Gus says if Harrell collects, the University may have a real financial exigency.

SIU sued for $650,000 by ex-teacher

By Lenore Sobota
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A $650,000 law suit was filed against SIU Friday by one of the 104 faculty members terminated in June, 1974 following the University's declaration of a "financial exigency."

Robert B. Harrell, former assistant professor of English, filed the suit which charges the University with willfully misrepresenting the existence of a financial emergency when it dismissed the 104 faculty members.

The University declared a "financial exigency" in 1973 following a $2.7 million budget cut and announced that it would terminate the contracts of 104 teachers, including 29 faculty members with tenure.

Harrell, now Jackson County clerk, is the only member of the Carbondale 104 who has not reached a settlement with SIU.

The suit, filed in Madison County Circuit Court, charges that former President David Derge, former Vice President for Academic Affairs Keith Leasure and the Board of Trustees "knew or should have known that no financial exigency existed."

Harrell is seeking $650,000 in damages and reinstatement as a tenured professor of English teaching the same classes he had before his dismissal.

SIU Legal Counsel John W. Huffman said Monday that he could not comment in Harrell's suit because the University had not been officially notified of its filing.

Harrell taught at SIU from September, 1964 to June, 1974. He was president of the local chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

Harrell said he feels he has been "extremely patient" in trying to reach a settlement with the University.

"Their offers have never been anywhere near satisfactory," he said, "and I have never been approached by him (President Warren W. Brandt) since he took office a year ago."

Harrell said he was offered a job in the English Department prior to the start of fall semester but was only given seven days to respond which he said was not enough time to straighten out his affairs in the county clerk's office.

Harrell said the position would have limited him to teaching English composition courses which he said is "absurd" for a person with a doctorate and 10 years of experience.

"I had a better job than that as a graduate assistant," Harrell said.

Harrell is represented by attorney Carl Runge of East St. Louis, the same attorney who represented the Carbondale 104 in a suit filed by the University in 1973.

SIU filed suit against the Carbondale 104 in December, 1973 seeking a declaratory judgement from the court approving the terminations on the grounds of demonstrable financial exigency, but the suit was dropped in June, 1974 before financial exigency was proven.

Harrell declined comment on how he will prove that no financial emergency existed.

Some of the Carbondale 104 were given positions elsewhere in the University. Others were given a lump sum salary payment in lieu of one-year termination notice on the condition that they forfeit grievance rights.

Attorney fee collection may violate resolution

By Ken Temkin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU administrators may have jumped the gun in adding $1 to student fees to finance the SIU-C students' attorney program.

According to the Board of Trustees resolution which authorized the students' attorney fee, collection of the fee is contingent upon the approval of the program.

The students' attorney program is yet to be approved by the board.

But, President Warren Brandt said board approval of the program is not necessary for the fee to be levied.

Brandt said approval of the resolution which sets up the fee and contains the contingency clause is approval enough for his administration to charge the $1 refundable fee.

"We're talking about semantics here," Brandt said.

The wording of the document is specific, however:

"All provisions contained within this resolution (proposal for institution of the SIU-C students' attorney fee) are contingent upon the approval of the SIU-C students' attorney program..."

Board Legal Counsel C. Richard Grunoff offered this explanation for the contingency clause:

"The fee had to be implemented before students started to pay their fees for fall semester. Your (the Daily Egyptian's) interpretation of the Board's resolution does not take into account the intent and circumstances surrounding that particular situation."

But if the language of the board's resolution is read to mean what it says—as opposed to what the board may have meant to say—then the fee was collected without the authorization of the trustees.

According to the board's Charter and Code of Policy, collection of the fee is under the direct and complete control of the board.

Under the heading "General Policies applicable to student fees and charges," the board's Code of Policy states, "All student fees and charges shall be fixed only under the authority of the Board of Trustees. That authority may be the direct statutory authority of the Board of Trustees to fix and collect...fees or may be authority delegated to its chief officers in specific policies adopted by the Board of Trustees."

The students' attorney fee falls under the guidelines of "General Student Fees" which are noted specifically in the Charter of the Board of Trustees as "fees for student activities; fees for student facilities such as student union buildings or field houses or stadia or other recreational facilities; student welfare fees; (and)...similar fees for supplies and materials."

It is further stipulated in the Code and Policy statement that the trustees

Mine search continues for diver

By Scott G. Bandle
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The search continued Monday for an SIU student who has been missing since Saturday after taking part in a scuba diving expedition in an old lead mine near Bonne Terre, Mo.

Michael Sprenger, 19, a freshman from Crystal Lake majoring in marketing, was still listed as missing by authorities as the search moved into its third day.

John F. Katilius, 19, a freshman from Cicero majoring in cinema and photography, had also been reported missing Saturday but was discovered drowned that afternoon.

Both students were members of the Delta Xi Fraternity House and were part of a 26-person group from the SIU Egyptian Divers Club that went diving in the Bonne Terre Lead Mine.

The 105-year-old mine is a tourist site that opened up in 1968, eight years after it was closed because of a need for a richer vein of ore. The first two levels are open for tourists while the last three flooded levels are open for scuba diving, a new attraction that started last summer.

Law officials said that out of the 2,000 people who have dived in the mine, these are the first accidents since it first opened for business.

Sgt. Gary Yates of the Bonne Terre Police Department, who is leading the search, said Monday that law officials do not know what happened to the two men.

"Katilius" was found at the third level, 87 feet below the water level in a restricted area. The areas for diving are well-lit and have signs all over. I don't know what happened," he said.

Vevon Siernan, 22, Route 1, president of the club, also said he did not know what happened to the two men. He described them as "very good divers, calm and level-headed."

The members of the club are all experienced divers. To join, a person must present a certificate that shows he has passed a scuba-diving course and then take the club's own safety course, said Siernan.

Yates said that expert teams in scuba diving have been brought down from St. Louis and Chicago. Law officials also said that numerous air pockets are scattered in the flooded regions of the mine and they hoped that Sprenger is in one of them. Yates said the student had about an hour of air in his tanks. Officials at the mine site said the search would continue.

Peter J. Carroll, faculty advisor for the club, has remained at the mine since Saturday with six other club members who are participating in the search.

Katilius is survived by his parents Mr. and Mrs. John Katilius, Sr., and two sisters, Karen and Kristine.

A wake will be held for him from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday at Petkus Funeral Home, 1410 S. 50th St., Cicero. Services will start at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at the funeral home chapel with a Resurrection Mass being said at 10 a.m. at St. Anthony Church, 1500 S. 50th Ave. He will be buried at the Queen of Heaven Cemetery in Hillside, 1400 S. Wols Rd.

Local massage parlor permanently closed

By Mike Springston
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A permanent injunction against the owners of the Executive Club Four massage parlor was signed by Williamson County Judge John H. Clayton Monday prohibiting the business from reopening.

The injunction had been co-signed Friday afternoon by Carbondale City Attorney John Womick and defense attorney Don Prosser.

The Executive Club Four, owned by Continental Health Clubs, had been closed since Nov. 12 when Circuit Judge Snider Howell issued temporary injunction forcing the closing of the business.

Prosser said the closing had nothing to do with the fact that the Executive Club was a massage parlor.

The injunction contends the massage parlor violates Carbondale home rule zoning ordinances because it operates illegally within 1½ miles of Carbondale.

Executive Club Four had operated out of a trailer. The city maintains that occupation of mobile homes for business or industry is illegal.

The injunction also said the club operated in an area not zoned for that type of business. The club was located just east of Ottesen Mobile Homes off Illinois 13 in Crab Orchard Estates, an area that is classified B-WA. Only wholesale and automotive businesses and operate in a B-WA area.

The Executive Club has also reportedly not filed for an operating permit under a Williamson County ordinance regulating massage parlors which was adopted Oct. 27.

The ordinance provides that massage parlors' premises and records—including lists of patrons with their names, times, dates and places of service—be made available for inspection by the Williamson County Board of Commissioners.

Hearing set in Burns murder trial

A preliminary hearing has been set for Nov. 24 in the trial of Clarence "Sonny" Harrington III accused of murdering a 19-year-old Carbondale woman.

Circuit Judge Richard Richman ordered the hearing date when Harrington, 20, appeared before him Monday on a bond return date.

Harrington, 309 Crestview Lane, is charged in the strangulation murder of Margaret Burns, 54, Green Acres Trailer Court, on Nov. 5. He was arrested by Jackson County deputy sheriffs on Nov. 12.

Harrington, the son of SIU Security Policeman Clarence Harrington Jr., is charged with two counts of murder and one count of burglary.

Harrington allegedly entered Ms. Burns' trailer to steal and allegedly attacked Ms. Burns when she discovered him, Jackson County Sheriff Don White said.

Harrington remains in custody in the Jackson County Jail. His bond was set at $100,000 by Richman. The Jackson County Public Defender has been appointed to represent Harrington.

Under Illinois law, the state's attorney must show probable cause for the defendant being charged in a preliminary hearing. If cause is not shown, the case may be dismissed by the presiding judge.

Arresting officers have said they have an oral statement from Harrington discussing his alleged involvement in the slaying.

