told members of the Student Senate Physical Facilities Committee that he recommends the plan only after studying every possible alternative solution.

"I obviously think it's a good idea," he said, "but I certainly don't want to ram it down anyone's throat. This project will be paid for by the University community and it will be constructed only with their consent."

Lonergran presented the senate committee with three alternative solutions to the campus parking problem. All of the plans are based on the assumption that the number of cars registered with the University will level off at around 14,000 over the next 20 years.

Also taken into consideration is future expansion of the University which Lonergran feels is certain to happen.

According to August Lemarchal, supervisor of the SIU Parking Division, there are presently 11,608 vehicles registered with the University. Of these, 9,305, are registered to park on campus in 7,500 spaces.

The first alternative plan presented by Lonergran, provides permanent parking lots on campus for 12,000 cars. He showed the committee a map which indicated where the parking areas would be located.

The entire play field area north of Wham Building and a good portion of Thompson Woods appeared to be prime sites.

"Not only would this plan completely tear up the campus," said Lonergran, "but it would force all future expansion of the University to go around the lots and off campus."

He estimated the cost of the plan to be nearly $1 million.

When asked why the present buildings couldn't be better utilized for space, thus avoiding expansion, Lonergran replied that plans for several new buildings are already underway.

"At the present time," he said, "many departments are fragmented around the campus. This is an extremely inefficient situation that eventually will have to be rectified."

The next alternative plan calls for a series of stacked parking garages. Besides a very prohibitive cost factor of more than $35 million, Lonergran said traffic tie ups would be inevitable. He said the cost to users would probably amount to $125 a year.

A third proposal called for the construction of off-campus lots with a bus system to carry commuters to campus.

"The cost of this idea is outlandish when you take into consideration yearly maintenance and the salaries of the drivers," said Lonergran.

He said buses are subject to delays because of traffic jams and bad weather, as well as being major polluters.

Before explaining the monorail plan, Lonergran stressed the fact that his proposed parking package does not necessarily include a monorail system all around the campus.

He said the plan is divided into two parts. Phase I provides transportation from the parking area to the campus. It will be funded by parking fees estimated to cost $25 to $35 a year.

Phase II call for expansion of the first system all around the campus stopping at major buildings. This system can be added to the first system at a later date. It would be funded, according to Lonergran, by adding an additional $10 to student fees for 18 years.

Phase I of the Campus Planner's proposed transit system would cost around $6.5 million. It calls for the construction of two large off-campus parking lots to be located south of campus on the other side of Campus Lake and east of the IC train tracks near Brush Towers.

The monorail system would carry the commuters from the parking areas to a point on campus near the Ag Building.

According to Lonergran, the plan will consist of six or seven trains with seven cars per train. All of the cars, which are designed to get people in and out as quickly as possible, will carry no more than 20 passengers. The cars are also designed to accommodate handicapped and blind students.

The system will be able to carry 36,000 people from the lots to the campus in less than half an hour. Lonergran determined through careful study of campus traffic that 36,000 cars are the peak number to leave or enter the campus at a given time during the day.

Two operators will view the entire operation on a closed circuit television from a main control booth to be located near the present Physical Plant.

Lonergran estimated that the total yearly maintenance would cost no more than $100,000 per year. He said there will be no charge for riding the system; other than the parking fee.

Phase II of the plan will completely circle the campus stopping at major buildings and in some cases going through the buildings. Lonergran said it will take one train four and half minutes to completely circle the campus. He said this can be reduced by closing the gap between trains.

Damage to the campus would be slight. Lonergran said the rails of the system will be supported by beams located at 70 foot intervals. Stations will be constructed on the sides of existing buildings. Future buildings will be constructed around the rails allowing the train to pass through the building.

The feasibility of the plan according to Lonergran, depends upon the relocation of Highway 51. He said there are currently two plans under consideration by the Highway Department.

One plan, said Lonergran, will widen the present highway which runs through Carbondale. The other will re-locate the present road around the city to the west. It will hook up with the present road just south of McClafferty Road.

Lonergran said his plan will work with both proposals but he personally prefers relocating the road around town.

"Widening the Highway 51 through the city of Carbondale won't do anyone any good," said Lonergran. "Having it go around town will provide easy access to the campus for both students and faculty and staff who come from Herrin, Marion and other towns to the north."

When asked what would happen if for some reason the highway wasn't relocated or there was a delay in its construction, the campus planner replied that it beyond a doubt would cause traffic problems in Carbondale.

"I think it is safe to assume that the road will be built," said Lonergran.

