On-campus dorms to cooperate with meat boycott week

By Larry Glowacki
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

On-campus dormitories will cooperate in the meat boycott sponsored by Student Government and scheduled the first week in April, the director of housing said Tuesday.

The boycott is being planned in coordination with a national consumers' protest against rising meat prices.

Sam Rinella, director of housing, said the SIU cafeterias will serve "supplemental foods" during the boycott week but will also have meat on the daily menus.

Rinella said the menus cannot exclude meat entirely because the number of students who will participate in the strike is unknown. Meat will be available for those who wish to eat it, he said.

Marianne Rosenzweig, student vice president, said she was pleased with Rinella's statement and that "it seems like everyone wants to cooperate with the boycott."

Ms. Rosenzweig said she believes many cafeterias, including the Student Center Restaurant will find it easy to participate because meat supplements and substitutes are regularly served.

Charles Lukens, University food service manager, described supplemental foods as those which have a nutritional value similar to meat, such as eggs, cheese, fish, cottage cheese and peanut butter.

Lukens said grilled cheese sandwiches, fish sandwiches and the standard offerings of egg salad, cottage cheese and peanut butter will be included in the menus for that week.

Student Government plans to meet with representatives of interested groups at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Student Government Offices in the Student Center to ask their support for the boycott.

Ms. Rosenzweig said Student Government will urge all SIU students not to buy meat in stores or restaurants during the week.

Student Government volunteers will distribute leaflets listing suggested meat substitutes and meatless menus at local supermarkets as part of the campaign.

The boycott promoters hope to encourage local meet distributors in St. Louis and Centralia to lower the prices of meat, Ms. Rosenzweig explained, and thus to bring about lower prices at local retail stores.

Students, citizens unite to aid war victims

By Sherry Winn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In an effort to aid the war victims of Indochina, a group of concerned students and Carbondale citizens have organized and planned a community-wide war relief collection for April 1-8.

Carbondale Mayor Neal Eckert, to enhance the war relief effort, proclaimed Monday night that April 1-8 would be known as "War Relief Week" and urged all citizens to take part in this "humanitarian effort."

The community-wide collection is headed by Hugh Muldoon, a member of the Student Christian Foundation (SCF) and a doctoral candidate in philosophy at SIU.

Muldoon said that activities, similar to the ones that would be going on in Carbondale, had been occurring across the nation since early January.

The catalyst for this specific time to be chosen as "War Relief Week" in Carbondale was the World Council of Churches' designation of April 1 as "One Great Hour of Sharing" in which all churches in the United States have been asked to contribute all money collected Sunday to the war relief, Muldoon said.

Activities scheduled for "War Relief Wek" include door-to-door collections in Carbondale and in area shopping centers, films concerning war victims and war relief, book and record sales and speaking engagements with David Truong, a Vietnamese native whose father ran against Thieu in 1967.

Muldoon said volunteers are desperately needed to help with the door-to-door collections, the on-campus collections, the book and record sale, and the auction.

Materials in fairly good condition are also needed for the auction and the book and record sale. These items may be left at the SCF, 913 S. Illinois Ave. or at the Wesley Foundation, 816 S. Illinois Ave.

Muldoon said that all funds collected will be sent to the American Friends Service Committee (AFSC) and to Medical Aid for Indochina (MAI).

"Both of these organizations are currently involved in sending medicine and hospital equipment to Vietnam," he said.

The AFSC has recently initiated a $1 million North-South Vietnam Fund to expand its rehabilitation work among the civilian victims of the war and to continue its efforts to prevent further violence.

MAI is concentrating its efforts on the $3 million Bach Mai Emergency Relief Fund.

Muldoon explained that the Bach Mai Hospital was bombed five times between June 1972 and December 22, 1972 when the hospital was completely destroyed by United States bombs.

"Since the Indochinese people have borne the far greater human cost of the war, being for the most part victims of an incredible amount of American fire power, the American people are now

Bianchi named director

SIU planning offices reorganized

By Marcia Bullard
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A new Office of Facilities Planning, directed by Rino Bianchi, began operations this week to coordinate efforts in maintenance, general improvements and new buildings.

Under the new agency, the offices of campus architect, campus master planner and space administration will be incorporated. Bianchi said the merger "might result in a scaling down of positions."

Creation of the Facilities Planning Office, which had been recommended by a Management Task Force about three months ago, was confirmed Monday by Vice President T. Richard Mager. The task force was appointed by President David Derge some time ago to review the organization of the University and urged establishment of the office in the name of "efficiency and economy."

Bianchi formerly was an assistant to the vice president of development and services, working in space utilization and planning, and has been a lobbyist in Springfield for the University.

"There was a little duplication in what we were doing," Bianchi explained. "This way, everyone will be under one hat and will work more closely with each other." The office is temporarily located in Bianchi's office in Anthony Hall. He declined to speculate if larger quarters might be needed in the future.

Thirty-four persons are involved in the incorporation of offices, including four people from the Campus Planning Office, 26 from the Campus Architect's Office and four from the Space Ad-being asked to help alleviate the sufferings of those who have survived," he said.

Sunday, April 1, will include collections in churches, the "One Great Hour of Sharing," door-to-door collections in Carbondale and a benefit supper at the SCF which will include a war relief film and a reception for David Truong.

Collection centers at the Student Center, Morris Library and Woody Hall will be set up Monday through Wednesday, April 2 through April 4. During this time, interested groups may also make arrangements to speak with Truong by contacting the SCF.

The Book and Record Sale will take place at the corner of Illinois and Grand. Valerie Malhotra-Hammond, coordinator of the sale, said that contributions of usable books and records are needed and that they may be taken to the SCF.

An auction will be held at 7:30 p.m. Friday, April 6, at the Newman Center, at the corner of Washington and Grand Streets. Lloyd Sitter, an auctioneer from Anna, will auction the event. Contributions of art works, furniture and kitchen appliances may be dropped off at the SCF or the Wesley Foundation anytime before Friday, Muldoon said.

Muldoon said that a film "Tell Them We Are People" will be available for groups use anytime during War Relief Week. Reservations for the film may be made by calling the SCF, 549-7387.

Lack of funds may limit construction

By Marcia Bullard
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A sudden lack of federal and state funds will severely limit construction and building maintenance on the SIU campus in the 1970's according to the director of the new Facilities Planning office.

"The lush era of the 60's is gone," lamented Rino Bianchi Tuesday. "Governor Walker has said he will support higher education, but it won't be in the area of bricks and mortar."

Already eight campus offices and departments have had to postpone plans to move into the new Faner Humanities building because SIU doesn't have the money necessary to carpet and furnish the south section of the building.

Bianchi said a $235,360 furnishings request dating back to 1971 is still awaiting the governor's signature. The section of the building was scheduled for occupancy this month.

"Even if the money were released May 1, it would still take four months for complete delivery and installation," Bianchi said. "That means the earliest we can plan activating the south section is fall quarter."

Faner Hall isn't the only building which is affected by the fund shortage. Bianchi said budget requests amounting from fiscal 1973 and fiscal 1974 to $29 million are still tied up in Springfield.

The budget for fiscal year 1973 was approved by the General Assembly but Walker won't release any of those funds, Bianchi said. And the fiscal 1974 budget is still under consideration by the General Assembly.

Included in those budgets is a request for $32,000 to replace the roof on the women's gym. Funding for that project has been delayed for four years and is slated to be included again in the 1975 capital budget request.

Bianchi said the condition at the women's gym is comparable to that of many buildings on campus, although the situation there is more critical than most. If the funds are not approved soon, Bianchi fears the building may have to be shut down or the repair cost will go up.

"It's not wise for the state to withhold money on these university affairs," Bianchi stated. "It places too many programs in jeopardy."

He predicts "considerably less" construction on campus in the next few years and says the 1970's will be a decade of "very few resources for building and maintenance."

In addition to the carpeting needed to complete the south section of Faner Hall, classroom and office furniture, door locks, fire extinguishers and ash receptacles must be purchased.

Units that had planned to move into the completed section this spring include the departments of foreign languages and literature, philosophy and government, the Center for English as a Second Language, the College of Liberal Arts dean's office, Community Development Services, Public Affairs Research Bureau and the social welfare program.

The building's middle section has been programmed for completion in August, with the final third of the 900-foot long structure slated for a November finish.

End of Wounded Knee dispute is apparent

WASHINGTON — A settlement apparently has been reached in the one-month Indian dispute at Wounded Knee, S.D., Sen. James S. Abourezk, D-S.D., said Tuesday. "I think we've got this thing settled," Abourezk said as he reported that Russell Means and Dennis Bank, leaders of the American Indian Movement, have disappeared from Wounded Knee.

Cafeteria closed at high school

WHEATON — Students at St. Francis High School have voted to close the school cafeteria this week as a "peaceful protest" against high food prices.

The 500 students at the Chicago suburban school were told to bring their lunches of foods cheaper than the cafeteria's veal patties and barbequed ribs.

Bill allows deduction of tuition

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House passed and sent to the Senate Tuesday a bill allowing Illinoisans to deduct tuition costs from their taxable income. It allows persons who pay tuition to schools from kindergarten through college to deduct up to $2,000 from the income taxed by Illinois.

Carbondale City Council

Pest control decision postponed

By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Action on a proposal to discontinue funding the department of rodent and pest control was tabled by the Carbondale City Council Monday night.

The Council tabled the proposal after approving a budget of $2175,000 for the city's general fund departmental budgets for fiscal year 1973-74. The department of rodent and pest control was part of the departmental budget proposal but was not scheduled for refunding.

City Manager Carroll J. Fry indicated he thinks the pest control department should be discontinued because of lack of funds.

"It's a question of whether we fund the police and fire department, the street department and the other departments which are created by city ordinance or funding this organization," Fry said, adding that the pest control department has never been an official city department.

He said that in order to finance pest control, "it would be necessary to cut the budget from other city departments or the council could raise the budget ceiling" from $2,175,000 for the city's general fund.

Fry said the rodent and pest control department could be incorporated into other city departments such as the Code Enforcement Department.

"It is something that can be worked out or handled by private enterprise." he said.

Tom Bevirt, director of Rodent and Pest Control, said he had initiated the program some three years ago and that the state of Illinois recognizes the excellency of our efforts.

He presented a proposal to the council requesting $13,900 for the 1973-74 fiscal year. Originally, he had requested $26,000.

Bevirt proposed that "a committment of $13,900 be made to operate our program with the intention of seeking approximately the same amount of funds from the state."

He said the program's money will not run out until July.

"The city should take steps to continue the program at a minimal level," Bevirt said. "If the (state) funds do not materialize in July we will need to make the necessary terminations and cut backs."

Several members of the audience spoke in favor of retaining the rodent and pest control department.

City Council candidates Herberta Beyler and Cleveland Matthews voiced their approval of retaining the program.

Joe Wilson, retired environmental health sanitarian, said the request for $13,000 "is a small figure in a $2 million budget." He said the council should retain the services.

"Rats multiply every 25 to 30 days, so an unchecked rodent population would be astronomical in a few months," he said.

Marie Harrell, 713 W. College St., said Bevirt's department has performed a real service to the town.

