Committee votes down Halloween

By Kathleen DeBo
Staff Writer

The Halloween Core Committee has voted unanimously to recommend Halloween Fair Days for 1989 be eliminated.

At its Thursday meeting, the Core Committee also decided it will formally recommend the repeal of all Halloween Fair Days ordinances at the April 18 meeting of the Carbondale City Council.

Ed Hogan, Carbondale Police Chief, said Halloween Fair Days ordinances legally close Grand Avenue and part of Illinois Route 51 and permit bandsstands, booths and public consumption of alcohol by persons of a legal drinking age.

The committee also voted to urge the University and city to immediately create alternative activities for Halloween.

Suggestions for alternative events included student dances and activities requiring student identification cards for admission.

"We can't eliminate Halloween," Sam McVay, Core Committee chairman, said. "We need to get rid of the drunken insanity that is an absolute disaster waiting to happen."

Jeff Doherty, interim city manager, said underage drinking leads to a negative image of the University and the city.

"It's a real problem," Doherty said. "We've struggled with it for 12 years. We've taken steps to make it safer. That's what Grand Avenue is all about. People are saying 'look at alternatives.' That hasn't been a real success."

Doug Diggle, owner of Old Town Liquors, said, "People say we can stop it if we want to. I'm not sure we have that much control over a spontaneous event. My gut reaction is no."

Doherty said the celebration is an event that was allowed to happen and a couple of years of transition will be needed before people get the message that the Halloween street party has been eliminated.

FAA warns of possible hijacking

LONDON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration has issued a warning that three Palestinians may try to hijack a U.S. passenger jet in Europe. U.S. officials said Thursday.

An FAA memo dated March 17 and obtained by the newspaper The Daily Express names the three men, believed to be traveling on forged passports, and warns all airlines and security forces in the United States, Britain and Europe to be alert.

The report said U.S. military personnel and diplomats had been advised to "alter routine plans" to return to the United States from Europe for the Easter vacation.

In Washington, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the FAA issued a security bulletin on March 16 about "the possibility of a hijacking of a U.S. airliner in Western Europe." The advisory mentioned no specific time frame, airline or airport, he said.

To avoid attaching any unusual urgency or credence to the potential threat mentioned in the bulletin, Fitzwater said the FAA did not issue specific warnings to U.S. government or military personnel.

Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner vowed to track down the person who leaked the security bulletin to the news media, saying such a leak could compromise U.S. intelligence and risk the lives of airline passengers.

Skinner also denied that only

Library to face censor query

By Miguel Alba
Staff Writer

An attempt to bring "controversial" books to Morris Library is being planned by an Undergraduate Student Government official days after his effort to ban Satanic Verses failed.

A resolution to ban Satanic Verses, the controversial novel by Salman Rushdie, failed to be considered by the USG Wednesday night.

Larvester Gaither, USG vice president and co-writer of the Satanic Verses book ban, said he will present a list of books he claims to be controversial that the library has refused to purchase. He said he will submit the list along with a student petition in support of the books at the next USG Senate meeting, April 5.

Gaither would not identify any book on the list, but said he is testing

Wage hike would affect area hiring

By Jackie Spinner

Carbondale customers may be picking up the tab if President Bush signs a law to increase the minimum wage to $4.55.

The U.S. House voted 248-171 Thursday in favor of increasing the minimum wage rate from $3.35 to $4.55 by October 1992.

New business owner Sonia Riggs said Wisely Florist 216 S. University, would be stretching dollars if the wage increase goes into effect.

"The increase has to

She added that a new delivery truck, cooler and remodeling may be delayed if employee salaries increase.

"You cannot raise a wage by $1 and not boost stuff up in some way," Riggs added.

New fusion reaction conserves energy

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Chemists reported Thursday the creation of a safe nuclear fusion reaction using common sea water at room temperature rather than a high-radiation nuclear furnace.

Although the applications of this form of nuclear fusion were not immediately evident, the scientists noted that the energy available in one cubic foot of sea water is equivalent to 10 tons of coal.

The simple and inexpensive process, ignored by nuclear physicists, was developed over 15 years by Martin Fleischmann, electrochemistry professor at England's University of Southampton, and Stanley Pons, chairman of the University of Utah chemistry department.

"We have successfully created a sustained fusion reaction at room temperature in a chemistry laboratory at the University of Utah," Pons said.

Conventional nuclear fusion research requires temperatures of millions of degrees similar to temperatures found in the sun's interior, to create a reaction.

The scientists said they concentrate deuterium, commonly called heavy water, from sea water and place it in a vessel containing platinum and palladium electrodes.

Unlike the traditional method where heat is used, the chemists said they then employed an electrical charge. The palladium metal electrode absorbs and separates the heavy water's hydrogen ions, which carry an extra neutron.

The hydrogen atoms then join together or fuse, creating a helium atom and an extra proton or form tritium, a radioactive form of hydrogen with two extra neutrons, and a proton — plus heat energy in both cases in inexhaustible supplies.

Chase Peterson, University of Utah president, put it simply.

"The fuel is heavy water, driven by electric force into enormously compact concentrations in the holes inside this metal (palladium)," said

Cheney chooses secretary of navy, Richard Armitage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Richard Cheney has asked Richard Armitage, a senior official in the Reagan administration, to become secretary of the navy, administration sources said Thursday. Armitage, who had already been selected and named to become assistant secretary of state for East Asia and Pacific affairs, has asked to be released from that job, sources said. Secretary of State James Baker has agreed to the switch and is expected to name Richard Solomon, formerly director of the department's Policy and Planning to the East Asian job, the sources said.

Agreement close concerning aid to Contra's

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State James Baker and congressional leaders neared agreement Thursday on an plan to continue limited American aid to the Contra rebels while pressing for democratic reforms in Nicaragua. Congressional sources who have worked with Baker on the plan for weeks said it was expected to be announced by President Bush at the White House Friday, barring last-minute complications.

House Democrats: Bush wants Medicare cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats on the House Aging Committee accused the Bush administration Thursday of jeopardizing senior citizens' health by advocating a $5 billion reduction in the rate of Medicare funding increases next year. The Democrats vented their frustration at Bush budget director Richard Darman, who attempted in testimony before the panel to defend the Bush proposal to scale back the rate of increase in Medicare costs in fiscal year 1990 from $13 billion to $8 billion.

Labor Party leader denies peace plan rumor

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Labor Party leader Shimon Peres denied Thursday he had proposed an independent Palestinian state as part of a new peace plan and said he would not discuss his ideas on peace until Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir returns from a trip to Washington.

Examiner named in Eastern bankruptcy case

United Press International

A federal judge Thursday appointed an examiner in the Eastern Airlines bankruptcy case with broader powers than sought by the airline, including the authority to mediate disputes involving the company's creditors, its unions and other parties, an Eastern spokesman said. Eastern had asked U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Burton Lifland in New York to appoint an examiner to look into business dealings between Eastern and its parent company, Texas Air Corp. of Houston, and affiliates, in order to dispel union criticism of those deals.

Delegates want waste treaty to be toughened

BASEL, Switzerland (UPI) — Delegates to a conference that included the endorsement by 105 nations of the first global effort to restrict dumping of hazardous waste expressed hope Thursday the treaty would be toughened before it takes effect. "There is much criticism but it is difficult to get anything stronger immediately," Senegal's chief delegate, Yau Kante, said Thursday before leaving Basel, where the treaty was endorsed Wednesday.

Fawn Hall: 'Hopefully, the good guy will win'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ex-secretary Fawn Hall wept and briefly left the witness stand Thursday when asked about her work for Oliver North, but said on departing the Iran-Contra trial, "Hopefully, the good guy will win." "It's tough when people portray you as a witness for the prosecution when you're a witness for the truth," said a defiant Hall, 29, as she walked from the federal courthouse after four hours as a government witness against North.

Do You Support FREEDOM?

Dear Legislator:

I strongly support a person's right to freedom of choice and urge you to fight any effort to overturn the Supreme Court's 1973 decision denying the states' right to restrict freedom of choice.

It is undisputed that before the Roe v. Wade decision, women were forced to seek "back alley abortions," thereby risking death or mutilation. If the decision is overturned, women will again face those risks. Women will not stop seeking abortions when needed. No law in the world can stop people from exercising their inalienable right to control their own bodies.

The special interest minorities lobbying to overturn Roe v. Wade have dismissed as insignificant the risks faced by women should they be forced to return to "back alley abortion." I say the possibility of death or mutilation is not an insignificant risk.

If the Supreme Court overturns or modifies Roe v. Wade, the states will then be free to prohibit a woman's right to exercise control over her own body. This issue is so inherently personal that it must not be legislated. The decision to end a pregnancy must be left up to the individuals involved.

There has been debate over the status of a woman who gets an abortion if it is once again made illegal. Practically everyone who advocates outlawing freedom of choice supports the idea that the woman would be the victim of the abortionist. This view denies the woman's ability to reason and control her own life. This view advocates making women the victims of the legislatures and the special interest groups controlling them.