Jim Newton, superintendent of Illinois Highway District nine, said that plans to relocate Highway 51 around Carbondale are currently under study. Though he wasn't sure, Newton estimated that construction on the project might begin within two or three years.

Newton said he was unfamiliar with the plan to widen the present road through town.

How Long will it take to build the monorail? About a year according to Lonergran. He estimated it would take four months to make all the arrangements and receive the equipment, and another nine months to put it all together.

Lonergran said that plans for his project are just about complete. He needs only the approval of the university community before construction can begin.

This spring, Lonergran plans to seek that approval. The campus planner may ask for a campus wide referendum or seek student opinion by placing a ballot in the Daily Egyptian.

When asked about control of the project and its operation, Lonergran replied, "Since the University community will own the system, I suggest that shares be issued to the owners all with an equal vote. This is a business proposition and I think it should be handled that way," he said.

"I'm the last guy to sell students or anyone else something they don't want," said Lonergran. "I like the idea and, in all honesty, I really don't see any other feasible solution to the campus parking and traffic problem."

Local teachers invited to borrow items from SIU Museum collection

By University News Service

A new area educational service has been launched by the SIU Museum.

Teachers in Southern Illinois schools are invited to visit the museum collections and select materials they wish to borrow for a 10-day period to use in their classrooms, according to Darrell Harrison, curator of education.

Called Classroom Enrichment Materials Program, the new service is available without charge, and makes available "the vast majority of items now housed in the museum's collections," Harrison said.

While the museum hopes to provide a pick-up and delivery service to schools in the near future, teachers for the present must assume this responsibility, Harrison explained.

"This is probably to their advantage," he pointed out, "as it allows them time to view our complete collections and note items they may want in the future."

The materials available include cultural items, clothing and native-dress dolls from various foreign lands; Civil War military items; mounted specimens of animal life, minerals, seashells and butterflies; pioneer tools; and models of various kinds.

The collections are housed in a building on McLafferty Road, south of the campus. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Teachers wanting further information may call Harrison at 618-453-3711 or William Johnson at 618-453-2573.

Study knocks Chicago cops

CHICAGO (AP) — An independent study group said Tuesday that Chicago police killed more persons over an eight-month period than police in any of the nation's five largest cities. The group charged the city has "a trigger-happy society of policemen."

The Chicago Law Enforcement Study Group, a joint project of Northwestern University Center for Urban Affairs and 12 community organizations, cited a survey taken July 1970 to March 1971 that reported the ratio of police killings in Chicago was three times higher than New York, Los Angeles and Detroit and 1½ times higher than Philadelphia.

The survey by the International Association of Police Chiefs showed 32 persons killed in Chicago, a rate of .95 per 100,000 population, compared with 21 in New York, .27, 13 in Philadelphia, .67, 8 in Los Angeles, .28, and 4 in Detroit, .26, the report said.

Easter egg hunt planned for tots

The Married Student Activities Council will sponsor an Easter Egg Hunt for children of SIU students at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 1, at Evergreen Park.

Children will hunt in classes according to age: up through three years, 4-6 years, and 7-10 years. The Married and Graduate Student Office, 453-5379, can be called for further information. In case of rain, the event will be held the following day.

Veterinary talk date correction

An illustrated discussion on career opportunities in veterinary medicine will be open to all interested persons at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 5, in Lawson Hall room 171. It was erroneously stated in a University News Service release published by the Daily Egyptian that the discussion would be Tuesday, April 5.

Pool correction

Pulliam Pool hours for Sundays are 1 p.m.-5 p.m. and 7 p.m.-11 p.m. instead of 1 a.m.-5 p.m. as reported in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian.

Salukis

The Saluki basketball season has been over for nearly two weeks but the game will linger on campus through this weekend.

Though the Salukis—SIU's wheelchair basketball team—will meet the varsity seniors in an annual spring confrontation at 8 p.m. Saturday in the SIU Arena.

Sparked by Ray Clark, who was named to the Midwest regional all-star team recently, the Salukis will use the proceeds from the game to go to a post-season invitational tournament April 7 at Kansas State College in Emporia, Kan.

Senior Greg Starrick, NCAA free throw shooting champion for the second straight year, is a question mark for the game because he will compete in an all-star game on Sunday in Honolulu. The five other men whose collegiate playing days are over are John Garrett, Marvin Brooks, Nate Hawthorne, Mike Molnar and Bill Perkins.

