Civil service employees ask board to approve for unionization election

By Ray Urcel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
A representative of a civil service employees group said Monday that he will request approval of a collective bargaining election for civil service workers at the SIU Board of Trustees meeting in Carbondale next month.
Lee Hester, chairperson of the Civil Service Employees for Collective Bargaining, said, "All we're asking is that we be acknowledged for collective bargaining. We're asking for a fair, impartial, secret ballot."
A non-binding survey of civil service workers conducted by the group in February, showed that 554 of the 826 employees polled favored collective bargaining.
The trustees postponed action on the collective bargaining issue at its February meeting to obtain more information on the issue before taking action. The board scheduled hearings on collective bargaining for its April and May meetings in Carbondale and Edwardsville.

The trustees postponed action on the collective bargaining issue at its February meeting to obtain more information on the issue before taking action. The board scheduled hearings on collective bargaining for its April and May meetings in Carbondale and Edwardsville.

An estimated 1,200 civil service "range" employees would be affected by the collective bargaining election. Range employees are not unionized and work within salary ranges rather than receiving prevailing wages paid to similar employees. Salary increases are received through seniority or merit.

There are 10 job classifications which would be affected by the collective bargaining vote, Hester said. More than half of the workers in 101 of the 108 classifications voted in favor of collective bargaining, he said.
"We can see if they (the trustees) will accept the survey. We hope they will," Hester said.
Hester said the election would be conducted by the Illinois Department of Labor. If the board refuses to order the election, the civil service group may appeal directly to the Illinois Labor Board, although they would rather get approval from the trustees, he said.
Hester said he was lucky the board's support because it would make subsequent negotiations between the civil service workers and the University easier "because you have to go back to the (board) anyway whether you lose or win."
If collective bargaining is adopted, Hester said, civil service workers would have the right to representation of their own choosing.
"It's unfortunate that people who manage money have the president's ear for their sympathy. I know no way to change that," Hester said.
He said that a collective bargaining contract would give full salary increases, rather than the percentage formula currently used at SIUC. Hester claims that by using a percentage increase in civil service salary adjustments recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Congress fails to rewrite election law by deadline

WASHINGTON (AP)—The national labor relations board delivered a crippling blow to the budding union movement among young doctors Monday by ruling that interns and residents are not entitled to organize or strike under the Labor Relations Act.

The report of the attack comes at a time when UNITA is finding itself almost completely isolated from the outside world, as first staunch allies in states surrounding Angola sever their links and quietly shut their doors. Two Murphysboro men were bound over Monday for a jury trial in Jackson County Circuit Court after entering pleas of not guilty during arraignment on charges of delivery of a substance represented to be a controlled substance.

J. W. Fowler, 31, No. 71 Mobile Home Ranch, and Billy J. Crapps, 18, 325 S. 17th St., were charged with delivery of a substance purported to be crystal methamphetamine, also known as crank.

Testimony included at the Illinois Bureau of Investigation crime lab in DeSoto showed the defendant's office, third floor, Southern Illinois Enforcement Group (MEG) agent.

The agent testified in the preliminary hearing Monday that a confidential source had told him about a drug transaction scheduled to take place at Pizza King, 308 S. Illinois Ave. When he arrived, the source told him that Fowler couldn't come to the bar so he, the source and a friend of the source went to the trailer, the agent said.

The agent said he was introduced to Fowler and Crapps, and the men began talking about delivery of a drug.

Fowler asked the agent if he were still interested in purchasing a gram of crank and canabis, he said.

The agent said he told Fowler he was interested in making the purchase but not the cannabis, and they agreed on a price of $25 for the drug.

Fowler said he didn't have a driver's license, so Crapps picked him up to take his car and get the substance, the agent said.

Crapps and Fowler arrived at Pizza King about 10 minutes and produced an aluminum foil pouch of what was in front of Fowler, the agent said.

Circuit Judge Richard Richman set the trial for Fowler and Crapps for May 19 at 9 a.m. Fowler is free on $5,000 bond and Crapps is free on a reduced bond of $2,500.

Student given probation on negotiated guilty plea

A 21-year-old SIU student entered a negotiated guilty plea Monday in Jackson County Circuit Court on two charges of sale of heroin.

Premier Goodman, 100 S. Parrish, allegedly sold heroin to a different woman on Dec. 21, 1979, at a Southern Illinois Metropolitan Enforcemnt Group (MEG) agent.

Circuit Judge Richard Richman sentenced Goodman to three years' probation on each charge, to run concurrently, and fined him $750 plus court costs on each charge.

Robert Ellet, 17, of Grand Tower, was charged Monday with battery after he allegedly shot Henry Neal, 20, North Marion Street, Saturday night.

Rippe said the two men had been arguing and Hook shot Neal with a small handgun and then fled. Hook was arrested Saturday night by Murphysboro police.

He had a set of keys and was attempting to unlock cars belonging to Larry Kanum and Stephen Grossman, Rippe said.

Bond for Lawnicki was set at $1,000, returnable at 9:30 a.m. April 13.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) accused Israel on Monday of "Hilferite measures of suppression" as the Security Council began a debate on Israeli practices in the occupied territories.