The situation is at a critical level. As my elected official, I urge you to represent my view and rally in support of a woman's right to determine her own future. I am not, I repeat, not asking you to decide if abortion is right or wrong. I am asking you to leave that decision up to the individual. Let us not slip backward in time to the dark ages of "back alley abortions."

Sincerely,

If you support this position, please clip this letter and mail it to any or all of the representatives listed below. We must not allow a minority of special interests to control our lives. We must speak out for freedom. Do it now, before we run out of time and options.

Discussions to be held on military

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The state of national security and the current strategic military balance will be discussed by two Air Force officers in a public lecture Wednesday evening.

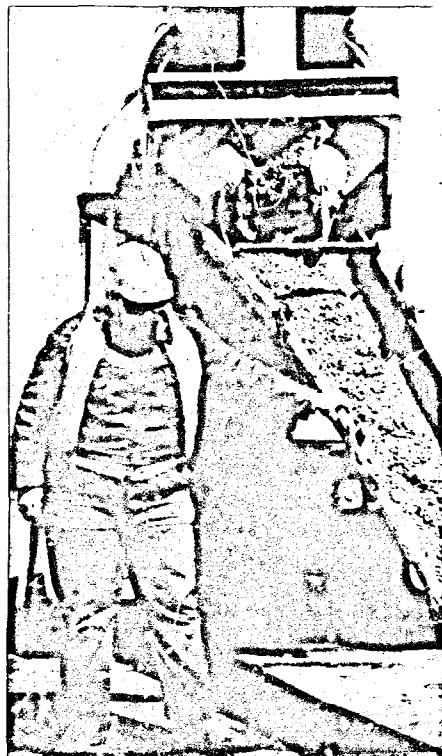

Col. F. Edward Ward Jr. and Maj. Alan E. Thompson of Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama will speak at 6 p.m. Wednesday in the Wham Auditorium. The presentation will cover topics such as defense spending, arms control, the arms race and defense modernization.

Capt. Mark Douglas, assistant professor of aerospace studies, said the presentation describes "the big picture" of how the United States compares military with other countries, but explains how the balance of power really works.

"The lecture isn't focused at ROTC members, but at military and non-military students who want to understand defense matters," Douglas said.

Douglas said the officers will answer common questions about weapons systems and are prepared to handle almost any type of questions the audience may have.

More than 100 ROTC members are expected to attend, and Douglas urged any students or faculty with an interest in political sciences to come to the lecture.

Database will help University studies

By Alicia Hill
Staff Writer

University researchers will soon have access to bigger, faster computer facilities after receiving a $20,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

The grant will enable researchers to link the University's computer to national supercomputers, which handle large amounts of data at higher speeds than currently available at SIU-C.

Work began last week on the installation of a 56,000 byte-per-second data communications line, which will allow for the transmission of three pages of single-spaced text in less than a second.

Lawrence J. Hengehold, director of the University's computing affairs, said the supercomputers, which include database information and a host of software packages will be accessible by late summer.

"A database is essentially a base of knowledge put together in a computer which allows people to look up information like they would in a library," Hengehold said.

"The importance of databases as a tool for research is definitely increasing," Hengehold said. Many researchers will benefit from the larger base of information, he said.

"Our goal is to provide for faculty access by the start of the fall 1989 semester," Hengehold said.

The supercomputing facilities will be provided by the Committee on Institutional Coordination network (CICnet) and the National Science Foundation network (NSFnet).

NSFnet is the "backbone" of a computer system which connects regional networks across the nation. CICnet is the regional network for the Great Lakes states which includes Illinois.

The University first requested funding for access in the summer of 1987. The campuses at Northwestern Illinois University and the University of Illinois already have access to supercomputers.

A University News Service release was used in compiling this report.

Censorship clashes with SIU's purpose

THE SENATORS who voted against a proposal to ban "The Satanic Verses" should be congratulated for refusing to yield to attempted censorship.

A proposal to ban the controversial Salman Rushdie novel, was submitted by Sen. Eshmael Zumira and Vice President Larvester Gaither, and Committee for Internal Affairs Chairman Chuck Hagerman.

The proposal states that more than 2,000 students and 11 Registered Student Organizations want the book removed. Fine. It is their right to make that known, but it is the right of others to have access to "The Satanic Verses" or any other book, controversial or not.

BECAUSE MORRIS Library makes the book available does not mean that the University or any student who reads the book is being inconsiderate or disrespectful to Moslems.

The Moslem belief needs to be respected, as do other beliefs — such as freedom of expression.

However it is hard to believe that Gaither, now vice president, and Hagerman, who was vice president last year, do not fully support the freedom of expression.

The proposal also states that "The student body is responsible for maintaining a positive social environment on campus."

SURELY IT IS possible to maintain a positive social environment without resorting to censorship. There are, no doubt, many books in Morris Library that offend some groups or religions, but they have not been and should not be banned.

The senators who wish to ban the novel from the University for the sake of maintaining a positive social environment might remember that Adolf Hitler also banned books for the good of the Reich. It is a common expression of facism.

If this book were not involved in a worldwide controversy it is unlikely that anyone would have ever thought to suggest that it be banned. Publicity and pressure are not justifiable reasons to bar a book.

"IF WE BANNED that book, we'd have to start banning a lot of other books because they are offensive to other people," Sen. Rod Hughes said at the Wednesday meeting.

Right you are, Mr. Hughes. A university is supposed to be a place to gain knowledge and understanding by being exposed to different opinions and ideas. This creed is not compatible with censorship.

Opinions from elsewhere

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

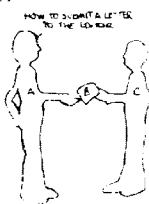

Ten years after the start of the Iranian revolution and after a recent period of apparent moderation following the war with Iraq, the mullahs who rule in the name of Shiite Islam are moving back toward the isolation from the world that has marked much of their reign since the fall of the shah. The immediate provocation, of course, is the death threat by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the supreme spiritual leader, to Salman Rushdie, the Indian-born English Moslem who wrote "The Satanic Verses."

Just when it seemed the so-called moderates in Iran would surface after the ayatollah died or lost his power over the Iranian people, along came Mr. Rushdie's book. Now, the ayatollah is back, sounding as strong and violent as ever. How this struggle for control over the next phase of the Iranian Islamic revolution will turn out is anyone's guess. Recent events, however, leave the impression that there are no guarantees that Iran will seek normal relations with much of the West — or the rest of the world, for that matter. First came the vote in the majlis, the parliament, to sever ties with the United Kingdom. Then came Ayatollah Khomeini's about-face to embrace the Soviet Union when its foreign minister, Eduard Shevardnadze, visited Tehran.

Yet Iran needs the world, particularly the West, even more than the world needs Iran. While its economy remains surprisingly good after the war of attrition with Iraq, Iran will let an estimated $30 billion in contracts to rebuild. Many of those contracts will have to be filled by Western European or advanced Asian nations. That need, more than any other, may in the long run force Iran to moderate its fanaticism.

AMERICAN APPLES! AND THEY SOLD THEM TO US REAL CHEAP!

Letters

Americans should concentrate on important problems, unity

"We, the people" ... nice words. Famous words. But, they don't apply to our "Me, the person" society. We've lost touch with what made this country great. We're so caught up in our own little me worlds that we don't associate ourselves with a country anymore.

We're groups. We concentrate on trivial differences in values, appearance and lifestyles of others. The smallest thing we don't understand or agree with makes our next door neighbors "them." We're anti-this, anti-that, liberal, conservative, extremist, blah, blah, blah. Labels.

Labels have only one use. They're excellent for sorting things out, separating them. Labels in the U.S. are an excuse, albeit a poor one, to keep us divided and at odds with each other while our once great country erodes under the leadership of an ineffective government.

Special interest groups with neat little labels like the "anti-drug lobby," "anti-gun lobby," and the "anti-abortion lobby" continuously try to force their views and values upon the rest of the country. They never truly succeed but they do alienate those around them and distract us from the real problems in America. It's about time everyone focused in on what is dragging our country under.

Our national debt is so high that the yearly interest alone (over $100 billion) could build new housing for all the homeless in our country, clothe them and provide a year's worth of hearty meals for each one!

Our anti-drug laws, by illegalizing and limiting certain substances, create the lucrative and violent market they're supposed to eradicate. The money wasted attempting to enforce these laws would be better spent educating against drug abuse and detoxifying those who want to quit.

An endless torrent of immigrants, both legal and illegal, further dilutes what meager funds we have to the point of having to cut back on needed services like social security and higher education.

We burn and destroy the country's natural resources at an alarming rate when it is well within our ability to go to more intelligent and long lasting means of making cars move and power plants work.

Our treatment of our land is comparable to a dog using its food dish for a toilet. The U.S. has fallen way behind foreign competitors in the fields of technology, mass production and medicine. If we don't wise up soon and change our priorities from all-consuming "me-ness," things will get pretty dark in the future.

Or do you care about the world we leave behind for our children?

Come on everybody, get your heads out of the clouds. We need to set aside our relatively unimportant special interest issues and figure out how to regain our footing as a whole.

The U.S. is messed up enough without internal nit-picking and self righteousness making things worse. There needs to be a foundation upon which our children can pursue their individuality. We can no longer ignore reality for the sake of petty differences and greed.