U.S. crime rate up 18 per cent, FBI says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Criminals struck 19 times every minute to claim 20,000 lives and $2.6 billion in loot as crime in the United States rose 18 per cent last year, the FBI reported Monday.

Murderers killed enough people to populate a fair-sized town, and robbers and thieves hauled off loot valued at more than the Justice Department's annual budget and more than twice what it costs to operate the city of Chicago for a year.

The Illinois rate of violent crime jumped far ahead of the national average in 1974, FBI figures showed.

For every 100,000 inhabitants, there were 627.1 violent crimes in 1974, the annual Uniform Crime Reports compiled by the FBI showed. Only New York, Maryland, Nevada, Florida and Michigan were recorded as having higher rates.

The Illinois rate jumped from 555.9 in 1973, the report showed. It placed the national average for 1973 at 415.3 for every 100,000 inhabitants. The average for all 50 states plus Puerto Rico in 1974 was 458.8.

The murder rate in Illinois, 12th highest in the nation, excluding Puerto Rico, was 11.8 for each 100,000 inhabitants, up from 10.4 in 1973. The rape figure, 14th worst, was 27.7, up from 24, and the robbery rate, fourth greatest, was 313.4, increased from 272.8.

Supreme Court supports inter-district busing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court indicated Monday it will allow some busing of pupils between black inner-city schools and predominantly white suburbs.

The court upheld without comment a ruling of a three-judge federal court which cleared the way for interdistrict busing in the Wilmington, Del., area.

It was the court's first ruling on the issue since July 1974 when it severely restricted the circumstances in which school district lines may be crossed.

William Taylor, a law professor at Catholic University here, who argued the case on behalf of Wilmington blacks, said the decision means the issue is "open and alive."

If the Wilmington case had not been considered appropriate for interdistrict busing, said Taylor, it would have been hard to prove that any case was.

He said the high court may have another opportunity to spell out its reasoning on the question when it considers an Indianapolis case now on appeal to the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago.

New Athens chosen for federal coal project

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The federal government has chosen New Athens in Southern Illinois as the site for the $237 million coal-conversion project, officials said Monday.

The project will be jointly financed by the federal government, the state and a consortium of private firms called Coalcon.

Some 16 sites in six states were originally proposed for the multi-year project for converting coal into clean-burning gas and liquid fuel, but the final choice reportedly had narrowed in recent weeks to the Illinois site and one in West Virginia.

Illinois' selection was first announced by a spokesman in Washington for Rep. Melvin Price, D-Illinois.

Sidney Marder, head of the state's Division of Energy, said engineering and environmental studies would begin soon, with construction expected to begin in 1978 and to be completed by 1980.

"This is the first major coal development project to come down the line, and it's probably the greatest single project this country will see for some time," Marder said.

He said his office has recommended that the state provide $25 million for the project. The federal government and the private firms involved will pay the rest of the cost, he said.

Hearst trial postponed until January

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A federal judge Monday postponed the start of Patricia Hearst's bank robbery trial until Jan. 26, and her attorneys said the delay gives them the time they need to prepare.

Defense attorney Albert Johnson said U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter agreed to change the Dec. 15 starting date at a meeting in his chambers. Hearst was not present at the session.

Johnson told newsmen afterward that Carter based his decision on last week's ruling by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The court said a judge could exempt time spent in psychiatric testing from the 90-day limit set by a new federal law for bringing a defendant to trial after arraignment.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr., who also was present at the meeting, said the government acceded to the defense request for a delay because it feared Hearst might be denied due process if she were rushed to trial.

Johnson said the defense was generally pleased with the new trial date, which he said was close to the last available date for trial, even exempting the 51 days Hearst spent in psychiatric testing.

DuQuoin representative seeks third term in House

State Rep. Ralph Dunn, R-DuQuoin, has announced he will seek a third term as representative from the 58th district to the Illinois House of Representatives.

Dunn serves on the House Appropriations, Revenue, and Higher Education committees. He also serves on the Illinois Energy Resources Commission and Deaf and Hard of Hearing Study Commission.

Dunn has frequently attacked the Menard Prison administration for alleged "administrative irresponsibility" in allowing releases and furloughs for prisoners.

Dunn has sponsored "a bill in the General Assembly which calls for reforms in the Department of Corrections release and parole programs."

A life-long Southern Illinois resident, Dunn said he has worked for bills to enable increased usage of Illinois coal.

Dunn is also credited with sponsoring and passing bills which provide state money for local government services.

Other 58th district legislators up for reelection are Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, and Vincent Birchler, D-Chester.

Benton judge calls it quits; says underworked, overpaid

BENTON (AP)—Why, it's almost a crime, the judge reasons. His honor can't honestly say his job is worth the $42,500 annual salary because there isn't enough work.

So, he's quitting. "That's exactly right," Judge William Eovaldi of Illinois' Second Judicial Circuit said Monday. "There just wasn't enough work to keep me working full time. And anybody who knows me knows I'm not happy unless I'm working full time. There is nothing else to do."

Eovaldi, on the bench since 1954, has sent his resignation to the chief justice of the state Supreme Court, effective Dec. 31.

It's a move he'd been deliberating since August when his 14 fellow Circuit Court judges decided to hire three associate judges to handle minor cases.

"We don't need this many judges," the tireless, 71-year-old judge said in an interview. "I'd say 15 would be enough."

We don't need any more than 15 if the schedules are properly handled."

I got to the place after the appointment of the other judges where I wasn't running a full business. I got enough of that.

"I was just raised to work for a living ever since I was 12-years-old," he said. "I just think if a fellow is working for the public he ought to render full-time service for his pay."

His most publicized case was a murder-kidnap trial in 1972 involving an 8-year-old Lawrenceville girl. A year later he attracted more attention when he threw out all but 800 of 2,000 cases backlogged in Jefferson County.

They hadn't come to trial, he said, because of dilatory tactics by the lawyers. "In this circuit," he said, "they can get a trial as quickly as they want it." Some 800 cases are still pending in Franklin County, where he sits and they also are the fault of lawyers, he said.

Lobby planned for more student jobs

By Mike Springston
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Association of Illinois Student Governments (AISG) has decided to lobby the Illinois legislature for more student jobs and permission to sell beer and wine in university student centers, Doug Diggle, SIU student president said.

In an organizational meeting held last weekend in Charleston, the AISG decided to take lobbying action on seven bills before the Illinois legislature which affect higher education, Diggle said.

He said the AISG will lobby for the Student Employment Assistance Act (Senate bill 530) which would authorize the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) to make grants to all state universities so that they may provide additional employment opportunities for students. It passed, the bill would become effective July 1, 1976.

AISG will also support House bill 3100 which would permit the sale of beer and wine in university student centers, Diggle said.

AISG also announced plans to lobby against one Senate bill and four House bills.

AISG will lobby against Senate bill 748 which permits the Illinois State Scholarship Commission to provide assistance to students attending private institutions of higher education.

Diggle said AISG would work against House bill 286 which would provide $12 million in capital improvement funds to private institutions.

Diggle said he was opposed to legislation that would "approve capital and private money to private institutions at a time when public institutions are being faced with the possibility of a tuition increase."

House bill 920, the Illinois Tuition Differential Act for Students at Nonpublic Institutions of Higher Learning, is another bill AISG will lobby against.

The bill provides for grants to non-public institutions of higher learning not to exceed one-half of the difference between the average tuition paid and the average instructional cost at senior public universities as determined by IBHE.

The bill, Diggle said, would "subsidize private institutions without having any budget constraints on them."

House bill 1959, which would abolish all scholarship programs and replace them with a loan program administered by the Illinois State Scholarship Commission, is also meeting AISG opposition. The bill would limit the amount of the loan to $5,500, repayable 3 years after the student either receives a bachelor's degree or leaves school, at 6 percent interest over 7 to 30 years.

AISG will also lobby against House bill 3069 which would raise the number of members of the IBHE from 17 to 20 with the new positions filled by representatives from nonpublic institutions. The bill would also take away the vote of IBHE members and turn it into strictly an advisory body, Diggle said.

In other action, AISG sent Byron Tuggle, ISU student trustee, to the subcommittee of the Illinois House's Higher Education Committee to present the AISG view of IBHE's Master Plan-Phase Four.

Bride weds man already in custody

A Carbondale man and woman were married Monday in the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro, but the bride left the building without the groom.