"I had 22 pigeons living at my house and the city passed an ordinance to get rid of the pests," she said. "He (Bevirt) came out and got rid of the pigeons."

She asked the council if the code enforcement or another city department would have the time or the ability to get rid of pests. She said she wanted some system of pest control in Carbondale.

Chester Neblett, pest control commissioner, said he had treated some 105 homes in Carbondale for rats and roaches.

"I've treated 109 city facilities including sewers, containers and ditches," he said. "I've treated 14 churches and have exterminated at the Carbondale Free Clinic some seven times."

He said that he had accomplished these tasks between April 1, 1972, and March 26, 1973.

Councilman Hans Fischer said that "if the program is not funded, then much of what we have accomplished will go for naught."

He suggested that the council "consider seriously making an application for state funding.

The Council tabled action on whether or not to continue the rodent and pest control department and indicated it would hold a special meeting at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at City Hall in an attempt to make city budgets final.

Buyers will pay for violations

By Bob Grupp
Daily Egytian Staff Writer

Goods or services purchased in violation of University purchasing regulations will become the personal liability of any student organization member making the commitment.

Jack Baier, coordinator in Student Activities, said Tuesday that his office "will not assist or help" any person making an unauthorized purchase. Bills for goods or services without authorization from the University's Purchasing Department will become the liability of the person making the purchase.

Bills for films, maps and supplies from local bookstores and cleaning and storage of cheerleader's costimes have been received without any authorization for the purchase, Baier said.

Baier said the University has been lax in enforcing its purchasing regulations in the past and that Student Activities has the same problem every year. New people take over student organizations, make two or three mistakes, and the bills mount up, he said.

When unauthorized bills come in, Student Activities will not pay them, Baier said. The vendors will be "out of luck." The matter will have to be handled between the vendor and the person making the purchase, he declared.

"The procedure for making a purchase is simple if people would follow it," Baier said. Any member of a student organization buying something needs a purchase requisition from the Purchasing Department. When the bill does come in it can be checked against the number on the requisition authorizing the purchase, he said.

Baier said he is attempting to give all student groups "due notice" of the new liability for unauthorized purchases.

Baier sent a memo to all Student Government, Student Government Activities Council, Graduate Student Council, and recognized student organization officers and chairmen on March 22 informing them of the new liability.

Baier included a copy of a memo from SIU President David Derge sent on March 14 stating that "the University will not accept responsibility for confirming unauthorized commitments of the institution's resources, but will consider such commitments as personal obligations of the fiscal officer or staff member making such commitments."

Baier, as coordinator in the Student Activities Office, is responsible for regulating purchases made by members of recognized student organizations.

In his memo to the student groups, Baier said "no staff member of the Student Activities Center will accept responsibility for any purchases made without the prior knowledge, specific authorization for the purchase and signature on the appropriate purchase requisition."

Planning offices reorganized

ministration Office. Bianchi said reorganiaation of the offices should be complete in about three weeks.

The first project to warrant the office's attention will be preparation of the 1974-75 capital budget. The budget is to be submitted to the Illinois Board of Higher Education for approval by July 2.

Bianchi said the office is requesting input from all deans and their faculty "so we know the needs for capital improvements."

Specific duties of those in the office include collecting information about physical and environmental needs of the university, determining what physical changes are necessary, and monitoring and controlling plans and specifications for those changes until they are fulfilled.

The concern with environmental planning is taking on new importance in the Facilities Planning office because of recent recommendations by the state Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) that some health and sanitation hazards at SIU must be corrected.

"The biggest problem with requests of this sort is that they are very expensive," Bianchi said. He termed the growing interest in environmental problems "a new concept for Illinois."

"Everybody is more conscious of the environment now," Bianchi continued. "But when the totality of EPA regulations for the whole state is considered, it presents an expensive problem for the General Assembly."

In response to EPA recommendations that sewage lagoons at Little Grassy Outdoor Lab be cleaned up, Bianchi said $12,000 is being spent to do the job. The EPA also requested that SIU filter the carbon particles from the campus power plant's emissions. Bianchi estimates an adequate filtering system will cost nearly $1 million.

"If we are required to remove the sulphur particles as well, it could run as high as $4 million," he added. He also indicated that the EPA might ask SIU to relocate its Dairy Center to meet regulations about proximity to bodies of water and about animal waste disposal procedures.

This could cost another $500,000, according to Bianchi.

Funds for these improvements will be included in the capital budget and must be approved by the IBHE and General Assembly just like building and maintenance requests. Release of the appropriations rests in the hands of the governor who in the past has put a freeze on a number of capital improvement items.

Union to ask for mediation over dispute

By Jan Tranchita
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Local 962 Laborers' International Union at SIU will request federal and state mediation between the union and SIU officials over a wage dispute which began last August, Leo Dailey, president of the local said Tuesday.

The University has offered the maintenance laborers a 22-cent increase to $4.10 hourly wages. The laborers, however, have requested that their wages be adjusted to equal the prevailing rate of the area—$5.75 per hour currently paid to craft workers outside the University.

Dailey said Wilbur Frietag, regional vice president of the laborers international union at Springfield, had advised the local union's negotiating committee to take another vote of the union members to accept or reject the University's offer.

Dailey reported that in a special session the local voted 35-4 to again reject the offer. He said a motion to consider a strike also passed.

The 60-member union called a two-day strike last October in the wage dispute.

The local president said the special session was called to explain to union members the result of a meeting last week in Springfield between Frietag and a University representative. He said the meeting had resulted in an impasse, "the same as all the other previous meetings." Within several days, Dailey said, state and federal labor boards will be informed of the impasse and asked to mediate a settlement. Copies of the requests will also be sent to Frietag and John McDermott, of the SIU Labor Institute who has handled the University side of earlier negotiations. McDermott was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

If no settlement can be reached between the University and the maintenance union through mediation within 30 days, the offer will agian be taken back to the union members for consideration.

Dailey said Frietag told him that if the union votes to strike, he would authorize the strike and furnish a letter stating the strike would be legal.

"The local membership has held steadfast to the demand of being paid the prevailing rate of the area or within 85 per cent of this scale. The proposal has been denied by the University. However, the laborers are paid the prevailing scale when tending a craft," Dailey said.

Local 962 workers do grounds work and general labor at SIU.

When negotiations began, laborers asked for an adjustment of $1.47 per hour to raise their wages to $5.35. However, a 40-cent increase in craft wages since that time has increased the prevailing rate to $5.75 per hour.

In addition, craft workers receive a 35-cent per hour benefit which brings their wages to $6.10, Dailey said.

Editorial

Gun Controls Urged

The desperate need for tough gun control legislation becomes apparent periodically like a cold slap to America's complacent face. Sadly enough, it seems painfully akin to fires—you never think about it until you get burned.

The United States has had several celebrated 'burns' in the last ten years. The assassinations of President Kennedy, Dr. Martin Luther King and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy grimly illustrated the dreadful realities of unlimited access to firearms to an appalled public. Since then the senseless shootings of Gov. George Wallace and Sen. John Stennis have served to inflame this festering sore.

But these are only the more famous incidents. The 1970 FBI Uniform Crime Reports show that 52 per cent of all homicides in the United States are committed with cheap, 'Saturday night special' handguns, while another 13 per cent involve other firearms. The use of such guns has doubled since 1964, and reported cases of armed robbery have increased by 198 percent over the same period.

In the face of such alarming statistics, virtually nothing has been done to counteract the trend. Although the public and Congress have responded to each of the political shootings with impassioned pleas for tighter gun laws, a super-powerful gun lobby in the Congress has successfully forestalled or emasculated each proposed bill.

The one million member National Rifle Association has positioned itself on Capitol Hill like a hockey goalie guarding the net to thwart proposed legislation. A sufficient number of congressmen defer to firearm lobbys to block most progressive attempts to enact control laws. The NRA and its cohorts see the blossoming movements for control as an assault on their basic freedoms.

Following Sen. Kennedy's assassination in 1968, NRA President Harold W. Glassen chided the public by proclaiming that it is "an almost unbelievable phenomenon to see normally proud and level-headed Americans begging the federal government to take from them by force one of their basic civil rights, the right to keep and bear arms.

This argument has as many holes in it as Swiss cheese, not to mention its humanitarian deficiencies. Even the toughest legislation proposed, that of Sen. Edward Kennedy, would not deny sportsmen and special permit holders the right to own firearms. Such laws are aimed at bottlenecking the source of weapons to felons and prospective criminals. Certainly all firearms cannot be stopped from getting to criminals, but any serious attempt to limit their access has merit in the face of soaring crime rates and repeated senseless killings.

In the aftermath of the Stennis shooting, Washington is once again astir with moralistic preaching and cries of outrage. Even President Nixon, for the first time in his career, said some form of control is needed. But he tenaciously continued to balance his weight on the middle of the fence by adding that we need "a precise definition which will keep the guns out of the hands of the criminals and not one that will impinge on the rights of others."

It is this type of now-you-see-me, now-you-don't rhetoric that has stalled good laws in the past. As Lyndon Johnson said in 1968, "Cars, boats, dogs and bicycles are licensed in many communities. Certainly no less should be required of lethal weapons."

In 1966, the Katzenbach Commission on Crime recommended that, "Each state should require the registration of all handguns, rifles and shotguns. If, after five years, some states still have not enacted such laws, Congress should pass a federal firearms registration act applicable to those states.

The five years have come and gone and still no significant action has been taken. It is time to end political see-sawing and break the stronghold of the firearm lobby in Congress so much needed limitations on guns can be enacted.

Another king

To The Daily Egyptian:

The Illinois Board of Higher Education has recommended a $59 million operating budget for Southern Illinois University in Carbondale.

In the past these funds have not been used wisely, particularly by the administrators of SIU.

In early 1972 the SIU Board of Trustees set up an advisory committee to search for a new president. Beyond this the Board hired Richard Quaintance & Associates of Chicago and later paid the firm $29,529 for their services.

David R. Derge, the former executive vice president of Indiana University assumed the position of SIU president in February, 1972.

Since his arrival the faculty has decreased, enrollment has decreased and the administrative bureaucracy has continued to increase.

Derge's salary is $50,000 a year plus unlimited expenses. He lives in a $1 million mansion. The rent for the house is $18,000 a year and is paid by the University. Derge redecorated the house at a cost of $45,000 and had a $1,000 electric gate installed so he wouldn't have to open it by hand. These costs were also paid by the University and approved by the Board of Trustees. The mansion also received additional lighting, trees and a call box, but the cost of these items was not disclosed.

Derge drives a new Oldsmobile 98, paid for by the University. Dan Orescanin, vice president for administration said the car cost $4800 or $4900. Derge also has a chauffeur at his disposal simply by calling the campus police and requesting one.

Derge redecorated his now sumptuous office too. An administrative spokesman put the cost at $25,000.

Derge has taken pilot lessons and has an SIU owned DC-3 at his disposal. He has made frivolous trips to Germany and the Caribbean. He initiated an "administrative retreat" in Kentucky in late July, 1972 that cost $1,000. Derge recently returned from Seoul, Korea. This 11 day excursion was used to receive an honorary degree. (Derge makes $136.93 a day.)

Derge has servants too. Maids work at the mansion. Again, the University foots the bill for the two maids.