Palestinian representative Zehdi Terzi said "prolonged occupation coupled with inhuman practices affecting the human dignity of the people" led to the present unrest among Arabs living in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of Jordan. He called for an end to the nine-year-old occupation.

Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog was scheduled to speak after Libya, Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

The council voted, over U.S. objections, to allow the PLO to participate in the debate with the rights of a U.N. member state, setting the stage to a direct confrontation between Israel and the PLO in the council.

Casting the lone vote against giving the Palestinians the same rights as a member at the council table, U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton declared that the move was a "conscious attempt to disrupt the rules of procedure.

Scraonton, in his first speech to the council since he replaced hard-hitting Daniel P. Moynihan as U.S. delegate, also said on Tuesday that he was "in favor of moderation on the Palestinian question. I have emphasized that he is objective only to the fact that the PLO was being treated as a member state and added: "That the subject of this concern to Palestinians is beyond question, just as it is evident that a comprehensive statement must answer the question of the future of the Palestinian people."

As was the case with Syria, Iran, Libya and the last time, France and Italy abstaining.

The Western Libya and the Western World are not interested in the West Bank, Jordan, Egypt, and the other Arabs by its "policy of living occupied Jerusalem into Israel."

Arab and other Moslem countries were expected to seek a resolution finding Israeli guilt of changing the status of Jerusalem, taking "measures of repression" against West Bank Arabs and desecrating Moslem holy places.

Recent Arab riots in the West Bank were sparked by an Israeli court decision a few weeks ago permitting a Jewish worship on Jerusalem's Temple Mount, site of two Moslem shrines as well as of King Solomon's Temple. On Sunday, however, the Israeli Supreme Court overturned the decision and upheld a police ban on Jewish prayer in the area.

Terzi sounded a note of compromise in his speech by refraining from previous PLO calls for the creation of a secular state in Palestine in place of the Yishuv.

Palestinian people determined to struggle

To the Daily Egyptian:

It has always been Israel's aim to portray the Middle East as a border conflict between Israel and the neighboring Arab states, neglecting the fact that the problem which is the Palestinian situation. Israel's aim coincides with the old and false Zionist myths which refer to Palestine as an 'unpromised desert' and a "land without people for the people without land.

The PLO, which is the only legitimate representative of the Palestinian people, has put the Middle East community on its feet after it had been falsely stood on its head by the Zionists.

The PLO has unmasked all Zionist claims regarding the non-existence of the Palestinian people. Nonetheless, the Zionist entity, "Israel" still continues to strive to frustrate the democratic state, for 'communities regardless of religion or race' as an alternative to the exclusivist Jewish state.

Humphrey: another Stevenson?

By Doug Anderson
Graduate Student Writer

With only five of this year's 30 presidential primaries over, no Democratic candidate has strongly asserted himself. Although former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, Indiana Sen. Birch Bayh and Jackson and Alabama Gov. George Wallace are being mentioned as top contenders among eight active candidates, none is considered a clear-cut winner.

This scrambled predicament points to a June 17 vote in the Minnesota Democratic primary that will ultimately revert to another man: Hubert Horatio Humphrey of Minnesota.

It won't be the first time the Democrats, after failing to produce a suitable candidate in splintered primaries, turned to a verbal non-candidate. This year's Democratic jousting is similar to 1952 when the party drafted Illinois Gov. Adlai Stevenson.

While a somewhat lackluster group of candidates struggled, Stevenson repeatedly told reporters and party faithful that he had no intention of actively seeking the nomination. Humphrey recently told Newsweek magazine, "I don't have any intention of entering the later primaries."

There is reason to believe, however, that the multiple-candidate Democratic field-for-all will end at the July nominating convention with a gesture toward a Humphry nomination.

The contest for the Presidential nomination is a power struggle. Primaries, a solid Democratic forum, help safeguard the selection of strong candidates. If the grueling process fails to produce a clear-cut choice, the party can always beckon the individual outside the active aspirants it believes to be strongest. It is unlikely that the annointed one would be inordinately pulled down.

Stevenson, empathetic prior to the 1952 nominating convention, has said he would not serve as a stopgap to be President. I have no desire to the office, mentally, temperamentally and physically," he said.

Compare Humphrey's remarks after this year's Massachusetts primary: "I don't feel the opportunity for me to be the countermander for this nomination."

Stevenson, slightly less forceful hours before he was nominated, told Gov. Henry F. Schricker of Indiana that he didn't want to be nominated, but "I can't stop Humphrey."

Comparing Humphrey's stance last week: "But no doubt that if the opportunity came to me to be the nominee of my party at the convention, I would be ready to accept, emotionally, politically and emotionally."

Though Humphrey is obviously more eager than the reluctant Stevenson, the similarities of mood and temperament are pronounced. But, the analogy stops here. Eleven persons were nominated at the 1952 convention; there will likely be a similar cluster of candidates in 1968.

Polls point to this. Recent Caucuses in Minnesota, where 40 delegates were chosen, indicated that Republican President Ford and son Humphrey would score highest.

