Board of Trustees expected to make decision on Orescinai, maybe Derge

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees is expected to decide the fate of SIU's No. 2 man, Danilo Orescanin, and, perhaps, of President David R. Derge when it meets Thursday.

The open board meeting is scheduled for 11 a.m. in Ballroom B of the Student Center. It will be preceded by an executive session at 10 a.m., in a million Room.

The board held a closed executive session Wednesday night and a special closed 24-hour session Saturday.

The board was expected to disclose Thursday the results of an audit of the reserve funds, a budgetary irregularity was discovered. Derge and Board Chairman Ivan A. Elliott Jr. announced the irregularities Feb. 28.

At the same time, they announced the resignation of Orescanin as well as executive vice president, vice president for the administration and campus treasurer, as well as his request for reassignment to a full-time teaching position.

Orescanin was responsible for the account with the $3,000 irregularity. Chief of Board Staff James Brown has said it was his impression the funds were used to purchase items in the form of invoices for University entertainment.

Derge said at the time of the announcement he approved Orescanin's request for reassignment as a professor of administrative sciences in the College of Business and Administration.

The assignment is subject to approval from the board.

Derge brought Orescanin with him when he assumed presidency in February 1972. Orescanin had been assistant to Derge at Indiana University in Bloomington and up to coming to SIU was named as Derge's executive assistant.

WIDB, student-operated radio station, reported Thursday night a source close to Derge's office had said:

"The alumni have the original case: 'he said. "It is the most important case in the country."

"The University's handling of the case will go unchallenged and used as a precedent. Lawler is the former president of the National Organization on Legal Problems of Education (NOPEL) and is a member of the special Faculty Senate committee.

"He had the wisdom of predicting and warning people that if this case go unresolved, it would be used as a precedent." Ms. Canul-Amoros said.

The Faculty Senate has maintained an active interest in the case since it began in July, 1971. In the past, it has set up inquiry panels to investigate the matter and passed resolutions dealing specifically with the case.

On July 25, 1972, it voted 22-3 with three abstentions, "to express again its conviction that this is an urgent matter, requiring the immediate resumption of negotiations on the part of the administration with Dr. Canul-Amoros."

The FEP&C public hearings into the matter adjourned last Friday after 46 days of testimony.

Ms. Canul-Amoros said 351 exhibits were offered on her behalf while 32 were offered by the University. 10 of which were duplicates of exhibits. Sixteen witnesses testified during the course of the hearings. None were called by the University.

After the last hearing, John Huffman, SIU legal counsel, Sylvia Roberts, Ms. Canul-Amoros' attorney, and FEP&C Hearing Examiner William Regas said they were not sure when the final decision would be reached.

Ms. Canul-Amoros said Tuesday she was sure she had won the case because the University had not defended themselves. She said all the transcripts of testimony with the exception of her own were done and she did not anticipate the court reporter taking more than four months to finalize.

She also pointed out that since her case began, at least eight women have filed similar charges against SIU with FEPC and more than 10 with FEWP some of those women have filed with both departments.

"The Department of Labor has done an investigation in foreign languages (at SIU) and find SIU in violation of the Equal Pay Act," Ms. Canul-Amoros said.
TRIPOLI, Libya (AP)—The Arab oil ministers ended a one-day meeting here last Wednesday, and a high Libyan official said they had decided to lift the oil embargo against the United States. The official added they would not officially announce it in Tripoli, however.

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat had pressed the Arab oil exporters for weeks before the meeting to lift the embargo in recognition of Egyptian efforts to obtain an Israeli withdrawal from the Suez Canal.

The Tripoli meeting ended at 11:30 p.m.—4:30 p.m. EDT—less than six hours after it began. Algerian Industry Minister Belad Abdessalem chaired the session. He is current president of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The Arab oil ministers' meeting was the third attempt to bring Arab oil producers together to consider an Egyptian-backed request for an end to the oil embargo.

The meeting was first scheduled for Feb. 14 but did not take place then because of Algerian and Libyan opposition. A meeting in Cairo last Sunday also was blocked by the two holdout nations.

The Arab meeting in Vienna will be attended by the ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, and will be held the next day, March 31.

The Egyptian-backed proposal is "entirely unpredictable."

After the meeting, Egyptian officials said they would lift the embargo and resume full production of oil.

White House criticism answered by Radisson

WASHINGTON (AP)—The chairman of the House Judiciary Committee said Wednesday everything it has requested from the White House for its impeachment inquiry is relevant and should be supplied.