We need to be united by individuality, not divided by it. The U.S. needs us to be one, to sacrifice some of our time and energy like our forefathers did in 1776. Forget being anti-this or anti-that. Your neighbors think and have feelings just like you.

If you really want a lab I for yourself, try American on for size. You'll see it fits.

— Karl Rademacher, junior, radio and television.

anti-freeze under old reliable.

Dollar signs begin flashing in my head, my eyes begin to blur and before I know it, I'm on the ground cursing anything I can think of.

I don't know much about cars, but I figured by the size of the puddle, how fast it formed, and because it was right before break and every mechanic in Carbondale would know how desperate I was, that this was going to cost me "big time."

I took my car into the nearest mechanic, a foreign fellow who I could barely understand, and I told him the problem. I also told him that I was headed north and I needed the car in somewhat of a hurry.

I think he sensed that my biggest worry was price by the way I kept asking him how much something like this could cost.

To shorten a very long story, this gentleman spent a half hour of his time diagnosing the problem and showing me how to repair it. After I felt confident that even I could do the work, I asked him how much I owed him. He just smiled and shook his head.

Coach Meade rolls up mat, moves on

Budget cuts result in new career opportunity

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

Coach Bill Meade is preparing for his dismissal from the Saluki gymnastics program, but his routine is far from over.

The 33-year SIU-C leader has been named the head coach for the 1989 World Championship games in West Germany. After his stint there, he will be an administrator for the United States Gymnastics Federation, based in Indianapolis.

The gymnastics team was cut by the athletics department in December as part of a budget reduction, meaning Meade has no reason to stay at the University.

"I'm going to work for the federation," Meade said. "I'll probably be in charge of the men's program. I'll be more of an administrator than anything."

Meade was instrumental in starting the Federation in 1962.

"We wanted to form an organization that could better represent gymnastics," he said. "We were lucky Rusty Mitchell, the top gymnast in the country at SIU at the time, chose to support the Federation."

In 1970 at the World Championships in Yugoslavia, the USGF was granted the right to be the governing body for amateur gymnastics.

Mike Jacki, the executive director of the USGF, and other Federation officials presented Meade with an award Feb. 10 for his 40 years of service at a home meet at the Arena.

Becoming a full-time employee of the Federation, Meade will work out of Indianapolis but travel around the country evaluating the nation's top gymnasts.

"I'll have to see the kids," he said, "to decide if they need to come to the training center for a month or what gymnasts we want to take to which meets."

Meade knows what he's looking for. His involvement in gymnastics dates all the way back to junior high school in Warren, Penn. Meade started competing then and went on to perform at the collegiate level for Penn State. He won three national tumbling titles while with the Nittany Lions.

Meade moved on after graduation to North Carolina as a graduate assistant. After one year they hired him as head coach and seven years later he came to SIU-C.

Thirty-three years later, Meade said he is glad to be

Gymnasts, coaches thrive on Meade's humor

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

Bill Meade has more tricks than any gymnast he has ever coached.

His repertoire of tricks has dwindled from double-back somersaults and flying twists to just plain humor.

The coach is just serious enough to get the job done.

"Coach always has a sense of humor," junior Marcus Mulholland said.

At the Salukis' last home meet March 17 where Carbondale Mayor Neil Dillard proclaimed March 17 Bill Meade Day, the coach was full of jokes. After being presented with a flask of Jack Daniels whiskey from his athletes, Meade raised the bottle and said, "My kids really are smart."

His kids are smart enough to know that Meade is one of the best, if not the best, coach in the nation.

"You just do what he says," sophomore Scott Belanger said "because he knows what he's talking about. That's the only way to come out ahead."

Senior Brent Reed said

Meade was the reason he came to SIU-C.

"I came here because he's the best in the country," Reed said. "He's definitely a teacher because he's always wanting to learn himself."

Meade has a way of teaching his athletes that helps them to get the best out of their talent.

"He likes recruiting people with a lot of potential," junior Marcus Mulholland said. "Somehow he finds a way to tap it out."

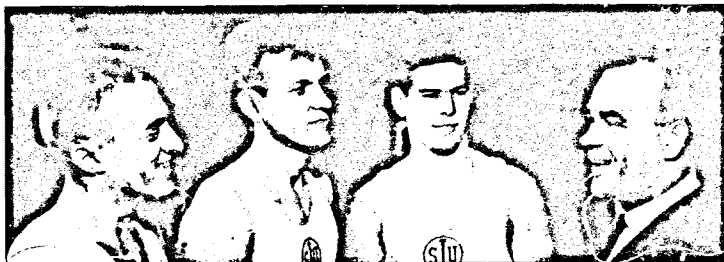

"He's a quick study on what your strengths and weaknesses are. He can milk most of your talent."

Meade gets the most out of his gymnasts through different types of motivation.

"I'll use anything to make them work," Meade said. "Sometimes I make them mad and they just try to show me."

Mulholland said, "He's the most caring, yet the least caring guy you'll ever meet in your life."

Freshman Rick Armstrong said, "He'll push you if you want to. He yells, he screams, he encourages you. He leaves it up to you a lot. You do it just to please him."

Daily Egyptian File Photo

Coach Bill Meade in his early years with three of his players. Meade has coached the Salukis for 33 years.

It's hard to please Meade, who shows very little emotion at the actual meets.

"I just sit there," he said. "I don't give compliments too often. If I look at them, that's good. If I look away, that's bad."

Other coaches wish Meade would look away more often. Through the years he has compiled quite a few accomplishments. He has brought the University national championships. He coached individual champions and all-Americans, national teams and Olympic teams.

Meade's involvement on the national scene is proof of the coach's dedication.

"I think he adds stability to the sport," Reed said. "All the coaches respect him. I don't think I've ever met a coach that doesn't respect him."

His sense of humor is almost as well known as his coaching experience.

"He's always in the center of things wherever we go," Reed said. "He always has some funny story to tell. People just love him."

The only thing that not's funny about Meade is that he's leaving Southern Illinois. But the typical Meade is still laughing about it.

Meade said he doesn't have any bad feelings, he's just having fun.

"Maybe someday 20 years from now, I'll feel like crying, but now I'm just having fun," Meade said.

Vrdolyak: Newspapers 'ignoring my campaign'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Republican Edward R. Vrdolyak accused the media Thursday of protecting Democratic frontrunner Richard M. Daley and treating the GOP nominee unfairly.

Vrdolyak said the media allowed Daley to "get away without debating."

"How can you get away with justifying it, I'll never know,"

Chicago ELECTION '89

Vrdolyak said during the taping of a radio show (WMAQ's "The Reporters"):

"What do you say about Rich Daley? ... You don't say anything."

Vrdolyak discounted polls showing him garnering only 5 percent of the vote and accused the city's two major newspapers of ignoring his campaign.

Daley Thursday campaigned with Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., at his side. Bradley, a former basketball star, towered over Daley during a joint appearance.

"He cares about every neighborhood in the city. He wants every kid in the city to be the best he or she can be," Bradley said of Daley.

In other news:

who said she could not get Daley's people to meet with her.

■Evans Thursday paid his $140 annual fee plus a $20 penalty charge to the Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission so he can reopen his law practice. The fee was due Feb. 1 and Evans was suspended from practice March 1 for nonpayment.

Two University students awarded for law papers

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

Two undergraduate students from the College of Communications and Fine Arts who submitted papers to a prestigious academic conference were honored by the Midwest Regional Conference at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Deedra Lawhead, student editor of the Daily Egyptian, and Laura Milbrath, senior in journalism, completed the papers to fulfill a requirement for a journalism law class.

Both papers involved cases of seditious libel.

They were the only undergraduate students in a field of faculty members and graduate students from the Midwest.

Dwight Teeter, faculty member from the Department of Mass Communications at Wisconsin, said undergraduates' submissions are rarely chosen in such a prestigious field of entries.

"It's not a regular thing," he said. "I've seen it happen before, but it doesn't happen every year by any means."

Members from the Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communications chose the papers from the history division.

Twelve entries were accepted, seven of which were presented by educators.

Lawhead, who claims late nights and excessive amounts of caffeine played a part in the completion of the 25-page paper, said the honor reflects well on the School of Journalism.

"It reflects well on (Professor Robert) Spellman, too. He kept me on my toes, and I like that," Lawhead said. Spellman, a faculty member from the School of Journalism, urged the students to submit their papers.

Milbrath, who delivered speeches for both papers March 18 to a panel of professionals, said the experience of educating educators was unforgettable.

"Speaking to them, you realize the vast amount of knowledge these professors have," she said. "You feel very intimidated being an undergraduate, yet having these people's attention."

Lawhead was unable to attend because of an unavoidable personal conflict.

U.S. zoos rated best, worst

Poli places Peoria's Glen Oak Zoo among the bottom ten

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's been the best of times and the worst of times for animals in Illinois with the Chicago Zoological Society — better known as Brookfield Zoo — rated among the nation's best and Peoria's Glen Oak Zoo among the worst, a poll released Thursday said.

Also on the top 10 list were the Bronx Zoo, the Los Angeles Zoo and the National Zoo in Washington, according to the poll to be published in this Sunday's Parade magazine.