A Louis Harris survey issued Dec. 19, 1975, indicated Ford was trailing Humphrey in popularity by a 52 to 42 per cent margin. According to a Gallup Poll reported Dec. 13, Humphrey was the first choice among Democratic voters for the nomination. He received 38 per cent of the sampling; Wallace was next with 20 per cent.

It is difficult to imagine Humphrey playing an inactive role in the 1976 election process. He was among the 11 men nominated for Presidency in 1962; he unsuccessfully sought the vice presidency in 1956; his bid for the Presidency in 1960 fell short; in 1964 he was Lyndon Johnson's vice presidential running mate; in 1968 he captured the Democratic Presidential nomination; and in 1972, financially exhausted, he failed to gain his party's Presidential endorsement.

This, however, is more than the unhappy tale of another might-have-been President; Humphrey is an experienced political warrior.

Primary politics are a rough and tumble proving ground. Only the fittest survive—and if a candidate reaches the conclusion that no active candidate has proven himself capable of entering the most hostile, competitive, political arena in America, it can look elsewhere.

The Democrats are likely to do so this year—just as they did in 1968. At Madison Square Garden this July, after the active hopefuls have beaten themselves to political pulp, the promised veteran from Minnesota will emerge—through the primary safety valve—as the fittest and most capable.

Rendleman lauded

To the Daily Egyptian:

Very often black people have occasion to protest bitterly about the actions of white public officials—actions which adversely affect the lives of blacks. Too seldom is there an opportunity to applaud official activities; commuting with whites to perform actions which produce positive results for blacks, we respond not with praise, but with the reaction, "This is no more than what should have been done."

I would like to depart from the usual reaction, and make a comment about some of the favorable actions performed by John Rendleman, the late president of SIUE. While a vice-president at SIU-C in 1968, Dr. Rendleman was accused of not being sensitive to the needs of black people. Instead of reacting defensively, he immediately hired a black assistant to keep him informed about concerns in the black community, both on and off-campus.

Dr. Rendleman also made a decision that year to see that more blacks were hired through the Civil Service system. He ordered the implementation of a 'learner' program, which allowed blacks to learn on the job. This helped circumvent the barrier of the culturally biased Civil Service examinations and interviews, which had traditionally excluded blacks from most Civil Service classifications. In 1969 Dr. Rendleman also started University support to the operations of the Southern Illinois Center for Research and Resources Center, which provided employment referrals primarily for black people.

When he moved to Edwardsville, Dr. Rendleman committed his administration to equal opportunities for minorities in all facets of university operation. Without any pressure from HEW or from civil rights organizations, he saw to it that blacks were hired in high-level administrative and academic posts, as well as in civil service positions. Initially he hired at least one black vice-president, a black dean of the School of Nursing, a black chief of Security, and many other blacks in positions of authority and responsibility.

Dr. Rendleman pledged that SIUE would provide services to the Metro-East area, and living up to that pledge, saw to it that the university supported continuing programs in predominately black East St. Louis. Students from predominately black high schools in the area have benefited from the SIUE Special Incentive Program, which provided academic support so that the inner-city youth had an increased chance of completing college. The program, with Dr. Rendleman's full support, has resulted in a high percentage of black students being able to complete their degree work successfully.

Being from a small, all-white Southern Illinois town, Dr. Rendleman probably had a good chance of growing up as a person with few 'sympathies for nonwhites. In his lifetime, he developed a humanitarian approach, and demonstrated a commitment to equality which is increasingly necessary.

I consider it a tribute to the memory of Dr. Rendleman, that he did "no more than what should have been done" at a time when many of his colleagues were taking a lot less to provide equal opportunity for blacks.
Faculty power must replace bureaucracy

By David Stewart

The term "college," my 10-pound unabridged dictionary says, "in Latin, collegium, which means a society of persons having common interests or corporate functions. Applied to educational institutions, college implies collegiality, a process whereby scholars are united in an institutional framework to pursue their disciplines."

But from the college, which means a society of persons having common interests or corporate functions. Applied to educational institutions, college implies collegiality, a process whereby scholars are united in an institutional framework to pursue their disciplines.

In the eyes of governor, collegiality, in theory, means that the real power resides in the faculty; the faculty decides the courses to be offered and the degrees to be conferred; it establishes educational priorities and goals and is freed from the mundane tasks of collecting fees, discharging for overload teaching and for summer-school teaching; it organizes the quantifiable data.

For the faculty the issue has another dimension, as well. Across the country administrators are talking about reorienting the university to teaching rather than research. This has a fine-sounding ring to it, but it signals the diminution of one of the traditional values of the university. The twin goals of scholarship and teaching have always been coordinate for university teaching. The university is not only a repository for established truth but a laboratory for the discovery of new truths. If the function of scholarship and research is reduced severely, or perhaps eliminated, the value of the university for society will be greatly diminished.

But from the administrator's point of view, scholarship is not "productive." It does not generate credit hours or expedite the processing of warm bodies through the educational factory. It is, therefore, an expendable item.