Responding to White House criticism of the committee, Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., said the committee is prepared to subpoena the evidence if the White House refuses to supply it.

Rodino's hard stand in favor of the committee's request for evidence to proceed with the impeachment inquiry was fully supported by Rep. Edward J. Winterton, D-Mich., the committee's ranking Republican.

"The documents made to date are very reasonable," said Hutchison at a joint news conference. "With Rodino and White House should be totally cooperative with us."

The chairman of the impeachment panel said it was their hope a confrontation with the White House over the furnishing of evidence could be avoided, but that the constitutional authority to the committee is operating under leaves the White House no room to refuse.

"If the committee feels there is an absolute refusal on the part of the White House to provide the information, then, it will then, I'm sure, utilize its subpoena power," Rodino said.

In the meantime, said Rodino, committee counsel John Doar and Albert Jenner will continue to seek a solution to the problem with James St. Clair, Nixon's chief impeachment lawyer.

The news conference was prompted by statements Tuesday by White House Press Secretary Larry E. Speakes and by presidential counselor Bryce Harlow allowing that the committee's request for virtually unlimited access to White House files and documents was "not acceptable."

The leaders also seemed to be suggesting that the committee should be "split in two" with the White House refusing to give it any more evidence.

When the request was rejected by Rodino, Hutchinson and the two committee counsel.

Doar and Jenner also dismissed the possibility that there was any misunderstanding of the committee's request by the White House.

They said they met for 2½ hours Monday with St. Clair and Fred Buhddin, another White House lawyer, and discussed the request in detail.

"We don't know exactly what St. Clair knows precisely what we are asking for."

Hutchison said the White House suggestion that the committee define an impeachable offense before proceeding further would be a waste of time.

When the committee decide on a definition, Hutchison said, the members would not be bound by it.

"Every member, subjectively, is going to have to define it for himself, whatever he supports a finding of an impeachable offense.""

In a separate statement, Republican National Chairman George Bush said the committee faced a "serious confrontation" by making a blanket request for documents.

Rodino said he had received a letter from Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski of the evidence Jaworski had requested from the White House and had turned down Doar to describe the nature of the material.

The reluctance of the committee to make a joint statement with the White House was underscored by Rodino and Hutchinson in response to Doar's comment that "If a confrontation comes, said Rodino, "it will be because the White House initiates it. It will only be if there is an absolute refusal to permit us to come in and examine the evidence before Nixon should be required to give it any more evidence."

When she arrived, Mrs. Nixon said, "I'm going to enjoy it I'm sure. I love career women."

She seemed to be less enthusiastic after the display of military and police force that accompanied her march to the podium.

Students design generators to tap natural energy source

By Randy McCarthy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The goal is more power to the people—cheaply and without pollution.

Prototypes of three electrical generators to accomplish this will be on display up until the end of the quarter behind the Department of Design. The devices were built by students in the Student Environmental Design, Arts and Modern Society.

The machines generate power using wind and solar radiation. A fourth device, which uses methane gas gathered from manure, has been constructed, but isn’t being displayed.

Richard Archer, instructor of Design 360, called the devices a low technology way to convert energy into useful forms. "The prototypes need more research," he said. "But refinements and modifications will drastically increase the output" of the devices.

A parabolic reflector, a large, dish-shaped object covered with silver foil, focuses the rays of the sun to heat water and produce steam.

A windmill, 12 inches in diameter, also is on display. Project leader Don Johnson, said the device can produce 3,000 watts of electricity.

"Some day the wind that you cussed for blowing your hair and papers may be powering your house," Johnson said.

A solar water heater that catches sunlight to heat water also is being shown. Project leader Chris Robinson said the water heater uses a principle similar to "leaving an album inside a closed car in the sun" to heat trapped water and produce hot water.

A fourth device built by the students but not on display is a methane gas converter. Waste matter is fed into the machine and heated, creating methane gas that is filtered, compressed and stored for later use.

Archer said finding funding for the project is hard because few grants for low technology projects are available.

Person striking on information on building simple, energy-producing machines will find the data "almost nonexistent."

All four of the devices were built for less than $800, but could be done cheaper with used materials, Archer said.

"The Pyco Corporation is donating two prototype automobiles to the design department for conversion to electrically powered vehicles," Archer said. The vehicles, a small urban transit auto and a utility vehicle, will arrive Friday, Archer said. Work will begin to install a lawnmower engine in one auto to charge the batteries which drive the car.