Brooklyn's Prospect Park Zoo, which ranked sixth from the bottom, and two others on the 10 worst list — Boston's Franklin Park Zoo and the Nay Aug Zoo in Scranton, Pa., — were also rated among the 10 worst in a similar Parade poll five years ago, the magazine said.

Officials at Glen Oak Zoo said they hope the poor rating can be used to snag more funding from the city to improve the facility.

"When we first heard we were hurt," zoo manager Jan Schweitzer said. "But we're hoping to turn this to our benefit. We're really not in bad shape. The zoo is well-run. We think the poor rating came from the actual physical facilities."

Schweitzer says the zoo's first priority will be to update the "big cat" display, which is currently surrounded by bars.

She said the zoo has been trying to secure $350,000 for a new display that would allow unobstructed views of the cats.

"Public image-wise, bars don't look good," she said. "When people come to zoos they don't want to see bars. The animals are physically and mentally well but it's not the best atmosphere in which to see animals."

One project that has received $75,000 in funding is an African Plains Exhibit, which will house zebras. Schweitzer says the new display, coupled with extra money to improve other displays, will reverse any negative effects of the survey.

Area volunteers to be recognized

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

The week of April 9-14 has been designated as a special recognition week for individuals who serve the country as volunteers.

Mobilization of Volunteer Effort and the Office of Student Development initiated an awards program to honor three volunteers who have demonstrated exceptional and outstanding performance in the community. Award recipients are not required to be University students.

Nominations are currently being accepted. Each Registered Student Organization and community agency is given an opportunity to nominate a volunteer as a "Volunteer of the Year."

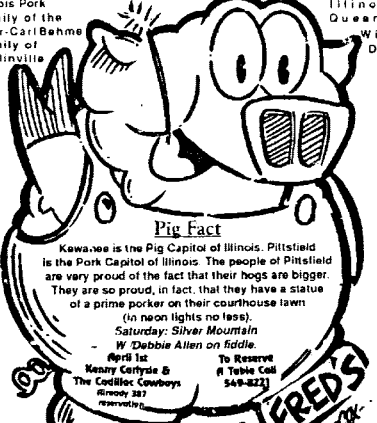

Nomination forms are available in the Office of Student Development on the third floor of the Student Center. The deadline for nominations is Wednesday, March 29.

Awards will be given at 3 p.m. April 13 in the International Lounge on the second floor of the Student Center.

Awards will be presented by Nancy Hunter, president of the Office of Student Development, and Rick Mitchell, president of the Mobilization of Volunteer Effort.

House, Bush compromising on minimum wage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, rejecting President Bush's first legislative initiative, turned aside his $4.25 an hour minimum wage plan Thursday and instead approved a $4.55 compromise bill containing a lower "training" wage.

After first turning Bush down on a 218-198 vote, the House then voted 240-179 to accept the compromise — the first step in boosting the $3.35 wage for the first time since 1981. The compromise plan has a 60-day "training" wage for people getting their first job while Bush had proposed a six-month subminimum wage for wage for newly hired workers.

The legislation — given final approval later on a 248-171 vote — still must clear the Senate and, if necessary, go to a conference committee to iron out any differences. Bush has threatened to veto any bill that goes beyond his $4.25 proposal, even with the lower training rate.

That threat was renewed Thursday and Bush has enough votes in the Senate to sustain a veto. The vote on the compromise in the House was not large enough to override a veto.

The AFL-CIO hailed the bill's passage, and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who has a $4.65 minimum wage bill ready for the Senate, said he hoped Bush "will refrain from further veto threats until he sees the shape of the bill that Congress finally sends him. This is an excellent opportunity for Congress and the administration to demonstrate that they can work together."

House Speaker Jim Wright, in an impassioned speech on the House floor, urged members to "vote for this bill because it's right, and you know it."

The bill, said Wright, was for "the working poor ... the people who without our voice would be voiceless, without our help would be powerless. They are the decent American men and women who want to work. They're not on welfare, they want an honest day's work."

Wright said, "They are the people who clean your house, wash your dirty socks and underwear, take out your garbage ... clean out bedpans.

... They don't belong to the country clubs because they can't afford it. But they belong to the PTAs."

Members said the minimum wage, according to Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole, currently would be $4.68 an hour if it had been adjusted for inflation since 1981.

Arguing for the compromise, sponsor Rep. Tommy Robinson, D-Ark., said, "The bottom line with me is a matter of conscience. Do we want to elevate hundreds of thousands of decent, hard-working Americans up to a livable wage. ... It's a compromise. ... I don't buy the argument this is going to hurt the economy."

Robinson asked, "Can I feed my family on $3.35 an hour?" He has six children and a number of grandchildren. Answering his own question, Robinson said: "I can't feed my family on (congressional pay of) $89,500, let alone $3.35."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater reiterated Bush's opposition to any compromise Thursday, saying his plan was his "first and last" offer. "We've got a firm position and we're hanging tough," Fitzwater said.

"I hope the president doesn't veto the bill," warned House Education and Labor Committee Chairman Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., "because he'll be perceived as being against working people."

Ma Bell yanks plug on 'I Confess'

NEW YORK (UPI) — An angry Ma Bell Thursday pulled the plug on the eavesdropping line of dial-a-confession.

You can still confess for free, however.

Phone company officials, incensed that the "I Confess" service bought a newspaper ad picturing a man kneeling in front of a pay phone with a New York Telephone Co. sign on it, said they are thinking about suing.

"I Confess," which is not affiliated with any religion, encourages callers to "talk about what you have done or about what happened to you."

The resulting taped confessions, which can be heard by calling a separate number, range from murder to incest. They tend to be sick, mostly unbelievable and riddled with obvious joke calls.

To listen costs $1.50 for the first minute and 50 cents a minute after that.

Tuesday, a full-page newspaper ad ballyhooed the new telephone gimmick.

The ad was subsequently pulled, but not before the publicity for the commercial confessional caught the phone company in the spotlight.

The name of the company, Telephone Entertainment Co., was not provided in the ad, the phone company complained.

"Anyone reading this ad would think that New York Telephone sanctions and provides this service," a phone company statement said Thursday.

"We will do everything possible to protect our customers from advertising that suggests that we are sponsoring these services."

Patrick Kane, president of Telephone Entertainment, said he was meeting with phone company officials, but wasn't very impressed with the complaint.

"They turned it off unannounced today," he said. "I find this questionable at best."

Besides, he said, "I don't really find a phone booth to be out of the norm," and added that the phone company's cut of the "I Confess" revenues, "based on volume, are about 40 percent."

Quintet to perform concert

The Alexandria Quintet will perform at 8 p.m. Monday in Shryock Auditorium in the fourth and last Community Concert program presented by Southern Illinois Concerts, Inc. The combination of violin, viola, cello, flute and harp is rare, but still within the tradition of the Quintette Instrumental de Paris, for whom Debussy and Ravel wrote much of their music.

The Alexandria Quintet specializes in this fin de siècle music, as well as the classical works of Handel, Rossini and Mozart.

Last season, the quintet made its first tour and this season they will play more than forty concerts, with a Town Hall debut in prospect.

Barbara Allen, the harpist, is principal harpist with the Greenwhich Symphony and is well-known in the United States as a soloist and chamber musician.

Sato Moughalin, flutist who founded the quintet, has performed as a soloist and chamber player in almost every state in the union.

Violinist Erica Kiesewetter has performed with Solisti New York, of which she is concertmaster and is first violinist of the Colorado Quartet.

Kiesewetter frequently appears as a guest artist with the Bach Chamber Soloists and the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center.

Nardo Poy, former violist of the Carnegie Quartet, is a member of the Herrick Quartet, the Saxon Wood Chamber Players and the Orpheus Chamber Ensemble and was a founding member of "An Die Music."

Jonathan Spitz, cellist, has won several prizes as a soloist and plays with the Y Chamber Symphony and the Orchestra of St. Luke's.

The program will be preceded by a buffet dinner in the Old Main Room of the Student Center. Cost of the dinner is $7.25 plus tax. Reservations may be made by calling 536-6633.

Students may obtain tickets from the Student Center ticket office for the $8 dinner-concert package or for $2 concert admission only.

HALLOWEEN, from Page 1

The committee also discussed whether the city will have enough police officers to handle the revelers who will show up this Halloween. Hogan assured the committee that security will be adequate.

The state police have also expressed a willingness to help, according to Doherty.

Brian Wood, representative of the Student Programming Council, expressed concern that the committee was forgetting about the needs of the students.

"An opinion survey said many of the students would like to see it continued or modified. If we eliminate it, we won't have responded to their concerns," Wood said.

Wood said he would support the elimination of Halloween Fair Days if the committee would also consider creating alternative events just for students at Halloween.

McVay said, "I'm totally opposed to what goes on here at Halloween, but on the other hand, it is important that we not set up a battle between the students and the community.

If we vote against Halloween; it's not a vote against the students."

McVay also supported the creation of alternative events for students.

Ruthie Altekruze, owner of Ruthie's, recommended that some events should be included for high school students.