All across the country one can see the inevitable result of such thinking. Sabbaticals are increasingly rare, research is disappearing under the budgetary ax. All this is masked under the rubric of a re-emphasis on teaching, but from the faculty viewpoint this means larger classes, increased course loads, and even less time to keep current in the discipline for which its members were trained. Where is the discipline of anyone who is part of the system?

In the face of all this, one longs for the true collegium. But what would this be? It would require the ascendancy of the voice of the faculty and the refocusing of the resources of the institution on educational concerns, neither of which seem to be occurring where they are supposed to - in the new management class. Faculty members are surprised to discover that the public would prefer that its tax dollars go to the support of education rather than the administration. Students deserve small classes and attention to detail, not mega-sections and the depersonalization of televised instruction.

How can the voice of the faculty be heard? What is necessary to change the emphasis of the institution, seemingly dedicated to bureaucratic empire-building, back to educational concerns? If the contemporary college resembles a factory more than a collegium, then administrators should not be surprised to discover faculty members turning toward collective bargaining.

One of the criticisms constantly directed toward collective bargaining is that it transports an industrial model of labor-management relations to academia. Why not, if indeed the modern college administratively resembles a "knowledge factory"?

Collective bargaining in higher education has been around long enough for its effects to be judged. It has shown that it can alter the mechanism whereby the faculty's voice can have decisive influence on budgetary and planning decisions. When collective bargaining is in force, faculty concerns can no longer be ignored by administrators.

To be sure, collective bargaining is not a mechanism to undo the past, but it is a step in the direction of where faculty and administrators can sit down as equals to work out problems of mutual concern, there is at least the custom that with their professors, rather than the traditional spirit of collegiality might not be present.

Collective bargaining will not restore the collegium to education in the purity of its dictionary definition, but it is a step in that direction. Contractual collegiality is preferable to the present governance pattern of the educational factory in which trustees never encounter faculty members, administrators are so numerous that they do not constantly wonder why an educational institution does not devote more of its resources to education. As administrative personnel proliferate and faculty members are laid off in the name of economy, the traditional spirit of collegiality even among the remaining faculty members is naively assumed.

Maintaining the status quo and refusing to recognize current management trends in the university is naive. In the minds of an increasing number of faculty members, there seems to be no alternative to collective bargaining for those who want to restore the collegium to the college.

Song, dance group from Russia slated

The Don Cossacks of Rustov, Russia, a company of 80 singers, dancers and musicians, will be performing a program of traditional Cossack songs and dances 8 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium.

The group will be performing 23 different pieces during their program. Numbers will include "Folks on a Farm," "Don't Awaken Me Young," a comic song about a shepherd who forgets to watch his herd and loses all his sheep because he is dancing with his girl; "Winter Play," about the winter celebration in Russia featuring games, contests and snowball fights; and "Horse Herders," about the "tamburitschiki" of the company's region who are famed for their bravery, agility and running of the swift-footed horses.

The program has been called a "glimmering, colorful spectacle of physical daring, breathtaking adventure, lavish, costumes and resounding choral and instrumental accompaniment." The group is from the port city of Rustov, also known as the "Port of Five Seas," and bring the traditional songs and dances from this folklore to form the basis of their program.

Their first tour outside of Russia was Bulgaria in 1973. They have since performed in Poland, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

The dances have been staged and choreographed with the help of Soviet choreography masters Godenski, Khmelinskly and B. Kogoluy.

The ballet master of the Don Cossacks is G. Galperin and the chief choir master is L. Antipova. Other members of the organization's group are master-folklorist P. Shaposhnikov; concert master B. Gurtsov; and researchers Lomtsova Y. Shcherchenko, organizer of the orchestra, and A. Menezhan, trainer of the dance group.

Tickets for the performance, the first North American tour for the company, will be $4 and $5 for the general public and $2 and $4 for SIU students. A Central Ticket Office spokesperson said all of the $7 general public and $6 student tickets have been sold and only about half of the middle-priced tickets are available.

The tickets for the Celebrity Series event are at sale at the SIU Central Ticket Office from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday or at the door Saturday evening.

Leo Kotke concert planned for April 4

By Mike Hallen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Leo Kotke, recently named in a Triad magazine poll as Acoustic Guitarist of the Year, will appear in concert at 8 p.m. April 4 in Shryock Auditorium. Appearing with Kotke will be the Shawn Calvin Band.

The concert is being sponsored by and is a benefit for NORML (National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws). Tickets are priced at $4.50 and will go on sale 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Student Center Central Ticket Office. Tickets will be sold in a first come, first served basis only.

Kotke, who will appear unaccompanied, is the master of the six and twelve string guitars. He includes flat-pick, finger-pick, bottleneck and slide styles in his legendary live performances. He has nine albums to his credit, "Armillado" on the Takoma label; "Madlark," "Greenhouse," "My feet are Smiling," "Leverwater," "Dreams and all that Stuff" and "Chewing Pine," all on the Capitol label.

According to Buzz Talbot, Southern Illinois coordinator for NORML, there is a possibility that the concert will be simulcast on WVITU-TV, Channel 8 and WSUI-FM, 91.3.

"It all depends on ticket sales," Talbot said. "If we sell out the show in the first three days, we stand a good chance of getting the simulcast." We have to sell out, then the stations have to get set up and we have to get clearance from Kotke's agents and his record company.