He said a person while at work will be able to leave the engine running for hours to charge the batteries and supply the energy for the drive home.

F-Senate unit studies cuts, plans report

A committee working for the reinstatement of SIU's terminated tenured faculty should have a status report of the Faculty Senate "within a reasonable period of time," said John King, professor of higher education.

King, one of five professors on the committee, said Wednesday the committee "has had only one meeting and has not developed an 'action framework or a set of procedures' for the reinstatements."

While the committee hopes for some Board of Trustees action on the terminated faculty members, King said they will not do so unless the senate passes a resolution. The senate will meet Thursday, but no vote is planned.

"Moves toward a legal and fiscal compromise with the administration over the terminations will be left up to the Faculty Senate," King said. He said he would not elaborate on what form the compromise, allowing reinstatement of tenured faculty might take.

The committee has not decided on whether it would retain an attorney, he continued. "My colleagues and I said the committee has not contacted other groups or committees concerned with the terminations," he explained. "The committee is an injunction against the university to prevent other terminations from not being approached by the committee, he added.

King is appointed on the committee by Jack baskoff, professor emeritus of government; Eugene Lawler, professor emeritus of educational administration; Charles tenney, University Professor, philosophy, English, and George Adams, professor emeritus of history.

She said she will also discuss the future of the Student Welfare and Recreation (SWARF) which would fund the facility.

"We need to know how much the University is going to pay the students and how much the co-re facility will cost to operate," Ms. Yeargin said. "We need to know if the SWARF fund doesn't continue to build that facility,"

The Physical Education Department will probably be using the facility in the future, Ms. Yeargin said, but whether their use will impede the students' use remains to be seen.

"Students can't use some parts of the Student Center right now," Ms. Yeargin said. "There's no telling what will happen with the co-re facility."

Hot headed people
To the Daily Egyptian:
These days, you just don't fit in unless you're hip. I mean you just don't make it unless you're cool and get it together. Well, I can't think of anything less hip, or more uncool than what has been happening the past few days in the vicinity of the East Side Dorms, that being Brush Towers and University Park.

Some very un-hip, hot-headed people have presented a very uneasy racial situation that just doesn't cut it. How long must we continue to act like children, impulsively and foolishly out of blind rage and primitive ignorance? There is no place for learning, building, and understanding. A university is not a place for racial violence, or violence of any nature for that matter.

Most students seem to view the outside world as being messed up and bigoted. Well, here in our own little microcosm of the "real world" we've got to get it together and prove something to both the people outside our all-American university and also to ourselves. We've got to show that we aren't going to put up with any more hate. The lowest of four-letter words in the English language. We've got to stop acting like little children and take up the challenge that accompanies adulthood.

Many have never been able to accept this challenge and many of us probably will never will. But, if we are ever to have a decent world to live in, there just isn't any room for un-cool, un-hip people who hate.

Student Senator, East Side Dorm

Hart Schäfner & Marx
To the Daily Egyptian:
As members of an organization which stands for decency and the American way, we must protest the recent wave of nudity on our campus. Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, long a center of academic and artistic excellence, is fast becoming a circus of bullies, poseurs, perverts, openly airing their differences. We ask. Is streaking only the harmless fun it seems to be, or is it the manifestation of something more sinister, something that might be the result of a massive subversion of our student morals by a Communist contigent among us? Don't laugh. You say it could never happen in America. You say the Commissors could never get to our students here in Carbondale. They can and will if no one speaks out in their way. That is why we feel it is our duty to our Country and Alma Mater to formally protest the indecent extra-curricular activities of SIU Streakers.

We feel that streaking belongs in locker rooms and army induction centers where young Americans have good reason to be naked. After, if God had wanted us to run around in the buff He wouldn't have given us clothes.

Thank you,
Edward J. Will

Ministers take a stand
To the Daily Egyptian:
It is in the national interest to read that the few good ministers of Carbondale have finally taken a stand. After all, what are your congregations paying you for? You aren't an accountant and if they've heard it all about their decent Christian lives, that the human body is certain not to be a part of yours.

Will you cruise around in your comfortable cars to make sure that your parishioners are off the streets and in their churches? Congratulations! You've really earned your brothers' keep this year.