Doherty said he will present the recommendation to the city council at its April 18 meeting and the council will likely vote on it at the following meeting.

U.S. diplomats and military personnel had been warned, saying there is "no double standard of notification."

After the Dec. 21 bombing of Pan American World Airlines Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland, it was revealed that U.S. diplomats were warned of a possible terrorist attack on a Pan Am flight between Frankfurt and New York. The bombing of Flight 103 killed 270 people. Investigators said the bomb was in a tape recorder carried on board the plane.

"I consider this to be a very serious matter, and I have instructed the FAA to begin an immediate investigation to determine who leaked this sensitive information," Skinner said in a statement issued by the Transportation Department. "In addition, my team of personal representatives currently is in London gathering information on this incident as part of their mission."

WAGE, from Page 1

A co-owner of Tres Hombres, 119 N. Washington, said the increase could put a lot of small businesses out of business.

"I'm sure our prices would have to go up," Burt Cannell said.

He added that unless raising prices hurts Tres Hombres, no employees would be laid off.

Ed Van Awken said the increase would not affect Van Awken Construction, 804 W. Sycamore because he usually pays his workers more than minimum wage.

But Van Awken added that his workers would be effected if they have to pay more as consumers.

McDonald's media relations manager Linda Sontana said the wage increase would not affect McDonald's.

"We are not a minimum wage business," she explained. "Our average starting salary is $4.55."

U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard, speaking before the House Wednesday, said that even if the current minimum wage was adjusted to meet the rise of inflation, "that wage would not be a living wage."

Poshard said he voted with the majority because "it's a good bill. The time has come for it."

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon serves as chairman of the Senate Employment and Productivity Sub-Committee from which the bill derived. That committee is under the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

David Carle, spokesman for Simon, said the minimum wage should be adjusted to the rise in the cost of living.

Correction

According to University Security police reports, Michael True was not charged with unauthorized possession of a weapon, but was arrested on a complaint of battery. Garth Hantke was arrested on a complaint of unauthorized possession and storage of a weapon. Hantke, not True, told University Security police he did not own the rifle and was holding it for a friend. Assistant State's Attorney Chris Moore said charges against Hantke and True are pending. This information was incorrectly reported in Thursday's Daily Egyptian.

Students often fail to learn reasoning

MUNCIE, Ind. (UPI) -- Far too often, learning taking place in schools today doesn't go beyond memorizing, repeating and forgetting, says a Ball State University curriculum expert.

Many educators are concerned that students are left unprepared for the 21st century because they may not be learning to reason, said Jay C. Thompson Jr. of the Center for Lifelong Education at Ball State.

To help tomorrow's workers acquire job skills for an increasingly technical society, schools and parents should help students develop advanced thinking skills beyond basic levels, Thompson said. He said advanced thinking is being taught in many, but not all, classrooms.

"This is the information age, but in the future, knowledge in and of itself will not be enough," Thompson said. "In the next century, we will need workers who can use information combined with the ability to think critically, analyze, solve problems, evaluate and make decisions."

Basic knowledge is the foundation for higher levels of learning and usually is taught effectively, Thompson said. However, when students and teachers are stuck in basic information levels, he said, learning may never proceed to higher levels.

For instance, students at basic learning levels concentrate on memorizing facts, concepts, basic theories and methods. They try to remember the information later during testing, Thompson said.

In higher levels of learning, information already mastered is explored further and may be applied to different situations, he said. For example, elementary students might take a story and describe the main idea, make predictions and conclusions, discuss the order in which story events occurred or create a new ending.

In exercises such as these, Thompson said, students are forced to think and support their conclusions.

"Most teachers are aware of how to help students develop skills such as critical thinking, analysis and problem solving," he said. "But we often meet resistance from students who find it more difficult to learn these skills than to just memorize information."

A few teachers do not make the effort to encourage students to reach higher learning levels, Thompson said, because higher level thinking is more difficult to teach and evaluate.

Thompson does not recommend a major overhaul of present curricula. Instead, he thinks teachers working in conjunction with parents can develop effective schools by using more "hands on" projects to shift the responsibility for learning to students.

A team of University law students will take their briefs to face world competition after winning the International Law Moot Court Midwest regional contest.

Moot Court takes regional

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

After winning its fourth regional championship, the University's law moot court team will advance to international competition in Chicago.

The University's law moot court team consists of law students that compete against other universities in oral and written events. Mark Metzger, team captain and third-year law student, said.

During the regional competition in Chicago, the law team defeated universities such as Hamline University, Arquette University, and Northwestern University.

"We gave Northwestern their only loss," Metzger said. "They were not too pleased." SIU-C finally defeated the University of Minnesota in the final round to win the first place trophy.

The University came in first place in brief writing as well as best all-around team.

Moot courts enable the law students to demonstrate their brief-writing ability and their legal argumentation skill in cases specially created for the competition, Metzger said.

This year's case concerned the diplomatic immunity of two countries. Each team divides to present both sides of the case.

"We split our team in half and we argue against each other," Metzger said.

Metzger also said SIU-C has won the best brief award for the past five years.

"Most of our success can be attributed to our coach Maria Frankowska, a University law professor."

In April, the law team will compete against 44 of the world's best law students from 32 countries in Chicago.

SIU-C is one of 10 teams competing from the United States. This is the fourth time the University has advanced to the internationals. Last year's team came in eighth overall and placed fourth among the U.S. schools.

Countries such as New Zealand, Swaziland and Malaysia participate in this competition, Metzger said.

"The United States is considered one of the strongest competing countries, so I think we have a really good chance of winning," Metzger said.

The University's biggest competition is Australia, last year's winner, Singapore, Canada and Malaysia.

The competition has always taken place in the United States, but there has been talk of moving it to the Netherlands next year, Metzger said.

Educators to lecture on Islam, Christianity

A father-son team of religious educators with several years of ministerial experience in the Middle East will address the views of Christianity and Islam during a seminar at the University next weekend.

Evertt W. Huffard, a religious instructor with a doctorate in theology and 13 years Middle Eastern missionary experience and his son, Evertt L. Huffard, will lecture on the cultural, political and theological tensions of the area.

Because of their experience and study abroad, both Huffards are considered experts in the study of Christianity contrasted with Islam.

"Christians must have a true picture of Islam to understand the teaching and practices of Muslims," the elder Huffard said. The seminar will begin at 7 p.m. Mar. 31 in Brown Auditorium, Parkinson Hall with a look at Christian preconceptions of Islam by the elder Huffard.

It will conclude with a lecture by the Huffards focusing on Jesus' role in the Qur'an, the Muslim holy book.

"If one accepts everything in the Qur'an about Jesus, what would he believe? How would it differ from what the Bible teaches about Jesus?" the elder Huffard said.

The second lecture will take place at 10 a.m. in room 102 of the Agricultural Building.

The seminar is sponsored by the Church of Christ Student Fellowship. Both lectures are free and open to the public.

Fund raiser, media coverage help Soviet-Jewish couple

By Theresa Livingston
Staff Writer

A fundraiser and media coverage have helped a Soviet Jewish Refusnik family receive official permission to leave the Soviet Union, Janet Belcove-Shalin, director of the Hillel Foundation, said.

The group held a "very successful" bowling benefit in February for the five members of the Uritsky family of Riga, Latvia, in the eastern portion of the Soviet Union, Belcove-Shalin said.

"We raised in excess of $900 and almost the entire bowling alley was filled," Belcove-Shalin said.

Belcove-Shalin said the group also has made a concerted effort to work on behalf of the Uritsky's cause in numerous ways.

"We have written letters supporting the family's cause to both the United States and the Soviet Governments as well as trying to alert people to the problem (of the plight of Soviet Jewry)," Belcove-Shalin said.

ARTHUR URITSKY, a 29-year-old electrician, was dismissed from his employment in 1985 because he is a known Jewish activist and teacher, a fact Belcove-Shalin said is doubly dangerous in the Soviet Union.

"Here you have a country that is not only officially atheist, but has an entrenched cultural tradition of anti-semitism. This puts people such as the Uritskys in a particularly difficult spot," Belcove-Shalin said.

Since being dismissed, Uritsky has worked briefly at a synagogue and at a camp, but has not been employed steadily since and is struggling to support his family, Belcove-Shalin said.

The Hillel Foundation became familiar with the Uritsky's plight earlier this year and were moved to take on their cause, she said.

"WE WERE initially approached by the Chicago Action for Soviet Jewry and asked to adopt them (the Uritskys). I discussed this with the Hillel Foundation here and we decided that this was a very important cause. We are all thrilled and delighted to support their cause," she said at the time.

The Highland Park-based group is an organization of about 5,500 members set up specifically to provide aid to Soviet Jews who are often discriminated against and imprisoned for practicing their faith.

"One of our functions involves providing different groups with the names of dissident families. They, in turn, write letters, start a petition campaign, get publicity and hold benefits for the family. This lets the Soviets know we are watching their actions towards Soviet Jewry," Margaret Kohn, assistant director of the group, said.

"Very often, an application (for a visa to leave the country) can mean the loss of your job or worse."

—Janet Belcove-Shalin

REFUSNIKS, PEOPLE who have requested permission to leave the Soviet Union and been turned down, are looked down upon in Soviet society as traitors to their country or worse.