Derge imported top members of his administration from Indiana University. Dan Orescanin receives $35,000 a year for his position. Hollis Merritt, who received his Ph.D. in East African History, receives $17,500 as assistant to the president. Orescanin says Merritt does things that "make the office function." These include supervising a secretary and a few student workers. These administrators also have new cars that were paid for by the University.

Derge imported most of the furnishings for his mansion from Indiana too. Bernard Levin of Bloomington, Ind. was paid 10 per cent of the total bids for his services as a decorating consultant.

It is time that Derge heeded his own remarks of Jan. 20, 1972. "It would be presumptuous," he said, "to assume that a public university that doesn't get every penny it wants has a better case than other areas of social concern." It is obvious what Derge is doing with the pennies and dollars he receives. It is time that the taxpayers of Illinois become aware of Derge's unlimited expense account and seemingly endless fringe benefits.

Over half of the students enrolled at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale are from the Chicago area. Every dollar that Derge's Administration wastes means there is less educational opportunity for the student.

I urge the citizens of Illinois to write Governor Walker and help put an end to the exorbitant wastes of an autocratic structure that has been created by Derge. He is manipulating this structure to serve his own interests and career, not the educational goals of the University.

Derge said in an address on Feb. 23, 1972, that a university's main problem was money. He added, "Regardless of how evil it is you can't do without it." He could have rephrased that to, "I can't do without lot's of it."

It is time for the taxpayers of Illinois to be aware of Derge and to start getting answers from him. Again, I would urge you to write Governor Walker so that the priorities of Southern Illinois University are realigned from administration to education.

Disapproval

To The Daily Egyptian:

In his editorial in the March 8th Egyptian, titled "Curb Farm Subsidies" Mr. Matyi did not present an accurate picture of agricultural subsidies and food prices.

First of all a farmer does not receive $8,000 to $10,000 for five acres of land put into set-aside. The amount the farmer does receive is determined by different factors such as land productivity. The amount that he can set aside is determined by crops grown in the past and what level the United States Department of Agriculture wants production at. As a result the average farmer receives approximately $70 per acre set-aside. The total on five acres is $350, a far cry from $8,000 to $10,000. Out of that $350 comes either land interest and taxes or rent and the expenses of seeding, mowing and weed control throughout the production period. These expenses leave very little profit from the acres set-aside.

Secondly, Mr. Matyi made many gross generalizations about farmers such as "...many farmers would rather receive federal funds by allowing acres of potential farm land be idle, instead of investing the time and effort to plant needed crops." We would like to see some support for these generalizations if he can find it.

In general we feel that the editorial was poorly written, with the lack of understanding of agricultural economics or policy. We suggest that Mr. Matyi do more research or write about a subject that he is more qualified to write about. We in agriculture do not appreciate being the whipping boy of uninformed people.

The Innocent Bystander

Mr. Nixon is no small talker

By Arthur Hoppe
Chronicle Features

White House observers report that Mr. Nixon is emerging from the "splendid isolation" of his first Administration to mingle with his beloved people, making small talk as he goes.

Some recent examples of his small-talk they cite include: (1) to a group of restaurant patrons drinking mai tais: "They're lethal;" (2) to an aide resigning to join IBM: "Well, good luck. Get a stock option;" and (3) to a minister after a sermon: "Write a speech for me sometime. Make it a short one."

Actually, these examples show Mr. Nixon has made giant strides forward in this department. Even his closest admirers agree he has always been for better at making large decisions than small talk.

The credit for his vast improvement must go to his new Samll Talk Advisor, Dr. Homer T. Pettibone. He was retained to transform Mr. Nixon into a warm, gregarious, chatty small talker.

After weeks of drill, Dr. Pettibone felt he had taught Mr. Nixon every conceivable small talk phrase. As a test, an unpublicized White House reception was arranged. A transcript of Mr. Nixon's remarks, as he mingled cheerfully among his guests, follows:

"What do you hear from the mob, Mr. Sinatra?"

"How are things going, Mr. Nader?"

"Senator Proxmire! How do you keep looking so young?"

"I've always admired your courageous, manly stand on the issues, Miss Steinem."

"Golly, Mrs. Onassis, I've certainly seen a lot of you in the magazines."

"Where have they been keeping you lately, Senator Eagleton?"

"I hope you're having a gay time, Mr. Liberace."

"That was a great song, Mr. Ray Charles. I hope we see each other again soon."

"Don't I know you from somewhere, Secretary Rogers?"

"So you own the Washington Post, Mrs. Graham. Hot enough for you?"

"Spiro! Where have you been lately?"

"I certainly appreciate the NAACP's support, Mr. Wilkins. It's real white of you."

"I've always said, Mrs. Abzug, that there's more to you than just another pretty face."

"Read any good books lately, Mr. Ellsberg?"

"Well, well, Larry O'Brien. Something been bugging you?"

"So you're Rowan and Martin. Heard any good jokes?"

"Wherever did you get that tan, Mrs. Chisholm?"

"No, I think you're right not to announce yet, Senator Kennedy. Cross your bridges when you come to them, I say."

"So you fellows are from Congress. Well, more power to you."

"Sorry to hear about your husband, Mrs. Valachi. How's the family?"

"Well, thanks for coming, Mrs. Meir. See you in church, eh?"

After carefully reviewing the above transcript, Dr. Pettibone handed in his resignation.

"Well," he said, as he cleaned out his desk in the White House, "back to the old splendid isolation."

Relocation

From The New York Times

In January 1970, President Nixon announced that a proposed jetport adjacent to Everglades National Park was not to be built. The Chief Executive rightly hailed this decision as "an outstanding victory for conservation." Now the President has signed into law a measure, hidden within an amendment to the Supplemental Appropriations Act of 1972, to finance a $2,500,000 jetport within Grand Teton National Park in Wyoming.

The potential disturbance to the nearly 4,000,000 people who annually visit the Tetons is far greater than it would have been at Florida's Everglades. The roar of commercial jets, echoing off the towering peaks, would be heard throughout the park. The feeling of peace and serenity that visitors expect to find in a national park would be destroyed, and there would be nowhere one could escape from the shattering intrusion.

In December 1970, a regional office of the United States Bureau of Outdoor Recreation issued a set of guidelines for jetport site selection, several of which are especially applicable to the Tetons:

"The airport . . . should not utilize any water, air, or lands within any area set aside by a federal, state or local government agency as a park . . ., the site should be located so as to avoid diminishing the esthetic quality of the landscape and its value for wildlife, recreation, and ecologic . . . and related purposes; and . . . so as to minimize the effects of noise and air pollution on people, fish, and wildlife."

President Nixon, following the landmark Everglades precedent, has the opportunity to make another major contribution to public's enjoyment of a great national park by helping state and local authorities find a location outside the park for the Grand Teton jetport.

Students and celebrities to offer plays, ballets

By Kathie Pratt
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Everyone is getting into the act spring quarter at least as far as dramatic events are concerned.

The Calipre Stage has scheduled several productions including "Up Against the Wall Mother," to be performed at 8 p.m., April 6-8. Directed by Jo Ellen Tamen, the show is based on the image of women in literature.

Ms. Tamen, a graduate student in speech, compiled and adapted the script including scenes from well known works such as Aristophanes' "Lysistrata," Ibsen's "A Doll's House" and several others.

The lively musical, "Jacques Brei is Alive and Well and Living in Paris," will open on the Calipre at 8 p.m. April 20 with additional performances scheduled for April 21, 27, and 28. Directed by Steve Webster, the musical will feature 30 songs composed by the French songwriter Jacques Brel including two of Brel's most popular, "If We Only Have Love," and "If You Go Away."

"Moritat," an original musical adaptation of Georg Buchner's "Woyzeck," will appear on the Calipre Stage with 8 p.m. performances May 11, 12, 18, and 19.

The adaptation was written by Michael Moore, graduate student in theater who has authored a number of works. The songs were composed by Barry Kleinbort, senior in theater who also has written several plays and composed numerous songs.

The 1972-73 Celebrity Series has scheduled two performances to close out the season.

"Applause," the Broadway winning musical will appear at 3 and 8 p.m. April 8 in Shryock Auditorium. Patrice Munsel, noted singer and actress, will be featured in the lead role of Margo Channing with Diane McAfee, Virgil Curry and Ed Fuller playing in supporting roles.

The musical is based on the film version of "All About Eve," the story of Mary Orr's backstage life as an actress, playwright and wife of Reginald Denham, the well-known playwright-director.

The final offering in the Celebrity Series will be an 8 p.m. May 13 performance by the Ballet West troupe from Salt Lake City.

Beginning with an April 13-15 performance of "Old Times," the Southern Players will offer three productions during spring quarter including "Purlie Victorious" and an Annual Dance Presentation performed by the Southern Repertory Dance Company on May 18, 19 25 and 26.

Written by Harold Pinter, "Old Times" is a drama that delves into the past and present lives of three English people and highlights their unspoken doubts and tensions.

The Southern Players will also present a children's play, "The Indian Captive" April 2, 4, 5, 6 and 8 in the University Theater.

Brant population drop

WASHINGTON (AP)—Brant are getting so scarce on the east coast that Nathaniel P. Reed, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, expects the hunting season will be closed for at least two more years.

Estimates are that these little geese have dropped from 200,000 in the late 1960's to about 40,000, the smallest number in a quarter of a century. The decrease has been blamed on poor nesting seasons in the Canadian Arctic.

Speech planned on commitment

Charles Kiesler, chairman of the Department of Psychology at the University of Kansas, will speak on "The Avoidance and Reinterpretation of Commitment" at 4 p.m. Friday in Lawson 151.

Kiesler's presentation is being sponsored by the psychology department and the Pyschology Colloquium Committee.

Spiritual leader Baba Ram Dass to lecture in Shryock Auditorium

By Dave Stearns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Baba Ram Dass, spiritual leader and author of the book "Be Here Now" will lecture at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium.

"Be Here Now" has sold 200,000 copies and concerns the Hindu philosophy of capturing the truth and fulfillment of the present by ridding oneself of worldly goods and influences.

In other words, Ram Dass believes that one can feel the sweetness and harmony of fully realizing a moment in time by removing himself from superficial physical desires.

In a recent interview, Ram Dass said that in uplifting one's spirit, "you can't take any personality baggage with you. Whoever is left of the old separate being has to die."

Formerly known as Richard Alpert, Ram Dass was a professor of psychology at Harvard when he met Timothy Leary in 1961.

Alpert experimented with psychedelic drugs for seven years with Leary. This raised a national controversy and Alpert was consequently fired from Harvard. After traveling in Europe, Alpert found that he could not make constructive use of his drug experiences and that drugs did not satisfy his spiritual needs. This dissilusionment led him to a guru in India.

After studying in India for nine months, Alpert began teaching and lecturing in the United States in 1969 under the name Baba Ram Dass.

"Baba" means "father" and "Ram Dass" means "servant of God."

Tapes of Ram Dass's lectures have been played on radio and transcripts of his lectures have been printed in various newspapers and journals.

Sponsoring Baba Ram Dass's lecture is the Ananda Marga Yoga Society in cooperation with WTAO radio. Tickets are priced at $2 and are available at the Student Center Central Ticket Office.