Kansas State has joined SIU in a newly reorganized Midwest wheelchair basketball conference. Besides SIU, the St. Louis Rams and Kansas City Pioneers are holdovers from the old league. The University of Illinois Black Knights have switched to the new Mid-American Conference with teams from Springfield, Cincinnati and Indianapolis while the Champaign-Urbana Black Knights are now with the Chicago Sidewinders and Pacemakers plus Grand Rapids in a Great Lakes League.

Armetta No. 1 in Midwest

Henry Armetta, a 232-pound senior from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., has given the SIU Judo Club some prominence in the Midwest.

Last Saturday, Armetta, a judo fighter with black belt classification, won first place in the open division of the Midwest Collegiate Nationals in Muncie, Ind.

Competition came from 13 universities from the midwestern states and the team trophy went to University of Illinois-Chicago Circle.

Armetta's teammate Drew Wickam placed fifth in the 170-and-under weight class and another SIU club member, Scott Davy, came out 5th in the 152-and-under class.

The SIU Judo Club will send eight representatives to the Collegiate National Judo Tournament in St. Joseph, Mo. April 8.

Coed volleyball opens tonight

Any team or individual interested in participating in the coeducational volleyball league should report to the Women's Gym at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Teams must consist of a minimum of three men and three women in order to be eligible for play.

Practice sessions are slated for Wednesday and Thursday from 7-9 p.m. and April 5-6 at the same times. Both practice sessions will be in the Women's Gym.

For further information contact Ms. Claudia Blackman at the Women's Gym Room 122 or phone 453-2297.

IM refs needed

Male students interested in umpiring intramural softball games or officiating intramural volleyball matches are needed by Larry Schaeke, Room 128 in the Arena.

Schaeke said that rule interpretation meetings for the sports will be April 5-6 and that officials must attend to be certified for spring intramural games.

Volleyball matches will be played Monday-Thursday evenings while softball games will meet seven days a week in the afternoons.

Monmouth here today for twinbill

Ware, Waltemate get pitching nods

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Should aged Mother Nature cooperate, Rick Ware and Scott Waltemate will handle Saluki pitching chores Wednesday afternoon when they host Monmouth College in a doubleheader.

Oodles of cold rain, and perhaps snow, has been predicted for today, posing an almost annual threat to SIU's home opener. Game time is 1 p.m.

Waltemate is a holdover from last year who's off to a slow start. He absorbed a loss to Ohio State and was hit well by the Buckeyes in another game during SIU's spring trip.

But as coach Richard "Itch" Jones said, "Lordie me, some of the balls they hit off him bounced in ways you've never seen a ball bounce before."

As a frosh on varsity last spring, Waltemate came on strong near the end to finish 3-0 with a 4.32 earned-run average.

Southpaw Ware transferred here from Chipola (Fla.) Junior College where he was an occasional pitcher, more often outfielder. He throws the usual assortment—fastball, change-up, curve and slider.

"That curve is real good when he throws it hard," said catcher Larry

"Moose" Calufetti, "but sometimes he'll aim it and it won't work quite as well.

"You know, he didn't pitch much in junior college. But he got on the mound down South and didn't lose his cool. He'll be darn good."

Ware and Jim Fischer led the staff with 2-0 marks. Fischer will hurl Friday against Memphis State in the third of a nine-game home stand.

Calufetti, co-captain with third baseman Dan Radison, may see just limited duty today although Jones said he'll definitely start the first game. "Moose" pulled muscles in the calf of his left leg, resulting in a plum-colored bruise.

"Larry won't tell anybody, but it's killing him," said outfielder Mike Eden, himself recovering from a cut near his left eye that required nine stitches 18 days ago.

Calufetti, who won't use his leg as an excuse, is in an horrendous slump and will be backed up by senior John Raibley, a Vietnam veteran.

"Moose" collected only four hits in 31 trips down south, an anemic .129 mark. But he's a proven hitter who last year led all College World Series batsmen with a .533 average.

Completing today's first game infield will be third-sacker Radison (.282), shortstop Stan Mann (.125), second baseman Howard Mitchell (.429) and perennial hard hitter Danny Thomas (.342).

Radison tops the Salukis in homers (four) and runs-batted-in (11). Thomas, just a sophomore, is second in both departments with three homers and six RBI's. He also owns two doubles and one triple.

Patrolling the outfield will be leadoff batter Ken Kral (.269), center fielder Joe Wallis (.357) and right fielder Jack Liggett (.200).

Notably absent from the lineup is Eden, top returning hitter from a year ago when he batted .378. But ever since a thrown ball struck him in the eye nearly three weeks ago, Eden's been having troubles.