Slashing knives, traditional costumes and intricate dance steps will be featured when the Don Cossacks music and dance group performs Saturday night at Shryock Auditorium. One dancer of the group exhibits his costume and knives.

CHICAGO (AP)—Terrence Fink's works are household items but he remains one of the country's most famous unknown artists.

Her designs include such things as paper puzzles, a weather indicator rabbit, patriotic green patches, and Tony the Tiger's reminders for a good breakfast.

There are careful restrictions by the cereal companies and Fink says she can't design a game which has bigger things, like engineering; from toy paint sets to real painting, and so on.

Fun is single and lives on the North Side with Cinnamon, her Irish setter, and Thomasine, her black Bichon Frise. Having no children herself, how can she generate imagination for her designs?

"We're all kids at heart," she said. "And, because of the prizes I design, I have to be in touch with all the latest kids' yokes. I get along very well with children. If I had any of my own, I probably wouldn't have time for the job."

Stipends for mini-sabbaticals available for full-time faculty

Full-time faculty members on continuing or permanent appointments may apply for stipends of up to $600 to cover the cost of one week mini-sabbaticals during the period between May 16, 1975 and May 15, 1977.

The Mini-Sabbatical Program was implemented last fall under a $30,000 grant from the University's Academic Excellence Fund. The objective of the program is to enhance the quality of instruction at SIU by increasing the individual creativity of faculty members.

James C. Smith, chairman of the Department of Electrical Sciences and Systems Engineering and initiator of the program, said $17,000 is currently available for approximately 35 awards.

Smith said 34 mini-sabbatical awards were made at the end of fall semester. About 72 faculty members applied for the awards, he said.

Applicants must submit six copies of a mini-sabbatical proposal through their department chairman and college dean to the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research. The proposal must be received by the vice president by April 2, 1976.

Applications must include a statement of the purpose of the mini-sabbatical, a budget, a statement from the department head and a complete vita. All made prior to the end of spring semester. Grants will be distributed to the department on the basis of merit, with efforts made to ensure an equal distribution of awards among colleges.

Administrator tries to reduce hospital costs

By Chris Grodkiewicz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"My intent is to make the hospital physically sound and to reduce costs of hospitalization to make it cheaper for the patient," said George Maroney, administrator at Doctor's Memorial Hospital, about his review of hospital operations and costs.

Maroney, who has been administrator since Jan. 26, said it is his job to monitor and balance out operations. He has already reviewed several of the 22 departments in the hospital.

Maroney said he makes adjustments if he feels an area is overstaffed or to reduce operating costs. He said he's not replacing employees who resign.

Maroney laid off two dietary employees about six weeks ago, who worked the night shift in the cafeteria. He said that previously an employee was there to collect money for the packaged snack items. Now the same service is provided, but night employees put the money in a box instead. Maroney said this provides comfort, but does it economically.

Maroney said that in his review of hospital operations, changing conditions may warrant an increase or decrease in departments.

Maroney was formerly assistant and associate administrator at St. Louis City Hospital for four and one-half years.

Cross-country horse race lures people away from jobs

KANKAKEE, Ill. (AP)—From Sacramento, Calif., to Carbondale, Ill., to Great American Horse Race, a 2,500-mile distance covered in 10 days by 21-year-old Randy Scheiding.

"This is absolutely unbelievable, a wonderful combination between the horse and the distance," Scheiding said. "The horse’s stamina is incredible," says Scheiding, a 1961 graduate of nearby Monroe High School. "It’s the race back East and back West, because it goes across the state of Illinois.

And bonding and Charles R. Waggoner of Philadelphia have worked on the Great Race since February 1975. Waggoner quit his job as a vice-president of sales and Scheiding dropped his horse as an advancement to work in the extraneous.

Suddenly everyone is interested, and the enthusiasm is incredible, Scheiding said in a telephone interview.

KANKAKEE, a community of 30,000 located 40 miles south of Chicago, has been named the official headquarters for the race, and city fathers have proclaimed June 28-July 4 Great American Horse Race Week.

"This is not connected with the Bicentennial," Scheiding emphasized, because everything else planned the race would be one of the biggest events to be staged in the Bicentennial year.

A maximum of 250 riders have signed up so far; two with two steeds each will gallop toward the summit on Memorial Day, leaving the National Museum of Racing in Saratoga Springs in the dust.

For 36 days, including 36 said set aside for rest and relaxation, the riders will race west to California along the backroads of 13 states. Scheiding said the route will take the riders from Saratoga Springs through Lima, Ohio; St. Joseph, Mo., and Cheyenne, Wyo. to an historic trading post in Sacramento.

Competitors will travel 55 miles a day and the winner will be the rider who completes the trip in the least amount of time.

"By the Fourth of July we hope they’ll be somewhere west of Springfield, between there and the Iowa border," Scheiding said.

But why the race?

"That’s the best part," Scheiding said with a chuckle. "People have quit their jobs to do this, they really believe in it. It’s a commitment, but it’s a commitment to do something for the country.