Summer registration scheduled

Registration for new students planning to enter SIU this summer will begin April 9.

Admissions Director Jerre Pfaff said the registration-advisement sessions will be scheduled on successive Mondays from April 9 through May 28. Students who already have been admitted to SIU will be sent letters giving them advisement dates and times.

Advisement appointments are to help students select courses they will take during the summer quarter.

SIU has devised a new summer quarter format that includes eight, five and one-half, and four-week sessions, as well as the traditional 11-week quarter. Pfaff said most courses for beginning freshmen will be taught during the full quarter.

The Student Activities Center will conduct a "new student orientation program" for persons who register in advance during April and May. Those unable to pre-register may be enrolled on the first day of summer term classes, June 18, Pfaff said.

Films on Pacific set for Monday

A program of films on the Pacific will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Morris Auditorium. Admission is free.

The program will consist of two films, "Moana, a Romance of the Golden Age," which pictures the daily life of the Samoans on the island of Savaii, and "Carnival Under the Sea," based on the biology of the coral reefs of New Caledonia.

The films are being sponsored by the Pacific Studies Committee, the Department of Anthropology and the Department of Cinema and Photography, under the direction of the Special Meetings and Speakers' Committee.

World famous French master of pantomime, Marcel Marceau, left, will perform on American television for the first time in three years when he appears on "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood," at 3:30 p.m. friday on WSIU-TV, channel 8. Fred Rogers, right, is now in his seventh season on TV.

Marceau will appear on 'Misterogers' Friday

World entertainer Marcel Marceau will perform as "Bip," a sometimes funny, sometimes tragic mime character, at 3:30 p.m. Friday on the "Misterogers' Neighborhood" program on WSIU-TV channel 8.

The appearance of Marceau is part of a new season of Misterogers' program, a critically-acclaimed half-hour of entertainment and self-discovery for youngsters, 3 to 8.

The character of Bip demonstrates Marceau's skill at pantomime.

"In many ways children are more sensitive to mime than adults because of their fantastic ability to project their imagination," Marceau said.

"I have a special regard for 'Misterogers' Neighborhood' because Mr. (Fred) Rogers respects and encourages the actor, the poet and the playwright that lives inside every child—and which is the very essence of my art."

On the program Marceau tells youngsters that much of the character of Bip is based on watching children at play and learning from them.

"That's very important because it reinforces a message to children that's woven into the fabric of every program," says Rogers, an ordained minister, musicologist and child development expert now in his seventh television season. "The message to children is the thought that 'You Are Special'," Rogers said.

"Marceau is not so much a guest on our program as he is an "extension" of it. Through the very serious business of mime, he encourages children to play. I believe play is an essential factor in learning. It is a creative activity that expands emotional consciousness. It prepares us for life."

Marceau said his art is in common bond with the ideas underscored on the Misterogers' show.

"We both use a certain 'device' to hold up a mirror to life," Marceau said. "It is the device of make-believe. In both instances, the reflected images are seen through puppets.

When I am in character I am a puppet of flesh and blood. Fred's puppets are wood and cloth—but he breathes into them a reality that makes them as alive and feeling as my stage person."

Rogers said that he tries to show children that it takes hard work to reach certain goals in life.

"Our guest artists personify the principle that 'wanting' something is only the first step, and that the actual achievement comes only with practice, discipline and a healthy respect for our God-given abilities—as well as a realization of our limitations."

IRS says local agencies have no illegal practices

By Marcia Bullard
and
Stan Kosinski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writers

Carbondale tax preparation agencies have not been affected by the nationwide Internal Revenue Service (IRS) investigation to uncover fraudulent practices by private tax preparers, according to reports from local IRS and Chamber of Commerce officials.

An increasing number of improperly prepared tax forms last year prompted a nationwide check of tax preparers, resulting in more than 90 convictions and 67 arrests or indictments. Principal targets of the IRS checks are the growing number of "fly-by-night" tax preparers.

IRS Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters this year has stepped up such national investigations with the cooperation of state and local IRS offices.

"We have no record of investigations, arrests or indictments of any local agencies," Lloyd Dinkelman, Carbondale IRS office manager, said in an interview recently.

Ray Lech, executive vice president of the local Chamber of Commerce, also confirmed that no complaints or inquiries about tax preparers in the city have been filed. He said the number of agencies offering such services has remained stable since the investigations began last year.

Despite their good record, however, accountants in Carbondale tax preparation agencies have been reluctant to comment on the nationwide IRS investigations.

Inquiries about the local effect of IRS checks on H & R Block, a worldwide tax preparation agency, were referred to the Southern Illinois regional director, J.W. Berry, at Marion. Local office manager Mrs. Florence Berry said she would "rather not discuss" any business matters except through the regional office.

"I guess the IRS investigations have affected all tax preparers to some extent," Mr. Berry said recently. "But we have had no decrease in the number of persons who have come to us."

Berry said, that H & R Block showed an increase in customers both this year and last. However, Berry could not offer any figures on the increase.

Glen Kitzman, manager of the Tax Corporation of America, refused to discuss IRS investigations, saying "I just don't care to talk about it."

"I just do this as a sideline," he added. "I don't get too involved in the work." Kitzman said he services "very few" people in the area.

Don Harrison, of Harrison Accounting Company, also had no comment about the IRS investigations. His is the only other tax preparation service in Carbondale.

"I don't want to participate," Harrison replied when told opinions were being sought on the IRS crackdown.

Presently there is no licensing procedure for persons who wish to prepare tax returns for other individuals. Only enrolled practitioners, who practice law as it pertains to income tax returns, must pass a written state examination.

Berry said H & R Block has supported moves to require licensing procedures for a number of years.

"We definitely advocate licensing tax preparers," Berry said. "There are too many unauthorized people who don't know what they're doing." He said representatives of H & R Block worked with congressional committees in 1972 to assert the need for licensing.

"Anybody who makes a fraudulent return should have his license revoked," Berry added. He said erroneously prepared returns could be the fault of either the taxpayer or the tax preparers.

A common violation by tax preparers is "suggesting something they know to be illegal" to a taxpayer filling out his own return, Berry said.

In seeking licensing for all tax preparers, Berry claims H & R Block is "strict" about the people it employs. The company has penalties of its own for violations of any tax return laws in addition to the criminal penalties of the state, he asserted.

The local IRS office is vague about its part in the nationwide check on tax preparers.

Dinkelman refused to disclose methods of investigation employed by the office and said no figures concerning the number of local investigations are available.

"I don't think the methods are as important as the fact that we are actively engaged in the nationwide effort to identify unscrupulous preparers," Dinkelman said.

Exaggerated claims in itemized deductions are the most common violations discovered by IRS officials in Illinois, according to reports filed with Springfield IRS office director Leon Greene.

Misinterpretation and application of tax laws as they pertain to the individual also claim a big portion of violations, Greene said in an interview recently.

Textile program scheduled here

"Think Textile" is the theme for a one-day program planned for April 4 in conjunction with National Textile Week, April 1-7, with the local activities being sponsored by the Department of Clothing and Textiles, School of Home Economics, and the Division of Continuing Education.

Starting with 9:30 a.m. registration in the Home Economics Building Lounge, the schedule of events includes a seminar on clothing and textiles, a tour of Horstmann's Dry Cleaning plant and the SIU laundry and an open house in the clothing and textiles department, according to Shirley Friend, department chairman.

A dinner session at 6:30 p.m. at the Student Center will feature a fashion show of new textiles and two speakers—Rose Padgett, professor of clothing and textiles, on "Recent Fabric Care Research," and Helen Horner Wheeler of the International Fabricare Institute (IFI) in Joliet, on "Consumer Protection Laws and the New Fabrics."

The guest speaker, Mrs. Wheeler, is director of IFI's certified washable and certified drycleanable seal laboratories. For the past 25 years she has directed the testing of launderability of textiles and approves or rejects their eligibility to carry the certified seal of performance.

Items for the fashion show will be furnished by Phillips' and Sohn's local stores.

Reservations may be made with Paul L. Conti, Division of Continuing Education. Banquet tickets are $4 per person.

Landlords cannot raise rent until present leases expire

In most cases, SIU students will not have to fear an immediate rent increase due to renegotiation provisions in their leases.

Renegotiation provisions, ruled invalid by President Nixon at the start of Phase III, pertain to leases signed prior to January 11. The provisions provide for renegotiation of higher rent when controls end, or specify the higher rent to be charged when controls end. Rent controls ended January 11.

"Most students have leases based on the standard University contract of the model housing contract," said James Osberg, superintendent for off-campus housing. "There is no way a landlord could raise the rent under these contracts. These types of contracts state a definite amount to be paid and a definite date of termination."

However, this does not prevent a landlord from raising the rent once a lease expires.

Osberg said there were some students who do not have written housing agreements. In such cases, the landlords can raise the rent whenever they want.

"We use the University-model type of contract," said Marilyn Hingen of Bening Real Estate.

"We don't use them," said Phil Favreau of Cherry Realty. "We raise or lower rents only after a lease terminates."

"No, we don't have them," said Howard Lambert of Lambert Realty. "Raises occur only after a lease ends."

Students whose rent has been increased under renegotiation provisions should notify the stabilization section of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) in Springfield, said Charles Brooks, IRS stabilization manager. The complaint should be made in writing, Brooks said.

He said the IRS would investigate such complaints. If a landlord was found to have used a renegotiation provision, he would have 10 days to appeal the IRS decision. If the landlord continued to violate the law, the IRS would forward the complaint to the Cost of Living Council and the Justice Department in Washington, D.C.

Three honor societies invite new members

Three honorary scholastic societies for high academic achievement by graduate and undergraduate students are currently inviting qualified students to join their ranks.

Freshmen honor societies of Phi Eta Sigma for men and Alpha Lambda Delta for women invite students who have maintained a 4.5 overall grade point average during their freshmen year.

Students who qualify for either of these societies and have not been contacted should contact the Student Life Office in Barracks T-40 for membership information. Dues for Phi Eta Sigma are $10 and should be paid to Julia Muller, coordinator, in the Student Life Office.

Alpha Lambda Delta initiates should pay the $8 dues at Student Life by April 11. For more information contact Pam Kartinos, chapter president, at 453-3137.

Students eligible for the Phi Kappa Phi honor society who have not received notification should contact Mary Helen Gasser, in the office of Dean of Student Services at 453-2374.

To be eligible for this society, an undergraduate junior or senior must be completing his third term at SIU at the time of initiation and should have maintained an overall average of 4.75. Graduate students must have been registered for one year or be within one month of the final examination for the degree and maintained a scholastic average of 4.90.

IRS clears agencies

available on a statewide level, Greene noted that there are "several" cases under investigation this year. No indictments have yet been made.

A tax preparer can be arrested and indicted by the IRS if investigations turn up a "flagrant enough abuse" in filling out tax forms, Greene said. He said he is not sure what IRS officials define as a flagrant abuse.

The maximum penalty for a tax preparer who is convicted or pleads guilty is three years imprisonment and a fine not exceeding $5,000 for each improperly prepared return, Greene stated.