Hiring and firing
To the Daily Egyptian:
The University immediately declared its financial exigency three months ago, people have asked-- where can the funds be found to keep firing people? If you believe the sounds coming from Anthony Hall, the budget is trimmed to the bone, and any way we have too many faculty. While I don't think too many people are buying the contention that our budget is quite that lean, if we have the same number of students as last year, we have too many faculty and only one eye on the job, what are we paying for? As proof of this, a recent SIU budget reduction statement spelled out SIU's position in making sure that your parishioners are off the streets and in their churches. Congratulations! You've really earned your brothers' keep this year.

Hiring and firing
To the Daily Egyptian:
As a result of the University's declaration of financial exigency, the Chancellor's office has announced plans to reduce the number of full-time faculty members by 100. The decision was made after careful consideration of the University's financial situation, as well as the need to maintain a balance between teaching and research activities.

The cuts will affect all departments, with the exception of the College of Law, which has been granted an exemption. The impact on the University's ability to attract and retain top faculty members is expected to be minimal, as the University has a strong record of attracting and retaining excellent faculty.

The University has also announced plans to increase its emphasis on distance learning and online courses, in an effort to reduce costs and increase access to higher education. This change is expected to have a positive impact on the University's ability to attract and retain students, as well as on the overall quality of education offered.

Overall, the University is committed to maintaining its high standards of teaching and research, while also being responsive to the financial realities facing higher education institutions. The University thanks its faculty and staff for their dedication and commitment to the University's mission.
Nixon gets support on deductions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Roger V. Barth, former deputy chief counsel for the Internal Revenue Service, says he believes the President was correct in taking every possible deduction from his income taxes.

Barth also said White House memos in 1969 asking about possible tax deductions "were entirely consistent with the President's statement he was not intimately involved with details of his tax returns."

He saw the memos as requests for "sound tax advice" for the President.

"I think a fair reading of these memos would indicate the President was advising—on assuming a new office—would be thinking about the general subject of tax returns and tax affairs," Barth said.

Barth, who resigned from the IRS last year and now is with a Washington law firm, said he had never heard of a request from the White House to see tax returns of other presidents.

There have been news reports that such a request was prepared so that Nixon could get evidence for his tax returns based on what other presidents had done.

Barth said in an interview he is sure such a request never reached the IRS because he had checked with then IRS commissioner Randolph G. Tewey, who Barth said, had not heard of it either. "None of us would know about it," he said.

Barth, 35, said he has testified several times before the Congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, which is investigating the President's tax returns, but didn't know whether the President also was being investigated for tax fraud.

Barth added, "I can't conceive of the President being involved in any tax fraud."

Asked about presidential aides who helped prepare the returns, Barth added, "we his aides."

Economy boost anticipated when Mideast oil begins flow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deputy Energy Chief John C. Sawhill said Wednesday that the administration will release reserve petroleum supplies to give the economy a quick boost once Mideast oil begins flowing.

Meanwhile, President Nixon met with key advisers on energy problems and Arab oil ministers gathered in Tripoli, Libya, amid indications that an end to the oil embargo may be near.

The White House, however, played down the importance of Nixon’s meeting with his Emergency Energy Action Group. A spokesman indicated that there would be no important policy announcements unless the Arabs acted.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon and his associates discussed the impact of the oil shortage and the search for alternate energy sources.

Although Sawhill gave no indication when the five-month-old embargo might be lifted, he said one of the first priorities "will be to draw-down inventories to secure levels, so that we can release the energy supplies needed to support sustained economic growth."

Addressing a seminar on the oil crisis sponsored by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, Sawhill hinted that government audit of the oil industry by a task force from the Federal Energy Office and Internal Revenue Service may produce startling revelations.

After noon left, Sawhill defended the administration's efforts to deal with the energy crisis, saying they prevented economic disaster.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deputy Energy Chief John C. Sawhill said Wednesday that the administration will release reserve petroleum supplies to give the economy a quick boost once Mideast oil begins flowing.

Meanwhile, President Nixon met with key advisers on energy problems and Arab oil ministers gathered in Tripoli, Libya, amid indications that an end to the oil embargo may be near.

The White House, however, played down the importance of Nixon’s meeting with his Emergency Energy Action Group. A spokesman indicated that there would be no important policy announcements unless the Arabs acted.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon and his associates discussed the impact of the oil shortage and the search for alternate energy sources.

Although Sawhill gave no indication when the five-month-old embargo might be lifted, he said one of the first priorities "will be to draw-down inventories to secure levels, so that we can release the energy supplies needed to support sustained economic growth."

Addressing a seminar on the oil crisis sponsored by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, Sawhill hinted that government audit of the oil industry by a task force from the Federal Energy Office and Internal Revenue Service may produce startling revelations.