The racers also compete for prizes totaling $50,000 including $20,000 for first place. But the money will come from a $500 entry fee per rider. Each entrant also must pay $5 for each day he remains in the race.

The first public announcement of the Great Race was made in New York last month, at a Madison Avenue restaurant called the Cowboy. Scheiding said persons planning to enter the race include riders from 48 foreign countries.

Population Institute plans student internship program

Internships offering grants up to $600 plus travel and research expense are available from the Population Institute of Washington, D.C. for students interested in working on population growth and environmental issues.

The Population Institute is a non-profit organization concerned with population problems and other issues affecting the quality of life. It seeks to evoke positive response from key leaders in society in helping to balance population growth with resources.

Students who participate in the internship program will work closely with state legislators and agencies in researching and analyzing population-related issues, policies and legislation. While continuing to attend regular college or university courses, the intern will also spend part of each week, 10 to 12 hours minimum, with their sponsoring agency, meeting with other groups and individuals, doing research, writing and making periodic trips to the state capital. Each intern will arrange for academic credit for the internship with a faculty adviser.

Generally, internships run from September through May or June, but summer programs in selected states will be available. The program outline is flexible and alternative approaches to research of population policies will be considered. Project states will be selected in late spring on the basis of available placements. Illinois is one of the many states currently under consideration.

Application deadline for the September, 1976-May, 1977 program is April 30. Applications for summer placements are due by April 1. Students interested in applying should request application forms from David E. Baker, Director, State Student Intern Program, the Population Institute, 110 Maryland Avenue, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20002.

Applications are now being taken for summer and fall.

Placement director calls employment picture better

Although a recent employment salary and study program paints a bleak picture for this year's college graduates, efforts at the SU Career Planning and Placement Center (CPPC) believe the job are out there and students have to learn how to find them.

Harvey S. Ideas, CPPC director, said figures by the College Placement Council (CPC), which indicate a drop in job offers of 16 per cent for bachelor's degree candidates, 25 per cent for master's candidates and 32 per cent for the prospective Ph.D.'s, may be misleading.

College recruitment is down nationally and campus recruiters for women is up for men, it is down 13 per cent. While things looked best for women have received between 1975-76. At that time, things looked best for engineering and MBA candidates. In current report is for women have received 27 per cent more job offers than at the same point a year ago, while the number for men has decreased 26 per cent. At the master's level, the volume for women is up 36 per cent, for men, it is down 13 per cent. While offers to women increased, they still represent just 16 per cent of the total at the bachelor's level and 15 per cent at the master's.

Ideas recommends that students "major in themselves," know their skills and abilities, be ready to go anywhere, and be flexible about employment possibilities. "Don't think we can do anything about the supply and demand situation," Ideas said of the job market. But he does believe that students job-searching techniques and opening their eyes to employment alternatives that will provide them with the tools to find a job.

Ideas said students must "understand the hiring processes of firms today and then use their energies to get jobs. Some students may not work in their field of study immediately and they need to realize the kinds of employment problems they may face upon graduation. They should consider optional occupations which in some way may be related to their studies. "I would urge any unsure students to get with faculty members and advisers to study the outcomes of their college program," Ideas said.

The SU center offers a series of job searching workshops which acquaint students with possible occupations, interviewing techniques, resume letter writing and resources which can assist a job hunter, Ideas said.

The next placement workshop is scheduled for April 3, according to Ideas, and anyone interested should contact Gordon Plumb at the center.

Six-week assertive training series to be offered at Washington Square

By Chris Gronkwiks
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The first in a six-week series of assertive group training workshops will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Thursday in the second floor conference room of Washington Square A.

Each class will be divided into a new assertive training for three weeks, emphasizing that this is not a skills workshop and not a therapy group. Students must participate in an "honest and direct statement of your feelings or ideas." It could be harmful if a new skill or way to interact effectively. This is the question of non-assertive behavior, which is not stating your feelings, and aggression, which is stating your feelings in such a way as to hurt another.

Aggressive behavior may end in a person blaming or attacking someone. May said that assertive behavior respects the other person as well as yourself by not putting down.

May said the focus of the workshops will be working on individual assertive situations, such as a student being afraid to speak up in class. She said the group will be fun, supportive and developmental.

Participants will discuss the differences between assertive and aggressive behavior, what situations they want to work on and change, the rights that all people have in their lives and interpersonal communication. The group will also discuss blocks that keep people from being assertive, such as feelings of suppressed anger caused by not being a good pupil another's feelings.

May said the workshops, which are open to everyone, are being offered again because so many people ask for them. There have been waiting lists of 20 to 30 people all year, she said.

The 1975-76 intramural basketball season was definitely a break for all concerned. Early spring break was probably the best season ever. Larry Schaefer, coordinator of the Office of Recreation and Intramurals said: “It was an outstanding season.”

Schaefer said, “both in terms of the teams competing and the tournament at the end of the season.”

There ‘were more good teams this year than in the past”.

In previous years, there were only a few good teams, but it was difficult to determine a favorite this year because of all the outstanding teams, he said.

A lerry, graduate assistant in the intramural office, is usually able to pick the league favorites at the beginning of the season, but he waited until the semi-finals of the playoffs before picking the Suns to win the basketball championship.