In Soviet society, citizens are not allowed to leave their country without filling out several forms and going through several official channels. Citizens are required to carry internal passports and travel abroad is highly discouraged.

Many people are reticent to even apply for a visa because it brings the Soviet government's attention to the individual applicants, Belcove-Shalin said.

Many times, applying for a visa involves not only the emotional problems of leaving behind friends, family and familiar surroundings, but fears about personal well-being and freedom as well.

"VERY OFTEN, an application (for a visa to leave the country) can mean the loss of your job or worse," Belcove-Shalin said.

The impact of losing employment and the harassment that follows are shattering to the individual and his or her loved ones and the stigma of unemployment is much greater in the Soviet Union than in the West, Belcove-Shalin said.

"In the Soviet Union, if you are unemployed, you are considered a parasite of the system and you can actually be imprisoned, if your application is denied," Belcove-Shalin said.

Jewish Refusniks, who already suffer from religious persecution, sometimes find the additional pressures they must endure to be almost unbearable, said Kohn.

"THEY GET it from both sides. Not only are they Jewish, but now they hate the Soviet Union," Kohn said.

At the time of the benefit, Arthur Uritsky and his wife, Inara had repeatedly applied for and been denied a visa to emigrate to Israel.

However, the Hillel Foundation recently learned the couple and their three small children have been granted official permission to leave the country, a move which Belcove-Shalin attributes, at least in part, to the efforts of the group and media exposure.

"By publicizing their (the Soviet government's) actions to the rest of the world and letting them know we are aware of what is going on, it puts pressure on them to treat Jews more humanely," Belcove-Shalin said.

Although the family has been formally granted permission to leave the Soviet Union, Belcove-Shalin said the Uritskys are not necessarily guaranteed a safe, swift passage to Israel.

"ONCE YOU actually receive permission, there are a number of steps you must go through. You have to pay a lot of exit taxes and fees and, even then, they (The Soviet government) can change their minds at the last minute."

Concert features chamber music

Guest artists will join School of Music faculty to give a free concert featuring 20th-century chamber music at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Shryock Auditorium.

The six-member ensemble will give the first public performance of Frank Stemper's "String Quartet." Stemper, an SIUC composer who recently had a work performed at Carnegie Hall, teaches music theory and composition.

The group also will play Frank Martin's "Trio," Otakar Zich's "Czech Suite for Violin and Cello" and Guido Santorsola's concerto for guitar and string quartet "Sonoridades 1978."

Ensemble members are guitarist Joseph Breznikar, violinists Michael Barta and Ruth Meints, violist Patricia Story, cellist Damiel Mellado and pianist Kent Werner.

the University's claim that it is not a censor.

Gaither said the University administration is sending contradictory messages when it claims not to be a censor.

Gaither said the University administration censored the Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan in January 1985 from speaking on campus because of what Gaither calls "Jewish lobbying."

"Jews are successful in keeping Jewish controversial books out of schools," Gaither said. "The Jewish Defense league barred him (Farrakhan) from many campuses by pulling funds and by other means."

Darrell Johnson, a Graduate and Professional Student representative in 1985, said Farrakhan's visit to the University was not financially supported by the GPSC.

"He (Farrakhan) was considered to be an anti-semitic, a racist," Johnson said. "We (GPSC) didn't want to support racist attitudes on campus."

Johnson said the GPSC would fund the organization on the condition that Farrakhan not attend.

Accordingly, the Black Affairs Council chose not to schedule Farrakhan as the keynote speaker for Black History Month because of the potential protests. Tyrone Crider was invited to speak instead.

However, according to a 1985 Daily Egyptian news account, Michael Crossley, then BAC president, said, "Although we requested no funds for Farrakhan from GPSC, they did not want to offend their organization's Jewish constituency."

Gaither promised to deliver this list of books to all USG senators for review in the near future.

Ralph McCoy, dean emeritus of Morris Library, said any charges of book banning at Morris are "non-sense."

McCoy has donated his private 10,000 book collection on freedom of the press, which includes about 1,000 foreign government-banned or controversial books, to Morris Library.

McCoy said the library's job is to provide such books to the public.

"During the Vietnam war we were careful to have books representing all sides in the library," McCoy said. "It's a library's job to stock controversial books."

Darrell Jenkins, Morris Library director, said decisions to purchase books are day to day decisions for library division heads.

The library division heads cover all subjects in the library and work with jobbers, book industry agents, who provide detailed information on what books are available on the market.

Jenkins said factors influencing decisions whether or not to buy a certain book depends on the budget, general academic and research value and the book's general interest to students and faculty.

A student can suggest the library buy a certain book. Suggestions should be made to the library division head in charge of that subject.

Peterson, and the resulting fusion reaction heats water in the surrounding container.

"You boil water, and when you boil water you make steam, and when you make steam you run a turbine, and if you run a turbine you can create electricity. So this has the potential to create electricity."

But Fleischmann emphasized, "We don't know what the implications are. The subject has to be fully researched, to establish our finding, to challenge our findings, to extend our findings. But it does seem there is a possibility of realizing sustained fusion with a relatively inexpensive device."

Both Fleischmann and Pons said they were skeptical at first, but pursued the research without financial help. One cubic foot of sea water, they said, contains enough deuterium to produce the same amount of energy as burning 10 tons of coal.

"When we started this experiment," Fleischmann said, "we said it had a billion-to-one chance. Stan and I thought this experiment was so stupid that we financed it ourselves" with about $100,000.

moving on.

"The University has been great," Meade said. "They made it possible for me to have the success. But I knew it wouldn't last forever."

What will last forever are the feats Bill Meade accomplished during his reign with the Salukis. The coach won four national championships, and countless individuals won honors ranging from national champion to All-American.

"The University has been great. They made it possible for me to have the success."

—Bill Meade

"It's hard to say one single accomplishment stands out," he said. "It would probably be the first national championship in 1964."

Another highlight, he said, was when Brian Esbock was the national all-around champion at the NCAA.

But with every peak, there is a valley and Meade had his share of those. The lowest times of his career were when he had to deal with the trauma of the deaths of five of his athletes.

In 1965 Saluki Gary Morava, the top gymnast in the country at the time, broke his neck in the Arena while warming up and died three days later.

These accidents have helped develop Meade's strict attitude about traveling and practicing.

"I run a tight ship in terms of traveling and things because I've lost five kids off my teams," he said. "When they leave for the weekend, they check out and they check in when they get back."

This caring attitude combined with his tremendous knowledge of the sport is what brings many of Southern's gymnasts to the University.

"He gets the job done," junior Marcus Mulholland said. "It's not the facility, it's the coaching that gets the job done."

Meade holds that SIU-C has the worst facility of any school in the country.

"This is probably the worst facility for training in any school in the United States," he said.

"I run a tight ship in terms of traveling and things because I've lost five kids off my teams. When they leave for the weekend, they check out and they check in when they get back."

—Bill Meade

This "worst" facility has produced some of the best gymnasts during the coach's tenure. But the facility won't be producing any more All-Americans and neither will Meade. It's the end of the Bill Meade era, but we haven't seen the last of Bill Meade.

NEGATIVE, from Page 24

March 13 and consequently went into seclusion. He broke his silence Wednesday. It was not a pretty sight.

The 11-year veteran was nearly in tears as he spoke during a press conference.

You'd be crying too. After taking the Redbirds to the NCAA tournament three times and racking up 208 wins, Illinois State Athletics Director Ron Wellman decided Donewald was not the right guy for him.

The problem? As the chairman of the Illinois State English department put it, Donewald refused to "pan handle."

Oh Bob, never mind the fact that you came from Indiana and learned from maybe the best coach in the business, Bob Knight. Never mind the fact that you yourself are nationally respected as getting the most out of the least.

Doggone it Bob, all you had to do was go have a beer with the boys now and then. You know, rub some shoulders here and there and let everyone know how happy a camper you really are.

But you didn't do it Bob — we're going to have to let you go.

That a coach of Donewald's magnitude could get fired for something as trivial as failure to participate in booster functions is just unthinkable.

Whether the charade being pulled by athletic directors around the country will continue remains to be seen. But it certainly will not go on without criticism from the big boys.

"This is a sick thing," said Knight in a UPI report. "The way that coaches have been handled by athletic directors and presidents around the country has been absolutely ridiculous."

"Nobody in the last 10 years

"The AD's whole involvement in college athletics is equivalent to pouring a salt shaker in the ocean."

—Bob Knight

has done a better job with the resources (than Donewald). The kind of people who are involved, the AD and the president, are the kind of people who shouldn't be around athletics.

"The AD's whole involvement in college athletics is equivalent to pouring a salt shaker in the ocean."

Knight is not alone. North Carolina coach Dean Smith and Michigan State coach Jud Heathcote, who is also chairman of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, have publically criticized the activities of athletic directors involved with coach firings.

But it was Drake coach Tom Abatemarco, commenting on Donewald's firing in a report by UPI, who may have put it best.

"Everybody says they are looking for their players to graduate and for a guy who doesn't cheat, but I guess what those people are saying is, 'win at all costs.'"