A few inquiries into local agencies were made last year by individuals but there have been no inquiries this year, Ray Lech of the Chamber of Commerce said. Lech added that he is not aware of any actual complaints against agencies that might have been made in the past.

Larry Hallquist, classified advertising manager for the Southern Illinoisan newspaper, said his office shows no change in the number of tax preparers who have placed ads in the paper this year as compared to last year.

The IRS this year insists that outside preparers not only sign the returns as in the past but also include their Social Security number. That way, if returns from a preparer show inconsistencies when audited by the IRS, the agency's computer can separate every return compiled by the violator or his staff.

If a taxpayer discovers that an income tax preparer improperly filled out an income tax form, the taxpayer should immediately notify the IRS office at 606 E. Main St., Carbondale office manager Dinkelman said.

Taxpayers who are unsure about the laws on filing income tax forms should consult the local IRS office, Dinkelman said. The Carbondale office offers taxpayer assistance from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. daily.

Dinkelman reports that "quite a number" of Carbondale residents have taken advantage of the service this year. Although no figures are available, Dinkelman believes more people have used the free service to date than at this time last year.

The deadline for filing both federal and state income tax returns is April 15. Returns must be postmarked no later than midnight that day.

PK executive to talk at national meeting

Jon B. Riffel, vice president for Public Relations of Southern California Gas Co., will be the main speaker at a national Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA) conference to be held at SIU April 6-8.

Riffel, national chairman of the PRSSA in 1971, will speak at a banquet at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, April 7, in Ballroom B of the Student Center.

The conference is being sponsored by the Raymond D. Wiley Chapter of the PRSSA (SIU branch). The theme of the conference is taken from a previous speech by Riffel titled, "Public Relations—On the Threshold of the Third Era." His speech called for public relations practitioners to take on a greater leadership role in society.

Raymond D. Wiley, assistant professor of speech and advisor of the SIU chapter, announced that conference panel discussion sessions will be open without charge to SIU faculty and students on a space available basis.

Riffel has been an active member of PRSSA since 1959, and an accredited member since 1966. In 1968, he became chairman of the original National Advisory Council on the Public Relations Student Society of America and was instrumental in organizing many college chapters. Riffel has been a member of the Study Commission on Accrediting of College Courses in Public Relations.

In 1972, he became a chairman of the Public Relations Committee of the American Gas Association. Presently, Riffel is a member of the International Public Relations Association and a board member of the National Center for Voluntary Action.

Jon B. Riffel

The conference will present panel discussions on students' future in public relations, public relations and the credibility crisis, the role of public relations in urban affairs, consumerism and ecology, and the future role of public relations.

Senior heads fraternities' cancer drive

A Cancer Fund Drive among students on 85 college campuses is being coordinated by Joel Blake, SIU senior from Chicago majoring in sociology.

Blake is national chairman in charge of the drive on campuses that have a chapter of the social fraternity Sigma Tau Gamma.

Blake and 30 other members of SIU's Alpha Sigma Chapter of the social fraternity are sponsoring an educational campaign focused on stopping cigarette smoking by college students. The campaign also has a goal of raising $3,000 at SIU for the Cancer Fund.

Chapter members will also distribute 20,000 leaflets describing cancer warning signals to students.

Head East and All-Star Frogs will be featured in concert a 8 p.m. April 3 in the Student Center Ballrooms as part of the fundraising event. Admission is $1.

REPRESENTATIVE
WANTED

We're looking for part-time help to promote the campus market for film developing.

Our rep will distribute promotional materials, posters, "free" processing coupons, etc. No photo experience necessary.

Good money-maker! Your efforts backed by college newspaper ads. Don't pass this one up.

Student seeks JC board post

By Rich Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Five candidates, including one SIU student, are running for two three-year terms on the John A. Logan College Board.

The Rev. Doug Linson, an SIU senior in psychology, is attempting to become a part of the seven-member board. The election will be April 14.

"I feel I can serve," Linson said. "I have been a student at Logan. So have my wife and son."

The Oklahoma native and former insurance agent moved into the Southern Illinois area about 2½ years ago. His father's family is from Union County. Linson and his family live in Carterville.

"There should be more concentration on the students," Linson said. "Last year there were $55,000 in salary increases and administration. This I can't see. Paying $33,000 for an administrator is too high for that kind of job." He was referring to John A. Logan's president Nathan A. Ivey's salary.

Linson said he would like to see a student and a faculty member, with full privileges, on the board. He also said he was against executive councils and closed board meetings.

"I will not be a 'yes man' for the administration," Linson said.

Other candidates are Harold Rice, Du Quoin; Sue Mills, Carbondale; Donald L. Brewer, Murphysboro; and Gloria Moroni Holder, wife of the Carbondale Community High School superintendent. Rice is an incumbent.

There are also two candidates for a two-year term. Dr. Richard Fox, Marion, is running for re-election. Bill Bonali of Herrin is opposing Fox. Fox was appointed to serve the unexpired term of the Rev. C.R. Walker.

Norman Myers, assistant to the president and secretary of the board, said all the candidates must be at least 21, a resident of the junior college district, have filed a nominating petition with at least 50 signatures and have filed a financial disclosure statement.

The college district includes most of Jackson and Williamson counties as well as portions of Perry and Franklin counties.

Myers said the normal school election polling places will be used. For the first time, Myers said, the junior college polling place will be at the same location as the local school districts. There will be 33 polling places, with citizens voting according to residence boundaries. Requirements for voting in the election are the same as a general election.

Summer, fall quarter advisement announced

Advisement appointments for summer and fall quarters for General Studies, the College of Education and art and music majors in the College of Communications and Fine Arts have been announced.

General Studies appointments will be issued in Ballroom B of the Student Center on April 4 and 5. Students with last names beginning L-Z are scheduled for April 4 and students with last names beginning A-K are scheduled for April 5.

Appointments for new students will be issued through the Admissions Office only, not through the General Studies office. Reentry students' appointments will be issued through the mail by Ruth Youngberg in the General Studies Office, Woody Hall.

Student work supervisors who want early advisement appointments for student workers should send their requests to Ms. Youngberg by 3 p.m. April 3. Requests received after that will not be honored.

The College of Education will issue advisement appointments in Room 110 of Wham Building for seniors on April 4, juniors on April 5 and all other students on April 6.

Undergraduate art and music majors in the College of Communications and Fine Arts may pick up advisement appointments at Barracks 0846 Monday through Wednesday.

Students with an SIU overall GPA at the end of fall quarter of 3.70 or above, or students with a total of 174 hours may pick up appointments Monday.

Students whose GPA is between 3.25 and 3.69 may pick up appointments on Tuesday.

All other students may pick up appointments on Wednesday.

74th Art Exhibition

Imagist School dominates show

By C.G. McDaniel
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Artists of the Chicago Imagist School dominate the 74th Exhibition by Artists of Chicago and Vicinity at the Art Institute, which opened Tuesday night.

At the same time, it is a highly varied exhibition, and the 137 artists selected from 1,409 entrants are of peak quality.

This high quality bodes well for contemporary American art, which too long has been in the grasp of anti-artists, the trash-can school.

The Chicago and Vicinity show long has been esteemed, and this exhibition should add to its reputation. Artists within a 100-mile radius are eligible to enter.

The judges also selected 30 of the artists for prizes.

One of the $1,000 awards went, not surprisingly to Roy Schnackenberg of Barrington, Ill., for a huge striking canvas titled "The Twelve Zloty Balthus Commememorative."

The name comes from a postage stamp at the corner of a letter featured in the painting, along with a pair of gloves, a string of beads, a photograph of an Egyptian carving, and a ruby-red vase of flowers on a marble-top table.

C.W. Peckenpaugh of Milwaukee was awarded $500 for a dramatic blue purple and green canvas featuring a bale of hay sitting in a pasture under a troubled sky.

An unusual landscape in mixed media by Jeffery F. Mendoza was awarded $500. It consists of a series of six small clear-plastic boxes containing soil, pebbles and grass.

Ellen Sherwood of Chicago received a $100 award for a ceramic sculpture depicting the back porches and stairs of a three-story apartment building, with various items of household furnishings on the porches.

Judges for the exhibition were: Philip Pearlstein, a Brooklyn, N.Y., artist and teacher; Athena T. Spear, curator of modern art, Alle Memorial Art Museum, Oberlin, Ohio; A. James Speyer, curator of 20th century painting and sculpture at the Art Institute of Chicago, and James N. Wood, associate director, Albright Knox Art Gallery, Buffalo, N.Y.

Other prize winners from Chicago were: Stephen T. Carlson, Santi Isrowuthakul, Ed Paschke, Irene Siegal, Stephen J. Alzair, William Conger, Jayme Curley, Stephen L. Feldman, Carole Harmel, Elwood C. Howell, Michael Hurson, Jay Kohn; Ruth Aizuss Migdal, Darlyne Murawski, Joyce Olson, Barbara Rossi, Rubin Steinberg, Melvin Theobald and Donald Yoshida.

The others were: Rodney Carswell, Evanston, Ill.; Bill Moll, Northbrook, Ill.; Steve Berman, Morton Grove, Ill.; Albert Nagele, Wilmette, Ill.; James Pauls, De Kalb, Ill.; Arlene Seitzinger, Portage, Ind., and Leanne Stevenson, Whitewater, Wis.

The Moog will be an important part of Morris Knight's electronic music program, "Entity One," to be presented at 7:30 and 8:45 p.m. tonight.

Quincy leads 'Top Ten' list in academics

Students from Quincy High School led a list of "Top Ten" Illinois schools in academic performances at SIU.

A survey given by the Office of Admissions and Records at SIU shows that Quincy graduates compiled a group grade point average of 4.18 on the SIU's 5.0-point scale during their first term in residence at Carbondale. These statistics were given to beginning freshmen students during fall quarter 1972.

Crete-Monee High School graduates finished only fractional percentage points behind Quincy's with an overall average of 4.15 for the fall quarter.

Other "Top Ten" Illinois High Schools were: Carmi Township High School (4.08), Carterville High School (4.04), New Trier East High School (3.92), Du Quoin High School (3.92), Anna-Jonesboro High School (3.91), West Frankfort High School (3.85), Oak Park-River Forest High School (3.94), Niles Township North High School (3.84).

Several items reported missing to local police

Several reports of stereo equipment stolen over break were received by Carbondale and SIU Security Police Monday.

A Pioneer amplifier-receiver and speakers valued at $850 was reported stolen from Room 124 Boomer II Hall in University Park.

Stereo equipment, a color television, portable typewriter, jewelry and cash were reported stolen from an apartment at 509 S. Ash. Items valued at $215, including stereo equipment, were reported stolen from another apartment at the same address.

Shawnee group to hear forester

Charles Hendricks, supervisor at the Shawnee National Forest, will speak to the Shawnee group of the Sierra Club at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Carbondale Savings and Loan.

Hendricks will talk about management of a national forest, particularly the areas of Shawnee, which might become wilderness study areas.

FEPC orders meeting on racial bias charge

A conciliation meeting has been scheduled for April 9 in a case of alleged racial discrimination filed against SIU.

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC) ordered the meeting in the case of Claudette Simon, an administrative secretary in the office of the dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts.
Arts.