And on March 11, the Suns won the championship, scouting the Blues 60-35. The Suns finished the season 12-2.

The Blues were cold from the field, and could not play their game, as the Suns held the Blues high scorer, Bryant Wright, to 14 points, with only five in the first half.

In the second quarter, the Blues only scored four points, and were down 31-11 at halftime. They came out gunning in the second half, but because of their cold shooting, they fell even farther behind, 51-27, with six minutes left in the game. With the loss, the Blues final record was 9-1.

The Suns had a balanced attack in the game with four players scoring in double figures.

The best team would be the Blues, he said.

Spearchucker leads thinclads

To Track Coach Lew Harty said in a newspaper column, he would put Bob Roggy on Page 1 of the local newspaper.

The sophomore javelin thrower from Hattiesburg, Miss., broke his own record twice in capturing first place finishes in both the men's and women's divisions at SIU's southern trip. Roggy qualified for the NCAA outdoor meet by beating the qualifying standard by 10 feet and four inches with a toss of 204-11.

"The greatest thing we had," was Bob, "but not completely unexpected, was the wind."

Hartog said of the first outdoor meet with Southwestern Louisiana in Lafayette March 16, "We were not mentally prepared for that kind of weather.

"Even with the wind, Roggy heaved the Javelin 228-4 to win the event. That broke the school record but it was short of the NCAA qualifying mark.

SIU won 11 of the 16 events at Lafayette but the men's team was particularly excited.

"I generally felt like it was a typical outdoor beginning. I was really pleased about Roggy. For the rest of the guys it was just an average meet," Hartog said.

The Salukis had four 1-2 finishes and one sweep of an event against Southwestern.

"George Haley and Andy Roberts were 1-2 in the 128-yard high hurdles. Mike Kee and Mark Monroe took the top two spots in the 100-yard dash. Gary Hunter won the pole vault and Mark Kramer took second. In the high jump, Kim Taylor Roggy won with leaps of 6-4.1.

Kee led the sweep of the 220-yard dash. Mike Monroe finished a tenth of a second behind Kee at 21.8 and Joe Laws was a tenth of a second behind Monroe.

Other SIU first place finishes were by Pat Osk in the mile, Earl Biglow in the 440-yard dash, John Marks in the discus and Philip Robins in the triple jump.

The first places were nearly as frequent in the triangular meet at Northeast Louisiana State Friday. The Salukis claimed 15 firsts and 133 points; Northeast Louisiana was second with 71 points; East Texas State was a distant third with 60 points.

"Northeast Louisiana is a stronger team, and I mean much stronger (than Southwestern Louisiana)," Hartog said.

The Monks, he said, were playing up SIU's win as a "happy homecoming" for Hartog since he coached there three years before coming to SIU.

"We had some headlines in that one," he said of the meet. "Roggy was again the SIU mentor's top story.

On four throws, the sophomore spearchucker improved the distance each time. His second throw of 207 feet broke the still fresh record set three days before. On his next throw, he improved his record by a foot and four inches. The next throw was two feet better at 209.

Roggy's last throw measured 205-6 but did not count because he scratched when he stepped on the box.

"That already surpasses what I'd hoped he'd throw," Hartog said. "It should be the leading throw in the country."

Roggy didn't capture the entire spotlight though. Junior pole vaulter Hunter led a 1-2-3 sweep of the pole vault with a school record vault of 17.4. Kramer took second. Clay DeMattie and Mark Gonzal were third and fourth.

Kee, a freshman from Boston, also earned Hartog's praise when he won the 200-yard dash with a wind-aided 9.3 timing.

"Kee for the first time to me looked like a real blue chip sprinter," Hartog said.

The Saluki weightmen, Stan "Podulski and John Marks, were also subject to Hartog's accolades.

Other winners for SIU were Roberts in the 120-yard high hurdles, Baisse in the 100-yard run, Rick Krock in the long jump and Phil Robins in the triple jump.

Jack St. Jean led a trio of Salukis in the three mile run with a first. Pat Osk took second and Mike Taylor was third.

Swimmer named All-America

Candy Miller didn’t shave her head but the SIU swimmer did come back from the AIAW nationals at Ft. Lauderdale last week with All-America credentials.

The five-woman Saluki team scored five points at the tournament all by Miller in the 50-yard backstroke.

Miller finished 12th in the event with a 28.7 clocking. The six points meter for each event are deemed All-Americans.

She swam her best in the event during the spring break, but the Salukis were eliminated by Houston’s second round in the very next round to Houston’s.

She achieved a 29.2 clocking record of the University of Florida’s Bonnie Miller finished 12th in the two relay teams, the 400 and 800-yard freestyle.

The winner really disappointed. I think she peaked at state, plus she was sickly during this time’s.

At the Big Gold tournament, SIU enjoyed considerably more success. The Salukis achieved second at the Missouri Valley Conference, Oklahoma State.

The tournament was divided into flights; each player assigned to a flight according to his record and ability. SIU sent seven players to Oklahoma State and eight to the "circumstances," Lefevre said of the trip.