The Salukis have an 80 percent success rate when playing at home.

"We're not a bad ball club, despite the record," Jones said. "Things just haven't gone our way. But that big first inning helped our confidence."

Sophomore Mike Kirkpatrick didn't let the momentum die, pegging a solo home run in the second.

The Salukis added two runs in the fifth and four runs in the seventh. They finished with 12 hits.

Runner Lewis says steroids rampant among track stars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Calling steroids a "tremendous problem" in sports, six-time Olympic gold medalist Carl Lewis told a House subcommittee Thursday that "at least five to 10" 1988 Olympic track and field medal winners were steroid users.

Lewis, illustrating the prevalence of steroids at the world-class competitive level, said this list included disgraced Canadian sprinter Ben Johnson, who was the only track and field athlete caught using steroids during the Olympics in Seoul, South Korea, last fall. Johnson tested positive for anabolic steroids, drugs that promote muscle growth and enhance athletic performance, and was stripped of his gold medal and world record in the 100-meter dash.

Lewis, responding to a question by Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Fla., did not name the other steroid users he believed won track and field medals in Seoul, but said: "To add to that, some of them were gold medalists, definitely."

Testifying before the subcommittee on crime of the House Judiciary Committee, Lewis also called for the establishment of an independent agency separate from any national or international sports federation to administer tests for steroids to athletes and encouraged the use of random drug testing at all levels in the United States, from Olympic trials down to colleges and high schools.

The hearing comes five months after a new federal law took effect that illegalized the distribution of steroids without a prescription. The committee also is considering legislation sponsored by Rep. Pete Stark, D-Calif., that would block mail-order steroids coming into the United States from Canada and Mexico.

"I just want to see a way that we can eliminate steroids," Lewis testified.

"This is a tremendous problem and it's growing by leaps and bounds," he added. "It's at every level and in every aspect of the sports society — and it goes beyond sports. We have to fight it at every level, from the international, world-class level where athletes are creating a fraud (by setting drug-aided records) on our world. They're lying and they're cheating and they're hurting others."

Lewis, who won four gold medals in the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles as well as two gold medals and one silver medal in Seoul, came in second behind Johnson, his bitter rival, in the 100 meters in Seoul. Lewis was awarded the gold medal after Johnson's steroid use was detected.

After the hearing, Lewis told reporters that his claim that "I would say at least five to 10" track and field medal winners used steroids did not reflect steroid use by athletes in other Olympic sports.

"I don't really know much about the other sports," Lewis said. "I can't elaborate on other sports."

Lewis used Johnson as an example of the performance-enhancing nature of steroids, which also can have often deadly side-effects, including liver cancer and sterility.

"Ben Johnson would not have been in the finals — he probably would not have been on the Olympic team — had he not taken steroids," Lewis said. "The steroids made that much of an impact over a seven-year period in his career. We're talking about someone who went from possibly 50th or 60th in the world to No. 1 in the world and setting world records."

Lewis also criticized sports officials in Canada for not acting earlier to stop Johnson.

"I really think the Canadian federation had enough knowledge to know that Ben Johnson had been using steroids, but they did not act on that," Lewis said.

"I was never really tempted," he said. "I was fortunate enough to have parents that always taught me to be very independent, to be the best I can be and to be a leader. Steroid use is just a cop-out."

Search for NFL chief has no apparent heir

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wellington Mara and Lamar Hunt have their job cut out as chairmen of the committee to find a replacement for Pete Rozelle.

How do you go about replacing the most successful sports commissioner in history, with no established heir apparent?

Mara, owner of the New York Giants, and Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs, head a search committee to find a new commissioner.

Because Rozelle's retirement Wednesday was a surprise, no leading candidate has yet surfaced. U.S. Secretary of Housing Jack Kemp, a former NFL quarterback; CBS President Neal Pilson; Supreme Court Justice Byron "Whizzer" White; attorney Paul Tagliabue; and even outgoing Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth have been mentioned as possible candidates to replace Rozelle.

If the owners want to look inside the league, there is always Dallas Cowboys President and General Manager Tex Schramm.

But Rozelle might take the concept of NFL commissioner as we know it into retirement with him. Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell suggested Rozelle be replaced by two men: one to handle legal issues and another to deal with football.

Most of the owners agree there are no 33-year-old Alvin Pete Rozelles waiting to blossom, as there was 24 years ago. "I believe that Pete Rozelle will forevermore be the standard by which sports commissioners are judged," Mara said.

"We'll get someone to succeed him but never to replace him," former New England Patriots owner Billy Sullivan said.

"You are not going to replace Pete Rozelle because he is too much to replace," Tampa Bay owner Hugh Culverhouse said. "But we will be diligent in our search."

Any candidate recommended by the committee must be confirmed by 19 of the league's 28 owners.

Mara proposed Rozelle as the new commissioner in January 1960. Rozelle was general manager of the Los Angeles Rams then, and some owners did not even know him. Others questioned if he was old enough, but the "boy commissioner" proved up to the job. His feel for public relations and foresight to recognize the role TV would play in sports business made the league thrive.

Now the owners must decide what background the new commissioner will have. Do they want an established figure, or another young, relative unknown? A football man, legal man, TV man, businessman or politician? Can they find someone with background in several of those fields?

Kemp, 53 has a background in football and politics.

Women runners to begin outdoor year

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

The women's track squad will kick-off its outdoor track season Saturday at Murray State University.

The Salukis will face Chicago area Elmhurst College, Western Kentucky, and host school Murray State.

Coach Don DeNoon said that the Racers of Murray State will be tough at home.

"They (Murray State) had a pretty good indoor season. They have three girls who qualified for the NCAA championships. We should see some good competition this weekend.

A few of the injured Salukis won't see any competition this weekend, namely Dora Kyriacou and Angie Nunn.

Kyriacou strained her hamstring in Wednesday's practice, while Nunn suffered the same injury at last weekend's Georgia Relays.

Traci Davis and Deon Jackson, who both have leg injuries, should see action at Saturday's meet, DeNoon said.

"The injuries might hurt us as a team," DeNoon said.

"But our depth should be able to pull us through."

Unlike a majority of midwest schools, SIU-C has no indoor training facility for its track teams. That means that the runners must practice outdoors even during the wintertime. DeNoon believes this is an advantage when outdoor season starts.

"We have been practicing all through indoor season, outside," DeNoon said. "This makes us a bit more prepared when outdoor begins."

An event that is not run in the indoor season is the 400-meter hurdles. Sophomore Michelle Sciano will handle the event during the outdoor meets. Sciano placed second in the 400-hurdles at last years Gateway Conference outdoor championships and expects an even better result this season.

"The 400 hurdles are my specialty," Sciano said. "I'm really going to go for the conference championship and maybe to the NAAs."

Virginia upsets Oklahoma; Seton Hall eliminates Indiana

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Bryant Smith scored 28 points and his collision with Mookie Blaylock incapacitated the Oklahoma playmaker for several minutes, helping Virginia upset the Sooners 86-80 Thursday night in the NCAA Southeast Regional.

The game is one of two upsets on the night, as Seton Hall knocked off No. 2 seed Indiana in the West Regional 78-65.

Smith, a UPI All-Freshman forward, hit on 9 of 16 from the field and 10 of 11 from the line. His collision with Blaylock late in the first half knocked out the Sooner point guard for 7 minutes with a swollen eye and hampered his shooting. Blaylock scored just 5 points, far below his 20.4 average.

The Cavaliers outrebounded Oklahoma 38-26 and superbly handled the Sooner pressure. Virginia's motion offense limited the Sooner possessions, and Oklahoma fell far short of its 102.9 point per game average.

A weak front line defense hurt the Sooners the most, as Virginia was able to go inside and draw fouls. The Cavs went to the line 36 times, hitting 27 times, compared to 8 of 9 for Oklahoma.

The loss stopped the Sooners' dream of a second straight trip to the Final Four, and the Big Eight squad finished the year with a 30-6 record. The Cavaliers advance to face the winner of the Michigan-North Carolina contest, and the Atlantic Coast Conference Cavs improved to 22-10.

Stacey King led the Sooners with 22 points, 20 of which came in the second half. Terrence Mullins scored 16, William Davis had 12 and Skeeter Henry added 11.

Other Cavs in double figures were Richard Morgan with 25, John Crotty with 14 and Brent Dabbs chipped in 10.

Women's tennis team ranked among top 15 Midwest teams

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

Women's tennis Judy Auld received a pleasant surprise Thursday, when she found out that her 8-0 team has been ranked fifteenth among Division I teams in the NCAA Midwest Region by Volvo Tennis.

Voting was done by the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association.

"It is nice to get some national recognition," Auld said. "The ranking speaks well of our program and where we're going."

The Salukis continued their winning ways Thursday afternoon, blitzing Principia 9-0 at the University Court.

The Salukis come in at the 15th spot behind Big Ten Conference powers Michigan and Illinois who are ranked 13th and 14th, respectively. Being mentioned with such top Midwest powers pleases Auld.

"It's a recruiting plus to be up near the Big Ten schools," Auld said. "In the future I hope to get some of those schools on our schedule."