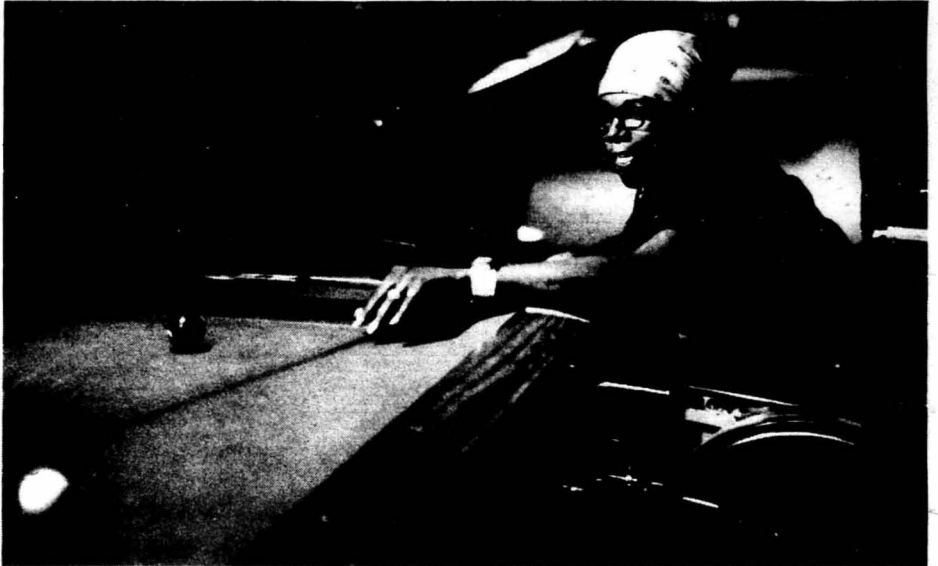

The brief honeymoon was not caused by a marital spat, however, because the groom remains in custody in the Jackson County Jail.

Leonard Higgins, 26, awaits sentencing after being convicted of theft from a person, a felony, in October. Two other charges against him, robbery and assault, were dismissed by the court at the trial's conclusion.

Higgins and his bride, Doris Poulkes, 27, were married by Circuit Judge Richard Richman. Richman found Higgins guilty in a bench trial and is scheduled to sentence him this Thursday.

Although Higgins had his own best man, Jackson County Deputy sheriffs James Droge and Woodrow Procnunier stood by, making sure the groom kept his date with the altar.

After the ceremony, Higgins was returned to his cell in the third floor jail, where the sound of jail bars replaced wedding bells.

Resolution may prohibit attorney fee retain authority over general student fees and do not delegate authority to any of its subordinates.

But despite that policy and the contingency clause in the fee resolution, the fee was assessed by the SIU administration on all students for fall semester 1975.

As of Oct. 31 the students' attorney program fee account, which is under the fiscal management of Dean of Student Life Harvey Welch, had a balance of $18,956.

That money is being held in an escrow account until the attorney program is approved by the board.

B. Kirby Browning, director of the office of admissions and records, said it is the responsibility of his office to initiate action on the board's fee proposal and, pursuant to the board's resolution, he directed the $1 fee be included on the fall 1975 student fee statement.

Browning refused to comment on the contingency clause referring questions to SIU Legal Counsel John Huffman.

Huffman alluded to the same interpretation of the contingency clause as Grunty. "The intent of the board's action was to prevent the use of the students' attorney fee for purposes other than a students' attorney program," Huffman said.

Huffman admitted that the wording of the contingency clause could have been a little more explicit, but he denied that, because of the clause, student fees are being collected without the authorization of the board.

Huffman said interpretation of the contingency clause could only be done knowing the circumstances and intent surrounding the situation.

As proof of the intent of the boards' actions, both Huffman and Grunty offered the trustees' and staff statements as transcribed by board staff secretaries at the board meeting which passed the fee resolution.

The secretarial transcripts of the May 8 meeting show statements by Huffman which are directed to setting up the $1 fee prior to the approval of the attorney program.

Huffman's statements were premised on the assurance by Brandt that the attorney program would be ready by the June 12 board meeting, or at the latest, the July 10 board meeting.

But following Huffman's statement, Board Chairman Ivan A. Elliott Jr. reminded the Board of the existence of the contingency clause, quoting it verbatim from the text of the resolution.

In spite of Elliott's action, Huffman and Grunty say the intent of the contingency clause is not to prevent the collection of fees before approval of the students' attorney program—but rather to prevent any unauthorized expenditures from the attorney account.

Brandt said the mere passage of an attorney fee resolution was recognition of the existence of an attorney program and satisfactory approval by the board.

But Ellen Schanzle-Haskins, president of the Graduate Student Council and law student, admitted that literal translation of the contingency clause precludes collection of the fee until the program is passed.

"The resolution was very poorly worded," she said, adding that the intent of the board was not to prevent collection for the fees for fall semester.

If the board had been presented with and had approved the attorney program before the beginning of fall semester, the contingency clause would have had no effect on the collection of fees, said Schanzle-Haskins and Student President Doug Diggle.

But because of the delays, both said it appears that the contingency clause may apply.

New York default not feared locally

By Chuck Giametta
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Bankers in the Carbondale area say there is little chance that local holders of New York City securities will lose money if the city defaults.

Their prediction was made despite a warning by Congressman Paul Simon (D-IL.) that area banks stand to lose $5.8 million if the city defaults.

The bankers said New York City securities were held almost exclusively by banks and not individuals in this area.

They believe there is little chance of any monetary loss to local savings account holders if New York City defaults on its bonds.

Simon, who says he opposes a "bail out" of New York City, recently wrote 81 Southern Illinois banks asking how much they hold in New York City securities. The combined total of the 61 banks which replied was reportedly $5,868,900.

Simon said he would be neglecting the interests of his district and the nation if he didn't support some type of federal guarantee to assure that New York does not default.

A representative of the Carbondale National Bank said the situation is serious, "but I don't believe the banks that hold New York bonds would take a complete loss in the event of a default because the bonds stipulate that the holders have a first lien on the city's money."

A first lien means that payments to holders of bonds must be cleared up first in the event of a default—even before wages could be paid to police or firemen, he said.

A spokesman for the University Bank of Carbondale said even if the city were to default, it would have to liquidate all of its assets before the bonds became worthless.

Robert Isbell, SIU treasurer, said the University is prohibited by an Illinois statute from owning any municipal bonds.

Joseph Goodman, director of the SIU Foundation said the foundation does hold bonds, but does not own any in New York City.

Fire academy

By Joey Helleny
Student Writer

On October 28, 1974, President Ford signed into law the Federal Fire Prevention and Control Act of 1974. The bill authorizes the spending of over $45 million over the next two years in the interest of combating the tremendous yearly fire loss.

One of the highlights of the act is the establishment of a Federal Fire Academy. Of the total amount authorized by the act, $9 million, or one-fifth of the amount, will be spent on the academy's construction. Modeled after the FBI academy, the Federal Fire Academy would provide first class facilities and staff to act as a focal point for the professional training of fire officers. A site selection board will make the recommendation to the Secretary of Commerce for the final construction site. This recommendation is due no later than October 29, 1976.

Representative Paul Simon and other Southern Illinois leaders have offered the old VTI site for the academy, since all remaining vocational programs are to be moved back to the parent SIU-C campus.

When the site was offered, it appeared that Southern Illinois would stand a good chance in the final decision. The site is already in a federal wildlife refuge, near an airport, close to a large university, and central to the nation. Simon made these points clear in Washington.

But now the area's chances for success in this matter have been seriously jeopardized by the irresponsibility of Illinois in supporting its own state fire agencies.

The University of Illinois has long operated one of the best firemanship training programs in the nation under its extension service. Now, Gov. Daniel Walker has cut the current fiscal budget to the bone, and better funding for the next fiscal year seems improbable.

The state has another training program, the Illinois Fire Commission Certification Program. Since its establishment in January, 1973, this agency has been simply a bureaucracy with high administrative costs and very little useful output. Its administration has been almost purely political.

Just last month, Walker fired the state's top fire officer, Fire Marshal Bernard Sadowski, for his alleged connection with political contributions.

All of this adds up to a poor image for Illinois in the eyes of fire officials across the country and the officials who will influence the final site selection.

The news media has reported that Illinois has lost many new industries because of its poor image and conditions. Now, the opportunity for a prestigious and productive federal agency is threatened, if not lost already.

The fire industry of Illinois has attempted to maintain a high degree of professionalism and respect, but the workings of a few politicians have tarnished this image wrongly.

U.S. role in U.N.

By Les Krummrich
Student Writer

There is a lot of talk in the United States now of reassessing America's role in the United Nations.

The talk is based on a vote taken in the U.N. last week equating Zionism with racism.

The resolution is certainly questionable. While there is racism in the strict belief in any religion, race or kind of people, the constructiveness of asserting that a member of the U.N. has a religion which is racist is very hard to see.

The most destructive fact is that the U.S. Congress has called for reappraisal of America's support in the U.N.

This would mean that the U.S. may consider no longer supporting peace-keeping forces in the Middle East or wherever they are needed. This would mean considering dropping U.S. support of Unicef, which attempts to help all the world's children.

The U.S. helped set up the United Nations to encourage cooperation among the nations of the world. Cooperation does not include getting upset and threatening withdrawal because of being in the minority on one vote.

If you find out, let us know what in hell is happening

By Jim Ridings

In perhaps the best magazine cartoon of the past several years, a frustrated-looking, middle-age man is depicted sitting in his easy chair with a crumpled newspaper, exclaiming, "I'd just like to know what in hell is happening, that's all. I'd like to know what in hell is happening. Do YOU know what in hell is happening?" To his dog, who seems to be answering in an equally frustrated manner by furiously scratching himself.

Aside from being a great cartoon, it is also a great comment on the semi-paralyzed, confused state of the mid-1970's. I, too, would like to know what in hell is happening.