"This is the first year we have had so few upper classmen. No matter how you cut it, freshmen are still starting to come along. But they’re starting to come along. They realize how much improvement there has to be.

The Salukis have the week off and will open their home outdoor schedule Saturday when they host 6, 7-5, 6-0.

As a result, the Missouri Valley’s newest member Indiana State.

The following week, SIU travels to Memphis State for a tournament that includes Middle Tennessee and Tennessee Tech. Three weeks away is a big tournament that will feature the top teams in District Five of the NCAA-SIU, Oklahoma State, Oklahoma, Oklahoma City and West Texas State.

Netters split on Southern trip

SIU’s tennis team traveled over a good part of the United States during the spring break, but the tennis players still had the inside of its van than the tennis courts.

Coach Dick Lefevre said the team traveled close to 2000 miles on its journey to Louisiana State University, Louisiana Tech, Hattiesburg, Miss. and Houston, Tex.

The Salukis had mixed success on the trip. They lost a dual match to Lufkin 4-6, 6-2, Monday and beat Rice 6-2, Wednesday.

They lost to Hal Gorman 7-6, 4-6, 6-3.

The trip was the first year we have had so few upper classmen. No matter how you cut it, freshmen are still starting to come 3.

Weaver takes Georgia Tech AD post

Doug Weaver, SIU's athletic director for six years and football coach for two seasons, is on the move.

The appointment is reportedly effective July 1.

Weaver will succeed Bobby Dodd as Georgia Tech athletic director.

The top five finishers in each event at the SEC indoor championships March 11 and a lifetime college-coaching record of 11-7-2.

It was at Kansas and UCLA that Weaver took on the assistant position under present Georgia Tech Coach Pepper Rodgers. It has been reported that Weaver was attracted to Georgia Tech by Rodgers, whom he had recommended for the athletic director position.

"I'm here to produce and I expect to produce," Weaver said at the press conference. "If I don't produce, I won't be here. It's been like that everywhere I've worked."

Weaver had been athletic director at SIU since Feb. 18, 1972. He succeeded Donald Boydton in that position after Boydton stepped down as head of intercollegiate athletics after 15 years to become athletic director as chairman of the health education department.

George Mace, vice president for university relations, reportedly called Weaver the best athletic director in the country in the wake of Weaver's announcement that he would go to Georgia Tech.

Applications for a replacement for Weaver will come through Mace's office and the Intercollegiate Athletic Advisory Committee will screen the applications.

If no replacement is found before Weaver leaves, it is believed that present baseball Coach Bill Brown will serve as acting director until a permanent replacement can be found.

It was Mace who reportedly went to Weaver at the conclusion of the 1975 football season and suggested that Weaver resume a position as full-time athletic director.

Jones shakes up lineup as diamondmen return

By Dave Wieczorek

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Juni Jones, SIU's head baseball coach, has never been one to mince words.

He was true to form when he commented about the team's recently completed trip to Florida.

"The senior afternoon as he put his team through fielding drills at Abe Martin Field. He was 'true to form when he commented about the team's recently completed trip to Florida.

"We just clutched up and threw the ball away," Jones said.

Fiala, who was the most valuable player at the national junior college championships a year ago, had two bad throwing errors and was moved to third base, but after several throwing errors he was moved to first base.

Jones said he did not have much to offer in the way of an excuse for the Salukis poor throwing.

"We just clutched up and threw the ball away," he said.

As a result of the poor defense, Jones made several lineup changes.

Niel Hodges of Moline, a reserve infielder, was the most valuable player at the national junior college championships a year ago, had two bad throwing errors and was moved to first base.

Senior catcher Frank Hunsker was dismissed from the team before the Valley ended July 3, and Matt Curry, who started at third base, is going to try his hand at catcher.

"Sophomore Rick Murray was moved in from left field to play third base and Wayne Bieger and Jim Reeves got some added time in the outfield.

Veteran senior catcher Frank Hunsker was dismissed from the back to the plate for SIU. Bradley, Drake, New Mexico State, Tulsa, Wichita State, West Texas State and Indiana State, which joined the Valley March 10.

The decision of Creighton University to reaffiliate with our Conference is certainly welcomed by our members," said Dean Orville Noudth, Bradley faculty representative and president of the Conference. "As an educational institution, Creighton is beyond reproach and athletically, Creighton has enjoyed great success, particularly in basketball, over a long period of time."

Notbofh is speaking from a somewhat lame-duck position, considering the rumors circulating that Bradley will drop out of the Valley to join another league up north.

Creighton's intercollegiate program includes baseball, football, basketball, men's and women's tennis and golf. Over the years, basketball has been the prestigious sport for the Bluejays.

The transition to full conference membership will begin immediately, Representative of Creighton, which is in Omaha, Neb., will participate in the spring meetings. The baseball, tennis and golf teams will begin competing for conference championships next year.

Basketball will be scheduled at the earliest date possible.

During its previous tenure in the Valley, Creighton won three basketball titles and tied for five others. In addition, the Bluejays finished second five times. Creighton has been on SIU's schedule several times in recent years.

This past season, the Salukis competed in the Creighton Classic.