Of course, you wouldn't know it from his nine-game batting average, .292 on seven hits in 24 at-bats. That's considerably better than Eden's 2-19 start one year ago.

But even though eye specialists can find nothing physically wrong, "Mike's been complaining of blurry vision," said Jones. "In a game like baseball, you can't take a chance on a kid losing a pitch momentarily and endangering his life."

His left eye remains exceedingly bloodshot with the surrounding area discolored and swollen. But Eden insists he's ready to play "whenever he (Jones) wants me."

Eden's most recent problems may have been caused by improper replacement glasses. The left lens of his other set was shattered during the accident.

He picked up a new pair Tuesday afternoon with the hope Jones would give him another shot. "It's no fun sitting on the bench. It's more frustrating than when you're on the field."

SHORTSTOPS—University Police request no cars be parked on the road leading from Campus Drive to the SIU Arena parking lots. All cars thusly parked will be ticketed. Parking is available in the two Arena lots.

Two corrections.—Jim Fischer and Rick Ware failed to receive credit for their second victories in Tuesday's Egyptian. Sorry about that.

NU trackmen bringing prestige, youth here

By Ken Stewart
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

This is definitely not the year of the cat. Just ask Northwestern University track coach Donald Amibei.

His lowly Wildcats were the cellar-dwellers of the Big Ten indoor championships this winter, a fate Amibei blames on inexperience.

"There won't much change in the outdoor season," said the three-year coach. "This is an exceptionally young team with only three veterans back."

So the Northwestern Wildcats come to Carbondale for their season opener Saturday bringing an air of Big Ten prestige if not a hue of toughness to the Saluki schedule.

Field competition begins at 1 p.m., running events at 1:30 p.m.

Other big-name schools on the SIU dual-meet slate are Big Ten member and arch-rival Illinois April 15 at Champaign and Kansas of the Big Eight May 6 in Lawrence, Kan.

Hard luck for Northwestern didn't stop at the Big Ten meet. The Wildcats top sprinter, Ted Edwards, still hasn't gotten over a pulled muscle suffered late in the winter season. He isn't expected to compete in the 100-yard dash this weekend in McAndrew Stadium against SIU's Ivory Crockett and Company. A third Southern sweep of the 100 (taking all points) looks good with the 9.5 runner out.

The Wildcats are strongest in the middle and long distances. Jim Noy (4:04.6) in the mile could give Southern's Dave Hill and Jack St. John some trouble.

Amibei said he may put 1,000-yard running ace Tom Boch, who was the runnerup in the NCAA meet last month, in the mile for experience. NU's strong mile relay team was clocked in 3:17.2 to SIU's 3:16.9 in the winter.

In field events, the Wildcats have a 6-10 high jumper in senior Rick Rogers and 45-foot triple jumper named Joe Harper.

Like Southern, the Evanston school is lacking in the weight events and Amibei doesn't plan to bring a shot putter to Carbondale.

Northwestern will get a good taste of track—Midwestern Conference style.

Besides Southern, NU has slated Northern Illinois in dual competition this spring.

Amibei is quite in the dark about the two-year Midwestern loop ("Isn't Eastern Illinois in that conference, too?" he asked Tuesday afternoon.) But he knows the league may not "be as deep as it could be" since Southern has won the conference's three track crowns to date.

Although his knowledge of the Midwestern Conference may be lacking, the NU coach is well versed on Saluki coach Lew Hartzog. "He ranks among the leaders," said Amibei. "He knows what he is doing; Southern's winning is not a fluke."

When the Salukis attention turns to defending its outdoor conference championship in May, the Wildcats will be fighting to avoid the Big Ten cellar for a second time this year, a task Amibei seriously doubts.

As he puts it, the Wildcats are not building "towards being a contender in the Big 10 now, we're just building towards a winning season."

He gives the spoils of Big 10 track superiority to indoor champion Michigan State, Indiana, Wisconsin and possibly Illinois.

"Illinois doesn't have the power," said the coach about the indoor runners-up, but added, "If (Illini coach) Bob Wright can get them together, they'll be tough to beat."

The Salukis will sample Illini toughness when they visit Champaign later. The clash between the track powers will draw national attention but that's another story.

With the home opener in spring track only days away, high jumper Mike Bernard puts in some practice at McAndrew Stadium. The San Diego native won twice during the spring break trip in Florida. Northwestern University will meet the Salukis in the opener on Saturday afternoon. (Photo by Jay Needleman)