With the exception of the Vietnam war, all of the terrible things that plagued us during the 1960's—pollution, overpopulation, the threat of nuclear extinction, racism, food shortages, inflation, corruption—are all still with us (I checked; believe me).

You'd never know it, though, by comparing the movements of the '60s to the relative inactivity of the '70s. People who were outraged at events a decade ago have now apparently been beaten into an apathetic submission by the hopelessness of it all.

The reasons are not all that hard to understand, considering the turn of world events and the tragicomic actions of world leaders.

For example, last week, nations such as Bangladesh, India, Rwanda, Sudan, Russia, Uganda and the Arab nations had the nerve to vote for a resolution condemning Israel as being "racist." That charge, coming from nations such as these, is like being charged with corrupt practices by Richard Nixon.

The resolution introduced shortly after that vote by the United States is just as ironic. U.S. ambassador to the United Nations Daniel Moynihan introduced a proposal calling for world-wide amnesty for all political prisoners in all countries. This, from a country that will not grant an amnesty to its own dissenters against the illegal and immoral undeclared war in Vietnam. What in hell is going on here?

Last week claimed another victim of Watergate. Ralph Newman, historian and president of the Chicago Public Library Board, was convicted of charges of having helped former President Nixon falsify documents to help Nixon obtain a $450,000 federal income tax deduction. Newman faces a possible eight years in prison and $15,000 fine, while the Tricky One continues to soak up the California sunshine. What in hell is going on here?

While Nixon may have symbolized all that was evil and deserving of protest in the '60s, our current president perhaps symbolizes all that is vanilla and deserving of apathy in the '70s. While no one has accused Ford of being corrupt or dishonest, the words stupid and inept have been used...and how can a critic attack the president when he is doing his best to attack himself?

Ford praises retiring Justice William O. Douglas "for distinguished service" and expresses America's "gratitude" for what he has done while on the Supreme Court, only a few short years after leading a movement to impeach Douglas for having written an article for Evergreen magazine. As the president with the largest peacetime deficit in American history, Ford continues to assail New York City for its wasteful spending and deficit spending. What in hell is going on here?

Ford is a great symbol of our times. He is political slapstick at its best. In Salzburg, Austria, he undignifiedly tripped and fell on his face coming down the steps of Air Force One. Another time, he whacked his head on the doorframe as he stepped out of his helicopter. Another time, his limousine was involved in a wreck when his staff failed to block off side-streets the motorcade was to travel past.

Speaking in Newark, N.J., he pounded his fist on the rostrum for emphasis and knocked the round wooden presidential seal to the floor instead. In Atlanta, Ford was trying to talk about geothermal sources of energy, saying "geothermal...gorotheamal..." five times before getting it right. He has smacked his head against concrete swimming pool walls, has been hit in the head by a small child carrying the American flag and has tripped over an old woman in a wheel chair. At the state dinner for Egyptian President Sadat, Ford toasted Sadat and "the people you represent, the great people of the government of Israel—Egypt, excuse me." In Vail, Colorado, he put on a bulky pullover sweater during a golf game, forgetting that he was wearing a baseball cap and his glasses. With the television cameras grinding away, Ford grooped around looking for his "lost" cap.

Ford may be the national symbol of America rising to meet the problems of the day...and then hitting his head on the doorframe as he rises. The football star who has played in too many games without a helmet. Ford may symbolize why people find it all so frustrating.

If any of you out there know what the hell, please let us know.

Strengthen Illinois' open meeting laws

By Lenore Sobota
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

As the need to combat secrecy in government becomes increasingly apparent, Illinois legislators must take action to strengthen the state's open meetings law.

Anthony Scariano, author of the Illinois Open Meetings Act, says the purpose of the law is to open meetings to the public and let the people know what is going on. But widespread evasion of the act's provisions has clouded Illinois' sunshine law.

There are three main problems with the Illinois law.

First, the act lacks a definition as to what constitutes a meeting. Attorney General William J. Scott, in an opinion issued March 22, 1974, said the act should extend to "informal sessions or conferences designed for the discussion of public business" whether or not any action takes place at that gathering.

But while Scott's legal opinions carry some weight and influence, they do not carry the authority of a court decision.

Second, the act contains too many exemptions. The original statute passed in 1957 carried only half a dozen exemptions. The amended statute contains 14 such exemptions many of which are so ambiguous that they leave the act open to outrageous abuse.

Among the exemptions is one which states, "This Act does not apply to the General Assembly or to committees or commissions thereof." If the state legislature is to play a role of leadership in strengthening the open meetings law, the General Assembly must be subject to its provisions in order to demonstrate a true commitment to the people's right to know.

Some public agencies claim the exemptions are needed to protect the public and that some matters are better handled behind closed doors.

Viewpoint

However, California's open meetings law, adopted in 1953, points out, "The people in delegating authority, do not give their public servants the right to decide what is good for the people to know and what is not good for them to know. The people insist on remaining informed so that they may retain control of the instruments they have created."

The third problem with the Illinois Open Meetings Act is the difficulty involved in enforcing its provisions. Unless a member is willing to reveal what actually occurs in an executive session, it is difficult to prove the statute has been violated.

The enforcement problem is compounded by the court's unwillingness to give broad interpretations to the act. In a case decided this past summer, the court refused to extend the open meetings law to staff meetings held by public employees to "improve their efficiency."

Another problem has been the lack of case law on the subject. The professional press, either because of lack of money or lack of desire, have not pursued enforcement of the statute through the courts. The college press has stepped in to try to fill the void left by their inactive professional colleagues.

Reporters from the University of Illinois Chicago filed suit after they were ejected from a Faculty Senate meeting. The Appellate Court of Illinois (1st District) refused to hear the case, claiming it lacked jurisdiction.

At Northern Illinois University, the NIU Star has brought suit against the Board of Regents and NIU President Richard Nelson to gain admittance to the NIU Budget Advisory Committee and other budget and planning committees at Northern. That case is still pending.

The press and the legislature must both carry out their roles to serve the public through a strengthening of the Illinois Open Meetings Act. Democracy can work only with an enlightened, informed public.

As Abraham Lincoln once said, "Let the people know the facts and the country will be safe."

Inconsiderate bikers

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is a short quiz for the people who persist in parking their bicycles in front of the doors to the general classroom building.

I park my bicycle in front of the doors to the building because:

A. I am just an inconsiderate person.

B. I enjoy watching blind people fall over my bicycle.

C. The bicycle rack is too far away. It is all of ten feet away which is much too far to walk.

D. All of the above.

I might add that I too ride a bicycle to campus, and it's people like you who give us a bad name.

Don't take one isolated passage

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am prompted to write in answer to Prof. Schlipp's advice to Mary Gardner (DE, Nov. 6), about her advertisement in the Daily Egyptian (Oct. 29), quoting Ayn Rand in support of the women's movement:

"I swear by my life and my love of it that I will never live for the sake of another man, nor ask another man to live for mine."

Instead, Prof. Schlipp proposes that Mary Gardner consider a passage from John Donne's "Meditation 17" of the Devotions as an approach to living, which I quote only in part: "No man is an island, entire of itself...any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind."

In case anyone is still searching for the "the food for thought" which Prof. Schlipp seems to be reading into Donne, I should like to point out that Ayn Rand and John Donne are not even speaking of the same thing. Consequently, I fail to see how Donne can improve on Rand. Allow me to draw the distinction.

If Rand is speaking of "man" as the male of the species, then she is speaking of not wishing to serve a man simply because she is female. If she is using "man" in the sense of "mankind," how can she be asking mankind to live for her sake? Clearly she is speaking of "man" in the individual sense, and to answer her with passages speaking of "mankind" is to miss the point.

Furthermore, in spite of what Prof. Schlipp may think about Donne, he is not the authority to quote on this issue. The "Meditation" happens to describe only one brief moment of a feeling of community with mankind, experienced by Donne during a serious illness. Therefore the two authors are not even speaking of the same thing, nor is he an authority on "togetherness."

When Donne does specifically broach the subject of the male-female relationship, Prof. Schlipp might be surprised to find out what the man really thought. In the Ovidian poems, a rather shocking assertion is made that "Women are made for men...They are our clogges, not their owne" (Elegy 3: 10, 15). Even in the poems idealizing women, they are lesser beings. On the occasion of Sir Francis Nethersole's marriage, the preacher portrays woman as a mere "Helper" to man. In case anyone is not quite convinced of Donne's opinion of woman as a dependent creature, try considering this "thought" about the male-female relationship:

Woman was not taken out of the foot, to be trodden upon, nor out of the head, to be an overseer of him; but out of his side, where she weakens him enough, and therefore should do all she can, to be a Helper. (Simpson and Potter, "Sermons," II, 346)

There is not much "giving in return" for receiving on the man's part.

The "thought" of this letter should be clear by now. One isolated passage does not an author make.

Theater manager acted immature

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am writing this letter in sympathy to the Varsity Theatre for the tragedy I witnessed a week ago Sunday night at the late show. I'm not talking about the butchered version of "The Wild Bunch" which had been falsely advertised on local radio stations as "presented in its entirety without editing," but rather the act that followed.