Arnold Jochums, Mrs. Simon's attorney, said that based on Civil Service criteria, Mrs. Simon is the ranking member of the office, but due to racism, she has been unable to function as an administrative secretary.

"They tried to pressure her to take a different job," Jochums said.

"We are charging unfair labor practices."

The FEPC ruled in January that there was "substantial evidence" to support Mrs. Simon's charge.

Jochums said he did not know the exact time or location of the meeting.

Should the conciliation meeting fail to reach a settlement, the FEPC would have a full hearing on the case, Jochums said.

IBHE chairman denies selection of new executive

By Rich Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Donald Prince, the new Illinois Board of Higher Education chairman, firmly denied Tuesday that a successor has been chosen for James Holderman, the present IBHE executive director.

"No decision has been reached," Prince said. "The board meets at 10 a.m. April 3 in the LaSalle Hotel in Chicago. A decision could be reached at that time, or maybe it won't be made until May."

Lindsay-Schaub Newspapers have stated that Cameron West, a vice president at the University of North Carolina, (UNC), probably will be the new executive director.

Prince said he has talked with West. West was unavailable for comment.

Using sources on the board staff who asked not to be quoted, the Lindsay-Schaub papers said Holderman has scheduled a news conference in Chicago Wednesday to announce his resignation and future plans.

Dick Collister, special assistant to the executive director, said no formal news conference was scheduled for Wednesday. Prince said he expected Holderman to make a statement sometime within a week to 10 days.

According to the Schaub papers, other candidates interviewed were two members of the present board staff: Harry Williams, deputy director for financial planning, and Richard Wagner, deputy director for governmental affairs. West is a native of North Carolina. He received bachelor, master's and doctoral degrees in education from UNC.

West was director of the North Carolina Board of Higher Education. The board had program, budgetary planning and coordinating powers over the state's universities although senior institutions such as UNC were exempted.

The board was replaced in 1972 by a Board of Governors for all North Carolina higher education institutions.

Campus Briefs

Arthyr G. Chapman, retired U.S. Forest Service research specialist and professor emeritus of forestry at SIU, has been honored by the National Coal Association for his extensive work since 1937 on reclaiming strip mine lands.

The citation was presented March 7 during a symposium on strip mine land reclamation sponsored by the association in Pittsburgh. He was presented the association's 1973 Reclamation Award for his "pioneer efforts and valuable leadership in land reclamation research, his outstanding contribution to the sound development, conservation and use of mined land and his lifelong dedication to the improvement of man's environment."

Donald S. Detwiler, associate professor in the Department of History, will give the second talk at a symposium on the Third Reich tonight. The symposium is being sponsored by the history department and the Center for Twentieth Century Studies at the Milwaukee branch of the University of Wisconsin.

G. B. Marion, chairman of the Department of Animal Industries at SIU, took part in a conference on research with representatives from various universities at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., March 22.

Marion and a group of students from the animal industries department also participated in the Barn Meeting of the Bond County Holstein Cattle Club at Greenville March 14.

The third in a series of research papers by Maurice Ogur, chairman of the Department of Microbiology, and his graduate students have appeared in the February issue of the international journal, "Biochimica et Biophysica Acta."

The paper describes the discovery in yeast of a mechanism by which cells may control their internal environment in response to changes in the external environment.

John P. Stephan, a 1972 SIU graduate, received special recognition for high grades on the two and one-half day Certified Public Accountants (CPA) examination. Stephan is one of the 45 candidates who received honorable mention awards out of the 30,129 students who took the test in November, 1972.

George Kapusta, supervisor of the plant industries research units at SIU, spoke at the annual Washington County Corn and Soybean Club awards banquet in Nashville March 20. Kapusta talked about the current outlook for fertilizer supplies to meet farmers' needs, and the possibilities of shortages in some kinds of plant nutrients.

Donors needed for blood drive

The Red Cross Blood Mobile Unit will be on campus April 18-20 for the spring blood collection drive sponsored by Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight.

Sponsors of the blood drive are asking for the help of students to break the goal of 1,000 units of blood.

Members of Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight will be located in Lentz, Grinnell and Trueblood dining halls April 9 and 10 to schedule appointments for students who wish to donate blood. Blood donor cards will also be filled out at this time.

Scheduling of blood donation appointments will continue at the Student Center April 11-12. Jackie Clark, member of Angel Flight, suggests that students wishing to donate blood sign up early to avoid a long wait at the mobile unit.

Those persons donating blood will be asked for a short medical history and will be given a blood test before moving to one of the donor tables.

Donations of blood entitle the donor and members of his family to blood transfusions in medical cases without obligation.

Saluki Flying Club to co-host national air meet, conference

The Saluki Flying Club is busy preparing to co-host the National Intercollegiate Flying Association (NIFA) air meet and conference May 10-12 at Southern Illinois Airport.

The meet will mark the silver anniversary of the NIFA and the third time the Saluki team has been a sponsor. The NIFA is an organization of 118 college and university-sponsored flying clubs from all over the U.S. Also a co-host for the event is Alpha Eta Rho, SIU aviation fraternity.

The Saluki Flying Club is the recognized flying organization at SIU and presently has 20 members. Any student, faculty or staff member of SIU with an interest in flying is eligible to join the club and take advantage of reduced rates for plane rental.

John Ellish, flying club president and president of the NIFA, said he expects SIU to capture some awards this year.

"We start with a new team just about every year," he said. "This year we have a pretty good team all around and we have the advantage of our home airport."

The Saluki team placed fifth in the nation at the 1971 meet in San Jose, Calif. It placed second in the regional meet in Murfreesboro, Tenn., to qualify for last year's national competition.

SIU President David R. Derge, an honorary member of the Saluki club, was greatly instrumental in obtaining the meet at SIU. Ellish said the various clubs put on a show of their facilities and bid for the meet each year. The teams then vote on the various prospects.

"SIU put on a darn good show last year," Eilish said. "President Derge had a lot to do with it. He was a big help."

Ellish estimated that the meet will cost between $18,000 and $25,000. The responsibility of financing each meet is given to the host school, which provides housing, transportation, publicity, entertainment, trophies and fuel.

A small amount is received from the NIFA dues and registration fees. The rest comes from companies interested in promoting aviation.

Twenty-six schools will compete in the three-day meet. "It is going to get a little crowded around here in May," Ellish said.

Events designed for the average pilot include: 180 degree side-approach power-on spot landing; a power-off spot landing; a bomb (flour sack) drop; a navigation event involving computation of fuel and time; an instrument proficiency test; a computer accuracy test; and a pre-flight test to find discrepancies in a "booby-trapped" aircraft.

Each team may have two contestants in the navigation and bomb drop and four in each of the other events. The meet will be scored by NIFA judges on a point basis for team and individual efforts.

A banquet on Friday night will feature a well-known personality in aviation, Bill Lear, developer of the Lear Jet, who expects to bring one or two astronauts with him. Tickets will be available to the public.

Administrative intern assigned to the College of Education

Bianca Margaglio has been assigned to work as an administrative intern in the College of Education at SIU as one of the pilot appointees in a new program inaugurated by the Academic Affairs Conference of Midwestern Universities (AACMU).

Miss Margaglio's appointment was made possible through a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation to the Conference. It is designed to provide special training for prospective college administraters pertaining to minority rights and privileges, according to Elmer J. Clark, dean of the College of Education.

During her assignment, she will work primarily with Dean Clark and the administrative staff and faculty of the College, but also will have experiences in related schools and colleges, Clark said.

Miss Margaglio, a native of Grove City, Pa., is a 1972 doctoral degree graduate in education from Boston University. She has had extensive experience in adult education and human relations.

Her assignment at SIU extends until July 1. The new AACMU internship program is expected to extend through July, 1974, according to Dean Clark.

Old frat house to be School of Law library

Conversion of a onetime SIU campus fraternity house to a library for the new School of Law is expected to begin late this spring.

Wakeland Hall, a vacant building in the Small Group Housing area—"Greek Row"—will be remodeled to accommodate 65,000 law volumes now in Morris Library. Another vacant fraternity house, Kaplan Hall, has been earmarked for conversion as faculty-administrative offices for the new law school.

SIU has asked for $104,640 in its current budget request to plan a $5,160,000 School of Law building it hopes to open in the fall of 1976. The first School of Law class began studies in September.

Costs for renovating the Small Group Housing units have been estimated at $110,000 apiece.

Buying protection can be embarrassing.

The VD
Epidemic

Sensitivity (Control) Labs sells you condoms privately (in the mail)...and for less.

Condoms and V.D.
V.D. is reaching epidemic proportions. Every 15 seconds someone gets the disease — and only one girl in five knows she has it.

Condoms are not only a highly effective means of birth control but also help protect you against V.D. With a condom you control the situation, you know what's going on — and you don't have to take someone else's word for it.

Privacy, Sensitivity and Savings
Sensitivity (Control) Labs can eliminate the embarrassment of having to buy condoms in crowded stores. With us, nobody knows your business. We ship your condoms to you — privately, through the mails.

We select only the most sensitive condoms from the major brands (condoms that many feel even enhance sensitivity). They all measure up to gov't standards and are thoroughly tested for birth control safety — but still are oh, so sensitive.

And because we buy in bulk, we can also provide great savings. The same dozen condoms that you might buy for $3.75 in your local drug store, we give to you privately for only $2.50.

Special sample offer.
So send now for our specially selected dozen sampler unit for only $2.50. It contains 12 of the most sensitive protectors. We'll also include our catalogue listing all the selected protectors we offer and the bargains available.

Meet me at the Fair

Officers of the Advertising Design and Illustration Club at the SIU Vocational-Technical Institute prepare posters announcing the annual Spring Art Fair, scheduled for the weekend of May 19-20 in the commercial graphics building on the VTI campus. From left, faculty adviser Kenneth Martin, club president Marilyn Raedel, secretary-treasuer Brenda Stephens and vice-president Dick Schindler. The Art Fair will include high school and college divisions. Winners in various categories will receive cash awards.

Boy's complaint of paint price costs company third of million

By R. Gregory Nokes
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—a 12 year-old-boy's complaint that the price of model-airplane paint rose four cents a bottle is going to cost the Rockford, Ill., manufacturer nearly a third of a million dollars.

A settlement between the government and the paint company, Testor Corp. was reached in U.S. District Court in Chicago, and details of it were learned here Monday.

Testor denied any violation of the government's price controls but said in order to avoid the time and expense of court action it would "compromise and settle the pending controversy."

The settlement provides for Testor to lower the prices of Pla Enamel and Spray Pla Enamel for a long enough period to give its customers a total price reduction equal to the $312,879.55 overcharge alleged by the Justice Department.

The company also agreed to pay a $5,000 fine for the alleged violations of the government price controls, although it said it did not concede any violation.

The Justice Department filed suit Nov. 28 against Testor and its parent corporation, Jupiter Industries Inc. of Chicago, after John Malachowsky of West Babylon, N. Y., complained that an increase from 15 cents to 19 cents for a quarter-ounce bottle of enamel paint violated President Nixon's Phase 2 controls.

"This is only four cents," Malachowsky wrote the Price Commission last April, "but being only 12¾ years old, this is a big strain on my allowance."