After noon left, Sawhill defended the administration's efforts to deal with the energy crisis, saying they prevented economic disaster.

ATHENS (AP) - If a sailor on shore leave dies while engaging in sex, it is considered an occupational hazard under the new pension, Greece's highest court ruled Wednesday.

The widow of a sailor who died of a heart attack during a one-night stand, a state court in Athens, had appealed against a lower court's decision that allowed his family to receive pension under a new law that defines "professional accidents." A navy court rejected her plea, but when she appealed her case to the nation's highest court, it reversed the decision.

"A professional accident, subject to compensation, can also be considered to have taken place in the preparatory period prior to the commencement of work, or after its conclusion, and always according to the peculiarities of the profession," the ruling stated.

"Under this interpretation and specifically referring to the naval profession, it is understood that this work requires long periods of separation from the usual abode of the ship, away from the routine duties assigned to his wife and family, and the need for his presence is such that he feels deprived," the court said.

Vet center looks for trouble

By Bill Layne
The Veterans Affairs Center is looking for problems. Any problem that a student veteran may have, whether it be a lost check, a need for dental help in locating a job, can be taken to the center.

"We've been 100 per cent immediately effective in solving the problems a veteran may have. That is, if a veteran comes in with a problem. Unfortunately, that is not always the case. We sometimes have to solve it for him right there in the office," said John Sheridan, counselor at the center.

The center employs 12 student workers and two full-time clerks. The center also employs one worker at the School of Technical Careers.

Besides helping students with financial questions, the center has also been 100 per cent effective in getting orders for summer camp recorded for veterans enrolled in school. Sheridan said.

"Fifty-six veterans at SIU last summer didn't have to go to summer camp because they were enrolled in school. We wrote letters and made phone calls in order to keep the veteran in school," he said.

Former lawmaker urges making SIU 'second jewel'

By Dave Storm
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"We need to make SIU the second jewel in the crown instead of the fourth or fifth. It will be lost if we don't get on the ball," former State Senator John Gilbert said Wednesday in his address to the Rotary Club.

Gilbert said SIU has lost the "second jewel" status - a title last held with Southern Illinois in the 1960s, and urged a return of the area service programs.

"In the 30's it was a team effort of Southern Illinois," Gilbert said. "It was the people's university. Everybody looked to SIU as the one thing to help the economic as well as the educational standards of Southern Illinois."

"But things have changed since then. The Higher Board of Education was organized, and drug raids have hurt the University's reputation," he said.

Gilbert said he was "appalled and amazed" at how much community support SIU has lost since 1967, adding that some people do not consider Carbondale streets safe after dark. "If we don't change this attitude, we'll have trouble gaining support in Springfield and throughout the state," he said.

"Asserting that SIU has some of the best departments in the country, Gilbert urged revival of some of the services programs dissolved after the $2.7 million fund cut and suggested strengthening the School of Technical Careers.

"Our School of Technical Careers is something we can be proud of," he said. "Ninety percent of our graduates from this center got hired immediately."

As for the firing of 104 teachers, Gilbert said, "With the reduction of students there had to be some sort of cut. The reduction of teachers was done - there was a change in direction. You can't take somebody out of the English Department and put them in the Chemistry Department.

Fuel officials to speak on allocation problems

Illinois State Fuel Allocation officials will discuss the problems of fuel allocation at a public meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Ramada Inn.

James Kinley of the allocation office opened the meeting and said that Friday morning that fuel distributors as well as the public who are either interested in allocation or having problems with Crab Orchard to be reopened for boat fishing

The eastern portion of Crab Orchard Lake will reopen for fishing from Friday. The area closed Oct. 1 to provide a sanctuary for migratory geese. He said a large number of geese settled in the area, but most have already abandoned the spot and started their flight south.

Frick said this past fall was the second season for an experiment prohibiting daytime fishing in the area. The purpose of the experiment was to investigate the effect of fishing from the banks of the lake on the habits of migratory birds.

Frick said daytime fishing seemed to have little effect on the geese, and that fishing would be allowed during the migratory season again next year.

Registration fee not enough

Bicycles cost city money

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The city of Carbondale has lost 40 cycles in a year as a result of the 2.8% bikes they have registered up to March 5, Police Chief Joe Dakin reported.

In a report submitted to the City Council on March 11, Dakin said that the cost of registering a bicycle is $1.40. This figure includes bike licenses and tags and the man hours involved in registering a single cycle.