I felt ripped off (which happens often due to the good hearted businessmen of Carbondale), so I decided to request a refund. One of the Varsity employees pointed out "the fat guy with the wire-rim glasses" as the manager. It was he that would okay the refund.

I approached the serious fellow with the frown and asked why the movie was the cut version. He explained that it was some trouble they were having with the projector. I asked how a projector could edit the film. He said I wouldn't understand. I didn't and pointed out the movie was the cut version and asked for my refund.

Taking that as his cue he told me it was "tough shit" and then began yelling hysterically at the top of his voice (soprano) and gesticulating wildly, claiming that I, (5'6", 135 lbs.) was threatening him, (6'1", 210 lbs). He continued to carry on while "escorting" me out of the theatre to the public sidewalk. There he finished his speech. With great finality, reddened face and trembling hands, he wheeled about to return to his office.

You know, I really wanted that refund, but I suppose that really wasn't fair of me. After all, I only got ripped off seeing a movie I had seen on television. I could have used the money for something else, but I guess the manager at the Varsity needs it more than I do.

Student workers hurt

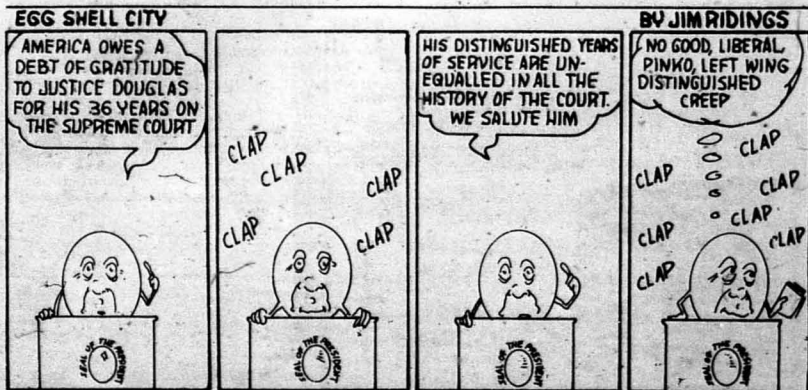

To the Daily Egyptian:

I am making my plea to the administration of SIU through the Daily Egyptian because I feel that this issue concerns a lot of students. On Nov. 4, the paper printed an article on wage hikes for students that will become effective on Jan. 1, 1976. This article stated that some student work hours or student worker layoffs may occur because SIU hasn't received any additional funds to offset the wage hike, particularly at the Physical Plant and the Security Office.

I feel this could be detrimental to the University. Many student workers work out of necessity; cutting their hours will be hurting these students. The university is a place to learn. My plea to the administration is to find a way for these students to continue their education without the added hardship of a bigger financial burden. I can appreciate the financial situation of the University, but I'm concerned about mine—a student that works out of necessity.

Merle Haggard brings Muskogee to SIU

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Nobody smoked marijuana in the SIU Arena Friday night as Merle Haggard and entourage entertained almost 5,000 country and western fans.

Haggard's most famous song is "Okie from Muskogee," in which marijuana, loose loving and long-haired hippies are put in an undesirable category.

Actually, a few long-haired individuals did penetrate the crowd but justified their presence by wearing cowboy hats.

The only other person wearing a cowboy hat almost stole the show from Haggard. He was Tiger Bell, a ten-year-old boy from Oregon, who played an amplified fiddle with professional skill and enthusiasm.

Tiger joined Merle and another member of the band on a fiddling number and literary took over the stage. With chipmunk cheeks and the biggest glasses this side of Elton John, Tiger Bell looked like he should have been tucked away in a study pinning butterflies in an album.

A Review

Gaining the largest applause of the night, Tiger whipped into the almost-mandatory song for fiddle players: "The Orange Blossom Special." After his solo, Tiger joined the band and pleasantly distracted the audience by swinging both of his feet to the rest of Merle's performance.

Oh, yes, Merle was there, performing all of his songs which has earned him the publicity title "Poet of the Common Man." In the past ten years, Merle has won almost every country and western award from "Most Promising Male Vocalist" in 1965 to "Top Male Vocalist" in 1972.

Merle didn't appear until the intermission was over, and his fans were country ready.

By the time Haggard's promoter Bob Eubanks, of the "Newlywed Game" fame, was finished with his introduction, the spectators were yelling for their favorite singer.

Haggard sauntered onto stage as casually as if he was walking into his favorite honky-tonk club. No arm waving or glad-hand gestures for the man who spent three years of a 15-year prison sentence in San Quentin.

Whipping into his "Workin' Man Blues," Haggard settled into his performance, which included most of his long line of hits such as "It's All In The Movies," "Swinging Doors," and of course, the Muskogee favorite.

"Okie from Muskogee" was what everyone was patiently waiting for despite the long will-call lines, watered-down Cokes, and the semi-warm popcorn. After the song, people started thinking about the long drive to Paducah and the crowd began moving out the exits.

Trailer gutted by fire early Sunday

By Scott G. Bandle
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A trailer in the Carbondale Mobile Home Park, Illinois 51, was destroyed by a fire early Sunday morning, Carbondale fire officials said.

The trailer, rented to Alvin Moseberry, was reported on fire at 2:27 a.m. No one was hurt during the blaze. Gordon Parrish, a co-owner of the trailer, said that the damage was estimated at $6,500. Moseberry said that the value of the contents was $1,500. Fire officials said the cause of the blaze is not known and investigation is pending.

Dwayne A. Burrell and Burl

Milton, of Chicago were arrested after they allegedly left their room at the Kings Inn, 825 E. Main St., and took a television set with their own belongings. Both were taken to Jackson County jail.

Albert Pettiman, the general manager of Century Sports, 610 N. Illinois Ave, reported Friday that someone entered the building through a window and stole $575 worth of lottery tickets. There are no suspects at this time.

John W. Griffith, of Brookside Manor, 1200 E. Grand Ave., reported that someone entered his car while parked by his residence and stole a 23-channel citizens-band radio. There was no available cost estimate.

Robert G. Carmondy, of Chicago, reported Saturday that someone broke into his car while it was parked in a city parking lot in the 100 block of South Illinois Avenue, and stole a suitcase full of clothes, an AWOL bag full of clothes, a coat and a pair of boots. The items are valued at $455.

John L. Kelley, 20, of Lewis Park Apartments, 800 E. Grand Ave., reported that someone entered his truck while it was parked in front of his residence and stole several sporting goods items and an eight-track stereo. There was no cost estimate.

'Hearts of the West' offers amiable, affectionate nostalgia

By Jim Crocker
Student Writer

Sometimes one cannot help but feel that a film's only purpose is to assuage its audience. We are constantly bombarded with the glorification of star performers, graphic depictions of violence and promises of titillating sex.

The effect of such films is anesthetizing; we build up an immunity to certain actions or persons.

They no longer excite unless they are offered in an original, vibrant way. One can only coast on an idea so long; it eventually will run its course, lacking any further appeal.

For example, take the now standard car chase sequence. Beginning with the heightened visceral excitement of the pursuit in "Bullitt," reaching its epitome in "The French Connection" and "The Seven Ups," the car chase has since become redundant. Attempts are still made to stimulate us, but they result in over-exaggeration and near-parody.

The result of this over-exposure is apathy, an apathetic attitude that tends to permeate even other considerations. Our senses are dulled; we cannot or will not respond to a different set of circumstances.

Thus, when a film like "Hearts of the West" (at the Varsity) slips into town, it is not hard to see why several people complain that the film drags. "Hearts" doesn't throw any gut-level visceral punches; it doesn't grab you by the stomach and yank you through a wind tunnel. Instead, "Hearts" works as an amiable, affectionate, almost thoroughly engaging comedy. But, be forewarned. This is not the Mel Brooks' hit'em-over-the-head-with-an-anvil type comedy; it doesn't provoke guffaws or belly laughs, nor was it meant to.

What "Hearts" does is gently carry you along with its winning characters and old-fashioned plot. One leaves the theater smiling and relaxed—no small accomplishment nowadays.

The film is basically a nostalgia piece. Back in the thirties, an Iowa farm boy called Lewis Tater (marvelous name) wants more than anything to write westerns. Tater travels westward to gain some first-hand experience ("You can't take it out, if you don't put some in.") and inadvertently stumbles into an acting job with Tumbleweeds Productions, an outfit specializing in B-movie westerns. In between films, Lewis still attempts to get his novel published, falling into various pratfalls along the way.

A Review

With its antique cars and period costumes, the film has a nostalgic flair to it, but unlike "The Day of the Locust" or "Chinatown", it doesn't revel in its atmosphere. Director Howard Zieff doesn't let his images go soft; he is more interested in the moralistic sense of a bygone era, the attitudes expressed by his characters.

At a base level, an immeasurably important level considering the circumstances, the film is a physiognomic success. As Lewis, Jeff Bridges looks so much the raised-on-oats farm boy, the innocent abroad, that his escapades in Tinseltown seem entirely plausible. And Andy Griffith, his face overly made-up to bring out the deep, weathered lines, has rarely been used to better effect. Even the supporting actors are facially perfect. One old buzzard explains to Tater that his face "Reeks character. That's what they tell me. Reeks." And he's right. It reeks.