No. 1 singles player Beth Boardman, who beat Principia's Chrisanne Aston 6-2, 6-2, expressed her excitement on the ranking.

"We've done well so far this spring and the recognition gives us a good feeling for the team."

The No. 9 team in the rankings is Marquette University, a team the Salukis beat last season.

"We beat Marquette last year and we've got everyone back from that team," Auld said. "So that shows that our team belongs up with the better Midwest teams."

The Salukis captured all singles and doubles matches against Principia:

No. 2 Dana Cherebetiu defeated Alison Olynik 7-5, 6-4; No. 3 Missy Jeffrey defeated Abbie Erdley 6-2, 6-0; No. 4 Lori Edwards beat Kym Leser 6-2, 6-2; No. 5 Michele Toye beat Jeannie Lundquist 6-3, 6-0; and No. 6 Julie Burgess beat Tricia Sportsman 6-2, 6-0.

In doubles:

No. 1 Boardman-Edwards beat Aston-Olynik 6-2, 4-6, 6-2; No. 2 Cherebetiu-Jeffrey beat Erdley-Leser 6-0, 6-3; and No. 3 Burgess-Toye beat Lundquist-Thompson 6-3, 6-2.

Men's tennis looking to get on track as team begins conference action

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

Compared to extensive traveling over spring break, the men's tennis team will welcome a four hour trip this weekend to take on conference foe Illinois State.

Saturday's meet will be the first conference matchup of the spring for the 2-15 Salukis. Coach John LeFevre expects a good showing against the Redbirds.

Saturday's meet will be the first conference matchup of the spring for the 2-15 Salukis.

"ISU is one of the teams in the middle of our conference," LeFevre said. "They have lost a few of their top players from last year."

This weekend will also test LeFevre's strategy of playing top flight teams in preparation for conference play. The Salukis have taken on national powers such as Louisiana State and Ohio State, and a number of other perennially strong programs. LeFevre hopes that competing against some of the NCAA's best will turn up the Salukis play a notch when facing conference opponents.

"This weekend we will see if our plan worked," LeFevre said. "I truly believe our preparation will show on Saturday."

At mid-season the Salukis individual records are solid considering the 2-15 team record. Mickey Maule, Fabiano Ramos, and Jose Demeterco are the top three singles winners at the halfway mark of the spring.

Maule, at No. 3 singles is 15-11, Ramos is 14-4 at No. 4 singles, and Jose Demeterco is 13-11 alternating at No. 1 and No. 2 singles.

Moving onto the doubles combinations, Aldana and Demeterco are 6-4 at No. 1 doubles, while the No. 2 doubles tandem of Maule and Ramos are undefeated at 4-0.

Men's track team ready to host meet Saturday

By Paul Pabet
Staff Writer

For the second consecutive year the men's track team will host Ball State, Illinois State, and Southeast Missouri State in a scored quadrangular Saturday at McAndrew Stadium.

Well, sort of.

Last year's meet was supposed to be held at SIU-C, but the new all-weather surface at McAndrew wasn't complete. Southeast Missouri agreed to hold the meet at their home facility.

This year, all systems are go as the Salukis try to win the quadrangular for the second straight season. SIU-C won with 70 points last year, while Ball State took second with 57.

Coach Bill Cornell expects some strong team and individual competition.

"We are predicting a very competitive meet and some outstanding individual performances," Cornell said. "Ball State regularly wins the Mid-American Conference, Illinois State just won the Missouri Valley Conference indoor crown, and SEMO is always a tough team."

This meet will be the first of the outdoor season involving all events for the Salukis. Last week, the team competed at the Florida Relays, a competition which consisted mostly of relay events.

Two relay teams won for the Salukis against the 27 team field. The distance medley team and the 4 x 1500 both captured first at the prestigious meet.

The first event of the day will be the long jump which begins at noon and the last event will be the 4 x 400 meter relay at 2:35 p.m.

Saluki Invitational set to feature tough field

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

The eighth-annual Saluki Invitational begins today with the softball team's first home games of the season. The Salukis play Indiana State at 11 a.m. and Evansville at 3 p.m. at IAW Fields.

The Salukis (4-5) play host to the six-team tournament field after taking third at the 19-team Florida State Seminole Invitational.

The last time the Salukis won their own tournament was in 1985. They are one of four Gateway Conference teams in this year's field.

Also, Ball State, defending champ and 1986 winner, and Evansville, who won in 1987.

"You can't look at win-loss records to figure out who will win," Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said.

"All the teams are capable of winning. It will take a combination of offense and defense."

Also in the tournament is favorite Western Illinois, Bradley and Indiana State, who took second the last two years.

"Once again it's an outstanding field. Four of the teams that will be there have won before," Brechtelsbauer said.

Western Illinois has six players batting .308 or higher, including senior shortstop Lu Harris (.429) and senior outfielder Karen McGaw (.414, 12 hits, 29 at bats). The Westerwinds, who captured the Gateway title in 1987, fields a veteran lineup loaded with big hitters.

"All I saw was the backs of my outfielders," recalls Brechtelsbauer of previous meetings with Western.

Ball State (5-5) has lost to some stiff competition, including highly respected Creighton, Stephen F. Austin and Southwest Texas State.

The Cardinals, ranked fourth in the NCAA Midwest Region, have 13 returning players from last year's 32-24 team.

Brechtelsbauer said that Ball State is "tough to defense, but a scrappy, scrappy ball club."

Evansville (0-4) is young, and already has lost to Bradley (7-4) and Indiana State (2-0).

Indiana State has pitcher Mara Kanary (4-4, 3 shutouts), who went 12-11 last season with 10 shutouts and 61 strikeouts. The Sycamores' first four opponents have hit only .089 against her, compared to their own .266.

Bradley has two of the Gateway's top hitters returning. But after going winless at Florida State, the Lady Braves must rely on the bats of sophomore pitcher Sharon Kempf (.389) and senior third baseman Stephanie Johnson (.382). The Salukis will compete with a lineup composed of freshmen and sophomores, except for junior second baseman Shelly Gibbs, the cleanup hitter batting a team-high .406. She has two homers, a triple, a double and six runs.

Mary Jo Firnbach is the second-leading hitter at .370. Along with Gibbs at second and Firnbach at third will be sophomore Angie LeMonnier at first, freshman Cheryl Venorsky at short, and sophomore Michelle Davidovich or junior Jan Agnich behind the plate. In the outfield will be sophomore Shannon Taylor, freshman Kim Johannsen and sophomore Kim Tummins.

Sophomore pitcher Traci Furlow, who had a team-low 1.10 ERA (No. 2 in the Gateway) and 5-7 record on the mound last season, was chosen all-tournament at Florida State.

Furlow threw a four-hitter in a 2-1 upset over Nebraska, which allowed the Salukis to advance from pool play to the championship bracket. The righthander will enter this weekend's play with a team-low 1.47 ERA.

Sophomore Lisa Robinson, junior Jennifer Brown and freshman Dede Darnell will be promising on the mound.

Donewald, other firings have negative effect on programs

What do basketball coaches Bob Donewald and Don DeVoe have in common?

They both have at least a 60 percent career winning percentage, they both have been at their respective schools for more than 10 years, they both have built up nationally respected programs, they both are former Indiana assistants.

Oh, one more thing. They both have a spot in the unemployment line.

But Tennessee ditching DeVoe and Illinois States ouster of Donewald merely scratches the surface of a frightening trend creeping into college basketball.

Dayton's Don Donohoe was given the heave-ho after 25 years and 437 victories, and, after spending a weekend in Wichita, Kan., for the Missouri Valley tournament, media members and fans were introduced to an air of dislike for coach Eddie Fogler.

Look out Eddie, you may be next.

When asked about their decisions, athletics directors and university presidents point to revenue and attendance figures over wins and losses. That is where the problem arises.

Just what is the role of these coaches? Are they hired to sit on the bench and direct their players or sit at the bar with local boosters trying to coax them into the arena?

Just what is it that an athletics director does anyway?

Donewald is a good example. Not only was he the best coach in the Missouri Valley, he is arguably one the best coaches in the country.

You know Bob. You last saw him Feb. 27 if you went to the Arena for the Illinois State game. Hunched over in his chair, arms folded, glaring at Ricky Jackson for tossing up a bonehead shot.

Baseball team erases three-game losing skid

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The baseball team broke out of its three-game losing skid in a big way, as Tim Davis led off Thursday's game at Southeast Missouri with a king-sized home run and the Salukis ran away with a 12-7 victory.

"Did you see that home run by Davis?" said an exuberant Coach Itchy Jones.

Davis, a junior second baseman hitting .302, used his solo shot to propel the Salukis to a five-run first inning.

Rick Damico followed Davis' blast with a double, Doug Shields had a sacrifice, and Brad Hollenkamp and Matt Giegling each singled in the inning.

Then freshman Kurt Endebrock wrapped the inning up with a two-run homer.

"That was just what we needed," said Jones, whose ball club stands at 5-9 and avoided having the worst start in school history with the victory.

The Salukis hold their home opener in a noon doubleheader Saturday against McKendree College at Abe Martin Field. They will play Quincy in a twin-bill Sunday starting at