The Justice Department charged the Testor revenues totaled $312,879.55 more than the firm would have received if it had complied with the Economic Stabilization Act.

Testor said it will package a special kit containing nine small bottles of its Pla Enamel and a bottle of paint thinner that will sell for a retail price of $1.00. This is said to be equivalent to a 41-per-cent savings for customers who buy the kit rather than the bottles individually.

The special kit will indicate that the price was required under the Economic Stabilization Act.

Wounded Vietnam vet says he got off easy

By Joseph R. Tybor
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Fred Shadid, 24, held a cigarette burning to the filter between trembling fingers that once picked a guitar in a folk-rock group.

As his other hand fumbled with the flap on his faded blue hospital robe, he spoke in rapid bursts of the returning prisoners of war he'd seen on television.

Compared to the POWs, Shadid said, he got off easy in Vietnam.

Shadid was struck in the belly by fragments from a mortar shell last August, three weeks before his 13-month tour in Vietnam was due to end.

He underwent one operation in Tokyo and another at Veterans Research Hospital in Chicago. Maybe one more and then he can use the music grant he received to Northern Illinois University.

"Sure," he said, "sometimes I feel like a forgotten veteran, "but it's not because of the attention the POW's are getting."

All of the veterans interviewed at Veteran's Research Hospital said basically the same thing—that the returning prisoners deserve everything they can get for all their years in captivity.

Shadid said, for example, that he'd be glad to see the former prisoners accept the wardrobes, automobiles and lifetime tickets to major league baseball parks, notwithstanding the more than 100,000 wounded like himself who returned to a pale welcome with only scars and disability payments.

Compared to captivity as a POW, Shadid said he'd rather be without limbs, or better, dead.

"I went to survival training," he said. "We had all that stuff thrown at us—torture under investigation ... everything. I'd swap an arm or a leg rather than spend years in a prison camp."

Rick Warrih, 23, is a disgruntled Army veteran who received a minor shrapnel wound in Vietnam in 1969. He is being treated at the hospital for an infectious disease, he said, he contracted while in Southeast Asia.

Six faculty honored by American educators

Six SIU-C faculty members have been honored by Outstanding Educators of America, according to the group's director, V. Gilbert Beers of Washington, D.C.

Chosen to appear in the 1973 edition of the awards volume, Outstanding Educators of America, are the following educators nominated by SIU-C unit heads:

Randall H. Nelson, chairman and professor of government who came to SIU in 1956, nominated by Dean John M. H. Olmsted of the Graduate School.

Jacob Verduin, professor of botany who came to SIU in 1967, nominated by Dean John W. Voigt of the General Studies Division. Verduin's Ph.D. is from Iowa State University (1947); Willard D. Klimstra, professor of zoology and head of SIU's Cooperative Wildlife Research who came to SIU in 1949, nominated by Dean Roger E. Beyler of the College of Liberal Arts. Klimstra's Ph.D. was conferred by Iowa State University in 1949; Lewis E. Hahn, research professor of philosophy who joined the SIU faculty in 1963, nominated by Dean Beyler. His Ph.D. is from the University of California at Berkeley (1939); Roderick Gordon, professor of music who came to SIU in 1948, nominated by Director Robert W. House of the School of Music.

Harry G. Miller, assistant professor of secondary education who came to SIU in 1970 after receiving his Ph.D.

Study shows age group of next corporate man

By John Cunniff
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Corporate management, in a generic sense, reacts with more assurance and unanimity to challenges of an expanding economy than to a recession or shrink situation, a study just completed suggests.

In more "normal" times, which have come to mean prosperity, you can predict just about what age group will supply the next corporate top man. Most likely he will be 7 to 12 years younger than the outgoing boss.

After studying leadership changes in three recessions since the early 1950s, Dr. Eugene Jennings of Michigan State University concludes that companies react to the relatively unfamiliar stress of bad times by:

1. Putting older men in the top spot, the intention seemingly being to utilize his experience and industry knowhow to get back on a track that will best protect it from the economic elements.

2. Putting younger men in the top spot, the intention apparently being to encourage innovation in areas that the rest of the industry may be overlooking.

The pattern shows up consistently and with amazing clarity. As Jennings puts it: "Rebels and conformists in a shrink economy pop out in bold relief."

In the '50s and '60s, for example, about 8 per cent of chief executive appointments were 15 years or more younger than their predecessors. But during recessions the percentage doubled.

Consumer boycott blamed for Midwest hog price drop

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP)—Hog prices at one Iowa market were "deathly sick" Tuesday and market observers elsewhere in the state said their prices had slumped remarkably as well.

Some officials attributed the sinking price picture to meat boycotts.

On Monday, Dubuque Packing Co., Dubuque, Iowa, closed its packing plants at Mankato, Kan., and Vinton, Iowa, indefinitely and laid off employes. Spokesmen said they would delay a decision on layoffs at their plant in Dubuque.

Hogs were $3.00—$3.50 lower at the Central Iowa Stockyards in Webster City—"deathly sick," said General Manager Jerry Struck.

Hogs opened $1.50—$2.00 lower on the Interior Iowa-southern Minnesota direct market while Sioux City prices opened $2.00 lower. Most market observers said the decline was the greatest in memory.

One livestock buyer said he hadn't seen such a sharp drop in 40 years.

A market official in Des Moines, who declined to be identified, blamed the decline at least partly on advers. publicity and buyer resistance to soaring retail meat prices.

"The national boycot of meat seems to be getting a little steam up," said Struck. But he didn't think it would have a significant effect on the national market.

"I don't think people were overabundantly eating beef and pork before," Struck added.

Jim McElhany, market news reporter at Sioux City, said that the trend reflected a very rare situation. He said there were 8,300 hogs in the yards Tuesday—slightly above normal after moving 104,000 hogs the day before.

"All you have to do is not buy pork for two or three days," he explained. "It's bound to have an impact. You can't go very long without selling the meat."

Dean Doolan will discuss new changes

Deane R. Doolen, assistant dean for student affairs at the School of Medicine will speak to premedical students at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Room 131 Lawson Hall. He will talk on procedures and schedules to be followed in applying for admission to the School of Medicine.

This session is important to those students planning to apply to the SIU Medical School for 1974 admission because several deadlines and procedures have been changed, J. Hurley Myers, assistant to the associate dean for medical education (student affairs), said Tuesday.

He said information will be given out on when applications should be submitted to the American Medical College Application Service (AMCAS), an organization which coordinates all applications to medical schools across the country.

Among items in Doolen's talk will be information on when the medical school will stop receiving applications for 1974 and the schedule of admissions interviews for this summer. These interviews were formerly held during the fall.

Myers said this session will be the only time this spring Doolen will be on campus to speak to premedical students. He said plans are being made for representatives from other medical schools to speak to groups of premedical students later in the quarter.

Myers will also present a slide-tape show about the School of Medicine.

Saluki gymnasts become VIPs

The Saluki coach was notified Friday of his team's appearance at the Stadium, and the news caught one member by surprise.

"I was asleep at home when I picked up the phone and someone asks, 'Where's your uniform?'" Anderson said. "I finally realized it was the coach and he told me that I would compete at Chicago Stadium Monday night. It's one of the best things that's happened to me."

For Bruzing, it was "the greatest thing."

"Why was it the greatest? Because everything connected with the meet was run first class," he commented.

"Being there," Ropiequet said, "was like being treated like a VIP because we were VIP's for that one day."

Butzman could have made an understatement when he mentioned that "the security was real tight." The SIU and Russian gymnasts, who occupied rooms on the 12th floor of the Continental Plaza in downtown Chicago, were constantly being escorted by police and security officers from their rooms to practice and finally to the Chicago Stadium.

Most of the Salukis didn't admit to nervousness while performing in front of the 16,000 spectators who paid from four to seven dollars for a ticket on Monday which Daley proclaimed as "Olga Korbut Day."

"It was ecstacy," Morava said. "The crowd really got me up for the meet. But it was a different audience—it didn't look at us from a competitive standpoint. They were there to see the aesthetics of the sport."

"From a promotional standpoint, the city did a helluva job to prepare for the exhibition in just four days," Meade said. "But I was proud of my boys too. Out of 18 routines, I think we hit on 16 of them."

The Faberge Company and Spencer Marketing invested $300,000 to promote the Russian women gymnasts on their American tour. Meade agreed that the trip also helped promote the underpublicized sport in the United States.

"It gives me quite a lift to see 16,000 people jammed into Chicago Stadium for an exhibition like this," the Saluki coach said.

Even Mayor Daley was in figurative smiles after the final stop by the Russian women.

"He said that it was the most spectacular thing that he's ever witnessed," Joe Balasa, city director of special events, said of Daley's comments Tuesday afternoon from City Hall. "The mayor issued a statement and invited the Russian women back to Chicago any time they want.

"He also commended the Southern Illinois boys and was pleased that they were able to perform with the Russian girls."

Butzman best summed up the feelings of the gymnasts and the spectators. "It was a first-class thing and a lot of people learned a lot of things."

Southern golfers finish 12th in field of 30 at West Florida

By David Bradshaw
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The SIU golf team returned from its 10-day Southern tour with a 12th place finish in the West Florida Invitational at Gulf Breeze, Fla.

The tournament, played over the 7,180 yard Santa Rosa Country Club, featured 30 different schools, half of which were university division and the other half junior colleges.

Saluki coach Lynn Holder was generally pleased with his young team's showing. "Considering it was our first meet of the season and some of the other schools had a head start on us as far as competition and practice goes, I think we did pretty well," Holder said.

Another factor in SIU's showing Holder mentioned was the difference between courses in Southern Illinois and a course of championship caliber like Santa Rosa.

"The courses around here are short, around 6,200 yards, but championship courses like the one at Gluf Breeze are long. It takes time for a golfer to adjust mentally and get his confidence on such a course," Holder said.

The Salukis tuned up for the West Florida Tournament, which was won by Alabama with Kentucky second, with three days of intrasquad competition in Biloxi, Miss.

Low man in the tournament for the Salukis was junior Jay Wilkinson, who is SIU's current No. 1 man. Wilkinson carded a 237 over three rounds with scores of 78-77-82.

Brad Miller followed for SIU with a 80-77-84 for a 241 total. Al Diedrich had a 80-79-84 for a 243, Mark Durham an 82-78-82 for 242, Larry Giacone 84-81-86 for 251, and John Speroni 88-87-83 for 258.

"The scores might seem a little high," Holder said, "but we should make considerable improvement. This is a young team (only two lettermen) with good potential," Holder added. "Just how much improvement we make will depend on the weather and how much we are able to practice."

Holder will conduct intra-squad qualifying rounds Thursday and Friday, in order to give other members of SIU's 13-man squad a chance to break into the starting six positions.

The Salukis will then take off to the University of Missouri (St. Louis) Invitational Tournament on April 4, held at the Terre Du Lac Country Club in Bonne Terre, Missouri.

NIU's Jorgensen quits

DEKALB, Ill. (AP) — Tom Jorgensen has resigned as head basketball coach at Northern Illinois, the Associated Press learned Monday night.