All works must be hand delivered to Mitchell Gallery between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. prior to the deadline and must be fully prepared for installation. Robert Evans, curator of art at the Illinois State Museum in Springfield, will select the works to be included in the exhibit. The exhibition will begin at 7 p.m. Dec. 1 with a reception open to the public. Mitchell Gallery is open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is free.

Marion state senator announces candidacy

State Sen. Gene Johns, D-Marion, announced his candidacy Nov. 12 for re-election to the Senate from the 59th District in 1976.

Johns, who was elected in 1970 and re-elected in 1972, is seeking his third term.

Johns is chairman of the Senate Executive Committee and serves on the Committees on Appropriations, Finance and Agriculture. He was recently appointed to the new Illinois Energy Resources Commission and serves on the County Problems Commission and the Commission to Examine State Institutions. He is vice-chairman of the Model School for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Commission, Economic Development Commission and the Special Joint Committee on Environment.

Prior to his election to the Senate, Johns served as regional administrator for the Illinois Department of Business and Economic Development.

Johns has sponsored the Industrial Development Act, School for the Deaf in Marion, Little Saline Lake and Shawneetown Port Authority.

Club slates Bicentennial fashion show

Mary L. Heeren
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A Bicentennial fashion show with clothing from 1776 to 1976 will be presented by the Clothing and Textiles Club at 8 p.m. Tuesday, in the Home Economics Auditorium. About 48 outfits will be modeled by Club members and other students, including a 1770's ball gown, a dress worn by Mamie Eisenhower to a cocktail party during the 1930's and an original Christiane Dior from her 1940's "New Look," Debi Griffith, fashion show chairman, said.

The 1770's gown is green silk, full at the bottom with a sewn-in shawl and fur around the neck and sleeves, she said. The Dior outfit is a white ensemble with a full A-line brocade skirt and the pinched-in jacket with a flare below. Griffith said this outfit emphasizes the hourglass figure that was popular during the 1940's.

Clothing modeled will include both formal and informal wear, she said, with about two ensembles from each period.

About "one-half to three-fourths" of the clothing is original costumes from the SIU Museum, the music department and personal donations. About one-fourth of the fashions modeled have been copied from the styles of clothing known to be popular at that time, she said.

Also featured during the presentation will be a slide show emphasizing the impact of historical events on fashions, she said.

Club members have organized the fashion show to raise money and "because it is a fun thing to do and it is in the spirit of the Bicentennial," Griffith said.

The fashion show, complete with live music and two commentators, is open to the public. Tickets

The fashion show, complete with live music and two commentators, is open to the public. Ticket price is 75 cents per person, she said. Tickets are available at the Clothing and Textiles office, 311D Home Economics Building, and at the door of the auditorium Tuesday evening.

Refreshments will follow the presentation.

An inside look at worldwide business:

How the U.S. and foreign governments regulate the business we do abroad has a direct bearing on jobs and paychecks back home. When voters understand the basics of our economic system—and act on that understanding—government listens. Since every citizen has "the responsibility to know", The Business Roundtable is sponsoring a series of messages about the fundamental workings of our free enterprise system. Their "mini-course" appears monthly before the country's largest reading audience in Reader's Digest.

Why Companies Do Business Abroad

Despite the extraordinary contribution of multi-national corporations to our standard of living, the clippers are out in Washington to shear their worldwide operations subsidiaries or affiliated companies employing nearly 32,000 people. Total 1974 sales outside the United States amounted to $2.17 billion, of which over $800 million were U.S. exports. As a result, at least 15,000 new jobs were created in the United States.

These and numerous other examples underline the fact that multi-nationals are good for the U.S. economy, consumer and worker. A U.S. government study covering 300 of the major multi-nationals reveals that when these companies were rapidly expanding employment abroad, they also raised their U.S. work force at a rate of 2.7 percent a year—well above the average growth in American industry. At the same time, they averaged paying their U.S. workers substantially more per hour than U.S. companies without foreign operations.

This is only part of what multi-nationals do for us. They are in the forefront of helping the nation compensate for rising costs of basic raw materials we must import, particularly petroleum. By selling abroad, they earn large amounts of the foreign currencies we need to buy scarce materials from other countries. In addition, in 1974 American companies operating abroad returned home royalties and foreign earnings of $21.4 billion—three times the outflow of dollars for new foreign investment.

All in all, without multi-nationals the extraordinary worldwide rise in living standards would have been slowed. As U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Daniel P. Moynihan has declared: "The multi-national corporation, which combines modern management with liberal trade policies, is arguably the most creative international institution of the 20th century."

Indeed, those countries in Europe and Asia making the most progress are the ones that have encouraged multi-nationals—theirs as well as ours.* Despite this, the clippers are out to shear the U.S. multi-nationals of their foreign connections.

*At last count, some 3500 U.S. corporations had more than $125 billion worth of direct investments abroad. Foreign inter-nationals had $70 billion—some $20 billion of it in the United States.

A while back, the hue and cry was that multi-nationals "export American jobs." When this proved unfounded, critics seized upon the issue of bribery of foreign officials by the multi-nationals. It is true that some U.S. corporations have been involved in payoffs abroad—usually to avoid confiscation or loss of business to foreign competitors. This is certainly a practice contrary to good business ethics. But unethical practices by a few companies hardly justifies punitive tax proposals now coming to the fore in Washington, which would all but put multi-nationals out of business.

Currently, U.S. overseas businesses pay the full 48-percent U.S. corporate income-tax rate when they bring home their profits after paying all taxes in the countries where they operate. These taxes generally are now as high as ours, and companies are allowed to offset them against the taxes on foreign, but not domestic, income that would otherwise be paid to the U.S. Treasury. This avoids double taxation. Foes of the multi-nationals would have them pay the foreign taxes and immediately give almost half of what was left of their earnings to the U.S. Treasury. This would mean an effective tax rate of almost 75 percent. Since no other country does this, our multi-nationals could not survive under the burden.

The economic effect here and abroad of such a move is dismal to contemplate. The value of our vast foreign investments would be sharply reduced, and world trade undoubtedly would suffer.

As the recent global recession has reminded us, when business turns down, no man is an island. We must keep in mind that multi-national corporations are nothing more than business organizations which make up for the fact that raw materials, products, services, know-how and labor are very unevenly distributed over the globe. They bring together all these economic resources to help all people work together to create a peaceful and prosperous world.

AMERICANS are hearing a lot these days about multi-national corporations, but for some reason we rarely hear what they mean to our economic growth and prosperity, or even what they are.

A multi-national is a corporation that does a substantial amount of its business in other countries, either on its own or in partnership with host-country corporations. Multi-nationals, American and foreign, are everywhere. They mine bauxite in Australia, make sewing machines in Britain, sell insurance in Bangkok, operate banks in Iran. There are thousands of them, but generally the term is reserved for the larger, more successful and, so, more conspicuous companies. They also tend to be the corporations that pay the highest wages, and sell products for the lowest prices.

In an earlier era, corporations often set up overseas operations for strictly economic reasons—lower transportation costs, for example, or a break on wages. Today, however, many companies find that they can't enter, or remain in, a foreign market unless they build a factory or set up an office there for at least a part of their operations.

Mighty General Electric, for example, was called in not long ago by the Brazilian government and told that supplying locomotives from its Erie, Pa., works to the growing Brazilian market was costing Brazil too many dollars and that it was also time some Brazilians worked on GE locomotives. GE negotiated a compromise. Now, in an assembly plant in Brazil, local workers put on the wheels and other outer parts. The drive assembly and controls still come from Erie. Both sides got what they wanted: Brazil saves on dollars and gets factory jobs, while GE keeps the high wage, high-technology part. If the company had not cooperated, says chairman R. H. Jones, "complete locomotives would now be made in Brazil in plants financed by a Japanese or European company."

When companies establish foreign operations, it nearly always means a surge in the number of their U.S. employees. In 1950, Caterpillar Tractor Co. was struggling to fill its U.S. and foreign orders from two American plants with 25,000 employees. Today there are 12 overseas Caterpillar plants employing 27,000. But, meanwhile, the company has grown to 14 U.S. plants employing 62,000—of whom some 24,000 owe their jobs solely to foreign orders.

A promising foreign market can be lost irrevocably by not setting up a foreign factory at the right time. In 1904, Du Pont was exporting 34 million pounds of polyethylene to Europe, but decided not to build a plant there. Its European sales of polyethylene soon dropped to the vanishing point, while its foreign competitors moved in and built the market up to four billion pounds a year—"a growth," Du Pont says, "that the U.S. economy and its workers did not share in."

Du Pont learned the lesson well. Today it has 44 principal foreign

Committee reappoints training coordinator

By Lucky Leo Oghojator
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Brockman Schumacher, coordinator of the SIU Rehabilitation Institute's counselor training program, has received his second appointment to the Region V Advisory Committee on Continuing Education.

Region V is rehabilitation services in the Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Department's Office of Human Development.

Schumacher said the committee acts as the main contractor to Region V in its role of establishing and evaluating disabled training programs for HEW.