As a result of the 40 cent loss on each of the bikes the city has lost a total of $11.40, Dakin reported.

There is a fee required by those licensing their two-wheelers.

Besides the monetary loss to the city, many of those having to register their bikes have voiced complaints, Dakin said. The complaints include:

- Many do not see the rationale behind the bike registration; therefore, they feel the fee is unjust.
- Many have complained that the $1 fee should cover a full year of registration as opposed to just part of it.
- Many have complained about having to register every year.

- Many do not like to bring their bikes to a registration center.

"It is obvious that the city cannot continue to license bikes in the present manner without continuing to lose money and aggravate the public," Dakin said.

In an attempt to rectify the problems incurred in the present bike registration program, Dakin has outlined a few possible recommendations.

To offset the problems of having to register yearly, Dakin has proposed a two-year plan. Bikes being registered for the first time in September would get a 1974-75 decal, in addition to the license plate.

The cost for this operation would be $1.50, Dakin said.

Bikes registered this year could take advantage of the decal idea, Dakin said. A cyclist said CCHS will give budget summary

The Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) administration will present a summary of the revised CCHS budget for the 1974-75 school year to the Board of Education at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Learning Center.

Also on the meeting's agenda is a consideration of salary adjustments for secretarial, clerical and cafeteria staff, and a discussion of the tentative school calendar for 1974-75.

have to bring in his registration card, get it stamped, pay $1.00 and get the decal. Labor costs and decal fees could be covered by the $1.00 he added.

By implementing this new approach, bike owners would not have to bring their bikes in as often and citizens would not have to pay yearly, Dakin said. He added that a more comprehensive information system regarding bike registration should be established.

Mike Norrington of the Security Office also feels that the present registration system has some kinks in it. SIU's problems in bike registration have paralleled those that the city has encountered, Norrington added.

Norrington said that there have been suggestions made to him in the areas of alternative registration emblems and extension of the expiration dates of registered bikes.

The recommendation for extension of the expiration period will probably be brought up before the University in administration in the future, Norrington said.

Security police would not comment as to whether they lose money on bike registration. As of Wednesday morning they had registered 2,440 bikes.

Norrington added that regardless of the monetary situation facing the University on bike registration, the idea behind the licensing and tagging of bikes is working. Registration does prevent thefts and aid in recovering bikes that have been stolen.

Workshop set on alcoholism

A day-long workshop on controlling and treating alcoholism at the community level will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. March 20 in the Student Center Auditorium.

The workshop is sponsored by the Southern Illinois Mental Health Clinic and the Department of Public Health and Emergency Medical Services.

Paul Dugas, consultant on alcohol abuse for the Southern Illinois Mental Health Clinic, and Joa Goodman, regional trauma coordinator for the Illinois Department of Public Health Bureau of Emergency Medical Services will coordinate the workshop.

Actress Mercedes McCambridge, honorary chairwoman of the National Council on Alcoholism, will deliver a luncheon address. A presentation on the Rockford community treatment program also will be given.

Dugas said Ms. McCambridge will tell the "story of her own battle.

Course to study people, education in Soviet Union

A course on education in the Soviet Union will be revived spring quarter by William J. Shelton, professor of education administration and foundation.

The course, which was offered several years ago but ended when the instructor retired, is designed for administrators, teachers and other qualified people who want to know more about people and education in the Soviet Union.

Shelton spent 20 years as a Foreign Service Officer and has recently completed a 15-day intensive study of education in the Soviet Union.

Education in the Soviet Union will be offered each Monday from 6:30 to 9 p.m. beginning April 1 in the Wilson Building.

and recovery with alcoholism." He said "the is a beautiful example of the fact that alcoholism is treatable, that people can and do recover from alcohol addiction to once again lead useful and productive lives with full restoration of their self-respect.

The Rockford program will be described by Dr. David Sisson, clinical director of the Stanger Zone Center for Alcoholism Treatment.

"Dr. Sisson is a highly esteemed expert on the subject, who appears regularly before legislative committees and educational forums to acquaint the public with the realities of the amount of alcoholism and alcohol abuse as they exist in our population today.

The workshop will feature films on the progression of alcohol addiction and the Toronto, Canada community detoxification program.

Mike Rainey, alcohol information director of the Illinois Department of Mental Health, will address the workshop about the need for community involvement and awareness.

Dr. Sidney Smith, a Carbondale psychiatrist, will speak on alcohol abuse among the young and will take part in a question and answer session.