Jorgensen, 38, said "I've lost my enthusiasm for coaching and want to go into business." Jorgensen this season led Northern Illinois to a 17-8 record and boasted a 21-4 mark the previous season. A product of Chicago, Jorgensen gained collegiate fame at Michigan, where he was an assistant coach before moving on to Northern Illinois.

Oakland to employ 9-man pitching staff

By Eric Prewitt
Associated Press Sports Writer

MESA, Ariz. (AP)—The Oakland Athletics' pitching staff was praised as the best in baseball after the team's 1972 World Series championship. It appears even stronger now.

"I think there are five good clubs in our division," says Manager Dick Williams. "But we're still the best."

The reason is pitching-so much of it that Williams doesn't know what to do with it all.

"It looks like we'll only carry nine pitchers this season," Williams says.

The breakdown should be four starters-Jim Hunter, Ken Holtzman, John Odom and Vida Blue-a spot starter who also can relieve, and four relief specialists. The bullpen is set, with Darold Knowles and Rollie Fingers returning and Horacio Pina and Paul Lindblad arriving in off-season trades.

Left-hander Dave Hamilton was last year's fifth starter and was 6-6 with a 2.94 earned run average as a rookie. Rob Gardner, another lefty, was joined the A's after recording an 8-5 mark and 3.06 ERA with the New York Yankees.

"It's going to be hard to find room for Gardner," Williams admits.

UCLA's Wooden seeks '74 crown

By Paul Lebar
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bill Walton was aloof but his coach, John Wooden, was talkative as usual.

Speaking with typical aplomb, the white-haired Wooden said his UCLA Bruins would indeed consider it part of their task to capture still another national collegiate basketball title next year.

"This has been a difficult season," Wooden acknowledged following the Bruins' 87-66 victory over Memphis State behind Walton's 44 points and superb floor play Monday night.

"But a great part of the difficulty involved the winning streak, the struggle to get to 60. Once that was passed, the pressure was off so to speak."

Wooden, whose title was his ninth in 10 years, called the championship a "a tremendous team achievement based on the great play of Bill Walton."

As if to emphasize the value of team play, however, he added, "No team has ever won the national championship or won the NBA title for that matter with the nation's leading scorer.

"When we go against the type of defense we found in the final game we'd be foolish not to go to him," the 62-year-old coach said.

Wooden, whose Bruins now have a 75-game winning streak unequaled in collegiate history, indicated the dynasty of his Westwood warriors may yet continue. And, touching a finger to the rim of his glasses, he dismissed with a trace of annoyance rumors that Walton, twice The Associated Press's Player of the Year by wide margins, would turn professional. "I have not lost sleep on the possibility that Bill will turn pro and will not," he said. "I have the feeling that he'll be back."

If that becomes the case, Walton would be rejoined by forward Keith Wilkes, labeled by Wooden "spectacularly unspectacular," and playmaking guard Greg Lee, whose lob passes helped Walton to his record spree Monday night.

"Next year we'll start out as though we've never done anything," Wooden said, a smile tracing his lips. "We'll have strict, discipline practices at the very beginning."

The overpowering Walton, described by UCLA Athletic Director J. D. Morgan as "actually a very shy person," signed autographs and talked with fans while limping from the Arena on a twisted left ankle Monday night.

But the towering redhead walked away from a group of writers gathered at the UCLA dressing room with the explanation that "I'm really in a hurry to see my friends. I have nothing to say."

Asked later to comment on his performance, he offered only, "My life as No. 32 for UCLA has ended for this season."

Walton during the course of the title game sank 11 of 12 shots in a 39-39 first half and all 10 of his field goal attempts in a dazzling second half.

Minnesota trades Perry to Detroit

LAKELA la. (AP)—The Detroit Tigers obtained former Cy Young Award winner Jim Perry from the Minnesota Twins Tuesday in a straight one-for-one trade for minor league pitcher Dan Fife.

General Manager Jim Campbell, who announced the trade, said Perry had agreed to the trade and is expected to report to the Tiger training camp here Wednesday. Fife, a right-hander and a former University of Michigan basketball co-captain, will report to the Twins' Orlando farm club, he said.

Perry, a 36-year-old right-hander, had a 13-16 record and 3.34 earned run average last year. He won the Cy Young Award as best pitcher in the American League in 1970 when he had a 24-12 record. His brother Gaylord won the award last year with Cleveland.

Jim's career record in 14 major league seasons with both Cleveland and Minnesota is 128-120. He has been on three All-Star teams.

Perry has won more games in his career than any other pitcher active in the AL. His 14 consecutive seasons in the league is also unmatched by any other active pitcher.

Southern netmen win, spin, swim

By David Bradshaw
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

An eighth place finish in Mississippi, a dual meet win in Memphis, and a lot of Houston rain sandwiched in between marked the SIU tennis team's southern trip during spring break.

The Salukis' first stop was the Big Gold Tournament in Hattiesburg, Miss. on March 16 and the result was an 8th place finish in the 11-team tournament for the SIU netmen.

The one bright spot for LeFevre's squad was Kristian Cee who battled his way to the finals of the number four division, before losing to highly-touted German Cuberos of Chile in three sets. Cee, a freshman from Elsen, West Germany, was finally defeated 4-6, 7-6, 6-4.

From the tournament sponsored by Southern Miss., the SIU squad moved to Houston Tex. just in time for the monsoon season. The Salukis were to compete in the prestigious Rice Invitational, a tournament LeFevre called, "the biggest in the U.S. outside of the NCAAs," but very little tennis was played by SIU.

"When we left we hadn't scored a point and it was still raining," LeFevre said. "It rained the whole time we were there and I doubt if the tournament will ever be finished. They tried to crowd in matches between showers, and instead of full matches they played eight game sets. It was impossible to tell anything under those conditions."

On the way home, the Salukis stopped in Memphis Monday and defeated Memphis State in SIU's first Scheduled meet of the year.

SIU defeated Memphis 6-3 as things started to fall in place for LeFevre's young squad which is composed of all freshmen. Memphis already had 11 matches under their belts when they played the Salukis and had defeated a strong Missouri team, according to LeFevre.

The match also marked the first appearance of the season for highly-toeted Wayne Cowley for SIU. Cowley, a 19 year-old freshman from Australia, moved right in as SIU's no. 1 man when he became eligible this spring quarter.

Against Memphis, Cowley knocked off the Tiger's number one man Phil Chamberlain in two sets 7-6, 7-6.

SIU's no. 2 man, Kevin Miller, won his match against Bob Leopold 6-2, 5-7, 6-1.

The Salukis lost the third and fourth positions as Dane Petchul was beaten by Davis Moser 5-7, 6-2, 7-6 and Felix Ampon fell to Jim Kallenberger 7-5, 4-6, 7-5.

In the fifth spot, Cee turned back Memphis's Scott Brown 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 and in the sixth position SIU's Martin Czerwinski beat John Nichols 6-2, 7-6.

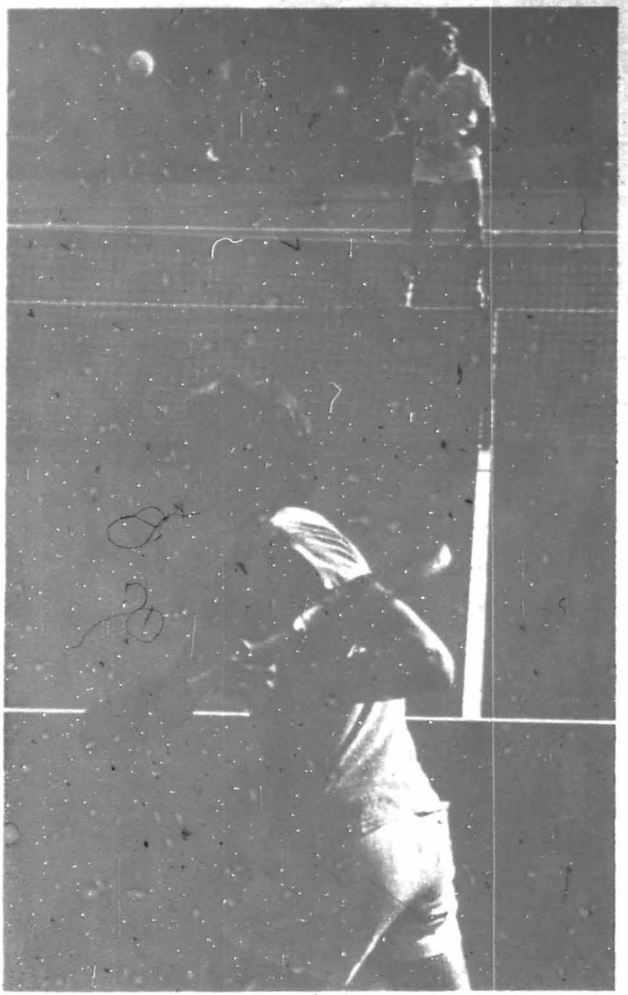
In doubles, SIU took, two of the three matches with Miller and Cowley downing Moser and Chamberlain 6-2, 6-7, 6-3. Petchul and Cee defeated Kallenberger and Leopold 7-5, 6-2 while Czerwinski and Ampon lost to Brown and Nichols 7-6, 7-6.

Fresh off the Memphis State win, the Salukis will take to the road again Thursday to compete in the Oral Roberts University Tournament held Thursday through Saturday.

"We should be able to tell more about how good we're going to be after this weekend," LeFevre said. "It's hard to evaluate a team when they're playing in rainy, windy and cold weather."

The ORU tournament will include 16 teams and will feature such schools as Missouri, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arkansas and Kansas.

The Salukis will open their 1973 home schedule next week, April 6-8, when they host a Quadrangular with Iowa, Ohio State, Northern Illinois and Kentucky.



Anyone for tennis?

SIU's Wayne Cowley (above awaiting return from teammate Scott Huguelet), won his first match of the season Monday against Memphis State after missing Southern's first two meets. Gymnasts share Olga's spotlight

It wasn't supposed to happen.

Chicago Stadium was to have been unoccupied Monday night, and the touring Russian women gymnasts would have already landed in their native soil.

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley, however, issued a last-minute plea by cable to Soviet premier Alexei Kosygin last week. In the process, a near-capacity throng of 16,000 flocked 1800 West Madison Street to witness an international exhibition of the sport as performed by the Russian women and Southern Illinois' men.

"The greatest thing...VIP treatment...ecstacy..." were some of the comments the Saluki gymnasts had about their brief one-day stay in the "Windy City".

The visit to Chicago by the 1972 Olympic team champions was not scheduled on the original seven-city tour. But Daley's request was mainly due to the attention given to Russian 17-year-old-Olga Korbut, winner of three medals in Munich.

Along with Olga and her five teammates, also competing were SIU's Gary Morava, Dan bruring, Ed Hembd, Dave Oliphant and Bill Anderson. Three others included Charlie Ropiequet, former Saluki Gymnast, Jim McFaul, junior-college performer who has signed a letter-of-intent to attend SIU next year, and Dave Butzman, an Iowa State grad who has been working out since last fall at SIU.

Meade said that, as 1972 NCAA team titlists, SIU had been invited to Houston's Astrodome on March 10 to perform with the Russian women. But a regional qualifying meet that weekend spoiled those plans.