The Federal Region V consists of Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Minnesota. The committee was established in September, 1974, and meets four times each year in St. Paul, Minn. Schumacher said the committee gives in-service training workshops for people with severe handicaps. Schumacher, the only SIU representative on the committee, said he received his appointment on the basis of his position with the SIU Rehabilitation Institute.

He was appointed earlier by Gov. Daniel Walker to the Illinois Mental Health Commission and the State Mental Health Planning Board.

Schumacher said that last year the Advisory Committee activated a communications system through periodic newsletters, developed a training catalog and executed several contracts for the development of training packages.

One of the committee's most important achievements is the training more than 800 Region V rehabilitation personnel have received through the Center for Continuing Education, Schumacher said.

Instructor to perform in recital Wednesday

By Bob Stone
Student Writer

David Riddles, instructor of bassoon and reed instruments in the School of Music, will present a bassoon recital at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel. The recital is free and open to the public.

The recital will include works by Vivaldi, St. Saens, Poulenc and a "Suite for Bassoon" by Anthony Romano, SIU senior in music composition.

Riddles will be accompanied by John Boe, associate professor of music, on the harpsichord; Alexis Valk, instructor of string bass, on double bass; Tom Lee, graduate assistant in conducting and clarinet, on the clarinet; and Sheila Snow, graduate assistant in piano, on the piano.

Riddles, a native Californian, began his music career studying the saxophone. His family influenced him toward jazz music, he said.

Riddles served four years as principal saxophonist for the U.S. Coast Guard Band. He began serious study of the bassoon at the University of the Pacific, where he received his bachelor's degree in music in 1970.

Riddles received the Master of Music degree in bassoon and woodwinds with a minor in Jazz from Indiana University in 1973.

Riddles has performed with the Eastern Connecticut Symphony and the Evansville Philharmonic. He has played saxophone with John Taylor's "Alien Gang" jazz band, and he recently played his first bassoon solo with the SIU symphony Orchestra.

NEW FIESTA RULES

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP)—The annual Fiesta de Santa Fe, after 262 years of celebrations, finds in 1975 that it has run afoul of government regulations.

The Santa Fe City Council has been told it will have to limit or eliminate some of the traditional food booths set up on the Santa Fe Plaza in order to comply with New Mexico Environmental Improvement Agency standards.

District EIA officer Joe Harris told council members that booths must be upgraded to meet regulations governing sanitation and food facilities.

Leica to hold photography demonstration

The Leica College Seminar is on its way.

The seminar is due to arrive at SIU Wednesday with a two-day program on the instruction and application of 35mm cameras.

Walter G. Heun and William Pierce will speak at the seminars from 6:30 to 10 p.m. Wednesday in Lawson 171 and from 2 to 5 p.m. Thursday in Muckelroy Auditorium.

Heun has traveled extensively conducting courses in 35mm photography during the past few years. He has taught 35mm photography at the Winona School of Professional Photography.

Pierce is a free-lance photographer whose photographs have appeared in magazines from Boy's Life to Playboy. He has been a contract photographer for Time Magazine for the past three years. He wrote and illustrated four chapters of the current Leica manual.

The Leica College Seminar is an opportunity to see what photography can be and learn to use the camera to its best advantage. It demonstrates the 35mm camera as a creative tool in the hands of a competent photographer.

The seminar will operate on an informal approach which will allow participants to direct questions to both Heun and Pierce. Both sessions will be different.

There is no charge for the seminar.

Amtrak schedules extra holiday train

Amtrak will run a special train out of Chicago November 30 to accommodate students returning to Carbondale from Thanksgiving break, said Jerry West, Amtrak spokesman.

The added train will leave Chicago November 30 at 6 p.m. and arrive in Carbondale at 11:20 p.m. The Panama train will run as usual, leaving Chicago at 6:10 p.m. and arriving in Carbondale at 11:30 p.m.

"This will be a non-reserved coach train," West said. Students need not buy tickets in advance for the special train, he said, but do need reserved tickets for the Panama train.

SIU harriers wrap up year, St. John takes fifth in district

By Mark Kazowski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer
It's back to track for the SIU cross country team.

The harriers wound up the 1975 cross country season with a fifth place finish in the seven-team District V cross country meet in Wichita, Kan. Saturday.

Only Jack St. John, with his fifth place finish on the six-mile course, qualified for SIU for the NCAA championships Nov. 24. Through a mutual agreement with coach Lew Hartzog, St. John will not compete in the championships.

"Cross country is a team sport," Hartzog said. "If you are to go to nationals, then it should be as a team."

"We do not feel it is any advantage at all for him to run in that pack of runners and risk being injured."

Colorado captured the team title in the meet with 45 points. Iowa State was second with 66 points, Oklahoma State was next with 68 points and Wichita State was fourth with 82 points.

SIU finished with 130 points ahead of North Texas State with 132 points and Kansas with 157 points.

Colorado, Oklahoma State, Wichita State and Kansas State have each qualified for the nationals.

After sharing the lead with St. John through much of the race, Colin Cummings of Oklahoma State took the individual title in 29:30. St.

John finished at 29:50, behind Rick Musgrave and John Hunsaker of Colorado and Jim Gifford of Wichita State.

The SIU harriers will now begin practicing with the rest of the track team for the coming indoor season.

"The kids are really getting anxious for track to get here, and I am too," Hartzog said. Instead of doing a large amount of road work, Hartzog said the cross country runners will be hitting the track more often than before. They will go through more speed interval work than long distance work, he said.

"I've been very pleased with Jack's performances over the last few meets," Hartzog said. "If he continues, we can look for some real quality races from him both indoors and outdoors."

"He's beginning to come back around to the type of runner he was three years ago before he got hurt," Hartzog said.

Hartzog's praise wasn't all for his prize senior. Freshman Mike Sawyer finished 20th in the field of veteran runners.

"If felt like Sawyer ran strong," Hartzog said. "Finishing 20th in that crowd is not too bad. He beat the Drake kid (Mark Thomas) who beat him here. He also beat Kansas State's No. 1 mile recruit."

"George (Jerry) did not run badly at 29th. I don't feel like Jerry has come around yet," Hartzog said.

Pat Cook finished 50th, and Gary Mandehr finished 51st in the meet as the only other SIU runners.

St. John, Mandehr and Tom Fulton have each used up his eligibility in cross country.

Maroons swim to intrasquad win

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Winning the last event of the evening, the 400-yard relay, the maroon team defeated the white in the annual SIU Maroon-White intrasquad swimming meet Friday in Pulliam Pool.

Men's coach Bob Steele and first-year women's coach Joyce Craven split their squads, putting men and women on each team.

Separate statistics were compiled by SIU's Sports Information for the men's team and the maroon team also came out on top in that respect.

"We didn't have any super swims," Steele commented after the meet. "We saw a lot of mistakes that the guys haven't corrected yet, but that is part of the reason for having this meet."

"Everyone was suffering from yesterday's workout," he said, speaking of Thursday's practice session.

Although there were no super performances by the men, Steele pointed out some fine individual efforts.

Porter (freshman Greg from Hinsdale Central) proved to himself that he can swim three college events and swim them well," Steele said. "He had some doubts before. He puts a lot of pressure on himself."

Porter had a rough night in that two of his three races also featured Jorge Delgado. Delgado won those races: the 200-yard butterfly and the 200-yard individual medley, but Porter pushed the Pan American Games medal winner to his limit.

"It was great to see someone hang onto Jorge, to put the wood to him," Steele remarked, "especially someone from our team."

Porter was also involved in the most exciting event of the evening, the men's 200-yard breaststroke. Sergio Gonzales was declared the winner in a tight four-man race that saw Steve Jack finish second, Paul Schultz third and Porter fourth.

The race was tight right down to the final strokes with less than a second separating the four swimmers.

Schultz is normally favored to win the breaststroke among his teammates, but he had missed two days of swimming because of the extraction of two wisdom teeth earlier in the week.

Gonzales is just starting to get back into the shape of two years ago, Steele said. He broke a leg last year and did not compete.

"He is farther ahead in his training now than he was at this time two years ago," Steele said.

In the other events:

Maroon team (Mike Salerno, Schultz, Delgado, John Sliter) first 400-yard medley relay; Dave Swenson first—1,000-yard freestyle;

Dave Boyd first—200-yard freestyle; Dennis Roberts first—50-meter diving; Rick Fox first—100-yard freestyle; Salerno first—200-yard backstroke; Swenson first—500-yard freestyle; Maroon (Salerno, Sliter, Fox, Roberts) first—400-yard freestyle relay.

The next men's meet is Saturday when SIU hosts the Saluki Invitational in Pulliam Pool.

"We'll work real hard and then ease up Friday—not too much," Steele said of his practice plans for this week. "We'll recuperate on Friday. It should be a good meet."

Kansas will be here and it is the perennial Big Eight champion. Cincinnati will also be here and it has six high school All-Americans.

"It will be interesting. We'll be swimming championship distances plus two sprint relays that are not seen at many college events." Saturday's meet gets underway at 2 p.m.