Alcoholism is acknowledged nationally as our most neglected public health problem," Dugas said. "And it may very well be the number one cause of death in this country, particularly in those fatalities of people under sixty."

Registration for the workshop is $5. Payment should be sent to the Southern Illinois Mental Health Clinic, 9 South 12th St, Murphysboro, 62966.

The five-day walkout that started Aug. 17 has crippled production of meteological coal, which is necessary for the production of steel. U.S. Steel has already lost off 30,000 workers could be cut out of work by the end of the week.

Moore said Wednesday that he never believed the gasoline issue was the cause of the strike. He said he had been told that up to 50 percent of the men off their jobs want to go back to work.

A McDowell County deputy sheriff said the shootings of the two men and the woman occurred at a major mine where the entire work force wants to go back to work. However, as long as the pickets remain the miners will not work. Officials said five men were picketing the Keystone mine when gunfire started from the top of a hill.

When they started down a road, shots also came from the top of the hill, catching them in a crossfire. Authorities said Jerry Jenks and Ruby Castle, both in their early 30's, were admitted to a hospital in Welch, where Jenks was in critical condition and Castle listed as satisfactory.

New mathematics program set for recommendation

A recommendation for the adoption of a new mathematics program will be presented to the Board of Education of Carbondale Elementary School District 95 at its meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, in the Springmore School. The district's math committee will recommend the adoption of the Holt School Mathematics Program for kindergarten through sixth grade, and Holt's "Trouble Shooting Mathematics" for junior high students.

The program would replace the Comprehensive School Mathematics program currently used by the system.

Carl Jones, district assistant superintendent, will also comment on a survey concerning a Disruptive Child Workshop at the meeting.
Mike Robinson All-Big 10 for third year

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Robinson of Michigan State was named Wednesday's Associated Press Big Ten basketball player of the year for the third year in a row, allowing him to say he is the Big Ten's top three times.

Robinson, a 5-11 guard who was second in conference scoring after leading the league the previous two seasons, was only two votes short of being a unanimous choice. Hairton, a 6-7 center, was the Big 10's top rebounder.

Campy Russell of Michigan, the league's top scorer, was the only unanimous choice for the first team, which also included Steve Green of Indiana and Frank Kendrick of Purdue.

Named to the second team were John Garrett of Purdue, Candy LaPrance of Iowa, C.J. Kupce of Michigan, Quinn Buckner of Indiana and Rick Schmidt of Illinois.

The team was dominated by underclassmen. Robinson, Kendrick and LaPrance are the only seniors on the first two teams. Buckner is a sophomore and the others are juniors.

Russell, who led Michigan to a share of the Big Ten title with Indiana and a win in the playoff game, averaged 24 points a game in conference play. His best game was against Michigan State, when he scored 36 points, pulled 16 rebounds, and had seven assists.

Robinson's bid for a third straight scoring crown was damaged by an injury that caused him to miss one game and score only eight points in his first game after that. He still managed to average more than 30 points a game and led the Spartans in assists.

Hairton, the biggest man on a small Michigan State team, averaged 17.7 points a game and pulled down 14.2 rebounds.

Kendrick, a rugged 6-4 forward and an excellent leaper, averaged 19.1 points in league competition and trailed only Hairton in rebounding to lead Purdue to third place in the conference and a bid to the National Invitation Tournament.

Green, 6-7, averaged 17.7 points to lead a balanced Indiana to a share of the conference title. He shot better than 50 per cent from the field.

Rugby teams lose

Both the "A" and "B" teams of the SIU Rugby Club dropped games St. Louis.

The SIU "A" team lost 10-7 decision. Bob Jones accounted for the SIU scoring, but had to leave the game early because of a fractured rib. SIU played the rest of the game short-handed because of the "no substitution" rule in rugby.

The "B" team lost, 12-7, to St. Louis. All seven of the SIU points were scored by Jerry Mourning. The scoring came on a penalty kick and a recovery of a loose ball in the St. Louis endzone.

The Club's home game will be at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, March 30 against Ft. Campbell Ky.
ST.PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) - Bob Gibson is aching over all and complaining a lot, an optimistic sign for the St. Louis Cardinals.

"When Bob quits complaining, we get worries," said manager Joe Torre.

"The way he's grumbling, he may win 20 games."

In the Cardinals dressing room at Al Lang Field, the 38-year-old speedballer laborediously pulsed on his right hand wrapped white uniform.

"I hate spring training," he said with a mumble. "I know it's necessary, but I'd just as soon they did away with it. I never even get into it.

There was a scar on Gibson's right knee, a relic of thecartilage operation last season that sidelined him for 55 games, and the right thigh was thinner than usual.

The 6-foot-3 215-pound righthander rubbed his right shoulder.

"When you get 38, everything hurts," he said. "But it's the price you pay. You've gotta hurt."

Gibson is the bellwether of the Cards' 1974 personnel hopes; just as he has been for the last 13 years. The Cardinals were in four games for the lead of the National League division when Gibson wrrenched his knee sliding back into first base in a game against the New York Mets Aug. 25.

There was fear he would never pitch again.

On Sept. 27, he returned to the mound and beat Steve Carlton of Philadelphia 7-1, allowing five hits and one run in six innings.

"We couldn't stop him," said manager Red Schoendienst.

"We were afraid he might fall on his face. But Bob wanted to know quickly. He didn't want to spend the winter brooding."

"The greatest competitor I ever saw," commented Danny Musial, the Cards' second vice president, a great competitor himself.

"A freak of nature—he's terrific," added Torre.

Gibson, born in an Ottawa ghetto, suffered setbacks because of an insufficient diet. He once had an ear bitten by a rat.

His right leg was broken in the closing part of the 1962 season and the leg was cracked again in 1967 on a shot off the bat of the Pirates Roberto Clemente. He pitches with arthritis in his right elbow.

"Old Bob always bounces back," said Musial.

Gibson is building on that record which already is awesome. His 55 career complete games are the most of any active pitcher.

Jacksonville favors

Weiskopf, Crampton

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) - Tom Weiskopf and Australian Bruce Crampton, again playing with the power and precision that last season vaulted them to golf's front ranks, room as the men to beat in the $100,000 Greater Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament.

The 72-hole test begins Thursday on the 7,088-yard, par 72 Deerwood Country Club course with a bulky field of 156 chasing the $30,000 first prize.

Weiskopf and Crampton together totaled 11 victories and more than half million dollars in prize winnings last season but both had been fighting mild slumps this year.

That ended last week in the Doral-Eastern Open at Miami. Weiskopf had a share of the lead going to the last two holes of the tournament and Crampton made a key putt for par on the final hole to take a share of third place.

"The six months drought is over," said Crampton, who now has two strong finishes in a row and appears to be reaching the top of his game.

"My game is getting as sharp—if not sharper—than it was last summer," said Weiskopf, who scored the bulk of his seven 1973 triumphs in the summer months.

"I had just two bad holes all last week," he said. "It's just unfortunate that they had to be the last two holes in the tournament."

weisen returns from injury

Injured Saluki grappler Mark Wiesen left early Wednesday morning for Ames, Iowa to join teammates Don Stumpf, Andy Burge and head coach Linn Long for the start of the NCAA Championship competition Thursday.

Wiesen injured his left ankle during the first seconds of the 177 pound match with the University of Oklahoma's Mark Neuman, Saturday night in Norman.

It was at first believed that Wiesen's ankle had been broken or at least cracked. But SIU Athletic trainer, Bob Spackman said x-rays were taken in Oklahoma and they proved to be negative. Spackman described Wiesen's injury as a severe sprain.

Spackman did not rule out the possibility of the ankle being cracked. He said a crack doesn't usually show up until several days later. More x-rays will be taken when Wiesen returns from Iowa.

"The swelling is down, but the ankle is still pretty sore," Spackman said. "He's walking, but it's not very pretty."

Wiesen has worked hard all season and went into the Oklahoma meet with a 20-1 record. He had been the champion of the season.

Spackman said, "He wants to wrestle real bad, he's hoping for a miracle. I'm willing to bet he'll give it a try."

Wiesen qualified for the NCAA Champsionships with a first place finish in the 177 pound category at the Eastern Regionals two weeks ago. Wiesen defeated the top seeded wrestler at 177 pounds to gain the title. Wiesen went into the regionals unseeded. trainer.

"We're not the kind of team that can stop UCLA or Bill Walton," said Disher, whose return from a broken Notre Dame 10 days ago. "We'll do the best we can to contain them and hope our offense can carry us."

Notre Dame bounced back from that loss to wallop Austin Peay 108-66 in the first round of the NCAA tournament and afterwards, Peay Coach Lake Kelley was asked what it would take to beat the Irish.

"UCLA," he said.