Paul Schultz, a breaststroker on the men's swimming team, checks the lap counter in the 1,000-yard freestyle event in Friday's intrasquad swim meet. Schultz finished a distant last in the race, but his maroon team won the meet. (Staff photo by Carl Wagner)

Women tankers nab relay win

By Loran Lewis
Student Writer

SIU's women's swimming coach, Joyce Craven, was walking on water after her squad's brilliant showing in two meets over the weekend.

Saturday the swimming team drenched it's competition in the Illinois State University Relays by taking nine of 10 events to out-distance its nearest rival by 56 points.

If that performance was not enough, the team looked equally impressive in an intrasquad meet held Friday night.

Seven pool and school records were broken by the women.

A second place finish in the 250-yard mixed medley kept SIU from sweeping all 10 events in the competition against Illinois State, Eastern Illinois University, Northwestern University, and Principia College.

SIU scored 152 total points in its first collegiate competition of the year. SIU was trailed by ISU and EIU with 96 points apiece. Northwestern was third with 52 points and Principia scored 30.

Craven said most of the times turned in were near what the girls were doing in practice. The coach attributed the success in the relay meet to the team's tremendous depth.

"The reason we did so well," Craven explained "is because we had the best combinations we could arrange for those 10 areas. Even the second team scored points. Everybody contributed."

Eighteen girls made the trip to Normal. Every girl swam in three events.

Craven was particularly pleased with the performance turned in by Anne O'Donnell in the 200-yard freestyle. According to Craven, the opponent had a three-quarters of a length lead when O'Donnell took over. Within two lengths, O'Donnell had caught and passed the other girl to finish first.

SIU's first place events included—200 freestyle, 300-yard breaststroke, 300-yard backstroke, 200-yard freestyle, 150-yard butterfly, 200-yard medley, 400-yard freestyle, 300-yard individual medley, and the 500-yard DeCrescendo freestyle.

Friday the women combined with the men's team for their annual Maroon-White intrasquad game. The final score was tied at 60, but Craven said she was impressed by the individual performances of the girls.

Mindy McCurdy set a pool and school record of 1:00.1 in the 100-yard butterfly. Debbie Brooks' 2:10.8 established a new mark in the 200-yard freestyle.

Two records were set by Candy Miller. Miller set a pool record of 30.4 in the 50-yard backstroke and a new school time of 1:06.7 in the 100-yard backstroke.

Craven expects several more records, including those just established, to fall in the coming year.

"Depth-wise, we have so many people, so many talented people," she said, "I suspect the season will go quite well. We have several people vying for spots."

The first-year coach also pointed to several weaknesses in the squad. "We will be working on the backstroke and freestyle. Diving is one of our weakest areas. We're interested in divers with any type of experience," she said.

The swimming team will not compete again until Dec. 6 when SIU will host an invitational with several midwest schools competing.

PE teacher wins eight-mile event

Ron Knowlton, SIU physical education professor, took first in Sunday's Road Runner Club event with a time of 49:12 over the eight-mile course. Finishing second was Don Trowbridge (50:33), and Tony Putis (53:37) came in third.

Among the women, Carolyn Gibbard (58:28) placed first. She was followed by Marilyn Good (60:22) in second.

Next Sunday, the Road Runner Club will not sponsor an event because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

SIU fans and football players Saturday, learned what it is like to play against the Ohio State Buckeyes' and Woody Hayes' style of football.

Archie Griffin, Cornelius Green and Pete Jackson were in Columbus, Ohio playing Minnesota Saturday, but in McAndrew Stadium for the Salukis' last home game of 1975, the Bowling Green Falcons were displaying their own version of the Buckeye ball control and ground attack game.

For more than 25 minutes of the first half, the Falcons rammed the ball up the middle of the Saluki defense. At halftime the score was 21-0. When it was all over, the score was 48-6 and SIU was 1-8-1. Bowling Green is now 8-2.

The Falcons scored their first three of four possessions and that was more than was needed.

"They are really powerful," SIU coach Doug Weaver said following the game. "They are awfully strong at every position."

Weaver did not have many explanations to offer following his team's worst defeat (at least score-wise) of the year.

"They shut us off on offense and they grinded the game out on their offense," Weaver said.

Weaver added that Bowling Green plays in a "tough league (Mid-American) and they play well in that league. The fans (only 4,935) saw a real big-time ballclub today."

Bowling Green proved its toughness by holding SIU to just one score. Sophomore Tim Cruz hit tight end Bill Cook with a nine-yard touchdown pass with 6:42 remaining the game, but Cruz's run for the point after failed.

The hard-hitting Falcons put more Salukis on injury list. Twelve players missed practice Monday, although sports information director Butch Henry said most of those are expected back. Henry said, however, that nose guard Primus Jones and fullback Wash Henry are questionable for the Salukis last game of the season Saturday at Lamar University.

Jones suffered a twisted ankle and Henry injured his neck.

Bowling Green had a tremendous afternoon on the ground, rolling up 443 yards. Tailback Dave Preston rushed for 106 yards, fullback Jim Gause 135 yards and fullback Dan Saleet 100 yards. Quarterback Leonard Hopkins led SIU with 56 yards on the ground.

"We came into the game wanting to run because we felt they (SIU) would give us the run," said Bowling Green coach Don Nehlen. "They (Falcons) did a nice job. The running game was excellent."

Ohio State coach Woody Hayes has a big influence on how football is played all over Ohio—high school and college, although Nehlen denied styling Bowling Green's game after Ohio State's.

"We like to think how much effect we have on Woody," he said.

"The way they started, and the apparent ease they started with, you might think we were not ready to play," Weaver remarked. "I didn't sense that along the sidelines. We made an attempt to compete, but a team like this makes you look like you're not going full speed."

SIU will attempt to gain some momentum this week in practice as it prepares for the season finale in Texas. Lamar's record is 0-9. Lamar was idle Saturday.

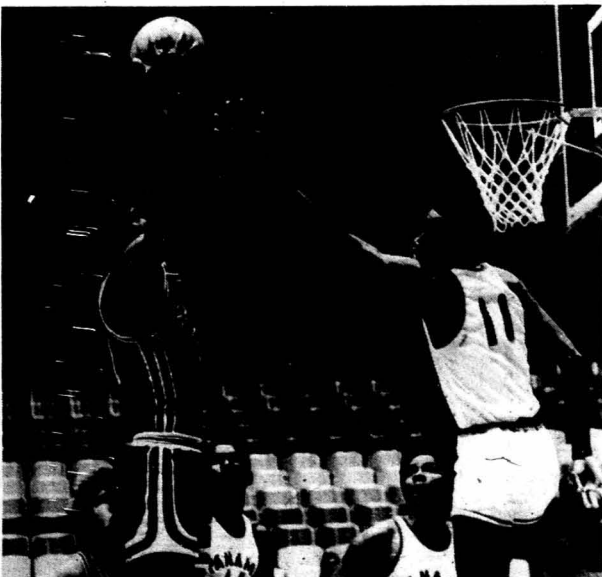

One look at the fans told the story of Saturday's football game with Bowling Green. At least one fan found the partition an ideal spot to rest while the Salukis were falling to the Falcons 48-6. The game was the Everybody but the trainer got to play basketball Sunday as the Salukis overpowered the Panama Nationals, 108-73, at the SIU Arena.

Guard Mike Glenn started the game with a jumper from the right corner and the Salukis raced off to claim a hefty 30-4 lead before the Panamanians realized they were off the airplane.

Panama couldn't do anything right. Behind the back passes had about as much success as the SIU football team, and players were lining up wrong for free throw attempts.

All-and-all it was a disappointing afternoon for the few Saluki fans who came. At halftime the score was 57-27. It was hard to tell what kind of team SIU would field this season.

The bright spots were many, especially the play of freshmen Gary Wilson, Al Williams, and Richard Ford. Wilson was high scorer for the Salukis with 23 points. He grabbed six rebounds. Williams tallied 12 and Ford 14.

On the other hand, the Saluki newcomers made mistakes in their passing and on defense.

Coach Paul Lambert said, "The freshman did make a lot of mistakes. We took a lot of time outs when I noticed two or three things which were happening that were wrong. They were technique time outs. They played with enthusiasm, which gets them in trouble at times."

One familiar, welcome sight was Glenn hitting his on-target jumpers. Out of eleven shots, Glenn only missed one, for a 20 point total.

Second half play didn't produce surprises, although the Panamanians did regroup some, as Lambert ran his players in and out of the game.

Seventeen year-old Panama center Rolando Frazier pushed in 18 of his 29 points in the second half, but his efforts were counteracted by a consistent SIU point flow.

Many of Panama's points were solely the result of individual offensive initiative. Whoever had the ball at the Panama end of the court took the shot—few plays were set up.

Still SIU's defensive efforts concerned Lambert. "We need to work more defensively. At times we did get some good individual defense, but we need those good team techniques on defense."

"We made the most mistakes on passing, but they were aggressive mistakes. They did go to a 2-3 zone. We've only spent a couple days practicing against this type defense. Many South American teams play zones because they often start small players, who are not good on man-to-man defenses, but I think we handled it pretty well."

Carbondale native Mel Hughlett did not suit up because of a bruised muscle.

The first home contest of the season for SIU will be against University of Illinois-Chicago Circle on Dec. 1, five days before the Salukis travel to California for a game with UCLA.
